39 And Balaam went with Balak, and they came unto || Kirjath-huzoth.

|| Or,
a city of streets.

40 And Balak offered oxen and sheep, and sent to Balaam, and to the princes that were with him.

41 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Balak took Balaam, and brought him up into the high places of Baal, that thence he might see the utmost part of the people.

CHAP. XXIII.

1, 13, 28 Balak's sacrifice. 7, 18 Balaam's parable.

AND Balaam said unto Balak, Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven oxen and seven rams.

2 And Balak did as Balaam had spoken; and Balak and Balaam offered on every altar a bullock and a ram.

3 And Balaam said unto Balak, Stand by thy burnt offering, and I will go: per-adventure the LORD will come to meet me: and whatsoever he sheweth me I will tell thee. And || he went to an high place.

|| Or,
he went solitary.

having more places of worship than one, Balak carried Balaam to them all, that from thence he might take the most advantageous prospect of the Israelites. These high places were full of trees and shady groves, which made them commodious both for the solemn thoughts and prayers of such as were devout; and for the filthy inclinations and abominable practices of the wicked. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. — Build me here seven altars,] Balaam appoints this for the worship of the true God, ver. 4. But he was blamable, because he would have the altars erected in the high places of Baal. Such were they, who “feared the Lord,” and yet had their sacrifices in the “houses of the high places:” they are said to “fear the Lord, and serve their own gods,” 2 Kings xvii. 32, 33. Besides this, though the number of sacrifices were not reprobable, yet the multiplying of altars has a bad name in Scripture. Bp. Kidder. The number “seven” was much observed among the Hebrews, by God's order, Lev. iv. 6; Josh. vi. 4; but no more than one altar at a time was built by the Patriarchs, when they offered sacrifices; nor was more than one allowed by Moses. So that in this erection of seven altars there was probably something of heathen superstition. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— seven oxen and seven rams.] This number was used by pious persons, both in these days, Job xlii. 8, and in aftertimes, 1 Chron. xv. 26. Bp. Patrick.

2. — Balak and Balaam offered &c.] Balak presented the sacrifices to be offered for him and for his people; and Balaam performed the office of a priest, and offered them. Bp. Patrick.

3. — And he went to an high place.] We translate it in the margin, “he went solitary.” Probably it is to be understood of 1452.

Before
CHRIST

4 And God met Balaam : and he said unto him, I have prepared seven altars, and I have offered upon every altar a bullock and a ram.

5 And the Lord put a word in Balaam's mouth, and said, Return unto Balak, and thus thou shalt speak.

6 And he returned unto him, and, lo, he stood by his burnt sacrifice, he, and all the princes of Moab.

7 And he took up his parable, and said, Balak the king of Moab hath brought me from Aram, out of the mountains of the cast, saying, Come, curse me Jacob, and come, defy Israel. Before CHRIST

1452.

8 How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed? or how shall I defy, whom the Lord hath not defied?

9 For from the top of the rocks I see him, and from the hills I behold him : lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations.

10 Who can count the dust of Jacob, and the number of the fourth part of Israel? Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his! † Heb.
my soul, or,
my life.

some part of the high place, where he might be solitary ; for instance, the grove, which high places seldom wanted. Bp. Patrick.

The sacrifice being over, he retired alone to a solitude sacred to these occasions, there to wait the Divine inspiration or answer, for which the foregoing rites were the preparation. Bp. Butler.

7. — he took up his parable,] He lift up his voice, and delivered in a loud and audible manner this his prophetic speech, being of weighty concern, and expressed in sublime and majestic words, Job xxvii. 1; xxix. 1. Dr. Wells. There are different significations of the word parable, both in the Old and in the New Testament. 1. It is sometimes used for elevated and instructive poetry. Balaam is said to take up his parable, when he uttered his sublime poems and predictions relating to Israel. David says, "I will incline mine ear to a parable," which is equivalent to speaking of wisdom, and musing of understanding, Ps. xlix. 3, 4. In Ps. lxxviii. we find the words, "I will open my mouth in a parable;" and the author then proceeds to relate historical, but very useful, facts. 2. It signifies a proverbial saying: thus Solomon is said to have spoken three thousand proverbs, or parables, as the Greek word is, 1 Kings iv. 32. In Ecclesiasticus the word is translated "a wise sentence," chap. xx. 20. And in Luke iv. 23, the word rendered "proverb," is literally parable. 3. It occurs in the Gospels for a short comparison or similitude; see Luke v. 36; vi. 39; Matt. xiii. 31, 34. Lastly, the word parable occurs for a continued relation of feigned but possible facts; bearing a general correspondence to the circumstances of those, for whose instruction it was designed, or to the real state of things which it was intended to illustrate. Such are our Lord's parables. Abp. Newcome.

— and said, &c.] The predictions of Balaam are wonderful, whether we consider the matter or the style; as if the same Divine Spirit, that inspired his thoughts, had also raised his language. They are indeed, as the word "parable" implies, a weighty and solemn speech, delivered in figurative and majestic language. We cannot peruse them without being struck with the beauty of them, and perceiving their uncommon force and energy, though we read them only in a translation. Bp. Newton.

9. For from the top of the rocks I see him, &c.] I am set upon this high rock and mountain, on purpose that, upon the sight of Israel, I might curse him: I do indeed behold him, but I have no power to curse. Lo, this people shall be an entire nation within themselves; and shall be a peculiar people, severed and set apart to God, from all other nations upon earth. Bp. Hall.

— lo, the people shall dwell alone, &c.] How could Balaam, on a distant view only of a people, whom he had never seen or known before, have discovered the genius and manners, not only of the people then living, but of their posterity to the latest generations? What renders it the more extraordinary is, the singularity of the character, that they should differ from all the people in the world, and should dwell by themselves among the nations, without mixing and incorporating with any. The time too, when this was affirmed, increases the wonder; it being before the people were well known in the world, before their religion and government were established, and even before they had obtained a settlement any where. But yet that the character was fully verified in the event, not only all history testifies, but we have even ocular demonstration at this day. The Jews in their religion and laws, their rites and ceremonies, their manners and customs, were so totally different from all other nations, that they had little intercourse or communion with them. There was a general intercommunity among the gods of Paganism; but no such thing was allowed between the God of Israel, and the gods of the nations. There was to be no fellowship between God and Belial, though there might be between Belial and Dagon. And hence tho Jews were branded for their inhumanity and unsociableness; and they as generally hated, as they were hated by the rest of mankind. Other nations, the conquerors and the conquered, have often associated and united as one body under the same laws: but the Jews in their captivities have commonly been more bigoted to their own religion, and more tenacious of their own rites and customs, than at other times. And even now, while they are dispersed among all nations, they yet live distinct and separate from all; trading only with others, but eating, marrying, and conversing, chiefly among themselves. Bp. Newton.

10. — the dust of Jacob,] The posterity of Jacob, which are, and shall continue to be, multiplied, as the dust of the earth. Dr. Wells. See God's promise to Abraham, Gen. xiii. 16, repeated to Jacob, chap. xxviii. 14.

— Let me die the death of the righteous,] Such a death as those die, who are in covenant with God, and obey His precepts. Bp. Kidder. By the righteous he means Israel; who were now a people free from idolatry, the great crime of those days. Bp. Patrick.

"Let me die in a mature old age, after a life of health and peace, with all my posterity flourishing about me; as was the lot of the righteous observers of the law!" This vain wish, Moses, I suppose, recorded, that the subsequent account of his immature death in battle, chap. xxxi. 8, might make the stronger impression on the serious reader, to warn him against the impiety and folly of expecting the reward of virtue for a life spent in the gratification of every corrupt appetite. Bp. Warburton.

When Balaam poured forth this passionate wish, he had in all probability some forebodings of his own coming to an untimely end, as he really did afterwards, being slain with the five kings of Midian by the sword of Israel. Bp. Newton.

These words may be regarded as a prophecy, foretelling the happy state of future Israel. Balak, alarmed at the success of the Israelites, had sent to Balaam to curse them. A present danger struck him with terror; a present deliverance was the object of all his thoughts: but Balaam's answer is, "How shall I curse, whom God hath not cursed?" And then in few words he proceeds to state the multitudes and the growing prosperity of the people, instead of their being cut off and driven out: see ver. 8—10. This is the sum of the blessing which he pronounced. And that it was a blessing directly contrary to what was desired, a curse of immediate discomfiture, the answer of Balak declares. All that Balaam uttered afterwards was rather an amplification of this his first and immediate blessing; which was designed to show that Israel should not be destroyed, but should be of long 1452.

Before
CHRIST

11 And Balak said unto Balaam, What hast thou done unto me? I took thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast blessed them altogether.

12 And he answered and said, Must I not take heed to speak that which the LORD hath put in my mouth?

13 And Balak said unto him, Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place, from whence thou mayest see them: thou shalt see but the utmost part of them, and shalt not see them all: and curse me them from thence.

14 ¶ And he brought him into the field of Zophim, to the top of ¶ Pisgah, and built seven altars, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

15 And he said unto Balak, Stand here by thy burnt offering, while I meet the LORD yonder.

16 And the LORD met Balaam, and ^a put a word in his mouth, and said, Go again unto Balak, and say thus.

continuance, and ultimately happy in the blessings of God. "Let me die the death of the righteous," or, as the righteous ones die, full of days; long life being promised to those who feared God. Bp. Goodenough.

13. — Come, I pray thee, with me unto another place.] It was the opinion of the Gentiles, that if one victim proved faulty, or portended evil, another victim might have a more propitious aspect and be accepted. Balaam seems here to have complied with some superstitious notions of this kind; and to gratify Balak, and his own ambitious views, he repeated the same experiment of sacrificing at different places, a second time, and a third time, and still with the same disappointment. Dr. Jortin.

— shall not see them all.] He imagined perhaps that Balaam was frightened at the sight of their multitude, and therefore durst not meddle with them. Bp. Patrick.

14. — Pisgah,] A high mountain, commanding an extensive view, even of all the parts of Canaan, Deut. iii. 27; xxxiv. 1, 2.

19. God is not a man, &c.] God will make good His promises, and particularly that of bringing this people into the promised land; for He is not like a man, who for want of veracity or power fails in the performance of his promise. Bp. Kidder.

21. He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, &c.] That is, they were a people of virtue and piety, so far as not to have drawn down by their iniquity that curse, which Balaam was soliciting leave to pronounce upon them. Bp. Butler. The words, which we translate here "iniquity" and "perverseness," signify frequently in Scripture the highest wickedness, namely idolatry. So that the reason which Balaam gives, why God had blessed and he could not curse them, is, because they were free from idolatry: unto which unless they could be seduced, there was no hope that God would deliver them into the power of their enemies. For which reason Balaam afterwards counselled Balak to entice them to this sin, as the only way to move God's anger against them. Bp. Patrick. It is weakly inferred from these words, that God sees no sin in His own people; and it is in itself a great untruth. That He hath not knowledge of their sins, no man can affirm: nor ought any man to say, that He approves, or will not punish them. For, 1st, God hath declared otherwise. He said unto Moses, "I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people," Ex. xxxii. 9; Deut. ix. 13, 14. And by the Prophet He said unto the whole family of Israel, whom He brought out of Egypt, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth: therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities," Amos iii. 2.

VOL. L.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

17 And when he came to him, behold, he stood by his burnt offering, and the princes of Moab with him. And Balak said unto him, What hath the LORD spoken?

18 And he took up his parable, and said, Rise up, Balak, and hear; hearken unto me, thou son of Zippor:

19 God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?

20 Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and he hath blessed; and I cannot reverse it.

21 He hath not beheld iniquity in Jacob, neither hath he seen perverseness in Israel: the LORD his God is with him, and the shout of a king is among them.

22 ^b God brought them out of Egypt; ^{8.} he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.

2dly, This cannot be the sense of these words; for then Balaam would in vain have given counsel to draw the Israelites into sin, that they might be destroyed; of which see an account, chap. xxv, and compare chap. xxxi. 16. The true sense of these words is, That God would not give up the Israelites to destruction for their sins, which were not like the sins of the neighbouring countries, that were now ready to be destroyed for them. "He hath not beheld," may be rendered in the present tense, He doth not behold; and, "Neither hath He seen," Neither doth He see. The word, which we render "iniquity," is observed to signify an idol in other places; see 1 Sam. xv. 23. Is. lxvi. 3. The ancients understood it of idolatry: and our Church understands this place in the same sense, as appears from the homily against the peril of Idolatry; "There was no idol in Jacob, nor was there any image seen in Israel; and the Lord God was with the people." Bp. Kidder.

— the Lord his God is with him, &c.] The meaning of the whole verse is briefly this: Since they do not worship idols, but cleave to the Lord their God, and serve Him alone, He is present with them, not only to preserve them from their enemies, but, as a king, to crown them with glorious victories. Bp. Patrick.

— the shout of a king] He alludes to the shouts made, when a king or great captain returns victorious with the spoils of his vanquished enemies. Bp. Patrick.

22. — he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn.] He, that is, Israel, hath the strength, or rather the height, of an unicorn. It is uncertain what is the animal, here called reem, and by us translated unicorn. The learned Bochart thinks it most probable that it is a kind of goat, called the gazelle, or antelope: which is a tall animal, sometimes as high as a stag, with long and sharp horns. So that Balaam foretells the Israelites should be as eminent among other people, as the reem was among other kinds of goats. This animal's property of carrying its head very high, and erecting its ears, may be considered as an excellent emblem of the Israelites, released from oppression, and raised by God to a great height of glory. Bp. Patrick.

The name raam, which I apprehend, with the learned Bochart and others, to denote the same kind of animal as rim, or reem, in Job xxxix. 9, 10, seems to signify the wild bull, so called from his height and size in comparison with the tame. That it cannot mean an unicorn, if indeed there ever existed such an animal as that is described to be, is evident from Deut. xxxiii. 17, where the two tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh are compared to the horns of an unicorn. Parkhurst. The name unicorn is derived to us from

R r

Before
CHRIST
1452.
Or, in.

23 Surely there is no enchantment || against Jacob, neither is there any divination against Israel: according to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, What hath God wrought!

24 Behold, the people shall rise up as a great lion, and lift up himself as a young lion: he shall not lie down until he eat of the prey, and drink the blood of the slain.

25 ¶ And Balak said unto Balaam, Neither curse them at all, nor bless them at all.

26 But Balaam answered and said unto Balak, Told not I thee, saying, All that the LORD speaketh, that I must do?

27 ¶ And Balak said unto Balaam, Come, I pray thee, I will bring thee unto another place; peradventure it will please God that thou mayest curse me them from thence.

28 And Balak brought Balaam unto the top of Peor, that looketh toward Jeshimon.

29 And Balaam said unto Balak, Build me here seven altars, and prepare me here seven bullocks and seven rams.

30 And Balak did as Balaam had said, and offered a bullock and a ram on every altar.

the Greek translators, who, in all the passages of Scripture, in which the word occurs, except one, render it monoceros, or the unicorn: and who were very likely to know the animal described by the sacred writers. It is probable that they meant by it the rhinoceros, which has sometimes only one horn, and sometimes two, nearly equal in strength, power, magnitude, &c. The single horned rhinoceros will suit some passages in Scripture; and the doubled horned, other passages. Script. illust. Reem is the Arabick name of the rhinoceros. The animal is reported by the Arabs to have but one horn till a certain age, when a second appears; and some affirm, that a third appears when the animal grows old. Jackson's Account of Morocco.

23. Surely there is no enchantment against Jacob, &c.] In vain do ye carry me from place to place, that I might by my incantations procure some mischief to Israel; for certainly this people is so strong and safe in God's protection, that no enchantment, or any other evil art, can prevail against them. Bp. Hall. Or, as in the margin, There is no enchantment in Jacob, or among them: they had no need of diviners and magicians, being sufficiently instructed by Divine revelations. Bp. Patrick.

— according to this time it shall be said &c.] The time is now at hand, when God shall do great things for Israel. Bp. Kidder.

24. Behold, the people shall rise up as a great lion, &c.] And to the same purpose, in the following chapter, ver. 8, 9. These passages are a manifest prophecy of the victories which the Israelites should gain over their enemies, and particularly the Canaanites; and of their secure possession and quiet enjoyment of the land afterwards, particularly in the reigns of David and Solomon. It is remarkable that God hath here put into the mouth of Balaam much the same things which Jacob had before predicted of Judah, Gen. xlix. 9. Such is the analogy and harmony between the prophecies of Scripture. Bp. Newton.

27. — I will bring thee unto another place;] He fancies, according to the superstition of those days, that there might be something unlucky in the place, to make his prayers unsuccessful. For as the Syrians imagined, in afterages, that some gods were powerful in the hills, who could do nothing in the plains, 1 Kings

CHAP. XXIV.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

1 Balaam, leaving divinations, prophesieth the happiness of Israel. 10 Balak in anger dismisseth him. 15 He prophesieth of the Star of Jacob, and the destruction of some nations.

AND when Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he went not, as at ^a other times, † to seek for enchantments, but he set his face toward the wilderness.

2 And Balaam lifted up his eyes, and he saw Israel abiding in his tents according to their tribes; and the spirit of God came upon him.

3 ^b And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man † whose eyes are open hath said:

4 He hath said, which heard the words of God, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

5 How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel!

6 As the valleys are they spread forth, as gardens by the river's side, as the trees of lign aloes which the LORD hath

^a Chap. 23.
3, 15.
† Heb.
to the meeting of enchantments.

^b Chap. 23.
7, 18.

† Heb.
who had his eyes shut, but now open.

xx. 23, 28; so it seems there was a conceit at this time in those countries, that some gods delighted more in one hill than they did in another. Such a conceit remains to this day in the Romish Church, where the Lady and the Rood of one place are thought far more powerful, and are therefore more frequented, than those of another. Bp. Patrick.

28. — Peor,] The most famous high place in the country of Moab, where Baal had a temple and was worshipped; and thence called Baal-peor. By "Beth-peor," Deut. xxxiv. 6, which in English is the house of Peor, in the land of Moab, is probably meant the temple of Baal, which stood upon the mountain.

— Jeshimon.] That is, the desert or wilderness. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. — to seek for enchantments,] This implies, that he had hitherto used some wicked arts to effect his ends. But being not able to succeed, he gave himself now wholly up to the conduct of God's Holy Spirit, and did not so much as offer to seek for enchantments. Bp. Patrick.

3. — whose eyes are open] Who, when he was awake, received revelations from God, who commonly appeared to men in a dream. Bp. Patrick. In the original, "who had his eyes shut, but now open;" that is, who is now enlightened, though he were once stupid and blind. See ver. 1, and chap. xxii. 34. Bp. Kidder.

4. — falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:] Falling into a trance, so that all his outward senses were shut up; yet the eyes of his mind were opened, to behold the visions of God. Bp. Hall. In the original there is no mention of a trance: the passage should be rendered, falling, and his eyes were opened; alluding to what happened in the way to Balaam's falling with his falling ass, and then having his eyes opened, chap. xxii. 27. Bp. Newton.

6. As the valleys are they spread forth, &c.] The tents of Jacob he compares to things very goodly: such are the far-extended valleys, gardens well watered, trees bearing spices of sweet smell, lofty and tall cedars planted by the waters. Bp. Kidder.

— lign aloes] A very odoriferous tree, growing in India

Before
CHRIST
1452.

planted, and as cedar trees beside the waters.

7 He shall pour the water out of his buckets, and his seed shall be in many waters, and his king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdom shall be exalted.

c Chap. 23.
22.

8 God brought him forth out of Egypt; he hath as it were the strength of an unicorn: he shall eat up the nations his enemies, and shall break their bones, and pierce them through with his arrows.

d Gen. 49.
9.

9 He couched, he lay down as a lion, and as a great lion: who shall stir him up? Blessed is he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee.

10 ¶ And Balak's anger was kindled against Balaam, and he smote his hands together: and Balak said unto Balaam, I called thee to curse mine enemies, and, behold, thou hast altogether blessed them these three times.

11 Therefore now flee thou to thy place: I thought to promote thee unto great honour; but, lo, the LORD hath kept thee back from honour.

12 And Balaam said unto Balak, Spake

I not also to thy messengers which thou sentest unto me, saying,

Before
CHRIST
1452.

13 If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; but what the LORD saith, that will I speak?

14 And now, behold, I go unto my people: come therefore, and I will advertise thee what this people shall do to thy people in the latter days.

15 ¶ And he took up his parable, and said, Balaam the son of Beor hath said, and the man whose eyes are open hath said:

16 He hath said, which heard the words of God, and knew the knowledge of the most High, which saw the vision of the Almighty, falling into a trance, but having his eyes open:

17 I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, but not nigh: there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel, and shall || smite the corners of Moab, and destroy all the children of Sheth.

|| Or, smite through the princes of Moab.

18 And Edom shall be a possession, Seir and Arabia. It is often joined with myrrh in the holy Scripture, and was burned as a perfume, and called in Greek by a name, which corresponds with the "lign" or "wood-aloes," here spoken of. Bp. Patrick.

— which the Lord hath planted,] Which grew naturally of themselves, without any labour, care, or art of man. Bp. Patrick. It may refer to some traditional notion of the garden of Eden, which the Lord planted. Expos. Ind.

— as cedar trees] The cedar was one of the pleasantest trees in Eastern countries, particularly for its fragrantcy: the Greeks being accustomed to burn the wood of it on their altars. Bp. Patrick.

7. He shall pour the water &c.] He shall have a plentiful and rich progeny; his issue shall spread abroad over fruitful regions; and the kings, that shall come of his loins, shall be more mighty than the most flourishing kings of the Amalekites. Bp. Hall. The increase of posterity is in the Scripture represented by the flowing out of waters, Is. xlviii. 1; Prov. v. 15—18. And "many waters" in the Scripture phrase are put for many people, Rev. xvii. 15; Ps. cxliv. 7; Jer. xlvii. 2. Bp. Kidder.

— his king shall be higher than Agag,] Either Agag was prophesied of by name particularly, as Cyrus and Josiah were several years before they were born; or Agag was the general name of the kings of Amalek, as Pharaoh was of the kings of Egypt, and Abimelech of the kings of the Philistines. Amalek was at this time a great and flourishing kingdom; in ver. 20, it is styled "the first of the nations;" and therefore for the king of Israel to be exalted above the king of Amalek was a great exaltation. But it was accomplished by Saul, 1 Sam. xv. 7, 8. The first king of Israel subdued Agag the king of the Amalekites, so that it might truly and properly be said, "his king shall be higher than Agag, and his kingdom shall be exalted," as it afterwards was greatly by David and Solomon. Bp. Newton. The Jews themselves think this prophecy hath its full completion in the Messiah. Bp. Patrick.

9. — who shall stir him up?] Lions do not betake themselves to remote or secret places, when they go to sleep: but lie down any where, as if they understood, that, let them sleep where they pleased, no one durst disturb them. This comparison signifies that the Israelites should have such an absolute and secure possession of the land of Canaan, that none should be bold enough to assault or give them any disquiet. Bp. Patrick.

14. — in the latter days.] In time to come, be it more or less remote. Bp. Newton.

17. I shall see him, but not now: I shall behold him, &c.] Rather, I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not nigh: the future tense in Hebrew being often used for the present. He saw with the eyes of prophecy; and Prophets are emphatically called seers. Bp. Newton.

— there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre &c.] The "star" and "sceptre" are probably metaphors borrowed from the ancient hieroglyphicks, which much influenced the language of the East: and they evidently denote some eminent and illustrious king or ruler, particularized in the following words. Bp. Newton.

— and shall smite the corners of Moab,] Or the princes of Moab, according to other versions: this was executed by David, when he destroyed two thirds of the people, and saved one third alive: and "so the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts," 2 Sam. viii. 2. Bp. Newton.

— and destroy all the children of Sheth.] It is common in the style of the Hebrews, and especially in the poetick parts of Scripture, and we may observe it particularly in these prophecies of Balaam, that the same thing in effect is repeated in other words, and the latter member of each period is explanatory of the former; as in the passage before us: "I shall see him, but not now; I shall behold him, but not nigh:" and then again, "there shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise out of Israel:" and again afterwards, "And Edom shall be a possession, Seir also shall be a possession for his enemies." There is great reason therefore to think, that the same manner of speaking was continued here, and consequently that "Sheth" must be the name of some eminent person or place among the Moabites. Bp. Newton.

18. And Edom shall be a possession,] This was also fulfilled by David, 2 Sam. viii. 14, who in two of his Psalms hath men-

Before CHRIST 1452. also shall be a possession for his enemies; and Israel shall do valiantly.

19 Or, the first of the nations that warred against Israel. 19 Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.

20 ¶ And when he looked on Amalek, he took up his parable, and said, Amalek was || the first of the nations; but his latter end || shall be that he perish for ever.

tioned together his conquest of Moab and Edom, as they are also joined together in this prophecy, Ps. lx. 8; cviii. 9. Bp. Newton.

— Scir also shall be a possession for his enemies;] That is, for the Israelites. "Scir" is the name of the mountains of Edom; so that even their mountains and fastnesses could not defend the Idumeans from David and his captains. Bp. Newton.

— and Israel shall do valiantly.] As they did particularly under the command of David, several of whose victories are recorded in 2 Sam. viii, together with his conquest of Moab and Edom. Bp. Newton.

19. Out of Jacob shall come he that shall have dominion, and shall destroy him that remaineth of the city.] Not only defeat them in the field, but destroy them even in their strongest cities; or perhaps some particular city was intended, as we may infer from Ps. lx. 9; cviii. 10, "Who will bring me into the strong city? who will lead me into Edom?" And we read particularly that Joab, David's general, "had smitten every male in Edom," 1 Kings xi. 15, 16.

Thus this prophecy was exactly fulfilled in the person and actions of David: but most Jewish as well as Christian writers apply it, primarily perhaps to David, but ultimately to the Messiah, as the person chiefly intended, in whom it was to receive its full and entire completion. Onkelos, the most ancient and valuable of the Chaldee paraphrasts, interprets it of the Messiah: "When a prince, says he, shall arise of the house of Jacob, and Christ shall be anointed of the house of Israel, He shall both slay the princes of Moab, and rule over all the sons of men;" and with him agree the other Targums or paraphrases. Maimonides, one of the most learned and famous of the Jewish doctors, understands it partly of David, and partly of the Messiah; and with him agree other rabbies, cited by the critics and commentators to this purpose. It appears to have been generally understood by the Jews as a prophecy of the Messiah, because the false Christ, who appeared in the reign of the Roman emperor Adrian, assumed the title of Barchochebas, or the son of the star, in allusion to this prophecy, and in order to have it believed that he was the star whom Balaam had seen afar off. The Christian Fathers are unanimous in applying this prophecy to our Saviour, and to the star which appeared at His nativity. Origen in particular saith, that in the law there are many typical and enigmatical references to the Messiah: but he produces this as one of the plainest and clearest of prophecies. And both Origen and Eusebius affirm, that it was in consequence of Balaam's prophecies, which were known and believed in the East, that the Magi, upon the appearance of a new star, came to Jerusalem to worship Him who was born King of the Jews. The stream of modern divines and commentators runs the same way: that is, they apply the prophecy principally to our Saviour, and by Moab and Edom understand the enemies and persecutors of the Church. In favour of this opinion it must be acknowledged, that many prophecies of Scripture have a double meaning, literal and mystical; respect two events; and receive a twofold completion. David too was in several things a type and figure of the Messiah. If by "destroying all the children of Sheth" he meant "ruling over all mankind," this was never fulfilled in David. A star did really appear at our Saviour's nativity; and in Scripture He is styled "the day star," 2 Pet. i. 19; "the morning star," Rev. ii. 28; "the bright and morning star," Rev. xxii. 16; perhaps in allusion to this very prophecy. Upon the whole, it is probable that the Messiah was remotely intended; but that the primary and literal meaning of the prophecy

Before CHRIST 1452. 21 And he looked on the Kenites, and took up his parable, and said, Strong is thy dwellingplace, and thou puttest thy nest in a rock.

22 Nevertheless † the Kenite shall be wasted, || until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.

23 And he took up his parable, and said, Alas, who shall live when God doeth this!

† Heb. Kain. || Or, how long shall it be ere Asshur carry thee away captive?

respects the person and actions of David: particularly for this reason, because Balaam is here advertising Balak, "what this people should do to his people in the latter days;" that is, what the Israelites should do to the Moabites hereafter. Bp. Newton.

Balaam here, in prophetick vision, describes the remote coming of SIMON, under the imagery of a "star" and a "sceptre," or an illustrious prince. Though it was foretold, that "the sceptre should depart from Judah at His coming," this prophecy confirms to him a proper sceptre of His own. And our Lord claimed it, when He avowed Himself "a king" to Pilate; but declared that "His kingdom was not of this world."

This branch of the prophecy was fulfilled about 1600 years after, when, at the birth of Christ, the Magi from the East, who are supposed by Theophylact to have been the posterity of Balaam, came to Jerusalem, saying, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen His star in the east, and are come to worship Him," Matt. ii. 2. Dr. Hales.

20. — Amalek was the first of the nations;] The first and most powerful of the neighbouring nations. Bp. Newton.

— but his latter end shall be that he perish for ever.] Balaam here confirms what God had before pronounced by Moses, Exod. xvii. 14. He had before declared that the king of Israel should prevail over the king of Amalek; but the menace is here carried further, and Amalek is consigned to utter destruction. This sentence was in a great measure executed by Saul, 1 Sam. xv. 7, 8; then by David, 1 Sam. xxvii. 8, 9; and again, by a farther conquest, 1 Sam. xxx. 17; and lastly was completed by the Simeonites, in the days of Hezekiah, 1 Chron. iv. 41—43. And where is the name or the nation of Amalek subsisting at this day? What history, what tradition concerning them is remaining any where? They are but just enough known and remembered to shew, that what God had threatened, He hath punctually fulfilled: "I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven — and his latter end shall be that he perish for ever." Bp. Newton.

21. — the Kenites,] Not one of the Canaanitish nations, mentioned in Gen. xv. 19, but probably a tribe of the Midianites: Jethro, the father in law of Moses, being called in one place "the priest of Midian," Exod. iii. 1, and in another, "the Kenite," Judges i. 16. Bp. Newton.

— Strong is thy dwellingplace, &c.] Their situation was strong and secure among the mountains. Bp. Newton.

In these words is an allusion to that princely bird the eagle, which not only delights in soaring to the loftiest heights, but chooses the highest rocks and most elevated mountains as the most desirable situations for erecting her nest. Burder.

22. Nevertheless the Kenite shall be wasted, until Asshur shall carry thee away captive.] The Amalekites were to be utterly destroyed, but the Kenites were to be carried captive. And accordingly when Saul was sent to destroy the Amalekites, he ordered the Kenites to depart from among them, 1 Sam. xv. 6. This shews that they were "wasted" and reduced to a low and weak condition. And as the kings of Assyria carried captive, not only the Jews, but also the Syrians, 2 Kings xvi. 9, and several other nations, 2 Kings xix. 12, 13, it is highly probable that the Kenites shared the same fate with their neighbours; especially as some Kenites are mentioned among the Jews after their return from captivity. Bp. Newton.

23. — Alas, who shall live when God doeth this!] This exclamation is referred by several commentators to what precedes; but

Before
CHRIST
1452.

24 And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim, and shall afflict Asshur, and shall afflict Eber, and he also shall perish for ever.

25 And Balaam rose up, and went and returned to his place : and Balak also went his way.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Israel at Shittim commit whoredom and idolatry. 6 Phineas killeth Zimri and Cozbi. 10 God therefore giveth him an everlasting priesthood. 16 The Midianites are to be vexed.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

Chap. 35.
49.

AND Israel abode in ^aShittim, and the people began to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab.

2 And they called the people unto the sacrifices of their gods : and the people did eat, and bowed down to their gods.

3 And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor : and the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel.

it relates rather to what follows: implying that he is now prophesying of very distant and very calamitous times. Bp. Newton.

24. And ships shall come from the coast of Chittim,] Or rather, for ships shall come, &c. Chittim was one of the sons of Javan, who was one of the sons of Japhet, by whose posterity "the isles of the Gentiles were divided" and peopled; that is, Europe, and the countries to which the Asiaticks passed by sea. The land of Chittim was a general name for the countries and islands in the Mediterranean. And Balaam might here mean either Greece, or Italy, or both; the particular names of those countries being at that time perhaps unknown in the East. And the passage may be the better understood of both, because Greece and Italy were alike the scourges of Asia. Bp. Newton.

— and shall afflict Asshur,] Asshur properly means the descendants of Asshur, the Assyrians; but the Syrians and Assyrians are often confounded together, and mentioned as the same people. The Greeks under Alexander the Great subdued all those countries. The Romans afterwards extended their empire into the same regions: and Assyria, properly so called, was conquered by the emperor Trajan. Bp. Newton.

— and shall afflict Eber,] By Eber is meant, either the people bordering on the Euphrates; or the Hebrews, the posterity of Eber. If the former; they, as well as the Assyrians, were subdued both by the Greeks and Romans: if the latter, as is most probable, they were afflicted, though not much by Alexander himself, yet by his successors the Seleucidæ, and particularly by Antiochus Epiphanes, who spoiled Jerusalem, defiled the temple, and slew all those who adhered to the law of Moses, 1 Macc. i. They were worse afflicted by the Romans, who not only subdued and oppressed them, and made their country a province of the empire, but at last took away their place and nation, and sold and dispersed them over the face of the earth. Bp. Newton.

— and he also shall perish for ever.] That is "Chittim," who is the main subject of this part of the prophecy. If by Chittim be meant the Greeks, the Grecian empire was entirely subverted by the Romans: if the Romans, the Roman empire was in its turn broken into pieces by the incursion of the northern nations. The name only of the Roman empire and Cæsarean majesty is subsisting at this day, and is transferred to another country and another people. Bp. Newton.

25. — and returned to his place:] Unto his country, Mesopotamia. His prophecies being uttered, the design of Heaven was now answered, and the instrument was thrown aside. The wicked Balaam was now left entirely to pursue the schemes of his own mad ambition. He had been ordered to depart; with which order he seems, publicly at least, to have complied. The text says, "he went to his place." If he went home, it is plain however he returned. And now he effected that grand scheme, which he hoped would be as destructive to the Israelites as if he had cursed them. Josephus tells us, that Balaam informed the king, he could never subdue the Israelites, unless they should be disobedient to their God; and instructed him how to make them so. This account is confirmed in the sacred story both by Moses, who says that Balaam "caused the Israelites to commit trespass against the Lord," chap. xxxi. 16; and also by St. John, Rev. ii. 14. The whole story of the "trespass" and its punishment is written at length in the following chapter, where we find it recorded, that Israel provoked God by revolting through the artifices of Balaam; and that a plague was inflicted on them as a punishment, which swept off twenty-four thousand men. Gilpin.

The history of this Prophet furnishes a deplorable and an alarming instance of the deceitfulness of the human heart. He could not forego "the rewards of divination," and the allurements of ambition: he first sought permission to go to Balak, wishing to gratify that prince, even after he had been refused by God, and told expressly, "Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed." And he tempted God, [who afterwards in His anger permitted him to go,] by seeking to prevail on Him, by solicitations and sacrifices, to alter His purposes. When these failed, and he had thrice blessed the people, he sinned yet more against the whole meaning, end, and design of the prohibition. For surely that mischievous counsel, to seduce the Israelites into idolatry, was in fact a greater piece of wickedness and impiety, than if he had formally cursed them in words. Still his partial regards to his duty seem to have quieted his conscience; how otherwise could he expect, that, while he did not live the life of the righteous, he could be entitled to his peaceful death, and joyful resurrection? And accordingly his ill-founded wish was frustrated: for he was cut off by the avenging sword of the Israelites, in reward for his pernicious counsels, along with his licentious abettors, chap. xxxi. 8. And his end furnishes an awful and alarming example, that extraordinary "gifts of the Spirit" are not always accompanied by the genuine "fruits of the Spirit," in the hearts and lives of the possessors; and that without charity, the rarest gifts and endowments are nothing worth, 1 Cor. xiii. 1, 2; Matt. vii. 22. Dr. Hales.

Chap. XXV. ver. 1. — Shittim,] In the plains of Moab; called Abel-shittim, chap. xxxiii. 49.

— with the daughters of Moab.] And of Midian, ver. 6, 17, 18. These women exposed themselves by Balaam's counsel to the lust of the Israelites, that by this means they might seduce them to idolatry, and so deprive them of the Divine blessing. Bp. Patrick. This should convince us, that we should be more on our guard against our own passions than against our enemies: God, we see, secured the people against their enemies, while they brought destruction on themselves by their wickedness. Bp. Wilson.

2. — and the people did eat,] Of the Moabitish sacrifices. This was an act of idolatry, whereby they owned themselves the servants of the gods of Moab; as to eat of the Lord's sacrifices was an act of Divine worship. See Exod. xxxiv. 15. Bp. Patrick.

3. And Israel joined himself unto Baal-peor:] And the Israelites joined themselves, both in spiritual and bodily fornication, with those that worshipped Baal-peor. Bp. Hall.

— Baal-peor:] Either the idol Baal, whose temple stood on mount Peor; or else Peor was the person, whom these nations had deified after his death under the title of Baal or Lord. So the Psalmist may be understood, "They joined themselves unto Baal-peor, and ate the sacrifices of the dead;" that is, of some eminent deceased person deified, Ps. cvi. 28. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

* Deut. 4. 3.
Josh. 22.
17.

4 And the Lord said unto Moses, ^bTake all the heads of the people, and hang them up before the Lord against the sun, that the fierce anger of the Lord may be turned away from Israel.

5 And Moses said unto the judges of Israel, Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal-peor.

6 ¶ And, behold, one of the children of Israel came and brought unto his brethren a Midianitish woman in the sight of Moses, and in the sight of all the congregation of the children of Israel, who were weeping before the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

* Ps. 106.
30.
1 Mac. 2.
54.

7 And ^cwhen Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, saw it, he rose up from among the congregation, and took a javelin in his hand;

8 And he went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust both of them through, the man of Israel, and the woman through her belly. So the plague was stayed from the children of Israel. ^{Before CHRIST 1452.}

9 And ^dthose that died in the plague were twenty and four thousand. ^{* 1 Cor. 10. 8.}

10 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

11 ^ePhinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the priest, hath turned my wrath away from the children of Israel, while he was zealous for my sake among them, that I consumed not the children of Israel in my jealousy. ^{* Ps. 106. 30.}

12 Wherefore say, ^fBehold, I give unto him my covenant of peace: ^{* Eccl^{us} 45. 24. 1 Mac. 2. 54.}

13 And he shall have it, and his seed after him, even the covenant of an everlasting priesthood; because he was zealous for his God, and made an atonement for the children of Israel.

14 Now the name of the Israelite that

4. — Take all the heads of the people,] The judges of Israel, as they are called, ver. 5, namely, the principal officers among the people. By their assistance the people, who had sinned, were to be punished. Bp. Kidder.

— hang them up] That is, the people who had sinned; and not all the heads of the people, for they were concerned in the execution of the sentence. Bp. Kidder.

6. — one of the children of Israel came &c.] One cannot enough wonder at the impudence of this Israelite. Here is fornication, an odious crime: and that of an Israelite, whose name challenges holiness: yea, of a prince of Israel, whose practice is a rule to inferiours: and that with a woman of Midian, with whom even a chaste contract had been unlawful: and that with contempt of all government: and that in the face of Moses and all Israel: and that in a time of mourning and judgment for the same offence. Those that have once passed the bounds of modesty, soon grow shameless in their sins. Bp. Hall.

7. And when Phinehas, &c.] The example of Phinehas is no warrant to private persons to put the greatest malefactor to death. He was a man of considerable authority, being next to the high priest. He wanted not a commission, ver. 5. It is certain God approved of the action, ver. 11. And it may be well concluded, that as he acted not without the consent of Moses, so he acted by the direction of God Himself. Bp. Kidder.

9. — twenty and four thousand.] Those that died of the plague itself were only twenty-three thousand, 1 Cor. x. 8. The thousand who were convicted of idolatry, and thereupon slain with the sword, “in the day of the plague,” ver. 18, are comprehended in the whole number. The expression “of the plague” in the text might be rendered during the plague. Bp. Patrick. What we render plague does not signify pestilence only, but any other sudden stroke; and may comprehend the destruction that befell them from the judges, as well as that inflicted immediately by God. Bp. Kidder.

12. — I give unto him my covenant of peace:] I solemnly promise to make him and his family prosperous, as in other respects, so particularly in respect of their having the priesthood. Dr. Wells. The covenant of peace is expressed, ver. 13, by an everlasting priesthood. The office of a priest was that of a mediator between God and man; and the end of the sacrifices and incense, the type of prayers, was to procure God’s favour, Numb. xvi. 47, 48. Bp. Kidder.

13. — an everlasting priesthood;] This is to be understood with some limitation. After some successions in the line of Phinehas, the priesthood came for a time into the family of Eli, who was descended from Ithamar, the youngest son of Aaron. The reason of this interruption is not mentioned in Scripture; most probably some great sin provoked God to set aside the line of Eleazar for some years, till Eli’s sons also became so wicked, that the priesthood was taken from them; and restored in the days of Solomon to the posterity of Phinehas, with whom it continued as long as the priesthood lasted. The words “everlasting, perpetual,” and the like, in a general and indefinite sense, denote no more than a long duration. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

We need not suppose the priesthood to be here called “everlasting,” to express a design of a perpetual continuance of it to Phinehas’s descendants; but rather the term “everlasting” is the appellation annexed to the priesthood in its limitation to the family of Aaron; and suggests no more, than that the priesthood of Aaron should descend to them. God made to Phinehas and to his seed after him, not an everlasting grant of the priesthood, as some commentators take it, nor a grant of “an everlasting priesthood,” as our English version renders the place; but rather a grant of the everlasting priesthood; of the priesthood limited to Aaron and his descendants by that appellation. And this promise would have been fulfilled, if the priesthood had descended to Eleazar and his son only. Shuckford.

— because he was zealous for his God,] God, who searches the hearts, saw that this conduct of Phinehas proceeded not from any private passion; but out of pure love and affection to Him, and from indignation to see His Divine Majesty so affronted. Bp. Patrick. It is not a good argument to say, “such a man doth such and such things, and therefore they are good things for me to do.” We must act in such a manner, as is agreeable to the state of life, whereunto God hath called us: for when we leave our vocation, we act wickedly, and justly expose ourselves to punishment. Our Saviour fasted forty days and forty nights without any sustenance, but we are not to do so too; for if we were to attempt it, we should kill ourselves. Moses, that holy Prophet of God, killed an Egyptian, a wicked and injurious man: am I therefore to go and kill a wicked man too? I may not do so, for it is against my calling: I am no magistrate, therefore I may not do it. As for Moses, he acted under a special inspiration of God. Phinehas, that godly man, killed Zimri and Cozbi, even in the act of fornication; and this deed of Phinehas was pleasing to God. But it were a bad argument to say, Phinehas did so, and it pleased God: therefore we may do the same; when we see any man dishonour God, we may immediately go and kill him. Phinehas

Before
CHRIST
1452.

† Heb. house of a father.

was slain, even that was slain with the Midianitish woman, was Zimri, the son of Salu, a prince of a † chief house among the Simeonites.

15 And the name of the Midianitish woman that was slain was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur; he was head over a people, and of a chief house in Midian.

16 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

^a Chap. 31.
2.

17 ^a Vex the Midianites, and smite them:

18 For they vex you with their wives, wherewith they have beguiled you in the matter of Peor, and in the matter of Cozbi, the daughter of a prince of Midian, their sister, which was slain in the day of the plague for Peor's sake.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 The sum of all Israel is taken in the plains of Moab.
52 The law of dividing among them the inheritance of the land. 57 The families and number of the Levites.
63 None were left of them which were numbered at Sinai, but Caleb and Joshua.

AND it came to pass after the plague, that the LORD spake unto Moses and unto Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, saying,

2 Take the sum of all the congregation of the children of Israel, ^a from twenty years old and upward, throughout their fathers' house, all that are able to go to war in Israel.

^a Chap. 1. 3.

3 And Moses and Eleazar the priest spake with them in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

^a Chap. 1. 1.

4 Take the sum of the people, from twenty years old and upward; as the LORD ^b commanded Moses and the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt.

^c Gen. 46. 9.
Exod. 6. 14.
1 Chron.
5. 1.

5 ¶ ^c Reuben, the eldest son of Israel: the children of Reuben; Hanoch, of whom cometh the family of the Hanochites: of Pallu, the family of the Palluites:

6 Of Hezron, the family of the Hezronites: of Carmi, the family of the Carmites.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

7 These are the families of the Reubenites: and they that were numbered of them were forty and three thousand and seven hundred and thirty.

8 And the sons of Pallu; Eliab.

9 And the sons of Eliab; Nemuel, and Dathan, and Abiram. This is that Dathan and Abiram, which were famous in the congregation, who ^d strove against Moses ^e Chap. 16.
and against Aaron in the company of ².
Korah, when they strove against the LORD:

10 And the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up together with Korah, when that company died, what time the fire devoured two hundred and fifty men: and they became a sign.

11 Notwithstanding the children of Korah died not.

12 ¶ The sons of Simeon after their families: of Nemuel, the family of the Nemuelites: of Jamin, the family of the Jaminites: of Jachin, the family of the Jachinites:

13 Of Zerah, the family of the Zarhites: of Shaul, the family of the Shaulites.

14 These are the families of the Simeonites, twenty and two thousand and two hundred.

15 ¶ The children of Gad after their families: of Zephon, the family of the Zephonites: of Haggi, the family of the Haggites: of Shuni, the family of the Shunites:

16 Of Ozni, the family of the Oznites: of Eri, the family of the Erites:

17 Of Arod, the family of the Arodites: of Areli, the family of the Arelites.

18 These are the families of the children of Gad according to those that were num-had a special licence to do this: but we must not follow his example, but must take heed to our calling, to our office. Bp. Latimer. If we will imitate Phinehas, let us imitate him in that for which he is commended and rewarded by God, and for which he is renowned among men; and that is, not barely the action, the thing done; but the affection, the zeal with which it is done. For that zeal God commendeth him, ver. 11, and for that zeal God rewardeth him, ver. 13, and for that zeal did posterity praise him; the wise Son of Sirach, Eccles. xlv. 23; and good old Mattathias on his death-bed, 1 Mac. ii. 54. Not again that any private man should dare, by his example, to usurp the magistrate's office, and to do justice upon malefactors without a calling: or that any magistrate should dare, by his example, to cut off graceless offenders without a judicial course; but that every man, who is by virtue of his calling endued with lawful authority to execute justice upon transgressors, should set himself to it with that vigour and courage and zeal, which was in Phinehas. "It is good," saith the Apostle, "to be zealously affected always in a good thing," Gal. iv. 18. Bp. Sanderson.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 1. — unto Moses and unto Eleazar] As God had formerly joined Aaron with Moses, so now, Aaron being dead, he joins Eleazar; to shew that he succeeded to the authority, as well as to the place and office, of his father. Bp. Patrick.

2. Take the sum &c.] They had been twice numbered before this: once, before the building of the tabernacle; and a second time, when they were to be encamped. All the men then numbered, thirty-eight years ago, being now dead, God commands a third numbering, partly to shew His faithfulness to His word, in multiplying them greatly, notwithstanding all their provocations; and partly for the more easy division of the land among their tribes. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

* Gen. 38.
2, &c. &
46. 12.

bered of them, forty thousand and five hundred.

19 ¶ The sons of Judah were Er and Onan : and Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan.

20 And the sons of Judah after their families were; of Shelah, the family of the Shelanites : of Pharez, the family of the Pharzites : of Zerah, the family of the Zarhites.

21 And the sons of Pharez were; of Hezron, the family of the Hezronites : of Hamul, the family of the Hamulites.

22 These are the families of Judah according to those that were numbered of them, threescore and sixteen thousand and five hundred.

23 ¶ Of the sons of Issachar after their families: of Tola, the family of the Tolaites: of Pua, the family of the Punites :

24 Of Jashub, the family of the Jashubites : of Shimron, the family of the Shimronites.

25 These are the families of Issachar according to those that were numbered of them, threescore and four thousand and three hundred.

26 ¶ Of the sons of Zebulun after their families: of Sered, the family of the Sardites: of Elon, the family of the Elonites: of Jahleel, the family of the Jahleelites.

27 These are the families of the Zebulunites according to those that were numbered of them, threescore thousand and five hundred.

28 ¶ The sons of Joseph after their families were Manasseh and Ephraim.

* Josh. 17.
1.

29 Of the sons of Manasseh: of Machir, the family of the Machirites: and Machir begat Gilead: of Gilead come the family of the Gileadites.

30 These are the sons of Gilead: of Jeezer, the family of the Jeezerites: of Helek, the family of the Helekites:

31 And of Asriel, the family of the Asrielites: and of Shechem, the family of the Shechemites:

32 And of Shemida, the family of the Shemidaites: and of Hephher, the family of the Hephherites.

* Chap. 27.
1.

33 ¶ And Zelophehad the son of Hephher had no sons, but daughters: and the names of the daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah.

34 These are the families of Manasseh, and those that were numbered of them, fifty and two thousand and seven hundred.

35 ¶ These are the sons of Ephraim after their families: of Shuthelah, the family of the Shuthalhites: of Becher, the family of the Bachrites: of Tahan, the family of the Tahanites.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

36 And these are the sons of Shuthelah: of Eran, the family of the Eranites.

37 These are the families of the sons of Ephraim according to those that were numbered of them, thirty and two thousand and five hundred. These are the sons of Joseph after their families.

38 ¶ The sons of Benjamin after their families: of Bela, the family of the Belaites: of Ashbel, the family of the Ashbelites: of Ahiram, the family of the Ahiramites:

39 Of Shupham, the family of the Shuphamites: of Hupham, the family of the Huphamites.

40 And the sons of Bela were Ard and Naaman: of Ard, the family of the Ardites: and of Naaman, the family of the Naamites.

41 These are the sons of Benjamin after their families: and they that were numbered of them were forty and five thousand and six hundred.

42 ¶ These are the sons of Dan after their families: of Shuham, the family of the Shuhamites. These are the families of Dan after their families.

43 All the families of the Shuhamites, according to those that were numbered of them, were threescore and four thousand and four hundred.

44 ¶ Of the children of Asher after their families: of Jimna, the family of the Jimnites: of Jesui, the family of the Jesuites: of Beriah, the family of the Beriites.

45 Of the sons of Beriah: of Heber, the family of the Heberites: of Malchiel, the family of the Malchielites.

46 And the name of the daughter of Asher was Sarah.

47 These are the families of the sons of Asher according to those that were numbered of them; who were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

48 ¶ Of the sons of Naphtali after their families: of Jahzeel, the family of the Jahzeelites: of Guni, the family of the Gunites:

49 Of Jezer, the family of the Jezerites: of Shillem, the family of the Shillemites.

50 These are the families of Naphtali according to their families: and they that were numbered of them were forty and five thousand and four hundred.

51 These were the numbered of the children of Israel, six hundred thousand and a thousand seven hundred and thirty.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

52 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

53 Unto these the land shall be divided for an inheritance according to the number of names.

^h Chap. 33.
54.

† Heb. multiply his inheritance.

† Heb. diminish his inheritance.

ⁱ Chap. 33.

54.

Josh. 11.

23. & 14. 2.

54 ^h To many thou shalt † give the more inheritance, and to few thou shalt † give the less inheritance: to every one shall his inheritance be given according to those that were numbered of him.

55 Notwithstanding the land shall be ⁱ divided by lot: according to the names of the tribes of their fathers they shall inherit.

56 According to the lot shall the possession thereof be divided between many and few.

^k Exod. 6.
16, 17, 18,
19.

57 ¶ ^k And these are they that were numbered of the Levites after their families: of Gershon, the family of the Gershonites: of Kohath, the family of the Kohathites: of Merari, the family of the Merarites.

58 These are the families of the Levites: the family of the Libnites, the family of the Hebronites, the family of the Mahlites, the family of the Mushites, the family of the Korathites. And Kohath begat Amram.

^l Exod. 2.
2. & 6. 20.

59 And the name of Amram's wife was ^l Jochebed, the daughter of Levi, whom her mother bare to Levi in Egypt: and she bare unto Amram Aaron and Moses, and Miriam their sister.

60 And unto Aaron was born Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

^m Lev. 10.
2.
chap. 3. 4.
1 Chron.
24. 2.

61 And ^m Nadab and Abihu died, when they offered strange fire before the LORD.

62 And those that were numbered of them were twenty and three thousand, all males from a month old and upward: for they were not numbered among the children of Israel, because there was no inheritance given them among the children of Israel.

63 ¶ These are they that were numbered by Moses and Eleazar the priest, who

55. — the land shall be divided by lot:] This dividing by lot was very consistent with the equality required, ver. 54. It is most probable, that the several coasts or provinces of the whole land were by lot adjudged to the several tribes; but then each tribe was assigned a greater or less portion of that tract wherein his lot fell, as the number of its families was greater or less. The exact measure of their portion was not determined by lot; for then Simeon could not have been justly placed within the tract, where Judah inherited, Josh. xix. 1—9. Bp. Kidder.

VOL. I.

numbered the children of Israel in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

64 But among these there was not a man of them whom Moses and Aaron the priest numbered, when they numbered the children of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai.

65 For the LORD had said of them, They ^a shall surely die in the wilderness. And there was not left a man of them, save Caleb the son of Jephunneh, and Joshua the son of Nun.

^a Chap. 14.
28.
1 Cor. 10.
5, 6.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 The daughters of Zelophehad sue for an inheritance.

6 The law of inheritances. 12 Moses, being told of his death, sueth for a successor. 18 Joshua is appointed to succeed him.

THEN came the daughters of ^a Zelophehad, the son of Hephher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of Manasseh the son of Joseph: and these are the names of his daughters; Mahlah, Noah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Tirzah.

^a Chap. 26.
33.
Josh. 17. 3.

2 And they stood before Moses, and before Eleazar the priest, and before the princes and all the congregation, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, saying,

3 Our father ^b died in the wilderness, and he was not in the company of them that gathered themselves together against the LORD in the company of Korah; but died in his own sin, and had no sons.

^b Chap. 14.
35. & 26.
64, 65.

4 Why should the name of our father be † done away from among his family, because he hath no son? Give unto us therefore a possession among the brethren of our father.

† Heb. diminished.

5 And Moses brought their cause before the LORD.

6 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

7 The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them.

8 And thou shalt speak unto the children

The division of land by lot appears to have been a very ancient custom. It was not only adopted, as in the present instance, in the distribution of a whole country: but appears from Hesiod and Homer to have been resorted to, in order to apportion particular inheritances. Burder.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 3. — died in his own sin.] He was not one of them, who were authors of sin unto others; but as other unnoted Israelites, he died in the wilderness, without any publick offence or censure. Bp. Hall.

S s

Before
CHRIST
1452.

of Israel, saying, If a man die, and have no son, then ye shall cause his inheritance to pass unto his daughter.

9 And if he have no daughter, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his brethren.

10 And if he have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his father's brethren.

11 And if his father have no brethren, then ye shall give his inheritance unto his kinsman that is next to him of his family, and he shall possess it: and it shall be unto the children of Israel a statute of judgment, as the Lord commanded Moses.

^c Deut. 32.
19.

12 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, ^cGet thee up into this mount Abarim, and see the land which I have given unto the children of Israel.

^d Chap. 20.
24.

^e Chap. 20.
24.

13 And when thou hast seen it, thou also shalt be gathered unto thy people, as ^dAaron thy brother was gathered.

^f Exod. 17.
1.

14 For ye ^erebelled against my commandment in the desert of Zin, in the strife of the congregation, to sanctify me at the water before their eyes: that ^fis the water of Meribah in Kadesh in the wilderness of Zin.

15 ¶ And Moses spake unto the Lord, saying,

16 Let the Lord, the God of the spirits of all flesh, set a man over the congregation,

17 Which may go out before them, and which may go in before them, and which may lead them out, and which may bring them in; that the congregation of the Lord be not as sheep which have no shepherd. Before

CHRIST
1452.

18 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Take thee Joshua the son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and lay thine hand upon him;

19 And set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation; and give him a charge in their sight.

20 And thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him, that all the congregation of the children of Israel may be obedient.

21 And he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, who shall ask counsel for him ^gafter the judgment of Urim before the Lord: at his word shall they go out, and at his word they shall come in, both he, and all the children of Israel with him, even all the congregation. ^g Exod. 28.
30.

22 And Moses did as the Lord commanded him: and he took Joshua, and set him before Eleazar the priest, and before all the congregation:

23 And he laid his hands upon him, and gave him a charge, as the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Offerings are to be observed. 3 The continual burnt offering. 9 The offering on the sabbath, 11 on the new moons, 16 at the passover, 26 in the day of first-fruits.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, and

12. — Get thee up into this mount Abarim,] A tract of mountains in the plains of Moab, one of which was called Nebo, and the top of it Pisgah. Bp. Patrick.

16. Let the Lord, — set a man over the congregation,] He, that was so tender over the welfare of Israel in his life, would not slacken his care in death: he takes no thought for himself, for he knew how gainful an exchange he must make; all his care is for his charge. Some envious natures desire to be missed, when they must go; and wish that the weakness, or want of a successor, may be the foil of their memory and honour. Moses is in a contrary disposition; it sufficeth him not, to find contentment in his own happiness, unless he may have an assurance, that Israel shall prosper with him. Bp. Hall.

18. — a man in whom is the spirit,] A man, whom I have endued with more than an ordinary measure of My spirit of wisdom. Bp. Hall.

— lay thine hand upon him;] By that rite set him apart for the office; see Numb. viii. 10. This laying on of hands was followed with increase of gifts from God, Deut. xxxiv. 9. Bp. Kidder.

20. — thou shalt put some of thine honour upon him,] Communicate some of thy authority to him at present; and not let him be any longer as thy minister, but as an associate in the government. Bp. Patrick.

21. — he shall stand before Eleazar the priest, &c.] The high priest of God shall, upon all weighty occasions, ask counsel of God for him; and he shall receive directions from “the breast-plate of judgment” in all his doubts. Bp. Hall. The great difference between Moses and Joshua consisted in this: Moses was never to make use of the priest, to know the will of God, for God spake to him Himself. Bp. Wilson.

22. — Moses did as the Lord commanded him:] In this we see the great integrity, the sincere humility and self-denial of Moses, that he readily submitted to have the government of Israel translated from his own family and tribe, to another, who was of the tribe of Ephraim. By this means his own children were reduced to a mean condition; being not so much as priests, but mere Levites. This demonstrates that he acted not from himself, because he acted not for himself; but was contented to have the supreme authority placed, where God pleased, both in church and state, and to leave his own family in inconsiderable employment. This shews him to have had a principle, which raised him above all other lawgivers; who always took care to advance their own families, and establish them in some share of that greatness, which they themselves possessed. This likewise shews, that the future rulers of this nation had no temptation to advance the credit of Moses beyond what it really was; since they were not descended from him, but were of other tribes. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 2. Command the children of Israel, &c.] Moses, having numbered the new generation of men, who were to inherit the land, and received warning of his own death, is Before CHRIST 1452. say unto them, My offering, and my bread for my sacrifices made by fire, for † a sweet savour unto me, shall ye observe to offer unto me in their due season.

† Heb. a savour of my rest. 3 Heb. 29. 38. 3 And thou shalt say unto them, ^a This is the offering made by fire which ye shall offer unto the LORD; two lambs of the first year without spot † day by day, for a continual burnt offering.

† Heb. in a day. 4 The one lamb shalt thou offer in the morning, and the other lamb shalt thou offer † at even;

† Heb. between the two evenings. 5 And a tenth part of an ephah of flour for a ^b meat offering, mingled with the fourth part of an ^c hin of beaten oil.

^b Lev. 2. 1. ^c Exod. 29. 40. 6 It is a continual burnt offering, which was ordained in mount Sinai for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

7 And the drink offering thereof shall be the fourth part of an hin for the one lamb: in the holy place shalt thou cause the strong wine to be poured unto the LORD for a drink offering.

8 And the other lamb shalt thou offer at even: as the meat offering of the morning, and as the drink offering thereof, thou shalt offer it, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

9 ¶ And on the sabbath day two lambs of the first year without spot, and two tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, and the drink offering thereof:

10 This is the burnt offering of every sabbath, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.

11 ¶ And in the beginnings of your months ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, seven lambs of the first year without spot;

12 And three tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one bullock; and two tenth deals of flour for a meat offering, mingled with oil, for one ram;

13 And a several tenth deal of flour mingled with oil for a meat offering unto one lamb; for a burnt offering of a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

Before CHRIST 1452. 14 And their drink offerings shall be half an hin of wine unto a bullock, and the third part of an hin unto a ram, and a fourth part of an hin unto a lamb: this is the burnt offering of every month throughout the months of the year.

15 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering unto the LORD shall be offered, beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.

16 ^d And in the fourteenth day of the first month is the passover of the LORD. ^d Exod. 12. 15. Lev. 23. 5.

17 And in the fifteenth day of this month is the feast: seven days shall unleavened bread be eaten.

18 In the ^e first day shall be an holy convocation; ye shall do no manner of servile work therein: ^e Lev. 23. 7.

19 But ye shall offer a sacrifice made by fire for a burnt offering unto the LORD; two young bullocks, and one ram, and seven lambs of the first year: they shall be unto you without blemish:

20 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil: three tenth deals shall ye offer for a bullock, and two tenth deals for a ram;

21 A several tenth deal shalt thou offer for every lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

22 And one goat for a sin offering, to make an atonement for you.

23 Ye shall offer these beside the burnt offering in the morning, which is for a continual burnt offering.

24 After this manner ye shall offer daily, throughout the seven days, the meat of the sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD: it shall be offered beside the continual burnt offering, and his drink offering.

25 And on the seventh day ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work.

26 ¶ Also in the day of the firstfruits, when ye bring a new meat offering unto the LORD, after your weeks be out, ye shall commanded to put them in mind of the ordinances which they were to observe in that land, Ps. cv. 44, 45. And the rather, because in their journeys in the wilderness they had not practised the laws and rites which they had received, Deut. xii. 8. Bp. Kidder.

7. — strong wine] The Hebrew word commonly signifies any strong drink; but here the noblest and most generous wine; for it was not lawful to use any other liquor in their sacrifices. The heathens also had this reverence to their gods, that they always offered to them the most excellent wines. Bp. Patrick.

11. — in the beginnings of your months &c.] This solemn sacrifice seems to have been ordained by God, to prevent the idolatry which was usual among the Gentiles; who worshipped the new moon with great rejoicings at its first appearance. Bp. Patrick.

15. — unto the Lord] These words were added, to remind the people, at this time in particular, of the right object of worship. A goat being appointed to be offered at two other solemnities, and to be offered for a sin offering, ver. 22, 30, it is not, upon those occasions, said “unto the Lord,” though certainly intended, because there was no danger, at those times, of the people directing their sacrifices to a wrong object, as at the time of the new moons; when the heathen offered a goat to the moon, it being a creature whose horns are like the new moon. Grotius.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1452. have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work:

27 But ye shall offer the burnt offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; two young bullocks, one ram, seven lambs of the first year;

28 And their meat offering of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals unto one bullock, two tenth deals unto one ram,

29 A several tenth deal unto one lamb, throughout the seven lambs;

30 And one kid of the goats, to make an atonement for you.

31 Ye shall offer them beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, (they shall be unto you without blemish) and their drink offerings.

CHAP. XXIX.

¹ The offering at the feast of trumpets, 7 at the day of afflicting their souls, 13 and on the eight days of the feast of tabernacles.

^a Lev. 23. 24. AND in the seventh month, on the first day of the month, ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work: ^a it is a day of blowing the trumpets unto you.

2 And ye shall offer a burnt offering for a sweet savour unto the LORD; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year without blemish:

3 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals for a bullock, and two tenth deals for a ram,

4 And one tenth deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

5 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering, to make an atonement for you:

6 Beside the burnt offering of the month, and his meat offering, and the daily burnt offering, and his meat offering, and their drink offerings, according unto their manner, for a sweet savour, a sacrifice made by fire unto the LORD.

^b Lev. 16. 29. & 23. 27. 7 ¶ And ^b ye shall have on the tenth day of this seventh month an holy convocation; and ye shall afflict your souls: ye shall not do any work therein:

8 But ye shall offer a burnt offering unto the LORD for a sweet savour; one young bullock, one ram, and seven lambs of the first year; they shall be unto you without blemish:

9 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals to a bullock, and two tenth deals to one ram,

10 A several tenth deal for one lamb, throughout the seven lambs:

11 One kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the sin offering of atonement, and the continual burnt offering, and the meat offering of it, and their drink offerings.

12 ¶ And on the fifteenth day of the seventh month ye shall have an holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work, and ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days:

13 And ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD; thirteen young bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year; they shall be without blemish:

14 And their meat offering shall be of flour mingled with oil, three tenth deals unto every bullock of the thirteen bullocks, two tenth deals to each ram of the two rams,

15 And a several tenth deal to each lamb of the fourteen lambs:

16 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

17 ¶ And on the second day ye shall offer twelve young bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without spot:

18 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner:

19 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering; beside the continual burnt offering, and the meat offering thereof, and their drink offerings.

20 ¶ And on the third day eleven bullocks, two rams, fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish;

Chap. XXIX. ver. 12. — a feast] The feast of tabernacles, Lev. xxiii. 34, which was kept at the close of their vintage and harvest, Deut. xvi. 13. This being a time of leisure and enjoyment, God thought fit to oblige the Israelites to a long attendance, and a greater number of sacrifices, than He required at the other festivals. Bp. Kidder.

13. — thirteen young bullocks, &c.] The whole number of bullocks offered at this festival was seventy: the rams also and the lambs were in a double proportion to what was usual. This was a vast charge; but more easy at this time of the year than any other, because now their barns were full, and their wine-presses overflowed; and their hearts might well be supposed to be more enlarged than at other times, in thankfulness to God for His great benefits. Yet this very gross, troublesome, and expensive way of serving God made the best men among them groan and long for the coming of the Messiah; in whose days, their own doctors say, no sacrifices shall remain, but those of thanksgiving, and praise, and prayer. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

21 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

22 And one goat for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

23 ¶ And on the fourth day ten bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish :

24 Their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

25 And one kid of the goats for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

26 ¶ And on the fifth day nine bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without spot :

27 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

28 And one goat for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

29 ¶ And on the sixth day eight bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish :

30 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

31 And one goat for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

32 ¶ And on the seventh day seven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen lambs of the first year without blemish :

33 And their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullocks, for the rams, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

36. — one bullock;] Though the day were solemn, "that great day of the feast," John vii. 37, yet were the sacrifices fewer than on the seventh day, by six bullocks and one ram. This, together with the gradual declining of the sacrifices appointed in this feast, shews us the invalidity of the legal sacrifices. Bp. Kidder.

39. These things ye shall do &c.] It appears by this account, that there were every year sacrificed at the tabernacle, (and temple,) at the stated national charge, the following numbers of beasts; namely,

1,101 lambs,
132 bullocks,
72 rams,
21 kids,
2 goats.

34 And one goat for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, his meat offering, and his drink offering.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

35 ¶ On the eighth day ye shall have a ^csolemn assembly : ye shall do no servile work therein : ^{c Lev. 23. 36.}

36 But ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD : one bullock, one ram, seven lambs of the first year without blemish :

37 Their meat offering and their drink offerings for the bullock, for the ram, and for the lambs, shall be according to their number, after the manner :

38 And one goat for a sin offering ; beside the continual burnt offering, and his meat offering, and his drink offering.

39 These things ye shall ^{||}do unto the LORD in your set feasts, beside your vows, ^{|| Or, offer.} and your freewill offerings, for your burnt offerings, and for your meat offerings, and for your drink offerings, and for your peace offerings.

40 And Moses told the children of Israel according to all that the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Vows are not to be broken. 3 The exception of a maid's vow. 6 Of a wife's. 9 Of a widow's, or her that is divorced.

AND Moses spake unto the heads of the tribes concerning the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded.

2 If a man vow a vow unto the LORD, or swear an oath to bind his soul with a bond ; he shall not [†]break his word, he shall do according to all that proceedeth out of his mouth. ^{† Heb. profane.}

3 If a woman also vow a vow unto the LORD, and bind herself by a bond, being in her father's house in her youth ;

4 And her father hear her vow, and her bond wherewith she hath bound her soul,

These made up the morning and evening sacrifices. Besides these, were a vast number of "voluntary, vow, and trespass sacrifices," which, if it were possible to state them, would swell the account to a much greater degree. Pyle.

Chap. XXX. ver. 2. — swear an oath to bind his soul with a bond ;] It is not possible for men to lay a more sacred and solemn obligation upon their consciences, than by the religion of an oath. Moses very well expresses it by "binding our souls with a bond ;" intimating, that he, who swears, lays the strongest obligation upon himself, and puts his soul in pawn for the truth of what he says. And this obligation no man can violate, but at the utmost peril of the judgment and vengeance of God. Abp. Tillotson.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

and her father shall hold his peace at her : then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she hath bound her soul shall stand.

5 But if her father disallow her in the day that he heareth ; not any of her vows, or of her bonds wherewith she hath bound her soul, shall stand : and the LORD shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.

† Heb.
her vows were upon her.

6 And if she had at all an husband, when † she vowed, or uttered ought out of her lips, wherewith she bound her soul ;

7 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her in the day that he heard it : then her vows shall stand, and her bonds wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

8 But if her husband disallowed her on the day that he heard it ; then he shall make her vow which she vowed, and that which she uttered with her lips, wherewith she bound her soul, of none effect : and the LORD shall forgive her.

9 But every vow of a widow, and of her that is divorced, wherewith they have bound their souls, shall stand against her.

10 And if she vowed in her husband's house, or bound her soul by a bond with an oath ;

11 And her husband heard it, and held his peace at her, and disallowed her not : then all her vows shall stand, and every bond wherewith she bound her soul shall stand.

12 But if her husband hath utterly made them void on the day he heard them ; then whatsoever proceeded out of her lips concerning her vows, or concerning the bond of her soul, shall not stand : her husband hath made them void ; and the LORD shall forgive her.

13 Every vow, and every binding oath to afflict the soul, her husband may establish it, or her husband may make it void.

14 But if her husband altogether hold his peace at her from day to day ; then he establisheth all her vows, or all her bonds, which are upon her : he confirmeth them, because he held his peace at her in the day that he heard them.

15 But if he shall any ways make them void after that he hath heard them ; then he shall bear her iniquity.

16 These are the statutes, which the LORD commanded Moses, between a man and his wife, between the father and his daughter, being yet in her youth in her father's house.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 The Midianites are spoiled, and Balaam slain. 13 Moses is wroth with the officers, for saving the women alive. 19 How the soldiers, with their captives and spoil, are to be purified. 25 The proportion whereby the prey is to be divided. 48 The voluntary oblation unto the treasury of the Lord.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 ^a Avenge the children of Israel of the Midianites : afterward shalt thou ^b be gathered unto thy people. * Chap. 25. 17.
b Chap. 27. 13.

3 And Moses spake unto the people, saying, Arm some of yourselves unto the war, and let them go against the Midianites, and avenge the LORD of Midian.

4 † Of every tribe a thousand, throughout all the tribes of Israel, shall ye send to the war. † Heb.
A thousand of a tribe, a thousand of a tribe.

5 So there were delivered out of the thousands of Israel, a thousand of every tribe, twelve thousand armed for war.

6 And Moses sent them to the war, a thousand of every tribe, them and Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, to the war, with the holy instruments, and the trumpets to blow in his hand.

7 And they warred against the Midianites, as the LORD commanded Moses ; and they slew all the males.

8 And they slew the kings of Midian, beside the rest of them that were slain ;

5. — the Lord shall forgive her, because her father disallowed her.] It shall not be imputed to her as a sin, that she performed not that which her father does not allow ; since she is not in her own power to dispose of. Bp. Hall.

13. — to afflict the soul.] Such as vows of fasting and abstinence, Lev. xvi. 29. Bp. Kidder. See the note there.

Chap. XXXI. ver. 2. Avenge the children of Israel] Chap. xxv. 17. Moses is commanded here to “avenge the Israelites ;” but ver. 3, he requires the people to “avenge the Lord.” The Midianites had brought destruction upon the people of Israel, and had drawn them from God into idolatry ; and on both these accounts were obnoxious, as offenders against God, and against Israel. Bp. Kidder.

6. — them and Phinehas] It is doubted, whether Phinehas was sent to command the troops, or only to perform such sacred offices, as might be required by the general. The office of Phinehas appears to have been to take care of “the holy instruments ;” which some suppose to have been the Urin and Thummim ; but others more reasonably the ark of the covenant, and its contents, which not long after Joshua ordered to be carried, with priests blowing their trumpets before it, when he surrounded Jericho. It may be however that “the holy instruments” and the trumpets are one and the same. Stackhouse.

8. — they slew the kings of Midian.] Little kings, called princes, Josh. xiii. 21, where they are said to be dukes of Sihon ;

^{Before}
CHRIST
1452.
^c Josh. 13.
21. namely, ^c Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, five kings of Midian: Balaam also the son of Beor they slew with the sword.

9 And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoil of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.

10 And they burnt all their cities where-in they dwelt, and all their goodly castles, with fire.

11 And they took all the spoil, and all the prey, both of men and of beasts.

12 And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and unto the congregation of the children of Israel, unto the camp at the plains of Moab, which are by Jordan near Jericho.

13 ¶ And Moses, and Eleazar the priest, and all the princes of the congregation, went forth to meet them without the camp.

14 And Moses was wroth with the officers of the host, with the captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, which came from the [†] battle.

16 And Moses said unto them, Have ye saved all the women alive?

16 Behold, ^d these caused the children of Israel, through the ^c counsel of Balaam, to commit trespass against the LORD in the matter of Peor, and there was a plague among the congregation of the LORD. ^{Before}

CHRIST
1452.
^f Judg. 21.
11.

17 Now therefore ^f kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man by lying with [†] him.

18 But all the women children, that have not known a man by lying with him, keep alive for yourselves. [†] Heb.
^a mule.

19 And do ye abide without the camp seven days: whosoever hath killed any person, and ^e whosoever hath touched any slain, purify both yourselves and your captives on the third day, and on the seventh day. ^e Chap. 19.
11, &c.

20 And purify all your raiment, and all [†] that is made of skins, and all work of goats' hair, and all things made of wood. [†] Heb.
^{instrument,} ^{or, vessel of} ^{skins.}

21 ¶ And Eleazar the priest said unto the men of war which went to the battle, This is the ordinance of the law which the LORD commanded Moses;

22 Only the gold, and the silver, the brass, the iron, the tin, and the lead,

23 Every thing that may abide the fire, ye shall make it go through the fire, and it shall be clean: nevertheless it shall be purified with the water of separation: and all that abideth not the fire ye shall make go through the water.

24 And ye shall wash your clothes on the seventh day, and ye shall be clean, and afterward ye shall come into the camp.

[†] Heb.
^{host of war.}

^d Chap. 25.
2.
^e 2 Pet. 2.
15.

that is, great men, tributary to Sihon, while he continued king of the Amorites. After he was conquered, they took perhaps the title of kings. Bp. Patrick.

— Balaam also the son of Beor they slew with the sword. He is here mentioned, because it was he that advised Balak to tempt Israel to sin: he is therefore among those that suffer for it; see ver. 16. Bp. Wilson. Perhaps he had returned into Mesopotamia; but when he heard of the success of his advice against the Israelites, and how many thousands of them had been cut off in consequence, he may have gone back again to the Midianites in hopes of receiving an ample reward for his services; or when war was declared against them, the Midianites may have sent for him again, and he may have been the rather inclined to go, because he might now have hopes of cursing the Israelites with success, since they had apostatized from the worship of God, and fallen into idolatry. And it is not unlikely that for this very purpose he was carried into the field of battle, and there became a sacrifice to his own evil policy. Stackhouse. What, may we suppose, were Balaam's sentiments, when he lay bleeding on the plains of Midian! When all his wicked vision was fled: when he found himself struck with the hand of death, destitute of all comfort upon earth, and of all hope from heaven! In those bitter moments, we may suppose, he saw things in their true light. In the agony of despair and horror, he was at length convinced of the folly and wickedness of all his worldly schemes. His "sin had now found him out." And he exclaimed in earnest, what perhaps in the hypocrisy of his soul he had once uttered, "Oh, that I might die the death of the righteous, and that my latter end might be like his!" May we all catch the warning voice! And may God grant us grace to make a better use of it, through Jesus Christ our Lord! Gilpin.

9. And the children of Israel took all the women of Midian captives,] Having overthrown the armies of the Midianites, they fell upon their cities; and, according to the ancient custom in the most bloody wars, they killed only the men, but no women, nor children, Gen. xxxiv. 25; 1 Kings xi. 16. And so the law of God afterwards required them to do, when they took any city, not belonging to the Canaanites, Deut. xx. 13, 14, who under some circumstances were utterly to be destroyed, ver. 16, 17. Bp. Patrick.

17. Now therefore kill &c.] Moses gave an order that the boys and the women should be put to death, but that the young maidens should be kept alive. This proceeding shews good policy, combined with mercy. The young men might have become dangerous avengers of, what they would esteem, their country's wrongs; the mothers might have again allured the Israelites to the love of licentious pleasures, and the practice of idolatry, and brought another plague upon the congregation; but the young maidens not being polluted by the flagitious habits of their mothers, nor likely to create disturbance by rebellion, were kept alive. These young women were reserved for the purposes of slavery: a custom, abhorrent from our manners, but every where practised in former times; and still practised in countries, where the benignity of the Christian religion has not softened the ferocity of human nature. Bp. Watson.

19. — purify both yourselves] Such purifications were common among the Gentiles, especially the Greeks; with whom it was the custom, when they had killed a man, to wash their hands in water for the purification of the defilement. Bp. Patrick.

23. — ye shall make it go through the fire,] This also was a way of purifying among the Gentiles, as old as Homer's time: but they used sulphur with it. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

† Heb. of the captivity.

|| Or, goats.

25 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

26 Take the sum of the prey † that was taken, both of man and of beast, thou, and Eleazar the priest, and the chief fathers of the congregation :

27 And divide the prey into two parts ; between them that took the war upon them, who went out to battle, and between all the congregation :

28 And levy a tribute unto the LORD of the men of war which went out to battle : one soul of five hundred, both of the persons, and of the beeves, and of the asses, and of the sheep :

29 Take it of their half, and give it unto Eleazar the priest, for an heave offering of the LORD.

30 And of the children of Israel's half, thou shalt take one portion of fifty, of the persons, of the beeves, of the asses, and of the || flocks, of all manner of beasts, and give them unto the Levites, which keep the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD.

31 And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 And the booty, being the rest of the prey which the men of war had caught, was six hundred thousand and seventy thousand and five thousand sheep,

33 And threescore and twelve thousand beeves,

34 And threescore and one thousand asses,

35 And thirty and two thousand persons in all, of women that had not known man by lying with him.

36 And the half, which was the portion of them that went out to war, was in number three hundred thousand and seven and thirty thousand and five hundred sheep :

37 And the LORD's tribute of the sheep was six hundred and threescore and fifteen.

38 And the beeves were thirty and six thousand ; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and twelve.

28. And levy a tribute unto the Lord &c.] The soldiers were ordered, out of their half, to deduct a 500th part of every kind of spoil, as an offering to God, in acknowledgment of Him, as the Sovereign owner of all, and the Author of all their success. This was to be presented to the priests. Pyle.

30. And of the children of Israel's half, &c.] In like manner, out of the half belonging to the people, who had borne no fatigue in the war, a much larger proportion was to be deducted out of each article of spoil, namely, a 50th part, to be presented to the Levites, the other branch of God's ministry. Pyle.

49. — there lacketh not one man of us.] The Israelitish army consisted of but twelve thousand men, a mere handful when op-

39 And the asses were thirty thousand and five hundred ; of which the LORD's tribute was threescore and one. Before
CHRIST
1452.

40 And the persons were sixteen thousand ; of which the LORD's tribute was thirty and two persons.

41 And Moses gave the tribute, which was the LORD's heave offering, unto Eleazar the priest, as the LORD commanded Moses.

42 And of the children of Israel's half, which Moses divided from the men that warred, 43 (Now the half that pertained unto the congregation was three hundred thousand and thirty thousand and seven thousand and five hundred sheep,

44 And thirty and six thousand beeves,

45 And thirty thousand asses and five hundred,

46 And sixteen thousand persons ;)

47 Even of the children of Israel's half, Moses took one portion of fifty, both of man and of beast, and gave them unto the Levites, which kept the charge of the tabernacle of the LORD ; as the LORD commanded Moses.

48 ¶ And the officers which were over thousands of the host, the captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds, came near unto Moses :

49 And they said unto Moses, Thy servants have taken the sum of the men of war which are under our † charge, and there lacketh not one man of us. † Heb.
hand.

50 We have therefore brought an oblation for the LORD, what every man hath † gotten, of jewels of gold, chains, and bracelets, rings, earrings, and tablets, to make an atonement for our souls before the LORD. † Heb.
found.

51 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of them, even all wrought jewels.

52 And all the gold of the † offering that they offered up to the LORD, of the captains of thousands, and of the captains † Heb.
heave offering.

posed to the people of Midian. Yet when the officers made a muster of their troops after their return from the war, they found they had not lost a single man ! This circumstance struck them as so decisive an evidence of God's interposition, that out of the spoils they had taken they offered "an oblation to the Lord, an atonement for their souls." Bp. Watson.

50. — tablets,] Some ornaments about the breasts ; see Exod. xxxv. 22. Bp. Patrick.

— to make an atonement for our souls &c.] The officers of the army were sensible, that in saving the captive-women alive, they had transgressed their commission ; and therefore they presented a great quantity of jewels and other rich spoils, both as an

Before CHRIST 1452. of hundreds, was sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels.

53 (For the men of war had taken spoil, every man for himself.)

54 And Moses and Eleazar the priest took the gold of the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and brought it into the tabernacle of the congregation, for a memorial for the children of Israel before the Lord.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 The Reubenites and Gadites sue for their inheritance on that side Jordan. 6 Moses reproveth them. 16 They offer him conditions to his content. 33 Moses assigneth them the land. 39 They conquer it.

NOW the children of Reuben and the children of Gad had a very great multitude of cattle: and when they saw the land of Jazer, and the land of Gilead, that, behold, the place was a place for cattle;

2 The children of Gad and the children of Reuben came and spake unto Moses, and to Eleazar the priest, and unto the princes of the congregation, saying,

3 Ataroth, and Dibon, and Jazer, and Nimrah, and Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Shebam, and Nebo, and Beon,

4 Even the country which the Lord smote before the congregation of Israel, is a land for cattle, and thy servants have cattle:

5 Wherefore, said they, if we have found grace in thy sight, let this land be given unto thy servants for a possession, and bring us not over Jordan.

6 ¶ And Moses said unto the children of Gad and to the children of Reuben, Shall your brethren go to war, and shall ye sit here?

7 And wherefore † discourage ye the heart of the children of Israel from going over into the land which the Lord hath given them?

8 Thus did your fathers, when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land.

9 For ^{Before CHRIST 1452} when they went up unto the valley of Eshcol, and saw the land, they discouraged the heart of the children of Israel, that they should not go into the land which the Lord had given them. ^{Chap. 13. 34}

10 And the Lord's anger was kindled the same time, and he sware, saying,

11 Surely none of the men that came up out of Egypt, ^{b Chap. 14. 28, 29.} from twenty years old and upward, shall see the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob; because they have not † wholly followed me: ^{† Heb. fulfilled after me.}

12 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite, and Joshua the son of Nun: for they have wholly followed the Lord.

13 And the Lord's anger was kindled against Israel, and he made them wander in the wilderness forty years, until all the generation, that had done evil in the sight of the Lord, was consumed.

14 And, behold, ye are risen up in your fathers' stead, an increase of sinful men, to augment yet the fierce anger of the Lord toward Israel.

15 For if ye turn away from after him, he will yet again leave them in the wilderness; and ye shall destroy all this people.

16 ¶ And they came near unto him, and said, We will build sheepfolds here for our cattle, and cities for our little ones:

17 But we ourselves will go ready armed before the children of Israel, until we have brought them unto their place: and our little ones shall dwell in the fenced cities because of the inhabitants of the land.

18 We will not return unto our houses, until the children of Israel have inherited every man his inheritance.

19 For we will not inherit with them on yonder side Jordan, or forward; because our inheritance is fallen to us on this side Jordan eastward.

20 ¶ And ^{c Josh. 1. 13.} Moses said unto them, If ye will do this thing, if ye will go armed before the Lord to war, expiatory offering, to atone for their offence; and as a gratulatory offering, in acknowledgment of God's goodness in giving them so great and signal a victory. Stuckhouse.

54. — for a memorial] A memorial at once of God's mercy in preserving their number entire; and of their gratitude and piety in offering up their tribute of praise. Bp. Kidder.

Chap. XXXII. ver. 1. — the land of Jazer,] Lately taken from the Amorites, after the death of Sihon, their king, Numb. xxi. 32. This city, and the country belonging to it, were near the spring of the river Arnon. Bp. Patrick.

— the land of Gilead,] A rich country, so called from mount Gilead, which bounded it on the east, as Jordan did on the west, the river Jabbok on the south, and mount Libanus on the north. Bp. Patrick.

— a place for cattle;] In this country was Bashan, Deut. iii. 12, 13, where were bred the largest and fattest oxen, Ps. xxii. 12, and sheep also, Deut. xxxii. 14, and therefore it is joined with Gilead, Mic. vii. 14; which, being woody and mountainous in some parts, was no less famous for breeding goats, see Cant. iv. 1, which delight to brouse on such trees as mount Gilead abounded with. Bp. Patrick.

12. — the Kenezite,] Probably so called from Kenaz, one of his ancestors. Bp. Patrick.

20. — if ye will go armed before the Lord to war,] That is, before the ark, the symbol of the Lord's presence. These two 1452.

Before
CHRIST

21 And will go all of you armed over Jordan before the LORD, until he hath driven out his enemies from before him, 22 And the land be subdued before the LORD: then afterward ye shall return, and be guiltless before the LORD, and before Israel; and this land shall be your possession before the LORD.

23 But if ye will not do so, behold, ye have sinned against the LORD: and be sure your sin will find you out.

24 Build you cities for your little ones, and folds for your sheep; and do that which hath proceeded out of your mouth.

25 And the children of Gad and the children of Reuben spake unto Moses, saying, Thy servants will do as my lord commandeth.

26 Our little ones, our wives, our flocks, and all our cattle, shall be there in the cities of Gilead:

⁴ Josh. 4.
12.

27 ^d But thy servants will pass over, every man armed for war, before the LORD to battle, as my lord saith.

28 So concerning them Moses commanded Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the chief fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel:

29 And Moses said unto them, If the children of Gad and the children of Reuben will pass with you over Jordan, every man armed to battle, before the LORD, and the land shall be subdued before you; then ye shall give them the land of Gilead for a possession:

30 But if they will not pass over with you armed, they shall have possessions among you in the land of Canaan.

31 And the children of Gad and the tribes always lay encamped before the sanctuary, chap. ii. When the camp removed, they marched before it, chap. x. so that Moses here requires them, only to hold their usual place, which it is expressly said that they did, Josh iv. 12, 13. Bp. Patrick.

23. — your sin will find you out.] You shall be punished for your disobedience. Bp. Kidder. Moses consents to the request of the Reubenites and Gadites on certain conditions; but is very earnest that the conditions, which he prescribed, should be punctually observed. Accordingly he represents sin, by which he means the consequence of sin, under the strong image of a person, who should certainly find out every transgressor among them, that did not punctually perform the condition, to which he had agreed. Gilpin.

"If men sin against the Lord, their sin will surely find them out:" that the world may be convinced, that God governs it in truth and justice, and that He sees all things that are done under the sun; that good men may be reclaimed by His fatherly corrections; that wicked men may be left without excuse; and that all may be awakened to a due care of their ways, that so they may avoid what will otherwise certainly come upon them. Bp. Wilson.

27. But thy servants will pass over,] Not strictly, all the men children of Reuben answered, saying, As the LORD hath said unto thy servants, so will we do. Before

CHRIST
1452.

32 We will pass over armed before the LORD into the land of Canaan, that the possession of our inheritance on this side Jordan may be our's.

33 And ^e Moses gave unto them, even to the children of Gad, and to the children of Reuben, and unto half the tribe of Manasseh the son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land, with the cities thereof in the coasts, even the cities of the country round about. ^e Deut. 3.
12.
Josh. 13. &
& 22. 4.

34 ¶ And the children of Gad built Dibon, and Ataroth, and Aroer, 35 And Atroth, Shophan, and Jaazer, and Jogbehah, 36 And Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran, fenced cities: and folds for sheep.

37 And the children of Reuben built Heshbon, and Elealeh, and Kirjathaim, 38 And Nebo, and Baal-meon, (their names being changed,) and Shibmah: and [†] gave other names unto the cities which they builded. [†] Heb.

they called by names the names of the cities.
[†] Gen. 50.
23.

39 And the children of [†] Machir the son of Manasseh went to Gilead, and took it, and dispossessed the Amorite which was in it.

40 And Moses gave Gilead unto Machir the son of Manasseh; and he dwelt therein.

41 And ^g Jair the son of Manasseh went and took the small towns thereof, and called them Havoth-jair. ^g Deut. 3.
14.

42 And Nobah went and took Kenath, and the villages thereof, and called it Nobah, after his own name.

of war among them; but as many as could be spared, and as were thought sufficient. There went in fact 40,000 out of, probably, 100,000. Bp. Patrick.

33. — half the tribe of Manasseh] The history does not mention how this half tribe chose to stay. Probably, when they saw the success of the other two tribes, they might represent to Moses their great stock of cattle; and that the country would be equally commodious to them, as well as too large for only two tribes to occupy. Without doubt Moses was inclined to listen to them, because the sons of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had by their valour subdued a great part of the country where they settled. Stackhouse.

34. — built] Repaired and fortified.

38. — (their names being changed,)] Nebo, as well as Baal, was the name of a god, Is. xlv. 1, probably an Assyrian deity. It is not unlikely that the Israelites changed the names of these cities, that they might abolish all remains of idolatry in the country. Bp. Patrick.

40. — Moses gave Gilead unto Machir] He gave half of mount Gilead to the descendants of Machir, Dent. iii. 12, 13.

41. — Havoth-jair.] That is, the habitations of Jair.

THESE are the journeys of the children of Israel, which went forth out of the land of Egypt with their armies under the hand of Moses and Aaron.

2 And Moses wrote their goings out according to their journeys by the commandment of the LORD: and these are their journeys according to their goings out.

Y. M. D.

Y. M. D.
1	1	15	1	Rameses, near Cairo	- - -	Exod. xii. 37.	Num. xxxiii. 3.
			2	Succoth	- - -	xii. 37.	xxxiii. 5.
			3	Etham, or Adsjerud	- - -	xiii. 20.	xxxiii. 6.
			4	Pi-hahiroth, or Valley of Bedea	- - -	xiv. 2.	xxxiii. 7.
			5	Shur; Ain Musa	- - -	xv. 22.	xxxiii. 8.
			6	Desert of Shur, or Etham	- - -	xv. 23.	xxxiii. 8.
			7	Marah,—“bitter” waters healed	- - -	xv. 27.	xxxiii. 9.
			8	Elim, Valley of Corondel	- - -		xxxiii. 10.
			9	Encampment by the Red sea	- - -		xxxiii. 11.
1	2	15	10	Desert of Sin, Valley of Baharim	- - -	xvi. 1.	xxxiii. 12.
				Quails, for a day	- - -	xvi. 13.	xxxiii. 13.
				Manna, for forty years	- - -	xvi. 35.	xxxiii. 14.
				Sabbath renewed, or revived	- - -	xvi. 23.
			11	Dophkah	- - -		xxxiii. 12.
			12	Alush	- - -		xxxiii. 13.
			13	Rephidim	- - -	xvii. 1.	xxxiii. 14.
				Water from the rock Massah	- - -	xvii. 6.
				Amalekites defeated	- - -	xvii. 13.
				Jethro's visit	- - -	xviii. 5.
				Judges appointed	- - -	xviii. 25.
1	3	15	14	Mount Sinai, or Horeb	- - -	xix. 1.	xxxiii. 15.
				The Decalogue given	- - -	xx. 1.
				The Covenant made	- - -	xxiv. 7.
				The Golden Calf	- - -	xxxii. 6.
					- - -	Nehem. ix. 18.
1	6			The Covenant renewed	- - -	Ex. xxxiv. 27.
				The first muster or numbering	- - -	xxxviii. 26.
				The Tabernacle erected	- - -	xl. 17.
				Aaron and his sons consecrated	- - -	Lev. viii. 6.
				Sacrifices of atonement	- - -	ix. 1.
				The second passover	- - -	Num. ix. 5.
				The second muster	- - -	i. 3.
				Nadab and Abihu destroyed	- - -	iii. 4.
					- - -	Lev. x. 1.
2	2	20	15	Desert of Paran	- - -	Num. x. 12.
			16	Taberah	- - -	x. 33.
				Murmuring of the people	- - -	xi. 3.
			17	Kibroth-hattaavah, or Tophel	- - -	xi. 34.
					- - -	Deut. i. 1.	xxxiii. 16.
				Quails, for a month	- - -
				Plague of the people	- - -
				Council of LXX appointed	- - -
			18	Hazereth	- - -	Num. xi. 35.
					- - -	Deut. i. 1.	xxxiii. 17.
				Miriam's leprosy	- - -	Num. xii. 10.
2	5		19	Kadesh-barnea in Rithinah	- - -	xii. 16.
				or “the Desert of Sin,”	- - -	xxxii. 8.	xxxiii. 18.
				or Paran	- - -
				Twelve spies sent out	- - -	xiii. 2.
				Their return	- - -	xiii. 26.
				The people rebel	- - -	xiv. 2.
					- - -	xiv. 33.
				Sentenced to wander forty years	- - -	xxxii. 13.
				Ten of the spies destroyed	- - -	xiv. 37.
				The people defeated by the	- - -
				Amalekites	- - -	xiv. 45.
				Rebellion of Korah, &c.	- - -	xvi. 1.

		The budding of Aaron's rod	Num. xvii. 10.
	20	Rimmon-parez		Num. xxxiii. 19.
	21	Libnah, or Laban	Deut. i. 1.	xxxiii. 20.
	22	Rissah		xxxiii. 21.
	23	Kehelathah		xxxiii. 22.
	24	Mount Shapher		xxxiii. 23.
	25	Haradah or		xxxiii. 24.
		Hazar-addar, or Adar	Num. xxxiv. 4.
	26	Makheleth	Josh. xv. 3.
	27	Tabath		xxxiii. 25.
	28	Tarah		xxxiii. 26.
	29	Mithcah		xxxiii. 27.
	30	Hashmonah or		xxxiii. 28.
		Azmon, or Selmonah	Num. xxxiv. 4.	xxxiii. 29.
			Josh. xv. 4.
	31	Beeroth	Deut. x. 6.
	32	Moseroth, or Mosera		xxxiii. 30.
	33	Bene-jaakan, or Banca		xxxiii. 31.
	34	Hor-hagidgad, or		xxxiii. 32.
		Gudgodah	x. 7.
	35	Jotbathah, or		xxxiii. 33.
		Etebatha, or Elath	ii. 8.
			1 Kings ix. 26.
	36	Ebronah		xxxiii. 34.
	37	Ezion-gaber, or		xxxiii. 35.
		Dizabab	Deut. i. 1.
40	1	38 Kadesh-barnea again, after	ii. 14.	xxxiii. 36.
		thirty-eight years
		Miriam's death	Num. xx. 1.
		Water from the rock Meribah	xx. 13.
		Moses and Aaron offended	xx. 12.
			xxvii. 14.
	39	Mount Hor, or Scir, on the	xx. 22.	xxxiii. 37.
		edge of Edom
40	5	Aaron's death	xx. 23.	xxxiii. 38.
		King Arad attacks the Israelites	xxi. 1.
	40	Kibroth-hattaavah, or Tophel	Deut. i. 1.	xxxiii. 41.
		again
	41	Zalmonah, or Hasmonah again
		The people bitten by serpents	Num. xxi. 8.
		The brasen serpent erected
	42	Punon		xxxiii. 42.
	43	Oboth	xxi. 10.	xxxiii. 43.
	44	Iim, or Ije-abarim, in the		xxxiii. 44.
		border of Moab
	45	The valley and brook Zered	xxi. 12.
			Deut. ii. 13.
	46	Arnon	Num. xxi. 13.
	47	Beer, or Beer Elim	xxi. 16.
			Isaiah xv. 8.
	48	Jahaz	Num. xxi. 23.
	49	Heshibon	xxi. 25.
		Sihon defeated
	50	Jaazer	xxi. 32.
	51	Edrei	xxi. 33.
		Og defeated
	52	Dibon-gad		xxxiii. 45.
	53	Ahmon-diblathaim	Ezek. vi. 14.	xxxiii. 46.
	54	Mattanah	Num. xxi. 18.
	55	Nahaliel	xxi. 19.
	56	Bamoth	xxi. 19.
	57	Pisgah	xxi. 20.
	58	Abarim		xxxiii. 47.
	59	Shittim, or Abel shittim	xxv. i.	xxxiii. 48.
		in the plains of Moab	Josh. iii. 1.
		Idolatry of Baal-peor	Num. xxv. 3.
		Midianites punished	xxv. 17.
		The third muster	xxvi. 2.
40	11	1 Last exhortations of Moses	Deut. i. 3.
40	12	1 Joshua appointed his successor	Num. xxvii. 18.
			Deut. xxxiv. 9.
		Death of Moses	xxxiv. 5.
		A month's mourning	xxxiv. 8.
41	1	1 Joshua sends two spies	Josh. ii. 1.
41	1	10 Passage of the river Jordan	iv. 19.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

^a Exod. 12.
47.
1491.

3 And they ^a departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out with an high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians.

4 For the Egyptians buried all their first-born, which the Lord had smitten among them: upon their gods also the Lord executed judgments.

5 And the children of Israel removed from Rameses, and pitched in Succoth.

^b Exod. 13.
20.

6 And they departed from ^b Succoth, and pitched in Etham, which is in the edge of the wilderness.

7 And they removed from Etham, and turned again unto Pi-hahiroth, which is before Baal-zephon: and they pitched before Migdol.

^c Exod. 15.
22.

8 And they departed from before Pi-hahiroth, and ^c passed through the midst of the sea into the wilderness, and went three days' journey in the wilderness of Etham, and pitched in Marah.

^d Exod. 15.
27.

9 And they removed from Marah, and ^d came unto Elim: and in Elim were twelve fountains of water, and three-score and ten palm trees; and they pitched there.

10 And they removed from Elim, and encamped by the Red sea.

^e Exod. 16.
1.

11 And they removed from the Red sea, and encamped in the ^e wilderness of Sin.

12 And they took their journey out of the wilderness of Sin, and encamped in Dophkah.

13 And they departed from Dophkah, and encamped in Alush.

^f Exod. 17.
1.

14 And they removed from Alush, and encamped at ^f Replidim, where was no water for the people to drink.

1490.

^g Exod. 19.
1.

15 And they departed from Replidim, and pitched in the ^g wilderness of Sinai.

^h Chap. 11.
34.

ⁱ That is, the great of heat.

^j Chap. 11.
35.

16 And they removed from the desert of Sinai, and pitched ^h at || Kibroth-hattaavah.

17 And they departed from Kibroth-hattaavah, and ⁱ encamped at Hazeroth.

18 And they departed from Hazeroth, and pitched in Rithmah.

19 And they departed from Rithmah, and pitched at Rimmon-parez.

20 And they departed from Rimmon-parez, and pitched in Libnah.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

21 And they removed from Libnah, and pitched at Rissah.

22 And they journeyed from Rissah, and pitched in Kehelathah.

23 And they went from Kehelathah, and pitched in mount Shapher.

24 And they removed from mount Shapher, and encamped in Haradah.

25 And they removed from Haradah, and pitched in Makheloth.

26 And they removed from Makheloth, and encamped at Tahath.

27 And they departed from Tahath, and pitched at Tarah.

28 And they removed from Tarah, and pitched in Mithcah.

29 And they went from Mithcah, and pitched in Hashmonah.

30 And they departed from Hashmonah, and ^k encamped at Moseroth.

^k Deut. 10.
6.

31 And they departed from Moseroth, and pitched in Bene-jaakan.

32 And they removed from Bene-jaakan, and encamped at Hor-hagidgad.

33 And they went from Hor-hagidgad, and pitched in Jotbathah.

34 And they removed from Jotbathah, and encamped at Ebronah.

35 And they departed from Ebronah, and encamped at Ezion-gaber.

36 And they removed from Ezion-gaber, and pitched in the ^l wilderness of Zin, which is Kadesh.

1453.

^l Chap. 20.
1.

37 And they removed from ^m Kadesh, and pitched in mount Hor, in the edge of the land of Edom.

^m Chap. 20.
22.

38 And ⁿ Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor at the commandment of the Lord, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the first day of the fifth month.

ⁿ Chap. 20.
25.

Deut. 32.
50.

39 And Aaron was an hundred and twenty and three years old when he died in mount Hor.

1452.

40 And ^o king Arad the Canaanite, which dwelt in the south in the land of Canaan, heard of the coming of the children of Israel.

^o Chap. 21.
1, &c.

41 And they departed from mount ^p Hor, and pitched in Zalmonah.

^p Chap. 21.
4.

42 And they departed from Zalmonah, and pitched in Pimon.

43 And they departed from Pimon, and pitched in Oboth.

44 And they departed from Oboth, and pitched in || Ije-abarim, in the border of Moab.

^q Or, heaps of Abarim.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

45 And they departed from Iim, and pitched in Dibon-gad.

46 And they removed from Dibon-gad, and encamped in Almon-diblathaim.

47 And they removed from Almon-diblathaim, and pitched in the mountains of Abarim, before Nebo.

48 And they departed from the mountains of Abarim, and pitched in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

49 And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth-jesimoth even unto ||^a Abel-shittim in the plains of Moab.

50 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

51 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ' When ye are passed over Jordan into the land of Canaan ;

52 Then ye shall drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you, and destroy all their pictures, and destroy all their molten images, and quite pluck down all their high places :

53 And ye shall dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and dwell therein : for I have given you the land to possess it.

54 And ^s ye shall divide the land by lot for an inheritance among your families :

|| Or.
the plains of Shittim.
^a Chap. 25.
1.

^r Deut. 7. 2.
Josh. 11.
12.

^s Chap. 26.
53.

52. — destroy all their pictures.] All those images and representations, upon what material soever they were wrought, which were worshipped, or designed for such an use. Compare Deut. xvi. 22, with Lev. xxvi. 1. Bp. Kidder.

— high places.] That is, all groves or buildings for worship, which were generally in high places. See Deut. xii. 2. Bp. Kidder.

55. — if ye will not drive out &c.] At first they could not drive them out, for it was not God's design. Therefore Joshua would not attempt it, while he lived : but left several nations, or part of them, unsubdued, Judg. ii. 21, 23 ; of which he himself takes notice a little before he died, Josh. xxiii. 4, 7, where he warns the Israelites to have nothing to do with them, promising that God would in time expel them quite, chap. v. 5. But when the Israelites grew slothful and cowardly, and negligently suffered the people of Canaan to dwell among them, and make friendship with them, as they did after Joshua and all that generation were dead, then followed what is here threatened in the next words. Bp. Patrick.

— shall be pricks in your eyes, &c.] Bring very sore calamities upon you ; as grievous and as mischievous as a wound made in the eye, which is a most tender part ; or in the side when a thorn sticks and festers in it. Bp. Patrick.

56. — I shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.] As I purposed to do unto them : that is, I will make you their slaves, as the Israelites became to several people, whom they served many years, Judg. iii. 8, 14 ; vi. 2, and many other places. Or, make you flee before them ; and at last expel you from the land which I give you. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXXIV. ver. 2. — When ye come into the land of Canaan ; &c.] By the Abrahamick covenant the original grant of the promised land to the Israelites was " from the river of Egypt" (the Nile southwards) " to the great river, the river Euphrates," (northwards,) Gen. xv. 18.

and to the more ye shall † give the more inheritance, and to the fewer ye shall † give the less inheritance : every man's inheritance shall be in the place where his lot fall-eth ; according to the tribes of your fathers ye shall inherit.

55 But if ye will not drive out the inhabitants of the land from before you ; then it shall come to pass, that those which ye let remain of them shall be ' pricks in your eyes, and thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land where- in ye dwell.

56 Moreover it shall come to pass, that I shall do unto you, as I thought to do unto them.

Before
CHRIST
1452.

† Heb.
multiply his inheritance.
† Heb. diminish his inheritance.

^r Josh. 23.
13.
Judg. 2. 3.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 The borders of the land. 16 The names of the men which shall divide the land.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land of Canaan ; (this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts thereof :))

The boundaries of it are accurately described by Moses in this chapter, before the Israelites entered into it. " When ye come into the land of Canaan, (this is the land that shall fall unto you for an inheritance, even the land of Canaan with the coasts thereof :))

" Your south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Zin, along by the coast of Edom," or Idumea. This was its general description. The boundary itself is next traced : " And your south border shall be the outmost coast of the Salt sea eastward ;" or as explained by Joshua's description afterwards, chap. xv. 2—4, " the south border of the tribe of Judah began from the bay of the Salt sea that looketh southward ;" or by combining both, from the southeast corner of the Salt sea, or Asphaltic lake. " From thence, your border shall turn southwards to the ascent of Akkrabbim," or the mountains of Accaba, (signifying " ascent" in Arabick,) which run towards the head of the Elanitic or eastern gulph of the Red sea ; passing, we may presume, through the seaports of Elath and Ezion-gaber on the Red sea, which belonged to Solomon, 1 Kings ix. 26, though they are not noticed in this place.

" Thence it shall pass on to (the wilderness of) Zin," on the east side of mount Hor, including that whole mountainous region within the boundary ; " and the going forth thereof shall be to Kadesh-barnea southwards, and it shall go on to Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon."

" And the border shall fetch a compass," or form an angle, " from Azmon," or turn westwards towards the river of Egypt, or Pelusiack branch of the Nile ; " and its outgoings shall be at the sea," the Mediterranean. This termination of the southern border westwards is exactly conformable to the accounts of Herodotus and Pliny : the former represents mount Casius lying between Pelusium and the Sirbonick lake, as the boundary between Egypt and Palestine Syria, the latter reckoned the Sirbonick lake itself as the boundary.

" And as for the western border, ye shall have the Great sea for

Before
CHRIST
1452.

^a Josh. 15.

3 Then ^a your south quarter shall be from the wilderness of Zin along by the coast of Edom, and your south border shall be the outmost coast of the salt sea eastward :

4 And your border shall turn from the south to the ascent of Akkrabbim, and pass on to Zin : and the going forth thereof shall be from the south to Kadesh-barnea, and shall go on to Hazar-addar, and pass on to Azmon :

5 And the border shall fetch a compass from Azmon unto the river of Egypt, and the goings out of it shall be at the sea.

6 And as for the western border, ye shall even have the great sea for a border : this shall be your west border.

7 And this shall be your north border : from the great sea ye shall point out for you mount Hor :

8 From mount Hor ye shall point out your border unto the entrance of Hamath ; and the goings forth of the border shall be to Zedad :

9 ¶ And the border shall go on to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan : this shall be your north border.

10 And ye shall point out your east border from Hazar-enan to Shepham :

11 And the coast shall go down from Shepham to Riblah, on the east side of Ain ; and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the † side of the sea of Chinnereth eastward :

Before
CHRIST
1452.
† Heb.
shoulder.

12 And the border shall go down to Jordan, and the goings out of it shall be at the salt sea : this shall be your land with the coasts thereof round about.

13 And Moses commanded the children of Israel, saying, This is the land which ye shall inherit by lot, which the Lord commanded to give unto the nine tribes, and to the half tribe :

14 ^b For the tribe of the children of Reuben according to the house of their fathers, and the tribe of the children of Gad according to the house of their fathers, have received their inheritance ; and half the tribe of Manasseh have received their inheritance :

^b Chap. 32.
33.
Josh. 14. 2.
3.

15 The two tribes and the half tribe have received their inheritance on this side Jordan near Jericho eastward, toward the sunrising.

16 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

17 These are the names of the men which shall divide the land unto you :
Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun.

^c Josh. 19.
51.

a border : this shall be your western border." The Great sea is the Mediterranean, as contrasted with the smaller seas or lakes, the Red sea, the Salt sea, and the sea of Tiberias, or Galilee.

"And this shall be your north border : from the Great sea you shall point out Hor-ha-hor, (not "mount Hor," as rendered in our version, confounding it with that on the southern border, but) "the mountain of the mountain," or "the double mountain," or mount Lebanon, which formed the northern frontier of Palestine, dividing it from Syria ; consisting of two great parallel ranges, called Libanus and Antilibanus, (derived from leban, "white," because their summits are usually covered with snow,) and running eastwards from the neighbourhood of Sidon to that of Damascus.

"From Hor-ha-hor ye shall point your border to the entrance of Hamath ;" which Joshua, speaking of the yet unconquered land, describes, "All Lebanon, towards the sunrising, from the valley of Baal-gad, under mount Hermon, unto the entrance of Hamath," Josh. xiii. 5. This demonstrates, that Hor-ha-hor corresponded to all Lebanon, including mount Hermon, as judiciously remarked by Wells ; who observes, that it is not decided, which of the two ridges, the northern or the southern, was properly Libanus ; the natives at present call the southern so, but the Septuagint and Ptolemy called it Antilibanus.

"From Hamath it shall go on to Zedad, and from thence to Ziphron, and the goings out of it shall be at Hazar-enan, (near Damascus, Ezek. xlviii. 1,) this shall be your north border.

"And ye shall point out your east border from Hazar-enan to Shepham : and the coast shall go down to Riblah, on the east side of Ain, ("the fountain" or springs of the river Jordan ; and the border shall descend, and shall reach unto the (east) side of the sea of Chinnereth," (or sea of Galilee, or lake of Tiberias, thence probably called Gennesareth in our Saviour's time.) "And the border shall go down to Jordan on the east side, and the goings out of it shall be at the Salt sea." There it met the southern border, at the southeast corner of that sea, or the Asphaltite lake.

"This shall be your land with the coasts thereof round about" in circuit.

Such was the admirable geographical chart of the land of promise, dictated to Moses by the God of Israel, and described with all the accuracy of an eyewitness.

In his first expedition Joshua subdued all the southern department of the promised land, and in his second the northern, having spent five years in both, Josh. xi. 18. What Joshua left unfinished of the conquest of the whole, was afterwards completed by David and Solomon. In the reign of the latter was realized the Abrahamick covenant in its full extent.

"And Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the river (Euphrates) unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt :—for he had dominion over all the region on this side of the river (Euphrates) from Tiphseh (or Thapsacus situated thereon) even to Azzah (or "Gaza with her towns and her villages, unto the river of Egypt," southward, "and the Great sea," westward, Josh. xv. 47,) over all the kings on this side the river," (Euphrates,) 1 Kings iv. 21, 24. Dr. Hales.

For a farther explanation of what is here said concerning the borders of the land of Canaan, the reader is referred to the map.

17. These are the names of the men which shall divide the land unto you : &c. Nothing could be more prudent, than this partition of the country by lot, and making Joshua and the high priest superintendents of it : since it was the only plan which could effectually prevent all murmurings and quarrellings among such an obstinate people as the Jews. However, as the lots were to bear a proportion to the size of each tribe and family, it is supposed from what followed, that every tribe first drew its lot, for its own canton ; and that, after that, there were proper persons appointed

Before
CHRIST
1452.

18 And ye shall take one prince of every tribe, to divide the land by inheritance.

19 And the names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Judah, Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

20 And of the tribe of the children of Simeon, Shemuel the son of Ammihud.

21 Of the tribe of Benjamin, Elidad the son of Chislon.

22 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Dan, Bukki the son of Jogli.

23 The prince of the children of Joseph, for the tribe of the children of Manasseh, Hanniel the son of Ephod.

24 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Ephraim, Kemuel the son of Shiphthan.

25 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Zebulun, Elizaphan the son of Parnach.

26 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Issachar, Paltiel the son of Azzan.

27 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Asher, Ahihud the son of Shelomi.

28 And the prince of the tribe of the children of Naphtali, Pedahel the son of Ammihud.

29 These are they whom the LORD commanded to divide the inheritance unto the children of Israel in the land of Canaan.

CHAP. XXXV.

¹ Eight and forty cities for the Levites with their suburbs, and measure thereof. ⁶ Six of them are to be cities of refuge. ⁹ The laws of murder. ³¹ No satisfaction for murder.

1451.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho, saying,

2 ^a Command the children of Israel, that

^a Josh. 21.
2.

to measure out a quantity of land for each family, according to their size. But whether this distribution was made by this or any other method; whether the subdivisions between the families were conducted by lot or otherwise, it is certain that we do not read of any broils or jealousies, that it ever occasioned among them. Stackhouse.

Chap. XXXV. ver. 1. And the Lord spake unto Moses &c.] Hitherto nothing had been said of the Levites, but that they should have no lot in the land of Canaan. But now God provides that they should have habitations assigned them to dwell in, though they had not fields, nor olive yards, &c. as their brethren had; with such a portion of ground about their houses, as might serve for their more commodious subsistence. Bp. Patrick.

3, 4, and 5.] The grounds, appropriated to the Levites, were to be close under the walls, or nearest to the buildings of the several towns, and were to consist of two parts. First, a space of about 500 yards in length, immediately from the walls round the they give unto the Levites of the inheritance of their possession cities to dwell in; and ye shall give also unto the Levites suburbs for the cities round about them.

3 And the cities shall they have to dwell in; and the suburbs of them shall be for their cattle, and for their goods, and for all their beasts.

4 And the suburbs of the cities, which ye shall give unto the Levites, shall reach from the wall of the city and outward a thousand cubits round about.

5 And ye shall measure from without the city on the east side two thousand cubits, and on the south side two thousand cubits, and on the west side two thousand cubits, and on the north side two thousand cubits; and the city shall be in the midst: this shall be to them the suburbs of the cities.

6 And among the cities which ye shall give unto the Levites there shall be ^b six cities for refuge, which ye shall appoint for the manslayer, that he may flee thither: and [†]to them ye shall add forty and two cities.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^b Deut. 4.
41.
Josh. 20. 2.
& 21. 3.

[†] Heb. above them
ye shall give.

7 So all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites shall be forty and eight cities: them shall ye give with their suburbs.

8 And the cities which ye shall give shall be of the possession of the children of Israel: from them that have many ye shall give many; but from them that have few ye shall give few: every one shall give of his cities unto the Levites according to his inheritance which [†]he inheriteth.

[†] Heb.
they inherit.

9 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, ^cWhen ye be come over Jordan into the land of Canaan;

^c Deut. 19.
2.
Josh. 20. 2.

11 Then ye shall appoint you cities to town, was appropriated to them, for houses, stables, and stowages for their cattle of all kinds; and from thence the space of something above 1,000 yards of ground more, for their pasturage. Pyle.

6. — cities for refuge,] See Deut. iv. 42; xix. 4; and the notes there.

7. — all the cities which ye shall give to the Levites &c.] Moses allotted to the Levites these forty-eight cities in different parts of the land; that they might with more convenience go to perform religious offices in every quarter; particularly that of instructing the people, which Moses expressly assigns to their whole tribe, Deut. xxxiii. 10. Abp. Secker.

Of these Levitical cities, thirteen were properly sacerdotal; namely, those assigned to the sons of Aaron, to whom the priesthood was exclusively confined: for though all were Levites, these only could be priests. And the legal economy of High Priest, Priest, and Levite, has been adopted in the Christian, of Bishop, Priest, and Deacon. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb.
by error.

be cities of refuge for you; that the slayer may flee thither, which killeth any person † at unawares.

12 And they shall be unto you cities for refuge from the avenger; that the manslayer die not, until he stand before the congregation in judgment.

13 And of these cities which ye shall give six cities shall ye have for refuge.

14 Ye shall give three cities on this side Jordan, and three cities shall ye give in the land of Canaan, which shall be cities of refuge.

15 These six cities shall be a refuge, both for the children of Israel, and for the stranger, and for the sojourner among them: that every one that killeth any person unawares may flee thither.

† Exod. 21.
14.

16 And if he smite him with an instrument of iron, so that he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

† Heb. with a stone of the hand.

17 And if he smite him † with throwing a stone, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

18 Or if he smite him with an hand-weapon of wood, wherewith he may die, and he die, he is a murderer: the murderer shall surely be put to death.

19 The revenger of blood himself shall slay the murderer: when he meeteth him, he shall slay him.

12. — from the avenger;] Called “the revenger of blood,” ver. 19. The Hebrew signifies a Redeemer; and because the right of redemption of estates belonged to the nearest kinsman, the word imports such a kinsman here. Bp. Kidder.

— that the manslayer die not,] By a sudden heat of passion in the nearest kinsman to the deceased. This was a merciful provision, both for the manslayer, that he might be preserved; and for the avenger, that his blood might cool, by the removal of the manslayer out of his sight. Bp. Patrick.

— until he stand before the congregation] The city of refuge protected the innocent, and such as were not condemned, but it did not protect them from giving an account before the judges. This they were obliged to do, either at their entrance into the city of refuge, Josh. xx. 4, or in the place where the fact was committed. Bp. Kidder.

15. — for the stranger,] Or proselyte, as in the Greek: that is, one who undertakes the religion of the Israelites, and was thereby distinguished from the sojourner, who, though he did not oblige himself to all their laws, was yet permitted to live among them. Bp. Kidder. Both strangers and sojourners had renounced idolatry: but had not equally embraced the Jewish religion. Yet both had the same share in this benefit with the native Israelites; it being a natural right, that every innocent man should be protected. Bp. Patrick.

16. And if he smite him &c.] Rather, But if he smite him. It was to be presumed, that he who ran at a man with a sword, or any such weapon, intended to do him a mischief; though perhaps he had no malice to him beforehand, but did it in a passion. Bp. Patrick. It was the opinion of a very learned judge, that if

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Deut. 19.
21.

20 But if he thrust him of hatred, or hurl at him by laying of wait, that he die;

21 Or in enmity smite him with his hand, that he die: he that smote him shall surely be put to death; for he is a murderer: the revenger of blood shall slay the murderer, when he meeteth him.

22 But if he thrust him suddenly † without enmity, or have cast upon him any thing without laying of wait,

23 Or with any stone, wherewith a man may die, seeing him not, and cast it upon him, that he die, and was not his enemy, neither sought his harm:

24 Then the congregation shall judge between the slayer and the revenger of blood according to these judgments:

25 And the congregation shall deliver the slayer out of the hand of the revenger of blood, and the congregation shall restore him to the city of his refuge, whither he was fled: and he shall abide in it unto the death of the high priest, which was anointed with the holy oil.

26 But if the slayer shall at any time come without the border of the city of his refuge, whither he was fled;

27 And the revenger of blood find him without the borders of the city of his refuge, and the revenger of blood kill the slayer; † he shall not be guilty of blood:

28 Because he should have remained in the city of his refuge until the death of † Heb.

no blood shall be to him.

a man killed his neighbour with a weapon or instrument likely to kill him, it was malice prepense in the eye of the law. So that rencounters, as they are called, and chance medley, &c. where the instrument was such as would probably kill a man, were murder. Bp. Wilson.

20. But if he thrust &c.] Rather, Or if he thrust &c. Pyle.

21. — shall slay the murderer, when he meeteth him.] The revenger of blood, to whom lawful authority shall commit the execution, shall slay the murderer: when he is delivered into his hand by a legal judgment, he shall be his executioner. Bp. Hall. He was not bound to stay for the judgment of the court, but might kill him, wheresoever he found him. Bp. Patrick.

22. But if he thrust him suddenly without enmity, &c.] In all these judgments or rules, there is a plain exemption of what we call chance medley, from the guilt of murder; but not of that which we call manslaughter. A man that strikes, thrusts, or throws any thing with design of killing, is here a murderer, though he did it not out of an old envy, but on a sudden rage or passion. Dr. Wall.

24. — the congregation] The judges and elders, to whom such causes belong. Bp. Kidder.

25. — and he shall abide in it] This retirement of the manslayer appears to have been enjoined, for a warning to all others to be careful and watchful, lest by any negligence, surprise, or heedlessness, they endangered the life of any person: and at the same time, by the absence and retirement of the slayer, to mitigate the resentment of the relations and near friends of the slain, and prevent them from executing any revenge. Pyle.

— unto the death of the high priest,] That being a time of the high priest : but after the death of the high priest the slayer shall return into the land of his possession.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

29 So these things shall be for a statute of judgment unto you throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

* Deut. 17.
6. & 19. 15.
Matth. 18.
16.
2 Cor. 13. 1.
Hebr. 10.
28.

30 Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the ^s mouth of witnesses : but one witness shall not testify against any person to cause him to die.

† Heb. faulty to die.

31 Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which is † guilty of death : but he shall be surely put to death.

32 And ye shall take no satisfaction for him that is fled to the city of his refuge, that he should come again to dwell in the land, until the death of the priest.

† Heb.
there can be no expiation for the land.

33 So ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are : for blood it defileth the land : and † the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it.

34 Defile not therefore the land which ye shall inhabit, wherein I dwell : for I the LORD dwell among the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXXVI.

- 1 The inconvenience of the inheritance of daughters 5 is remedied by marrying in their own tribes, 7 lest the inheritance should be removed from the tribe. 10 The daughters of Zelophehad marry their father's brothers' sons.

AND the chief fathers of the families of the children of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, of the families of the sons of Joseph, came near, and spake before Moses, and before the princes, the chief fathers of the children of Israel :

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 And they said, ^a The LORD commanded my lord to give the land for an inheritance by lot to the children of Israel : and my lord was commanded by the LORD to give the inheritance of Zelophehad our brother unto his daughters.

^a Chap. 27.
¹ Josh. 17. 3.

3 And if they be married to any of the sons of the other tribes of the children of Israel, then shall their inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put to the inheritance of the tribe † whereunto they are received : so shall it be taken from the lot of our inheritance.

† Heb. unto whom they shall be.

4 And when the jubile of the children of Israel shall be, then shall their inheritance be put unto the inheritance of the tribe whereunto they are received : so shall their inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

5 And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph hath said well.

6 This is the thing which the LORD doth command concerning the daughters of Zelophehad, saying, Let them † marry to whom they think best ; ^b only to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry.

† Heb. be wives.
^b Tob. 1. 9.

7 So shall not the inheritance of the children of Israel remove from tribe to tribe : for every one of the children of Israel shall † keep himself to the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

† Heb. cleave to the, &c.

8 And every daughter, that possesseth publick mourning, when their great advocate died, was a fit season for men to lay aside their private animosities, and forget their particular feuds and quarrels. Bp. Kidder.

31. Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction &c.] If a murderer would have given all his estate to save his life, or the avenger of blood would have accepted a compensation, or freely let him go, the judges, when they had found him guilty, could not restore him to the city of refuge, but he was to suffer death. For the life of him that was slain was not, as Maimonides says, part of the goods of the avenger of blood, but belonged to Almighty God ; who set such a value on a man's life, that He would not suffer any price to be taken for it. Bp. Patrick. The crime of deliberate and wilful murder is a crime at which human nature starts, and which is, I believe, punished almost universally throughout the world with death. The words of the Mosaical law (over and above the general precept of Noah, that "whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed") are very emphatical in prohibiting the pardon of murderers : "moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer who is guilty of death, but he shall surely be put to death : for the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it." And therefore the British law has provided one course of prosecution, that by appeal, wherein the king himself is excluded the power of pardoning murder : so that, were the king of England so inclined, he could not imitate that Polish monarch mentioned by Puffendorf ; who thought proper to remit the penalties of murder to all the nobility, in an edict, with this arrogant preamble, "We, mitigating the rigour of the Divine Law, &c." Sir Wm. Blackstone.

Chap. XXXVI. ver. 6. — only to the family of the tribe of their father shall they marry.] The original division of land was to the several tribes according to their families ; so that each tribe was settled in the same county, and each family in the same barony or hundred. Nor was the estate of any family in one tribe permitted to pass into another, even by the marriage of an heiress. So that, not only was the original balance of property preserved, but the closest and dearest connexions of affinity attached to each other the inhabitants of every vicinage. Thus domestick virtue and affection had a more extensive sphere of action : the happiness of rural life was increased, and a general attention to virtue and decorum was promoted, from that natural emulation, which each family would feel to preserve unsullied the reputation of their neighbourhood : and the poor might every where expect more ready assistance, since they implored it from men, whose sympathy in their sufferings would be quickened by hereditary friendship, and hereditary connexion. Dr. Graves.

8. And every daughter, that possesseth an inheritance &c.] The

Before
CHRIST
1451.

an inheritance in any tribe of the children of Israel, shall be wife unto one of the family of the tribe of her father, that the children of Israel may enjoy every man the inheritance of his fathers.

9 Neither shall the inheritance remove from one tribe to another tribe; but every one of the tribes of the children of Israel shall keep himself to his own inheritance.

10 Even as the Lord commanded Moses, so did the daughters of Zelophehad:

^c Chap. 27.
1.

11 ^c For Mahlah, Tirzah, and Hoglah, and Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, were married unto their father's brothers' sons: Before

CHRIST
1451.

12 And they were married † into the families of the sons of Manasseh the son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained in the tribe of the family of their father. † Heb.
to some that were of the families.

13 These are the commandments and the judgments, which the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses unto the children of Israel in the plains of Moab by Jordan near Jericho.

particular law, relating to Zelophehad's daughters, is here passed into a general law for heiresses: for it should be remembered, that the case concerned no other women, but such as possessed an inheritance. Bp. Patrick.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Numbers, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. XI. ver. 16, to ver. 30,	- - -	Monday in Whitsun-week,	- - - -	Evening.
— XVI.	- - - - -	1st Sunday after Easter,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XXII.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XXIII.	} - - - - -	2d Sunday after Easter,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XXIV.
— XXV.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.

THE FIFTH BOOK OF MOSES,

CALLED

DEUTERONOMY.

INTRODUCTION.

THE fifth and last book of the Pentateuch is called "Deuteronomy," a word composed of two Greek words, signifying a repetition of the Law. It contains indeed a compendious repetition of the Law, enlarged with many explanatory additions, and enforced by the strongest and most pathetick exhortations to obedience; as well for the more forcible impression on the Israelites in general, as in particular for the benefit of those, who, being born in the wilderness, were not present at the first promulgation of the Law. It is a kind of manual of Divine wisdom; a commentary on the Decalogue; and contains such laws, as concerned the people in general, as to their civil, military, and religious government, omitting for the most part what related to the Priests and Levites. It was delivered by Moses, a little time previous to his death, to the people whom he had long governed and instructed; and it was bequeathed, with his other writings, to the charge of the Levites, as the most valuable testimony of his regard, in the fortieth year after the departure from Egypt, in the year of the world 2552.

The book opens with an interesting address to the Israelites, in which Moses briefly recapitulates the many circumstances, in which they had experienced the Divine favour since their departure from Horeb. He describes the success and victories, which had marked their progress; the incredulous murmurs and ingratitude, by which the people had incensed God; and the effects of the Divine wrath; especially in the inexorable decree, by which he himself had been debarred from that land, for the possession of which he had so earnestly toiled. He proceeds with the most animated zeal to exhort them to future obedience: and to rehearse in a discourse, renewed at intervals, the various commandments, statutes, and judgments, which had been delivered to them by God, that they might become "a wise and understanding nation;" and fulfil the terms of that covenant, which the Lord had made with them in Horeb. Moses, while he intersperses with these laws frequent reproaches for their past misconduct, unfolds the glorious attributes of God, and reiterates every persuasive motive to obedience. He commands them to distinguish their first entrance into Canaan, by a publick display of reverence for God's law: by erecting stones on which all its words and precepts might be inscribed. He enters into a new covenant with the people; which not only included that previously made at Horeb, but which renewed also and ratified those assurances of spiritual blessings, long before imparted to Abraham and his descendants. He then, in consistency with the promises and sanctions of both covenants, sets forth for their election, "life and good, and death and evil:" temporal and eternal recompense, or present and future punishment.

Deuteronomy contains a period of nearly two months: an history of the conclusion of the life of Moses, whose last days were distinguished by increasing solicitude, and by the most active exertions for the welfare of his people. After a commemorative hymn, in which he particularly exhorts them to "consider their latter end;" and after having uttered his prophetick blessings in solemn and appropriate promises to the several tribes, this great man is represented to have retired, by Divine command, to the top of mount Nebo; from whence he had a prospect of Canaan, and foresaw the speedy accomplishment of God's promises. He then, in the full possession of his powers and faculties, when "his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated," died in the 120th year of his age.

This book is cited as the book of Moses in many parts of Scripture, and numberless passages are produced from it in testimony, by Christ and His Apostles.

With respect to the prophetick part of Deuteronomy, it should be remarked, that the Messiah is here more explicitly foretold than in the preceding books, and described as the completion of the Jewish economy. "I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put My words in His mouth, and He shall speak unto them all that I shall command Him." The prophecies of Moses increase in number and clearness towards the close of his writings. As he approached the end of his life, he appears to have discerned futurity with more exactness. His denunciation concerning the future rewards and punishments, the success, dispersions, and desolations of his people; his prophetick blessings on the tribes; his description of the rapid victories of the Romans; and of the miseries to be sustained by his besieged countrymen; and particularly his prophecies relative to their present condition, as accomplished under our own observation, bear a striking evidence to the truth and inspiration of his writings, and fearfully illustrate the character of the Divine attributes.

The book of Deuteronomy brings down the Sacred History to the year of the world 2552, and completes the volume of the Pentateuch, of which every part is uniformly and consistently perfect. Dr. Gray.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

CHAP. I.

1 Moses' speech in the end of the fortieth year, briefly rehearsing the story 6 of God's promise, 13 of giving them officers, 19 of sending the spies to search the land, 34 of God's anger for their incredulity, 41 and disobedience.

THESE be the words which Moses spake unto all Israel on this side Jordan in the wilderness, in the plain over against || the Red sea, between Paran, and Tophel, and Laban, and Hazeroth, and Dizahab.

2 (There are eleven days' journey from Horeb by the way of mount Seir unto Kadesh-barnea.)

3 And it came to pass in the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first day of the month, that Moses spake unto the children of Israel, according unto all that the LORD had given him in commandment unto them ;

* Numh.
21. 24.

4 * After he had slain Sihon the king of the Amorites, which dwelt in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, which dwelt at Astaroth in Edrei :

Before
CHRIST
1451.

5 On this side Jordan, in the land of Moab, began Moses to declare this law, saying,

6 The LORD our God spake unto us in Horeb, saying, Ye have dwelt long enough in this mount :

1491.

7 Turn you, and take your journey, and go to the mount of the Amorites, and unto † all the places nigh thereunto, in the plain, † Heb. all his neighbours, in the hills, and in the vale, and in the south, and by the sea side, to the land of the Canaanites, and unto Lebanon, unto the great river, the river Euphrates.

8 Behold, I have † set the land before † Heb. given. you : go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers, ^b Abraham, ^b Gen. 15. Isaac, and Jacob, to give unto them and 18. & 17. to their seed after them. 7, 8.

9 ¶ And I spake unto you at that time,

Chap. I. ver. 1. These be the words which Moses spake &c.] This exordium to Deuteronomy is remarkable. It states that this book is not, like the books of Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers, a direct narration or journal of the various events, which occurred to the Jewish legislator and nation from the commencement of their deliverance from Egypt ; but that it is a recapitulation of every thing, which Moses thought it necessary to notice, in addressing the people shortly before his death, at the close of the forty years, during which he had acted as their lawgiver and judge. Dr. Graves.

— on this side Jordan] Namely, on the “ eastern ” side of Jordan, “ by the wilderness ” that lay on the southeast of the plain of Moab. In this plain the Israelites had been encamped since the time intimated in Numb. xxii. 1, their camp lying, not “ over against the Red sea,” which the Hebrew word “ zuph ” sometimes signifies, but from which they were now far distant ; but “ over against a place called Zuph,” as in the margin ; and “ between the places ” last mentioned in this verse, which appear to have been frontier towns of the country of Moab, that lay upon the borders of this plain. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells, Pyle.

2. (There are eleven days' journey &c.) This is said to intimate that the tedious tract of time, occupied in coming to this border of Canaan, is not to be ascribed to the length of the way thither from Egypt ; there being only eleven days' continued march from Horeb, where the Law was given, to Kadesh-barnea, whence the distance to Canaan is very small ; but partly to a design of proving them, and partly as a just punishment upon the infidelity and disobedience of the foregoing generation. See Numb. xiii. and xiv. Pyle.

3. — in the fortieth year,] Moses was the immediate agent of God in all those mighty operations, which took place, during his residence with the Israelites in Egypt, as well as in those which ensued. The destination of this people was to the land of Canaan : and though the history of their journeyings may not be uniformly attended with the same astonishing prodigies as they had experienced in Egypt, yet in every movement, throughout the whole process, there are marks of Divine power and wisdom, by which they were at all times conducted. For no man could have formed such a system, much less have carried it on in the manner, by which we see it at last completed. After the signal deliverance at the Red sea, instead of taking the shortest course to Canaan, Moses sets out in a quite contrary direction, southward towards Paran : and having led the people through one barren wild, he brings them into another, still more barren and horrid. In this desert they reside near forty years, where a caravan could not subsist for a month. It is moreover said, that in this state of travel for so many years, their apparel lasted to the very conclusion of their journey, Deut. xxix. 5. It is farther said, that when they were afflicted with thirst, the solid rocks afforded them streams of water, Ps. lxxviii. 16, and that for a long season they were fed with a peculiar food from heaven, Deut. viii. 3. And this must necessarily have been the case : for there was not subsistence in the desert for one hundredth part of their number. In short, it seemed good to Divine wisdom, to bring the Israelites into perils of various kinds, from whence there seemed no opening for escape ; no subterfuge, which could avail them. And this was done, that they might manifestly see, that their safety was not effected by any human means : but that it was a far higher power, which both conducted and preserved them. Bryant.

5. — to declare this law,] By way of rehearsal. Dr. Wells. To call to remembrance that which any one had forgotten, and to explain that which any one did not understand. What Moses now said was likely to be the more regarded, because these were, in a manner, his dying words ; for he lived but till the seventh day of the next month. This book seems to have been composed by him as a compendium of his whole law, for the familiar use of the children of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

The Hebrew words import, that Moses began, or determined, to explain the Law : and so the words are rendered in most of the ancient versions, and by several modern commentators, who were eminently skilled in the Hebrew language. This repetition and explanation of the law was a wise and benevolent proceeding in Moses ; that those, who were either not born, or were mere infants, when it was first delivered in Horeb, forty years before, might have an opportunity of knowing it ; especially as Moses their leader was soon to be taken from them, and they were about to be settled in the midst of nations, given to idolatry, and sunk in vice. Bp. Watson.

6. — Ye have dwelt long enough &c.] It appears by comparing Exod. xix. 1, with Numb. x. 11, 12, that they continued in the wilderness of Sinai for the space of almost a year, in which time they received their law, erected their tabernacle, numbered their people, set up their standards, and encamped by them in the order prescribed ; and were therefore sufficiently prepared to march onward in great order. Bp. Kidder. It was God's purpose that the Israelites should enter into the land of Canaan from their encampment at Kadesh-barnea, if they had not hindered it by their unbelief. Dr. Wells.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} saying, I am not able to bear you myself alone:

10 The LORD your God hath multiplied you, and, behold, ye are this day as the stars of heaven for multitude.

11 (The LORD God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, as he hath promised you!)

12 How can I myself alone bear your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?

† Heb. Give.

13 † Take you wise men, and understanding, and known among your tribes, and I will make them rulers over you.

14 And ye answered me, and said, The thing which thou hast spoken is good for us to do.

† Heb. gave.

15 So I took the chief of your tribes, wise men, and known, and † made them heads over you, captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, and captains over fifties, and captains over tens, and officers among your tribes.

16 And I charged your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and ^c judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is with him.

^c John 7. 24.
^d Lev. 19. 15.
ch. 16. 19.
1 Sam. 16. 7.
Prov. 24. 25.
† Heb. acknowledge faces.

17 ^d Ye shall not † respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God's: and the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it.

18 And I commanded you at that time all the things which ye should do.

1450.

19 ¶ And when we departed from Horeb, we went through all that great and terrible wilderness, which ye saw by the way of the mountain of the Amorites, as the LORD our God commanded us; and we came to Kadesh-barnea. ^{Before CHRIST 1451.}

20 And I said unto you, Ye are come unto the mountain of the Amorites, which the LORD our God doth give unto us.

21 Behold, the LORD thy God hath set the land before thee: go up and possess it, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath said unto thee; fear not, neither be discouraged.

22 ¶ And ye came near unto me every one of you, and said, We will send men before us, and they shall search us out the land, and bring us word again by what way we must go up, and into what cities we shall come.

23 And the saying pleased me well: and ^c I took twelve men of you, one of ^c a tribe: ^c Numb. 13. 3.

24 And ^c they turned and went up into ^c the mountain, and came unto the valley of Eshcol, and searched it out. ^c Numb. 13. 24.

25 And they took of the fruit of the land in their hands, and brought it down unto us, and brought us word again, and said, It is a good land which the LORD our God doth give us.

26 Notwithstanding ye would not go up, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God:

27 And ye murmured in your tents, and said, Because the LORD hated us, he hath brought us forth out of the land of Egypt, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us.

28 Whither shall we go up? our brethren have † discouraged our heart, saying, The people is greater and taller than we; the cities are great and walled up to heaven; ^{† Heb. melted.}

11. (The Lord God of your fathers make you &c.) How naturally does the pious legislator in this address to the people dwell on every circumstance, which could improve his hearers in piety and virtue! The multitude of the people was the cause of the appointment of the judges here spoken of, ver. 13. How beautifully is this increase of the nation turned to an argument of gratitude to God! How affectionate is the blessing, with which the pious speaker interrupts the narrative, imploring God that the multitude of His people may increase a thousand fold! How admirably does he take occasion, from mentioning the judges, to inculcate the eternal principles of justice and piety, which should control their decisions! How remote is all this from art, forgery, and imposture! Surely here, if any where, we can trace the dictates of nature, truth, and piety. Dr. Graves.

12. — your cumbrance, and your burden, and your strife?] How is it possible for one man alone to undergo the labour of hearing all the complaints of such a multitude; and of remedying all their grievances; and of determining all their controversies? Bp. Patrick.

17. — for the judgment is God's:] You are God's ministers, and act by His authority, and therefore may be confident that He will defend you in the discharge of your office. Dr. Wells.

26. Notwithstanding ye would not go up,] Moses, in his recapitulation of his conduct on this occasion, omits altogether the menace of God to disinherit the Jews, and raise up a nation from himself in their stead, Numb. xiv. 12: and takes no notice of his own successful intercession, on which God had deigned to wave the execution of this awful menace, ver. 19, 20. This omission is extremely natural. To dwell on a fact so disgraceful to the people, whom he addressed, and so honourable to himself, would have served rather to wound the feelings, and kindle the jealousy of his hearers, than to awaken them to piety and repentance, and would not have suited the character of him, who was the meekest of men; though, in recording the dispensations of Providence for the cool reflection of his countrymen, it was a lesson too important to be left out. Dr. Graves.

27. — to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites.] Nothing can be more pernicious, as Grotius here observes, than a persuasion that God doth not love us, but hath a design upon us, to destroy us. Bp. Patrick.

28. — the cities are great and walled up to heaven;] If the people of these countries anciently raised up the walls of their cities so high, as not to be liable to be scaled, they thought them

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^a Numb.
13. 29.

and moreover we have seen the sons of the ^a Anakims there.

29 Then I said unto you, Dread not, neither be afraid of them.

30 The LORD your God which goeth before you, he shall fight for you, according to all that he did for you in Egypt before your eyes;

31 And in the wilderness, where thou hast seen how that the LORD thy God bare thee, as a man doth bear his son, in all the way that ye went, until ye came into this place.

32 Yet in this thing ye did not believe the LORD your God,

^b Exod. 13.
21.

33 ^b Who went in the way before you, to search you out a place to pitch your tents in, in fire by night, to shew you by what way ye should go, and in a cloud by day.

34 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, and was wroth, and sware, saying,

^c Numb.
14. 29.

35 ^c Surely there shall not one of these men of this evil generation see that good land, which I swear to give unto your fathers, safe. The same simple contrivance is to this day sufficient to guard places from the Arabs, who live in the very wilderness, in which Israel was now wandering, and who are a nation more inured to warlike enterprises than the Israelites were. The expression "up to heaven" is a strong Eastern way of speaking. Harmer.

36 Save Caleb the son of Jephunneh;

29. — Dread not,] Moses here notices two very powerful arguments, which he had used to deliver the Israelites from fear: 1. A promise of Divine assistance; "The Lord your God, which goeth before you, He shall fight for you:" 2. The experience of God's mercies towards them in Egypt, and in the wilderness; where God had borne them as a tender father carries an infirm child. Compare Is. xlix. 22, with Exod. xix. 4. Bp. Kidder. The long experience they had had of God's watchful and indulgent care over them should have made them confident of His gracious Providence for the future. He does not mention these arguments in the book of Numbers, where we read only of his falling down before God, that he might awaken this generation to a greater confidence in God, and a dread of His judgment. Bp. Patrick.

34. — the Lord — was wroth,] The Scriptures ascribe to God hands, eyes, and feet, not that He has literally any of these members; but because He has a power of executing all those acts, to which these members in us are made subservient. In the same manner, the Scriptures represent Him as affected with the like passions, which we feel in ourselves, when we are angry or pleased, when we have our hearts softened, or provoked to revenge. Not that any of these passions belong to the Divine nature: but the meaning is, that God will as certainly punish the wicked, as if He were prompted by the passion of anger or revenge; and as infallibly relieve or reward the good, as we do those, for whom we entertain compassion or affection. So that it is only by way of analogy or comparison, that the nature and passions of men are ascribed to God; and out of a gracious condescension to our faculties: for which therefore we should be grateful, and be cautious to interpret His words in a sense suitable to His Divine Majesty. Stackhouse.

he shall see it, and to him will I give the land that he hath trodden upon, and to his children, because he hath [†] wholly followed the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

[†] Heb. fulfilled to go after.

37 ^k Also the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, saying, 'Thou also shalt not go in thither.

^k Numb.
20. 12. &
27. 14.
^l Chap. 3. 26.
& 4. 21. &
34. 4.

38 But Joshua the son of Nun, which standeth before thee, he shall go in thither: encourage him: for he shall cause Israel to inherit it.

39 Moreover your little ones, which ye said should be a prey, and your children, which in that day had no knowledge between good and evil, they shall go in thither, and unto them will I give it, and they shall possess it.

40 But as for you, turn you, and take your journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea.

41 Then ye answered and said unto me, ^m We have sinned against the LORD, we will go up and fight, according to all that the LORD our God commanded us. And when ye had girded on every man his weapons of war, ye were ready to go up into the hill.

^m Numb.
14. 40.

— and swear,] An oath is a solemn asseveration, made as strong and binding as possible, in order to beget faith and confidence in others, as to the certainty of what is affirmed. When men swear, nothing can make their asseveration so strong and binding, as the invocation of God, to be their witness or avenger. In like manner, when God Himself is said to swear, we are to suppose that He enforces His asseveration, to beget the firmest belief in His revelations, not by invoking a superior, for that is not in His power, but by condescending to make use of human forms of swearing, with such alterations as the case requires. Thus, when God swears by Himself, Gen. xxii. 16; or by His great name, Jer. xlv. 26; or by His life, Jer. li. 14; or by His right hand, Is. lxii. 8; or by His holiness, Amos iv. 2; or by His truth, Ps. lxxxix. 49; or by His excellency, Amos viii. 7; or by any other of His attributes or perfections: the meaning of these expressions is, that He thereby declares the thing to be as certain, and as surely to be relied on, as are His own being and attributes. This is the whole purport of the thing; and God is therefore said to make use of this manner of speaking, because it is more awful and solemn, and consequently fit to make a deeper impression and to produce a firmer confidence in the hearers. Dr. Waterland, Stackhouse.

37. — the Lord was angry with me for your sakes,] When Moses was so provoked by their fresh discontents and mutinous upbraidings of him, that "he spake unadvisedly with his lips," Ps. cvi. 32, 33. This was an high aggravation of their guilt, that they not only ruined themselves, but brought great displeasure upon their worthy leader and governor, whom they wearied with their tumults and rebellions. Bp. Patrick.

38. But Joshua — shall go in thither: &c.] The introduction of this his own rejection, and the substitution of Joshua, as the person destined by God to lead the Jews to conquer the promised land, was here peculiarly natural and useful: lest the people, recollecting their former defeat, in attempting to invade that land, when Moses did not accompany them, should dread a similar defeat now, when they were to be entirely deprived of him. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

42 And the LORD said unto me, Say unto them, Go not up, neither fight; for I am not among you; lest ye be smitten before your enemies.

43 So I spake unto you; and ye would not hear, but rebelled against the commandment of the LORD, and † went presumptuously up into the hill.

† Heb.
ye were presumptuous, and went up.

44 And the Amorites, which dwelt in that mountain, came out against you, and chased you, as bees do, and destroyed you in Seir, even unto Hormah.

45 And ye returned and wept before the LORD; but the LORD would not hearken to your voice, nor give ear unto you.

46 So ye abode in Kadesh many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.

CHAP. II.

1 The story is continued, that they were not to meddle with the Edomites, 9 nor with the Moabites, 17 nor with the Ammonites, 24 but Sihon the Amorite was subdued by them.

THEN we turned, and took our journey into the wilderness by the way of the Red sea, as the LORD spake unto me: and we compassed mount Seir many days.

2 And the LORD spake unto me, saying,

3 Ye have compassed this mountain long enough: turn you northward.

4 And command thou the people, saying, Ye are to pass through the coast of your brethren the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir; and they shall be afraid of you: take ye good heed unto yourselves therefore:

5 Meddle not with them; for I will not give you of their land, † no, not so much

† Heb.
even to the treading of the sole of the foot.

as a foot breadth; ^a because I have given mount Seir unto Esau for a possession.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

6 Ye shall buy meat of them for money, ^a Gen. 36. 8. that ye may eat; and ye shall also buy water of them for money, that ye may drink.

7 For the LORD thy God hath blessed thee in all the works of thy hand: he knoweth thy walking through this great wilderness: these forty years the LORD thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing.

8 And when we passed by from our brethren the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, through the way of the plain from Elath, and from Ezion-gaber, we turned and passed by the way of the wilderness of Moab.

9 And the LORD said unto me, || Distress || Or, Use no hostility against Moab. not the Moabites, neither contend with them in battle: for I will not give thee of their land for a possession; because I have given Ar unto the children of Lot for a possession.

10 The Emims dwelt therein in times past, a people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims;

11 Which also were accounted giants, as the Anakims; but the Moabites call them Emims.

12 ^b The Horims also dwelt in Seir beforetime; but the children of Esau † succeeded them, when they had destroyed them from before them, and dwelt in their ||stead; as Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the LORD gave unto them.

^b Gen. 36. 20.
† Heb. inherited them.

13 Now rise up, said I, and get you over ^c the || brook Zered. And we went over the brook Zered.

|| Or,
room.

^c Numb. 21. 12.
|| Or,
valley.

46. — many days, according unto the days that ye abode there.] The most natural sense of these words is that of our learned Bishop Patrick; namely, "that they stayed at Kadesh a good while, and much about the same space of time after the mutiny that they had done before it." Pyle.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — we compassed mount Seir many days.] We spent near thirty-eight years in the encampments we made in the wilderness, which lies round the west and south borders of the country of Edom. Dr. Wells. "Mount Seir" is put for the rest of the country of the Edomites, of which that mount was a remarkable place. We find that Ezion-gaber, ver. 8, which was on the shore of the Red sea, was in the land of Edom, 1 Kings ix. 26. Bp. Kidder.

4. — Ye are to pass through the coast] Or rather, near or by the coast, as the Hebrew particle may be rendered. They were not to "meddle with" the Edomites: not because the Edomites were too formidable an enemy; for it is said, "they shall be afraid of you:" but because God had bestowed that land upon Esau, Josh. xxiv. 4, and would not give to the Israelites thereof, "no, not so much as a foot breadth:" or, as it is in the Hebrew, "even to the treading of the sole of the foot." Bp. Kidder.

7. — he knoweth thy walking] He hath directed and prospered thee in thy travels through a dangerous wilderness. See this signification of the word "knoweth" in Ps. i. 6; xxxi. 7. Bp. Patrick.

9. — Ar] This was the principal city of the Moabites, Numb. xxi. 15, 28. It is here put for the country of the Moabites, as mount Seir in the first verse for that of the Edomites. Bp. Kidder.

— unto the children of Lot] Though the Moabites were now a wicked people, yet, for the sake of their pious ancestor, God would not suffer them to be dispossessed. Bp. Patrick.

12. — as Israel did unto the land of his possession.] Moses here alludes to what the Israelites had already done, in dispossessing Sihon and Og of their respective countries: which he had before given by God's direction to the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, Numb. xxxii. 33; xxxiv. 14, 15. Bp. Patrick. All these conquests of the Moabites over the Emims, and of the Edomites over the Horims, and of the Israelites themselves over the two kingdoms of the Amorites and of Bashan, are probably here noticed by Moses, to encourage the Israelites not to doubt, but God would in like manner enable them to conquer the Canaanites. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

14 And the space in which we came from Kadesh-barnea, until we were come over the brook Zered, ~~was~~ thirty and eight years; until all the generation of the men of war were wasted out from among the host, as the LORD sware unto them.

15 For indeed the hand of the LORD was against them, to destroy them from among the host, until they were consumed.

16 ¶ So it came to pass, when all the men of war were consumed and dead from among the people,

17 That the LORD spake unto me, saying,

18 Thou art to pass over through Ar, the coast of Moab, this day :

19 And when thou comest nigh over against the children of Ammon, distress them not, nor meddle with them : for I will not give thee of the land of the children of Ammon any possession ; because I have given it unto the children of Lot for a possession.

20 (That also was accounted a land of giants : giants dwelt therein in old time ; and the Ammonites call them Zamzumims ;

21 A people great, and many, and tall, as the Anakims ; but the LORD destroyed them before them ; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead :

22 As he did to the children of Esau, which dwelt in Seir, when he destroyed the Horims from before them ; and they succeeded them, and dwelt in their stead even unto this day :

23 And the Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto Azzah, the Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead.)

24 ¶ Rise ye up, take your journey, and pass over the river Arnon : behold, I have given into thine hand Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land : † begin to possess it, and contend with him in battle.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb. begin, possess.

25 This day will I begin to put the dread of thee and the fear of thee upon the nations that are under the whole heaven, who shall hear report of thee, and shall tremble, and be in anguish because of thee.

26 ¶ And I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth unto Sihon king of Heshbon with words of peace, saying, 27 ^a Let me pass through thy land : I will go along by the high way, I will neither turn unto the right hand nor to the left.

^a Numb.
21. 21, 22.

28 Thou shalt sell me meat for money, that I may eat ; and give me water for money, that I may drink : only I will pass through on my feet ;

29 (As the children of Esau which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, did unto me ;) until I shall pass over Jordan into the land which the LORD our God giveth us.

30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us pass by him : for the LORD thy God hardened his spirit, and made his heart obstinate, that he might deliver him into thy hand, as appeareth this day.

31 And the LORD said unto me, Behold, I have begun to give Sihon and his land before thee : begin to possess, that thou mayest inherit his land.

32 ^e Then Sihon came out against us, he and all his people, to fight at Jahaz.

^e Numb.
21. 23.

33 And the LORD our God delivered him before us ; and we smote him, and his sons, and all his people.

34 And we took all his cities at that

26. — I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Kedemoth] So called from a city of that name, mentioned among the cities given to the Reubenites, Josh. xiii. 18. Several weighty reasons may be assigned, why Moses took this course with Sihon, who was to be destroyed. 1. That the Israelites might be sensible, that their victory over Sihon was not owing to his fearfulness and want of courage, since he was so hardy as to refuse them a passage. 2. To strike terror by this example into the other nations which should be inclined to resist. 3. To give the Israelites a proof, that God's counsel should stand, in that Sihon hardened himself, and refused the offer of peace. Bp. Kidder.

29. (As the children of Esau &c. — did unto me ;)] He does not mean that they granted Israel a passage through their country : but that they did not refuse to sell them meat and drink, as they passed by their coasts. Bp. Patrick.

30. — the Lord thy God hardened his spirit,] The Lord thy God gave him up to his own thoughts ; and he put on stubborn resolutions against Israel. Bp. Hall.

When this haughty and obstinate prince denied the Israelites the courtesy of passing through his land, God, in punishment for the irreclaimable vices of his court and kingdom, left him to take the effects of his pride and passion. Pyle. God gave him over to his own inflexible humour, which was set upon violent courses ; from which God did not divert him ; but rather ordered things so, that his mind should be enraged and disturbed, and so unable to consider things prudently, and discern what belonged to his peace. This is the utmost that can be meant by "hardening his spirit, and making his heart obstinate : " which, as it is a sin, cannot be ascribed to God : but, as it is a punishment, might justly be inflicted by Him upon Sihon in return for his former sins. Bp. Patrick.

31. — before thee :] Into thy power.

32. Then Sihon came out against us,] Moses had sent ambassadors to the king of the Amorites with a peaceable request, that the Israelites might be permitted to pass through his land : and it does not appear, that they ever thought of forcing their way. But since, instead of acting on the defensive, which was all that in reason he should have done, Sihon placed himself at the head of 1451.

Before
CHRIST

† Heb. every city of men, and women, and little ones.

time, and utterly destroyed † the men, and the women, and the little ones, of every city, we left none to remain :

35 Only the cattle we took for a prey unto ourselves, and the spoil of the cities which we took.

36 From Aroer, which is by the brink of the river of Arnon, and from the city that is by the river, even unto Gilead, there was not one city too strong for us : the LORD our God delivered all unto us :

37 Only unto the land of the children of Ammon thou camest not, nor unto any place of the river Jabbok, nor unto the cities in the mountains, nor unto whatsoever the LORD our God forbade us.

CHAP. III.

1 The story of the conquest of Og king of Bashan. 11 The bigness of his bed. 12 The distribution of those lands to the two tribes and half. 23 Moses' prayer to enter into the land. 26 He is permitted to see it.

THEN we turned, and went up the way to Bashan : and ^aOg the king of Bashan came out against us, he and all his people, to battle at Edrei.

2 And the LORD said unto me, Fear him not : for I will deliver him, and all his people, and his land, into thy hand ; and thou shalt do unto him as thou didst unto ^bSihon king of the Amorites, which dwelt at Heshbon.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^c Numb.
21. 33.

3 So the LORD our God delivered into our hands ^cOg also, the king of Bashan, and all his people : and we smote him until none was left to him remaining.

4 And we took all his cities at that time, there was not a city which we took not from them, threescore cities, all the region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

5 All these cities were fenced with high walls, gates, and bars ; beside unwalled towns a great many.

6 And we utterly destroyed them, as we did unto Sihon king of Heshbon, utterly destroying the men, women, and children, of every city.

7 But all the cattle, and the spoil of the cities, we took for a prey to ourselves.

8 And we took at that time out of the hand of the two kings of the Amorites the land that was on this side Jordan, from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon ;

9 (Which Hermon the Sidonians call Sirion ; and the Amorites call it She-nir ;)

10 All the cities of the plain, and all Gilead, and all Bashan, unto Salchah and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

11 For only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants ; behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron ; is it not

^a Numb.
21. 33, &c.
chap. 29. 7.

^b Numb.
21. 24.

his forces, and marched out to fight ; the war, even upon the common principles of equity, must be deemed unjust on his side, and his fate no more than he deserved. Stackhouse.

34. — utterly destroyed the men, &c.] They being part of those wicked people the Amorites, whom God had condemned to utter destruction. For the Amorites came out of Canaan, and took this country from the Moabites, and the children of Ammon. Bp. Patrick.

In reading the Old Testament account of the Jewish wars and the conquests in Canaan, and the terrible destruction brought upon the inhabitants thereof, we are constantly to bear in mind, that we are reading the execution of a dreadful, but just, sentence, pronounced by God against the intolerable and incorrigible crimes of these nations :—that they were intended to be made an example to the whole world of God's avenging wrath against sins of such a magnitude and such a kind ; sins, which, if they had been suffered to continue, might have polluted the whole ancient world, and which could only be checked by the signal and public overthrow of nations notoriously addicted to them, and so addicted, as to have incorporated them even into their religious and their public institutions :—that the miseries, inflicted upon the nations by the invasion of the Jews, were expressly declared to be inflicted on account of their abominable sins :—that God had borne with them long :—that He did not proceed to execute His judgments till their wickedness was full :—that the Israelites were mere instruments in the hands of a righteous Providence for effecting the extermination of a people, whom it was necessary to make a public example to the rest of mankind :—that this extermination, which might have been accomplished by a pestilence, by fire, by earthquakes, was appointed to be done by the hands of the Israelites, as being the clearest and most intelligible method of displaying the power and righteousness of the God of Israel ; His power over the pretended gods of other nations, and His righteous hatred of the crimes into which they were fallen.

VOL. I.

This is the true statement of the case. It is no forced or invented construction, but the idea of the transaction set forth in Scripture : and it is an idea, which, if retained in our thoughts, may fairly, I think, reconcile us to every thing which we read in the Old Testament concerning it. Archdeacon Paley. See the note on chap. vii. 24.

Chap. III. ver. 4. — all the region of Argob.] A small province, lying between Jordan and the mountains of Gilead ; a little above the sea of Tiberias. This region was afterwards called Trachonitis, a Greek name, importing the ruggedness of the mountains. Bp. Patrick.

8. — from the river of Arnon unto mount Hermon ;] This river was the bound of their country on the south ; and Hermon, which was one of the mountains of Gilead, where it joins to Libanus, was their bound on the north. Hermon, said in the next verse to be called "Sirion" by the Sidonians, is called so in Ps. xxix. 6, and joined with Lebanon : for it was as much a part of Lebanon as of Gilead ; these two mountains there meeting together. Whence Jeremiah calls Gilead the head of Lebanon, chap. xxii. 6 ; because Lebanon begins where Gilead ends. Bp. Patrick.

11. — a bedstead of iron ;] That it might be strong enough to support his gigantick and weighty body ; and yet not be too cumbersome, as it might have been if made of other materials. Dr. Wells. Such bedsteads were not unusual in ancient days, though much later than this. Thucydides says, that when the Thebans took Plataea, they made beds of the brass and iron they 1451.

X x

Before
CHRIST

in Rabbath of the children of Ammon? nine cubits ~~was~~ the length thereof, and four cubits the breadth of it, after the cubit of a man.

* Numb.
32. 33.
Josh. 13. 8,
&c.

12 And this land, ~~which~~ we possessed at that time, from Aroer, ~~which is~~ by the river Arnon, and half mount Gilead, and ^athe cities thereof, gave I unto the Reubenites and to the Gadites.

13 And the rest of Gilead, and all Bashan, ~~being~~ the kingdom of Og, gave I unto the half tribe of Manassah; all the region of Argob, with all Bashan, which was called the land of giants.

* Numb.
22. 41.

14 Jair the son of Manassah took all the country of Argob unto the coasts of Geshuri and Maachathi; and called them after his own name, Bashan-^ehavoth-jair, unto this day.

15 And I gave Gilead unto Machir.

16 And unto the Reubenites and unto the Gadites I gave from Gilead even unto the river Arnon half the valley, and the border even unto the river Jabbok, ~~which is~~ the border of the children of Ammon;

|| Or, under the springs of Pisgah, or,
the hill.

17 The plain also, and Jordan, and the coast ~~thereof~~, from Chinnereth even unto the sea of the plain, ~~even~~ the salt sea, || under Ashdoth-pisgah eastward.

18 ¶ And I commanded you at that time, saying, The Lord your God hath given you this land to possess it: ^fye shall pass over armed before your brethren the children of Israel, all ~~that are~~ [†]meet for the war.

19 But your wives, and your little ones, and your cattle, (~~for~~ I know that ye have much cattle,) shall abide in your cities which I have given you;

20 Until the Lord have given rest unto your brethren, as well as unto you, and ~~until~~ they also possess the land which the Lord your God hath given them beyond Jordan: and ~~then~~ shall ye ^greturn every man unto his possession, which I have given you.

21 ¶ And ^hI commanded Joshua at that time, saying, Thine eyes have seen all that the Lord your God hath done unto these two kings: so shall the Lord do unto all the kingdoms whither thou passest.

22 Ye shall not fear them: for the Lord your God he shall fight for you.

23 And I besought the Lord at that time, saying,

24 O Lord God, thou hast begun to shew thy servant thy greatness, and thy mighty hand: ⁱfor what God ~~is~~ ^{there} in heaven or in earth, that can do according to thy works, and according to thy might?

Before
CHRIST
1451.

* Numb.
32. 20.
† Heb.
30713 of 100000.

* Josh. 22.
4.

* Numb.
27. 18.

found there. And beds of silver and gold are mentioned by other authors. Bp. Patrick.

Bedsteads of iron, brass, and other metals, are not unusual in the warm countries, as a defence against the multitude of insects. Scheuchzer.

— is it not in Rabbath &c.] It is probable, that either Og conveyed his iron bedstead, with other furniture of his palace, into the country of the Ammonites, to prevent their falling into the hands of the Israelites: or else the Ammonites had taken it from him in some former conquest, and kept it as a monument of their victory. Pyle.

— nine cubits was the length thereof, &c.] Bedsteads being, according to the common custom, made a third part longer than the persons that lie in them, Og was perhaps about six cubits high; “after the cubit of a man,” that is, according to the cubit of ordinary men, which is a little more than half a yard. Bp. Patrick.

Some allowance may be made for the size of a royal bed: or king Og may have been possessed with the same kind of vanity, which occupied the mind of king Alexander, when he ordered his soldiers to enlarge the size of their beds, that they might give to the Indians in succeeding ages a great idea of the prodigious stature of a Macedonian. Bp. Watson.

The people of the East are extremely fond of corporeal greatness; and always consider it as a sign of the greatness of the soul, of courage, strength, and virtue. We found in Bactriana mummies of eight feet: but it is most likely, that the people bound up their dead at the greatest length, that posterity, discovering their bodies, might conceive a very high opinion of their persons and actions. Sir J. Chardin.

The people of the East use a kind of settle, called a duan, or diuan, or sofa; consisting of boards raised from the ground, about five feet broad, and one and a half high, reaching sometimes quite round the room, sometimes only along a part of it: it is covered with a carpet, and furnished with mattresses, to sit upon cross-legged after the Turkish fashion, and with cushions placed against the wall to lean upon. They serve for beds at night. This custom may serve to illustrate the dimensions of “the bedstead” of Og, which appears to have been about fifteen feet and a half long, and six feet ten inches broad. English ideas have measured this by English bedsteads. But when we reflect, that neither the divan nor its covering is so nearly fitted to the size of the person as our bedsteads in England are, we may make, in the necessary dimensions of his “bedstead,” no inconsiderable allowance for the repose of this martial prince. Fragments to Calmet.

— after the cubit of a man.] The first stated measure was that mentioned in this place, “the cubit of a man;” measuring from the centre of the round bone in the elbow to the point of the middle finger. This is still the measure of all unpolished nations: but no medium or term, expressive of its exact contents having been applied, writers have differed as to the precise length of this cubit. Bruce.

16. — half the valley,] The same Hebrew word signifies both a valley, and a brook, or river: and being translated in the foregoing words “the river,” it should be so here likewise, “half the river:” that is, to the middle of the river Arnon, which was the exact boundary of their country. In Josh. xii. 2, we have the same Hebrew words, which are there rendered, “from the middle of the river:” where the city Aroer stood, encompassed by the river. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

24. — what God is there in heaven &c.] Moses here speaks according to the language of the times, when men worshipped many gods, of several sorts: none of which, he acknowledges, were able to bring to pass such things as the Lord had done. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1451. 25 I pray thee, let me go over, and see the good land that is beyond Jordan, that goodly mountain, and Lebanon.

1 Numb. 20. 12. chap. 1. 37. 26 But the LORDⁱ was wroth with me for your sakes, and would not hear me: and the LORD said unto me, Let it suffice thee; speak no more unto me of this matter.

|| Or, the hill. 27 Get thee up into the top of || Pisgah, and lift up thine eyes westward, and northward, and southward, and eastward, and behold it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

28 But charge Joshua, and encourage him, and strengthen him: for he shall go over before this people, and he shall cause them to inherit the land which thou shalt see.

29 So we abode in the valley over against Beth-peor.

CHAP. IV.

¹ An exhortation to obedience. 41 Moses appointeth the three cities of refuge on that side Jordan.

25. — I pray thee, let me go over, &c.] It is not unreasonable to suppose, that Moses should think the threatening of God reversible: and it must have been very desirable to him to see that land, which had been so long promised, so much expected, and so much vilified by them, who had been sent from Kadesh-barnea to search the land. But besides this it may be said, that he had a desire to see especially that place, where God would choose to dwell, which the Jews affirm is meant by the "goodly mountain;" as well as the remoter parts of the promised land, in which was Lebanon. Bp. Kidder. By the "goodly mountain" he most probably means, that goodly country, full of noble mountains: for thus the word "mountain" is often used, particularly in Numb. xiii. 29, where the spies say, "the Amorites dwell in the mountains;" that is, in that mountainous part of Canaan. Bp. Patrick.

26. But the Lord was wroth with me for your sakes, &c.] As if he had said, Remember, it was the tumultuous and ungovernable behaviour of your fathers, that provoked and drew me into that miscarriage, which deprived me of a pleasure I so much wished to enjoy. Learn you wisdom by their folly; while I cheerfully resign myself to the just and good will of God. Pyle.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. Now therefore hearken, O Israel, &c.] Moses having laid before the Israelites so long a train of Divine dispensations towards their nation, calls here upon the whole assembly, in the most earnest and serious manner, to consider what influence these things ought to have upon their conduct and practice, answerable to the great designs of such mercies and judgments: namely, that they should render them punctually obedient to the laws of God, and cautious of offending Him, either by the addition of any heathenish and superstitious rites to the services enjoined them, or by the wilful omission and neglect of any plain precept of religious worship. This being the very intent, for which they were conducted to the promised land, and the absolute condition of their peaceful and happy enjoyment of it. Pyle.

2. Ye shall not add unto the word &c.] This prohibition preserved these books from any alteration since the time they were written. For the whole body of the people acknowledging their Divine authority, none of them dared to change any thing either by addition or diminution. Of this there is a wonderful instance in the people that came out of Assyria, in the room of the Is-

Before CHRIST 1451. NOW therefore hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land, which the LORD God of your fathers giveth you.

^a Chap. 12. 32. ² Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the LORD your God which I command you. Josh. 1. 7. Prov. 30. 6. Rev. 22. 18.

3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did because of ^b Baal-peor: for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the LORD thy God hath destroyed them from among you. ^b Numb. 25. 4, &c.

4 But ye that did cleave unto the LORD your God are alive every one of you this day.

5 Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the LORD my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it.

6 Keep therefore and do them; for this is raelites, who were transported thither: these people, on coming to inhabit the country of Samaria, having received the Law of Moses, their posterity have kept it all along to this day as uncorrupted as the Jews themselves have done; although they were their mortal enemies, and have been exposed to all the changes and revolutions that can befall a nation, during the long interval of 2400 years. Dr. Allix.

It was fit, at the beginning of this exhortation to obedience, to require, that they should neither add to, nor take from, the Divine precepts, because God had given them His law for their rule of life, and had annexed His promises to their universal obedience to it. Bp. Kidder.

4. But ye that did cleave unto the Lord your God are alive &c.] A singular Providence watched over those, who did not depart from the worship of the Lord, but bewailed the apostasy of some of their brethren, Numb. xxv. 6. Hence they were preserved in such good health, that not one in so many thousands was since dead. Nor in the war with the Midianites, wherein they slew all the males, did they lose so much as one man, Numb. xxxi. 7, 49. Bp. Patrick.

How decidedly does this statement justify the punishment extending to such a multitude: a circumstance to which objections are so often made. Dr. Graves.

5. — I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the Lord my God commanded me, &c.] Laws are generally made, when people have been well settled; and they are founded upon many contingencies, which arise from the nature of the soil, the trade, and produce of the country, and the temper, customs, and disposition of the natives and their neighbours. But the laws of Moses were given in a desert; while the people were in a forlorn state; wandering from place to place; and encountering hunger and thirst without seeing any ultimate end of their roving, Numb. xx. 2. These prescripts were designed for a religious polity, when the people should be at some particular period settled in Canaan; of which settlement human forecast could not see the least probability. For what hopes could a leader entertain of possessing a country, from which he withdrew himself, and persisted in receding, for so many years? And, when at a time an attempt was made to obtain some footing, nothing ensued but repulse and disappointment. Did any lawgiver ever give directions about corn, wine, and oil in a country, that was a stranger to tillage and cultivation; or talk of tithes and firstfruits, where your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

7 For what nation is there so great, who hath God so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is in all things that we call upon him for?

8 And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?

9 Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but teach them thy sons, and thy sons' sons;

10 Specially the day that thou stoodest before the Lord thy God in Horeb, when the Lord said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon there was scarcely a blade of grass? It may be answered, that these ordinances were given with a view to Canaan. True; but Moses himself was not acquainted with Canaan; as is plain from the spies which were sent, and the orders they received, Numb. xiii. 18—20; and if Providence were not his guide, there was little chance of his getting even a sight of it. He was in the midst of a wilderness, and so continued for near forty years. And in this place, and at this season, he gave directions about their towns and cities, and "of the stranger within their gates:" while they were in a state of solitude under tents, and so likely to continue. He mentions their vineyards and olives, before they had an inch of ground, Deut. viii. 8; and gives intimation about their future kings, Deut. xxviii. 36, when they were not constituted as a nation. These good things they did at length enjoy; and in process of time they were under regal government. But how could Moses be apprized of it? Surely, it could only be by inspiration. He must have been under the direction of a higher power, and his mission by Divine authority. Bryant.

6. — this is your wisdom &c.] It is the fruit of great wisdom, to fear God and obey His laws: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do His commandments," Ps. cxi. 10. Besides, many of these laws were such as the wiser heathen could not but approve: and accordingly they did actually receive several of them into their own laws; as was the case with the Athenians and the Romans. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

7. — who hath God so nigh unto them.] God shewed Himself ready to hear the prayers of His servants upon all occasions, Exod. xvii. 11, and to protect and defend them in all straits and dangers, as appeared by the many miracles which He had wrought. Bp. Kidder. To this may be added, that they had a symbol of God's presence continually among them, in the Holy place, where He dwelt with them; and Moses, whenever he pleased, consulted Him in all difficult affairs; as their high priest might do with the Urim and the Thummim in all times to come. Bp. Patrick.

8. — what nation is there so great, &c.] Hence it appears that the true greatness of a nation consists in the sincere worship of God, and in the upright administration of justice. Both of these were so provided for by the Divine laws among the Jews, that no nation could compare with them, or was really so great as they. Bp. Patrick.

the earth, and that they may teach their children.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

11 And ye came near and stood under the mountain; and the mountain burned with fire unto the † midst of heaven, with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness. ^{c Exod. 19. 18.}

12 And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; † only ^{† Heb. heart.} ye heard a voice. ^{† Heb. save a voice.}

13 And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone.

14 ¶ And the Lord commanded me at that time to teach you statutes and judgments, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go over to possess it.

15 Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire:

16 Lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female,

— that hath statutes — so righteous as all this law.] The Jews, who were a nation separated from other people, and perhaps not equal to many of them in polite arts and learning, yet in religious knowledge far surpassed the rest of mankind. This we must ascribe to the discoveries, which God made to them of His will. In the two tables, and in the laws added to them, God gave the Jews just notions of Himself, and a system of morality, which in equity, charity, humanity, and many other respects, surpassed what could have been collected from the laws of other nations. And as good laws naturally tend to make good subjects, and a good religion to make good men, so the lives and behaviour of some worthies recorded in Scripture are witnesses to the excellence of the religion which they had received, and by which they were guided. They were remarkable for piety to God, and for a disinterested love of their country: they preferred their duty to all worldly advantages, and endured with patience cruel persecutions, even to death, for the sake of a good conscience. Dr. Jortin.

14. — that ye might do them in the land &c.] The calling of the Israelites, and their separation from the Gentiles, to be "a holy nation, and a peculiar treasure unto God above all people," took place in the fulness of time, when the apostasy from the pure patriarchal religion was become universal, and polytheism and idolatry had pervaded the most polished nations of the earth, the Assyrians, Babylonians, Phenicians, Canaanites, and Egyptians: and pure and undefiled religion would soon have been exterminated and lost every where, had not the Israelites, themselves a degraded and enslaved people, "been borne on eagles' wings," from the house of bondage in Egypt, and brought by their gracious Redeemer unto Himself, to His holy mountain, in the solitary deserts of Arabia Petrea; where they were at first instructed by the voice of God Himself, pronouncing the ten commandments audibly from the summit of Sinai; and were afterwards trained up to religion and virtue, during forty years of wandering "in the waste howling wilderness;" until Jeshurun, or "righteous Israel," were qualified to enter the land of promise, and replace the devoted nations of Canaan. Dr. Hales.

16. — a graven image.] The idolatry of the heathens in general, and of the Egyptians and Canaanites in particular, consisted not only in worshipping false gods, such as the sun, moon, stars, winds, elements, &c. see ver. 19, which they supposed to

Before
CHRIST
1451.

17 The likeness of any beast that is on the earth, the likeness of any winged fowl that fieth in the air,

18 The likeness of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth:

19 And lest thou lift up thine eyes unto heaven, and when thou seest the sun, and the moon, and the stars, even all the host of heaven, shouldest be driven to worship them, and serve them, which the LORD thy God hath || divided unto all nations under the whole heaven.

|| Or,
imparted.

20 But the LORD hath taken you, and brought you forth out of the iron furnace, even out of Egypt, to be unto him a people of inheritance, as ye are this day.

21 Furthermore the LORD was angry with me for your sakes, and sware that I should not go over Jordan, and that I should not go in unto that good land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

22 But I must die in this land, I must not go over Jordan: but ye shall go over, and possess that good land.

23 Take heed unto yourselves, lest ye forget the covenant of the LORD your God, which he made with you, and make you a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, which the LORD thy God hath forbidden thee.

24 For ^d the LORD thy God is a consuming fire, even a jealous God.

^d Chap. 9. 2.
Hebr. 12.
29.

25 ¶ When thou shalt beget children, and children's children, and ye shall have remained long in the land, and shall corrupt yourselves, and make a graven image, or the likeness of any thing, and shall do evil in the sight of the LORD thy God, to provoke him to anger:

26 I call heaven and earth to witness be animated and actuated by some intelligences residing in them, and exerting their beneficial or noxious powers to the advantage or detriment of mankind; but also in framing certain symbolical or figurative representations of the true God, under the forms of beasts, birds, and fishes, expressive of their peculiar excellencies or powers: as the horns or strength of the bull, the milk or nourishment of the cow, the swiftness and sharp-sightedness of the eagle or hawk, the wisdom or cunning of the serpent, &c. until at length the symbols were forgotten, or perverted by the vulgar into the most grovelling and senseless materialism on the one hand, or bestial idolatry on the other. Dr. Hales.

18. The likeness of any thing that creepeth &c.] Amongst the Egyptians almost every species of vermin was held sacred. They shewed a reverence, as Sir John Marsham observes, not only to cats, and rats, and apes; but to grubs and beetles; to birds, and reptiles, and fishes. Among these were, as Lactantius tells us, gnats and ants. Hence the children of Israel were enjoined by the Mosaic law to hold every thing of this sort in abhorrence. "Therefore," says the lawgiver, "take ye good heed to yourselves, lest ye corrupt yourselves, and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female," ver. 15, 16. And he further tells them, that this interdict did not merely extend to the larger and nobler animals, such as the steer and the cow; to the crocodile of the river, or the stork in the heavens; but to "the likeness of any thing that creepeth on the ground, the likeness of any fish that is in the waters beneath the earth," ver. 18. But notwithstanding these prohibitions, the children of Israel forsook the law of the Lord; and the rites, which they adopted, consisted in this symbolical worship, introduced from Egypt. They had polluted the house of God by painting these vile hieroglyphicks upon the walls of the inner court, the most sacred of all. Hence Ezekiel says, that when he was brought there in vision, he had a full sight of these abominations: "So I went in and saw; and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, portrayed upon the wall round about," chap. viii. 10. In all these accounts we have the idolatry of the Egyptians alluded to; and their worship of flies and insects particularly pointed out. Bryant. See the note on Exod. xx. 4.

— the likeness of any fish] The famous Dagon, which the Philistines worshipped, was a fish with an human face, hands, and feet; the Syrians worshipped a fish, as Cicero tells us: and all Egypt worshipped certain fishes, and some of them the crocodile and the hippopotamus. Bp. Patrick.

19. — and when thou seest the sun, &c.] By the best accounts we have of the earliest ages, the worship of the sun and planets was the first and leading instance of idolatry; being in all probability in use long before the time of Moses himself. Dean Prideaux.

It appears by the testimony of all history, sacred and profane, that the oldest and first idolaters worshipped the creature instead of the Creator, the powers of nature instead of the God of nature. Receiving life, health, food, and many other blessings by means of the sun, the light, and the air, they forgot God who made those elements, and "deemed them to be the gods that governed the world," Wisd. xiii. 2, supposing them to be endued with understanding and wisdom, as well as power and might. Bp. Horne.

20. But the Lord hath taken you, &c.] This verse contains two powerful arguments to obedience: 1. God's great mercy in delivering them from the bondage and miseries of Egypt, which is here expressed by the "iron furnace," or furnace where iron is melted, Exod. xx. 2. 2dly, His taking them for His peculiar people, Exod. xix. 5. Both of these arguments God made use of, when He gave them His law. Bp. Kidder. It was the design of these blessings to make the Israelites a separate and peculiar church and people, by the worship of the one true, infinite, and invisible God, free from all the ignorant and corrupt usages of idolatrous nations. This design the Israelites would frustrate, by falling into any kind of image-worship. Pyle.

— out of the iron furnace,] That is, out of Egyptian thralldom. Abraham saw in a vision the bondage of his posterity under the emblem of "a smoking furnace, and a burning lamp," Gen. xv. 17; and the fiery furnace is frequently used in Scripture as a type of the Israelites' slavery, and of all the cruelty which they experienced in Egypt, 1 Kings viii. 51; Is. xlvi. 10. Bryant. The phrase is used to express the most cruel servitude, wherein God suffered them to be tried, as metals are in a furnace of iron red-hot. Bp. Patrick.

21. — the Lord was angry with me] Moses calls this to their recollection again, though he had mentioned it twice before, chap. i. 37; iii. 26; that they might be the more sensible of the danger of offending God, since such a man as he was excluded from the good land for one single fault. Bp. Patrick.

26. I call heaven and earth to witness against you &c.] That is, As sure as there is a heaven above, or the earth under your feet, so surely will the vengeance of God keep pace with your impiety. Pyle. This vehement attestation is used in the Scriptures, to upbraid men for their stupidity, and to awaken them to greater attention, Deut. xxxii. 1; Is. i. 2. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

against you this day, that ye shall soon utterly perish from off the land whereunto ye go over Jordan to possess it; ye shall not prolong your days upon it, but shall utterly be destroyed.

27 And the Lord shall scatter you among the nations, and ye shall be left few in number among the heathen, whither the Lord shall lead you.

28 And there ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, which neither see, nor hear, nor eat, nor smell.

29 But if from thence thou shalt seek the Lord thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul.

Men have found thee.

30 When thou art in tribulation, and all these things † are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if thou turn to the Lord thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice;

31 (For the Lord thy God is a merciful God;) he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers which he swore unto them.

32 For ask now of the days that are past, which were before thee, since the day that God created man upon the earth, and ask from the one side of heaven unto the other, whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, or hath been heard like it?

32. — whether there hath been any such thing as this great thing is, &c.] If Moses has recorded nothing but real facts, (and the truth of what he has recorded no considerate person can dispute,) it must be undeniably evident, that the hand of God was most miraculously employed in leading the Israelites out of Egypt, in giving them their law, in conducting them through the wilderness, and in bringing them into Canaan. If the miracles were wrought in the land of Egypt, and the judgments executed upon Pharaoh and his people, as Moses has related, Exod. vii—xii; if the Red sea was really divided before the Israelites, and Pharaoh and his host drowned in it, as Moses has recorded, Exod. xiv; if a miraculous supply of food was given daily to the Israelites in the wilderness for forty years together, chap. xvi; if God did indeed speak to them in an audible voice from heaven, chap. xix, xx; if their laws were given, as Moses informs us; if their tabernacle was directed, and, when finished, if a cloud covered the tent, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle, and rested upon it in a cloud by day, and in fire by night, Exod. xxxv—xl; if this cloud removed visibly to conduct their journeyings; if the many oppositions of the people were miraculously punished in the several manners related to us, Numb. xi, xii, xiv, xvi, xxi, xxv, &c. and the miracles, that are recorded, were wrought to testify the Divine appointment of the institutions enjoined, when the people would have varied from them, Levit. x; Numb. xvi, xvii, &c; if a Prophet, even of another nation, corrupt in the inclination of his heart, and tempted by great offers to speak evil of this people, was by very astonishing miracles prevented from declaring any thing about them, diverse from what Moses had represented to be the purpose of God towards them; if all these, and other things of a like nature, were really and truly done, as Moses hath related,

33 Did ever people hear the voice of God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as thou hast heard, and live? Before
CHRIST
1451.

34 Or hath God assayed to go and take him a nation from the midst of another nation, by temptations, by signs, and by wonders, and by war, and by a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm, and by great terrors, according to all that the Lord your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes?

35 Unto thee it was shewed, that thou mightest know that the Lord he is God; there is none else beside him.

36 Out of heaven he made thee to hear his voice, that he might instruct thee: and upon earth he shewed thee his great fire; and thou heardest his words out of the midst of the fire.

37 And because he loved thy fathers, therefore he chose their seed after them, and brought thee out in his sight with his mighty power out of Egypt;

38 To drive out nations from before thee greater and mightier than thou art, to bring thee in, to give thee their land for an inheritance, as it is this day.

39 Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else.

40 Thou shalt keep therefore his statutes, and his commandments, which I well might he "call heaven and earth to witness" for him, Deut. xxx. 19; well might he observe, that "no such things had ever been done for any nation:" and we who read them, cannot but conclude from them, that the power of God did indeed miraculously interest itself in appointing the law and polity of this people, and in conducting them to their settlement in the promised land. Shuckford.

34. — by temptations,] Or trials. For the miracles, which God wrought in Egypt, were trials both to the Egyptians and the Israelites, whether they would obey God and trust in Him, or not. Bp. Kidder.

By "tempting" any one, is sometimes meant only trying him; putting his sincerity, his obedience, his faith, or any of his other virtues to the test. In this sense God "tempted" Abraham, when He commanded him to offer up his son, Gen. xxii. 1. In this sense He may be said to have "tempted" the Israelites in the wilderness; on purpose, as Moses expressly tells us, to "prove them, to know what was in their hearts, whether they would keep His commandments or no." And in the same manner He every day suffers good men to fall into what are very properly called trying circumstances, for the exercise and improvement of their virtue. To "tempt" men in this way is evidently no impeachment either of God's holiness, mercy, or justice. For He does it with the best and most gracious intentions, in order to call out into action the latent great qualities of an honest and good heart, to hold them up to the observation and applause of mankind, and to reward them in proportion to the severity with which He tried them. Bp. Porteus.

40. Thou shalt keep therefore his statutes, &c.] That is, thou shalt worship and obey Him, as the only way to make thee and command thee this day, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days upon the earth, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, for ever.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

41 ¶ Then Moses severed three cities on this side Jordan toward the sun rising ;

42 That the slayer might flee thither, which should kill his neighbour unawares, and hated him not in times past ; and that fleeing unto one of these cities he might live :

^e Josh. 20.
8.

43 Namely, ^e Bezer in the wilderness, in the plain country, of the Reubenites ; and Ramoth in Gilead, of the Gadites ; and Golan in Bashan, of the Manassites.

44 ¶ And this is the law which Moses set before the children of Israel :

45 These are the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which Moses spake unto the children of Israel, after they came forth out of Egypt,

46 On this side Jordan, in the valley over against Beth-peor, in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt at Heshbon, whom Moses and the children of Israel ^f smote, after they were come forth out of Egypt :

^f Numb.
21. 24.
chap. 1. 4.

47 And they possessed his land, and the land^g of Og king of Bashan, two kings of the Amorites, which were on this side Jordan toward the sun rising ;

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^g Numb.
21. 23.
chap. 3. 3.

48 From Aroer, which is by the bank of the river Arnon, even unto mount Sion, which is Hermon, 49 And all the plain on this side Jordan eastward, even unto the sea of the plain, under the ^h springs of Pisgah.

^h Chap. 5.
17.

CHAP. V.

1 The covenant in Horeb. 6 The ten commandments.
22 At the people's request Moses receiveth the law from God.

AND Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgments which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and [†] keep, and do them.

[†] Heb.
keep to do them.

2 ^a The LORD our God made a covenant with us in Horeb.

1491.
^a Exod. 19.
5.

3 The LORD made not this covenant with our fathers, but with us, even us, who are all of us here alive this day.

4 The LORD talked with you face to face in the mount out of the midst of the fire,

5 (I stood between the LORD and you at that time, to shew you the word of the thy posterity live happily in the land, which God is about to give thee. Though Moses in this verse speaks of their long life upon earth, or of their long possession of the promised land, yet the better sort of Jews did not set up their rest here ; but from the word " prolong," here used, they extended their hope as far as to the other world. For thus, Maimonides says, they were taught by tradition to expound these words, " That it may be well with thee," in the world which is all good ; and, " that thou mayest prolong thy days" in the world which is all long ; that is, which never ends. Bp. Patrick.

42. — that fleeing unto one of these cities he might live : Yet he was not thereupon exempt from the pursuit of justice, Numb. xxxv. 12 : an information was lodged against him ; he was summoned before the judges and the people, to prove that the act was really casual, and involuntary ; if found innocent, he dwelt safely in the city, to which he had retired ; if guilty, he was put to death according to the law. At the same time, to inspire the greater horror, even of involuntary bloodshed, the law punished it by a kind of banishment : for the manslayer was obliged to dwell in this city, without going out of it, till the death of the high priest, Numb. xxxv. 25—28. Calmet.

44. And this is the law &c. Moses did not deliver all, that is contained in this book, in one continued speech. After the preface in these four chapters, it is to be supposed that he dismissed the people to consider what he had said ; and then, having assigned the cities of refuge, some time after reassembled them, to put them in mind of the laws, which he so earnestly pressed them to observe. The next chapter contains " the Law," that is, the Ten Commandments, which Moses " set before them ;" and in the several following chapters, after new earnest exhortations to obedience, he represents to them the rest of God's will, comprehended under these three words in the 45th verse, " testimonies, statutes, and judgments : " some of which belong to the Divine service, others to their civil government, and the rest to ceremonial observances, for the better security and preservation of both the former. Bp. Patrick.

48. — mount Sion, Not that, which was so famous in after-times, when David made it the royal seat ; for that was on the other side Jordan : the word is probably a contraction or a faulty reading for Sirion, the name by which the Sidonians called Hermon. See chap. iii. 8, 9. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. V. ver. 3. — not — with our fathers, but with us, Though many, who were present at Sinai, were now dead, many also must have been still living : those only having perished in consequence of God's threats, who were twenty years old and upwards, when they offended Him by their murmurs ; and even of those, condemned to die in the wilderness, many might, like Moses, be suffered to behold the land, which they were not to enter. Moses however may perhaps mean only, that God made not that solemn covenant with their forefathers, the Patriarchs, but with the generation of his contemporaries. Dr. Gray.

5. (I stood between the Lord and you &c.) In the preceding books of the Pentateuch, Moses speaks of himself in the third person : but in this book, in a more animated manner, he drops, as it were, the character of an historian, and is introduced as immediately addressing himself to his countrymen. Hence it is that, in describing what he uttered, he repeats the Decalogue with some slight change of expression from that which was used as its first delivery ; a variation, which, as it affected not the import of the commandment, might have served to indicate, that not the letter, but the spirit, of the law was to be regarded : he likewise introduces some general alterations in the code that he presents, which should be considered as supplementary additions requisite by a change of time and circumstances : and he takes occasion to intimate that spiritual intention of the law, by which it was designed for the inward government of man. See chap. x. 16. Dr. Gray.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^a Exod. 20.
2. &c.
Lev. 26. 1.
Ps. 81. 10.
† Heb. servants.

LORD: for ye were afraid by reason of the fire, and went not up into the mount;) saying,

6 ¶ ^b I am the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of † bondage.

7 Thou shalt have none other gods before me.

8 Thou shalt not make thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters beneath the earth:

For a regular exposition of the several commandments, the reader is referred to the notes on Exodus xx; the following notes contain various miscellaneous observations upon the Decalogue.

7. Thou shalt have none other gods before me.] It is wisely observed by Grotius, that true religion was ever built upon these four principles: 1st, That there is a God, and that He is but One. 2dly, That God is none of those things, which we see with our eyes; but something more sublime than they all. 3dly, That He takes care of human affairs, and judges them most justly. 4thly, That He is the Maker of all things whatsoever. These principles are explained in the first four precepts of the Decalogue. In the first, the Unity of the Godhead is delivered. The second contains the second principle, that God's nature is invisible; for this is the ground of the prohibition against making any image of Him. In the third Commandment we have the third of these principles, that God takes notice of all things, even of our thoughts, and governs all our affairs: for it is the foundation of an oath, that God knows our very hearts, and is witness to our meaning as well as our words; and will, if we swear falsely, punish us for it; which is an acknowledgment also both of the justice and of the power of God. Lastly, in the fourth Commandment, the reason given for the religious observation of the seventh day is, because "in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, &c." So that this Commandment was designed to establish the fourth principle above mentioned, that God is the Maker of all things. To preserve the memory and sense of which, this rest was instituted, to be observed with more than ordinary sanctity. And it was esteemed of such great moment, that the first sabbath-breaker was punished with death. Bp. Patrick.

9. — visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children] There is an apparent harshness in this declaration, with which the minds even of good and pious men have been sometimes sensibly affected. To "visit the sins of the fathers upon the children, even to the third and fourth generation," is not, at first sight at least, so reconcileable to our apprehensions of justice and equity, as that we should expect to find it in a solemn publication of the will of God. But the difficulty and the objection which lies against the words may be removed by considering: 1st, That the denunciation and sentence relate to the sin of idolatry in particular, if not to that alone: 2dly, That they relate to temporal, or more properly speaking, to family prosperity and adversity: 3dly, That they relate to the Jewish economy, in that particular administration of a visible Providence, under which the Jews lived: 4thly, That at no rate do they affect, or were ever meant to affect, the acceptance or salvation of individuals in a future life. Archdeacon Paley.

In Ezekiel we are told, that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die: the son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, &c." If it be asked, how we reconcile these seemingly contradictory assertions? the answer, I think, is plain. Whenever God denounces punishment against any persons for the sins of others, whether it be of their ancestors or contemporaries, we are always to understand by it some temporal punishment, or national calamity; in which the righteous and the wicked are oftentimes equally involved: but when He declares, that every man shall bear his own

9 Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, ^c visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me,

10 ^d And shewing mercy unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments.

11 Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

Before
CHRIST
1451.
^e Exod. 34.
7.

^d Jer. 32.
12.

iniquity, and die for his own sin, I apprehend He refers chiefly to the future and eternal punishment of sin in the next life; wherein none shall suffer for the offences of others, but "God will render to every man according to his deeds," Rom. ii. 6. When therefore we pray in that admirable and complete form of true Christian devotion, the LITANY of our Church, that God will "not remember the offences of our forefathers," we must confine our thoughts to temporal evils and judgments; which we beseech Him not to send upon us, for their sins any more than for our own. Waldo.

— the iniquity] The single subject, to which the prohibition of both the first and second Commandments relates, is false worship, or the worship of false gods; this is the single class of sins which is guarded against. Although therefore the expression here be, "the sins" or "the iniquities of the fathers," without specifying in that clause what sins, yet in fair construction, and indeed in common construction, we may well suppose it to be that kind and class of sins, for the restraint of which the command was given, and against which its force was directed. The punishment threatened by any law must naturally be applied to the offence particularly forbidden by that law, and not to offences in general. Archdeacon Paley. The sin of idolatry here meant was the greatest national crime that could be committed: it was high treason against the Supreme Majesty of the state, during the theocracy, or whilst the people continued under the more immediate government of God: the offenders therefore, and even the enticers to idolatry, whether cities or individuals, by the municipal law, were to be utterly destroyed or stoned to death; or any one that sacrificed to a strange god. And in cases of high treason do not human lawgivers visit the children or families of the delinquents with confiscation of property, and legal disabilities, that parents may be deterred from disturbing the publick peace, and be more strongly attached to the existing government, from regard to their offspring? Cicero commends the policy of such penalties. Dr. Hales.

10. And shewing mercy unto thousands &c.] What a happiness it is to be born of good parents! Hence God claims an interest in us, and we in Him, for their sake. As many a man smarteth for his father's sin, so the goodness of others is crowned in a thousand generations. Bp. Hall. See the note on ch. vii. 9.

11. Thou shalt not take the name &c.] An habitual reverence for the Supreme Being would banish from among us that prevailing impiety of using His name on the most trivial occasions. The following passage occurs in an excellent sermon, preached at the funeral of a gentleman, (the Hon. Robert Boyle) who was an honour to his country, and a more diligent as well as successful inquirer into the works of nature, than any other our nation has ever produced: "He had the profoundest veneration for the great God of heaven and earth that I have ever observed in any person. The very name of God was never mentioned by him without a pause and a visible stop in his discourse: in which one, that knew him most particularly above twenty years, has told me, that he was so exact, that he does not remember to have observed him once to fail in it."

Every one knows the veneration which was paid by the Jews to a name so "great, wonderful, and holy." They would not let it

Before
CHRIST
1451.

12 Keep the sabbath day to sanctify it, as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee.

13 Six days thou shalt labour, and do all thy work :

enter even into their religious discourses. What can we then think of those, who make use of so tremendous a name in the ordinary expressions of their anger, mirth, and most impertinent passions? of those, who admit it into the most familiar questions and assertions, ludicrous phrases, and works of humour? not to mention those who violate it by solemn perjuries! It would be an affront to reason to endeavour to set forth the horror and profaneness of such a practice. The very mention of it exposes it sufficiently to those, in whom the light of nature, not to say religion, is not utterly extinguished. Addison.

12. Keep the sabbath day to sanctify it,] In Exodus it is "Remember the sabbath day;" but that was in order to the keeping of it. Bp. Kidder. Nothing is the cause of more mischief and wickedness of every kind amongst us, than the neglect of the sabbath. If we look into the accounts of bad people, who have suffered for their crimes, we shall generally find they began with neglecting the sabbath. From hence they proceeded to higher degrees of wickedness: and though young people in general, who neglect the sabbath, may not go such violent lengths as many of these unhappy wretches go; yet, having no regard for religion, nothing to recall them to a sense of duty, they soon learn every kind of wickedness. Swearing and drinking are the common attendants on sabbath breaking: for if the sabbath-breaker is not at church, there is another place, where he is commonly to be found. Here he shows plainly whose servant he is; not the servant of God certainly.

In an account of a country, in which the Christian faith had once been established, it is stated, that when the person, who wrote the account, travelled there, all knowledge of Christianity was so utterly lost, that when he asked such of the inhabitants as he met with, who Christ was; for what purpose he died; what was meant by a future state; or by the immortality of the soul; or by the day of judgment; or any other easy question: they stared at him in stupid ignorance, having never heard of any of these things. In the last page the author tells us, the use of the sabbath was totally lost among these people. If he had told us this in the first page, we should have taken all the rest for granted. Gilpin, Polnhele.

— to sanctify it,] There is not much said in express words, concerning this end of the "rest" of the sabbath. But common reason told the Jews, it could not be intended merely as a day of ease from labour; but for the solemn service of God, and instruction in their duty to Him. Bp. Patrick.

God directed the Jews, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God &c. and these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up," Deut. vi. 5—7. Now as He required them to attend so constantly to these duties, He could not but expect, they should attend more especially to them on that day, when the great foundation of all duty, His creation of the world, was appointed to be commemorated; and when they had nothing to do, to take off their thoughts from what they owed to God and their Maker. There was a peculiar sacrifice appointed for that day; there is a peculiar psalm composed for it, the ninety-second; and these things are surely further intimations to us, that it must have been a time, peculiarly intended for the offering up of prayers and thanksgivings to heaven. Abp. Secker.

Let it not be supposed, that because God hath appointed the sabbath as a day of rest from bodily labour, it is therefore to be an idle holiday. Many, in following their wicked pastimes, make it more a day of labour, than any day in the week. This is not only perverting God's design in giving them "rest from their labour;" but it is perverting God's design in giving them rest for the religious employment of their minds: which is a point of still

VOL. I.

14 But the seventh day is the "sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy manservant, nor thy

Before
CHRIST
1451.

" Gen. 2. 2.
Hebr. 4. 1.

greater consequence. God hath therefore taken both these points into His own hands: knowing that man had not the authority to enjoin them; nor probably the inclination. God not only "rested" on the sabbath day; but He "blessed" and "hallowed" it. Gilpin.

14. — the seventh day is the sabbath &c.] To the question, What regard is due to the institution of a sabbath under the Christian dispensation? the answer is plainly this: neither more nor less than was due to it in the Patriarchal ages, before the Mosaic covenant took place. It is a gross mistake to consider the sabbath as a mere festival of the Jewish Church, deriving its whole sanctity from the Levitical law. The contrary appears, as well from the evidence of the fact, which sacred history affords, as from the reason of the thing, which the same history declares. The religious observation of the seventh day hath a place in the Decalogue among the very first duties of natural religion. The reason assigned, in Exod. xx. 11, for the injunction, is general, and hath no particular relation or regard to the Israelites. The creation of the world was an event, equally interesting to the whole human race; and the acknowledgment of God, as our Creator, is a duty in all ages and in all countries, equally incumbent on every individual of mankind. The terms, in which the reason of the ordinance is assigned, plainly describe it as an ordinance of an earlier age: "Therefore the Lord blessed and hallowed it," or set it apart. It is not said, 'Therefore the Lord now blesses the seventh day, and sets it apart,' but 'Therefore He did bless it, and set it apart in time past; and He now requires that you His chosen people should be observant of that ancient institution.' And in further confirmation of the fact, we find from Exod. xvi. that the Israelites were acquainted with the sabbath, and had been accustomed to some observance of it, before Moses received the tables of the law at Sinai. Indeed the Jews themselves well understood the antiquity of this institution, which appears upon the best evidence to have been coeval with the world itself: in the book of Genesis, the mention of this institution closes the History of the Creation. An institution of this antiquity, and of this general importance, could derive no part of its sanctity from the authority of the Mosaic law: and the abrogation of that law no more releases the worshippers of God from a rational observance of a sabbath, than it cancels the injunction of filial piety, or the prohibitions of theft and murder, adultery, calumny, and avarice. The worship of the Christian church is properly to be considered as a restoration of the Patriarchal in its primitive simplicity and purity: and of the Patriarchal worship, the sabbath was the noblest and perhaps the simplest rite. Bp. Horsley.

— nor thy manservant, nor thy maidservant,] It is to be remembered, that, although the worship of God is the chief end of the institution of the sabbath, yet the refreshment of the lower orders of mankind, by an intermission of their labours, is indisputably a secondary object: "that thy manservant and thy maidservant may rest as well as thou." Thus it is expressly provided by the law, that on the sabbath day they should have their refreshment. Now as these injunctions were evidently founded on the general principles of philanthropy, it should seem, that, allowance being made for the difference between the rigour of the Jewish, and the liberality of the Christian dispensation, and allowance being also made for the different circumstances of the ancient and modern world, these injunctions of the suspension of the labours of the lower ranks are universally and perpetually in force, in all parts of the world, and in all ages: the rather, as they are no less calculated for the benefit of the higher than for the comfort of the lower orders. It is useful to both to be admonished at frequent intervals; the one for their consolation, the other for the suppression of that pride, which a condition of ease and superiority is too apt to inspire. It is useful to both to be reminded of their equal

Y y

Before
CHRIST
1451.

maidservant, nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates; that thy manservant and thy maidservant may rest as well as thou.

15 And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched out arm: therefore the LORD thy God commanded thee to keep the sabbath day.

16 ¶ Honour thy father and thy mother, relation to their common Lord, as the creatures of His power, the subjects of His government, the children of His love, by an institution, which at frequent intervals unites them in His service. Under this recollection the servant will obey with fidelity and cheerfulness, and the superiour will govern with kindness and lenity. It is of the highest importance to the present good humour of society, and to the future interests of men of every rank, that these injunctions should be observed with all the exactness which the present state of society may admit. Bp. Horsley.

— nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle,] The labour of man is not the only toil, which the Mosaic law prohibited on the sabbath day. “Thou shalt not do any work — nor thine ox, nor thine ass, nor any of thy cattle.” It was a principle with some of the heathen moralists, that no rights subsist between man and the lower animals; that, in the exercise of our dominion over them, we are at liberty to pursue our own profit and convenience, without any consideration of the fatigue and miseries which they may undergo. The Holy Scriptures seem to speak another language, when they say, “A righteous man regardeth the life of his beast,” Prov. xii. 10: and as no reason can be alleged, why the ox or the ass of Palestine should be treated with more tenderness than the kindred brutes of other countries, it must be upon this general principle, that mercy is in some degree due to the animals beneath us, that the Divine Legislator of the Jews provided on the sabbath for their refreshment. This therefore, like the provision made for servants, allowance still being made for the different spirit of Judaism and Christianity, is to be considered as a general and standard part of the institution; which is violated, whenever, for the mere pleasure and convenience of the master and the owner, either servants, or even animals, are subjected to the same severity of toil on the sabbath, which belongs to the natural condition of the one and to the civil rank of the other on the six days of the week. Bp. Horsley.

15. — remember that thou wast a servant &c.] This is a new ground for the observation of the sabbath, because God had given them rest from their hard labour in Egypt. This obliged them to keep that seventh day, which God appointed at the giving of manna, being the day on which He overthrew Pharaoh in the Red sea; as the memory of the creation of the world obliged them to keep one day in seven. Jos. Mede.

It is for this reason, that the Hebrews are so often reminded by God of their having been strangers and bondservants in the land of Egypt, that by their hospitality and charity they might comfort and relieve those who were in the like condition: and that the happy change in their circumstances might beget in them a perpetual gratitude to their great Benefactor, and the meanness of their former condition teach them to be humble. Stackhouse.

16. Honour thy father and thy mother,] This Commandment requires honour to be given not only to the father, but to the mother also: an addition, which many human laws seem to have neglected. As the laws were given to the Israelites with a view to keep them free from the crimes of their idolatrous and wicked neighbours, and from the iniquities of the Egyptians, with whom they had long dwelt, it is to be supposed, that the moral duties were at that time scandalously neglected by those nations, and that the duty of obedience to parents, and particularly to mothers, was as the LORD thy God hath commanded thee; that thy days may be prolonged, and that it may go well with thee, in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

17^f Thou shalt not kill.

18^g Neither shalt thou commit adultery.

19^h Neither shalt thou steal.

20 Neither shalt thou bear false witness against thy neighbour.

21ⁱ Neither shalt thou desire thy neighbour's wife, neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, his field, or his manser-

Before
CHRIST
1451.^f Matth. 5.

21.

^g Luke 19.

20.

^h Rom. 13.

9.

ⁱ Rom. 7. 7.

as ill observed as the rest. The Egyptians, as we learn from ancient history, were far from having right notions of it: for they held, first, that children had more obligation, and should pay more respect, to the father than to the mother; and, secondly, that a son lay under no necessity to maintain his indigent parents, but that a daughter was obliged to do it. Thus they compelled a woman, considered as a daughter, to assist and maintain her parents; and yet, as she was a mother, they took from her in a manner all authority over her sons: which was absurd and unjust. Dr. Jortin.

— that thy days may be prolonged,] These words are here added to what we read in Exod. xx. 12, as a farther motive to obedience; and we find the Apostle takes notice of it in Eph. vi. 3. On the whole, obedience to this precept hath the promise, not only of a long, but of an happy life. Bp. Kidder.

Dutiful children have even now, though no absolute certainty, yet a reasonable hope of a long prosperous life. For, 1st, the good providence of God is extended to all and each person, and acts secretly, silently, and effectually, and often conveys temporal blessings to the righteous by ways and means not discernible and exposed to publick view. 2dly, There is a natural connexion between obedience to parents, and length of days. Parents, usually speaking, desire that their children should behave themselves well, and prosper in the world; that they should be modest, civil, sober, temperate, regular, and industrious: and children, who in these things obey their parents, take the best methods to secure to themselves long life and prosperity. But since under the Gospel, spiritual promises are more fully propounded, and all things temporal are represented as precarious, if long life should not always be the effect of a dutiful behaviour to God and to parents, it is to be considered, that when a pious and excellent person dieth in the flower of his age, to such an one to live is loss, and to die is gain: it is to depart hence, and to be with the Lord, which is far better. The conclusion is, that “godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come,” 1 Tim. iv. 8: of the life that now is, in all fair probability; of that which is to come, with absolute certainty. Dr. Jortin.

21. — neither shalt thou covet thy neighbour's house, &c.] This tenth and last Commandment is by the Church of Rome divided into two, to keep up the number after joining the first and second into one, contrary to ancient authority, Jewish and Christian. How the mistake was originally made, is hard to say: but undoubtedly they retain and defend it the more earnestly, in order to pass over the second Commandment, as only part of the first, without any distinct meaning of its own. And accordingly many of their devotional books omit it entirely; though the two Commandments plainly relate to different things; the first appointing, that the object of our worship be the only true God; the second, that we worship not Him under any visible resemblance or form. It is plain therefore that these two ought not to be thus joined and confounded. And that the tenth ought not to be divided, is equally evident: for it is one single prohibition of all unjust desires. And if reckoning up the several prohibited objects of desire makes it more than one Commandment, for the same reason it will be more than two. For there are six things forbidden in vant, or his maidservant, his ox, or his ass, or any thing that is thy neighbour's.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

22 ¶ These words the LORD spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice: and he added no more. And he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me.

23 And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders;

24 And ye said, Behold, the LORD our God hath shewed us his glory and his greatness, and ^k we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire: we have seen this day that God doth talk with man, and he ^l liveth.

25 Now therefore why should we die? for this great fire will consume us: if we [†] hear the voice of the LORD our God any more, then we shall die.

26 For who is there of all flesh, that hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?

27 Go thou near, and hear all that the LORD our God shall say: and ^m speak thou ^m unto us all that the LORD our God shall speak unto thee; and we will hear it, and do it. ^m Exod. 20. 19.

28 And the LORD heard the voice of your words, when ye spake unto me; and the LORD said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee: they have well said all that they have spoken.

29 O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them, and with their children for ever!

30 Go say to them, Get you into your tents again.

31 But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^k Exod. 19. 19.

^l Chap. 4. 33.

[†] Heb. add to hear.

it particularly, besides all the rest, that are forbidden in general. And moreover, if this be two Commandments, which is the first of them? For in Exodus it begins, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house;" but in Deuteronomy, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife." And accordingly some of the Romish books of devotion make the former, some the latter of these, the ninth. Surely the order of the words would never have been changed thus in Scripture, had there been two Commandments in them: but being one, it is no way material, which part is named first. Abp. Secker.

— neither shalt thou covet] It is remarked by some, that an exact order is observed in the delivery of these precepts: for first, He places such offences as are consummated, and then those, that are begun and not perfected. And in the former He proceeds from those that are most heinous, unto those that are less grievous: for those offences are the greatest, which disturb the publick order, and consequently do mischief to many persons. Such are those that are committed against governours and rulers, who are comprehended under the name of parents; by whose authority human society is preserved. And then, among those, which are against particular persons, those are the greatest which touch a man's life; next, those that wrong his family, the foundation of which is matrimony; then, those that wrong him in his goods, either directly, by stealth, or more craftily, by bearing false witness: then, in the last place, those sins are mentioned, which are not consummated, but proceed no farther than desire. Bp. Patrick.

The whole law, concerning these matters of our several obligations one to another, "is briefly comprehended," as St. Paul very justly observes, in this one saying, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself," Rom. xiii. 9. Our neighbour is every one, with whom we have at any time any concern, or on whose welfare our actions can have any influence. For whoever is thus within our reach, is in the most important sense near to us, however distant in other respects. To "love our neighbour" is to bear him good will, which of course will dispose us to think favourably of him, and behave properly to him. And to "love him as ourselves" is to have not only a real, but a strong and active good will towards him; with a tenderness for his interests, duly proportioned to that, which we naturally feel for our own. Such a temper would most powerfully restrain us from every thing wrong, and prompt us to every thing right: and therefore is "the fulfilling of the law," so far as it relates to our mutual behaviour, Rom. xiii. 10. Abp. Secker.

22. — and he added no more.] That is, He did not deliver the following laws, which we find in Exod. xxi, xxii, &c. as He did these moral precepts, by an audible voice and in the solemn manner out of the midst of the fire; but He delivered them to Moses, who imparted them to the people. Bp. Kidder.

29. O that there were such an heart in them, &c.] The words are wonderfully emphatical in the Hebrew: "Who will give that there may be such an heart in them!" This is an expression of the most earnest desire; but at the same time it signifies, that if what He had done for them, would not move them to fear and obey Him, it was impossible to persuade them to it. Not but that He could miraculously work upon them, and change their hearts (saith Maimonides) if He pleased, as He miraculously changed the nature of other things: but if this were God's will, to deal with them in this manner, there would have been no need to send a Prophet to them, or to publish laws full of precepts and promises, rewards and punishments; by which, saith he, God wrought upon their heart, and not by His absolute omnipotence. Bp. Patrick.

— that it might be well with them, and with their children] There is no judgment threatened to any nation in the Holy Scripture, but it is on account of the sins and wickedness they were guilty of; which sins if they repented of, so as to forsake them, they might find mercy. Accordingly we find in fact, that God always dealt with people and nations according to these measures. The truth of this might be shewn from the histories of all nations. But in the history of the Jews it is especially remarkable, that every degree of publick vice and departure from God's laws was always punished with publick judgments; and, on the other hand, every degree of publick repentance and reformation was always rewarded with publick happiness and prosperity. So that any one, who could make a just estimate of the morals of that nation, and how it stood as to virtue and vice, might constantly make a judgment likewise, how it would fare with them, as to their outward temporal affairs. Archbishop Sharp.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

that they may do them in the land which I give them to possess it.

32 Ye shall observe to do therefore as the LORD your God hath commanded you: ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left.

33 Ye shall walk in all the ways which the LORD your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.

CHAP. VI.

1 The end of the law is obedience. 3 An exhortation thereto.

NOW these are the commandments, the statutes, and the judgments, which the LORD your God commanded to teach you,

33. Ye shall walk in all the ways — that ye may live,] In the Jewish dispensation mankind are enabled to discern the principles and the process of that moral government, which God exercises over nations, even in the course of His ordinary providence: which undoubtedly dispenses publick prosperity and publick calamity, and regulates the rise and decay of empires, on the very same principles, which are so strikingly displayed in the history of the chosen people. The Divine interposition in the general government of the world is indeed conducted by the regular operation of secondary causes, and therefore more silent and unseen, than the course of that extraordinary Providence then exhibited: but it is not therefore less certain or less effective. In the history of the Jewish state, the judgments of God are distinctly and solemnly exhibited for the instruction of man; and in a word, this great truth is clearly and powerfully impressed, that “as righteousness exalteth a nation, so sin is a reproach to any people,” Prov. xiv. 34: a lesson, which but for the immediate and extraordinary Providence, displayed in this awful dispensation, could never have been so forcibly inculcated, or so clearly understood. Dr. Graves.

Chap. VI. ver. 4. Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord:] The Scripture expressly asserts, in perfect conformity with reason, that there is but one God, the object of our faith and adoration: not one supreme, and other inferiour ones, as the heathens believed, but one alone. See also ver. 13; Matt. iv. 10; Is. xlii. 8; xlv. 5. Accordingly St. Paul declares, that “to us” Christians, “there is one God the Father, of whom are all things.” But then, besides the several orders of created beings, the same Scripture as expressly mentions His eternal Son and Spirit; the one begotten of Him, the other proceeding from Him. The distinct and full meaning of these terms we know not; but this however they plainly denote, that the Son and Spirit are derived from the Father, in a manner, whatever it be, each different from the other, and both different from creation. Accordingly we find ascribed to both these, not only the names, but the perfections of God, with honours and worship incommunicable to any creature: and while they are evidently distinguished from the Father, they are as evidently described as being one with Him. Wherein precisely this union and this distinction lies, the Scripture hath not said, and therefore we cannot say, any farther than this: that the union appears to be, not only a similitude of will, or of other powers and dispositions, but the highest possible sameness of essential attributes and properties; for which reason it hath been called an unity of essence, nature, or substance: and the distinction appears to be, not only a difference of names, or of relations to created beings, but of subsistence and action, resembling in some measure, as described in holy writ, that of different human agents; on which account it is said to be a distinction of persons. And from all these things put together, we conclude, that ye might do them in the land whither ye † go to possess it: Before

CHRIST
1451.

2 That thou mightest fear the LORD thy † God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee, thou, † Heb.
pass over.
and thy son, and thy son’s son, all the days of thy life; and that thy days may be prolonged.

3 ¶ Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey. a Chap. 10.
12.
Matth. 22.
37.
Mark 12.
30.
Luke 10.
27.

4 Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God is one LORD:

5 And ^athou shalt love the LORD thy that we are to believe and worship Three Persons, who are one God. Abp. Secker.

It is usually observed by commentators, that many of the ancient Fathers look on this text as containing a plain intimation of the blessed Trinity, the word translated the LORD being a singular, and the word rendered God a plural: and some of the Jews themselves have had similar thoughts, as noticed by Bp. Patrick. Dr. Wells.

5. — thou shalt love the Lord thy God] The characteristic excellence of the Mosaic law consists in the inward principle, on which obedience to it was founded, namely, “the love of God,” as noticed in the second Commandment; and more fully unfolded afterwards in the admirable commentary upon the Decalogue, furnished in the remainder of the Pentateuch. Its nature and degree is thus specified; “with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength:” and the grounds of it also; “for the Lord, the Lord God, is merciful and gracious, longsuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, &c. visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children,” Exod. xxxiv. 6, 7; Numb. xiv. 17, 18. The love of God was therefore necessarily accompanied with the fear of God: “For the Lord your God is God of gods, and Lord of lords, a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, which regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward.”—“Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God; Him shalt thou serve, and to Him shalt thou cleave,” Deut. x. 17, 20. See also verses 12, 13. The greatness, the majesty, and justice of God, necessarily render Him an object of fear and awe: while His disinterested goodness, and free bounties, naturally tend to excite love and gratitude in the receivers; and both together, a hearty desire and sincere endeavour to obey His will in all things. This “love of God” therefore is made the ruling principle of the “love of our neighbour,” or of benevolence to mankind. “Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, &c. but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I AM THE LORD,” Lev. xix. 17, 18. This emphatick conclusion intimating, that they were bound to do so, for the Lord’s sake. Nor was it confined merely to their neighbour, or to their own countrymen; it was to extend to strangers, Deut. x. 17—19; and even to enemies, Deut. xxiii. 7; nay, to the animal creation, Deut. xxii. 6, 7, 10. Thus the “love of God” was made, throughout the Mosaic law, the basis of the “love of our neighbour,” of all mankind, and even of the animal creation for His sake. Accordingly our blessed Saviour declares, that “the love of God is the first and great Commandment in the Law;” and that “the second, the love of our neighbour as ourselves,” is like it in principle, as being derived from it, and regulated thereby. “On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets;” or the whole religion and morality of the Old Testament, Matt. xxii. 36—40. They evidently coincide therefore with the Evangelical virtue of love, or Christian charity, so well explained by St. Paul, 1 Cor. xiii. and which may accord-

Before
CHRIST
1451.

Chap. 11.
18.

† Heb. whet, or,
sharpen.

God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.

6 And ^b these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart :

7 And thou shalt [†] teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

8 And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes.

ingly be defined, "A divine virtue, by which we love God above all things for His own sake ; and our neighbours as ourselves, for the love of God." Dr. Hales.

The love of God is the source of every thing which is good in man. I do not mean that it is the only source, or that goodness (in some sense) can proceed from no other ; but that of all principles of conduct it is the safest, the best, the truest, the highest. Perhaps it is peculiar to the Jewish and Christian dispensations, and, if it be, it is a peculiar excellency in them, to have formally and solemnly laid down this principle, as a ground of human action. I shall not deny, that elevated notions were entertained of the Deity by some wise and excellent heathens ; but even these did not, that I can find, so inculcate the love of that Deity, or so propose and state it to their followers, as to make it a governing, actuating principle of life amongst them. This did Moses, or rather God by the mouth of Moses ; expressly, formally, solemnly. This did Christ ; adopting, repeating, ratifying, what the Law had already declared ; and not only ratifying, but singling it out from the body of precepts which composed the old institution, and giving it a preeminence to every other. Archdeacon Paley.

— with all thine heart, &c.] For there being no other God but He alone, none else could have any right to their love and service, but He only, whose nature is so excellent, that it requires the utmost we can do to testify our regard to Him.

By the "heart" here may be meant the will, which is the original of all a man's actions, whether good or evil ; by the "soul," the affections ; to which St. Mark adds the "mind," that is, the understanding, or rational faculty ; and by "might" or "strength" is meant the power of the body for action : which four, all together, make up the whole man. The word "all," added to each of these, does not exclude all other things from any share in our thoughts and affections ; but only from an equal interest in them. "The love of God" ought to be superiour, and to direct all our other motions to serve Him. Bp. Patrick.

7. And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children,] Under all the Divine dispensations from the beginning, no duty is set higher, or more insisted on, than that of instructing children in the knowledge of religion. "Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him." What more or greater can be said of any mere man ? Attend to the reason, which immediately follows, "For I know him, that he will command his children after him, &c." See Gen. xviii. 18. Thus again in the passage before us from the Law : "These words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart : " for what purpose, or for whose sake ? For the sake of themselves alone ? By no means :—"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, &c." Children on their part are supposed to be often asking questions upon these subjects, and so to put their parents, teachers, or friends, upon conversation of this kind. See Exod. xii. 26. Respecting Christian parents, they are most expressly enjoined to "bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord : " and to the praise of young Timothy, as well as of those relations, who had been his instructors, it is said, "that from a child he had known the holy Scriptures, able to make him wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus." Bp. Horne.

— and shalt talk of them when thou sittest &c.] As much

Before
CHRIST
1451.

9 And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.

10 And it shall be, when the LORD thy God shall have brought thee into the land which he sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give thee great and goodly cities, which thou buildedst not,

11 And houses full of all good things, which thou filledst not, and wells digged, which thou diggedst not, vineyards and olive trees, which thou plantedst not ;

as to say, they should take all occasions to inculcate this great lesson, at home and abroad, night and day ; never ceasing their most earnest endeavours, to persuade their children, not to worship any other god ; nor to fail to worship the LORD their God, with sincere affection. Bp. Patrick.

This injunction of God to the Jews cannot be in less force among Christians. It does not mean, that our conversation should be of nothing besides religion : but it must mean, that religion should have a due share in it : and doubtless then a peculiar share on the day, which God hath hallowed. Employing a part of that day in giving those about us the obvious proofs of Christianity, just notions of the holiness of the Divine law, and their need of a Redeemer and a Sanctifier ; instruction in their various duties to God, and man, and themselves ; joyful expectations of the rewards of piety ; awful apprehensions of the consequences of sin ; affectionate cautions against the dangers, to which they are exposed ; will be a most improving exercise to ourselves, and afford us the most rational prospect of gaining an influence over them to our own comfort, and to their good in this life and the next. Abp. Secker.

8. And thou shalt bind them &c.] See the note on Exod. xiii. 9.

9. And thou shalt write them upon the posts &c.] The Jews give the name "Mezuzoth" to certain pieces of parchment, which they fix on the door-posts of their houses, understanding this precept in a literal sense. They pretend, that to avoid making themselves ridiculous by writing the Commandments of God without their doors, or rather to avoid exposing them to profanation, they ought to write them on parchment, and to inclose it in a piece of cane or other hollow wood. Therefore they write on a square piece of parchment, prepared on purpose, with a particular ink, and a square kind of character, the following texts : Deut. vi. 4—9 ; then after a little space, Deut. xi. 13—20. They then roll up the parchment, put it into a case, and write on it, "Shaddai," which is one of the names of God : they put it at the doors of their houses, and chambers, to the knockers of their doors on the right side ; and as often as they pass, they touch this place with their finger, which they afterwards kiss. The Hebrew word "Mezuza" properly signifies the door of a house ; but it is also given to this roll of parchment. Calmet.

This wise and holy lawgiver well knew, how much men's hearts are alienated from goodness, and that it is requisite to work upon them with incessant applications of the word of God, before they can be impressed with a due sense of religion. It is no easy matter to dispossess the vanities of the world and the lusts of the flesh, of that dominion, which they have naturally over us. A few cold prayers, and unsettled meditations, and formal hearings of the word of God, will never subdue them. But a daily assiduity and constancy in these duties will gradually weaken them and drive them out. For constancy will beget zeal ; and zeal will make us delight in drawing nigh to God : and then He will draw nigh to us, and will daily appear to us more good and gracious, more excellent, and more worthy of our love. Whilst by often raising our hearts to heaven, and setting our affections on it, and laying up our treasure in it, our ideas and conceptions of its society, of its enjoyments, of its most noble exercises, and undisturbed peace and tranquillity, will be continually strengthened and enlarged. Reading.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

* Chap. 8.
9, 10, &c.

† Heb. bondmen,
or, servants.
* Chap. 10.
12, 20, &
11. 1.

* Matth.
4. 7.
† Exod. 17.
2.

† Heb.
to morrow.

* when thou shalt have eaten and be full;

12 Then beware lest thou forget the Lord, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of † bondage.

13 Thou shalt * fear the Lord thy God, and serve him, and shalt swear by his name.

14 Ye shall not go after other gods, of the gods of the people which are round about you;

15 (For the Lord thy God is a jealous God among you) lest the anger of the Lord thy God be kindled against thee, and destroy thee from off the face of the earth.

16 ¶ * Ye shall not tempt the Lord your God, † as ye tempted him in Massah.

17 Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the Lord your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he hath commanded thee.

18 And thou shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the Lord: that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, 19 To cast out all thine enemies from before thee, as the Lord hath spoken.

20 And when thy son asketh thee † in time to come, saying, What mean the testimonies, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord our God hath commanded you?

12. Then beware lest thou forget &c.] Prosperity is generally very dangerous to mankind. Hence it is, that they are warned, at such times of plenty and affluence of worldly things, to "beware." Such things are a great snare, and occasion of pride and haughtiness, and many other vices. Bp. Kidder.

13. Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God,] There is no perfection in the Divine nature, which is not a proper foundation, and may not suggest motives, for a religious "fear of God." God is most holy, and abhors iniquity as entirely opposite to His pure and undefiled nature. He is every where present, and from Him nothing can be hid. He is all-wise, and cannot be deceived. He is the just governor of the world, and as such He cannot but observe the actions of men, and will certainly "render to every man according to his works:" and though He be good and merciful to all His creatures, yet He must be supposed so to love them as to love justice and righteousness also. He is almighty, and can punish the rebellious many ways, by turning them out of being, or by making that being a pain to them for as long a time as He sees proper. He is also supremely good; and though this of all His perfections may seem the least suited to make us dread Him, yet whosoever judgeth so is much mistaken; for indeed there is not any one quality of the Divine nature so adapted to strike us with an ingenuous fear, with the fear of a child towards a parent, as this, and of such efficacy to deter us from sin, and to make us avoid incurring His just displeasure. Sin against God, as He is almighty, is the excess of madness and folly; but, as He is most kind and merciful, it is the basest ingratitude. The greater His goodness is, the greater is our guilt, if we be undutiful servants; and the greater will be our punishment, and that remorse and horror, which St. John in so strong

21 Then thou shalt say unto thy son, ^{Before CHRIST 1451.} We were Pharaoh's bondmen in Egypt; and the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a mighty hand:

22 And the Lord shewed signs and wonders, great and † sore, upon Egypt, † Heb. evil. upon Pharaoh, and upon all his household, before our eyes:

23 And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers.

24 And the Lord commanded us to do all these statutes, to fear the Lord our God, for our good always, that he might preserve us alive, as it is at this day.

25 And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before the Lord our God, as he hath commanded us.

CHAP. VII.

1 All communion with the nations is forbidden, 4 for fear of idolatry, 6 for the holiness of the people, 9 for the nature of God in his mercy and justice, 17 for the assuredness of victory which God will give over them.

WHEN the * Lord thy God shall bring ^{* Chap. 31. 3.} thee into the land whither thou goest to possess it, and hath cast out many nations before thee, the Hittites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, seven nations greater and mightier than thou; and eloquent a manner expresses in the Revelation, when he makes the wicked say to the mountains, "Fall on us, and hide us from the wrath of the Lamb." He says not, from the wrath of the lion, though in the same book he calls Christ the Lion of the tribe of Judah; but from the wrath of the lamb; from long-despised patience, and much-injured mercy. Dr. Jortin. There is nothing more terrible than goodness slighted, and patience abused. Dr. Isaac Barrow.

— and shalt swear by his name.] That is, only by His name. This is the only reasonable interpretation. Swearing could never be lawful, but when it was necessary; and all that the Israelites were obliged to from these words was this, that when they did swear, they should do it by the name of God only, and not by any creature, Matt. v. 34. The words in this verse, thou shalt "serve Him," Christ expresses by "Him only shalt thou serve," Matt. iv. 10. The doctrine of Christ is always at harmony with the moral precepts of Moses. Bp. Kidder.

25. And it shall be our righteousness,] Both the Latin and the Greek translations understand "righteousness" to import "mercy." And then the meaning of the sentence is, "God will be merciful to us for the future, if we obey His laws." Bp. Kidder. "If we observe to do all these commandments, God will account us a righteous people, and be kind to us." Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. — the Hittites, &c.] In Abraham's days the land was occupied by ten nations: the Kenites, the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites, eastwards of Jordan; and westwards, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaims, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites, Gen. xv. 18—21. These latter in the days of Moses were called by the same names; the 1451.

Before
CHRIST

Exod. 23.
32. & 34.
12.

† Heb. statues, or,
pillars.

Chap. 14.
2. & 26. 19.

Exod. 19.

5.
1 Pet. 2. 9.

2 And when the LORD thy God shall deliver them before thee; thou shalt smite them, and utterly destroy them; ^b thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor shew mercy unto them:

3 Neither shalt thou make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son.

4 For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods: so will the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly.

5 But thus shall ye deal with them; ye shall destroy their altars, and break down their [†] images, and cut down their groves, and burn their graven images with fire.

6 ^c For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God: ^d the LORD thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth.

7 The LORD did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

8 But because the LORD loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the LORD brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt.

9 Know therefore that the LORD thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations;

10 And repayeth them that hate him to their face, to destroy them: he will not be slack to him that hateth him, he will repay him to his face.

11 Thou shalt therefore keep the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command thee this day, to do them.

12 ¶ Wherefore it shall come to pass, [†] if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that the LORD thy God because.

† Heb.

Hivites being substituted for the Rephaims. These seven nations were thus distributed: "The Hittites," or sons of Heth, "the Perizzites, the Jebusites, and the Amorites, dwelt in the mountains," or in the hill country of Judea, southwards: "the Canaanites" dwelt in the midland, "by the sea," westwards, and "by the coast of Jordan," eastwards; and "the Girgashites," or Gergesenes, along the eastern side of the sea of Galilee; and "the Hivites" in mount Lebanon, under Hermon, in the land of Mizpeh, or Gilead, northwards. Compare Numb. xiii. 29; Josh. xi. 3; Judg. iii. 3; and Matt. viii. 28. Dr. Hales.

2. — utterly destroy them;] One of the reasons which made this destruction more necessary and more general, than it would have otherwise been, was the consideration, that if any of the old inhabitants were left, they would prove a snare to those who succeeded them in the country: would draw and seduce them by degrees into the vices and corruptions which prevailed among themselves. Vices of all kinds, but vices especially of the licentious kind, are astonishingly infectious. "A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump." A small number of persons addicted to them, and allowed to practise them with impunity or encouragement, will spread them through the whole mass. This reason is formally and expressly assigned, not simply for the punishment, but for the extent to which it was carried, namely, extermination. "Thou shalt utterly destroy them: that they teach you not to do after all their abominations, which they have done unto their gods," chap. xx. 17, 18. Archdeacon Paley.

3. Neither shalt thou make marriages with them;] The true reason of providing against a too familiar conversation between the Hebrews and their idolatrous neighbours, was not ill-will towards them: but it was a measure of self-preservation from a very great evil; no less than a loss of the true religion, and therewith of their happiness, in the favour of Jehovah, as their God. "For they will turn away thy son, &c." see the 4th verse. All care to prevent idolatry would probably have been useless, without prohibiting intermarriages; and putting a stop to such intercourse and entertainments, as would have proved an occasion either of intermarriages, or of familiarities no less dangerous. Lowman.

7. — for ye were the fewest of all people:] When God first declared His love to Abraham and his posterity, he had no child, Gen. xii. 1—3; xv. 1, 2. And when he had, his family continued so small, after there were twelve heirs of the promise, that in the space of 200 years there were but seventy persons, Gen. xvi. 27. Nor do we read of any great increase of them, till after the death of Joseph, which was near eighty years more, Exod. i. 7, 8. So St. Stephen observes, Acts vii. 17, "When the time of the promise drew nigh, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt." Bp. Patrick.

9. — to a thousand generations;] The fundamental laws of the Jewish theocracy were sanctioned with powerful national sanctions of punishment and reward, to be administered by God Himself, as their King and their Judge. The "haters of God," or the disobedient, were threatened with temporal calamities, extending "to the third or fourth generation of their children:" but the "lovers of God," or the obedient, who should keep these His Commandments, were encouraged by the promise, that God would shew mercy unto their children to the thousandth generation, or to the remotest ages. Thus the idolatries of the Jewish nation drew down on themselves, and on their children, the Babylonish captivity of seventy years, including the third and fourth generation of the offenders: while the righteous posterity of the true Israelites, in the regeneration, will flourish till the end of the world. How infinitely does the goodness transcend the severity of God! Dr. Hales.

12. — if ye hearken to these judgments,] As God hath made us rational creatures, so He treats us in the same reasonable way, in which we deal with one another. The relative duties of superiors and subjects among men must be performed on both sides, otherwise there is an end of unity, peace, and truth, and consequently of all social and good government. If children and servants rebel against their parents and masters, they are so far from deserving to be provided for and maintained on the score of such relation, that they deserve to be punished most severely, as acting an unnatural part. No more reason have we to hope for any blessing of God, on account of our being His children and servants, if we refuse Him our obedience. This is what He hath insisted upon, from the first production of our race upon earth. From Adam to the present generation, He has

Before
CHRIST
1451.

shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which he sware unto thy fathers:

13 And he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee.

^c Exod. 23.
26, &c.

14 Thou shalt be blessed above all people: ^c there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your cattle.

^c Exod. 9.
14. & 15.
26.

15 And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the ^c evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.

16 And thou shalt consume all the people which the LORD thy God shall deliver thee; thine eye shall have no pity upon them: neither shalt thou serve their gods; for that will be ^e a snare unto thee.

^e Exod. 23.
33.

17 If thou shalt say in thine heart, These nations are more than I; how can I dispossess them?

18 Thou shalt not be afraid of them: but shalt well remember what the LORD thy God did unto Pharaoh, and unto all Egypt;

19 The great temptations which thine eyes saw, and the signs, and the wonders, and the mighty hand, and the stretched out arm, whereby the LORD thy God ^{Before} brought thee out: so shall the LORD thy ^{CHRIST} God do unto all the people of whom thou art afraid. 1451.

20 ^b Moreover the LORD thy God will ^b send the hornet among them, until they ^b that are left, and hide themselves from ^b thee, be destroyed. ^b Exod. 23. 28. Josh. 24. 12.

21 Thou shalt not be affrighted at them: for the LORD thy God is among you, a mighty God and terrible.

22 And the LORD thy God will [†] put out [†] those nations before thee by little and [†] little: thou mayest not consume them at once, lest the beasts of the field increase upon thee. [†] Heb. pluck off.

23 But the LORD thy God shall deliver them [†] unto thee, and shall destroy them [†] with a mighty destruction, until they be [†] destroyed. [†] Heb. before thy face.

24 And he shall deliver their kings into thine hand, and thou shalt destroy their name from under heaven: there shall no man be able to stand before thee, until thou have destroyed them.

25 The graven images of their gods ⁱ shall ye burn with fire: thou ^k shalt not desire the silver or gold that is on them, nor take it unto thee, lest thou be snared therein: for it is an abomination to the LORD thy God. ⁱ Chap. 12. 3. ^k Josh. 7. 1, 21. ² Mac. 12. 40.

26 Neither shalt thou bring an abominaalways said to men the same thing which He says by Moses to the Israelites; "If ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them," that is, If ye will honour and obey Me as your God; then, and no otherwise, "the Lord thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which He sware unto thy fathers;" in other words, I will own and bless you, as My children and people. From this, and from the whole of Scripture, it is plain, that God deals with us according to a positive relation, contracted between us by a covenant and agreement, that He will be our God and Saviour, provided we hearken to His voice, and do His will. Reading.

15. — the evil diseases of Egypt.] The Egyptians seem to have been liable to many distempers, some of which were epidemical; as we find them to be at this day. In the time of Moses we read of a particular distemper, called "the botch of Egypt," chap. xxviii. 27, and the diseases of the country are mentioned in more places than one of Scripture, chap. xxviii. 60, &c. Bryant.

22. — lest the beasts of the field increase upon thee.] It is supposed in the Old Testament, that if Judea should be thinly peopled, the wild beasts would so multiply as to render it dangerous to the inhabitants. The country is now not very populous; and accordingly wild beasts are so numerous there as to be terrifying to strangers. Haynes says, "The country about Cana of Galilee swarms with wild beasts, such as tigers, leopards, jackals, &c. whose cries and howling, I doubt not, would strike the boldest traveller, who had not been frequently in the like situation, with the deepest sense of horror." Harmer.

24. — and thou shalt destroy their name from under heaven:] The depraved state of morals of the Canaanites is too notorious to require any proof. They were a wicked people in the time of Abraham; and they, even then, were devoted by God to destruction: but "their iniquity was not then full." In the time of Moses they were idolaters; sacrificers of their own infants; devourers of human flesh; addicted to unnatural lust; immersed in the filthiness of all manner of vice. It was agreeable to God's moral justice to exterminate so wicked a people. He made the Israelites the executors of His vengeance; and, in doing this, He gave such an evident and terrible proof of His abomination of vice, as could not fail to strike the surrounding nations with astonishment and terror, and to impress on the minds of the Israelites what they were to expect, if they followed the example of the nations, whom He commanded them to cut off. See Lev. xviii. 26, 28. That God should thus, by an express act of His providence, destroy a wicked nation, is not in any degree repugnant to reason. I am fond of considering the goodness of God as the leading principle of His conduct towards mankind; of considering His justice as subservient to His mercy. He punishes individuals and nations with the rod of His wrath: but I am persuaded that all His punishments originate in His abhorrence of sin; are calculated to lessen its influence; and are proofs of His goodness: inasmuch as it may not be possible for Omnipotence itself to communicate supreme happiness to the human race, whilst they continue servants of sin. The destruction of the Canaanites exhibits to all nations, in all ages, a signal proof of God's displeasure against sin: it has been to others, and it is to ourselves, a benevolent warning. The conduct of Moses towards the Canaanites would have been open to severe animadversion, had he acted by his own authority alone: but it were as reasonable to attribute cruelty and murder to the judge of the land in condemning criminals to death, as to condemn the conduct of Moses in executing the command of God. Bp. Watson.

25. — it is an abomination to the Lord thy God.] Whatsoever

Before CHRIST 1451. tion into thine house, lest thou be a cursed thing like it: but thou shalt utterly detest it, and thou shalt utterly abhor it; ¹ for it is a cursed thing.

¹ Chap. 13. 17.

CHAP. VIII.

An exhortation to obedience in regard of God's dealing with them.

ALL the commandments which I command thee this day shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers.

2 And thou shalt remember all the way which the LORD thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was had been employed in idolatrous worship, was so detestable to the Divine Majesty, that He would not have it converted to any ordinary use, but utterly destroyed. And therefore Moses commanded them, not to bring any of the silver and gold, which had belonged to idols, which he calls "an abomination," into their houses, to be employed for any private use whatsoever. If a man did, he became "an accursed thing," that is, was devoted to destruction, as the thing itself was. This appeared afterwards in the example of Achan, Josh. vii, who took a wedge of gold and a Babylonish garment for his own private use, when it had been "accursed" by God's express command, Josh. vi. 18, and therefore was stoned to death. Bp. Patrick.

We do not at this day understand or think much concerning the sin of idolatry. It hath in a manner ceased from among us. Whereas in the age of the world, and among those people, when and to whom these commandments were delivered, false worship, or the worship of false gods, was the sin, which lay at the root and foundation of every other. The worship of the one true God, in opposition to the vain and false and wicked religions which had then obtained amongst mankind, was the grand point to be inculcated. It was the contest then carried on: and the then world, as well as future ages, were deeply interested in it. History testifies, experience testifies, that there cannot be true morality, or true virtue, where there is false religion, false worship, false gods: for which reason we find, that this great article (for such it then was) was not only made the subject of a command, but placed at the head of all the rest. Nay more; from the whole strain and tenour of the Old Testament there is good reason to believe, that to maintain in the world the knowledge and worship of the one true God, holy, just, and good, in contradistinction to the idolatrous worship which prevailed, was the great and principal scheme and end of the Jewish polity and most singular constitution. As the Jewish nation therefore was to be the depository of, and the means of preserving in the world, the knowledge and worship of the one true God, when it was lost and darkened in other countries, it became of the last importance to the execution of this purpose, that this nation should be warned and deterred by every moral means from sliding themselves into those practices, those errors, and that crime, against which it was the very design of their institution, that they should strive and contend. Archdeacon Paley.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. And thou shalt remember &c.] As if he had said, Recollect the wisdom and advantage of God's dispensations towards your nation, through the long course of their forty years' travels. The streights of a barren wilderness, the want of common necessities for life, supplied by the timely and miraculous hand of Heaven; what were they but a plain lesson, that to God we owe all our blessings, and where His providence interposes, nothing can be wanting to us? Pyle.

— to know what was in thine heart,] God knew perfectly in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no. Before CHRIST 1451.

3 And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know; that he might make thee know that man doth ^a not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the LORD doth man live. ^a Matth. 4. ^{4.} Luke 4. 4.

4 ^b Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell, these forty ^c years. ^b Neh. 9. ^c 21.

5 Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that, as a man chasteneth his son, so the LORD thy God chasteneth thee.

6 Therefore thou shalt keep the com-how they were disposed towards Him: but it was fit, that they should know themselves better, and that posterity should be instructed by their behaviour. Bp. Patrick.

3. — man doth not live by bread only, &c.] That is, man is not sustained only by the food which he eats; but whatever God appoints for that end, however unlikely it be, sustains him, as was seen in the manna. It is the blessing of God that renders our food the support of our life. Bp. Kidder. The creatures, appointed for food, are sanctified by the word of God; when, together with the creatures, He giveth His blessing to accompany them: by His powerful word commanding them, and by that command enabling them, to sustain us. Such is the meaning of this passage, alleged by our Saviour against the tempter, Matth. iv. 4. For what is bread to nourish us, without His word? Unless He say the word, and command the bread to do it, there is no more strength in bread than in stones. The power and nutritious virtue, which bread possesses, it derives from His decree; because the word is already gone out of His mouth, that "bread should strengthen man's heart," Ps. civ. 15. As in the first creation, when the creatures were originally produced, had their beings given them, and natural powers and faculties bestowed upon them, this was all done by the word of God's powerful decree; ("He spake the word, and they were made; he commanded, and they were created," Ps. xxxiii. 9; cxlviii. 5;) so in all their subsequent operations, when they do at any time exercise those natural faculties, and perform those offices for which they were created, all this is still done by the same powerful word and decree of God; "He upholdeth all things by the word of His power," Heb. i. 3. Bp. Sanderson.

4. Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee,] Some interpreters, and particularly the Jewish rabbies, understand by these words, that the raiment of the Israelites, during their abode in the wilderness for forty years, never decayed by using, and never was torn by accident: and that the very clothes, which they had when they were children, grew like their skin along with their bodies, and fitted them when they were men. Others explain it thus: The good providence of God took care that the Israelites in the wilderness never wanted raiment. They were supplied partly by the flocks and the materials which they brought out of Egypt, and partly by the Arabs, Ishmaelites, and neighbouring people: so that they had change of apparel, when they stood in need of it, and were not obliged to go barefoot, ragged, and half naked for want of clothes. God so ordered the course of things, that they obtained whatsoever was needful by natural means, or, if they failed, by a miraculous interposition. Dr. Jortin.

5. — as a man chasteneth his son, &c.] All the afflictions, which God had sent upon them, He would have them think, were not for their destruction, but for their correction and amendment: and therefore they ought to be thankfully acknowledged, as well as His benefits. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

mandments of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him.

7 For the LORD thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills;

† Heb. of olive tree
of oil.

8 A land of wheat, and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; a land † of oil olive, and honey;

9 A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack any thing in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.

Chap. G.
12, 13.

10 When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the LORD thy God for the good land which he hath given thee.

11 Beware that thou forget not the LORD thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day: Before

CHRIST
1451.

12 Lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein;

13 And when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied;

14 Then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the LORD thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage;

15 Who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water; † who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint;

Numb.
20. 11.

16 Who fed thee in the wilderness with † manna, which thy fathers knew not, that

Exod. 16.
15.

7. — a good land, a land of brooks &c.] It was styled in general “the pleasant land,” Ps. cvii. 24; Dan. viii. 9. And Rabshakeb, the Assyrian, describes it as like his own, “a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards,” Is. xxxvi. 17. It must indeed have been a wonderfully rich and fertile land to produce its immense population, both before and after the conquest of the Israelites. Dr. Hales. Moses enlarges now more frequently and more fully than he ever did before, on the fertility and excellence of the promised land: this was natural; such a topic at an earlier period would have increased the murmurings and the impatience of the people at being detained in the wilderness; whereas now it encouraged them to encounter with more cheerfulness the opposition they must meet with from the inhabitants of Canaan. Dr. Graves.

8. A land of wheat, &c.] The value of the good things, here said to be produced in Canaan, can hardly be estimated by us in Europe: “fountains, brooks, depths of water, wheat, barley, vines, fig trees, pomegranates, oil,” (oil in the East answers the purposes of butter among ourselves,) “and honey.” And whose “stones” (ver 9) are capable of being smelted down to “iron;” and whose mines furnish “copper;” not “brass,” this being a factitious metal, composed of copper as one part only, zinc being the other. Script. illust. These useful minerals, as plentiful as stones were in other places, are the rather mentioned, because there were no such mines in Egypt, where the Israelites had long dwelt. Bp. Patrick.

10. — then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God] Thou shalt give solemn thanks to God, not only for the present repast, but for the plentiful provision, He had made for thee, of all good things, in the land He hath bestowed on thee. From this place the Jews have made it a general rule, that “every one bless God at his meals.” Bp. Patrick. The general meaning of the precept is, Look up to God through every instance of His temporal blessings; and let your religious thankfulness keep pace with the plenty you enjoy. Pyle.

11. Beware that thou forget not &c.] Think what will be the natural effects of ease, plenty, and pleasure, without a sense of religion and virtue. Ease will beget luxury; and riches, that pride, scorn, and contempt of others, which will end in a forgetfulness of God Himself, the Author of your deliverance and prosperity. Pyle.

The generality of mankind remember most things better than benefits; those especially which have been conferred upon them by their heavenly Father and Friend. And if the case be so bad with individuals in this respect, there is no reason to suppose it better with communities; where, the benefit being shared by so many, each is apt to consider his own portion of it as small, and scarcely worth notice; where that which should be done by every body is often done by nobody; and where the guilt of ingratitude, like the value of the benefit, by being divided, seems, in the conscience of every single member, to be diminished, and as it were brought to nothing. The astonishing instances of forgetfulness among the ancient people of God are recorded and reproved for our admonition in the Scriptures of truth: and parallel instances among Christians, notwithstanding such admonition, will present themselves to him who is disposed to behold them. Bp. Horne.

14. Then thine heart be lifted up, &c.] The descriptions, which we meet with in the Bible, of pride, in the sense of a proud disposition of the heart towards God, are very numerous; and always represent it to us in the most odious and detestable light. The expression commonly used for it is that of a “lifting up” or “exalting of the heart” against God. So Moses cautions the Israelites in this passage. Thus we read, that “the heart of Uzziah was lifted up to his destruction, for he transgressed against the Lord his God,” 2 Chron. xxvi. 16; and of Hezekiah, that “his heart was lifted up;” and afterwards that “he humbled himself for the pride of his heart,” 2 Chron. xxxii. 25, 26; and of Nebuchadnezzar it is said, with a peculiar emphasis, that “his heart was lifted up, and his mind hardened in pride,” Dan. v. 20. In the New Testament the same sin is described and condemned in the same language: the conclusion, which our blessed Lord draws from the parable of the Pharisee, deserves our attention: “Every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted,” Luke xviii. 14. And the subduing of this spiritual pride is elegantly described by St. Paul, by “casting down imaginations,” or human reasonings, which are ever apt to oppose the Divine will, “and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God; and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ,” 2 Cor. x. 5. It is chiefly from this kind of pride that we pray in the Litany to be delivered: and earnestly ought we to pray that our blessed Saviour would deliver us from this fatal snare of the devil, lest being “lifted up with pride, we fall into his condemnation;” and that He would dispose us, by the influence of His Holy Spirit, to imitate the pattern of lowliness, which He hath set us, and to “walk humbly with our God.” Waldo.

15. — fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought,] For the fiery serpents see the note on Numb. xxi. 6. The “scorpion” is an insect with a great sting at the end of its tail. In hot countries, as in the desert between Judea and Egypt, they are companions with serpents, and their venom is equally fatal. In Africa they grow to a great size: and are sometimes as big as a small lobster

Before
CHRIST
1451.

he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, to do thee good at thy latter end;

17 And thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth.

18 But thou shalt remember the LORD thy God: for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day.

19 And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the LORD thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish.

20 As the nations which the LORD destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the LORD your God.

CHAP. IX.

Moses dissuadeth them from the opinion of their own righteousness, by rehearsing their several rebellions.

which they somewhat resemble. The word rendered "drought" is thought by some to signify a serpent, whose bite causes intolerable thirst, the "Dipsas:" others suppose it to signify a thirsty, dry, uncultivated desert. Script. illust.

16. — to do thee good at thy latter end;] When we provoke God to treat us with harshness and severity, He still, like a kind and tenderhearted father, aims at our benefit and advantage. He designs kindness to the sons of men by all those judgments, which do not kill and cut them off from the opportunity and possibility of improving them. If He sends evils upon us, it is that thereby He may do us some greater good: if He afflicts us, it is not because it is pleasant to Him to deal harshly with us, but because it is profitable and necessary for us so to be dealt with: and if at any time He imbitter our lives by miseries and sufferings, it is because He is loth to see us perish in pleasant ways, and chooseth rather to be somewhat severe towards us, than suffer us to be utterly undone. This Moses declares to have been the great end of all the severe providences of God towards the people of Israel in their long wandering in the wilderness, and all the difficulties and hardships they were there exercised with for the space of forty years. So that the afflicting providences of God are not only apt in their own nature to do us good, but, which is a more express argument of the Divine goodness, God intends and aims at this end by them. Abp. Tillotson.

20. — so shall ye perish;] It appears from various passages in Scripture, that God's abhorrence and treatment of the crimes, for which He destroyed the nations of Canaan, were impartial, without distinction, and without respect of nations or persons. The Divine impartiality is pointed out by such words as these, in which Moses warns the Israelites against falling into any of the like wicked courses: "that the land cast not you out also, when ye defile it, as it cast out the nations that were before you: for whoever shall commit any of these abominations, even the souls that commit them shall be cut off from among their people." The Jews are sometimes called the chosen and favoured people of God; and in a certain sense, and for some purposes, they were so: yet is this very people, both in this place and in other places, over and over again reminded, that if they followed the same practices, they must expect the same fate. "Ye shall not walk in the manners of the nations, which I cast out before you: for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhorred them: as

BEFORE, O Israel: Thou art to pass over Jordan this day, to go in to possess nations greater and mightier than thyself, cities great and fenced up to heaven,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 A people great and tall, * the children of the Anakims, whom thou knowest, and of whom thou hast heard say, Who can stand before the children of Anak!

^a Numb.
13. 28.

3 Understand therefore this day, that the LORD thy God is he which goeth over before thee; as a ^b consuming fire he shall destroy them, and he shall bring them down before thy face: so shalt thou drive them out, and destroy them quickly, as the LORD hath said unto thee.

^b Chap. 4.
24.
11ebr. 12.
29.

4 Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the LORD thy God hath cast them out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the LORD hath brought me in to possess this land: but for the wickedness of these nations the LORD doth drive them out from before thee.

5 Not for thy righteousness, or for the uprightness of thine heart, dost thou go to the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish: because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the Lord your God." Archdeacon Paley.

The admonition of St. Paul is most just, That if God spared not the natural branches of His Church, but broke them off because they grew wild, and brought forth sour fruit; much less reason have we to expect that He should spare us, if we are as impious towards Him, and as profligate in our manners, as His first people were. For we are not redeemed with the blood of bulls and goats, but with the invaluable sacrifice of His own well-beloved Son. And "if he, that despised Moses' law, died without mercy," being convicted by the testimony of "two or three witnesses, of how much sorer punishment shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?" Heb. x. 28, 29. Reading.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — this day.] That is, shortly, not long hence.

3. — destroy them quickly,] That is, certainly and effectually. in your successive expeditions against the several parts of the country. Pyle.

4. — For my righteousness &c.] Nothing is more dangerous than pride and self-conceit. Therefore as he taught them before, chap. viii. 17, to have an humble opinion of their own power; so now he teaches them not to arrogate any thing to themselves, on account of their own righteousness. Bp. Patrick.

5. Not for thy righteousness, &c.] It was of great moment, and therefore Moses repeats it, that they should understand the true causes, why God expelled these nations, and gave their land to the Israelites, namely, 1st, The abominable wickedness of the Canaanites, for which they deserved to be rooted out. 2dly, God's gracious promises to the pious ancestors of the Israelites, with whom He had made a covenant, and confirmed it with an oath, to plant them there, in the room of the former inhabitants. Bp. Patrick.

It may be thought, that the Jews, being God's chosen people, ought to be found superiour in benevolence, as well as every other virtue, to the rest of mankind. But it must ever be remembered what God Himself frequently declares, that it was not for their 1451.

Before
CHRIST

possess their land: but for the wickedness of these nations the Lord thy God doth drive them out from before thee, and that he may perform the word which the Lord sware unto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

6 Understand therefore, that the Lord thy God giveth thee not this good land to possess it for thy righteousness; for thou art a stiffnecked people.

7 ¶ Remember, and forget not, how thou provokedst the Lord thy God to wrath in the wilderness: from the day that thou didst depart out of the land of Egypt, until ye came unto this place, ye have been rebellious against the Lord.

8 Also in Horeb ye provoked the Lord to wrath, so that the Lord was angry with you to have destroyed you.

9 When I was gone up into the mount to receive the tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant which the Lord made with you, then ^c I abode in the mount forty days and forty nights, I neither did eat bread nor drink water:

10 ^d And the Lord delivered unto me two tables of stone written with the finger of God; and on them was written accord-

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^c Exod. 24.
18. & 34.
28.

^d Exod. 31.
18.

“own sakes,” for their “own righteousness,” that they were chosen, but for other reasons; for preserving the knowledge, and promoting the worship, of the one true God; for manifesting His Divine power in the working of miracles, and for executing His judgments on those impenitent nations, whose enormous wickedness was then ripe for vengeance. The moral goodness therefore of the Jews being no peculiar object of God’s choice, we are not on that account merely to expect from them any uncommon degrees of virtue, or any exemption from the reigning vices of their age. Bp. Porteus.

—[for the wickedness of these nations] It is a thing especially to be observed, that the nations of Canaan were destroyed for their wickedness. In proof of this, let the reader refer to the 18th chap. of Leviticus, the 24th and the following verses, where Moses, after laying down prohibitions against brutal and abominable vices, thus proceeds: “Defile not ye yourselves, &c.” 1st, This passage testifies the principal point: namely, that the Canaanites were the wicked people we represent them to be; and that this point does not rest upon supposition, but upon proof: in particular, the following words contain an express assertion of the guilt of that people; “In all these the nations are defiled which I cast out before you: for all these abominations have the men of the land done.” 2dly, The form and turn of expression seems to shew, that these detestable practices were general amongst them, and habitual: they are said to be “abominable customs” which were committed. Now the word “custom” is not applicable to a few single or extraordinary instances, but to usage and to national character: which argues, that not only the practice, but the sense and notion, of morality was corrupted amongst them, or lost. And it is observable, that these practices, so far from being checked by their religion, formed a part of it. They are described not only under the name of “abominations,” but of “abominations which they have done unto their gods,” Deut. xii. 31. What a state of national morals must that have been! 3dly, This passage, in common with many others, positively and directly asserts, that it was for these sins that the nations of Canaan were destroyed. This is the important part of the inquiry. And what do the words of Moses declare? “In all these,” namely, the odious and brutal vices, which had been spoken of, “the nations are defiled, which I cast out before you: and the land is defiled: therefore I do visit the iniquity thereof upon it.” This is the reason and cause of the calamities which I bring on it. The land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants. The very land is sick of its inhabitants: of their odious and brutal practices; of their corruption and wickedness. This, and no other, was the reason for destroying them. This, and no other, is the reason here alleged. It was not, as hath been imagined, to make way for the Israelites; nor was it simply for their idolatry. Archdeacon Paley.

—and that he may perform the word &c.] Four hundred years before the event, the fate of these nations was revealed to Abraham. The long suffering of God waited so long, till their iniquities should come to the full, Gen. xv. 16. It was for the wickedness of these nations they were expelled, and the Israelites were put in possession of their land, not for their own righteousness, or merits, for they were a stiffnecked people, but to perform the covenant which God made with their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. These nations had repeated warnings from God, to repent and reform their evil ways, in an awful succession of judgments, signs, and wonders, inflicted on the neighbouring nations for their wickedness. 1st, In the signal destruction of the cities of the plain, Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, Zeboim, by the immediate vengeance of Heaven, destroyed by fire and brimstone, or lightning, and overwhelmed by the Salt sea. 2dly, In the plagues of Egypt, and destruction of the Egyptians in the Red sea, forty years before, for abominations resembling their own, Lev. xviii. 3. 3dly, In the recent destruction of their neighbours, the Eastern Amorites, and the miraculous passage of the river Jordan. All these terrified, but did not reform them. See Josh. ii. 9; ix. 24. Dr. Hales. We may observe the great reason, why God took such a distinguishing care of this people, was not “for their righteousness” or merits, but to make His own name and power to be known through the earth. In order to this, He kept them under discipline forty years; He gave them laws proper to cure and keep them from idolatry; He bore long with their perverseness, and at last brought them to Canaan, a land situate in the midst of the nations; that “as a city upon a hill,” they might be seen by all well-disposed persons, and afford them an opportunity of coming to the knowledge of the true God, and of His glorious attributes. To manifest His justice, He spared them not when they notoriously transgressed His laws. To shew His goodness, He had pity on them when they repented. And, to shew His faithfulness to His promises, He preserved them many and many a time from ruin; and they continue a people to this day. Bp. Wilson.

7. —[from the day that thou didst depart &c.] No historian ever placed his nation in so unfavourable a light as Moses. We meet with a continual detail of discontent and murmuring, of disobedience and rebellion towards God, and of punishments in consequence of this behaviour. At one time there fell three thousand men for their idolatry, Exod. xxxii. 28. At another time, upon the rebellion of Korah, a large family by the earth’s opening was swallowed up quick; and two hundred and fifty men were consumed by an eruption of fire, Numb. xvi. 32, 35. At the same time a plague broke out, and carried off fourteen thousand and seven hundred persons. Another judgment in the same way carried off no less than twenty-four thousand, Numb. xxv. 9. All this is said to have been brought upon them, for their not attending to God’s signs and wonders, and for their disobedience to His express commands. If there was no truth in these facts, for what end could Moses introduce them to the disparagement of his brethren? It is well known how disaffected they were at times towards him, so as even to meditate his death: yet he wrote these things, and what he wrote he read before them. Was this the way to gain good will? Could these upbraidings conciliate their favour? He must have been upholden in all he said, and in all he did: and there was a sanction to his law from above, or he could not have succeeded, or even escaped their malice. Bryant.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

ing to all the words, which the LORD spake with you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly.

11 And it came to pass at the end of forty days and forty nights, that the LORD gave me the two tables of stone, even the tables of the covenant.

^c Exod. 32.
7.

12 And the LORD said unto me, 'Arise, get thee down quickly from hence; for thy people which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt have corrupted themselves; they are quickly turned aside out of the way which I commanded them; they have made them a molten image.

13 Furthermore the LORD spake unto me, saying, I have seen this people, and, behold, it is a stiffnecked people:

14 Let me alone, that I may destroy them, and blot out their name from under heaven: and I will make of thee a nation mightier and greater than they.

15 So I turned and came down from the mount, and the mount burned with fire: and the two tables of the covenant were in my two hands.

16 And I looked, and, behold, ye had sinned against the LORD your God, and had made you a molten calf: ye had turned aside quickly out of the way which the LORD had commanded you.

17 And I took the two tables, and cast them out of my two hands, and brake them before your eyes.

18 And I fell down before the LORD, as at the first, forty days and forty nights: I did neither eat bread, nor drink water, because of all your sins which ye sinned, in doing wickedly in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

19 For I was afraid of the anger and hot displeasure, wherewith the LORD was wroth against you to destroy you. But the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also.

14. Let me alone, that I may destroy them, &c.] The awful menace of God to destroy the Jews, and raise from Moses a nation mightier than they, is here introduced with great propriety. For nothing could conduce more to inculcate deeply the humiliating but necessary truth of their own unworthiness, than to state to them, that the greatness of their rebellion had almost induced that God, in whom they trusted, totally to disinherit and destroy them, and raise up another nation in their place. Dr. Graves.

27. — look not unto the stubbornness of this people, &c.] He prays that the gracious promise of God to their pious forefathers would move Him to overlook the high provocations of their posterity: which he aggravates in several words the more to humble them, and to magnify God's mercy in granting them a pardon. Bp. Patrick.

Of all the attributes of God, forbearance perhaps is that which we have most to acknowledge. We cannot want occasions to bring the remembrance of it to our thoughts. Have there not been occasions, in which, ensnared by vice, we might have been 20 And the LORD was very angry with Aaron to have destroyed him: and I prayed for Aaron also the same time.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

21 And I took your sin, the calf which ye had made, and burnt it with fire, and stamped it, and ground it very small, even until it was as small as dust: and I cast the dust thereof into the brook that descended out of the mount.

22 And at ^f Taberah, and at ^g Massah, and at ^h Kibroth-hattaavah, ye provoked the LORD to wrath.

^f Numb.
11. 1, 3.
^g Exod. 17.
7.
^h Numb.
11. 34.

23 Likewise when the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, saying, Go up and possess the land which I have given you; then ye rebelled against the commandment of the LORD your God, and ye believed him not, nor hearkened to his voice.

24 Ye have been rebellious against the LORD from the day that I knew you.

25 Thus I fell down before the LORD forty days and forty nights, as I fell down at the first; because the LORD had said he would destroy you.

26 I prayed therefore unto the LORD, and said, O Lord God, destroy not thy people and thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed through thy greatness, which thou hast brought forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand.

27 Remember thy servants, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; look not unto the stubbornness of this people, nor to their wickedness, nor to their sin:

28 Lest the land whence thou broughtest us out say, ⁱ Because the LORD was not able to bring them into the land which he promised them, and because he hated them, he hath brought them out to slay them in the wilderness.

ⁱ Numb.
14. 16.

29 Yet they are thy people and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest out by thy mighty power and by thy stretched out arm.

detected and exposed; have been crushed by punishment or shame; have been irrecoverably ruined? occasions, in which we might have been suddenly stricken with death, in a state of soul the most unfit for it that was possible? That we were none of these, that we have been preserved from these dangers, that our sin was not our destruction, that instant judgment did not overtake us, is to be attributed to the longsuffering of God. We were not destroyed, when we might have been destroyed, and when we merited destruction. We have been reserved for further trial. This is, or ought to be, a touching reflection. How deeply therefore does it behove us, not to trifle with the patience of God, not to abuse this enlarged space, this respited, protracted season of repentance, by plunging afresh into the same crimes, or other, or greater crimes? It shows that we are not wrought upon by mercy; that our gratitude is not moved; that things are wrong within us; that there is a deplorable void and chasm in our religious principles, the love of God not being present in our hearts. Archdeacon Paley.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

CHAP. X.

1491.

• Exod. 34.
1.

1 God's mercy in restoring the two tables, 6 in continuing the priesthood, 8 in separating the tribe of Levi, 10 in hearkening unto Moses his suit for the people. 12 An exhortation unto obedience.

† Heb. words.• Numb.
33, 30.
• Numb.
20, 28.

AT that time the LORD said unto me, ^a Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood.

2 And I will write on the tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark.

3 And I made an ark of shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in mine hand.

4 And he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, the ten † commandments, which the LORD spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the LORD gave them unto me.

5 And I turned myself and came down from the mount, and put the tables in the ark which I had made; and there they be, as the LORD commanded me.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel took their journey from Beeroth of the children of Jaakan to ^b Mosera: ^c there Aaron died, and there he was buried; and Eleazar his son ministered in the priest's office in his stead.

Chap. X. ver. 6. — there Aaron died,] That is, at Mosera. In Numbers xx. 25 it is said, that he died at mount Hor. But it is no unusual thing for one place to have different names, especially with respect to its several parts. Thus Horeb and Sinai were two names of the same mountain: and Mosera might be another name for Hor, or the name of a place adjoining to it. Bp. Kidder. See the map of the stations of the Israelites.

— and Eleazar his son ministered &c.] The connexion which this and the following verse have with what went before, appears to be this: Moses having told them, that he put the tables of the testimony or covenant into the ark, as a token of God's being reconciled to them, and that there they still were as the LORD commanded; he puts them out of all doubt by telling them, that though Aaron, who had the special care of the Holy place, was dead, yet Eleazar his son was still alive, who could testify those holy things remained, as when Moses first placed them there: he having been consecrated to the priest's office instead of Aaron, and in this very mount, which is the occasion of mentioning this station here, when most of the rest are omitted. Bp. Patrick.

12. — what doth the Lord thy God require of thee,] What now ought to be your behaviour, in return for such a degree of pardoning mercy, that has restored you to such blessed privileges of the Divine covenant? What can it be less, than a careful and conscientious regard to all His Divine commands; but especially to those moral precepts, that are in their own nature so good and beneficial to be put in practice? In this you are to show the fear, love, honour, and reverence you bear towards the great and good God. Pyle.

Moses in this place exhorts them to obedience from very pow-

7 From thence they journeyed unto Gudgodah; and from Gudgodah to Jotbath, a land of rivers of waters. Before
CHRIST
1451.

8 ¶ At that time the LORD separated the tribe of Levi, to bear the ark of the covenant of the LORD, to stand before the LORD to minister unto him, and to bless in his name, unto this day.

9 ^d Wherefore Levi hath no part nor inheritance with his brethren; the LORD is his inheritance, according as the LORD thy God promised him. ^d Numb.
18, 20.

10 And I stayed in the mount, according to the || first time, forty days and forty nights; and the LORD hearkened unto me at that time also, and the LORD would not destroy thee. 1491.
|| Or, former days.

11 And the LORD said unto me, Arise, † take thy journey before the people, that they may go in and possess the land, which I swear unto their fathers to give unto them. † Heb.
go in journey.

12 ¶ And now, Israel, what doth the LORD thy God require of thee, but to fear the LORD thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the LORD thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, 13 To keep the commandments of the LORD, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?

14 Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD's thy God, ^e the earth also, with all that therein is. ^e Psal. 24.
1.

erful arguments: namely, 1st, from the consideration of God's former mercies, ver. 10, 11, 22: 2dly, from His sovereign authority, ver. 14: 3dly, from His peculiar kindness to them, ver. 15: 4thly, from His infinite power, ver. 17: and 5thly, from His inflexible justice, ver. 17, 18. Bp. Kidder.

— to fear the Lord thy God, — and to love him, &c.] The genuine love of God includes all those mingled sentiments of fear, awe, admiration, veneration, gratitude, and love, which the contemplation of such a perfect character, as that of the Deity, naturally and necessarily suggests. Bp. Butler.

The true principles of Christian obedience, as they are every where set forth in Scripture, are the love and fear of God: which are so far from being inconsistent with each other, that they are really inseparable; the one deterring us from sin, the other exciting us to virtue and righteousness. They are both put together in these expressive words, in which Moses sums up his exhortations to the Israelites: "And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, &c." The royal preacher concludes his discourse to the same effect, but more shortly, thus: "Fear God, and keep His commandments: for this is the whole duty," or the whole business, "of man," Eccles. xii. 13. And St. John tells us, "This is the love of God, that we keep His commandments," 1 John v. 3. In the former passage, the fear of God evidently includes the love of Him; as in the latter the love does by no means exclude the fear: the following words being the same in each, that we "keep His commandments." With the strictest propriety therefore we are taught to pray in our Liturgy, for "an heart" disposed "to love and dread," or fear God, "and diligently to live after," or according to, "His commandments." Waldo. See the notes on chap. vi. 5, and 13.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

15 Only the LORD had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all people, as it is this day.

16 Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart, and be no more stiffnecked.

17 For the LORD your God is God of gods, and Lord of lords, a great God, a mighty, and a terrible, which ^f regardeth not persons, nor taketh reward :

18 He doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and widow, and loveth the stranger, in giving him food and raiment.

19 Love ye therefore the stranger : for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

20 ^g Thou shalt fear the LORD thy God ; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou cleave, and swear by his name.

^c 2 Chron.
19. 7.
Job 34. 19.
Acts 10. 34.
Rom. 2. 11.
Gal. 2. 6.
Ephes. 6. 9.
Col. 3. 25.
1 Pet. 1. 17.
^e Chap. 6.
13.
Matt. 4. 10.
Luke 4. 8.
^a Chap. 13.
4.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

21 He is thy praise, and he is thy God, that hath done for thee these great and terrible things, which thine eyes have seen.

22 Thy fathers went down into Egypt ⁱ with threescore and ten persons ; and now the LORD thy God hath made thee ^k as the stars of heaven for multitude.

ⁱ Gen. 46.
27.
Exod. 1. 5.
^k Gen. 15.
5.

CHAP. XI.

1 An exhortation to obedience, 2 by their own experience of God's great works, 8 by promise of God's great blessings, 16 and by threatenings. 18 A careful study is required in God's words. 26 The blessing and curse is set before them.

THEREFORE thou shalt love the LORD thy God, and keep his charge, and his statutes, and his judgments, and his commandments, alway.

15. Only the Lord had a delight in thy fathers &c.] He would have them sensible, that the Possessor of heaven and earth could have no need of them or of their services, so inconsiderable a part as they were of His creatures. But it was His own mere good will and pleasure, which moved Him to show such love, as He had shown, to Abraham, and to his posterity for his sake, above all other nations on earth. Bp. Patrick.

16. Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart,] Satisfy not yourselves in the mere outward badge and character of God's church and people. Let not your religion rest in external rites, and the observances of ceremonial worship : but let your chief aim be, to attain those inward dispositions of mind, and to reform those sinful passions and affections, that are intended and represented by such external ordinances ; in order to prevent the miscarriages to which you have hitherto been subject. Pyle.

As circumcision was a rite, which united the family of Abraham, as having the same faith, worship, and privileges, and kept them separate from other nations, who had corrupted the faith and worship of the true God, and had lost the privileges of a true Church : so also it was most proper to teach the obligations of an holy nation, in purity of heart and holiness of life, of which circumcision was so proper a figurative instruction. Moses expresses these obligations in this precept ; "Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your heart : " and to the like effect, "The Lord thy God will circumcise thine heart &c." chap. xxx. 6. This shews that circumcision was designed to teach the inward circumcision of the heart, as being preferable to outward circumcision in the acceptance and approbation of God. And this great use of it gave St. Paul just reason to argue, "He is a Jew, which is one inwardly ; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter ; whose praise is not of men, but of God," Rom. ii. 29. Lowman.

17. For the Lord your God is God of gods, &c.] The sovereignty, the power, the justice, the impartiality, the lovingkindness, and the bounty of God, are here brought forward as a ground of admonition to the Israelites to be kind and hospitable to the distressed ; especially to "the stranger," who might be driven unjustly from his own country, or, as he was travelling on his honest occasions, might fall into want. This is a virtue which flows from the love of God ; for it is in vain to pretend that we love Him, if we love not all mankind. This love is shown by our imitating God's care of "the stranger," and the distressed, and acting, as He is described to act towards them ; namely, by doing them justice equally with others, and giving them food and raiment. This virtue was peculiarly required of the Jews, who had been in that condition, which he commanded them to pity : and if they had sincerely practised towards aliens the duty thus enjoined them, the grace of God shown to the Gentiles in our blessed Saviour would not have seemed so strange to them as it did. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. Therefore thou shalt love the Lord thy God, &c.] There could not be a better way found out, though that was not sufficient to keep the children of Israel in their integrity towards God, than by frequently putting them in mind, and fixing in their memory the history of all the miracles which He had wrought for them, from the time of their being in Egypt, to their being in a triumphant condition in the land of Canaan : in which they had been eyewitnesses of more and greater miracles, than all the world besides had been acquainted with from the time of the deluge. All that He expected from them for all His mercies, was, that they would acknowledge Him their God, depend upon Him, and not have recourse to other gods, from whom they had received no benefit, and who never had done, nor ever could do, good for those who depended on them. And if the memory of all the wonders He had done in Egypt, their walking through the sea as upon dry land, and seeing all those, who pursued them, covered and drowned in that very sea : if their having found bread in the wilderness, and a dry rock having given them drink, when they were on the point of fainting : if the subduing many nations, and more warlike than themselves, and putting them into the quiet possession of their habitations and dominions : if all this would not imprint a notion of His omnipotence and paternal affection in their hearts in such indelible characters, that they should never be in doubt to whom they ought to pay their vows, or whither to repair in their distress ; they must be more brutish creatures, and more unworthy of His future protection and preservation, than the fowls of the air or the beasts of the field.

We are much more inexcusable than these Israelites, if, after the clear and full information, which we have received and which is every day inculcated, of the history of the whole life and death of our Saviour, the infinite benefits, which we have received from Him, and the infinite torments which He endured for us, we do ever forget the matter or manner of those obligations ; and if we do remember them, and the reason and the end of His conferring them, we have done all He expects from us. But if, by the vain hopes or fears of this world, our ambition of honour and preferment, or our apprehension of punishment or disgrace, we are startled in the performance of our duty to Him and observation of His commands, we have, though we pretend what we will, forgot all He did and all He said ; how much He despised the world, and all the temptations thereof, out of His love and value to us, and only to teach us the way to come to Him in a better world. If we are terrified by the power and threats of princes, from doing any thing which He hath enjoined us, or to do any thing that He hath forbidden ; we have forgotten that kings are to tremble before Him for those very threats, and for using the power He hath given them, so unrighteously : whilst we shall at the same time be commended and justified for being resolute in His commandments. Lord Clarendon.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 And know ye this day: for I speak not with your children which have not known, and which have not seen the chastisement of the Lord your God, his greatness, his mighty hand, and his stretched out arm,

3 And his miracles, and his acts, which he did in the midst of Egypt unto Pharaoh the king of Egypt, and unto all his land;

4 And what he did unto the army of Egypt, unto their horses, and to their chariots; how he made the water of the Red sea to overflow them as they pursued after you, and how the Lord hath destroyed them unto this day;

5 And what he did unto you in the wilderness, until ye came into this place;

6 And ^{*}what he did unto Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, the son of Reuben: how the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up, and their households, and their tents, and all the ^{||} substance that [†]was in their possession, in the midst of all Israel:

7 But your eyes have seen all the great acts of the Lord which he did.

8 Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this

* Numb.
16. 31. &
27. 3.
Psal. 106.
17.

|| Or, living substance
which followed them.
† Heb.
was at their feet.

10. For the land, whither thou goest &c.] Moses uses all manner of arguments to persuade them to obedience: from a grateful remembrance of God's former mercies, ver. 2, 3, &c. from the terrible punishment of the disobedient, ver. 6, from the benefits that would redound to themselves for their obedience, ver. 9. And now he represents to them what a noble country He was going to bestow on them, but of such a condition as would keep them in a constant dependence upon His favour for the blessing of it. Bp. Patrick.

— is not as the land of Egypt,] The comparison between Canaan and the land of Egypt is not designed to have respect to its fruitfulness; but to make the Israelites sensible, that they were immediately dependent on God's good providence, and that they ought therefore to endeavour to please Him, who alone is able to send fruitful seasons. Bp. Kidder.

— wateredst it with thy foot,] Such vegetable productions, as require more moisture than is occasioned by the inundation of the Nile, are refreshed by water drawn out of the river by instruments, and lodged in capacious cisterns. When therefore their various sorts of pulse, melons, sugar canes, &c. all which are commonly ploughed in rills, require to be refreshed, they strike out the plugs from the bottom of the cisterns; and then the water gushing out is conducted from rill to rill by the gardener; who is always ready, as occasion requires, to stop and divert the torrent, by turning the earth against it, by his foot, and opening at the same time with his mattock a new trench to receive it. This method of conveying moisture and nourishment to a land, rarely, if ever refreshed by rain, is often alluded to in the Holy Scriptures: where also it is made the distinguishing quality betwixt Egypt and the land of Canaan; as in this passage of Deuteronomy. Dr. Shaw.

Palestine has rains, plentiful dews, springs, rivulets, brooks, which supply the earth with the moisture necessary to its fruitfulness: whereas Egypt has no river but the Nile; there it seldom or never rains; and the lands, which are not within reach of the inundation, continue parched and barren. To supply this want, ditches are dug, and water is distributed throughout the several day, that ye may be strong, and go in and possess the land, whither ye go to possess it; Before

CHRIST
1451.

9 And that ye may prolong your days in the land, which the Lord sware unto your fathers to give unto them and to their seed, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 ¶ For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with thy foot, as a garden of herbs:

11 But the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven:

12 A land which the Lord thy God [†]careth for: the eyes of the Lord thy God [†]are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year. † Heb.
seeketh.

13 ¶ And it shall come to pass, if ye shall hearken diligently unto my commandments which I command you this day, to love the Lord your God, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul,

14 That I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, the first rain and the latter rain, that thou mayest gather in thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil.

villages and cantons: there are great struggles, who shall first get it; and in this dispute they often come to blows. Notwithstanding these precautions, many places have no water; and in the course of the year, the places nearest the Nile require to be watered again by means of art and labour. It is done by the help of machines: one of which Philo describes, as a wheel, which a man turns with the motion of his feet, by ascending successively the several steps within it, holding in his hands a stay, or rail, placed before him, which is not moveable. This is what Moses means by saying, that in Egypt they water the earth with their feet. Calmel. No travellers give an account of such a machine as at present in use in Egypt: but Sir George Staunton, in his account of Lord Macartney's embassy to China, gives a figure, which so closely resembles the description of Philo, that, if not the same, it may serve to illustrate it. Fragments to Calmel.

13. And it shall come to pass, &c.] Know and be assured, the infinite Author of nature is not bound up to mere natural causes; rain and drought, spring and autumn, a scanty or plentiful harvest, are all at His will; dispensed and restrained, as He sees best, for blessings or for judgments upon any people. Canaan will be fruitful to you, only in proportion to your religious observance of the laws of the great God, who bestowed it upon you. Pyle.

— to love the Lord your God,] He repeats this so often, because it is “the great commandment,” as our Saviour speaks; and because nothing is so natural as to love our benefactors; especially our greatest Benefactor, who gave us our being, with all our heart and with all our soul. And being “the first and great commandment,” this draws along with it obedience to all the rest, and is in effect the whole duty of man to God: for constant experience shows us, that whosoever gets firm hold of this affection, governs a man as he pleaseth. Bp. Patrick.

14. — the first rain and the latter rain,] The first, or the autumnal rain, before seedtime, to prepare the ground for being broken up to receive the seed; the latter, or the vernal, before harvest, to fill the ears of corn. Dr. Blayney.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} 15 And I will † send grass in thy fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest eat and be full.

† Heb. give. 16 Take heed to yourselves, that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and serve other gods, and worship them ;

17 And then the LORD's wrath be kindled against you, and he shut up the heaven, that there be no rain, and that the land yield not her fruit ; and lest ye perish quickly from off the good land which the LORD giveth you.

18 ¶ Therefore shall ye lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes.

^{b Chap. 6. 8.} 19 ^{c Chap. 4. 10. & 6. 7.} And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

20 And thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house, and upon thy gates :

21 That your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers to give them, as the days of heaven upon the earth.

22 ¶ For if ye shall diligently keep all

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} these commandments which I command you, to do them, to love the LORD your God, to walk in all his ways, and to cleave unto him ;

23 Then will the LORD drive out all these nations from before you, and ye shall possess greater nations and mightier than yourselves.

24 ^{d Josh. 1. 3.} Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be your's : from the wilderness and Lebanon, from the river, the river Euphrates, even unto the uttermost sea shall your coast be.

25 There shall no man be able to stand before you : for the LORD your God shall lay the fear of you and the dread of you upon all the land that ye shall tread upon, as he hath said unto you.

26 ¶ Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse ;

27 ^{e Chap. 28. 2.} A blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the LORD your God, which I command you this day :

28 And a ^{f Chap. 28. 15.} curse, if ye will not obey the commandments of the LORD your God, but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, which ye have not known.

29 And it shall come to pass, when the LORD thy God hath brought thee in unto the land whither thou goest to possess it, that thou shalt put ^{g Chap. 27. 13.} the blessing upon Josh. 8. 23.

17. And then the Lord's wrath be kindled against you.] Moses having cautioned the Israelites against the specious pretences, by which other nations justified their idolatry, such as its antiquity, universal consent, &c.; and by which the Israelites were in danger of being seduced into an imitation of their neighbours: apprizes them, that the wrath of the Lord would be the consequence of their seduction: and that their being deceived into idolatry by false reasonings, which persuaded them that what they did was lawful, would not excuse them before God, who expected them to use greater caution, and to govern themselves by His plain and express commands. Bp. Patrick.

19. And ye shall teach them your children.] This is repeated very often, chap. iv. 10; vi. 7. The Jews do this so diligently, that as soon as their children are capable of understanding any thing, they make them carefully read the Holy Books: and instruct them so, that before they can be called youths, they are acquainted with the whole law of God. In this, we must confess, they shame a great many Christians, who scarce understand as much of their religion, when they are men and women, as the Jews do of theirs, when they are mere children. Bp. Patrick.

21. — as the days of heaven upon the earth.] That is, as long as the world endures. "While the heaven keeps its place over the earth," according to the Latin Vulgate. See Ps. lxxxix. 29; Jer. xxxiii. 25. Bp. Kidder.

27, 28. A blessing, — And a curse.] These are more particularly explained in chap. xxviii. This blessing and this curse are here represented as suspended respectively upon the obedience and disobedience of the people. And it is observable, that the whole historical part of the Old Testament witnesses the truth of this, that God blessed or cursed them, according as they kept or violated His laws. And if the people of Israel had diligently marked, considered, and laid to heart, that their happiness and misery were always correspondent to their good and bad behaviour towards God, it would have confirmed their belief of their law, as much as if they had seen all the miracles done in the presence of their forefathers, and would have supplied the want of rarity of them in afterages. Nay, this would have done more than was done by all the miracles, which were forgotten in a short time: whereas their own daily experience of the happy fruits of obedience and the mischief of disobedience would have sealed these truths unto their conscience. Bp. Patrick.

As often as the children of Israel, after their establishment in Canaan, rebelled against the Lord their God, He punished them by means of the neighbouring nations. When they returned to Him, His favour returned to them: the light of His countenance soon dispelled the darkest clouds of publick calamity, and brake forth upon them by means of deliverers, raised up to chastise the insolence of their enemies, and to restore tranquillity and happiness in the dwellings of Jacob. From thus considering God's proceedings, learn we to rectify and regulate our own. To punish wickedness and vice, to preserve and promote true religion and virtue, appears to have been the end and design of all His dispensations. Let it be the end and design of all our transactions. If the dealings of the Almighty with a people be squared by their dealings with His religion, the state of religion will always be the surest criterion, whereby to judge of the state of that nation, wherein it is planted: and there can be no greater enemies to their country, than those who are enemies to her: since concerning her HE hath declared, who cannot deceive, or be deceived, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn," Is. liv. 17. Bp. Horne.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} mount Gerizim, and the curse upon mount Ebal.

30 Are they not on the other side Jordan, by the way where the sun goeth down, in the land of the Canaanites, which dwell in the champaign over against Gilgal, beside the plains of Moreh?

31 For ye shall pass over Jordan to go in to possess the land which the LORD your God giveth you, and ye shall possess it, and dwell therein.

^{a Chap. 5. 32.} 32 And ye shall observe ^b to do all the statutes and judgments which I set before you this day.

CHAP. XII.

¹ Monuments of idolatry are to be destroyed. ⁵ The place of God's service is to be kept. 15, 23 Blood is forbidden. 17, 20, 26 Holy things must be eaten in the holy place. 19 The Levite is not to be forsaken. 29 Idolatry is not to be enquired after.

THESE are the statutes and judgments, which ye shall observe to do in the land, which the LORD God of thy fathers giveth thee to possess it, all the days that ye live upon the earth.

29. — mount Gerizim,] See chap. xxvii. 11, 12, &c. Josh. viii. 33, &c.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. These are the statutes &c.] Moses having still at heart the great dangers, to which his nation would be exposed, of being tempted into idolatrous practices after their settlement in the promised land in the neighbourhood of superstitious people, began a new exhortation to them, reminding them of the laws provided against it, as the indispensable conditions of their happy and peaceful enjoyment of that fruitful country. Pyle.

2. Ye shall utterly destroy all the places, &c.] God did not think it enough to forbid them idolatry, but commands them to destroy all the monuments and memorials of it: and His great care that they should flee from every sort and degree of it is testified farther by the following enumeration of particulars. Bp. Kidder.

— upon the high mountains, &c.] These were the places where the ancient heathens chose to worship their gods: imagining their sacrifices were more acceptable on mountains than in valleys. Lucian himself gives this reason for it, "Because men were then nearer to the gods, and so more easily gained audience." It was thought also that demons were wont to frequent woods and shady places, and there appear to men: and that some presided over mountains, others over woods and forests. Accordingly the heathens erected altars to them in these and the like places, particularly under great oaks, which were held sacred, and where their gods were thought to have a peculiar power. Pliny, in his work on natural history, speaking of trees, says, "These were the temples of the gods: and even now the simple people, after the ancient rites, dedicate to God such trees as excel the rest. Nor do we more adore the images glittering with gold and ivory, than we do the groves, and the solemn silence therein." Bp. Patrick.

3. — break their pillars, — hew down the graven images] It was the notion of the best of the heathens with respect to their worship, that "the host of heaven" were glorious bodies, wherein the gods dwelt: and they accordingly worshipped the sovereign celestial deities in the sun, moon, and stars, which they were supposed to inhabit. In the same manner they supposed that the demons, or inferiour deities, dwelt in the images and pillars which

2^a Ye shall utterly destroy all the places, wherein the nations which ye shall || possess served their gods, upon the high mountains, and upon the hills, and under every green tree:

3 And ^b ye shall † overthrow their altars, and break their pillars, and burn their groves with fire; and ye shall hew down the graven images of their gods, and destroy the names of them out of that place.

4 Ye shall not do so unto the LORD your God.

5 But unto the place which the LORD your God shall ^c choose out of all your tribes to put his name there, even unto his habitation shall ye seek, and thither thou shalt come:

6 And thither ye shall bring your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, and your tithes, and heave offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your freewill offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks:

7 And there ye shall eat before the were erected to them, and which were therefore made objects of worship, as the residences of such deities. Jos. Mede.

4. Ye shall not do so unto the Lord your God.] That is, not serve Him "upon the mountains, nor in groves, nor under green trees." It is very probable, that during their continuance in the wilderness, none sacrificed in high places, but offered all at the door of the tabernacle, which was not far from them. When they came into Canaan, and were many of them at a distance from the tabernacle, they did sacrifice in high places; and we do not find them reprov'd for it, while they worshipped the Lord alone, and had priests, who officiated there and in other places according to the precepts of the law. But when the temple was built, and the ark of God's presence no longer removed from place to place, the Prophets required them not to sacrifice any longer in high places, nor any where else, but only at the temple. And they blamed even good kings for not taking away the high places, though no sacrifices were offered upon them to any strange god, but to the true God alone. This connivance proved in time a great mischief: for here they first began to worship strange gods; the Israelites being very prone to choose mountains and such shady places, as the rest of the world did, wherein to set up their images, 2 Kings xvii. 10, 11; Ezek. xx. 28; Hos. iv. 13. Bp. Patrick.

5. — choose] Or set apart for that purpose, as He did Jerusalem afterwards, 1 Kings viii. 29; 2 Chron. vii. 12. "To put His name there;" that is, to dwell, or more especially to be present there, where He is worshipped according to His will. The name of God is put for God Himself: see Lev. xxiv. 11, 16, and 2 Sam. vi. 2. And so it is, where there is mention of calling on His name, building an house to His name, believing on His name, Ps. lxxx. 18; xxiii. 3; 1 Chron. xxii. 8. And that it is so in this place is evident from the words of God to Solomon concerning the temple which he had built, "I have chosen this place to Myself for an house of sacrifice," 2 Chron. vii. 12. So also in the following words of this verse, "unto His habitation shall ye seek." Bp. Kidder.

6. — your tithes,] Not those, which were to be paid to the Levites, or by them to the priests: but another, called the second tithe, which was to be set aside after that to the Levites was paid, and employed as is directed in chap. xiv. 22, 23, &c. Bp. Patrick.

7. — ye shall eat] Namely, your allotted part. Bp. Kidder.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.}

^a Chap. 7.

^{5.}

|| Or, inherit.

^b Judg. 2.

^{2.}

† Heb.

break down.

^c 1 Kings

8. 29.

2 Chron.

7. 12.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

LORD your God, and ye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand unto, ye and your households, wherein the LORD thy God hath blessed thee.

8 Ye shall not do after all the things that we do here this day, every man whatsoever is right in his own eyes.

9 For ye are not as yet come to the rest and to the inheritance, which the LORD your God giveth you.

10 But when ye go over Jordan, and dwell in the land which the LORD your God giveth you to inherit, and when he giveth you rest from all your enemies round about, so that ye dwell in safety;

11 Then there shall be a place which the LORD your God shall choose to cause his name to dwell there; thither shall ye bring all that I command you; your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, your tithes, and the heave offering of your hand, and all † your choice vows which ye vow unto the LORD:

† Heb.
the choice of your vows.

12 And ye shall rejoice before the LORD your God, ye, and your sons, and your daughters, and your menservants, and your maidservants, and the Levite that is within your gates; forasmuch as ^d he hath no part nor inheritance with you.

^d Chap. 10.
9.

13 Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in every place that thou seest:

14 But in the place which the LORD shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

15 Notwithstanding thou mayest kill and eat flesh in all thy gates, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee: the unclean and the clean may eat thereof, as of the roebuck, and as of the hart.

16 ^e Only ye shall not eat the blood; ye shall pour it upon the earth as water. ^e Chap. 15.
23.

17 ¶ Thou mayest not eat within thy gates the tithe of thy corn, or of thy wine, or of thy oil, or the firstlings of thy herds or of thy flock, nor any of thy vows which thou vowest, nor thy freewill offerings, or heave offering of thine hand:

18 But thou must eat them before the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates: and thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God in all that thou puttest thine hands unto.

19 ^f Take heed to thyself that thou forsake not the Levite † as long as thou livest upon thy earth. ^f Chap. 14.
27.
Ecclesiastes 7.31.
† Heb.
all thy days.

20 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall enlarge thy border, ^g as he hath promised thee, and thou shalt say, I will eat flesh, because thy soul longeth to eat flesh; thou mayest eat flesh, whatsoever thy soul lusteth after. ^g Gen. 28.
14.
chap. 19. 8.

21 If the place which the LORD thy God

— ye shall rejoice &c.] To the appointed place they were to bring all the solemn and voluntary offerings or sacrifices of particular persons, either by way of special vow, or expiation; or whereon to feast themselves, their families, and friends, in some place adjacent to the sanctuary, by way of religious rejoicing and grateful thankfulness, as being the people of God, communicating with Him at His own altar, and living under the blessing and comfort of His providence. Pyle.

8. — every man whatsoever is right in his own eyes.] This does not mean that there was no good order kept among them, or that they were at liberty to sacrifice where they pleased; but that in such an uncertain state, when they were removing from place to place, many took the liberty in those matters to do as they thought good. Bp. Patrick.

15. Notwithstanding thou mayest kill &c.] Whereas during their travels in the wilderness God enacted it as a law, that even all the beasts, that were killed by any Israelite for the use of his family, should be first presented to God at the tabernacle and there slain; in consequence of which the nation then lived, as it were, wholly on peace offerings, communicating with God even in their common food: it was allowed now that, after their settlement in Canaan, every man might kill any beasts, birds, &c. for his family provision, at home, without being obliged to bring it to the tabernacle or temple. Pyle.

— as of the roebuck, and as of the hart.] Why not as an ox or a lamb, for they were of more familiar use? The reason is plain. To prevent idolatry, in offering the blood to other gods, they were commanded to kill all the cattle, they ate, at the door of the tabernacle, as a peace offering, and sprinkle the blood on the altar. Lev. xvii. But wild beasts, that were clean, might be eaten, though their blood was not offered to God, ver. 13; because, being commonly killed before they were taken, their blood could not be sprinkled on the altar; and therefore it sufficed, in such cases, to pour out their blood wherever they were killed, and cover it with dust. And for the same reason, when the camp was broken up, wherein all the people were in the neighbourhood of the tabernacle, and when they were scattered in their habitations through all the land of Canaan, those, who were too far off from the temple, were excused from killing their tame cattle at Jerusalem, and sprinkling their blood on the altar: no more was required of them, than was required in killing a "roebuck," or any other clean wild beast: they were only to pour out the blood, and cover it with dust, and so they might eat the flesh. Locke.

16. — ye shall pour it &c.] "As water," that is, they were to pour it out with as little religious ceremony, as water. Calmet.

17. — the firstlings of thy herds &c.] The firstborn, strictly so called, belonged to the priests, Numb. xviii. 15. The firstlings, here spoken of, were probably such as were set apart and dedicated to God by the owner, after the setting aside of the firstborn. Bp. Kidder. It may be meant of the firstborn females, which the Lord may have chosen to have accounted in some sort sacred, by requiring them to be eaten at His sanctuary. The males only were the Lord's. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

hath chosen to put his name there be too far from thee, then thou shalt kill of thy herd and of thy flock, which the LORD hath given thee, as I have commanded thee, and thou shalt eat in thy gates whatsoever thy soul lusteth after.

22 Even as the roebuck and the hart is eaten, so thou shalt eat them: the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike.

† Heb. be strong.

23 Only † be sure that thou eat not the blood: for the blood is the life; and thou mayest not eat the life with the flesh.

24 Thou shalt not eat it; thou shalt pour it upon the earth as water.

25 Thou shalt not eat it; that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

26 Only thy holy things which thou hast, and thy vows, thou shalt take, and go unto the place which the LORD shall choose:

27 And thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, the flesh and the blood, upon the altar of the LORD thy God: and the blood of thy sacrifices shall be poured out upon the altar of the LORD thy God, and thou shalt eat the flesh.

28 Observe and hear all these words which I command thee, that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after

22. — the unclean and the clean shall eat of them alike.] While they were in the wilderness, only such as were clean, that is, not under any legal uncleanness, might eat flesh, because it was sanctified by being killed at the altar: now all were to be indulged the same liberty. Bp. Patrick.

30. — enquire not after their gods.] The pretensions of the heathen deities being mutually acknowledged by their distinct and proper followers; and some, by the fortunate circumstances of these followers, being risen into superiour fame; the rites used in their worship were eagerly sought for and imitated. It was likewise a general principle, that the local god was to have a necessary share in the worship of all who settled in the country; and those, who were loth to leave their paternal gods when they sought new settlements, at least held themselves obliged to worship those gods with the rites, and according to the usages, of the country they came to inhabit. Against this more qualified principle of paganism Moses thinks fit to caution his people in this and the subsequent verses. Bp. Warburton.

31. Thou shalt not do so &c.] It appears extremely probable, that idolatry in those times led, in all countries, to the vices, of which the Canaanites were guilty: and also that the detestation, threats, and severities, expressed against idolatry in the Old Testament, were not against idolatry simply, or considered as an erroneous religion, but against the abominable crimes which usually accompanied it. I think it quite certain that the case was so in the nations of Canaan. Archdeacon Paley.

— for even their sons &c.] This is the great instance of their abominable wickedness. See Lev. xviii. 21; xx. 2. This was notoriously practised by the Carthaginians, who certainly derived it from the Phenicians, the ancient inhabitants of this country. Plato says, "The Athenian laws did not permit them to sacrifice men; but among the Carthaginians it was an holy rite; so that some of them permitted their sons to be offered to Saturn." This wicked custom at last overspread all nations, even the Greeks themselves. Bp. Patrick.

thee for ever, when thou doest that which is good and right in the sight of the LORD thy God.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

29 ¶ When the LORD thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou † succeedest them, and dwellest in their land;

† Heb.
inheritest,
or, possess-est them.

30 Take heed to thyself that thou be not snared † by following them, after that they be destroyed from before thee; and that thou enquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? even so will I do likewise.

† Heb.
after them.

31 Thou shalt not do so unto the LORD thy God: for every † abomination to the LORD, which he hateth, have they done unto their gods; for even their sons and their daughters they have burnt in the fire to their gods.

† Heb.
abomination of the.

32 What thing soever I command you, observe to do it: ^h thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it.

^h Chap. 4.
2.
Josh. 1. 7.
Prov. 30. 6.
Rev. 22. 18.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Enticers to idolatry, 6 how near soever unto thee, 9 are to be stoned to death. 12 Idolatrous cities are not to be spared.

IF there arise among you a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams, and giveth thee a sign or a wonder,

When men were exalted into gods, every the basest passion and the foulest vice found an example to justify, and a patron to protect it. Gods, whose characters and actions had been impure, revengeful, and cruel, were honoured by adopting, as parts of their worship, impurity, cruelty, and bloodshed. Demons, who were worshipped, not from love but from fear, not because beneficent but malignant, it was naturally supposed could be appeased or conciliated, only by the suppliant inflicting sufferings and death, even on the object whom he held most dear. Hence "every abomination &c." In truth, we know from other sources besides the Scripture, that theft, bloodshed, and cruelty, that incest, adultery, and unnatural crimes, were sanctioned by the example of the heathen gods, and even consecrated as parts of their worship: we know that every species of lewdness was practised in the temples of some, and that human sacrifices bled on the altars of others; and this in the most polished and celebrated nations of antiquity. Thus foul and odious was the nature, thus wide the diffusion, and thus fatal the effects of that idolatry; to provide an antidote to which, in the Jewish nation, a special Divine interposition was employed. Dr. Graves.

32. What thing soever I command you, observe &c.] Keep close to the worship and ordinances of the true God. Let no heathenish ceremonies be added to, or mixed with, His service: nor any of their impure rites creep into your worship, by the omission of any thing prescribed to you. Pyle.

By this injunction, there is no doubt but Moses and all Israel were religiously confined to do those things, to which it is annexed: they were not at liberty to vary a tittle in matter or form from the scheme and plan, which was laid before them. But the passage may be considered likewise as supplying a general and sacred rule to us all, that we receive the word of God as it is, and interpret it according to its genuine sense and meaning, and study to maintain the truth and integrity of it; that it may be to us, as it is designed to be, an everlasting fountain of holiness and purity of living. In this respect the Law of God is perfect: and 1451.

Before
CHRIST

2 And the sign or the wonder come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them;

3 Thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams: for the LORD your God proveth you, to know whether ye love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul.

4 Ye shall walk after the LORD your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and ^a cleave unto him.

^a Chap. 10.
20.

5 And that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death; because he hath [†] spoken to turn you away from the LORD your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed you out of the house of bondage, to thrust thee out of the way which the LORD thy God commanded thee to walk in. So shalt thou put the evil away from the midst of thee.

[†] Heb. spoken revolt against the LORD.

6 ¶ If thy brother, the son of thy mother, or thy son, or thy daughter, or the wife of thy bosom, or thy friend, which is as thine own soul, entice thee secretly, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which thou hast not known, thou, nor thy fathers;

7 Namely, of the gods of the people which are round about you, nigh unto thee, or far off from thee, from the one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth;

8 Thou shalt not consent unto him, nor hearken unto him; neither shall thine eye pity him, neither shalt thou spare, neither shalt thou conceal him:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

9 But ^b thou shalt surely kill him; thine ^b Chap. 17.
hand shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterwards the hand of all the people.

10 And thou shalt stone him with stones, that he die; because he hath sought to thrust thee away from the LORD thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of [†] bondage.

[†] Heb.
bondmen.
^c Chap. 17.
13.

11 And ^c all Israel shall hear, and fear, and shall do no more any such wickedness as this is among you.

12 ¶ If thou shalt hear say in one of thy cities, which the LORD thy God hath given thee to dwell there, saying,

13 Certain men, ^{||} the children of Belial, ^{||} Or,
are gone out from among you, and have ^{||} naughty withdrawn the inhabitants of their city, saying, Let us go and serve other gods, which ye have not known;

14 Then shalt thou enquire, and make search, and ask diligently; and, behold, if it be truth, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought among you;

15 Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants of that city with the edge of the sword, destroying it utterly, and all that is therein, and the cattle thereof, with the edge of the sword.

16 And thou shalt gather all the spoil of men must not presume to impair its perfection, by adding to it, or diminishing from it. Reading.

Chap. XIII. ver. 3. — the Lord your God proveth you,] He suffereth the false prophet to give a sign, and by the event to confirm his impious doctrine, to try whether you are sincere and steadfast in your love and your obedience to Him; and that this your sincerity may be known to yourselves and others. Bp. Kidder.

6. If thy brother, &c.] At the head of capital crimes under the Jewish law was placed idolatry. Not only the act itself, but every attempt to seduce men to it, and every mode of conduct which presupposed or obviously led to it. Against this offence the strictest rigour was exercised; no partiality for the dearest relative was to induce concealment; no dignity to silence accusation; no multitude of offenders to deter from punishment. This severity, whilst it conduced to preserve the allegiance due to the Supreme Jehovah, inseparably associated the feelings of detestation and abhorrence with the crime of idolatry, not with the persons of the Canaanites; and proved to the Jews that they were commanded to exterminate the seven nations, not from any principle of personal resentment or national hostility, but merely as criminals condemned by God. Dr. Graves.

9. — thou shalt surely kill him;] Thou shalt discover him, and bring him to condign punishment, which is death in this case, by the sentence of the magistrate: and “thine hand shall be first upon him;” namely, as the witness of his crime. Bp. Kidder. The criminal was to be stoned to death: and the accuser was to throw the first stone at him, together with the witnesses, chap.

xvii. 7; to testify thereby his own piety and unshaken fidelity towards God. Bp. Patrick, Wogan.

11. And all Israel shall hear, and fear, &c.] God doth not punish merely for the sake of punishment. Even His severities are the effects of goodness: and always directed to the advantage, either of those who feel them, or at least of others; “that they may hear, and fear, and do no more wickedness.” It is a most serious and profitable employment, humbly to trace the footsteps of infinite wisdom, in the government, as well as in the creation, of the world; in order to learn a true sense of our condition here, and right notions of behaving in it. Abp. Secker.

13. — the children of Belial,] So the most profligate wretches are called in Scripture, signifying lawless persons, who had no regard either to God or men. Bp. Patrick. Belial is a Hebrew word, implying a wicked worthless man; one resolved to endure no subjection; a rebel; one that cannot be controlled. In later writings, Belial denotes the devil. St. Paul says, 2 Cor. vi. 15, “What concord hath Christ with Belial?” Whence we infer, that in his time the Jews, under the name of Belial, commonly understood the devil by this term in the Old Testament. Calmet.

15. Thou shalt surely smite the inhabitants &c.] In this command we see, not only the rigour of the ancient law, but even a mercy, as well as justice, in the execution of the sentence. For although, at first view, it carry the appearance of extreme severity, yet considering, 1st, the state of the Jews, as a theocracy, or government under the immediate authority of God, all publick violation of the Divine law was such an open and direct act of rebellion against their rightful Lord and King, as by the common law of all nations is deemed a crime worthy of death. 2dly, If the total

Before
CHRIST
1451.

it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city, and all the spoil thereof every whit, for the LORD thy God: and it shall be an heap for ever; it shall not be built again.

¶ Or, devoted.

17 And there shall cleave nought of the || cursed thing to thine hand: that the LORD may turn from the fierceness of his anger, and shew thee mercy, and have compassion upon thee, and multiply thee, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers;

18 When thou shalt hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep all his commandments which I command thee this day, to do that which is right in the eyes of the LORD thy God.

CHAP. XIV.

¹ God's children are not to disfigure themselves in mourning. 3 What may, and what may not be eaten, 4 of beasts, 9 of fishes, 11 of fowls. 21 That which dieth of itself may not be eaten. 22 Tithes of divine service. 23 Tithes and firstlings of rejoicing before the Lord. 24 The third year's tithe of alms and charity.

^a Lev. 19.
28.

YE are the children of the LORD your God: ^a ye shall not cut yourselves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.

^b Chap. 7.
6. & 26. 18.

2 ^b For thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God, and the LORD hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth.

3 ¶ Thou shalt not eat any abominable thing.

^c Lev. 11.
2. &c.

4 ^c These are the beasts which ye shall eat: the ox, the sheep, and the goat,

¶ Or,
bison.
† Heb. dishon.

5 The hart, and the roebuck, and the fallow deer, and the wild goat, and the ||† pygarg, and the wild ox, and the chamois.

excision of the Canaanites was a just and wholesome law of God, much more equitable is this, against any rebellious subjects of His own commonwealth, whose revolt, as being more criminal, and in the example more pernicious, deserved the greater and more extraordinary punishment. But still in such a proceeding the mercy of God is more magnified than His justice. For although He punish, in such public calamities, the innocent with the guilty, He knows how to distinguish them. He not only takes away such innocent persons from the greater evil to come, especially from that corruption, to which a longer life might expose them; but He also makes them ample amends in a better world. As to the offenders, the penalty, however severe, is nevertheless most strictly just. But the prevention of a total corruption and apostasy from God is an act worthy of infinite goodness, and the greatest of mercies to those who survive. Wogan.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — ye shall not cut yourselves, &c. God would not permit them to imitate the excessive lamentations and the frantick behaviour of the Gentiles at their funeral rites. And this seems to have been a direction to them, not to sorrow like men without hope, as the Apostle expresses it, but to expect another state besides the present, 1 Thess. iv. 13, &c. Dr. Jortin.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

6 And every beast that parteth the hoof, and cleaveth the cleft into two claws, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that ye shall eat.

7 Nevertheless these ye shall not eat of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the cloven hoof; as the camel, and the hare, and the coney: for they chew the cud, but divide not the hoof; therefore they are unclean unto you.

8 And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, nor touch their dead carcase.

9 ¶ ^d These ye shall eat of all that are ^d Lev. 11.
in the waters: all that have fins and scales ⁹. shall ye eat:

10 And whatsoever hath not fins and scales ye may not eat; it is unclean unto you.

11 ¶ Of all clean birds ye shall eat.

12 But these are they of which ye shall not eat: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

13 And the glede, and the kite, and the vulture after his kind,

14 And every raven after his kind,

15 And the owl, and the night hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind,

16 The little owl, and the great owl, and the swan,

17 And the pelican, and the gier eagle, and the cormorant,

18 And the stork, and the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the ^e bat. ^e Lev. 11.
19.

19 And every creeping thing that flieth is unclean unto you: they shall not be eaten.

20 But of all clean fowls ye may eat.

21 ¶ Ye shall not eat of any thing that

This is an usage frequent, and still retained among the Jews, though positively prohibited by the law. As soon as a near relation dies in Abyssinia, a brother or parent, cousin-german, or lover, every woman in that relation, with the nail of her little finger, which she leaves long on purpose, cuts the skin of both her temples, about the size of a sixpence; and therefore you see either a wound or a scar in every fair face in Abyssinia. Bruce.

3. — any abominable thing. All meats, forbidden by God to be eaten, are called “abominable;” not merely because His prohibition made them so; but because the Gentile superstition had consecrated most of them to their gods. Bp. Patrick.

5. — fallow deer, — pygarg, — wild ox, — chamois. It cannot be ascertained what determinate kind of creatures each of these Hebrew names means. Bochart has with great probability ranked them amongst the goat or deer kinds. Pyle. It is probable that the several animals, mentioned in this verse, except the hart, are of different species of antelopes. Script. illust.

21. Ye shall not eat of any thing that dieth of itself: What was allowed to an alien, was forbidden to the Hebrews, as an holy people, not because morally evil, or therefore unlawful on a moral account, but because it was unbecoming a people consecrated to the service of Jehovah. Hence, what the Hebrews were allowed

Before
CHRIST
1451.

dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien: for thou art an holy people unto the LORD thy God. ^f Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

^f Exod. 23.
19. & 34.
26.

22 Thou shalt truly tithe all the increase of thy seed, that the field bringeth forth year by year.

23 And thou shalt eat before the LORD thy God, in the place which he shall choose to place his name there, the tithe of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the firstlings of thy herds and of thy flocks; that thou mayest learn to fear the LORD thy God always.

24 And if the way be too long for thee, so that thou art not able to carry it; or if the place be too far from thee, which the LORD thy God shall choose to set his name there, when the LORD thy God hath blessed thee:

25 Then shalt thou turn it into money, and bind up the money in thine hand, and shalt go unto the place which the LORD thy God shall choose:

26 And thou shalt bestow that money for whatsoever thy soul lusteth after, for oxen, or for sheep, or for wine, or for strong drink, or for whatsoever thy soul [†] desireth: and thou shalt eat there before the LORD thy God, and thou shalt rejoice, thou, and thine household,

[†] Heb.
asketh of
thee.

27 And ^g the Levite that is within thy gates; thou shalt not forsake him; for he hath no part nor inheritance with thee.

^g Chap. 12.
19.

28 ¶ At the end of three years thou shalt bring forth all the tithe of thine increase the same year, and shalt lay it up within thy gates:

29 And the Levite, (because he hath no part nor inheritance with thee,) and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall come, and shall eat and be satisfied; that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hand which thou doest.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

CHAP. XV.

1 The seventh year a year of release for the poor. 7 It must be no let of lending or giving. 12 An Hebrew servant, 16 except he will not depart, must in the seventh year go forth free and well furnished. 19 All firstling males of the cattle are to be sanctified unto the Lord.

AT the end of ^a every seven years thou shalt make a release. ^a Lev. 25.
2, 4.

2 And this is the manner of the release:

Every [†] creditor that lendeth ought unto his neighbour shall release it; he shall not exact it of his neighbour, or of his brother; because it is called the LORD's release. [†] Heb.
master of the lending of his hand.

3 Of a foreigner thou mayest exact it again: but that which is thine with thy brother thine hand shall release;

4 || Save when there shall be no poor among you; for the LORD shall greatly bless thee in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it: ^{||} Or,
To the end that there be no poor among you.

5 Only if thou carefully hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe to do all these commandments which I command thee this day.

6 For the LORD thy God blesseth thee, as he promised thee: and ^b thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee. ^b Chap. 28.
12.

7 ¶ If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy for food, was of best esteem in common use; and what they were forbidden, was of least esteem, and reckoned too mean for a good table: and, as Dr. Spencer observes, these things continue so in the Eastern nations to the present times. Lowman.

— for thou art an holy people] See also Lev. xx. 26. Such passages as these put the moral intention of the distinction of meats out of dispute, and are indeed a direct affirmation of it: the people of God were to avoid “unclean meats,” as a sign that He had separated them from unclean Gentiles to be “holy unto Himself.” Jones of Nayland.

— Thou shalt not seethe a kid &c.] See the note on Ex. xxiii. 19. Some remains of this custom seem still to exist among the Arabs, instanced in their boiling a lamb in sour milk and water. Bp. Pococke.

22. — tithe] This is meant of the second tithe. See ch. xii. 6. Bp. Kidder.

28. At the end of three years &c.] At every third year's end, either this same second tithe, or else another over and above it, was to be kept and spent at home, for entertaining and feasting the poor of the town, in which the owner dwelt, and the Levites belonging to it. And this practice, so highly promotive of charity, love, and good neighbourhood, God promised to reward and bless with increase and plenty of all the products and fruits of the land. Pyle.

Chap. XV. ver. 7—11. If there be among you a poor man &c.] Great care was hereby taken to prevent the probable operation of the laws of the sabbatical year, and of the jubilee, to check the feelings of compassion towards the indigent. By this most humane law, “the poor” are represented as always to continue in the land, in order to exercise the liberality of the rich: who are promised to be rewarded, in proportion to their liberality, with temporal blessings by God Himself, the Supreme Proprietor of their lands. While on the other hand, by a necessary inference, the churlish or the niggardly were to be punished with a temporal curse. Never were municipal laws and institutions fenced with so complete and certain sanctions, both of rewards and punishments in this life. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

gates in thy land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother:

^c Matth. 5.
42.
Luke 6. 31.

8 ^c But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth.

† Heb.
word.
† Heb.
Detial.

9 Beware that there be not a † thought in thy † wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and he cry unto the LORD against thee, and it be sin unto thee.

10 Thou shalt surely give him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that for this thing the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto.

11 For the poor shall never cease out of the land: therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.

^d Exod. 21.
2.
Jer. 34. 14.

12 ¶ And ^d if thy brother, an Hebrew man, or an Hebrew woman, be sold unto thee, and serve thee six years; then in the seventh year thou shalt let him go free from thee.

13 And when thou sendest him out free from thee, thou shalt not let him go away empty:

14 Thou shalt furnish him liberally out of thy flock, and out of thy floor, and out of thy winepress: of that wherewith the LORD thy God hath blessed thee thou shalt give unto him.

15 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee: therefore I command thee this thing to day.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

16 And it shall be, if he say unto thee, I will not go away from thee; because he loveth thee and thine house, because he is well with thee;

17 ^c Then thou shalt take an aul, and thrust it through his ear unto the door, and he shall be thy servant for ever. And also unto thy maidservant thou shalt do likewise.

18 It shall not seem hard unto thee, when thou sendest him away free from thee; for he hath been worth a double hired servant to thee, in serving thee six years: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all that thou doest.

19 ¶ All the firstling males that come of thy herd and of thy flock thou shalt sanctify unto the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work with the firstling of thy bullock, nor shear the firstling of thy sheep.

20 Thou shalt eat it before the LORD thy God year by year in the place which the LORD shall choose, thou and thy household.

21 ^e And if there be any blemish therein, as if it be lame, or blind, or have any ill blemish, thou shalt not sacrifice it unto the LORD thy God.

22 Thou shalt eat it within thy gates: the unclean and the clean person shall eat it alike, as the roebuck, and as the hart.

23 ^h Only thou shalt not eat the blood thereof; thou shalt pour it upon the ground as water.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The feast of the passover, 9 of weeks, 13 of tabernacles. 16 Every male must offer, as he is able, at these three feasts. 18 Of judges and justice. 21 Groves and images are forbidden.

12. — if thy brother, — be sold unto thee, &c.] The case of slaves was truly deplorable among the most polished nations of antiquity, the Chaldeans, Egyptians, Persians, Greeks, and Romans. Their slavery was perpetual, and they were deprived of all civil rights and immunities, and might be tortured, put to death, or starved, at the will of their merciless masters. The last was practised by old Cato the censor, so admired for his virtue, when his slaves grew old and past their labour! How different were the humane and equitable regulations of the Hebrew legislator. The hired servant, or day-labourer, was to be paid his wages in the evening, after his work was over: payment was not to be deferred till the next morning, Lev. xix. 13; Deut. xxiv. 14, 15. The bought servant, or household slave, was to be freed at the end of seven years' service, in the sabbatical year, Exod. xxi. 2; Lev. xxv. 39—43; Deut. xv. 12—18; unless he refused his freedom, and chose to continue in his master's service; in which case his ear was to be bored with an awl to the door of his master's house, signifying his attachment thereto to the end of his life, Exod. xxi. 5, 6. Servants of any description were not to be treated harshly. The master could not beat them unmercifully, the number of stripes for offences was limited by law to forty, and the reason assigned is liberal: "lest thy brother should seem vile unto thee, if beaten with many stripes," Deut. xxv. 1—3. If a master beat his servant to death, he was surely to be punished with death; if he struck out his or her eye, or even a tooth, he was bound to let him go free, for his eye or his tooth's sake, Exod. xxi. 20—27. Dr. Hales.

The various kind laws made in favour of slaves, servants, and strangers, were reasonable in themselves, and productive of good effects. We often read, in history, of dangerous conspiracies formed, and of wars waged, by slaves and captives. In all probability it was cruel usage, which stirred them up to these acts of desperate violence against their unmerciful masters. But in the Jewish history we meet with no such instance of seditions and rebellions; probably, because their slaves were better treated, and less oppressed, than in many other countries. Dr. Jortin.

15. And thou shalt remember &c.] This is a powerful motive, to incline us to show mercy. The example of God's mercy, and the sense of our liability to sufferings, strongly impel to compassion those who duly consider them. Bp. Kidder.

Before CHRIST 1451. OBSERVE the ^a month of Abib, and keep the passover unto the LORD thy God: for ^b in the month of Abib the LORD thy God brought thee forth out of Egypt by night.

^c Chap. 12. 5. 2 Thou shalt therefore sacrifice the passover unto the LORD thy God, of the flock and the herd, in the ^c place which the LORD shall choose to place his name there.

^d Exod. 12. 15. 3 ^d Thou shalt eat no leavened bread with it; seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread therewith, even the bread of affliction; for thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt in haste: that thou mayest remember the day when thou camest forth out of the land of Egypt all the days of thy life.

^e Exod. 34. 25. 4 ^e And there shall be no leavened bread seen with thee in all thy coast seven days; neither shall there any thing of the flesh, which thou sacrificedst the first day at even, remain all night until the morning.

^f Or, kill. 5 Thou mayest not ^{||} sacrifice the passover within any of thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee:

6 But at the place which the LORD thy God shall choose to place his name in, there thou shalt sacrifice the passover at even, at the going down of the sun, at the season that thou camest forth out of Egypt.

7 And thou shalt roast and eat it in the place which the LORD thy God shall choose: and thou shalt turn in the morning, and go unto thy tents.

8 Six days thou shalt eat unleavened bread: and on the seventh day shall be a [†] solemn assembly to the LORD thy God: thou shalt do no work therein.

[†] Heb. restraint.

9 ¶ ^f Seven weeks shalt thou number unto thee: begin to number the seven weeks from such time as thou beginnest to put the sickle to the corn.

Before CHRIST 1451. [†] Lev. 23. 15.

10 And thou shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the LORD thy God with ^{||} a tribute of a freewill offering of thine hand, which thou shalt give unto the LORD thy God, according as the LORD thy God hath blessed thee: ^{||} Or, sufficiency.

11 And thou shalt rejoice before the LORD thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the LORD thy God hath chosen to place his name there.

12 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt: and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

13 ¶ Thou shalt observe the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy [†] corn and thy wine:

[†] Heb. flour and thy wine-press.

14 And thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite, the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are within thy gates.

15 Seven days shalt thou keep a solemn feast unto the LORD thy God in the place which the LORD shall choose: because the LORD thy God shall bless thee in all thine increase, and in all the works of thine hands, therefore thou shalt surely rejoice.

16 ¶ ^g Three times in a year shall all thy

^g Exod. 23. 14. & 34. 23.

Chap. XVI. ver. 16. Three times in a year] These "three times" are presently after specified to be "the feast of unleavened bread," "the feast of weeks," and "the feast of tabernacles."

"The feast of unleavened bread" is that which is otherwise called the feast of the passover, consisting of seven days. On the evening before this solemn feast, was killed and eaten the Paschal Lamb; on the seven days following, sacrifices were offered, and no other bread but unleavened bread was eaten; and the first and the last days were days of holy assemblies or convocations.

The feast of the passover was for a thankful remembrance of their miraculous deliverance out of Egypt, where for haste they were forced to carry away their dough unleavened; and on the evening before, the Lord, having slain all the firstborn of Egypt, yet passed by them because of the blood of the Paschal Lamb which He saw upon the door-posts of their houses. Therefore as often as that happy time of year returned, they were commanded to rejoice before the Lord their God, and to hallow it.

Instead of which feast the Christian Church commemorates our deliverance from the bondage of sin, and Satan, and death, by the passion and resurrection of that immaculate Lamb, who, in the same month, and on the same day, was slain upon the cross for the sins of the whole world, whose blood, or the benefits of whose death, whatsoever soul shall apply to itself by a true faith producing obedience, God will spare it, and not destroy it.

"The feast of weeks" was so called because it was kept at the end of seven weeks, or of a week of weeks, after the passover. It was also called Pentecost, because it was fifty days after the passover. This likewise lasted seven days, during which many sacrifices were offered, and the first and the last days were days of holy assemblies.

This feast is supposed to have been instituted partly in remembrance of the Law, which at that time was given upon mount Sinai; and corresponding to it is the festival which we observe for the promulgation of the Gospel at that very time of the year, when, with a great sound from heaven, tongues of fire fell upon the Apostles, and they were filled with the Holy Ghost.

"The feast of tabernacles" was a feast of eight days' continuance in the seventh month, during which sacrifices also were continually offered; and for the first seven days the people dwelt in booths or tabernacles made of the branches of trees. The first and the eighth day were here also days of a holy convocation, on which no work might be done.

This feast was instituted for a memorial of their dwelling in tabernacles for a long space of time in the wilderness, and of the signs and wonders which were then wrought in their favour.

To this feast may be compared that which we celebrate in remembrance of our Saviour's nativity; "the Word," says St. John, "was made flesh, and dwelt among us." The expression "he 1451.

Before
CHRIST

males appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose; in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles: and^b they shall not appear before the LORD empty:

^a Eccl.¹⁰
35. 4.

[†] Heb.
according to the gift of his hand.

17 Every man shall give[†] as he is able, according to the blessing of the LORD thy God which he hath given thee.

18 ¶ Judges and officers shalt thou make thee in all thy gates, which the LORD thy God giveth thee, throughout thy tribes: and they shall judge the people with just judgment.

Exod. 28.
8.

[§] Or, matters.

19 Thou shalt not wrest judgment; thou shalt not respect persons,¹ neither take a gift: for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise, and pervert the || words of the righteous.

[†] Heb.
Justice,
justice.

20 [†] That which is altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest live, and inherit the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

dwelt among us," if it were strictly translated, is, "he had his tabernacle among us."

From these religious institutions it may be observed, that the hallowing unto God more days in the week than one, is not, as some have fancied, against the design and meaning of the fourth Commandment: for by these three solemn feasts, which were each of them of a week's continuance at least, it is manifest, that "Six days thou shalt labour" was no Commandment, but expressed only an ordinary permission of working; and to think that God would contradict His own law by a contrary ordinance, is inconceivable. As therefore, when He commanded the Jews to give Him the tenth part of their increase, He forbade not freewill offerings; so when He enjoined them to keep holy one day in seven, this hindered not, but that they might hallow unto Him other days even of the six. Dr. Jortin.

— all thy males] Males only were obliged to be present on these occasions; 1st, Because the weakness of the female sex disabled them from bearing so long a journey, without great danger and fatigue: 2dly, Because their chastity might have been exposed to many dangers in so vast a concourse of people: 3dly, Because the care of their families, and their domestick offices must have been neglected. The chief intention of these solemnities was to keep the Israelites from corrupting their religion by idolatrous or superstitious rites: and the providence of God is remarkable in defending their country during their absence at these seasons: there having been scarce any instance of its being attacked by their enemies, though nothing could have been more favourable to an incursion, than such an opportunity. Jos. Mede.

— in the place which he shall choose;] A principal reason, for which these festivals were appointed, was to keep up peace and friendship and unity both in Church and State. Nothing is more likely to conduce to this end than a religious association and intercourse, and a participation of the same sacred rites. As the nation was divided into tribes, each of which was in some respects a little commonwealth, there was cause to fear that they should fall out and separate in themselves into independent governments, and have a religion and ruler of their own. And in fact this befell them in aftertimes: they became two kingdoms, and idolatry and frequent wars ensued. For the prevention of these evils the Israelites were enjoined to assemble together to serve the Lord in one place, which He should appoint. Dr. Jortin.

— and they shall not appear before the Lord empty:] It was a custom in those parts of the world, when subjects came before 21 ¶ Thou shalt not plant thee a grove of any trees near unto the altar of the LORD thy God, which thou shalt make thee.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

22 ^b Neither shalt thou set thee up any || image; which the LORD thy God hateth.

^{*} Lev. 26. 1.
|| Or, statue, or,
pillar.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The things sacrificed must be sound. 2 Idolaters must be slain. 8 Hard controversies are to be determined by the priests and judges. 12 The contemner of that determination must die. 14 The election, 16 and duty of a king.

THOU shalt not sacrifice unto the LORD thy God any bullock, or || sheep, wherein is blemish, or any evilfavouredness: for that is an abomination unto the LORD thy God.

|| Or, guns

2 ¶ If there be found among you, within any of thy gates which the LORD thy God giveth thee, man or woman, that hath wrought wickedness in the sight of the their king, to make him a present; and even a little fruit, or a single flower, was favourably accepted from one who was not in circumstances to offer more. The Jews were commanded to bring a present; not a burnt offering, or a sacrifice by fire; for these, though at the same time they were also required, yet were of another nature, and for another end: but a heave offering, a freewill offering, which was a tribute of thankfulness to God, and likewise an acknowledgment of His supreme lordship and dominion over all. Therefore this particular is added, "They shall not appear before the Lord empty: every man shall give as he is able, according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which He hath given thee."

The people were commanded at these stated times to pay their tithes of corn and cattle, wine and oil, to present sacrifices and freewill offerings, and not to gather their fruits clean, but to leave some upon the land, to which the poor might have free access; and many other acts of charity were required from them.

Instead of which various ordinances and injunctions, the Gospel gives us a precept in general terms, to "do to others as we would they should do to us," and "as we have opportunity, to do good unto all men, especially to our brethren in the faith:" and thus much is evident from the tenour of the New Testament, and the genius of our religion, that the Law can never be supposed to surpass the Gospel in things relating to benevolence, to compassion, and humanity, and that as much at least is to be expected from Christians, as was formerly required of Jews. Dr. Jortin.

18. — in all thy gates,] The chamber over one of the principal gates of each city was in ancient times the council chamber, where the judges sat, and causes were tried. As in 2 Sam. xviii. 33; xix. 8; Ps. lxi. 12. And "to speak with the enemy in the gate" is to plead against an adversary in court, Ps. cxxvii. 5. So, "to be crushed in the gate," and "to be afflicted in the gate," is, to lose the cause, and to be condemned in court, Job v. 4; Prov. xxii. 22. Pyle.

21. Thou shalt not plant thee a grove &c.] However innocent the first use of groves may have been, they were soon polluted with superstition and idolatrous rites; and became the scenes of all sorts of impurity. There seems to be a plain allusion to this unprincipled abuse of them in the Jewish history, 1 Kings xiv. 23, 24. It was fit then to remove far from the altar of God such abominations, as might lead the people into idolatry, and all its profane and obscene consequences. Lowman.

Before CHRIST 1451. LORD thy God, in transgressing his covenant,

3 And hath gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, either the sun, or moon, or any of the host of heaven, which I have not commanded;

4 And it be told thee, and thou hast heard of it, and enquired diligently, and, behold, it be true, and the thing certain, that such abomination is wrought in Israel:

5 Then shalt thou bring forth that man or that woman, which have committed that wicked thing, unto thy gates, even that man or that woman, and shalt stone them with stones, till they die.

6 ^a At the mouth of two witnesses, or three witnesses, shall he that is worthy of death be put to death; but at the mouth of one witness he shall not be put to death.

7 The hands of the witnesses shall be first upon him to put him to death, and afterward the hands of all the people. So thou shalt put the evil away from among you.

8 ¶ If there arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within thy gates: then shalt thou arise, and get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose;

9 And thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites, and unto the judge that shall be in those days, and enquire; and they shall shew thee the sentence of judgment:

10 And thou shalt do according to the sentence, which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee:

11 According to the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall tell thee, thou shalt do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall shew thee, to the right hand, nor to the left.

12 And the man that will do presumptuously, † and will not hearken unto the priest that standeth to minister there before the LORD thy God, or unto the judge, even that man shall die: and thou shalt put away the evil from Israel.

13 And all the people shall hear, and fear, and do no more presumptuously.

14 ¶ When thou art come unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, and shalt possess it, and shalt dwell therein, and shalt say, I will set a king over me, like as all the nations that are about me;

15 Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee, whom the LORD thy God shall choose: one from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother.

16 But he shall not multiply horses to himself, nor cause the people to return to Egypt, to the end that he should multiply horses: forasmuch as the LORD hath said unto you, Ye shall henceforth return no more that way.

17 Neither shall he multiply wives to

Before CHRIST 1451.

† Heb. not to hearken.

Chap. XVII. ver. 5.—till they die.] The Mosaic law, punishing idolatry with death, has been represented as unjust, and giving countenance to persecution for religious opinions. But the Israelites were commanded to put to death only such Israelites as apostatized to idolatry, and still remained members of their own community: and their government being a theocracy, idolatry was in it strictly the political crime of high treason, which, in every state, is justly punishable with death. Dr. Gerard, Locke, Bp. Warburton.

8.—between blood and blood,] That is, in the case of murder, whether it was wilful or accidental. “Between plea and plea;” that is, in causes depending between the plaintiff and defendant. “Between stroke and stroke;” that is, in the case of wounds inflicted by one man upon another. Bp. Kidder.

14.—I will set a king over me,] Josephus and others have with reason understood this passage to mean, not that God commanded the Israelites to make them a king, when they should be settled in Canaan: but that God intended them to keep their present government; if however they would have a king, he should be at first appointed immediately by God, who was their Supreme Governour; and that afterwards they should be indispensably obliged to elect one of the Israelitish nation, and not a Gentile. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

16.—he shall not multiply horses] Lest he bring a burden upon his people; or confide in the power of his horsemen, more than in God; or, which is the chief reason, given by Moses himself, lest the people should be tempted to maintain a commerce with Egypt: with which country God commanded them not to have any intercourse, at least while they should continue to be idolaters. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

This law given to the kings of Israel, considered together with the history of the nation, forms a very strong presumption for the divine original of the Law of Moses. For, supposing Moses to be a mere human legislator, like Solon or Lycurgus, what could tempt him to forbid the princes of his country the use of horses and chariots for their defence? Should such a law be proposed for France or Germany at this day, what would the world think of it? Or, supposing this law to be his own contrivance, how comes it to pass, that the event and success of things, through many ages, doth so exactly correspond with the law? That the princes prospered, and extended their dominion, over great countries, when they had neither chariots nor horses, and were ruined and undone, when they were strong in those forces? Can it be supposed, that the history of many ages, which relates to the affairs not only of the princes of Israel, but of other contemporary kings, is all forged, and that merely to shew an agreement between the history and this particular law? Or, how shall we account for the conduct of the Prophets, who saw the people ruined, and instead of reproaching them with cowardice and a neglect of their necessary defence, reproach them with having been too strong, too powerful in horses and horsemen? These appearances can never be accounted for by any human contrivance, and they 1451.

Before
CHRIST

himself, that his heart turn not away: neither shall he greatly multiply to himself silver and gold.

18 And it shall be, when he sitteth upon the throne of his kingdom, that he shall write him a copy of this law in a book out of that which is before the priests the Levites:

19 And it shall be with him, and he shall read therein all the days of his life: that he may learn to fear the LORD his God, to keep all the words of this law and these statutes, to do them:

20 That his heart be not lifted up above his brethren, and that he turn not aside from the commandment, to the right hand, or to the left: to the end that he may prolong his days in his kingdom, he, and his children, in the midst of Israel.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The Lord is the priests' and Levites' inheritance. 3 The priest's due. 6 The Levite's portion. 9 The abominations of the nations are to be avoided. 15 Christ the Prophet is to be heard. 20 The presumptuous prophet is to die.

THE priests the Levites, and all the tribe of Levi, ^a shall have no part nor inheritance with Israel: they ^b shall eat the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and his inheritance.

2 Therefore shall they have no inheritance among their brethren: the LORD is their inheritance, as he hath said unto them.

3 ¶ And this shall be the priest's due from the people, from them that offer a sacrifice, whether it be ox or sheep; and they shall give unto the priest the shoulder, and the two cheeks, and the maw.

4 The firstfruit also of thy corn, of thy wine, and of thine oil, and the first of the fleece of thy sheep, shalt thou give him.

5 For the LORD thy God hath chosen him out of all thy tribes, to stand to minister in the name of the LORD, him and his sons for ever.

6 ¶ And if a Levite come from any of thy gates out of all Israel, where he sojourned, and come with all the desire of his mind unto the place which the LORD shall choose;

7 Then he shall minister in the name of the LORD his God, as all his brethren the Levites do, which stand there before the LORD.

8 They shall have like portions to eat, beside [†] that which cometh of the sale of his patrimony. ^{† Heb. his sales by the fathers.}

9 ¶ When thou art come into the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations.

10 There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter ^c to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, ^{c Lev. 18. 21.} or an enchanter, or a witch,

11 ^d Or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a ^e necromancer. ^{d Lev. 20. 27. e 1 Sam. 28. 7.}

12 For all that do these things are an abomination unto the LORD: and because of these abominations the LORD thy God doth drive them out from before thee.

13 Thou shalt be ^{||} perfect with the LORD thy God. ^{|| Or, upright, or, sincere.}

14 For these nations, which thou shalt ^{||} possess, hearkened unto observers of times, and unto diviners: but as for thee, the LORD thy God hath not suffered thee so to do. ^{|| Or, inherit.}

15 ¶ ^f The LORD thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken; ^{f John 1. 45. Acts 3. 22. & 7. 37.}

16 According to all that thou desiredst of the LORD thy God in Horeb in the day

^a Numb. 18. 20. chap. 10. 9. ^b 1 Cor. 9. 13.

plainly shew that the hand of God was in this thing from the beginning to the end. Bp. Sherlock.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 10. There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire,]

See the notes on Lev. xviii. 21; xx. 2. — or that useth divination, &c.] In these two verses are specified various manners, in which inquisitive persons anciently sought information on subjects beyond the usual sight of men: the names given to these arts most probably denote the different modes or practices of their professors. Such arts appear to have been practised in former times; and Niebuhr mentions several kinds of occult science, still extant among the Arabs; some arising from sleight of hand; others from ecstatic enthusiasm; others as charms against evil; and lastly a science, which is, says he, "as described to me, witchcraft, or sorcery. It is said to be employed only in hurting others; wherefore those addicted to it are hated and execrated by every honest Arab." Most of the kinds of magick, specified by Moses, were probably of an injurious nature: which accounts for their being connected with the practice of making children "pass through the fire," if we suppose such children to have been burnt alive: see the notes on Lev. xviii. 21. Such arts are forbidden with the utmost propriety, as evil in the disposition of mind which they betray; at the same time the prohibition does not imply that any efficacy attended the exercise of these arts. Script. illust. See the note on Lev. xx. 27.

13. Thou shalt be perfect with the Lord thy God.] See Gen. xvii. 1. The force of the expression, "be thou perfect," in that passage, may be illustrated by comparing it with the present verse; in which, after a charge to the Israelites, not to learn the abominations of those nations, whom God should cast out before them, it is immediately added, "Thou shalt be perfect," or entire, "with the Lord thy God." Bp. Lenth.

15. — a Prophet] He does not say, a priest, or a king, though

^a Before CHRIST 1451. of the assembly, saying, ⁸ Let me not hear again the voice of the LORD my God, neither let me see this great fire any more, that I die not.

⁵ Exod. 20. 19. 17 And the LORD said unto me, They have well spoken that which they have spoken.

^a John 1. 45. Acts 3. 22. & 7. 37. 18 ^b I will raise them up a Prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth; and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him.

19 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him.

20 But the prophet, which shall presume to speak a word in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, even that prophet shall die.

21 And if thou say in thine heart, How shall we know the word which the LORD hath not spoken?

22 When a prophet speaketh in the name of the LORD, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the LORD hath not spoken, but the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously: thou shalt not be afraid of him.

CHAP. XIX.

¹ The cities of refuge. ⁴ The privilege thereof for the manslayer. ¹⁴ The landmark is not to be removed. ¹⁵ Two witnesses at the least. ¹⁶ The punishment of a false witness.

WHEN the LORD thy God ^a hath cut ² Chap. 12. 29. off the nations, whose land the LORD thy God giveth thee, and thou [†] succeedest them, and dwellest in their cities, and in their houses;

² ^b Thou shalt separate three cities for thee in the midst of thy land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee to possess it. [†] Heb. inheritest, or, possesseth. ^b Exod. 21. 13. Numb. 35. 10. Josh. 20. 2.

3 Thou shalt prepare thee a way, and the Messiah was to be both: but he says, "a Prophet;" to teach the people of Israel, not to mistake any of their priests or kings for the Messiah; but to expect and regard less in His person, the external honour of Aaron's family, and the worldly grandeur of kings, than the privilege of Divine inspiration, which was absolutely necessary to Him, as the founder of the true religion. Dean Allix.

18. I will raise them up a Prophet &c.] The Jews term the highest degree of inspiration, that which was afforded to Moses, and enumerate several particulars, wherein that hath the preeminence and advantage over all others. In consequence of this prediction, that "a Prophet should arise among them like unto Moses," a general expectation of some extraordinary Prophet prevailed particularly about the time of our Saviour. The Jews then, as well as since, understood and applied this prophecy to the Messiah, the only Prophet whom they will ever allow to be as great or greater than Moses. When our Saviour had fed five thousand men, by a miracle like that of Moses, who fed the Israelites in the wilderness, then those men said, "This is of a truth that Prophet that should come into the world," John vi. 14. St. Peter and St. Stephen directly apply the prophecy to Him, Acts iii. 22, 23; vii. 37; and they may very well be justified for so doing: for He fully answers all the marks and characters which are here given of the "Prophet like unto Moses." He had immediate communication with the Deity, and God spake to Him "face to face," as He did to Moses. He performed "signs and wonders," as great or greater than those of Moses. He was a "lawgiver," as well as Moses. "I will raise them up a Prophet," saith God: and the people glorified God, saying, "That a great Prophet is risen up among us," Luke vii. 16. "I will put my words in His mouth," saith God: and our Saviour saith, "I have not spoken of Myself; but the Father which sent Me, He gave Me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak," John xii. 49. Bp. Newton. This Prophet like unto Moses was our Lord Jesus Christ; who was by birth a Jew, of the middle class of the people, and resembled His predecessor in personal intercourse with God, miracles, and legislation, which no other Prophet ever did, Deut. xxxiv. 10—12; and to whom God, at His transfiguration, required the world to "hearken," Matt. xvii. 5. Whence our Lord's frequent admonition to the Jewish Church, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear," Matt. xii. 15, &c. addressed also by "the Spirit" to the Christian Churches of Asia Minor, Rev. iii. 22. "The lamps" of both have been extinguished for their apostasy, according to the tremendous denunciation of prophecy, Rev. ii. 5. Heaven avert the omen from the "lukewarm" churches of Europe, in this their day of trial! Rev. iii. 15, 16. Dr. Hales. This prophecy is several times in the New Testament applied to our Lord: and it has often been proved, that it cannot possibly belong to any one else: for all the other Prophets were in many respects inferior to Moses. But the passage deserves particular notice from another circumstance. There are instances of kings, both Pagan and Jewish, who were named and described, long before their birth, by those holy men, whom the Lord inspired. See Is. xlv. 28; 1 Kings xiii. 2. But among the Prophets themselves, we find not that any one was ever foretold by an antecedent Prophet: for it became the Promised Deliverer of Israel, in this as in all things, to have the preeminence. Him therefore Moses, the first and chief of the Prophets, here foreshewed as a Prophet in dignity like to himself. Archdeacon Churton.

19. And it shall come to pass, &c.] Several prophecies in the Old Testament plainly ascribe the destruction of the Jewish Church and nation, to their rejection, and putting to death, of the Messiah. To this purpose, these words of Moses are very remarkable: "It shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto My words, which He shall speak in My name, I will require it of him:" or, "every soul, which will not hear that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people," as St. Peter explains the sense of the prophecy, Acts iii. 23. Daniel expressly assigns their sin of "cutting off the Messiah," as the cause of the destruction of their city and temple, Dan. ix. 26. And Zechariah, who lived after the people's return from their first captivity, describes the mourning of the whole nation for their sin of "piercing" or crucifying Christ, as a preparation to their general restoration, Zech. xii. 10; xiii. 1. W. Lenth.

Chap. XIX. Having sufficiently pressed upon the people the great commandment of loving God with all the heart and soul and strength, and Him alone: Moses now proceeds to remind them of other precepts belonging to the second table of the Commandments, but not in an exact method, nor without interposing some matters of a ceremonial nature. Bp. Patrick.

Ver. 2. Thou shalt separate three cities &c.] He begins with the case of life and death, and charges them, as soon as they should be settled in Canaan, to set out the cities of refuge as before prescribed, Numb. xxxv. 14, 15; Deut. iv. 41; adding now, that the roads from every part of the country to these privileged places should be kept clean, level, and in good repair, for the easier and speedier flight of the unfortunate persons, who wanted their protection. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

divide the coasts of thy land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee to inherit, into three parts, that every slayer may flee thither.

4 ¶ And this is the case of the slayer, which shall flee thither, that he may live: Whoso killeth his neighbour ignorantly, whom he hated not † in time past;

† Heb. from yesterday the third day

5 As when a man goeth into the wood with his neighbour to hew wood, and his hand fetcheth a stroke with the ax to cut down the tree, and the † head slippeth from the † helve, and † lighteth upon his neighbour, that he die; he shall flee unto one of those cities, and live:

† Heb.
iron.
† Heb.
wood.
† Heb.
findeth.

6 Lest the avenger of the blood pursue the slayer, while his heart is hot, and overtake him, because the way is long, and † slay him; whereas he was not worthy of death, inasmuch as he hated him not † in time past.

† Heb. smite him
in life.
† Heb. from yesterday the third day.

7 Wherefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt separate three cities for thee.

° Chap. 12.
20.

8 And if the Lord thy God ° enlarge thy coast, as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, and give thee all the land which he promised to give unto thy fathers;

9 If thou shalt keep all these commandments to do them, which I command thee this day, to love the Lord thy God, and to walk ever in his ways; ^d then shalt thou add three cities more for thee, beside these three:

° Josh. 20.
7.

10 That innocent blood be not shed in thy land, which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and so blood be upon thee. Before 1451.

CHRIST

11 ¶ But if any man hate his neighbour, and lie in wait for him, and rise up against him, and smite him † mortally that he die, and fleeth into one of these cities:

† Heb.
in life.

12 Then the elders of his city shall send and fetch him thence, and deliver him into the hand of the avenger of blood, that he may die.

13 Thine eye shall not pity him, but thou shalt put away the guilt of innocent blood from Israel, that it may go well with thee.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark, which they of old time have set in thine inheritance, which thou shalt inherit in the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee to possess it.

15 ¶ ° One witness shall not rise up against a man for any iniquity, or for any sin, in any sin that he sinneth: at the mouth of two witnesses, or at the mouth of three witnesses, shall the matter be established. ° Chap. 17.
6.
Hebr. 10.
23.
Numb. 35.
30.
Matth. 18.
16.
John 8. 17.
2 Cor. 13. 1.

16 ¶ If a false witness rise up against any man to testify against him || that which is wrong; || Or, falling away.

17 Then both the men, between whom the controversy is, shall stand before the Lord, before the priests and the judges, which shall be in those days;

18 And the judges shall make diligent inquisition: and, behold, if the witness be

4. And this is the case of the slayer, &c.] As murder implies the highest degree of malignity to which human depravity can ascend, so it was pursued with just rigour by the Jewish law. But the wisdom of the law, in securing a fair trial for this offence, so apt to rouse immediate revenge, and in providing asylums for those who were not guilty of deliberate murder, but of manslaughter, is so conspicuous as to have attracted the notice of the most judicious modern reasoners on criminal law. The sagacious Montesquieu observes, "These laws of Moses were perfectly wise: the man, who involuntarily killed another, was innocent, but he was obliged to be taken away from before the eyes of the relatives of the deceased; Moses therefore appointed an asylum for such unfortunate persons: great criminals deserved not a place of safety, and they had none: the criminals, who would resort to the temple from all parts, might disturb Divine service: if persons, who had committed manslaughter, had been driven out of the country, as was customary among the Greeks, there was reason to fear they would worship strange gods. All these considerations made them establish cities of refuge, where they might remain until the death of the high priest." Dr. Graves.

12. — the elders of his city] As soon as the Hebrews began to be formed into a people, they were governed by "elders," so called because in general they were persons advanced in years. When Moses returned into Egypt to promise them that God would set them at liberty, he assembled "the elders" together, Exod. iv. 29, and performed the miracles, which were the proof of his ministry, in their presence. "All the elders of Israel" came to the feast, which he made for Jethro his father in law, Exod. xviii. 12. When God thought fit to give him council to relieve him in governing that great people, "Gather unto me," said He, "seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them," Numb. xi. 16. So that they had already authority, before the law was given, and the state had taken its form. Afterwards in the Scripture, when mention is made of assemblies and publick affairs, the elders are put in the first place, and sometimes named alone. Fleury.

14. Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark,] This precept is very seasonably subjoined to that of manslaughter and murder; the removing of landmarks being an occasion of great quarrels and bloodshed: and it was not to be allowed, inasmuch as it was against the constitution of their forefathers, who divided the several bounds of their inheritance by Divine direction, as is intimated in the following words. Bp. Kidder. This precept was as necessary to be observed in all other countries, as in that which was the proper inheritance of the Israelites: for, as Josephus truly observes, "They that remove the bounds of lands, are not very far from subverting all laws." Bp. Patrick.

15. One witness shall not rise up &c.] In civil or criminal matters, especially of a high or capital kind, less than two witnesses were not allowed to convict any man. Though, in pecuniary cases, one might be enough to bring the accused person upon his oath. Pyle.

17. Then both the men, &c.] Both the accuser and the accused were to come in obscure cases to the supreme court, where the sanctuary was settled. This court probably sat at the door of the tabernacle in the time of Moses, chap. xvii. 8, 12, and so might properly be said to try them "before the Lord." Bp. Patrick.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} a false witness, and hath testified falsely against his brother ;

^{c Prov. 19. 5, 9. Dan. 6. 24.} 19 ^f Then shall ye do unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother : so shalt thou put the evil away from among you.

20 And those which remain shall hear, and fear, and shall henceforth commit no more any such evil among you.

21 And thine eye shall not pity ; but ^g life shall go for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot.

^{Exod. 21. 23. Lev. 24. 20. Matth. 5. 38.}

CHAP. XX.

¹ The priest's exhortation to encourage the people to battle. ⁵ The officers' proclamation who are to be dismissed from the war. ¹⁰ How to use the cities that accept or refuse the proclamation of peace. ¹⁶ What cities must be devoted. ¹⁹ Trees of man's meat must not be destroyed in the siege.

WHEN thou goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses, and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them : for the LORD thy God is with thee, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

2 And it shall be, when ye are come nigh unto the battle, that the priest shall approach and speak unto the people,

3 And shall say unto them, Hear, O Israel, ye approach this day unto battle against your enemies : let not your hearts [†] faint, fear not, and do not [†] tremble, neither be ye terrified because of them ;

^{† Heb. be tender. † Heb. make haste.}

19. Then shall ye do unto him, &c.] The Law of Moses, which condemns the crime of "false witness," inflicts upon it a very suitable punishment, namely, retaliation. He, who would thus deprive another of his liberty, his property, or his life, was to suffer the same evil, which he would unjustly bring upon his neighbour. This was a law of the Egyptians, and of other nations : but it is so reasonable, that it may be accounted a law of nature, and the voice of humanity and of common sense. Dr. Jortin.

21. And thine eye shall not pity ; &c.] Such is the rule of the Mosaic Law : because by means of false witness the good name, the property, the livelihood, the life of an innocent person may be taken away ; the advantages of society defeated, nay, perverted into mischiefs ; and the very bonds of it dissolved. With us, indeed, the punishment extends not so far. But however mild such persons may find the penalties of human laws to be, or how artfully soever they may evade them, God hath declared, "A false witness shall not be unpunished, and he that speaketh lies shall not escape," Prov. xix. 5. Abp. Secker. See the note on Levit. xxiv. 19.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — horses, and chariots,] The Israelitish armies consisted all of foot, and their law seems to have obliged them to continue so, chap. xvii. 16, in order to a more entire reliance upon God. See the note there. While the Egyptians, Canaanites, and other nations, had the advantage of horse and chariots ; that is, chariots armed with scythes, to rush in among the foot, and cut them down like grass. These are the chariots of iron, mentioned in Josh. xi. 4 ; Judg. iv. 3. Pyle. See the notes on Exod. xiv. 7.

4 For the LORD your God is he that goeth with you, to fight for you against your enemies, to save you.

^{Before CHRIST 1451.}

5 ¶ And the officers shall speak unto the people, saying, What man is there that hath built a new house, and hath not dedicated it ? let him go and return to his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man dedicate it.

6 And what man is he that hath planted a vineyard, and hath not yet [†] eaten of it ? [†] let him also go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man eat of it.

^{† Heb. made it common : See Lev. 19. 23.}

7 ^a And what man is there that hath betrothed a wife, and hath not taken her ? let him go and return unto his house, lest he die in the battle, and another man take her.

^{a Chap. 24. 5.}

8 And the officers shall speak further unto the people, and they shall say, ^b What man is there that is fearful and fainthearted ? let him go and return unto his house, lest his brethren's heart [†] faint as well as his heart.

^{b Judg. 7. 2.}

^{† Heb. melt.}

9 And it shall be, when the officers have made an end of speaking unto the people, that they shall make captains of the armies [†] to lead the people.

^{† Heb. to be in the head of the people.}

10 ¶ When thou comest nigh unto a city to fight against it, then proclaim peace unto it.

11 And it shall be, if it make thee answer of peace, and open unto thee, then it shall — be not afraid of them :] The Israelites were trained up to confide in God, and not in horses, which their country did not afford, and consequently they had no chariots ; nor in multitude of soldiers. We find remarkable instances of this, particularly in Jehoshaphat, 2 Chron. xx. 6, 17. He followed the example of David, whose words are most memorable : "Some trust in chariots, and some in horses : but we will remember the name of the Lord our God," Ps. xx. 7. See also Prov. xxi. 21. Bp. Patrick.

5. — What man — hath built a new house, &c.] Probably because men in these circumstances would be apt to be entangled with cares, and thereby rendered less serviceable in the war. See 2 Tim. ii. 4. Bp. Kidder. At the same time the indulgence manifests great tenderness and humanity towards the individual, who was to profit by it ; and is one among a numberless instances of the considerate benevolence of the Legislator. Edit. Some think that this was not a precept, but a bare concession to such persons ; who, if they could overcome their affection to all things but the safety of their country, might remain in the camp, and go to battle. "Hath not dedicated it" means, hath not dwell in it. For on their first entrance into a house to dwell in it, they made a feast, which they called "dedication." Bp. Patrick.

10. When thou comest nigh unto a city] The Jewish writers frequently mention two kinds of war : that which was particularly commanded by God, as that against the nations, which the Israelites were commanded to drive out : and that which was chosen by the Jews on just provocation, or in their own defence against other people. These words, as well as the foregoing, refer to the latter of the two, as appears from ver. 15, compared with ver. 5—8, and Numb. xxxii. 7. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1151.

be, that all the people that is found therein shall be tributaries unto thee, and they shall serve thee.

12 And if it will make no peace with thee, but will make war against thee, then thou shalt besiege it :

13 And when the LORD thy God hath delivered it into thine hands, thou shalt smite every male thereof with the edge of the sword :

14 But the women, and the little ones, and ^{e Josh. 8. 2.} the cattle, and all that is in the city, ^{† Heb. spoil.} even all the spoil thereof, shalt thou [†] take unto thyself; and thou shalt eat the spoil of thine enemies, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

15 Thus shalt thou do unto all the cities which are very far off from thee, which are not of the cities of these nations.

16 But of the cities of these people, which the LORD thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth :

17 But thou shalt utterly destroy them; namely, the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites,

16. — thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth:] When God for the wickedness of a people sends an earthquake, or a fire, or a plague among them, there is no complaint of injustice, especially when the calamity is known, or expressly declared beforehand, to be inflicted for the wickedness of such people. It is rather regarded as an act of exemplary penal justice, and, as such, consistent with the character of the moral Governour of the universe. There can be no objection therefore to the Canaanitish nations being destroyed, for when their national wickedness is considered, and when that is expressly stated as the cause of their destruction, the dispensation, however severe, will not be questioned; but the objection must be solely to the manner of destroying them. I mean there is nothing left but the manner to be objected to: their wickedness accounts for the thing itself. To which objection it may be replied, that if the thing itself be just, the manner is of little signification: of little signification even to the sufferers themselves. For where is the great difference, even to them, whether they were destroyed by an earthquake, a pestilence, a famine, or by the hands of an enemy? Where is the difference, even to our imperfect apprehensions of Divine justice, provided it be, and is known to be, for their wickedness that they are destroyed? But this destruction, it may be said, confounded the innocent with the guilty. The sword of Joshua and of the Jews spared neither women nor children. Is it not the same with all national visitations? Would not an earthquake, or a fire, or a plague, or a famine amongst them, have done the same? Even in an ordinary and natural death, the same thing happens. God takes away the life He lends, without regard, that we can perceive, to age, or sex, or character. But after all, promiscuous massacres, the burning of cities, the laying waste of countries, are things dreadful to reflect upon. Who doubts it? So are all the judgments of Almighty God. The effect, in whatever way it shows itself, must necessarily be tremendous, when the Lord, as the Psalmist expresses it, “moveth out of His place to punish the wicked.” But it ought to satisfy us; at least this is the point, upon which we ought to rest and fix our attention; that it was for excessive, wilful, and forewarned wickedness, that all this befell them, and that it is all along so declared in the history which recites it. Archdeacon Paley.

17. — as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee:] If punishing the devoted nations by the hand of the Israelites, rather than

and the Jebusites; as the LORD thy God ^{Before CHRIST 1451.} hath commanded thee :

18 That they teach you not to do after all their abominations, which they have done unto their gods; so should ye sin against the LORD your God.

19 ¶ When thou shalt besiege a city a long time, in making war against it to take it, thou shalt not destroy the trees thereof by forcing an ax against them: for thou mayest eat of them, and thou shalt not cut them down (¶ for the tree of the field is ^{¶ Or, for, O man, the tree of the field is to be employed in the siege. † Heb. to go from before thee. † Heb. it come down.} man's life) [†] to employ them in the siege :

20 Only the trees which thou knowest that they be not trees for meat, thou shalt destroy and cut them down; and thou shalt build bulwarks against the city that maketh war with thee, until [†] it be subdued.

CHAP. XXI.

1 The expiation of an uncertain murder. 10 The usage of a captive taken to wife. 15 The firstborn is not to be disinherited upon private affection. 18 A stubborn son is to be stoned to death. 22 The malefactor must not hang all night on a tree.

IF one be found slain in the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee to posby a pestilence, an earthquake, a fire, or any other calamity, be still an objection, we may perceive, I think, some reasons for this method of punishment in preference to any other whatever: always however bearing in our mind, that the question is not concerning the justice of the punishment, but the mode of it. It is well known, that the people of those ages were affected by no proof of the power of the gods which they worshipped, so deeply, as by their giving them victory in war. It was by this species of evidence that the superiority of their own gods above the gods of the nations, which they conquered, was, in their opinion, evinced. This being the actual persuasion, which then prevailed in the world, no matter whether well or ill founded, how were the neighbouring nations, for whose admonition this dreadful example was intended, how were they to be convinced of the supreme power of the God of Israel above the pretended gods of other nations, and of the righteous character of Jehovah, that is, of His abhorrence of the vices which prevailed in the land of Canaan; how, I say, were they to be convinced so well, or at all indeed, as by His enabling the Israelites, whose God He was known and acknowledged to be, to conquer under His banner, and drive out before them those who resisted the execution of that commission, with which the Israelites declared themselves to be invested; namely, the expulsion and extermination of the Canaanitish nations? This convinced surrounding countries, and all who were observers or spectators of what passed, first, that the God of Israel was a real God; secondly, that the gods, which other nations worshipped, were either no gods, or had no power against the God of Israel; and thirdly, that it was He, and He alone, who possessed both the power and the will, to punish, to destroy, and to exterminate, from before His face, both nations and individuals, who gave themselves up to the crimes and wickedness, for which the Canaanites were notorious. Nothing of this sort would have appeared, or with the same evidence however, from an earthquake, or a plague, or any natural calamity. These might not have been attributed to Divine agency at all, or not to the interposition of the God of Israel. Archdeacon Paley.

18. That they teach you not &c.] See the note on chap. vii. 2.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. If one be found slain in the land] The injunctions here given follow very properly after the law Moses had 1451.

Before
CHRIST

sess it, lying in the field, and it be not known who hath slain him :

2 Then thy elders and thy judges shall come forth, and they shall measure unto the cities which are round about him that is slain :

3 And it shall be, that the city which is next unto the slain man, even the elders of that city shall take an heifer, which hath not been wrought with, and which hath not drawn in the yoke ;

4 And the elders of that city shall bring down the heifer unto a rough valley, which is neither eared nor sown, and shall strike off the heifer's neck there in the valley :

5 And the priests the sons of Levi shall come near ; for them the LORD thy God hath chosen to minister unto him, and to bless in the name of the LORD ; and by their † word shall every controversy and every stroke be tried :

6 And all the elders of that city, that are next unto the slain man, shall wash their hands over the heifer that is beheaded in the valley :

7 And they shall answer and say, Our hands have not shed this blood, neither have our eyes seen it.

8 Be merciful, O LORD, unto thy people Israel, whom thou hast redeemed, and lay not innocent blood † unto thy people of Israel's charge. And the blood shall be forgiven them.

9 So shalt thou put away the guilt of innocent blood from among you, when thou shalt do that which is right in the sight of the LORD.

10 ¶ When thou goest forth to war

† Heb.
mouth.

† Heb.
in the midst.

just delivered, about making war, because then the bodies of dead men are most frequently found. The wisest lawgivers took the greatest care that, when dead bodies were found, proper inquisition should be made when and how the persons were slain ; but in no ancient law was such effectual provision made for the discovery of secret murders as in this of Moses. Plato, in his ninth book of laws, has a law something resembling this, but falling far short of it in solemnity. Bp. Patrick.

10—13. When thou goest forth to war &c.] The law of Moses by this ordinance softened the horrors of war in the treatment of female captives especially, whom it protected from the insolence and brutality of the conquerors. Philo justly commends this, as an admirable ordinance : on the one side, far from tolerating that licentiousness, which the laws of war tolerated among other nations, it kept the soldier in a state of constraint for thirty days : during this interval, showing him his captive, unattired and unadorned, and giving time for the first impulse of his passion to cool. On the other side, it humanely respected the captive's grief, at being torn from her parents, if a maid, and not indulged with a husband of her own choice. Dr. Hales.

12.— she shall shave her head, and pare her nails ;] Or rather, as in the margin, “ suffer her nails to grow :” to which is added, “ she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her,” that is, the fine clothes, in which she is supposed to have been taken cap-against thine enemies, and the LORD thy God hath delivered them into thine hands, and thou hast taken them captive,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

11 And seest among the captives a beautiful woman, and hast a desire unto her, that thou wouldest have her to thy wife ;

12 Then thou shalt bring her home to thine house ; and she shall shave her head, and † pare her nails ;

13 And she shall put the raiment of her captivity from off her, and shall remain in thine house, and bewail her father and her mother a full month : and after that thou shalt go in unto her, and be her husband, and she shall be thy wife.

¶ Or, suffer to grow.
† Heb. make, or,
dress.

14 And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, then thou shalt let her go whether she will ; but thou shalt not sell her at all for money, thou shalt not make merchandise of her, because thou hast humbled her.

15 ¶ If a man have two wives, one beloved, and another hated, and they have born him children, both the beloved and the hated ; and if the firstborn son be her's that was hated :

16 Then it shall be, when he maketh his sons to inherit that which he hath, that he may not make the son of the beloved firstborn before the son of the hated, which is indeed the firstborn :

17 But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the firstborn, by giving him a double portion of all † that he hath : for he is the beginning of his strength ; the right of the firstborn is his.

† Heb.
that is found with him.

18 ¶ If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice tive ; instead of which she was to put on sordid apparel, or the habit of mourners. The intention of these things is thought to have been, to take away from her all that was inviting, that so such marriages might not be common. Bp. Patrick.

14. And it shall be, if thou have no delight in her, &c.] The liberation of the captive in this case was a just punishment on the captor for his fickleness, and a consolatory recompense to her for the affront of being rejected as his wife. And the design of the law, according to R. Bechai, was, “ that the camp of the Israelites should be holy, and free from the fornications and abominations usually committed in the camps of the heathens ;” with whom it was customary, not only to offer violence to their female captives, but when tired of them, either to sell them, or give them to their slaves. Dr. Hales.

18. If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, &c.] This law was designed for the regulation of families, by giving to parents a well tempered power over extravagant and incorrigible children : which was not to put the lives of children absolutely into the hands of the parents, as the custom of many other countries did ; but to direct them, when all means of admonition and correction were lost upon any son, and they saw nothing but ruin to the estate and family by his lewdness and debauchery, to make complaint to the magistry in court ; who, upon sufficient evidence given against him, should condemn him to death, as a terrible of his father, or the voice of his mother, and that, when they have chastened him, will not hearken unto them :

Before
CHRIST
1451.

19 Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him, and bring him out unto the elders of his city, and unto the gate of his place ;

20 And they shall say unto the elders of his city, This our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice ; he is a glutton, and a drunkard.

21 And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die : so shalt thou put evil away from among you ; and all Israel shall hear, and fear.

22 ¶ And if a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he be to be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree :

* Gal. 3. 13.

† Heb.
the curse of God.

23 His body shall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou shalt in any wise bury him that day ; (for ^a he that is hanged is [†] accursed of God ;) that thy land be not defiled, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

CHAP. XXII.

1 Of humanity toward brethren. 5 The sex is to be distinguished by apparel. 6 The dam is not to be taken with her young ones. 8 The house must have battle- ments. 9 Confusion is to be avoided. 12 Fringes upon the vesture. 13 The punishment of him that slandereth his wife. 20, 22 Of adultery, 25 of rape, 28 and of fornication. 30 Incest. Before CHRIST 1451.

THOU ^a shalt not see thy brother's ox ^a Exod. 23. 4. or his sheep go astray, and hide thyself from them : thou shalt in any case bring them again unto thy brother.

2 And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and thou shalt restore it to him again.

3 In like manner shalt thou do with his ass ; and so shalt thou do with his raiment ; and with all lost thing of thy brother's, which he hath lost, and thou hast found, shalt thou do likewise : thou mayest not hide thyself.

4 ¶ Thou shalt not see thy brother's ass or his ox fall down by the way, and hide thyself from them : thou shalt surely help him to lift them up again.

5 ¶ The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment : for all that do so are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

example of disobedience to the laws of God and man. Pyle. The father and mother must both consent in bringing their son before the judges, ver. 19, which they probably would not do, till he was altogether incorrigible ; and could not do, till after they had chastened him, ver. 18. Bp. Kidder.

The paternal power, as it is the most ancient form of civil government, so in ancient times it was very great, as it appears from the old Roman laws, and in the laws and customs of some other people : it was even a power of life and death. The only reason that could be offered in favour of such high privilege was, that fathers might well be trusted on account of that tenderness, which they must have had for their offspring. But arbitrary power is a dangerous thing ; and as there are too often undutiful children, there are sometimes unnatural parents. The law of Moses very wisely limited this excessive power ; and provided, that, if the children proved wicked and undutiful, the parents were to complain of them to the magistrates, and if the complaint appeared just, they were to be put to death. This law was enacted by way of terror to bad children. It is to be supposed, that it was very seldom put in execution, and that few parents could bring themselves to treat their children with such severity. Dr. Jortin. See the note on Lev. xx. 9.

22.—and thou hang him on a tree :] That is, after he had been put to death. For hanging was not one of the capital punishments, commonly used among the Jews : but the idolater, and blasphemer, those accursed offenders, after they were stoned, were or might be hanged up. Bp. Kidder.

23.—is accursed of God ;] Such persons are said to be “ accursed of God,” because of their sin which deserved they should be thus exposed : hanging up being a token that the man had committed a horrid crime, whereby he had incurred the high displeasure of Almighty God. Bp. Patrick.

Hanging was not properly one of the punishments inflicted by the Jewish law : they were four ; stoning, burning, beheading, and strangling the criminal as he stood on the ground. But none were hanged, till they were dead. And, as the Jewish rabbies, and many Christian commentators, say, only idolaters and blasphemers were so treated ; having been first stoned, which was reckoned the most severe punishment of all. And as their crimes were the most heinous and offensive to God, this addition of hanging them afterwards was appointed, as a token to denote the Divine displeasure against those criminals ; who are therefore said to be “ accursed of God,” or “ the curse of God,” that is, execrable to Him. And this treatment was designed to represent them as the worst of men, fit neither to live, nor to enjoy the common privilege of burial when dead. From the nature of this punishment, and the character of those who were liable to it among the Jews, St. Paul represents the wonderful condescension and compassion of our Saviour in submitting to die for us after the manner of their greatest criminals. “ Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us : for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree,” Gal. iii. 13. Dr. John Ward.

Chap. XXII. ver. 5. The woman shall not wear &c.] It was an idolatrous custom, for men to wear the flowered garments of women, when they worshipped Venus ; and for women to wear a coat of mail and armour, when they worshipped Mars ; these dresses being accounted more pleasing to them, as better suiting their particular characters ; for Venus was supposed to be the goddess of pleasure and love, and Mars the god of arms and war. The idolatrous notion of deities of different sexes was a great corruption of the knowledge of the true God ; and gave great occasion for debauchery and impure rites, even in their religious worship. It was this custom which the present law was designed to discountenance. Lowman.

If there were no distinction of sexes, made by their habits, it would open a door to all manner of impurity : for which reason, if there were no other, this law was very wise and pious. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

6 ¶ If a bird's nest chance to be before thee in the way in any tree, or on the ground, whether they be young ones, or eggs, and the dam sitting upon the young, or upon the eggs, thou shalt not take the dam with the young:

7 But thou shalt in any wise let the dam go, and take the young to thee; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days.

8 ¶ When thou buildest a new house, then thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof, that thou bring not blood upon thine house, if any man fall from thence.

9 ¶ Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard with divers seeds: lest the † fruit of thy seed which thou hast sown, and the fruit of thy vineyard, be defiled.

10 ¶ Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together.

11 ¶ ^bThou shalt not wear a garment of divers sorts, as of woollen and linen together.

12 ¶ Thou shalt make thee ^cfringes upon the four † quarters of thy vesture, where-with thou coverest thyself.

13 ¶ If any man take a wife, and go in unto her, and hate her,

14 And give occasions of speech against her, and bring up an evil name upon her, and say, I took this woman, and when I came to her, I found her not a maid:

15 Then shall the father of the damsel, and her mother, take and bring forth the tokens of the damsel's virginity unto the elders of the city in the gate:

16 And the damsel's father shall say unto the elders, I gave my daughter unto this man to wife, and he hateth her;

17 And, lo, he hath given occasions of speech against her, saying, I found not thy daughter a maid; and yet these are the tokens of my daughter's virginity. And they shall spread the cloth before the elders of the city.

18 And the elders of that city shall take that man and chastise him;

19 And they shall amerce him in an hun-

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb.
wings.

† Heb. fulness of thy seed.

^b Lev. 19.
19.

^c Numb.
15. 38.

6. If a bird's nest &c.] Another injunction now given was, that when they took the eggs or young out of the nest of any bird, whether for food or for sacrifice, they should never destroy the old one along with them: God intending, by this emblematical precept, to impress on the minds of His people, a sense of His Divine providence and mercy, extending itself to all creatures; and chiefly, by exercising this pity towards other useful and innocent animals, to oblige them to higher charity, love, and compassion towards one another: for Moses tells them, that this merciful temper was one of the conditions, on which they were to expect the Divine blessing upon them in the land of promise. See and compare the law, chap. xxv. 4, about "not muzzling the ox that treadeth out the corn," with 1 Cor. ix. 9, 10, which probably is one of the best keys to the interpretation of this law. Pyle.

A Jewish commentator hath supposed the prevention of cruelty to be the spirit and import of these laws, and thus interprets them: As your Father in heaven is merciful, so be ye merciful upon earth, and destroy not on the same day a beast and its young one. Dr. Jortin. See the note on Lev. xxii. 28.

8. — thou shalt make a battlement] The top of an Eastern house, which is always flat, is covered with a strong plaister of terrace; from whence it has, in the Frank language, attained the name of "the terrace:" a word, made use of likewise in several parts of these countries. It is surrounded by two walls; the outermost of which is partly built over the street, partly makes the partition with the contiguous terraces, being frequently so low, that one may climb over it. The other, or the parapet wall, as we may call it, hangs immediately over the court, being always breast high, and answers to the word which we render "the battlements" in the Scriptures. On these terraces several offices of the family are performed; such as the drying of linen, preparing of figs and raisins; here likewise they enjoy the cool refreshing breezes of the evening, converse with one another, and offer up their devotions. Dr. Shaw.

9. Thou shalt not sow thy vineyard &c.] It was an idolatrous rite to sow barley and dried grapes together: by which they signified, that their vineyards were consecrated to Ceres and Bacchus, and were recommended to their protection. This law forbade such rites, as being a sort of renunciation of the protection and blessing of the true God, and a declaration of their hope in the favour of other gods besides Him. Lowman. See also the note on Lev. xix. 19.

10. Thou shalt not plow with an ox and an ass together.] The same aversion from mixture, which is noticed in the note on Lev. xix. 19, seems to have dictated this prohibition. The precept seems also to regard the unequal size and strength of these animals: it would be cruel to urge the weaker to the same exertions as the stronger; while to lay the whole burden on the stronger is to derive no assistance from the weaker: not to mention the different temper, paces, speed, height, &c. of the two unequal yokemates. Some suppose, that the ox being a pure animal, but the ass being impure, the import of the precept is, to forbid the intimate association of clean and unclean; see 2 Cor. vi. 14. An excellent moral use results from this view of the precept. Script. illust.

13. If any man take a wife, &c.] The particularities mentioned in these verses are fully explained and vindicated by Niebuhr: who found the same principles still in force among the Arabs in Yemen. He observes, that as the husband by presents, &c. pays the father of his wife, and may be said to purchase his daughter under a certain description and character, so far as she differs from that character the husband is deceived and injured; and this deception justifies his returning his wife to her father, and redemanding his presents, &c. This, as may be supposed, must vex and dishonour the whole family of the woman so repudiated; and were it a frequent occurrence, must spread animosities and jealousies throughout not a family only, but a country. Script. illust.

18. — the elders — shall take that man and chastise him;] A good name is too precious a thing to be left to the rude tongue of every licentious person without a severe penalty for abusing it. — God had so signal a tenderness for the reputation of His people, that in the first body of laws, which He condescended to deliver to His people, He provided, that if a man traduced his own wife, he was to be most severely punished. We never see any memorable act of injustice and oppression done, but the person is first much defamed, to make him the fitter to be injured, when he seems unworthy to be pitied. St. Paul therefore puts "backbiters" and "haters of God" together, Rom. i. 30; as if they could not love the Majesty of God, who are so uncharitable as to calumniate their neighbour. Lord Clarendon.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

dred shekels of silver, and give them unto the father of the damsel, because he hath brought up an evil name upon a virgin of Israel: and she shall be his wife; he may not put her away all his days.

20 But if this thing be true, and the tokens of virginity be not found for the damsel:

21 Then they shall bring out the damsel to the door of her father's house, and the men of her city shall stone her with stones that she die: because she hath wrought folly in Israel, to play the whore in her father's house: so shalt thou put evil away from among you.

Lev. 20.
10.

22 ¶ If a man be found lying with a woman married to an husband, then they shall both of them die, both the man that lay with the woman, and the woman: so shalt thou put away evil from Israel.

23 ¶ If a damsel that is a virgin be betrothed unto an husband, and a man find her in the city, and lie with her;

24 Then ye shall bring them both out unto the gate of that city, and ye shall stone them with stones that they die; the damsel, because she cried not, being in the city; and the man, because he hath humbled his neighbour's wife: so thou shalt put away evil from among you.

Or, take strong hold of her.

25 ¶ But if a man find a betrothed damsel in the field, and the man force her, and lie with her: then the man only that lay with her shall die:

26 But unto the damsel thou shalt do nothing; there is in the damsel no sin worthy of death: for as when a man riseth against his neighbour, and slayeth him, even so is this matter:

27 For he found her in the field, and the betrothed damsel cried, and there was none to save her.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

28 ¶ If a man find a damsel that is a virgin, which is not betrothed, and lay hold on her, and lie with her, and they be found;

Exod. 22.
16.

29 Then the man that lay with her shall give unto the damsel's father fifty shekels of silver, and she shall be his wife; because he hath humbled her, he may not put her away all his days.

30 ¶ A man shall not take his father's wife, nor discover his father's skirt.

Lev. 18. 8

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Who may or may not enter into the congregation. 9 Uncleaness to be avoided in the host. 15 Of the fugitive servant. 17 Of filthiness. 18 Of abominable sacrifices. 19 Of usury. 21 Of vows. 24 Of trespasses.

HE that is wounded in the stones, or hath his privy member cut off, shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

2 A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD.

3 ^a An Ammonite or Moabite shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; ¹ even to their tenth generation shall they not enter into the congregation of the LORD for ever:

Neh. 13.

4 Because they met you not with bread and with water in the way, when ye came forth out of Egypt; and ^b because they hired against thee Balaam the son of Beor of Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse thee.

Numb.
22. 5, 6.

5 Nevertheless the LORD thy God would not hearken unto Balaam; but the LORD

22. — They shall both of them die,] The Commandment, relating to adultery, is of the utmost consequence to the peace of families and to the welfare of society, and forbids an iniquity most odious in the sight of God, an offence which all human laws condemn, but which they do not always punish as strictly as it deserves. By the law of Moses death was the punishment of adultery; and restitution, with a fine, was the punishment of theft. But in Christian nations, I know not how and wherefore, this rule is inverted, and it is safer to commit adultery than to steal: though surely it ought not to be so. Dr. Jortin.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. — shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord.] The Israelitish nation being separated from the rest of the world, by laws and privileges peculiar to themselves, as the worshippers and church of the one only true God; though men of all other nations were admitted and encouraged to become proselytes to their religion, and enjoy the benefits of its true worship; yet the Divine wisdom thought it requisite, for maintaining the honour and distinction of this His peculiar nation, not to admit of intermarriages with all sorts of proselyted people, or to allow all such to be equally capable of being incorporated into its community and bearing offices in it. Moses therefore now ordains, that the following sorts of people should, though they turned proselytes, be excluded from these privileges. Pyle.

3. An Ammonite or Moabite] The meaning of this law is, that though an Ammonite or a Moabite should become a convert to the Jewish religion, and conform to their laws and ceremonies in every respect, and become a complete member of the Jewish Church; yet he should not have the privilege of marrying with an Israelite, but should be debarred from it, he and his posterity, "for ten generations;" which is interpreted in Nehemiah to mean for ever, chap. xiii. 1. Such was the mark set upon these people for their offence in the matter of Balaam: and Balaam's infamy is perpetuated by the same law, being expressly mentioned in it as the man, who had been "hired to curse God's people." Dr. Waterland.

4. — Mesopotamia,] This country had the same name among the Hebrews as Syria, being called Aram, and also Padan-aram, though sometimes it is more plainly distinguished from Syria, by being called Aram-Naharaim, or Aram of the rivers. Bp. Pycocke.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

thy God turned the curse into a blessing unto thee, because the LORD thy God loved thee.

6 Thou shalt not seek their peace nor their † prosperity all thy days for ever.

† Heb.
good.

7 ¶ Thou shalt not abhor an Edomite; for he is thy brother: thou shalt not abhor an Egyptian; because thou wast a stranger in his land.

8 The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the LORD in their third generation.

9 ¶ When the host goeth forth against thine enemies, then keep thee from every wicked thing.

10 ¶ If there be among you any man, that is not clean by reason of uncleanness that chanceth him by night, then shall he go abroad out of the camp, he shall not come within the camp:

† Heb.
turneth toward.

11 But it shall be, when evening † cometh on, he shall wash himself with water: and when the sun is down, he shall come into the camp again.

12 ¶ Thou shalt have a place also without the camp, whither thou shalt go forth abroad:

13 And thou shalt have a paddle upon thy weapon; and it shall be, when thou † wilt ease thyself abroad, thou shalt dig therewith, and shalt turn back and cover that which cometh from thee:

† Heb.
sittest down.

14 For the LORD thy God walketh in the midst of thy camp, to deliver thee, and to give up thine enemies before thee; therefore shall thy camp be holy: that he see no † unclean thing in thee, and turn away from thee.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

15 ¶ Thou shalt not deliver unto his master the servant which is escaped from his master unto thee:

† Heb.
nakedness of any thing.

16 He shall dwell with thee, even among you, in that place which he shall choose in one of thy gates, where it † liketh him best: thou shalt not oppress him.

† Heb. is good for him.

17 ¶ There shall be no || whore of the daughters of Israel, nor a sodomite of the sons of Israel.

|| Or,
sodomites.

18 Thou shalt not bring the hire of a whore, or the price of a dog, into the house of the LORD thy God for any vow: for even both these are abomination unto the LORD thy God.

19 ¶ ^c Thou shalt not lend upon usury to thy brother; usury of money, usury of victuals, usury of any thing that is lent upon usury:

^c Exod. 22.
^{25.}
Lev 25. 36.
Psalm 15. 5.

20 Unto a stranger thou mayest lend upon usury; but unto thy brother thou shalt not lend upon usury: that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all that thou settest thine hand to in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

21 ¶ ^d When thou shalt vow a vow unto the LORD thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it: for the LORD thy God will surely

^d Eccles. 5.
^{4.}

9. — then keep thee from every wicked thing.] This was a rule to be observed at all times; but then especially, when they had the greatest need of the Divine help, for which wicked people could not reasonably hope; and when there was the greatest danger of being wicked, in a time of such licence as soldiers commonly take. Bp. Patrick. If, even with right on its side, a nation would conquer and triumph, let it remember to prepare the way by repentance and reformation. If thou desirest to become great, let ambition first excite thee to be good. The qualities are associated in the style imperial of heaven: "The Lord of Hosts: the HOLY One of Israel." The characters therefore of the warrior and the Christian are not incompatible. Bp. Horne.

14. — therefore shall thy camp be holy:] These directions were given them, that they might the more easily understand, how watchful they ought to be over themselves in all other cases, especially such as had in them any moral and inward impurity: and to impress upon their minds a deeper sense of the majesty and purity of the great God, whose servants they were, and upon their due reverence and regard to whose Divine Presence amongst them depended all the success of their undertakings. Pyle.

15. — the servant which is escaped from his master] That is, the servant not of a Hebrew, but of an alien and stranger. Bp. Kidder. A heathen soldier or servant, who deserted and came over to the Israelites, with intent of turning proselyte to the true religion. Pyle.

17. There shall be no whore &c.] These laws were given in reference and opposition to the religious opinions and ceremonies of idolatrous nations; and are here to be understood, not only as prohibitions of these crimes in general, but under pretence of religion: such practices being common in the worship of certain heathen gods, and reckoned acceptable to them. Dean Spencer.

18. Thou shalt not bring the hire &c.] The heathens were wont to consecrate to their gods some of the gains which they received as the reward of their prostitution of themselves to uncleanness. See Mic. i. 7. See also Prov. vii. 14. God declares, in opposition to the filthy practices of the heathen, that He will not accept of this hire. Bp. Kidder.

— or the price of a dog,] Because a dog was worshipped by the Egyptians, God, to draw His people away from idolatry, casts this contempt upon that creature, in refusing the price it should be sold for. Bp. Kidder. The law probably intended to denote to them, that even the dog, one of the vilest of animals, is a fit comparison for, and put as it were in the same rank with, openly unclean and debauched people. Pyle.

20. — that the Lord thy God may bless thee] Charity to their poor brethren had many promises of a great reward; and this law was made peculiarly for their relief. It extended indeed to all; but chiefly it was designed, as a provision for the poor and needy; whom they were not to neglect: for God ordered them all to live together, as brethren, children of the same father; and descended, as indeed they all were, from one and the same original. To this end all those precepts were given, which require them to lend gratuitously to their poor brother; to restore the pledge left with them; to leave the corners of their fields unreaped; not to gather the gleanings of the harvest and vintage; to observe the year of release and of jubilee; and such like peculiar provisions for the comfort of the poorer sort, that they might share in the happiness which God bestowed upon His elect people. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

require it of thee; and it would be sin in thee.

22 But if thou shalt forbear to vow, it shall be no sin in thee.

23 That which is gone out of thy lips thou shalt keep and perform; even a free-will offering, according as thou hast vowed unto the LORD thy God, which thou hast promised with thy mouth.

24 ¶ When thou comest into thy neighbour's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes thy fill at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel.

25 When thou comest into the standing corn of thy neighbour, ^c then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand; but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbour's standing corn.

^c Matthew
12. 1.
Mark 2. 23.
Luke 6. 1.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Of divorce. 5 A new married man goeth not to war. 6, 10 Of pledges. 7 Of manstealers. 8 Of leprosy. 14 The hire is to be given. 16 Of justice. 19 Of charity.

^a Matthew
5. 31. & 19.
7.

Mark 10. 4.

† Heb. matter of nakedness.
† Heb.
cutting off.

WHEN a ^a man hath taken a wife, and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favour in his eyes, because he hath found [†] some uncleanness in her: then let him write her a bill of [†] divorcement, and give it in her hand, and send her out of his house.

2 And when she is departed out of his house, she may go and be another man's wife.

3 And if the latter husband hate her,

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. — because he hath found some uncleanness in her:] That is, hath observed some light carriage, or some other defect of mind, or disorder of body. For it is not to be supposed here, that she was guilty of adultery, which was punishable with death: or that the husband was jealous of her on that account, in which case the law had made provision, Numb. v. 12. Bp. Kidder.

— a bill of divorcement,] The law rigorously enforced the observance of whatever it enjoined, though some precepts were framed with somewhat of lax and indulgent consideration of what the perverse temper of the Israelites would bear. Thus, as they had long been accustomed to divorces, it was judged right, rather to restrict them by deliberate regulations, than entirely to abolish them, which might have occasioned bad consequences. Dr. Gray. This permission was granted, whether it were that the Hebrew nation had for some time been accustomed to take the liberty of putting away their wives upon reasons of dislike or aversion; or that God foresaw that hardness and severity of temper in them, which, from an absolute restraint on such liberty, would have produced greater inconvenience and distraction in many families. See Matt. xix. 8. Pyle.

4. Her former husband, — may not take her again] This was a just punishment for his levity. Besides, this prohibition was very reasonable on several accounts. 1st, It would tend to restrain men from divorcing their wives rashly and for light causes. 2dly, The woman was thereby secured from coming again under the same yoke. 3dly, It prevented the hateful practice of lending and write her a bill of divorcement, and giveth it in her hand, and sendeth her out of his house; or if the latter husband die, which took her to be his wife;

Before
CHRIST
1451.

4 Her former husband, which sent her away, may not take her again to be his wife, after that she is defiled; for that is abomination before the LORD: and thou shalt not cause the land to sin, which the LORD thy God giveth thee for an inheritance.

5 ¶ ^b When a man hath taken a new wife, he shall not go out to war, [†] neither shall he be charged with any business: but he shall be free at home one year, and shall cheer up his wife which he hath taken.

^b Chap. 20.
7.
† Heb. not any thing shall pass upon him.

6 ¶ No man shall take the nether or the upper millstone to pledge: for he taketh a man's life to pledge.

7 ¶ If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or sell-eth him; then that thief shall die; and thou shalt put evil away from among you.

8 ¶ Take heed in the ^c plague of leprosy, that thou observe diligently, and do according to all that the priests the Levites shall teach you: as I commanded them, so ye shall observe to do.

^c Lev. 13.
2.

9 Remember what the LORD thy God did ^d unto Miriam by the way, after that ye were come forth out of Egypt.

1490.
^d Numb.
12. 10.
† Heb. lend the loan of any thing to, &c.

10 ¶ When thou dost [†] lend thy brother out, or prostituting wives, and the many mischiefs, arising thence, which might have been practised, had it not been for this prohibition. For which reason the taking of her again is called “abomination before the Lord;” as what might have served for a pretext to very vicious practices. Bp. Kidder. Thus while God, for particular reasons, gave them this indulgence in a thing not agreeable to the original institution and design of marriage, He so restrained it as to prevent its worst inconveniences. Pyle.

The law tolerated polygamy, and divorce upon slight occasions, two practices which, though not immoral in their own nature, were attended with bad consequences, produced jealousy and discord, hatred and malice in families, and made it exceeding difficult for children to love their brethren and sisters, and to honour their parents. This, as our Saviour observes, was permitted to the Jews, only to prevent greater mischiefs which would have followed the prohibition. Thus God, when He condescended to be their Legislator and their King, condescended to their imperfections, and acted as human governours are often obliged to act, who account it wisdom, of two evils to permit the lesser, and to connive at things which they disapprove. Dr. Jortin.

9. Remember what the Lord thy God did unto Miriam] This seems to be mentioned, that they might submit with patience to the confinement and long discipline required for the cure of leprosy, since so great a person as Miriam was excluded so long from the society of God's people. And it may also be regarded as an admonition, to take care lest they should “speak evil of 1451. any thing, thou shalt not go into his house to fetch his pledge.

Before
CHRIST

11 Thou shalt stand abroad, and the man to whom thou dost lend shall bring out the pledge abroad unto thee.

12 And if the man be poor, thou shalt not sleep with his pledge:

13 In any case thou shalt deliver him the pledge again when the sun goeth down, that he may sleep in his own raiment, and bless thee: and it shall be righteousness unto thee before the LORD thy God.

14 ¶ Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates:

15 At his day^e thou shalt give him his hire, neither shall the sun go down upon it; for he is poor, and [†]setteth his heart upon it: lest he cry against thee unto the LORD, and it be sin unto thee.

16^f The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers: every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

17 ¶ Thou shalt not pervert the judgment of the stranger, nor of the fatherless; nor take the widow's raiment to pledge:

18 But thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt, and the LORD thy God redeemed thee thence: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

19 ¶^g When thou cuttest down thine harvest in thy field, and hast forgot a sheaf in the field, thou shalt not go again to fetch it: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow: that the LORD thy God may bless thee in all the work of thine hands. Before

CHRIST
1451.

20 When thou beatest thine olive tree, [†]thou shalt not go over the boughs again: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow. [†]Heb. thou shalt not bough it after thee.

21 When thou gatherest the grapes of thy vineyard, thou shalt not glean it [†]afterward: it shall be for the stranger, for the fatherless, and for the widow. [†]Heb. after thee.

22 And thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in the land of Egypt: therefore I command thee to do this thing.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Stripes must not exceed forty. 4 The ox is not to be muzzled. 5 Of raising seed unto a brother. 11 Of the innodest woman. 13 Of unjust weights. 17 The memory of Amalek is to be blotted out.

IF there be a controversy between men, and they come unto judgment, that the judges may judge them; then they shall justify the righteous, and condemn the wicked.

2 And it shall be, if the wicked man be worthy to be beaten, that the judge shall cause him to lie down, and to be beaten before his face, according to his fault, by a certain number.

3^a Forty stripes he may give him, and not exceed: lest, if he should exceed, and beat him above these with many stripes, then thy brother should seem vile unto thee.

4 ¶^b Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he [†]treadeth out the corn.

dignities," which brought this punishment on Miriam. Bp. Patrick.

10. — thou shalt not go into his house &c.] How are the feelings, as well as the wants, of the poor consulted in this precept! as if the legislator had said, Intrude not into the abode of thy poor brother, if he is not willing to expose to the stranger's eye the humiliating circumstances of want and nakedness, which attend his destitute state: or perhaps there is some little monument of his better days, which he reserves to console his misery, and which he would not wish to be seen by the person from whom he implores aid, lest he should demand that in pledge; and either, if denied, refuse relief, or by tearing away this almost sacred relick, to which his heart clings, embitter his distress. No, says the law; the hovel of the poor must be sacred as an holy asylum: the eye of scorn and the foot of pride must not dare to intrude; even the agent of mercy must not enter it abruptly and unbid, without consulting the feelings of its wretched inhabitant. Dr. Graves.

16. — every man shall be put to death for his own sin.] The penalty of "visiting the sins of the fathers upon the children," Exod. xx. 5, was reserved to God Himself as the Supreme Judge; for no magistrate was allowed, in ordinary cases, to punish the innocent for the guilty. Compare Ezek. xviii. 4—20. Dr. Hales.

20. When thou beatest thine olive tree,] This is the usual method of gathering the fruit of the olive tree. In the kingdom of Naples, and in several other parts of Italy, they beat the branches with long poles, in order to make the fruit fall. The olives of the Holy Land continue to be beaten down to this time. Harmer.

Chap. XXV. ver. 3. Forty stripes he may give him,] This law forbade exceeding forty stripes: the rabbies decided for thirty-nine: the manner of scourging with three thongs confined it to this number. Dr. Gerard.

4. Thou shalt not muzzle the ox &c.] Homer has described the method of threshing corn by the feet of oxen, as practised in his time and country. The ancient Arabs, Syrians, Egyptians, and Romans, threshed their corn in the same manner by the feet of oxen. And "the Moors and Arabs," says Dr. Shaw, "continue to tread out their corn after the primitive custom of the East. Instead of beeves they frequently make use of mules and horses, by tying in the like manner, by the neck, three or four of them together, and whipping them afterwards round about the threshingfloors, where the sheaves lie open and expanded, in the same manner as they are placed and prepared with us for threshing." The import of the Commandment, which the Apostle applies to Ministers of the Gospel, is, It is not fit, that he who contributes to prepare food for others, should be denied a portion of sustenance for himself; see Hosea xi. 4; for it should appear,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

* Math 22
24.
Mark 12.
19.
Luke 20.
29.
|| Or, next kinsman.

|| Or,
next kins-
man's wife.
c Ruth 4. 7.

5 ¶ If brethren dwell together, and one of them die, and have no child, the wife of the dead shall not marry without unto a stranger: her husband's brother shall go in unto her, and take her to him to wife, and perform the duty of an husband's brother unto her.

6 And it shall be, that the firstborn which she beareth shall succeed in the name of his brother which is dead, that his name be not put out of Israel.

7 And if the man like not to take his brother's wife, then let his brother's wife go up to the gate unto the elders, and say, My husband's brother refuseth to raise up unto his brother a name in Israel, he will not perform the duty of my husband's brother.

8 Then the elders of his city shall call him, and speak unto him: and if he stand to it, and say, I like not to take her;

9 Then shall his brother's wife come unto him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoe from off his foot, and spit in his face, and shall answer and say, So shall it be done unto that man that will not build up his brother's house.

10 And his name shall be called in Israel, The house of him that hath his shoe loosed.

11 ¶ When men strive together one with another, and the wife of the one draweth near for to deliver her husband out of the hand of him that smiteth him, and putteth forth her hand, and taketh him by the secrets:

12 Then thou shalt cut off her hand, thine eye shall not pity her.

13 ¶ Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights, a great and a small.

† Heb.
a stone and a stone.

that however, to this day, the oxen which "tread out corn" are not muzzled, in other kinds of labour they were and still are. Fragments to Calmet. God instructs His people, by shewing mercy to their beasts, to be kind one to another; particularly to their servants and labourers: but above all to those, who labour in the work of the ministry for the salvation of souls: as St. Paul argues, 1 Cor. ix. 9. Bp. Patrick.

We have here a symbolical law; and the meaning of it is, that whosoever is employed in labours beneficial to others, ought himself to partake of the profit. This law therefore recommends humanity to slaves and to hired servants, encouragement to the industrious, liberality to the deserving, and publick rewards to those who are useful to the publick. For this interpretation we have the warrant and authority of St. Paul. Dr. Jortin.

9. — loose his shoe from off his foot,] Some think this was done to signify the man's renouncing all right and title to the woman. But this meaning being countenanced by no parallel passage in Scripture, or the like usage in any country that I know of, it is most agreeable to the design of the law here given, to understand it as an expression of ignominy and disgrace. Compare Is. xx. 3, 4. Pyle. It may have been a mark of infamy for his want of natu-

14 Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small. Before CHRIST 1451.

15 But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have: that thy days may be lengthened in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. † Heb. an ephah and an ephah.

16 For all that do such things, and all that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the Lord thy God.

17 ¶ Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt; c Exod. 17. 8.

18 How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary; and he feared not God.

19 Therefore it shall be, when the Lord thy God hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven; thou shalt not forget it.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 The confession of him that offereth the basket of first-fruits. 12 The prayer of him that giveth his third year's tithes. 16 The covenant between God and the people.

AND it shall be, when thou art come in unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee for an inheritance, and possessest it, and dwellest therein;

2 That thou shalt take of the first of all the fruit of the earth, which thou shalt bring of thy land that the Lord thy God giveth thee, and shalt put it in a basket, and shalt go unto the place which the ral affection; which made him unworthy to be reckoned among free-men, and deserving rather of being thrust down into the condition of slaves, who were wont to go barefoot. Bp. Patrick. Concerning the other mark of contempt, see the note on Numb. xii. 14.

13. Thou shalt not have in thy bag divers weights,] Besides what every body calls theft, there are many practices, which amount indirectly to much the same thing, however disguised in the world under gentler names. Thus, in the way of trade and business; if the seller puts off any thing for better than it is, by false assertions or deceitful arts: if he takes advantage of the buyer's ignorance, or particular necessities, or good opinion of him, to insist on a larger price for it than the current value: or if he gives less in quantity than he professes, or is understood to give: the frequency of some of these cases cannot alter the nature of any of them. No one can be ignorant that they are wrong, but such as are wilfully or very carelessly ignorant: and the declaration of Scripture against the last of them is extended, in the same place, to every one of the rest. "For all that do such things, and all that do unrighteously, are an abomination unto the Lord thy God." Abp. Secker.

Before CHRIST 1451. LORD thy God shall choose to place his name there.

3 And thou shalt go unto the priest that shall be in those days, and say unto him, I profess this day unto the LORD thy God, that I am come unto the country which the LORD sware unto our fathers for to give us.

4 And the priest shall take the basket out of thine hand, and set it down before the altar of the LORD thy God.

5 And thou shalt speak and say before the LORD thy God, A Syrian ready to perish was my father, and he went down into Egypt, and sojourned there with a few, and became there a nation, great, mighty, and populous:

6 And the Egyptians evil entreated us, and afflicted us, and laid upon us hard bondage:

7 And when we cried unto the LORD God of our fathers, the LORD heard our voice, and looked on our affliction, and our labour, and our oppression:

8 And the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt with a mighty hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with great terrible-ness, and with signs, and with wonders:

9 And he hath brought us into this place, and hath given us this land, even a land that floweth with milk and honey.

10 And now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which thou, O LORD, hast given me. And thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, and worship before the LORD thy God:

11 And thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you.

12 ¶ When thou hast made an end of tithing all the tithes of thine increase the third year, which is ^a the year of tithing, and hast given it unto the Levite, the stranger, the fatherless, and the widow, that they may eat within thy gates, and be filled;

13 Then thou shalt say before the LORD thy God, I have brought away the hallowed things out of mine house, and also have given them unto the Levite, and unto the stranger, to the fatherless, and to the widow, according to all thy commandments which thou hast commanded me: I have not transgressed thy commandments, neither have I forgotten them:

14 I have not eaten thereof in my mourning, neither have I taken away ought thereof for any unclean use, nor given ought thereof for the dead: but I have hearkened to the voice of the LORD my God, and have done according to all that thou hast commanded me.

15 ^b Look down from thy holy habitation, from heaven, and bless thy people Israel, and the land which thou hast given us, as thou swarest unto our fathers, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

16 ¶ This day the LORD thy God hath commanded thee to do these statutes and judgments: thou shalt therefore keep and do them with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

17 Thou hast avouched the LORD this day to be thy God, and to walk in his ways, and to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and to hearken unto his voice:

18 And ^c the LORD hath avouched thee ⁶ this day to be his peculiar people, as he

Before CHRIST 1451.

^a Chap. 14. 28.

^b Isai. 63. 15.

^c Chap. 7. 6.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 3. — I profess this day &c.] How suitable is this profession to the offering of the firstfruits! Here is an acknowledgment of the goodness of God; of their own unworthiness to receive so great goodness; of the truth of God's promises, and God's faithfulness, in fulfilling His covenant. What useful instruction, what proper praise do these few words express! "Now, behold, I have brought the firstfruits of the land, which Thou, O Lord, hast given me." Lorinan.

5. — A Syrian ready to perish was my father,] Jacob is called "a Syrian," as being servant to Laban, who was a Syrian, Gen. xxv. 20; consequently Jacob's mother was so, as were both his wives, and all his children, who were born there, except Benjamin. Or else he is styled "a Syrian," because Mesopotamia, or Padan-aram, whither he was forced to flee, as well as several other adjacent countries, was comprehended anciently under the name of Syria. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

13. — I have brought away the hallowed things &c.] This profession was a wise provision, to keep in memory the goodness of God to the Hebrew nation, and their peculiar engagements to the honour and service of Jehovah, the God of their fathers, as the Abrahamick family. It was a wise means, by an offering to Jehovah, attended with such a profession, to prevent the superstitions then gaining ground; as the Egyptians, says Bishop Patrick, "when they offered the firstfruits of the earth, kept the feast of Isis with doleful lamentations, and as by this mourning they acknowledged Isis, that is, the earth, to be the giver of all these good things; so Jehovah required His people to bring in their harvest with the greatest joy and thanks to Him. As the idolaters separated some part of the firstfruits for magical purposes, and sometimes for carnal and filthy; (for in their feasts great impurities were allowed and practised:) and as they were used to honour the gods and heroes of their country publicly, according to the laws of their country, and privately, as much as they were able, with speaking well of them, and with the firstfruits and annual offerings:" the ritual not only wisely directs an offering to Jehovah, the one true God, and a profession that they have not abused the fruits of the earth to any magical or unclean use, or to the honour or worship of any departed souls, become heroes since their death: but it was also a constant useful exhortation to receive all their blessings as the gift of Jehovah, and to honour Him, and Him only, as their God. Lorinan.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

hath promised thee, and that thou should-est keep all his commandments;

19 And to make thee high above all nations which he hath made, in praise, and in name, and in honour; and that thou mayest be an holy people unto the LORD thy God, as he hath spoken.

CHAP. XXVII.

¹ The people are commanded to write the law upon stones, ⁵ and to build an altar of whole stones. ¹¹ The tribes divided on Gerizim and Ebal. ¹⁴ The curses pronounced on mount Ebal.

AND Moses with the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day.

* Josh. 4. 1.

² And it shall be on the day ^a when ye shall pass over Jordan unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up great stones, and plaister them with plaister:

³ And thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the LORD thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the LORD God of thy fathers hath promised thee.

⁴ Therefore it shall be when ye be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, in mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaister them with plaister.

⁵ And there shalt thou build an altar unto the LORD thy God, an altar of stones:
^b thou shalt not lift up any iron tool upon them.

^b Exod. 20.
25.
Josh. 8. 31.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 1. And Moses with the elders &c.] Moses, having repeated and explained the law, which was given at Horeb, engages the people to obey it; and that he does by the very same methods which he used, when the law was first given them. 1st, He then built an altar according to the command and direction given him, Exod. xxiv. 4; xx. 24, 25; and he takes the same care here, ver. 5. 2^{dly}, He then wrote the words of the law, Exod. xxiv. 4; and here he takes care it should be done, ver. 3, 4. 3^{dly}, He then took the people's profession of obedience, Exod. xxiv. 3; and he mentions the same profession here, chap. xxvi. 17. 4^{thly}, He then took care to confirm the covenant between God and the people by sacrifices, Exod. xxiv. 5; and now he requires the very same kinds of sacrifices also, ver. 6, 7. 5^{thly}, He then, after all his other care, set before them blessings and curses, Lev. xxvi; and so he does here, ver. 12, 13, and chap. xxviii. Bp. Kidder.

2. — and plaister them &c.] That being plain and smooth, they might write on them what is here commanded; which some suppose to be the whole book of Deuteronomy; others, the ten commandments, which were the principal "words of the covenant," as Moses calls his law, chap. xxix. 1. But Josephus is of opinion, that he means the cursings which follow from ver. 15, to the end of the chapter. This is not improbable; as they contain several select precepts, and the last of them seems to respect the whole law of Moses.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

⁶ Thou shalt build the altar of the LORD thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt offer burnt offerings thereon unto the LORD thy God:

⁷ And thou shalt offer peace offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the LORD thy God.

⁸ And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law very plainly.

⁹ ¶ And Moses and the priests the Levites spake unto all Israel, saying, Take heed, and hearken, O Israel; this day thou art become the people of the LORD thy God.

¹⁰ Thou shalt therefore obey the voice of the LORD thy God, and do his commandments and his statutes, which I command thee this day.

¹¹ ¶ And Moses charged the people the same day, saying,

¹² These shall stand upon mount Gerizim to bless the people, when ye are come over Jordan; Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Issachar, and Joseph, and Benjamin:

¹³ And these shall stand upon mount Ebal [†] to curse; Reuben, Gad, and Asher, and Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali.

[†] Heb.
for a cursing.
^c Dan. 9.
11.

¹⁴ ¶ And ^c the Levites shall speak, and say unto all the men of Israel with a loud voice,

¹⁵ Cursed be the man that maketh any graven or molten image, an abomination unto the LORD, the work of the hands of the craftsman, and putteth it in a secret place. And all the people shall answer and say, Amen.

Before the use of paper was discovered, the ancients, particularly the Phenicians and Egyptians, were accustomed to write upon stones: and the custom continued long after the invention of paper, especially if they wished any thing to be commonly known and conveyed down to posterity. Bp. Patrick.

12, 13. — mount Gerizim — mount Ebal] These two mountains are situate in the tribe of Ephraim, near Shechem, in the province of Samaria, and are only separated by a valley, of about 200 paces wide: so that the priests, pronouncing the blessings and curses, in a very loud and distinct manner, might be heard by the people on the sides of the two hills: especially if they were advanced on pulpits, as Ezra afterwards was, Nehem. viii. 4, and had their pulpits placed at proper distances. Stackhouse.

15. — all the people shall answer and say, Amen.] Amen, in Hebrew, signifies true, faithful, certain. It is understood as expressing a wish, "Amen," so be it! or an affirmation, "Amen," yes, I believe it. The Hebrews end the five books of Psalms, according to their distribution of them, with "Amen, amen;"
which the Greek and Latin versions render, "so be it!" The Gospels, &c. are ended with "Amen." The Greek, Latin, and other churches, preserve this word in their prayers, as well as Allelujah, and Hosanna. At the conclusion of the publick prayers, the people anciently answered with a loud voice, Amen. And St. Jerome says, that at Rome, when the people answered Amen, the sound was like a clap of thunder. Calmet. In this place the

Before
CHRIST
1451.

16 Cursed be he that setteth light by his father or his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen.

17 Cursed be he that removeth his neighbour's landmark. And all the people shall say, Amen.

18 Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of the way. And all the people shall say, Amen.

19 Cursed be he that perverteth the judgment of the stranger, fatherless, and widow. And all the people shall say, Amen.

20 Cursed be he that lieth with his father's wife; because he uncovereth his father's skirt. And all the people shall say, Amen.

21 Cursed be he that lieth with any manner of beast. And all the people shall say, Amen.

22 Cursed be he that lieth with his sister, the daughter of his father, or the daughter of his mother. And all the people shall say, Amen.

word is an expression of consent. For sometimes, as the Talmudists say, it has the force of an oath; sometimes it only declares consent and approbation; and sometimes it is used for the confirmation of any thing. An example of the first they think there is in Numb. v. 22: they allege this place for an example of the second: and for the third, Jer. xxviii. 6. Bp. Patrick.

16. Cursed be he that setteth light by his father &c.] The law of Moses hath secured and enforced paternal authority in many instances: the crimes also against God and man are enumerated in it with sufficient accuracy, and proper punishments are appointed for them: and yet, what hath been observed concerning the laws of Solon and of Romulus, the first an Athenian, the other a Roman lawgiver, is also remarkable in the laws of Moses: namely, that no mention is made of murderers of fathers or mothers; as if it were impossible, that any one could do so execrable a deed. But he who struck, or he who cursed his father or mother, was to be treated as he who cursed God and blasphemed His holy name; he was to be put to death. Afterwards, as iniquity abounded in the world, murderers of fathers and mothers, as St. Paul observes, were no uncommon criminals, and severe laws were enacted by the Romans and by other nations against such vile malefactors. Dr. Jortin. See the note on Lev. xx. 9.

18. Cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander &c.] Among several heinous crimes, such as idolatry, contempt of parents, murder, rapine, and the like, is mentioned this of "causing the blind to go out of their way:" a wickedness of a singular nature, and which one would not expect to find in this list of vicious actions. It is a crime, which is seldom committed; there are few opportunities for it; there is little temptation to it; it is doing mischief for mischief's sake, an enormity to which few can easily bring themselves. Blindness in all languages is put for error, and ignorance; and in the style of the Scriptures, ways and paths, and walking, running, going, wandering astray, stumbling, falling, mean the actions and the behaviour of men. These obvious observations will lead us to the moral, mystical, spiritual, and enlarged sense of the law or commination; and it is this: Cursed is he, who imposeth upon the simple, the credulous, the unwary, the ignorant, and the helpless; and either hurts, or defrauds, or deceives, or seduces, or misinforms, or misleads, or perverts, or corrupts, or spoils them. And if cursed be he that maketh the blind to wander out of his way, then by the rule of 23 Cursed be he that lieth with his mother in law. And all the people shall say, Amen.

24 Cursed be he that smiteth his neighbour secretly. And all the people shall say, Amen.

25 ^d Cursed be he that taketh reward to slay an innocent person. And all the people shall say, Amen. ^{d Ezck. 22. 12.}

26 ^c Cursed be he that confirmeth not all ^{c Gal. 3. 10.} the words of this law to do them. And all the people shall say, Amen.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 The blessings for obedience. 15 The curses for disobedience.

AND it shall come to pass, ^a if thou ^{a Lev. 26. 3.} shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the LORD thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth:

contraries, blessed is he who can say with Job, "I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame," chap. xxix. 15. Dr. Jortin.

26. Cursed be he that confirmeth not &c.] The severe spirit, which pervades the law, as shewn in the numerous exactions and declaratory curses detailed in this book, was consistently contrived to point out the rigorous character of the Divine justice, which, in a covenant of stipulated observances, necessarily required punctilious and universal obedience. For though the Divine mercy might compassionate the weakness of human nature, and therefore it prescribed atonements not difficult to be paid; yet God could not, in conformity with His relation to the Israelites, overlook even involuntary deficiencies, or casual defilements. Dr. Gray.

After the pattern here set by God Himself, the Church of England in her Communion Service places before her members the curses due to all sin, and puts them in mind of God's dreadful tribunal, where the impenitent shall be most certainly condemned. This pious office has been sometimes traduced, as if the saying of "Amen" to these sentences of God's law were a cursing of ourselves, and a wicked as well as a foolish thing. But probably it is not considered, that God Himself commanded this manner of answering. And the saying of Amen does not here signify wishing, but affirming and declaring the truth of what God hath revealed. Thus Amen is often in the Gospel translated "verily;" and Jesus, who is the Truth, is called "Amen;" so that Amen is no more than a declaration, that he, whom God blesseth, is blessed, and he, whom God curseth, is cursed; and these "curses" are like our Saviour's "woes" in the Gospel; not procurers of evil, but compassionate predictions of it, in order to prevent it. Christ indeed has purchased forgiveness of sins by His death; yet repentance is necessary to qualify us to receive the benefits of it. Under the Gospel, no less than under the Law, sinners, impenitent sinners, are really accursed. To convince them of this, and to make them own it, is the truest blessing that can be procured for them by the Church. And accordingly, to press all Christians to a true and sincere repentance from the consideration of God's dreadful wrath against unrepented sin, and so to lead them through His mercy to pardon and peace in this life, and eternal happiness in the next, is the benefit which the Church proposes by setting the curses of God's law before us. Nelson.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 1. And it shall come to pass, &c.] The

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 And all these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God.

3 Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field.

4 Blessed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

5 Blessed shall be thy basket and thy || store.

¶ Or, dough, or,
kneadingtroughs.

6 Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

7 The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thy face: they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways.

¶ Or,
barns.

8 The Lord shall command the blessing upon thee in thy || storehouses, and in all that thou settest thine hand unto; and he shall bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

9 The Lord shall establish thee an holy people unto himself, as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, and walk in his ways.

¶ Chap. 30.
2, &c.

¶ Or,
for good.
† Heb.
belly.

10 And all people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord; and they shall be afraid of thee.

11 And ^b the Lord shall make thee plentiful || in goods, in the fruit of thy [†] body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers to give thee. Before 1451.

CHRIST

12 The Lord shall open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven to give the rain unto thy land in his season, and to bless all the work of thine hand: and ^c thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow. ¶ Chap. 15.
6.

13 And the Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord thy God, which I command thee this day, to observe and to do them:

14 And thou shalt not go aside from any of the words which I command thee this day, to the right hand or to the left, to go after other gods to serve them.

15 ¶ But it shall come to pass, ^d if thou wilt not hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe to do all his commandments and his statutes which I command thee this day; that all these curses shall come upon thee, and overtake thee: ¶ Lev. 26.
11.
Lam. 2. 17.
Mal. 2. 2.
Baruch 1.
20.

16 Cursed shalt thou be in the city, and cursed shalt thou be in the field.

17 Cursed shall be thy basket and thy store.

18 Cursed shall be the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep.

19 Cursed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out.

prophecies of Moses may be considered as supplementary to those of Jacob and Balaam: furnishing a more detailed account of the fortunes of the Israelites, and afterwards of the Jews. His predictions of the corruptions of his people after his death; of their subsequent calamities under the judicial and regal scutes; of the horrors of the Assyrian and Babylonian, and afterwards of the Roman, captivity; are delivered with such plainness and precision, that they seem rather to be historical narratives of past transactions, than prophecies of future. In this respect they differ from all others, excepting those of our Lord Himself; the predictions of the rest being generally delivered in a figurative and highly poetical style, very concise, and very obscure. Dr. Hales.

It is observable that the prophecies of Moses abound most in the latter part of his writings. As he drew nearer his end, it pleased God to open to him larger prospects of things. As he was about to take leave of the people, he was enabled to disclose to them more particulars of their future state and condition. The principal of these are contained in this chapter; and we may see the greater part of them accomplished in the world at this present time. Bp. Newton.

2. And all these blessings &c.] Moses here sets at large before the people the blessings for obedience, and the curses for disobedience: and indeed he had foretold, at several times and upon several occasions, that they should be happy or miserable in the world, as they were obedient or disobedient to the law that he had given them. And could there be any stronger evidence of the Divine original of the Mosaic law? and hath not the interposition of Providence been wonderfully remarkable in their good or bad fortune? and is not the truth of the prediction fully attested by the whole series of their history from their first settlement in Canaan to this very day? But he is larger and more particular in recounting the curses than the blessings, as if he had a prescience of the people's disobedience, and foresaw that a larger portion and a longer continuation of the evil would fall to their share, than of the good. Bp. Newton.

5. — thy basket and thy store.] The word "basket" probably means their travelling baskets; and "store" their leathern bags; in both of which they were accustomed to carry things for travelling. The former word occurs only in the account of the convenience, in which they were to carry their firstfruits to Jerusalem: the other no where, but in the description of the hurrying journey of Israel out of Egypt, where it means the utensil, in which they then carried their dough. Probably the two words denote vessels used for carrying things in travelling: and being so understood, the passage promises Israel success in their commerce, as the next verse promises them personal safety in their going out and in their return. Harmer.

12. — in his season.] The former and the latter rain, as the Scripture calls it. See the note on chap. xi. 14. These rains are particularly distinguished, not because there was no more rain during the whole winter, but because on the regular returns of these the plenty of the harvests essentially depended. Dr. Blayney.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb. which thou wouldst do.

20 The LORD shall send upon thee cursing, vexation, and rebuke, in all that thou settest thine hand unto † for to do, until thou be destroyed, and until thou perish quickly; because of the wickedness of thy doings, whereby thou hast forsaken me.

21 The LORD shall make the pestilence cleave unto thee, until he have consumed thee from off the land, whither thou goest to possess it.

° Lev. 26.
16.

22 ° The LORD shall smite thee with a consumption, and with a fever, and with an inflammation, and with an extreme burning, and with the || sword, and with blasting, and with mildew; and they shall pursue thee until thou perish.

|| Or,
drought.

23 And thy heaven that is over thy head shall be brass, and the earth that is under thee shall be iron.

24 The LORD shall make the rain of thy land powder and dust: from heaven shall it come down upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

25 The LORD shall cause thee to be smitten before thine enemies: thou shalt go out one way against them, and flee seven ways before them: and shalt be † removed into all the kingdoms of the earth.

† Heb.
for a removing.

22. — with a consumption, &c.] Scheuchzer thinks this list of diseases comprises those of an inflammatory nature. That rendered "consumption" is perhaps a pestilential swelling, rising for the most part under the arm, many instances of which are noticed in Dr. Russell on the Plague. "The sword," should probably be "thirst, or burning drought;" see the margin. If these diseases be such as arise from a violently heated state of the atmosphere, from a want of cooling rains and refreshing dews, then we see the connexion and climax of the whole, in the following verses, "Thy heaven over thy head shall be brass," &c. Script. illust.

— blasting, and with mildew;] These two relate to the destruction of their corn, and the fruits of the earth, which follows on the corruption of the air, as famine follows on the corruption of the fruits of the earth. The former word appears to signify, as the Greek version translates it, blighting either by sharp winds, or by heat. And the other seems properly rendered by a Greek word signifying paleeness: for corn, grass, and herbs turn pale and wan for want of moisture. Bp. Patrick.

23. And thy heaven — shall be brass, and the earth — iron.] That is, as free from moisture as brass; as hard and impenetrable as iron. Bp. Patrick.

24. — the rain of thy land powder and dust:] Sometimes in India the wind blows very high in those hot and dry seasons; raising up into the air a very great height thick clouds of dust and sand. These dry showers most grievously annoy all those among whom they fall; enough to smite them all with a present blindness; filling their eyes, ears, nostrils; and their mouths are not free, if they be not also well guarded, &c. Sir T. Roe's Embassy. Last night we crossed over an inhospitable sandy desert, where, here and there, we beheld the ground covered with a loose and flying sand, which by the fury of the winter weather is accumulated into such heaps, as upon any great wind the track is lost, and passengers (too oft) overwhelmed and stifled: yea camels, horses, mules, and other beasts, though strong, swift, and steady in their going, are not able to shift for themselves, but perish without recovery: these rolling sands, when agitated by the 26 And thy carcase shall be meat unto all fowls of the air, and unto the beasts of the earth, and no man shall fray them away.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

27 The LORD will smite thee with the botch of Egypt, and with the emerods, and with the scab, and with the itch, whereof thou canst not be healed.

28 The LORD shall smite thee with madness, and blindness, and astonishment of heart:

29 And thou shalt grope at noonday, as the blind gropeth in darkness, and thou shalt not prosper in thy ways: and thou shalt be only oppressed and spoiled evermore, and no man shall save thee.

30 Thou shalt betroth a wife, and another man shall lie with her: thou shalt build an house, and thou shalt not dwell therein: † thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not † gather the grapes thereof.

° Chap. 20.
6.

† Heb.
profane, or,
use it as common meat.

31 Thine ox shall be slain before thine eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof: thine ass shall be violently taken away from before thy face, and † shall not be restored to thee: thy sheep shall be given unto thine enemies, and thou shalt have none to rescue them.

† Heb. shall not return to thee.

32 Thy sons and thy daughters shall be winds, move and remove more like sea than land, and render the way very dreadful to passengers. Indeed in this place I thought that curse fulfilled, where the Lord, by Moses, threatens instead of rain to give them showers of dust. Herbert. These instances are in Persia. Tournefort mentions the same sort of "tempests of sand," in Arabia and in Egypt. Fragments to Calmet. And Bruce, describing his journey over the desert between Sennaar and Egypt, says, "A little before twelve our wind at north ceased, and a considerable quantity of fine sand rained upon us for an hour afterwards." Edit.

26. And thy carcase shall be meat unto all fowls &c.] Nothing was accounted a greater calamity among the Jews, than to have their dead bodies lie exposed, to be devoured by the birds and beasts. Therefore Jeremiah threatens it as the utmost punishment of the king of Judah, chap. xxii. 19; xxxvi. 30; and the Psalmist bewails it as one of the sorest judgments that had befallen them, Ps. lxxix. 2, 3. Bp. Patrick.

31. Thine ox shall be slain &c.] All these are but particular instances of the grievous oppressions which they have suffered in all countries, where their goods have been confiscated, debts due to them cancelled, &c. Bp. Patrick.

32. Thy sons and thy daughters &c.] After specifying the blessings attached to their obedience, ver. 1—14, and the curses to their disobedience, ver. 15—31, in their own land, the enlightened Prophet proceeds to delineate their captivities in foreign lands. I. The passages that follow, particularly in the 32d, 33d, 36th, 37th, 47th, and 48th verses, are remarkably descriptive of the captivities of the ten tribes carried away by the Assyrians, and transplanted in Media, and the remotest parts of the empire; and of the two remaining tribes of Judah and Benjamin, by the Babylonians. These captivities were not to take place until their rejection of the primitive constitution of "judges," and rebellious choice of "kings," during their "regal" state, which is here foretold: and also that these captivities were to be "by land," as marked in the original expression; "The Lord shall cause thee to walk," or "shall lead thee on foot," ver. 36. The true import given unto another people, and thine eyes shall look, and fail with longing for them all the day long: and there shall be no might in thine hand.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

33 The fruit of thy land, and all thy labours, shall a nation which thou knowest not eat up; and thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed alway:

34 So that thou shalt be mad for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

35 The Lord shall smite thee in the knees, and in the legs, with a sore botch that cannot be healed, from the sole of thy foot unto the top of thy head.

36 The Lord shall bring thee, and thy king which thou shalt set over thee, unto a nation which neither thou nor thy fathers have known; and there shalt thou serve other gods, wood and stone.

of these passages is determined by the Prophet Jeremiah in the following summary: "Lo, I bring a nation upon you from far, O house of Israel, saith the Lord: it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whose language thou knowest not, neither understandest what they say. Their quiver is an open sepulchre, they are all mighty men. And they shall eat up thine harvest, &c." See Jer. v. 15—17. The remoteness of the Babylonians is noticed, Is. v. 26, and the antiquity of "the land of Nimrod," Mic. v. 6, the Syriack language was not understood by the Jews, 2 Kings xviii. 26. And their arms were chiefly bow and arrows, Jer. vi. 23; xlix. 35; Is. lxvi. 19. II. The minute and circumstantial prophecy contained from the 49th to the 68th verse was exactly fulfilled in all its branches by the Roman captivity, and is still fulfilling at this very day. Its accomplishment indeed is for "a sign" of their rebellion against God, and for "a wonder" of their preservation amidst all those dreadful calamities, which they have suffered for so many hundred years. Dr. Hales.

If we consider what providential reasons may be assigned for the present condition of the Jews, we shall find that their numbers, dispersion, and adherence to their religion have furnished every age and every nation of the world with the strongest arguments for the Christian faith; not only as these very particulars are foretold of them, but as they themselves are the depositories of these and all the other prophecies, which tend to their own confusion. Their number furnishes us with a sufficient cloud of witnesses, that attest the truth of the Old Testament. Their dispersion spreads these witnesses through all parts of the world. The adherence to their religion makes their testimony unquestionable. Addison.

33. — thou shalt be only oppressed and crushed alway:] It is meant that they should not be quite rooted out and destroyed, as the Amalekites and Canaanites were, of whom no footsteps now remain; but be scattered and tossed about through other nations, remaining still as a testimony to the truth of God's revealed religion; and there only oppressed, crushed, and enslaved. Pyle.

35. — with a sore botch &c.] This seems to be a correct description of the elephantiasis: and of this the sacred writer says, it "cannot be healed." The elephantiasis is a kind of vehement leprosy, in which the body becomes covered with a foul, ulcerous, hardened skin, which resembles the skin of an elephant. "In process of time, tumours are formed in different parts of the body, and these tumours degenerate at length into incurable sores, which successively corrode deeply into the flesh." Michaelis. As no cure has hitherto been discovered for this disease, it agrees perfectly with the description of Moses. Script. illust.

37 And thou shalt become ^e an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword, among all nations whither the Lord shall lead thee. Before CHRIST 1451.

38 ^bThou shalt carry much seed out into the field, and shalt gather but little in; for the locust shall consume it. ^e 1 Kings 9. 7. Jer. 24. 9. & 25. 9. ^b Mic. 6. 15.

39 Thou shalt plant vineyards, and dress them, but shalt neither drink of the wine, nor gather the grapes; for the worms shall eat them. Hag. 1. 6.

40 Thou shalt have olive trees throughout all thy coasts, but thou shalt not anoint thyself with the oil; for thine olive shall cast his fruit.

41 Thou shalt beget sons and daughters, but [†]thou shalt not enjoy them; for they shall go into captivity. [†] Heb. they shall not be thine.

42 All thy trees and fruit of thy land shall the locust ^{||} consume. ^{||} Or, possess.

36. The Lord shall bring thee, and thy king &c.] This was fulfilled literally, when Jehoiachin was carried captive to Babylon, 2 Kings xxiv. 15; and afterwards Zedekiah, chap. xxv. 7; Jer. xxxix. 7; lii. 11. Bp. Patrick. It is a circumstance, which must strike every unprejudiced person, that this prophetic threat was delivered at a time, when the Jews had not a king, nor were yet constituted as a nation. Bryant.

— there shalt thou serve other gods.] Either sottishly following the example of the country to which they were carried, Jer. xlv. 17, 18; or being compelled to it by their cruel tyrants, Dan. iii. 6. This was a just punishment of their folly in running after idols, that they were sent into other countries to worship those gods, of which they were so fond in their own. Bp. Patrick.

37. — thou shalt become an astonishment, &c.] So that their neighbours, who saw and heard of the greatness and strangeness of their various plagues, should be dismayed at the sight and report of them; wondering that a people, who had been so flourishing, should be made so exceeding desolate, 1 Kings ix. 8; Jer. xviii. 16; xix. 8; and "a proverb and a byword;" so that when men would speak of one extremely vile, they should say he was a Jew. The same was threatened by God when He appeared to Solomon, 1 Kings ix. 7, and by Jeremiah, ch. xxiv. 9. And it appears to have been fulfilled at their first captivity in Babylon; see Lam. ii. 15, 16; as it hath notoriously been fulfilled since the destruction of Jerusalem and of their temple by the Romans. Bp. Patrick.

38. Thou shalt carry much seed &c.] This was fulfilled before they were carried captive to Babylon, when God frequently sent sore famine upon them: see Is. li. 19, and Jer. xiv. 1—3. The like is often threatened by Ezekiel among other terrible judgments, and by Jeremiah, chap. xxix. 17, 18. Bp. Patrick.

41. Thou shalt beget sons &c.] The calamity here threatened was threatened also in many places of the Prophets, and fulfilled in several invasions of their neighbours: for the Syrians, no doubt, carried captive more than one "little maid," like her who waited on Naaman's wife, 2 Kings v. 2, and in other inroads upon them, till the captivity of the whole land; we may be confident that this was a frequent calamity, 2 Kings xiv. 26; xv. 37, &c. Bp. Patrick.

42. All thy trees &c.] It is probable that these several judgments fell upon them in the order in which they are here mentioned in verses 38—42. There being first a great dearth, of which we read 2 Kings viii. and Joel i. 10, &c. then many invasions of their country, wherein several were carried captive, by the bands of Moab upon the Israelites, 2 Kings xiii. 20; and of the Chaldeans, Syrians, and Ammonites, who came upon Judah, ch. xxiv. 2. And we read expressly, that before this, in the days of Ahaz, a great multitude were carried captive by the Syrians,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

43 The stranger that is within thee shall get up above thee very high; and thou shalt come down very low.

44 He shall lend to thee, and thou shalt not lend to him: he shall be the head, and thou shalt be the tail.

45 Moreover all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed; because thou hearkenedst not unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which he commanded thee:

46 And they shall be upon thee for a sign and for a wonder, and upon thy seed for ever.

47 Because thou servedst not the LORD thy God with joyfulness, and with gladness of heart, for the abundance of all things;

48 Therefore shalt thou serve thine enemies which the LORD shall send against thee, in hunger, and in thirst, and in nakedness, and in want of all things: and he shall put a yoke of iron upon thy neck, until he have destroyed thee.

49 The LORD shall bring a nation against thee from far, from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flieth; a nation whose tongue thou shalt not † understand;

50 A nation † of fierce countenance,

† Heb.
hear.
† Heb. strong of face.

which shall not regard the person of the old, nor shew favour to the young:

51 And he shall eat the fruit of thy cattle, and the fruit of thy land, until thou be destroyed: which also shall not leave thee either corn, wine, or oil, or the increase of thy kine, or flocks of thy sheep, until he have destroyed thee.

52 And he shall besiege thee in all thy gates, until thy high and fenced walls come down, wherein thou trustedst, throughout all thy land: and he shall besiege thee in all thy gates throughout all thy land, which the LORD thy God hath given thee.

53 And † thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own † body, the flesh of thy sons and of thy daughters, which the LORD thy God hath given thee, in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee:

1 Lev. 26.
29.
2 Kings
6. 29.
Lam. 4. 10.
Baruch 2. 3.
† Heb.
belly.

54 So that the man that is tender among you, and very delicate, his eye shall be evil toward his brother, and toward the wife of his bosom, and toward the remnant of his children which he shall leave:

55 So that he will not give to any of them of the flesh of his children whom he shall eat: because he hath nothing left him in the siege, and in the straitness, wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee in all thy gates.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 Chron. xxviii. 5. After which more spoilers came upon them in the days of Jeremiah, chap. xii. 12, and a new famine, chap. xiv. 1. Bp. Patrick.

49. The Lord shall bring a nation against thee &c.] The Romans are here described with the most characteristic precision, above 800 years before their existence, as a nation. First, by their country; “far” to the westward of Palestine; from “the end of the earth,” or shores of the Atlantick ocean; and it is remarkable, that the armies of Titus and Adrian were principally composed of Gauls, Britons, and Spaniards. (Vespasian and Adrian, the two great conquerors and destroyers of the Jews, both came from commanding here in Britain. Bp. Newton.) 2. By the rapidity of their marches, “swift as the eagle flieth;” and their ensigns too were eagles, expressive thereof. 3. By their language, Latin, which was not understood by the Jews, though Greek was, from the time of Alexander’s conquests in Asia. 4. By their “fierce countenance,” for which the Romans were distinguished, from the early periods of their republick. And, 5. By their ferocity, or merciless disposition in war. Dr. Hales.

50. A nation of fierce countenance,] How singularly applicable this characteristic was of the Romans, may appear from the following instance out of many. In a war which broke out between the Romans and Samnites, (year of Rome 412,) the latter attributed their defeat, after a long and obstinate engagement, to the fierce looks of the Romans. They said, that “the eyes of the Romans seemed to be on fire, their countenances were wild, and their looks furious; and that this excited more terror in them than any thing else.” Dr. Hales.

50, 51. — which shall not regard &c. — And he shall eat the fruit &c.] Josephus, whose “Jewish war” is the best commentary on this prophecy, relates the devastation of the country by the Romans, that “in their rage they ceased not day nor night from ravaging the lands, plundering the goods, slaying all that were of military age, and taking the weaker captives.” He relates the sieges of the principal towns taken by the Romans, Jotapata, Gadara, Joppa, Tiberias, Tarichea, and Gadala; at which last town in particular, after a long and obstinate defence, “above 5,000 persons precipitated themselves from the walls into a deep valley beneath; and the Romans spared not even the infants, but slung them in numbers from the citadel.” Dr. Hales. When Vespasian entered Gadara, Josephus says, that “he slew all, man by man, the Romans shewing mercy to no age.” Such had been the Chaldeans, as the sacred history relates expressly, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17. Bp. Newton.

52. And he shall besiege thee &c.] The Romans demolished several fortified places, before they besieged and destroyed Jerusalem. And the Jews may very well be said to have “trusted in their high and fenced walls,” for they seldom ventured a battle in the open field. Jerusalem was a very strong place, and wonderfully fortified both by nature and by art, according to the description of Tacitus, as well as of Josephus. Bp. Newton.

53, 54, 55. — in the siege, and in the straitness, &c.] The horrors of the siege of Jerusalem, aggravated by an intestine war in the city itself, by the three factions who occupied it, are depicted in the most lively colours by the Jewish historian; and especially the miseries of famine: when “wives snatched the food from their husbands, children from their parents, and what was most lamentable, mothers even from the mouths of their infants; while they themselves were not allowed in quiet to devour the prey; for the seditions broke into any houses which they saw shut, suspecting that provisions were coiled therein; and tore the morsels from their very jaws. The old men were beaten, while grasping the food; the women dragged by the hair, while hiding it in their hands. There was no pity for gray hairs nor infants:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

56 The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness, her eye shall be evil toward the husband of her bosom, and toward her son, and toward her daughter,

† Heb.
Jerlarch.

57 And toward her † young one that cometh out from between her feet, and toward her children which she shall bear: for she shall eat them for want of all things secretly in the siege and straitness, where-with thine enemy shall distress thee in thy gates.

58 If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this law that are written in this book, that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD;

the children, clinging to the pieces of food, were lifted up and dashed against the ground." Dr. Hales.

56, 57. The tender and delicate woman &c.] The following deed, "horrible to relate, and incredible to hear," occurred near the end of the siege. Mary, the daughter of Eleazar, a woman of distinguished rank and fortune, at the breaking out of the troubles had fled to Jerusalem from Bethzob, the place of her residence beyond Jordan, with the reliques of her fortune, and whatever stock of provisions she could procure. But of these she was plundered every day in the domiciliary visits of the soldiers. Provoked at this, she often endeavoured to exasperate the plunderers by reproaches and imprecations to kill her; but in vain. Being reduced at length to absolute want, she was driven by pressing hunger to kill her suckling babe; and when she had dressed it, she ate the half of it, and kept the remainder covered up. Immediately the seditions came to her; and attracted by the scent, threatened to slay her instantly, unless she produced the provision, which she had prepared. Accordingly she uncovered what was left of her son, telling them that she had reserved a good share for them. Struck with horror and amazement at the spectacle, they departed trembling, and with reluctance left the remains to the wretched mother. Dr. Hales. Moses saith, "The tender and delicate woman among you, which would not adventure to set the sole of her foot upon the ground for delicateness and tenderness:" and there cannot be a more natural and lively description of a woman, who was, according to Josephus, illustrious for her family and riches. Moses saith, "she shall eat them for want of all things:" and according to Josephus, she had been plundered of all her substance and provisions by the tyrants and soldiers. Moses saith, that she should do it "secretly:" and according to Josephus, when she had boiled and eaten half, she covered up the rest, and kept it for another time. Moses had foretold the same thing before, Lev. xxvi. 29. And it was fulfilled about 600 years after his time among the Israelites, when Samaria was besieged by the king of Syria, 2 Kings vi. 28, 29. It was fulfilled again about 900 years after his time among the Jews in the siege of Jerusalem before the Babylonish captivity, Jer. iv. 10; Bar. ii. 1, &c. Again it was fulfilled about 1500 years after his time in the last siege of Jerusalem by Titus. At so many different times and distant periods hath this prophecy been fulfilled: and one would have thought that such distress and horror had almost transcended imagination, and much less that any person could certainly have foreseen and foretold it. Bp. Newton.

58, &c. If thou wilt not observe &c.] The sack of the temple-quarter of the city is thus described by Josephus himself, an eyewitness of the heart-rending spectacle: "Whilst the temple was burning, (to which one of the Roman soldiers, moved by a Divine impulse, set fire, contrary to the wishes and the orders of

Before
CHRIST
1451.

59 Then the LORD will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance.

60 Moreover he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou wast afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee.

61 Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this law, them will the LORD † bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed.

† Heb. cause to ascend.

62 And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were ^k as the stars of heaven ^k Chap. 10. 22. for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the LORD thy God.

63 And it shall come to pass, that as the LORD rejoiced over you to do you good, Titus,) the sack of that quarter began: and the slaughter of those, whom the soldiers found, was immense. There was no pity shown to age, no respect to dignity, but young and old, the profane vulgar, and the sacred priesthood, were put to death alike. And the battle involved and invaded every sort, confounding the suppliants with the defendants; and the crackling of the wide-spreading flames resounded along with the groans of the falling. And by reason of the height of the mount, and the greatness of the flaming pile, you would have thought that the whole city was on fire; and nothing can be conceived grander nor more terrible than that noise: for there was a shouting of the Roman ranks, coming to close engagement, and a cry of the seditions hemmed in by fire and sword. And the people, who were left in the upper city, turned with dismay toward the enemy, and groaned at the catastrophe, while the cry of the multitude in the lower city conspired with those on the mount. And now many of those, that were famishing with hunger, and their lips closed, when they saw the temple on fire, recovered full strength for wailings and moans. These again were echoed from the suburbs, and from the surrounding mountains, making the impression still deeper on the mind; while the havoc increased the horror of the tumult. You would have thought that the temple mount was burnt up from the very roots, it was so loaded with fire throughout. And yet, the blood was still more abundant than the fire, and the slaughtered more than the slayers: for the ground was no where clear of the dead; and the soldiers, mounting on heaps of carcases, rushed upon the fugitives flying in every direction." Dr. Hales.

62. And ye shall be left few in number,] Josephus reckons that 1,100,000 souls perished during the siege of Jerusalem, by the sword, pestilence, or famine; beside 97,000 whom they took captives. The greater part of these were of the same nation, but not of the same country. For they had assembled from all parts, to celebrate the feast of the passover, and were suddenly surrounded by the Romans; and the whole of this vast multitude, composing the whole nation, shut up as it were in an inclosure by destiny.

In the ensuing rebellion, excited by the impostor Barchocab, signifying "son of the star," or Christ, so denominated in Balaam's prophecies, Julius Severus, the general of Adrian, according to Dio, destroyed 580,000 Jews in the publick combats, beside an innumerable multitude which perished by famine, misery, and fire: so that very few of them escaped this war; in which were plundered and burnt fifty fortified castles, and 985 towns, flourishing and populous: and so general was the massacre of the inhabitants, that all Judea was in some measure left desolate, and converted into a desert. Dr. Hales.

63, and 68. And it shall come to pass, &c. And the Lord shall bring thee into Egypt &c.] Of the captives, taken at the siege of

^{Before}
^{CHRIST}
^{1451.} and to multiply you; so the LORD will rejoice over you to destroy you, and to bring you to nought; and ye shall be plucked from off the land whither thou goest to possess it.

64 And the LORD shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and there thou shalt serve other gods, which neither thou nor thy fathers have known, even wood and stone.

65 And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest: but the LORD shall give thee there a trembling heart, and failing of eyes, and sorrow of mind:

66 And thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life:

67 In the morning thou shalt say, Would God it were even! and at even thou shalt say, Would God it were morning! for the fear of thine heart wherewith thou shalt

^{Before}
^{CHRIST}
^{1451.}

Jerusalem, above seventeen years of age, some were sent to Egypt in chains, to work in the mines, the greater part were distributed through the provinces, to be destroyed in the theatres, by the sword and by wild beasts: the rest, under seventeen, were sold for slaves; and that, for a trifling sum, on account of the numbers to be sold, and the scarcity of buyers. So that at length the prophecy of Moses was fulfilled, "and no man shall buy." The part, that were reserved to grace the triumph of Vespasian and Titus at Rome, chosen out of the most comely, were probably transported to Italy "in ships," or by sea, to avoid a prodigious land journey thither, through Asia and Greece: a circumstance, which distinguished this invasion and captivity from the preceding by the Assyrians and Babylonians, which were solely by land. In the ensuing rebellion, a part of the captives were sent by sea to Egypt, and several of the ships were wrecked on the coast. Dr. Hales.

— and ye shall be plucked from off the land &c.] They were so, when the ten tribes were carried captive into Assyria; and when the two other tribes were carried captive to Babylon. They were so again, when "the Romans took away their place and nation." Afterwards when the emperor Adrian had subdued the rebellious Jews, he published an edict forbidding them upon pain of death to set foot in Jerusalem, or even to approach the country round about it. From that time to this, their country hath been in the possession of foreign lords and masters, few of the Jews dwelling in it, and those only of a low servile condition. In the 12th century Jerusalem was almost entirely abandoned by the Jews, not above 200 living there, who were for the most part dyers of wool. The rest of the Holy Land was still more depopulated. Sandys says, "it is for the most part now inhabited by Moors and Arabians; those possessing the valleys, and these the mountains. Turks there be few: but many Greeks, with other Christians of all sects and nations, such as impute to the place an adherent holiness. Here be also some Jews; yet inherit they no part of the land, but in their own country do live as aliens." Bp. Newton.

64. And the Lord shall scatter thee &c.] Nehemiah confesseth that these words were fulfilled in the Babylonish captivity, chap. i. 8, 9; but they have more amply been fulfilled, since the great dispersion of the Jews by the Romans. What people indeed have been scattered so far and wide as they? and where is the nation, which is a stranger to them, or to which they are strangers? They swarm in many parts of the East, are spread through most of the countries of Europe and Africa, and there are several families of them in the West Indies. They circulate through all parts, where trade and money circulate; and are, as I may say, the brokers of the world. Bp. Newton.

The dispersion of the Jews into all countries, from the rising to the setting sun, and "the very long continuance of their plagues" or sufferings in this captivity, intimated in the repetition, ver. 59, and now subsisting upwards of 1700 years, during which they have still been preserved a distinct people, though every where despised and persecuted, exhibits a standing miracle, and fulfilment of prophecy, the most extraordinary and convincing. Dr. Hales.

— and there thou shalt serve other gods, — wood and stone.]

It is too common for the Jews in popish countries to comply with the idolatrous worship of the Church of Rome, and to bow down to stocks and stones, rather than they themselves should be banished, and their effects seized and confiscated. Bp. Newton.

65—67. And among these nations shalt thou find no ease, &c.] Since their calamitous expulsion from their native territory, the Jews have wandered over every portion of the globe, without national possessions, an acknowledged constitution, or independent laws. They were represented by the Roman historian as actuated, previously to their dispersion, by a spirit of hatred towards the whole human race. Since that dreadful calamity they have lived almost constantly in a state of reciprocal hatred with mankind. Though generally submissive to the laws, and strangers to political intrigue, they have frequently been exposed to persecution and plunder, even with the connivance of governments, which in all other instances have guarded as sacred the property of individuals. Though abundantly possessed of riches, which usually command the respect of mankind, and ennoble even ignorance and folly, they have been generally treated with contempt by the powerful, and sometimes even followed with insult by the populace. They have been driven from city to city, from country to country; even their children have sometimes been forcibly taken from their parental protection, and educated in a religion, which is the object of their hereditary aversion. Their lives have not unfrequently been estimated without any regard to the high importance usually annexed to the existence of human beings. In Christian countries, and under regular governments, they have in some instances been sacrificed to a wanton and unrelenting spirit of cruelty, in violation of all laws human and divine, and in opposition to the feelings of our nature. They seem, as it were, to have lost their rank in the creation, and to have sunk nearly below humanity. Their fellow-creatures appear in many countries to have refused to them alone the justice due to all, and the compassion inherent in man.

Such is the faithful though melancholy picture of a people, once distinguished by the peculiar favour of the Almighty; for whom the sea was divided in Egypt, and the sun stood still upon Gibeon; whose laws were brought down from heaven, and whose ancestors walked with God. Richards.

67. — for the fear of thine heart &c.] It may be graciously intended for our benefit, that in the present distressful state of the chosen people, we should behold an example of Divine justice, faithfully coinciding with our natural conceptions respecting the attributes of the Deity. The more forcible were their incentives to duty, the more heinous has been their crime of disobedience. The more signal were the favours once indulged to them, the more severe, it is natural to expect, would be the punishment, with which their aggravated guilt should be visited. If the great powers of nature were miraculously diverted from their course, for the sake of animating and confirming their faith, it is not surprising that the laws of social life should cease to operate, and the natural feelings of benevolence be suspended, in order that an extraordinary vengeance may be taken on them for the crucifixion of the Lord of life, and for their long and stubborn rejection of His Gospel. If once, while placed under the solemn trial of fidelity to their God, they appeared among mankind with His glory

Before
CHRIST
1451.

fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

68 And the LORD shall bring thee into Egypt again with ships, by the way whereof I spake unto thee, Thou shalt see it no more again: and there ye shall be sold unto your enemies for bondmen and bondwomen, and no man shall buy you.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 Moses exhorteth them to obedience, by the memory of the works they have seen. 10 All are presented before the Lord to enter into his covenant. 18 The great wrath on him that flattereth himself in his wickedness. 29 Secret things belong unto God.

THESE are the words of the covenant, which the LORD commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, beside the covenant which he made with them in Horeb.

^a ¶ And Moses called unto all Israel, and said unto them, ^a Ye have seen all that the LORD did before your eyes in the land of Egypt unto Pharaoh, and unto all his servants, and unto all his land;

3 The great temptations which thine eyes have seen, the signs, and those great miracles:

4 Yet the LORD hath not given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see, and ears to hear, unto this day.

5 And I have led you forty years in the wilderness: your clothes are not waxen old upon you, and thy shoe is not waxen old upon thy foot.

6 Ye have not eaten bread, neither have ye drunk wine or strong drink: that ye might know that I am the LORD your God.

7 And when ye came unto this place, Sihon the king of Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, came out against us unto battle, and we smote them:

8 And we took their land, and gave it for an inheritance unto the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half tribe of Manasseh.

9 ^b Keep therefore the words of this covenant, and do them, that ye may prosper in all that ye do.

10 ¶ Ye stand this day all of you before the LORD your God; your captains of your tribes, your elders, and your officers, with all the men of Israel,

11 Your little ones, your wives, and thy stranger that is in thy camp, from the hewer of thy wood unto the drawer of thy water:

12 That thou shouldest [†] enter into covenant with the LORD thy God, and into his oath, which the LORD thy God maketh with thee this day:

13 That he may establish thee to day for a people unto himself, and that he may be unto thee a God, as he hath said unto thee, and as he hath sworn unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

14 Neither with you only do I make this covenant and this oath;

15 But with him that standeth here with us this day before the LORD our God, and also with him that is not here with us this day:

16 (For ye know how we have dwelt in the land of Egypt; and how we came through the nations which ye passed by;

17 And ye have seen their abominations, and their [†] idols, wood and stone, silver and gold, which were among them:)

18 Lest there should be among you man, or woman, or family, or tribe, whose heart visibly displayed before their armies, and awfully present in their temple, it surely is consistent with the plan of Divine justice, that, after a lengthened course of rebellion and iniquity, they should be exposed to the view of the human race, manifestly impressed with the mark of His displeasure. This singular condition may be intended for our admonition. The suffering Jew is a sensible and most solemn example to the careless Christian and the hardened Infidel. If upon the favoured people such a severe punishment has been inflicted, the world at large can have no reasonable hope of escape. The guilt of their incredulity was aggravated in proportion as their means of knowledge were more abundant. And let him, who now perversely turns away from the volume of Divine Revelation, while he beholds their calamity, reflect upon its cause; and prudently endeavour to "know the things that belong unto his peace, before they shall be finally hidden from his eyes." Richards.

Chap. XXIX. ver. 4. Yet the Lord hath not given you an heart &c. That is, God hath thought fit, for your sins and provocations, to leave you to your own stupidity and blindness of heart. God had done great things for them: "in His love and in His pity He redeemed them, &c. But they rebelled, and vexed His Holy Spirit," Is. lxiii. 9, 10. And that they were utterly inexcusable appears from the great and miraculous provision which God had made for them. Bp. Kidder. They had not so considered and laid to heart God's wonderful works, as to have a lasting sense of them bestowed upon them by God. He gives us an understanding heart, but we must first consider what He hath done for us, as the Apostle instructs us, 2 Tim. ii. 7. And He gives us, what we do not receive; and so in effect it is not given. Thus He saith Himself, that He purged Israel; but they would not be purged, Ezek. xxiv. 13. Bp. Patrick. The faculties and advantages, God had given them, were lost upon them, as much as if God had given them none at all. Or the passage may be translated interrogatively, "And hath not the Lord given you an heart to perceive, and eyes to see?" Pyle.

6. Ye have not eaten bread, &c. Their ordinary food was the heavenly manna, and their drink the water from the rock: so that they were constantly supported by a miraculous supply from God, who took care of them, and thereby laid them under a greater obligation to be devoted to His service. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^b Chap. 4. G.
1 Kings 2.
2.
Josh. 1. 7

[†] Heb.
pass.

[†] Heb.
dumy gods.

Before CHRIST 1451. turneth away this day from the LORD our God, to go and serve the gods of these nations; lest there should be among you a root that beareth || † gall and wormwood;

|| Or, a poisonous herb.
† Heb. rosh.

19 And it come to pass, when he hear-eth the words of this curse, that he bless himself in his heart, saying, I shall have peace, though I walk in the || imagination of mine heart, to add † drunkenness to thirst:

|| Or, stubbornness.
† Heb. the drunken to the thirsty.

20 The LORD will not spare him, but then the anger of the LORD and his jealousy shall smoke against that man, and all the curses that are written in this book shall lie upon him, and the LORD shall blot out his name from under heaven.

21 And the LORD shall separate him unto evil out of all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant that † are written in this book of the law:

† Heb. is written.

22 So that the generation to come of your children that shall rise up after you, and the stranger that shall come from a far land, shall say, when they see the plagues of that land, and the sicknesses † which the LORD hath laid upon it;

† Heb. wherewith the LORD hath made it sick.

23 And that the whole land thereof is brimstone, and salt, and burning, that it is not sown, nor beareth, nor any grass groweth therein, like the overthrow of Sodom, and Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim, which the LORD overthrew in his anger, and in his wrath:

Before CHRIST 1451.
* Gen. 19. 24, 25.

24 Even all nations shall say, ^d Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this land? what meaneth the heat of this great anger?

* 1 Kings 9. 8.
Jer. 22. 8.

25 Then men shall say, Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD God of their fathers, which he made with them when he brought them forth out of the land of Egypt:

26 For they went and served other gods, and worshipped them, gods whom they knew not, and || whom he had not † given unto them:

|| Or, who had not given to them any portion.
† Heb. divided.

27 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against this land, to bring upon it all the curses that are written in this book:

28 And the LORD rooted them out of their land in anger, and in wrath, and in great indignation, and cast them into another land, as it is this day.

29 The secret things belong unto the LORD our God: but those things which are

18. — a root that beareth gall and wormwood;] That is, an evil principle, called “an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God,” Heb. iii. 12. Such a principle will corrupt and poison the mind, and produce the curses denounced, which will be very bitter. Compare Acts viii. 23; Heb. xii. 15. Bp. Kidder.

Gall is an animal secretion, and therefore not properly attributed to a vegetable, a root: yet, as some vegetables afford a juice as bitter as gall, that juice may with propriety be associated with wormwood. Script. illust. The Hebrew word, which we translate “gall,” properly signifies an herb, growing among corn, as bitter as gall. In Hos. x. 4, we translate it “hemlock;” and in Scripture it is commonly joined with “wormwood,” as it is here, Jer. ix. 15; Lam. iii. 19; Amos vi. 12. Bp. Patrick.

19. — to add drunkenness to thirst;] That is, to abound in all manner of wickedness; “to add sin to sin,” Is. xxx. 1, “and drink it up like water,” Job xxxiv. 7: which course of wickedness only begets a greater inclination to do wickedly still; as drunkenness does not slake, but increase thirst. Bp. Kidder.

21. — the Lord shall separate him unto evil] Whereas such a sinner may think to escape in a crowd, and flatter himself that the blessings promised to God's people, among whom he lives, shall be his portion, he shall be singled out, and rendered a monument of God's displeasure. Bp. Kidder.

23. — land thereof is brimstone, and salt,] See the note on Jer. xvii. 6.

— that it is not sown, &c.] The wickedness of the Jews was the more provoking, because they had such an example of God's vengeance, as the lake of Sodom, continually before their eyes, and yet persevered in their evil ways, till they brought the like judgment on all Judea. This was more exactly fulfilled in the last destruction of the Jews by the Romans, than in their first by the Babylonians. For the whole land was laid waste, and deserted by its inhabitants, and made a den of thieves; being brought to desolation by repeated returns of war; more especially in the time of Adrian, when Julius Severus made such a devastation, that the whole country was turned in a manner into a wilderness. Bp. Patrick.

25. — Because they have forsaken &c.] The Hebrew Prophets rarely dwelt upon great political events, which should be favourable to their countrymen: they never even alluded to domestic dissensions and civil animosities, except in those instances, in which they were occasioned by idolatry, and a spirit of stubborn disobedience to the Lord of heaven and earth. They never complained of the disrespect of the people to their sovereign, of their inattention to the laws of their country, or of their refractory and mutinous spirit towards their military leaders in the camp. Their threats were almost invariably confined to a single species of guilt, an ungrateful departure from the true God, and the consequent violation of His commandments. Richards.

29. The secret things belong unto the Lord &c.] This seems to be an answer to an inquiry, which the people of Israel might naturally have made, in consequence of the foregoing severe threatenings. Shall we ever be so wicked, they might have said to Moses, after all the corrections we have undergone, and all the mercies which we have received, and all the miracles which we have seen, as to provoke God to destroy us? Shall our posterity become so profligate, as to bring down upon themselves such terrible punishments, such unexampled calamities, as thou hast described? To a question of this kind the words of the text appear a proper reply: “The secret things belong unto the Lord our God.” Such events are hidden in the dark recesses of futurity, and it concerns not you to know them. It is enough for you to know this: that both you and your posterity, if you do well, shall be rewarded, and, if you do ill, shall be punished. The promises and threatenings of God are conditional, and it is in your power to deserve the one or the other: the execution of them depends upon your own behaviour, and your behaviour upon your own choice. The passage then contains in it this doctrine, that there are things, which a man ought to know, namely, the 1451.

Before
CHRIST

revealed belong unto us and to our children for ever, that we may do all the words of this law.

CHAP. XXX.

1 Great mercies promised unto the repentant. 11 The commandment is manifest. 15 Death and life are set before them.

AND it shall come to pass, when all these things are come upon thee, the blessing and the curse, which I have set before thee, and thou shalt call them to mind among all the nations, whither the LORD thy God hath driven thee,

2 And shalt return unto the LORD thy God, and shalt obey his voice according to all that I command thee this day, thou and thy children, with all thine heart, and with all thy soul;

3 That then the LORD thy God will turn thy captivity, and have compassion upon truths which God hath revealed, and the duties which he requires; and that there are things, which men cannot discover, or ought not to know, and that they must not busy themselves in inquiries after them. Dr. Jortin.

— that we may do all the words of this law.] Here the knowledge of God's revealed will is represented as of the greatest use and importance, but it is represented as an active knowledge, influencing the behaviour. "Those things which are revealed belong unto us." As how? He says not, that we may know, but "that we may do all the words of this law." Our Saviour, though He was the greatest encourager and most assiduous teacher of useful knowledge, yet always discouraged and disappointed inquiries of mere curiosity. When He was asked, at what time His second coming should be, and the kingdom should be restored to Israel, and how long one of His disciples should live; when these and other questions of the like nature were put to Him, His answer was, "It is not for you to know these things. What is that to thee? Follow thou Me." But when He was asked, "What shall I do, that I may inherit eternal life?" He gave a direct answer. The knowledge of our duty then is knowledge in the truest and most excellent sense: and it is a practical knowledge, and consists in action more than in speculation. It may be obtained by every one who seeks it; we have all of us natural abilities to acquire it in such a degree as is necessary for us; we were made for this end and purpose; and besides our inward powers we have the revealed will and assistance of God. Dr. Jortin.

Chap. XXX. ver. 1. And it shall come to pass, &c.] Here the restoration of the Jews to their own country is plainly predicted, at the destined end of their captivity. But it should seem that their conversion to Christ is to be the preliminary condition of their acceptance with God; for so long as their nation continues in a state of rebellion against Christ, they are not fit to be redeemed. And in conformity with Moses, our Lord declared to the unbelieving Jews, "Behold, your house" of the Lord "is left unto you desolate: for I say unto you, Ye shall not see Me henceforth, till ye shall say," with hearty repentance and true faith, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord," Matt. xxiii. 38, 39. Dr. Hales. Amidst multiplied instances of oppression, misery, and contempt, the Jews have resolutely continued through seventeen hundred years a separate and distinct people. Their God hath not cast them away, nor abhorred them, "to destroy them utterly," Lev. xxvi. 44; their great and wonderful plagues, which were to be "of long continuance," still remain, Deut. xxviii. 59; the curses are yet upon them, which, in the strong language of Scripture, were to be "for a sign and for a wonder," upon them thee, and will return and gather thee from ^{Before} all the nations, whither the LORD thy God ^{CHRIST} hath scattered thee. 1451.

4 ² If any of thine be driven out unto ^a Nch. 1. 9. the outmost parts of heaven, from thence will the LORD thy God gather thee, and from thence will he fetch thee:

5 And the LORD thy God will bring thee into the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt possess it; and he will do thee good, and multiply thee above thy fathers.

6 And the LORD thy God will circumcise thine heart, and the heart of thy seed, to love the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, that thou mayest live.

7 And the LORD thy God will put all these curses upon thine enemies, and on them that hate thee, which persecuted thee.

and their seed for ever, Deut. xxviii. 46, 59. Not mingled and lost among the kingdoms, over which they have been scattered, they retain the means, upon their returning obedience, of beholding "their captivity turned," and of being "gathered from the nations," and restored to "the land of their fathers." No cause, but the Divine interposition, can satisfactorily explain this extraordinary condition of a whole people. Their continuance in such a situation is unexampled, and we may even venture to pronounce it miraculous. Richards.

5. And the Lord thy God will bring thee into the land] The promised restoration of the Jewish nation was, in many instances, fulfilled at and after the return from Babylon, as may be seen in the book of Ezra, ch. i. 1, 4; Zech. viii. Hag. ii. 18, 19; Hos. i. 10; and elsewhere. But there are in this and in several other prophecies concerning this matter such magnificent descriptions, as appear to be by no means sufficiently accomplished in any restoration yet past; and therefore they are to be interpreted of a more complete one, still to come, after the conversion of that people to the Christian religion by faith in their own Messiah. Pyle.

6. — circumcise thine heart,] This is to be understood of that spiritual circumcision, whereby the filthy inclination of the mind to evil is removed. The Chaldee expresses it by removing the folly of the heart: and the Greek, by cleansing it, Col. ii. 11; Rom. ii. 29. Bp. Kidder. By the singular blessings bestowed upon them at their return from the Babylonish captivity, God designed to take away the stubborn refractoriness of their spirits, called "hardness of heart," chap. xxix. 19; and to cut off all their wicked inclinations to idolatry and superstition, which had been their ruin: this is called "humbling their uncircumcised heart," Lev. xxvi. 41. But though God circumcised their hearts, yet they might remain uncircumcised, as appears from ch. xxix. 3, 4. See the note there. And therefore He calls upon them to circumcise their hearts themselves, ch. x. 16, by laying to heart His benefits, and following the motions of His grace and Holy Spirit, which thereby He put into their hearts: and their neglect of this, and reliance on the mere circumcision of the flesh, was that which ruined them again. Bp. Patrick.

7. — will put all these curses upon thine enemies,] We have examples of this in Nebuchadnezzar, in Belshazzar, and in Antiochus Epiphanes, who were the three most remarkable oppressors of the Jewish nation. Pyle. Jacob in his prophecy figuratively foretold the retaliation of Divine vengeance upon the persecutors of the Jews, Gen. xlix. 11: Balaam concisely foretold it in his last prophecy, Numb. xxiv. 24: and Moses more plainly in this passage: but it was reserved for the ensuing ode to describe these 1451.

Before
CHRIST

Chap. 28.
11.

8 And thou shalt return and obey the voice of the LORD, and do all his commandments which I command thee this day.

9 ^b And the LORD thy God will make thee plenteous in every work of thine hand, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy land, for good: for the LORD will again rejoice over thee for good, as he rejoiced over thy fathers:

10 If thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the LORD thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which are written in this book of the law, and if thou turn unto the LORD thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul.

11 ¶ For this commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off.

^a Rom. 10.
6, &c.

12 ^c It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

13 Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it?

judgments in all their terrors. See chap. xxxii. 36, and following verses. Dr. Hales.

11. — this commandment which I command thee &c.] Those moral commands of the love of God, and of your neighbour, and of sobriety with respect to yourselves, which are, even now, the main and substantial points of your law, and which God intends hereafter to improve and make the only conditions of your salvation, under the more perfect dispensation of Jesus Christ, your Messiah, are things no way difficult and burdensome. Pyle. They are not “hidden,” that is, abstruse and hard to be understood; nor “far off,” that is, out of thy reach, so that thou canst pretend, thou canst not attain to them. They are not “in heaven,” that is, locked up there as a secret, but revealed from thence: nor “beyond the sea,” that is, at such a distance as will expose men to great danger to arrive at them. But they are “very nigh” thee indeed, as that which thou ownest with “thy mouth,” and dost with “thy mind” assent to. Bp. Kidder. The word was brought “very nigh unto them,” even to their very doors, by Moses the servant of God, who now delivered to them the Divine will; as the Son of God Himself did afterwards, when He came and dwelt among them: and it was made so familiar to them, that they might always have it in their common discourse, to teach it their children; and it had now been so often repeated, that it might well be laid up in their memory, never to be forgotten. Bp. Patrick.

Since God Himself pronounces His “commandment” so easy to be observed, because it was “not hidden from them, neither far off,” it must have been the Israelites’ own inexcusable fault and a voluntary rejection, if, having life and death set before them, they would not choose life, it being absolutely in their own choice: and our task is yet so much more easy than theirs was, besides our being freed from the ceremonial law, in that we have no temptation to that crying sin of idolatry, which was their destruction. Lord Clarendon.

14. — that thou mayest do it.] The duties of life are so obvious and familiar, and so agreeable to the nature of all reasonable minds, that God can no sooner enjoin them, but we must needs

14 But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

15 ¶ See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil;

16 In that I command thee this day to love the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply: and the LORD thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.

17 But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them;

18 I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land, whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it.

19 ^d I call heaven and earth to record ^e this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live:

^d Chap. 4.
^e 26.

20 That thou mayest love the LORD thy apprehend and approve them, and have nothing to do but honestly and sincerely to perform them. Pyle. To cooperate with outward means of instruction, God hath placed a faithful witness and monitor of His truths in every breast; and therefore the want of outward helps can never justify transgressors. What Moses said in God’s name to the Jews is true in its relation to all men: “The commandment which I command thee this day is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off; but the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.” And what Isaiah said of Christianity, holds in proportion of natural conscience, “An highway shall be there; and it shall be called The way of Holiness; the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein,” Is. xxxv. 8. The duties of mankind are not so intricate and perplexed, but that a good heart, without a very sagacious head, may easily find its way through them. Abp. Secker.

19. — therefore choose life.] The same term is employed by Joshua, ch. xxiv. 22, “Ye have chosen you the Lord, to serve Him:” and by the Apostle to the Hebrews, “Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, &c.” chap. xi. 25, and by our Saviour, “One thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part,” Luke x. 42. Our ability and “sufficiency” to please God by works of piety and goodness are most undeniably “of God.” But it rests with us, whether or not we will make use of the aids and powers which He graciously affords us; whether we will, or will not, “receive His grace in vain.” The question is not, what God can do? but, what He will do? He can, if He pleases, “raise up children out of the stones” of the street. He can compel the vilest sinners to be obedient and happy. But this is not the manner, in which He deals with the sons of Adam. He invites, but does not force, us into His service. “He has showed us what is good,” and enabled us to perform it, so far as is consistent with this state of frailty and imperfection. He has “set before us,” as He set before the Israelites, “life and death, blessing and cursing:” it remains for us to “choose,” whether we will obey and be saved, or disobey and perish. Waldo.

Though speaking of His absolute power, God can compel and necessitate the will of man, and so we do not make him stronger

Before
CHRIST
1451.

God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life, and the length of thy days: that thou mayest dwell in the land which the LORD sware unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.

CHAP. XXXI.

¹ Moses encourageth the people. ⁷ He encourageth Joshua. ⁹ He delivereth the law unto the priests to read it in the seventh year to the people. ¹⁴ God giveth a charge to Joshua, ¹⁹ and a song to testify against the people. ²⁴ Moses delivereth the book of the law to the Levites to keep. ²⁸ He maketh a protestation to the elders.

AND Moses went and spake these words unto all Israel.

² And he said unto them, I am an hundred and twenty years old this day; I can no more go out and come in: also the LORD hath said unto me, ^a Thou shalt not go over this Jordan.

^a Numb.
20 12.
chap. 3. 27.

³ The LORD thy God, he will go over before thee, and he will destroy these nations from before thee, and thou shalt possess them: and Joshua, he shall go over before thee, ^b as the LORD hath said.

^b Numb.
27. 21.

than God, as is very weakly concluded by some; yet He will not, because He will not violate that order, which He hath set in our creation. He made man after His own image, invested him with a reasonable soul, having the use of understanding and the freedom of will: He endowed him with a power to consider and deliberate, to consult and choose; and so by consequence He gave him dominion over himself and his own actions; that being made lord of the whole world, he might not be a slave to himself, but might first exercise his sovereignty in the free possession of his own mind. To force his will were to destroy the nature of His creature, which grace is not designed to do, but only to heal and assist it; and therefore God deals with man, as a free agent, by instructions and commands, by promises and threatenings, by allurements and reproofs, by rewards and punishments. So true is the saying of Tertullian, "No man is made good against his will." Bp. Womack.

Chap. XXXI. ver. 2. — I can no more go out and come in: I can no longer discharge the office of your governour and leader, Numb. xxvii. 17. This was not because he wanted vigour, either of body or of mind, for his strength and faculties were not decayed, chap. xxxiv. 7, but because God had decreed and declared that he should not conduct them into Canaan. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

— the Lord hath said unto me, Thou shalt not go over this Jordan. Moses speaks of himself with the same impartiality which he used towards the people. Though he mentions that he was highly favoured of God, yet he more than once owns that he was near forfeiting this blessing. He confesses his diffidence and want of faith, and his neglect of some essential duties, by which he grievously offended the Deity. He tells us, that the consequence was fatal, as he was not, on account of these offences, permitted to enter the land of promise; but, like the rest, died by the way, having had only a distant view. He scruples not to disclose the failings of his brother, and of his sister Miriam, and the rebellion of others, to whom he was nearly related. He writes in the spirit of truth, without the least prejudice or partiality, suppressing nothing, that was necessary to be known,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

⁴ And the LORD shall do unto them as he did to Sihon and to Og, kings of the Amorites, and unto the land of them, whom he destroyed.

⁵ And ^c the LORD shall give them up ^c Chap. 7. 2 before your face, that ye may do unto them according unto all the commandments which I have commanded you.

⁶ Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

⁷ ¶ And Moses called unto Joshua, and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, Be strong and of a good courage: for thou must go with this people unto the land which the LORD hath sworn unto their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

⁸ And the LORD, he it is that doth go before thee; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee: fear not, neither be dismayed.

⁹ ¶ And Moses wrote this law, and delivered it unto the priests the sons of Levi, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and unto all the elders of Israel.

though to his own prejudice and discredit. And when he has afforded a just history of the people's ingratitude and disobedience while he survived, he proceeds to anticipate what is to come, and gives strong intimation of their future apostasy and rebellion: "I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, &c." ch. xxxi. 29. And he farther assures them of the vengeance that should ensue: "Cursed shalt thou be, &c." ch. xxviii. 19, 25, 37. He denounces many other evils, which were to come upon this rebellious nation; and which did come, as he foretold, but many of them ages afterwards: to the principal of which the Jews at this day remain a living testimony. And what the Prophet says upon these occasions is not attended with resentment and bitterness; on the contrary, he shews the most affecting tenderness and concern for them, and a true zeal for their welfare. We may therefore be assured, that things must have happened as he describes them; and nothing but duty and conviction could have made him transmit these truths. Bryant.

⁶. — he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee. This promise, which is here general, is in the 8th verse particularly made to Joshua, and renewed to him by God Himself after the death of Moses, when they were about to enter into the land of Canaan, Josh. i. 5. It is applied by the Apostle to all faithful Christians, to encourage their hope of being conducted through all difficulties and dangers unto their heavenly inheritance, Heb. xiii. 5. Bp. Patrick.

⁹. — Moses wrote this law, That is, the whole body of the law, contained in the five books of Moses. The Scripture calls all, that is contained in these books, by the name of "the Law." St. Paul, in Gal. iv. 21, asks this question, "Do ye not hear the Law?" and then quotes what we read in Genesis, chap. xvi. 1, &c. Nehemiah saith, chap. x. 34, 35, that they brought firstfruits unto God, "as it is written in the law," namely in Exodus, ch. xiii 12; xxiii. 19. Josiah put away the workers with familiar spirits, &c. "that he might perform the words of the law," 2 Kings xxiii. 24, which words we find in Leviticus, ch. xix. 31; xx. 6, 27. Hezekiah also, 2 Chron. xxxi. 3, appointed the daily oblations, and those required at stated times to be offered, "as it is written in the law of the 1451.

Before
CHRIST

^a Chap. 15. 1. 10 And Moses commanded them, saying, At the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the ^a year of release, in the feast of tabernacles, 11 When all Israel is come to appear before the LORD thy God in the place which he shall choose, thou shalt read this law before all Israel in their hearing.

12 Gather the people together, men, and women, and children, and thy stranger that is within thy gates, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the LORD your God, and observe to do all the words of this law :

13 And that their children, which have not known any thing, may hear, and learn to fear the LORD your God, as long as ye live in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thy days approach that thou must die: call Joshua, and present yourselves in the tabernacle of the congregation, that I may give him a charge. And Moses and Joshua went, and presented themselves in the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the LORD appeared in the tabernacle in a pillar of a cloud: and the pillar of the cloud stood over the door of the tabernacle.

† Heb. lie down.

16 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Behold, thou shalt † sleep with thy fathers; and this people will rise up, and go a whoring after the gods of the strangers of the land, whither they go to be among them, and will forsake me, and break my covenant which I have made with them.

† Heb.
find them.

17 Then my anger shall be kindled against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall be devoured, and many evils and troubles shall † befall them; so that they will say in that day, Are not these evils come upon us, because our God is not among us?

18 And I will surely hide my face in that

Before
CHRIST
1451.

day for all the evils which they shall have wrought, in that they are turned unto other gods.

19 Now therefore write ye this song for you, and teach it the children of Israel: put it in their mouths, that this song may be a witness for me against the children of Israel.

20 For when I shall have brought them into the land which I swore unto their fathers, that floweth with milk and honey; and they shall have eaten and filled themselves, and waxen fat; then will they turn unto other gods, and serve them, and provoke me, and break my covenant.

21 And it shall come to pass, when many evils and troubles are befallen them, that this song shall testify † against them as a witness; for it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed: for I know their imagination which they † go about, † Heb. do. even now, before I have brought them into the land which I swear.

22 ¶ Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel.

23 And he gave Joshua the son of Nun a charge, and said, ^c Be strong and of a good courage: for thou shalt bring the children of Israel into the land which I swear unto them: and I will be with thee. ^c Josh. 1. 6.

24 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses had made an end of writing the words of this law in a book, until they were finished,

25 That Moses commanded the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, saying, 26 Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee.

27 For I know thy rebellion, and thy stiff neck: behold, while I am yet alive with you this day, ye have been rebellious against the LORD; and how much more after my death?

Lord;" which plainly refers to chapters xxviii. and xxix. of Numbers. And Joshua built an altar on mount Ebal, Josh. viii. 30, 31, "as it is written in the book of the law of Moses:" which we find no where but in this book of Deuteronomy, chap. xxvii. 4. Bps. Kidder and Patrick.

10. — the year of release, — the feast of tabernacles,] "The year of release," which was a time of religious feasting and rejoicing: "the feast of tabernacles," which was after harvest, when the people had ended the labours of the year, and were at leisure, and assembled together at the stated national place of worship. Pyle.

16. — thou shalt sleep with thy fathers;] "Sleep" is a common word for death, either of good or bad men. It was not used merely as a soft expression for that, which the heathens dreaded as the most terrible of all things; but perhaps to put the people in mind, that death should not last always, but that they should as certainly rise again, as they lay down (for such is the word in Hebrew) to "sleep with their fathers." Bp. Patrick.

26. Take this book of the law,] From this expression, "the book of the Law" in the singular number, and from our Lord's, "Have ye not read in the book of Moses," Mark xii. 26, it may not improbably be inferred, that Moses drew up the whole in one continued book; and that it remained so, even till our Saviour's time. The division into five books, which is noticed by Josephus, seems not to have generally obtained till the time of the Jewish historian. And to support this opinion, there are no titles prefixed to the five books in the Hebrew text, which are distinguished only by their initial words. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

28 ¶ Gather unto me all the elders of your tribes, and your officers, that I may speak these words in their ears, and call heaven and earth to record against them.

29 For I know that after my death ye will utterly corrupt yourselves, and turn aside from the way which I have commanded you; and evil will befall you in the latter days; because ye will do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger through the work of your hands.

30 And Moses spake in the ears of all the congregation of Israel the words of this song, until they were ended.

CHAP. XXXII.

1 Moses' song, which setteth forth God's mercy and vengeance. 46 He exhorteth them to set their hearts upon it. 48 God sendeth him up to mount Nebo, to see the land, and die.

30. And Moses spake — the words of this song, &c.] The historical prophecies of Moses grow clearer and brighter towards the close of his life, and are crowned by a poetical composition of the most transcendent excellence, worthy indeed of its Author, the God of Israel, who dictated it to Moses, shortly before his death, and commanded him to teach it to the children of Israel, "that it might be a witness for Him against them," in future times, "when many evils and troubles should befall them, for breaking His covenant:" "for," added the Lord, "it shall not be forgotten out of the mouths of their seed." Moses therefore wrote this song the same day, and taught it the children of Israel, by whom it is still rehearsed, above three thousand years since, and shall be so to the end of time. Dr. Hales.

Chap. XXXII. ver. 1. Give ear, O ye heavens, &c.] This prophetic Ode or Song of Moses contains a defence of God against the Israelites, and unfolds the method of the Divine judgments. Its opening is singularly elegant and magnificent; its whole arrangement and structure is regular, easy, and adapted to the nature of the subject, in an order nearly historical. It embraces an incredible variety of the most important topics; the truth and justice of God, His fatherly affection and most unwearied lovingkindness towards His chosen people; the ungrateful and rebellious disposition of that people in return; then the heat of the Divine displeasure, and its most alarming menaces, delivered in a noble personification, equal in grandeur to any thing which exists in the choicest treasures of poetry; at the same time it represents these very tides of indignation occasionally moderated by mildness and compassion, and terminated at length in promises and in consolation. Not to dwell on the loftiness of the sentiments, the impetuosity of the passions, and the force of the figures and the language, such is the nature of the subject, that it imitates much of the style and colouring of the prophetic poetry, so that to all the vigour, and animation, and spirited boldness of the Ode it unites that distinguished variety and grandeur of imagery, which is peculiar to the prophetic manner. Bp. Louth.

This majestick vindication of the tutelar God of Israel with His chosen people and with their persecutors, consists of six parts. The first opens with an animated summons to the inhabitants of heaven and earth, to angels and men, or the whole rational creation, to listen to the Prophet's wholesome and refreshing discourse, contrasting the veracity and justice of God with the iniquity and ingratitude of His people. This forms the prefatory introduction to the whole poem, from the first to the end of the fifth verse. Dr. Hales.

2. My doctrine shall drop as the rain,] The counsels which I give, and the things which I foretel, are as fitted to produce re-

GIVE ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. Before CHRIST 1451.

2 My doctrine shall drop as the rain, my speech shall distil as the dew, as the small rain upon the tender herb, and as the showers upon the grass:

3 Because I will publish the name of the LORD: ascribe ye greatness unto our God.

4 He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he.

5 † They have corrupted themselves, † Heb. He hath corrupted to himself. || their spot is not the spot of his children: Or, that they are not his children, that is their blot. they are a perverse and crooked generation.

6 Do ye thus requite the LORD, O foolish people and unwise? is not he thy father that hath bought thee? hath he not made thee, and established thee?

ligious wisdom and obedience in the minds of men, as the most seasonable dews and showers are to fructify the earth, Is. lv. 10, 11; 1 Cor. iii. 6—8. Bp. Kidder, Pyle.

4. He is the Rock,] The original word usually signifies "a rock," and is figuratively applied to God, as expressing His stability and immutability, and the security of those who are under His protection, as in the 15th and 37th verses, so finely expressed by Isaiah, chap. xxvi. 4, "Trust ye in the Lord for ever: for in the Lord Jehovah is the Rock of ages," according to the marginal rendering. Dr. Hales.

5. They have corrupted themselves,] They have sinned; and have been so far from imitating God, "whose work is perfect, &c." that they have been most unlike Him: their crimes being of so high a nature, that they speak them to be not His peculiar people, but a perverse and crooked generation. Bp. Kidder.

The sudden and frequent change of persons in this Ode is remarkable. Moses, having celebrated the truth and justice of God, proceeds to inveigh against the perfidy and wickedness of the people. He first speaks of them, as if they were absent, "They have corrupted themselves, &c." then immediately he addresses them: "Do ye thus requite the Lord, O foolish people and unwise? &c." Afterwards, he beautifully amplifies God's indulgence and more than fatherly affection towards the Israelites, in words not directed to them: whence, again filled with indignation at the stupidity of this ungrateful and impious people, he thus breaks forth: "But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked: thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness; then he forsook God which made him, &c." ver. 15. Where, in one short sentence, the discourse, being abruptly turned to the Israelites, and then immediately from them, has great force. It is fervid, vehement, pointed, and full of indignation. The Hebrew poetry abounds with instances of this sudden change of persons, which often adds great beauty, and is always to be carefully observed. Bp. Louth.

6. Do ye thus requite the Lord,] The second part, reaching to the end of ver. 14, recapitulates God's parental care and fostering protection of the Israelites, from their earliest origin to their complete settlement in the rich and fertile land of promise. Dr. Hales.

— that hath bought thee? That hath redeemed thee out of Egypt. See Exod. xv. 16. To this purpose the Psalmist says, "Remember thy congregation, which thou hast purchased of old; the rod of thine inheritance, which thou hast redeemed," Ps. lxxiv. 2. This was a great aggravation of their sin, that "they denied the Lord which bought them," 2 Pet. ii. 1. Compare Is. i. 3, and 1 Cor. vi. 20. Bp. Kidder.

— made thee,] Or advanced thee (for so the Hebrew word

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb. generation and generation.

† Heb.
cord.

|| Or compassed him about.

7 ¶ Remember the days of old, consider the years of † many generations : ask thy father, and he will shew thee ; thy elders, and they will tell thee.

8 When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For the LORD's portion is his people ; Jacob is the † lot of his inheritance.

10 He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness ; he || led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye.

11 As an eagle stirreth up her nest, flut-tereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings :

12 So the LORD alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him.

13 He made him ride on the high places of the earth, that he might eat the increase of the fields ; and he made him to suck honey out of the rock, and oil out of the flinty rock ;

14 Butter of kine, and milk of sheep, with fat of lambs, and rams of the breed of Bashan, and goats, with the fat of kidneys of wheat ; and thou didst drink the pure blood of the grape.

15 ¶ But Jeshurun waxed fat, and kick-

Before
CHRIST
1451.

may be translated) to be a great and mighty people. God's creating them is implied in what was said before, that He was their "Father." Bp. Kidder.

8. — he set the bounds of the people &c.] When the Lord scattered mankind into several parts of the earth, and separated them into diverse nations by confounding their language, He had then the children of Israel in His mind, before they were a nation ; and made such a distribution to other people, particularly to the seven nations of Canaan, within such bounds and limits, that there might be sufficient room for so numerous a people as the Israelites, when they should come to take possession of Canaan. Bp. Patrick.

The passage may be rendered, "He assigned the boundaries of the peoples (of Israel) according to the number of the sons of Israel." This insertion of the words, (of Israel,) derived from the succeeding verse, furnishes a plain and rational sense of one of the most embarrassed and most contested passages in the whole poem ; signifying, that the promised land was allotted to the twelve tribes of Israel, as being descended from his twelve sons : each of which, from their extraordinary population, might be considered as "a people" in itself ; (and so the Ephraimites and Manassites represented themselves to Joshua, chap. xvii. 14—17 ;) while the aggregate composed "His people," the most highly favoured of all the nations of the earth, with whom they are contrasted. Dr. Hales.

10. He found him in a desert land,] There He first took the Israelites to be His peculiar people ; for so the word, rendered here "found," frequently signifies. Bp. Patrick. Or, There He sustained them, and made for them sufficient provision. Bp. Kidder.

— he led him about, &c.] Irwin describes the mountains of the desert of Thebais as sometimes so steep and dangerous, as to induce even very bold and hardy travellers to avoid them, by taking a large circuit ; and says, that, for want of a proper knowledge of the way, such a wrong path may be taken as may on a sudden bring them into the greatest dangers : at other times a dreary waste may extend itself so prodigiously, as to make it difficult, without assistance, to find the way to a proper outlet. This shews the meaning of the words of Moses. God instructed Israel how to avoid the dangers of the journey, by "leading the people about" this and that dangerous precipitous hill, directing them to proper passes through the mountains, and guiding them through the intricacies of their difficult journey, which might have confounded the most consummate Arab guides. Harmer.

— he kept him as the apple of his eye.] As the sight of the eye is by God's care and wise providence fenced about and preserved from harm by the eyelids, by its deep situation, and by several other means ; so did He in the wilderness preserve Israel from harm and danger. Bp. Kidder.

11. As an eagle &c.] This admirable similitude, so sublimely beautiful, and yet so simple and natural, of the parent eagle, training his young nestlings to fly ; first, "stirring them up," or rousing them from the nest ; then "hovering about them," to watch and encourage their timid efforts ; "spreading abroad his wings," to receive them, when drooping ; "taking them up, carrying them on his shoulder," to ease them, when wearied and exhausted by unusual efforts ; is probably painted from the life, with so much circumstantial imagery, from the scenes which Moses might often have witnessed in the deserts of Arabia Petrea. God Himself had been pleased to employ this comparison, "I bare you on eagles' wings," Exod. xix. 4. Dr. Hales.

12. — there was no strange god with him.] To help or assist him : but by His Almighty power alone they were protected and preserved. This made their sin the more heinous in sacrificing to other gods, ver. 17, as if they had been their benefactors. Bp. Patrick.

13. — ride on the high places of the earth,] Or, of the land : that is, conquer, and in a triumphant manner possess, Canaan, full of lofty and fruitful hills. Dr. Wells.

— suck honey out of the rock,] That is, the country abounds in wild bees, which, hiving in the rocks, furnish honey. See the instance of Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 25. Hasselquist says, between Acra and Nazareth, "great numbers of wild bees breed, to the advantage of the inhabitants." Maundrell observes of the great salt plain near Jericho, that "he perceived in it, in many places, a smell of honey and wax, as strong as if he had been in an apiary." See the account of the wild honey of John the Baptist, Matt. iii. 4 ; Mark i. 6. Script. illust.

— oil out of the flinty rock ;] That is, the olive trees grow in the crevices of rocks, and these yield oil. Hasselquist tells us, that "he ate olives at Joppa, which were said to grow on the mount of Olives near Jerusalem ; and that independent of their supposed holiness, they were of the best kind he tasted in the Levant." That Syria abounded in oil is evident, from its being exported into Egypt, Hos. xii. 1 ; and we find William of Tyre, in the time of the crusades, describing Syria-Sobal as all thick set with olive trees, making prodigious woods that covered the country, and afforded subsistence to the inhabitants. Script. illust. Some naturalists observe, that olive trees grow most prosperously in stony and barren places. Bp. Patrick.

14. — rams of the breed of Bashan,] That is, of the fairest and best kind. Bashan was famous for cattle, Numb. xxxii. 4. Bp. Kidder.

— the fat of kidneys of wheat ;] The Hebrews call the best of every kind of thing, "the fat." And "the kidneys of wheat," signifies large and plump corn, affording great plenty of flour. It is a metaphorical expression ; there being some resemblance between the figure of that grain, and the kidneys. Bps. Patrick and Kidder. This expression has been adopted by the Psalmist twice, who speaks of "the fat of wheat," Ps. lxxxi. 16 ; cxlvii. 14 ; which our translation renders "the finest wheat." Dr. Hales.

Some of the greatest delicacies in India are now made from the rolong-flour, which is called the heart, or kidney, of the wheat. Forbes's Oriental Memoirs.

— the pure blood of the grape.] Most generous red wine ; very clear and bright. Bp. Patrick. Red wine, in colour like blood. Bp. Kidder.

15. But Jeshurun &c.] The third part of the song, to the end ed: thou art waxen fat, thou art grown thick, thou art covered with fatness; then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

16 They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger.

|| Or, which were not God.

17 They sacrificed unto devils, || not to God; to gods whom they knew not, to new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not.

18 Of the Rock that begat thee thou art of the 18th verse, describes the usual but ungenerous effect of prosperity, upon "Jeshurun," or righteous Israel heretofore, in their adoption of the false gods of the neighbouring nations, and forgetfulness of the true God, their Creator and Protector. This is expressed in the most animated and glowing apostrophes, or changes of person, in which this most highly wrought lyric composition abounds; uniting all the fire and richness of oriental eloquence, with the close and accurate reasoning of occidental composition. Dr. Hales.

— Jeshurun waxed fat, and kicked:] That is, Israel grew rich, &c. Jeshurun comes from a word, that signifies upright; and it is evidently put for Israel, who were under great obligations to be upright; but instead of that, in their prosperity they rebelled against God, as a pampered horse kicks. Bp. Kidder.

Moses, by Divine inspiration, perceiving that nefarious dereliction of the Divine worship, into which the Israelites would in after times fall, speaks of their crimes, as if already committed. See also above, ver. 5, "They have corrupted themselves, &c." Nothing can represent events more clearly and evidently than such anticipation; and therefore in the writings of the Prophets the use of it is most frequent. See Is. x. 28, 30. Bp. Lowth. See Jer. ii. 15, and the note there.

— waxed fat, and kicked:] As Israel, (whom God compares to an heifer, fed in large and fruitful pastures,) enjoying always a full range, grew fat, and wanton, and kicked with the heel; so are we apt, the more plentifully God heapeth His blessings upon us, the more wantonly to follow the bent of our own hearts, and the more contemptuously to spurn at His holy commandments. Bp. Sanderson.

The Church teaches us to pray God to deliver us "in all time of our tribulation, in all time of our wealth;" that is, as well in our prosperity as adversity; from the dangers and temptations that beset us in every condition of life. A petition for deliverance in the time of wealth and prosperity may appear to a worldly-minded person needless, if not absurd. But our blessed Lord teaches us a very different lesson: warning us, in the strongest terms, of the great danger attending a state of affluence; which our daily experience and observation most abundantly confirm. The Jews of old were a remarkable instance of this: "Jeshurun waxed fat, &c. then he forsook God which made him, and lightly esteemed the Rock of his salvation." And the Prophet to the same effect; "They were filled, and their heart was exalted; therefore have they forgotten Me," Hos. xiii. 6. If therefore to forget and forsake God be too often the consequence of a prosperous condition, how earnestly ought we to pray for His grace, to deliver us from the power of its temptations! Waldo.

In this and in the following verses Moses speaks in the prophetic style, in which the past tense is frequently used for the future; and things to come represented as already past, to denote the certain event of the things predicted. Pyle.

— the Rock of his salvation.] We have in Scripture several instances of persons retiring to rocks for safety; and it appears that rocks are still resorted to in the East, as places of security. Before the invention of gunpowder, and before its explosive power unmindful, and hast forgotten God that formed thee. Before CHRIST

1451.

19 And when the LORD saw it, he || abhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons, and of his daughters. || Or, despised.

20 And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation, children in whom is no faith.

21 They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger with their vanities: and ^a I will ^a move them to jealousy with those which are ⁹.

^a Rom. 10.

was known, fastnesses of this kind were in a manner impregnable. Hence we see the propriety of considering the protection of God as a "rock;" which often occurs in Scripture. Fragments to Cabnet.

17. — devils,] The original word imports destroyers, as the devil is called in the book of Revelation, chap. ix. 11, evil spirits, delighting in mischief, and leading their worshippers into perdition. Bp. Patrick. They sacrificed unto evil spirits, who seek only their destruction, the wasters and destroyers of mankind; and not unto God, their Saviour and Protector, who seeks only their welfare. Bp. Kidder, Dr. Wells, Pyle.

— gods whom they knew not,] Or, as the words may be translated, "gods, who knew not them:" that is, from whom they had received no benefits, as they had from the Lord, the God of Israel. Bps. Patrick and Kidder.

— that came newly up,] New, and fresh invented imaginary demons of the Gentiles, of whom their forefathers never heard so much as the name. Pyle. Such as were lately, in comparison of the sun and moon, &c. set up for gods, as were the demon-gods or dead men deified. Dr. Wells. They seem to have been the local gods of the neighbourhood. Dr. Hales.

19. And when the Lord saw it, &c.] The fourth part, to the end of the 25th verse, expresses the indignation of the Lord, and His denunciations, that He would reject apostate Israel, and adopt in their room the believing Gentiles; according to the interpretation of St. Paul, Rom. x. 19, citing ver. 21; and the parallel prophecy of Isaiah, chap. lxxv. 1, 2. This part describes also, in the glowing colours of the preceding prophecies, all the calamities of the Babylonian and Roman captivities. Dr. Hales.

— the provoking of his sons, and of his daughters.] For such they were, till they corrupted themselves, and thereby highly incensed Him against them. For nothing can be so provoking as the rebellion of children against a most indulgent parent. Bp. Patrick.

The "daughters" are here expressly named, because the women were notoriously guilty of provoking God by their idolatry. See Jer. vii. 18; xlv. 15; Ezek. viii. 14. Bp. Kidder.

20. — I will see what their end shall be:] I will not cease My judgments, till I have brought the sorest calamities upon them, and made an end of their polity and government. Bp. Patrick.

21. — I will move them to jealousy &c.] The meaning is, that God would, by a people that was not peculiar to Him, as the Israelites were, provoke them to jealousy. And this He fulfilled, by delivering them to the Assyrians, Chaldeans, and their other enemies, who were not His people; and by rejecting them, and taking the Gentiles into His favour and into the Church of Christ, Rom. xi. 14. And to this purpose the Apostle applies the words of the Prophet, "I will call them My people, which were not My people," Rom. ix. 25. This greatly "provoked" the Jews, to see "a foolish nation" taken into God's Church: for such the Gentiles were, while they served idols, and diverse lusts, Rom. i. 21, 22. Compare Acts xi. 2, 3; 1 Thess. ii. 15, 16; Acts xxii. 21, 22. Bp. Kidder.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation.

|| Or. hath burned.
|| Or. hath consumed.

22 For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and || shall burn unto the lowest hell, and || shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

23 I will heap mischiefs upon them; I will spend mine arrows upon them.

† Heb. burning coals.

24 They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with † burning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send the teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust.

† Heb. from the chambers.
† Heb.
bereave.

25 The sword without, and terror † within, shall † destroy both the young man and the virgin, the suckling also with the man of gray hairs.

26 I said, I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men:

22. For a fire is kindled in mine anger,] Great and sore calamities are compared to "fire" in Scripture, Ezek. xxx. 8. God here threatens to send such calamities upon the Jews, as the woeful effects of His heavy displeasure, which should never cease till they were destroyed. For "hell" and "destruction" seem to be the same, Prov. xv. 11. And therefore "the lowest hell" signifies the depth of misery. Bp. Patrick. This verse gives an account, in a figurative manner, of the destruction of the land, in words which seem to import the total consumption of it. "Hell" signifies the lower parts of the earth, Numb. xvi. 30. Bp. Kidder. Such a fire is threatened, as should not only burn the earth, but penetrate the abyss below, and in its way consume the very "foundations of the mountains." Edit.

24. — the teeth of beasts &c.] They were exposed to these calamities, when they were forced to fly into wildernesses, and hide themselves in dens and caves: where some of them could not avoid being devoured by wild beasts, and stung by serpents, the sting of which is venomous, and which creep upon "the dust." It has been observed, that this denunciation was partly fulfilled, when the Jews were thrown by the Romans to wild beasts in the theatre, as Josephus relates. Bp. Patrick. Or the words may be a prophecy of the desolate state of the country, which should be overrun with wild beasts and serpents. Edit.

26. I said, I would scatter them &c.] The fifth part, to the end of ver. 35, states the wise and gracious reasons of the dispersion of the Jews into all lands, rather than their confinement to one corner, as in the Assyrian captivity: both for their preservation from the collected force of their enemies; and to prevent the boasts of the latter, ascribing to themselves their destruction. Dr. Hales.

27. Were it not that I feared &c.] He, that is Omnipotent, is not capable of fearing any thing: but He speaks in our language, and gives this reason why He did not make them cease to be a nation, because He would not have their enemies insult, and use insolent language even against Himself. Of this we have an instance, Is. xxxvii. 28, 29. Bp. Patrick. Fear is imputed to God after the manner of men, who refrain from doing things from that principle. Bp. Kidder.

28. — void of counsel, &c.] He that considers the lives and actions of the greatest part of men would verily think, that they understood not that there is such a being as God, and that it is their duty to demean themselves religiously towards Him. Therefore the Scriptures represent wicked men as "without understanding:" not that they are destitute of the natural faculty of understanding, but they do not use it as they ought: they are not blind, but they wink; they "hold the truth of God in un-

Before
CHRIST
1451.

27 Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should say, || Our hand is high, and the LORD hath not done all this.

|| Or.
Our high hand, and not the LORD, hath done
all this.

28 For they are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them.

29 O that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end!

30 How should ^b one chase a thousand, ^b and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had sold them, and the LORD had shut them up?

^b Josh. 23.
10.

31 For their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges.

32 For their vine || is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah: their grapes are grapes of gall, their clusters are bitter:

|| Or,
is worse than the vine of Sodom, &c.

righteousness, and though they know God, yet they do not glorify Him as God," nor suffer the apprehensions of Him to have a due influence upon their hearts and lives. Abp. Tillotson.

30. How should one chase a thousand, &c.] Whence should such an amazing change proceed, that the Israelites, who formerly with an handful of men put vast armies to flight, Lev. xxvi. 8, should now, though never so numerous, be beaten by one or two of their enemies, and flee when none pursued them? Bp. Patrick. The Prophet here states the true reason of the timidity of the Israelites, so that a thousand would flee from one enemy; as God had warned them repeatedly before in even stronger terms. See Lev. xxvi. 17—36; Dent. xxviii. 25. Dr. Hales.

31. For their rock is not &c.] This is a parenthetical observation of Moses himself, introduced incidentally into the Divine speech, stating the superiority of the God of Israel over the gods of their enemies, even by their own confession. Thus Jethro acknowledged it, Exod. xviii. 11; the Egyptians confessed it, Exod. xiv. 25; Balaam, Numb. xxiii. 19—23; the Canaanites, Josh. ii. 11; the Gibeonites, Josh. ix. 9—24; the Philistines, 1 Sam. iv. 7; Nebuchadnezzar, the haughty king of Babylon, Dan. iii. 29; iv. 37; Darius the Mede, Dan. vi. 26, 27; Cyrus, king of Persia, Ezra i. 3; Artaxerxes Longimanus, Ezra vii. 28. And Philostratus has preserved a remarkable declaration of Titus, modestly attributing his conquest over the Jews to the Divine assistance: "That he was only an instrument in the hand of God, whose wrath had been so signally manifested against them." Dr. Hales.

32. For their vine &c.] The Prophet next proceeds to state, that the enemies of the Jews had no claim to the Divine assistance from any superiour merits of their own: for that, on the contrary, their idolatries and corruptions were still more abominable than those of the Jews; not only compelling them in their captivities to serve their gods, by the most dreadful persecutions, such as those of Nebuchadnezzar, Dan. iii. 8—28; of Antiochus Epiphanes, 1 Macc. i. 41—64; of the Romans, &c. Dan. xi. 35; xii. 1; but corrupting the whole world by their mischievous example and influence. Thus Babylon is represented as making all the nations of the earth drunken and mad with the wine of her idolatrous fornication, Jer. li. 7; and the mystical Babylon, or Rome Imperial and Papal, likewise, Rev. xvii. 2; xviii. 3. The bitter and poisonous ingredients of which are here emphatically described. Of all these, God declares in the sequel, that He will keep an account, or registry, and severely punish them in the day of vengeance. Dr. Hales.

— the vine of Sodom,] This is a vine of a plant from Sodom, which brings only bitter and useless grapes; wine as bad or 1451.

Before
CHRIST

33 Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps.

34 Is not this laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?

° Eccl¹
28. 1.
Rom. 12.
19.
Hebr. 10.
30.

35 To me belongeth vengeance, and recompence; their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste.

36 For the Lord shall judge his people, and repent himself for his servants, when he seeth that their power is gone, and there is none shut up, or left.

† Heb.
hand.

37 And he shall say, Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted, 38 Which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink offerings? let them rise up and help you, and be † your protection. Before CHRIST 1451.

39 See now that I, even I, am he, and † Heb. an hiding for you. there is no god with me: [†] I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal: neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand. [†] 1 Sam. 2. 6. Tob. 13. 2. Wisd. 16. 13.

40 For I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live for ever.

41 If I whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment; I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me.

42 I will make mine arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall devour flesh; and that with the blood of the slain and of the captives, from the beginning of revenges upon the enemy. || Or, Praise his people, ye nations. Or, Sing ye.

43 || ° Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people. ° Matt. 7. 6. Rom. 15. 10.

deadly as the gall of a serpent; grapes as bitter as gall; the fruits which grow about the Dead sea are said to be rotten within, and only full of dust. Culmet.

33. — the poison of dragons.] As the Hebrew word signifies any kind of serpent, so it is certain that the dragons of Africa and Arabia had in them a deadly poison, though those of Greece had not, as Bochart observes. The poison of asps is called "cruel," because it is accounted particularly acute, instantly penetrating into the vital parts: whence the proverb, the biting of asps, for an incurable wound. Those, who are bitten by an asp, seldom escape with life; as many naturalists observe. Bp. Patrick.

It is probable that by the word, rendered "dragons" in this place, is to be understood a species of lizard, called Gekko, extremely venomous and deadly. This reptile yields in malignity to no serpent whatever: he inhabits Cairo, and the country of Egypt, so that he could not have been unknown to Moses: nor is he confined to desert places, but visits houses, and makes his abode in them, so that the people of Israel, to whom Moses speaks, may have been well acquainted with him. His poison, for its noxious qualities, is justly associated with the cruel venom of asps: his slayer, &c. being collected for the express purpose of smearing arrows, and rendering the wounds made by them fatal. Script. illust.

34. Is not this laid up in store with me, &c.] That is, Is not this vengeance, with which I now threaten them, though they flatter themselves in their present impunity, reserved for them, and kept in store for them against the time, when their iniquities shall be full and shall require it? Bp. Kidder.

36. For the Lord shall judge &c.] The sixth and last part of the song rehearses the consolation of Israel, and signal punishment of their foes. It begins with God's expostulation with His people, when reduced to their lowest state of desolation, referring them for relief, ironically, to the vain idols in which they had trusted, and to which they had sacrificed; and by an admirable contrast describing His own self-existence, as "living for evermore;" and His sole and exclusive power "to kill" and "to make alive," to "wound" and to "heal." Hence the captivity is called the wound of Israel, which is to be healed at the restoration of Israel, Is. xxx. 26: while His power to "kill" or destroy His adversaries, as a mighty warrior, with "sword and arrows," or the miseries of war, forms the conclusion of it. Dr. Hales.

— shall judge his people, &c.] After having punished them, "the Lord shall judge" or plead the cause of "His people," and act as one that "repents himself" for the evils which He has been obliged in justice to bring upon "His servants;" "when He sees that their power is gone," so that they cannot help themselves; and that "there is none shut up or left;" that is, that they have neither garrisons nor army left sufficient for their deliverance. Dr. Wells.

40. For I lift up my hand &c.] In Scripture there are two ceremonies mentioned of swearing. One, of putting the hand under the thigh of him to whom the oath was made, Gen. xxiv. 2, and xlvii. 29. The other was by lifting up the hand to heaven, Gen. xiv. 22. Thus God, condescending to the manner of men, expresses Himself in this place. In allusion to this custom the Psalmist describes the perjured person, "whose mouth speaketh vanity, and whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood," Ps. cxliv. 8. Abp. Tillotson.

This verse is connected with the two next, and the sense of the whole is as follows: "For I lift up My hand to heaven, and say, As I live for ever," (the ceremonial and form of the oath,) "If I whet My glittering sword, &c. I will render vengeance to Mine enemies, and will reward them that hate Me; I will make Mine arrows drunk with blood, &c." Edit.

42. — from the beginning of revenges] That is, from such time as I shall begin to take vengeance. Bp. Kidder. Instead of the received translation of the last line, "From the beginning of revenges upon the enemy," until their final completion, in which the rendering of the original word by "revenges" is unsupported by any of the ancient versions, the phrase may be translated "hairy head:" and by adjusting the order of the lines, the whole verse will run thus: "I will make Mine arrows drunk with blood, with the blood of the slain and of the captives; and My sword shall devour flesh, from the hairy head of the enemy." The literal expression "head of leeks," remarkably corresponds to "scalp of hair," or "hairy scalp," in the following parallel passage: "God shall wound the head of His enemies, and the hairy scalp of such an one as goeth on still in his trespasses," Ps. lxxviii. 21. Dr. Hales.

43. Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people:] This last verse terminates the whole song with the joint exultation of the Gentile with the Jewish converts to Christianity, arising from the prospect of the approaching judgments of God to be inflicted both upon His adversaries and the persecutors of His servants. St. Paul has cited this verse to prove the future conversion of the Jews and of the Gentiles to Christ, Rom. xv. 10—12, supported by the parallel prophecies of Psal. cxvii. 1; Is. xi. 1—10.

Theodoret has well paraphrased the last verse: "The Gentiles and the Jews, the people of God, might well rejoice together: for even among the Jews there were many myriads who believed (early) in Christ, Acts xxi. 20, as well as by far the greatest part of the Gentile world. But the heathens were indebted to the Jewish believers for their knowledge, and received the principles and precepts of the Christian religion solely from them: for the holy Apostles were Jews. The Prophet therefore, enjoying a clear view of this great period, exults, 'Rejoice, O ye nations, with His people,' the converted heathens with the believing Jews."

Such was the extensive range of prophetic vision vouchsafed to the great lawgiver of the Jews, comprising the whole fortunes of their state, from the first redemption, after the Egyptian bondage, until the last, on their final return to their own land, after 1451.

Before
CHRIST

ple: for he will avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and will be merciful unto his land, and to his people.

44 ¶ And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people, he, and ¶ Hoshea the son of Nun.

¶ Or,
Joshua.

45 And Moses made an end of speaking all these words to all Israel:

¶ Chap. 6.
6. & 11. 18.

46 And he said unto them, ¶ Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law.

47 For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.

¶ Numb.
27. 12.

48 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses that selfsame day, saying,

49 Get thee up into this mountain Aba-rim, unto mount Nebo, which is in the land of Moab, that is over against Jericho; and behold the land of Canaan, which I give unto the children of Israel for a possession:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

50 And die in the mount whither thou goest up, and be gathered unto thy people; as ^a Aaron thy brother died in mount Hor, and was gathered unto his people:

^a Numb.
20. 25, 28.
& 33. 38.

51 Because ⁱ ye trespassed against me among the children of Israel at the waters of ¶ Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin; because ye sanctified me not in the midst of the children of Israel.

ⁱ Numb.
20. 12, 13.
& 27. 14.
¶ Or, strife at Kadesh.

52 Yet thou shalt see the land before thee; but thou shalt not go thither unto the land which I give the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXXIII.

1 The majesty of God. 6 The blessings of the twelve tribes. 26 The excellency of Israel.

AND this is the blessing, wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the children of Israel before his death.

2 And he said, The LORD came from Sinai, and rose up from Seir unto them; he 1491.

the long-continued Roman desolation, which it is the business of the succeeding Prophets, under the former dispensation, and of our Lord and His Apostles, under the new, to unfold more explicitly and circumstantially. Dr. Hales.

It would be endless to quote the various passages in the Old Testament, in which the Gentiles are called upon to glorify God for His mercy. St. Paul in Rom. xv. points out some of the most remarkable; in particular this from Moses. The prophecy of Isaiah is full of them; and the Psalmist, in many of his divine hymns, no less clearly declares those "glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people." "Rejoice in the Lord" is the language of the inspired writings throughout: "Rejoice in the Lord alway," says the Apostle; "and again I say, rejoice," Phil. iv. 4. Exhortations of this kind, one would think, were needless to those who live under the light of the Gospel, and steadfastly believe the promises of God in Christ Jesus. Can they, who are redeemed from endless death and misery, and made capable of obtaining everlasting life and happiness, want motives or persuasions to rejoice? Can the "light afflictions" of this world, "which are but for a moment," depress the spirits, or abate the joy, of those, who firmly expect "an eternal weight of glory"? Does our gracious and merciful God require us to be joyful and happy, and shall we refuse to obey so pleasing a command? Yet, if one might judge from the gloomy and dejected appearance of many Christians, one would imagine that they thought it their duty to be melancholy, and to make themselves unhappy. So prevalent is the force of superstition and enthusiasm against the plainest dictates of reason and religion. Waldo.

50. And die in the mount] It was no small favour, that God warned Moses of his end. He that had so often apprized Moses of what He meant to do to Israel, would not now do aught to himself, without his knowledge. Expectation of any important event is a great advantage to a wise heart. God forewarns one by sickness, another by age, another by His secret instincts, to prepare for their end: if our heart be not now in readiness, we deserve to be surprised. Bp. Hall.

51. Because ye trespassed against me] Death, though it were to Moses an entrance into glory, yet was also a chastisement of his infidelity. How many noble proofs had he given of his courage and strength of faith! How many gracious services had he done to his Master! Yet for one act of distrust he must be gathered to his fathers. All our acts of obedience cannot bear out one sin against God. How vainly shall we hope to make amends to God for our former trespasses by our better behaviour, when Moses hath this one sin laid to his charge, after so many and worthy testimonies of his fidelity! When we have forgotten our sins, yet God remembers them; and although not in anger, yet He calls for payment. Alas, what shall become of them, with whom God hath ten thousand times greater quarrels; who, amongst many millions of sins, have scattered some few acts of formal services! If Moses must die the first death for one fault, how shall they escape the second for sinning always? Bp. Hall.

Chap. XXXIII. ver. 1. And this is the blessing, &c.] As Jacob blessed his children at his departure out of the world, when God had begun to fulfil the promise to Abraham of giving him a numerous offspring; so Moses, having seen them vastly increased, and ready to enter upon the promised land, takes his farewell of them with a blessing pronounced upon the people in general, and upon each tribe in particular. This blessing is in part prophetic, as that of Jacob was, and delivered in the prophetick style; and consequently it is not without some difficulty and obscurity. Bp. Patrick.

As Moses had before composed a song, to celebrate the miraculous passage of the Israelites through the Red sea, so his view in this song seems to have been, to commemorate God's gracious dealings with them since that time. A more proper subject could not have been thought of, in order to awaken their attention, and raise a due sense of gratitude in all Israel, before the several tribes heard, from the mouth of their great Prophet now speaking for the last time, what Providence intended to do farther for each of them. Dr. Durell.

2. — The Lord came from Sinai, &c.] God, like a glorious sun, imparted His beams unto Israel: beginning His course at their first entering into the wilderness, and still "rising up" to them by the proof of His goodness, in their passage through the land of Edom: He "shined forth" brightly, as at noonday, to them, when He blessed the elders of Israel with a large portion of His Spirit; and He guarded His people with "ten thousands" of His powerful angels; in whose presence He did, in fire, deliver His law majestically and terribly to Israel. Bp. Hall.

As if he had said, This is the favourite nation, to whom God was pleased with most dreadful solemnity, with the appearance of innumerable hosts of angels, attending the symbols of His Divine presence, to deliver His laws; and take the people into special covenant with Himself at mount Sinai. Whom, by the same cloud of glory, He safely and miraculously conducted through the 1451.

Before
CHRIST

† Heb.
a fire of furn.

shined forth from mount Paran, and he came with ten thousands of saints: from his right hand went † a fiery law for them.

3 Yea, he loved the people; all his saints are in thy hand: and they sat down at thy feet; every one shall receive of thy words.

4 Moses commanded us a law, even the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob.

5 And he was king in Jeshurun, when the heads of the people and the tribes of Israel were gathered together.

6 ¶ Let Reuben live, and not die; and let not his men be few.

7 ¶ And this is the blessing of Judah:

Arabian desert, the wilderness of Paran, and the borders of Idumea; preserving them, as His peculiar and holy people, and instructing them by His own word and precepts. Pyle.

— he came with ten thousands of saints:] Or, “of holy angels.” The law, which He gave, as men do when with their “right hands” they deliver their gifts, is called “a fiery law;” because God spake the words thereof “out of the midst of the fire,” Deut. v. 22. Bp. Kidder.

3. — all his saints are in thy hand:] He hath a special care of the Israelites, that “holy nation,” Exod. xix. 6, who sat at His feet, and promised subjection and obedience to Him. Bp. Kidder. The change of the person from his to thy is very frequent in the Hebrew language. See particularly Dan. ix. 4. Bp. Patrick.

— they sat down at thy feet:] Meaning, they received instruction from Thee. To the same effect St. Paul says, “I was brought up at the feet of Gamaliel,” Acts xxii. 3. If the same mode of sitting prevailed anciently in the East, as now prevails, in respect of master and scholars, the phrase is very descriptive and accurate. For the master is seated on a carpet spread on the ground with his books before him; and around him, at a little distance, beyond his books, sit his scholars in a circle, attending to his instructions. Fragments to Calmet.

4. Moses commanded us a law;] Josephus remarks, that the Greek legislators were modern in comparison of Moses; and that the ancient Greeks were unacquainted with the very term (Nomos) Law. It is not in Homer, the most ancient Greek writer. Calmet.

5. — he was king in Jeshurun;] Many persons are called kings in Scripture, whom we should rather denominate chiefs or leaders. Such is the sense of the word in this passage. Moses was the chief, the leader, the guide of his people, fulfilling the duties of a “king;” but he was not king in the same sense as David, or Solomon, was afterwards. This remark reconciles Gen. xxxvi. 31, “These kings reigned in Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel;” for Moses, though he was king in an inferior sense, yet did not reign, in the stronger sense, over the children of Israel, their constitution not being monarchical under him. Calmet’s Dictionary. Moses was king; that is, under God the supreme ruler and governor of Israel. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. Moses was a prince or governor, he gave laws and ruled the people. Bp. Kidder. Was appointed of God the leader and governor of the Israelites. Pyle, Bp. Hall.

6. Let Reuben live, &c.] Though it was formerly prophesied of this tribe, that, in punishment of the sin of its founder, it should not be so honourable or so numerous as several of the rest, yet shall it continue in some measure to flourish. Pyle. In the last clause of this verse, the word not is wanting in the original. The words may be thus translated exactly: “Let Reuben live and not die, though his men be few;” which seems to be a confirmation of the prophecy of Jacob, Gen. xlix. 4, “that he should not excel,” and yet should live and not perish: that is, that he should be in some measure a flourishing tribe, though not so numerous as some others. Bp. Patrick.

— live, and not die;] When a thing is intended to be described in a striking manner, it is usual in Hebrew to repeat the and he said, Hear, Lord, the voice of Judah, and bring him unto his people: let his hands be sufficient for him; and be thou an help to him from his enemies.

8 ¶ And of Levi he said, ^a Let thy Thummim and thy Urim be with thy holy one, whom thou didst prove at Massah, and with whom thou didst strive at the waters of Meribah;

9 Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not seen him; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children: for they have observed thy word, and kept thy covenant.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^a Exod. 28.
50.

same terms, a little varied; or to express the sentiment both affirmatively and negatively, as here and in other places: see Gen. xliii. 8; Ps. cxviii. 7; Is. xxxviii. 1. Dr. Durell.

7. And this is the blessing of Judah:] He speaks of Judah next, as that which was to be the royal tribe in time, and the principal tribe in the wars all along after: he therefore says, “Hear, Lord, the voice of Judah,” when he calls for Thy help at going out to war before his brethren; “and bring him home unto his people” again, safe and victorious. Dr. Wells.

This benediction cannot relate to the time when it was given; for then Judah’s “hands” were very “sufficient for him,” this being by far the greatest of the twelve tribes; see Numb. i. and xxvi: and there was more reason to put up this petition for several other tribes than for Judah. It is to be referred therefore to the prophecy of Jacob, and to the continuance of the sceptre of Judah, after the destruction of the other tribes. Judah, in Moses’s time, consisted of 74,600, reckoning only those of twenty years old and upwards, Numb. ii. 4. But on the return from Babylon, Judah, with Benjamin, the Levites, and the remnant of Israel, made only 42,360, Ezra ii. 64; and they were in so weak a state, that Sanballat in great scorn said, “What do these feeble Jews?” Neh. iv. 2. Now Moses, in the spirit of prophecy, seeing the desolation of all the tribes; seeing the tribes of the children of Israel carried away by the Assyrians, the people of Judah by the Babylonians; seeing that Judah should return weak, harassed, and scarcely able to maintain himself in his own country, conceives for him this prophetick prayer, “Hear, Lord, the voice of Judah, and bring him unto his people, &c.” Bp. Sherlock.

In these benedictions no notice is taken of Simeon. This tribe was, by way of judgment upon Simeon’s act of cruelty, mixed and scattered among the rest, having not so distinct and honourable a settlement, as each of them had, according to Jacob’s prediction, Gen. xlix. 5, 7. But as the greatest part of their inheritance was amongst the sons of Judah, Josh. xix. 1, it is probable that the tribe of Simeon is here included in that of Judah. Pyle.

8. — Let thy Thummim and thy Urim &c.] Continue in this tribe the high dignity of consulting with Thee, and receiving directions from Thee, by the high priest, concerning the publick safety. Aaron is called “the saint of the Lord,” Ps. cvi. 16. Bp. Patrick.

Be gracious to the tribe of Levi, and furnish Thou Thy high priest, whom Thou hast chosen out of it, with those excellent graces, which Thou hast figured in his breastplate, with perfection of knowledge, and sanctity. Thus do Thou bless the son of that Thy servant Aaron, whom Thou provedst at Massah, &c. Bp. Hall.

— with whom thou didst strive] Whom Thou didst punish and chastise, as the Hebrew word signifies, but didst not deprive of the dignity of the priesthood. Bp. Kidder.

9. Who said unto his father &c.] We have in general the most concern for those, of whom we have the most knowledge. Hence, in the sacred books, knowing or owning any person signifies having a regard for him: and denying or disowning any one, the contrary. Thus wicked men are said to “deny God, while they

Before
CHRIST
1451.

|| Or,
Let them
teach, &c.

|| Or, let them put incense.
† Heb.
at thy nose.

10 || They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, and Israel thy law : || they shall put incense † before thee, and whole burnt sacrifice upon thine altar.

11 Bless, LORD, his substance, and accept the work of his hands : smite through the loins of them that rise against him, and of them that hate him, that they rise not again.

12 ¶ And of Benjamin he said, The beloved of the LORD shall dwell in safety by him ; and the LORD shall cover him all the day long, and he shall dwell between his shoulders.

^b Gen. 49.
25.

13 ¶ And of Joseph he said, ^b Blessed of the LORD be his land, for the precious things of heaven, for the dew, and for the deep that coucheth beneath,

14 And for the precious fruits brought forth by the sun, and for the precious things † put forth by the † moon,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

15 And for the chief things of the ancient mountains, and for the precious things of the lasting hills,

† Heb.
thrust forth.
† Heb.
moons.

16 And for the precious things of the earth and fulness thereof, and for the good will of him that dwelt in the bush : let the blessing come upon the head of Joseph, and upon the top of the head of him that was^c separated from his brethren.

^c Gen. 49.
26.

17 His glory is like the firstling of his bullock, and his horns are like the horns of unicorns : with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth : and they are the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they are the thousands of Manasseh.

18 ¶ And of Zebulun he said, Rejoice, profess to know Him," Tit. i. 16, and our Saviour in return will deny them at the great day, saying, " I never knew you ; depart from Me," Matth. vii. 23 ; Luke xiii. 25, 27. Thus in the Old Testament, when the children of Levi had suppressed a rebellion of the people against God and their lawful governors, by falling without distinction upon all whom they found engaged in it, Moses describes the heroick behaviour of that tribe in these terms : " Who said unto his father and to his mother, I have not seen him ; neither did he acknowledge his brethren, nor knew his own children : for he observed Thy word and kept Thy covenant : " that is, they preferred their duty to Heaven and the publick, before the tenderest private regards. So also Job : " Though I were perfect," which he had just been disclaiming, " yet would I not know my soul," Job ix. 21. Were I freer from faults than I am, it should not tempt me to self-partiality. Abp. Secker.

10. They shall teach Jacob thy judgments, &c.] The Levites were not only commissioned to instruct the people in the law of Moses, but were also appointed by that law to be judges and interpreters of it in civil, as well as in religious cases, Lev. x. 11 ; Deut. xvii. 8, 9 ; xix. 17 ; xxiv. 8. They actually enjoyed this power in its full extent for many centuries, 2 Chron. xxx. 22 ; xxxi. 2 ; xxxv. 3. And though they were abridged of it afterwards in some respects, they still had a considerable share of it about the time of the dissolution of their national polity ; as appears by many instances in the New Testament, John xviii. 31 ; Acts xxiii. 3. To " put incense before the Lord " was another part of the priest's office. Dr. Durell.

12. And of Benjamin he said,] He mentions Benjamin next to Levi, because the temple, in which the priests officiated, was partly situated in his lot. Bp. Patrick.

— The beloved of the Lord shall dwell &c.] Benjamin, favoured of God, shall have his inheritance in a safe place ; namely, about Jerusalem the holy city, and the temple, or place of God's special residence among the Israelites. Compare Josh. xviii. 11, 28. Bp. Kidder.

— he shall dwell between his shoulders.] That is, The Lord's temple shall be situated in his land. Bp. Kidder. " Between his shoulders," or, by his sides or borders : so the word, translated " shoulders," is used in Numb. xxxiv. 11. And it is plain that the lot of Benjamin touched on that of Judah, at Jerusalem : the temple being included within the limits of Benjamin's tribe. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

It is with reference to this circumstance, that what Moses here predicts of Benjamin, is to be understood : namely, that God's providence would remarkably continue over him until the dissolution of their state ; and that He would, for a season, vouchsafe to dwell by His visible representation in the inheritance of Benjamin. Dr. Durell. See the note on Gen. xlix. 27 ; latter part of the verse.

13. And of Joseph he said, &c.] Joseph's tribe shall have a country fall to its share, most plentifully blest with every thing, that can render it fruitful and pleasant : with seasonable rains, dews, and convenient springs of water : with a soil yielding the fattest crops, and fairest fruits. Such will be the ancient and famous hills and valleys of Ephraim, Samaria, and Bashan. Pyle.

Whether we consider Joseph, with respect to his situation in the land of Canaan, or to the eminent dignity by which his descendants were distinguished, he is here in his proper rank. Moses in blessing him copies after Jacob, Gen. xlix. 22—26. Dr. Durell.

— the deep that coucheth beneath,] Springs of water which burst out of the bowels of the earth. Bp. Patrick.

14. — fruits — by the sun,] Whose kindly heat brings them forth and makes them grow to maturity. Bp. Patrick.

— put forth by the moon,] And for those precious fruits which are brought forth by the warmth of the sunbeams, and by the kindly moisture of the night, under the influence of the moon. Bp. Hall. Or by this may be meant, what most of the ancient versions understand, what is produced every month, or several times in the year, as grass, and herbs ; in opposition to what comes but once in the year, as corn, &c. implied in the fruits of the sun. Dr. Durell.

16. — the earth and fulness thereof,] " Earth," being here opposed to " hills " and " mountains," seems to imply a champaign country ; and " the fulness thereof " to signify a most plentiful champaign country. This sense will appear more probable from the event : for besides the great plain near Jordan, which Joseph had in common with some other tribes, and the plain of Sharon near the Mediterranean sea, there seems to have been another great plain near Samaria, which Josephus calls the great plain of Samaria ; and near mount Ephraim was the valley of fulness. Dr. Durell.

17. — unicorns :] See note on Numb. xxiii. 22. The Jerusalem Targum expounds this verse of the victories gained over the Canaanites by Joshua and Gideon, who were both of this family ; to whom, for the same reason, might have been added Jephthah, who distinguished himself signally in the war against the Ammonites. Dr. Durell.

18. — Rejoice, Zebulun, in thy going out ; &c.] Zebulun and Issachar are here joined together ; they were brothers by the same mother ; but the disposition of their respective posterities was to be very different : the former, it is intimated, would delight in

Before
CHRIST
1451.

Zebulun, in thy going out; and, Issachar, in thy tents.

19 They shall call the people unto the mountain; there they shall offer sacrifices of righteousness: for they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand.

20 ¶ And of Gad he said, Blessed be he that enlargeth Gad: he dwelleth as a lion, and teareth the arm with the crown of the head.

† Heb.
cited.

21 And he provided the first part for himself, because there, in a portion of the lawgiver, was he † seated; and he came with the heads of the people, he executed the justice of the Lord, and his judgments with Israel.

commerce, and the latter in agriculture. By trade and manufactures the descendants of Zebulun would enrich themselves, as the others might by disposing of the produce of their farms; by which means they might be enabled to offer large burnt offerings at the solemn festivals, and hospitably receive the people, whom they invited to go up with them to Jerusalem. Dr. Durell.

19. They shall call the people unto the mountain;] Here Moses predicts, that the house of God should be set upon a mountain; to which Zebulun should invite the rest of the tribes, by their forwardness and zeal, to go up and worship God at the three great festivals. Bp. Patrick.

— they shall suck of the abundance of the seas, &c.] They shall grow rich by importing abundance of commodities, particularly gold, silver, and precious stones, which are dug out of the earth. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick. Or, the former clause in this passage may have a particular reference to the produce of the seas, especially the shell-fish, called murex, the use of which is well known in dying of a purple colour; and the latter clause may refer to the art of making glass from sand. Jonathan in his paraphrase thus explains it: "They shall dwell near the sea, and feast on the tunny fish, and catch the chalsou, (or murex;) with the blood of which they will die of a purple colour the threads of their cloths; and from the sand they will make looking-glasses and utensils of glass." It is certain from various authors, that purple was found on the coast of Tyre, adjoining to Zebulun; and that glass was made from the sand of the river Belus, which ran by the border of this tribe. Dr. Durell.

20. — Blessed be he that enlargeth Gad:] That is, Blessed be God, who hath allotted to him such a large inheritance, which he afterwards further enlarged, 1 Chron. v. 20. "He dwelleth as a lion;" lives secure and fearless, though encompassed by enemies: "and teareth the arm with the crown of the head;" kills the princes with their kings: for by "arms" are meant men of strength and power; and by "the crown of the head" is properly to be understood the chief commander, ruler, or king. Bp. Patrick.

21. And he provided the first part for himself;] That is, he chose his inheritance with the first on this side Jordan, Numb. xxxii. 1, "in a portion of the lawgiver;" that is, that part of the country, which Moses the lawgiver entered upon, and which he divided, Numb. xxxii. 33. "And he came, &c." that is, after he had made provision for the safety of his family and cattle, he accompanied the leaders and captains of the people; and assisted them in conquering the land, and destroying the inhabitants, who were justly devoted by God to destruction, Josh. i. 14. Bp. Kidder.

22. — Dan is a lion's whelp;] The Danites will be eminent for stratagems and strength of war; and may be compared with the lions of Bashan, which was celebrated for its breed of very fierce ones, that leap upon their prey with great force and subtilty. This was eminently verified in Samson, who was of the tribe of Dan. Pyle, Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

22 ¶ And of Dan he said, Dan is a lion's whelp: he shall leap from Bashan.

23 ¶ And of Naphtali he said, O Naphtali, satisfied with favour, and full with the blessing of the Lord: possess thou the west and the south.

24 ¶ And of Asher he said, Let Asher be blessed with children; let him be acceptable to his brethren, and let him dip his foot in oil.

25 ¶ Thy shoes shall be iron and brass; and as thy days, so shall thy strength be. ¶ Or, Under thy shoes shall be iron.

26 ¶ There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun, who rideth upon the heaven in thy help, and in his excellency on the sky.

27 The eternal God is thy refuge, and

23. — possess thou the west and the south.] The tribe of Nephthali lay north and east: yet it was so situated, that by Zebulun, which lay next him, and upon the coast of the Great sea, he could easily be possessed of the commodities of the sea, which we here translate "west:" and lying on the river Jordan, Josh. xix. 33, he had the advantage of enjoying those commodities, which came by that river from the "southern" parts of the land. Bp. Kidder, Pyle.

24. — Let Asher be blessed &c.] May the tribe of Asher truly answer the meaning of its name, "Happy," by being blessed with a numerous posterity, and with a plenty of such products of the country where they live, that they may oblige the rest of the neighbouring tribes. God will plant them in a soil, where the choicest oil, and such like good things, shall be in the utmost fulness; and useful metals be dug from the bowels of their hills. Pyle.

— let him dip his foot in oil.] This figurative expression is allowed to denote such plenty, that oil would be very little regarded in this tribe; as in Jacob's prophecy, where it is said of Judah, "he washed his garments in wine," it is understood to signify that wine should be as plentiful as water. With respect to this promise it may be observed, not only that Asher's portion was generally fertile in oil, as in corn, wine, &c.; but during a famine of three years and a half, when the Prophet Elijah wanted sustenance, he was directed by the Holy Spirit to go to a poor widow at Sarepta, in whose house he was supplied with bread and oil. Sarepta was a town of this tribe. Dr. Durell.

25. Thy shoes shall be iron and brass;] This verse informs us, that shoes clouted, as the old English expression is, were used as early as the days of Moses. We know that the Roman soldiers used bracen or copper soles to their shoes; and clouted shoes, that is, shoes well coated with iron, were anciently part of a soldier's dress in this country, from which, shoes well filled with nails, &c. for strength, are now called clouted. Script. illust. In the East at this day, all the people, both rich and poor, wear iron plates at the heels and toes of their shoes. Calmet.

— as thy days, so shall thy strength be.] Thy strength shall bear proportion to thy days. That shall be great; and these shall be many. Bp. Kidder.

26. There is none like unto the God of Jeshurun,] Moses, having made an end of declaring to each tribe some of the particular circumstances, which would distinguish them from the rest, and having prayed for their respective prosperity, now concludes the whole with a general benediction. Dr. Durell.

— who rideth upon the heaven in thy help.] Who commandeth in the heavens, as well as in the earth; and sends help and succour to thee from thence by thunder, lightning, and hailstones. Thus had God done, Exod. ix. 23, and thus did He do afterwards, Josh. x. 10, 11. Compare Ps. xviii. 9, 10; lxxviii. 33, 34. Bps. Patrick and Kidder. The Supreme Being is frequently described as "riding on the skies, and making the clouds His chariot," in 1451.

Before
CHRIST

underneath are the everlasting arms: and he shall thrust out the enemy from before thee; and shall say, Destroy them.

4 Jer. 23. 6. 28^d Israel then shall dwell in safety alone: the fountain of Jacob shall be upon a land of corn and wine; also his heavens shall drop down dew.

29 Happy art thou, O Israel: who is like unto thee, O people saved by the LORD, the shield of thy help, and who is the sword of thy excellency! and thine enemies shall be found liars unto thee; and thou shalt tread upon their high places.

CHAP. XXXIV.

1 Moses from mount Nebo vieweth the land. 5 He dieth there. 6 His burial. 7 His age. 8 Thirty days' mourning for him. 9 Joshua succeedeth him. 10 The praise of Moses.

AND Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho. And the LORD shewed him all the land of Gilead, unto Dan,

|| Or,
shall be subdued.

|| Or, the hill.
2 Chap. 3.
27.
2 Mac. 2. 4.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

2 And all Naphtali, and the land of Ephraim, and Manasseh, and all the land of Judah, unto the utmost sea,

3 And the south, and the plain of the valley of Jericho, the city of palm trees, unto Zoar.

4 And the LORD said unto him, ^b This is the land which I swore unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither. ^b Gen. 12. 7. & 13. 15.

5 ¶ So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, according to the word of the LORD.

6 And he buried him in a valley in the land of Moab, over against Beth-peor: but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day.

7 ¶ And Moses was an hundred and twenty years old when he died: his eye was not dim, nor his natural force abated. [†] Heb. moisture.

8 ¶ And the children of Israel wept for [†] Heb. red.

condescension to the gross conceptions of a carnal people, who were unable to consider the attributes of the Lord Jehovah abstractedly. Dr. Durell.

27. — underneath are the everlasting arms:] To support all those with an unwearied power and care, who commit themselves unto Him. Bp. Patrick.

28. Israel then shall dwell in safety alone:] The Israelites were separated from the rest of the world by their peculiar institutions, religious and civil; and they were sufficiently secure under the theocracy without entering into leagues, offensive or defensive, with any power. This seems to be an allusion to Balaam's prophecy, Numb. xxiii. 9. Dr. Durell.

— the fountain of Jacob] That is, his posterity; who were derived from him, as a river from a fountain, Is. xlviii. 1; li. 1. Bp. Patrick. Or, "the fountain" is taken literally, and opposed to "dew:" and the expression implies, that the land of Jacob should be a land of fountains, of corn, &c. according to the description of it, chap. viii. 7, 8. Dr. Durell.

29. — thine enemies shall be found liars unto thee:] Shall be so afraid, that with feigned stories they shall court their friendship, as the Gibeonites did: or, more simply, shall submit to them, though not heartily, yet out of fear, Ps. xviii. 44; lxvi. 3. Bp. Patrick.

The last verse of this concluding benediction answers to the first, ver. 26: God is there said to have none like Him; so is Israel here: He is superiour to all created beings, because the whole creation obeys Him; the Israelites are superiour to every other nation, because He has saved them: in both places they are represented as being under His particular providence, assisted by Him in conquering their enemies, and admitted by Him into their country. Dr. Durell.

Chap. XXXIV. ver. 1. — unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah.] The mountains Nebo, Pisgah, and Abarim make but one chain of mountains, in the country of Moab, near mount Peor, over against Jericho. Calmet.

— Dan.] It has been said, that some names, used in the Pentateuch, were not applied to the places which they describe till after the death of Moses. If the truth of this remark could be proved, we might suppose the modern names to have been substituted by Ezra, or by some Prophet, posterior to Moses, for the information of later times. But the assertion often proceeds

Before
CHRIST
1451.

Moses in the plains of Moab thirty days : so the days of weeping and mourning for Moses were ended.

9 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom ; for Moses had laid his hands upon him : and the children of Israel hearkened unto him, and did as the LORD commanded Moses.

10 ¶ And there arose not a prophet since

10. And there arose not a prophet —like unto Moses.] Moses was mighty both in words and deeds, Acts vii. 22. He excelled in miracles and prophecies, and still more in legislation. His laws and institutions have been admired and adopted by the wisest ages of antiquity. And upon the closest scrutiny, they breathe a spirit of the most exalted piety, the most extensive benevolence, and the most enlightened policy, worthy indeed of the tutelar God of Israel, by whom they were dictated to this most highly favoured "man of God," because most "faithful servant of the Lord;" Deut. xxxiii. 1; Numb. xii. 7; Heb. iii. 2; with whom God conversed "face to face," or familiarly, "as a man speaketh unto his friend," Exod. xxxiii. 11.

The faculties of this illustrious legislator, both of mind and body, were unimpaired at the age of 120 years, when he died. "His eye was not dim, nor his natural strength abated," ver. 7. And the noblest of all his compositions was his Song, or the Divine Ode, which Bishop Lowth elegantly styles, "the dying swan's oration."

His death took place after the Lord had shewn him from the top of Pisgah a distant view of the promised land, throughout its whole extent: and He then "buried his body in a valley opposite Beth-peor, in the land of Moab; but no man knoweth his sepulchre unto this day," observes the sacred historian, who annexed the circumstances of his death to the book of Deuteronomy, ver. 6. From an obscure passage in the New Testament, in which "Michael the archangel is said to have contended with the devil, about the body of Moses," Jude 9, we may collect, that he was buried by the ministry of angels, near the scene of the idolatry of the Israelites; but that the spot was purposely concealed, lest his tomb might also be converted into an object of idolatrous worship among the Israelites, like the brazen serpent. Beth-peor lay in the lot of the Reubenites, Josh. xiii. 20. His in Israel like unto Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face, Before

CHRIST
1451.

11 In all the signs and the wonders, which the LORD sent him to do in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land, 12 And in all that mighty hand, and in all the great terror which Moses shewed in the sight of all Israel.

death was announced by the Lord Himself to Joshua, "Moses My servant is dead, &c." Josh. i. 2. So that there was no human witness of his decease; the account of which was probably added by Joshua from revelation.

The preeminence of his character is briefly described by the sacred historian, Samuel or Ezra: "And there arose not a Prophet since in Israel like unto Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face, in all the signs and the wonders, which the Lord sent him to do in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, and to all his servants, and to all his land, and in all that mighty hand, and in all the great terror which Moses shewed in the sight of all Israel."

The noblest trait in his moral character was his patriotick disinterestedness. He twice refused the tempting offer of the aggrandizement of his own family, when God threatened to reject the Israelites for their rebellions, and make of him "a great nation" in their stead. And he left his sons, without rank or patrimony, as private Levites, to subsist on the national bounty, in common with their brethren!—And, melancholy to relate, his grandson, "Jonathan, the son of Gershom," and his family, became idolatrous priests to the Danites, until the capture of the ark by the Philistines, Judg. xviii. 30; where the Masorite doctors, to hide the disgrace to his memory, changed "Moses" into "Manasses," by interpolating the letter N in the present copies of the Hebrew text. The posterity of his son Eleazar were numerous in Solomon's time, and some of them high in office, 1 Chron. xxiii. 14—17; xxvi. 24, 25. Dr. Hales.

Thus, with the death of this eminent Prophet and Lawgiver, endeth the PENTATEUCH: containing the sacred history of the world, and of mankind in general, and of the Abrahamick family in particular, for the first two thousand, five hundred, and fifty-three years: namely, from the Creation to the arrival of the Israelites in the land of Canaan. Pyle.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Deuteronomy, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. IV.	- - - - -	3rd Sunday after Easter,	- - - - -	Morning.
— V.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— VI.	- - - - -	4th Sunday after Easter,	- - - - -	Morning.
— VII.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— VIII.	- - - - -	5th Sunday after Easter,	- - - - -	Morning.
— IX.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— X.	- - - - -	Ascension-day,	- - - - -	Morning.
— X. from ver. 12.	- - - - -	Circumcision,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XII.	- - - - -	Sunday after Ascension-day,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XIII.	- - - - -	Ditto,	- - - - -	Evening.
— XVI. to ver. 18.	- - - - -	Whitsunday,	- - - - -	Morning.
— XXX.	- - - - -	Tuesday in Whitsun week,	- - - - -	Evening.

CANAAN,

ILLUSTRATING THE BOOKS
of Joshua & Judges.

According to the opinion of those geographers who consider the River of Egypt to be a small stream near Khartoum the southern boundary of the present land would pass nearly in a westerly direction from Zor to this stream according to the other opinion stated in the note on Gen. 15 the boundary is given in the Map of the stations of the Israelites passing considerably more to the South. The latter opinion has the sanction of the best geographers.

Scale of English Miles
0 10 20 30 40 50 60

EXPLANATION.
 Royal Cities
 Refuge D^o
 Levitical
 Common

THE BOOK OF JOSHUA.

INTRODUCTION.

AFTER the Pentateuch, we enter on those, which are commonly called the Historical Books of the Old Testament; comprising the books of Joshua, Judges, Ruth, the two books of Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles; also those of Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther. These books contain a compendium of the Jewish history for a period of 1042 years: that is, from the death of Moses, in the year of the world 2553, (before Christ 1451,) to the reformation established by Nehemiah, after the return from the captivity, in the year of the world 3595 (before Christ 409.) In these books, the object of the sacred historians is, to communicate instruction to mankind, and to illustrate the nature of God's providence, in small as well as great occurrences; in particular instances as well as general appointments. They therefore often descend from the great outline of national concerns to the minute details of private history. The relations however of individual events occasionally interspersed are highly interesting: and admirably develop the designs of the Almighty, and the character of those times to which they are respectively assigned. Those seeming digressions too, in which the inspired writers have recorded such remarkable events as related to particular personages, or such occurrences in foreign countries as tended to affect the history of the Jews, are not only valuable for the religious spirit which they breathe, and the incidental evidence of authenticity which they afford, but are to be admired, as strictly consistent with the sacred plan. These books therefore constitute an important part of the sacred volume; furnishing a complete code of instructive lessons, conveyed under every form, diversified with every style of composition, and enlivened with various illustrations of circumstance and character.

The book of Joshua continues the sacred history from the death of Moses to the deaths of Joshua and Eleazar, a space of about thirty years. It contains an account of the conquest and division of the land of Canaan, the renewal of the covenant with the Israelites, and the death of Joshua. There are two passages in this book which shew that it was written by a person, who lived at the time when the events happened. In the 1st verse of chap. v, the author speaks of himself as being one of those who passed into Canaan, by using the expression, "Until we were passed over." And in the 25th verse of the following chapter, it appears that the book was written when Rahab was alive: for it is said of her, "she dwelleth in Israel unto this day." There is not a perfect agreement among the learned, respecting the author of this book: but by far the most general opinion is, that it was written by Joshua himself. The five last verses, giving an account of the death of Joshua, were added by one of his successors, probably by Phineas or Samuel. Dr. Gray, Bp. Tomline.

CHAP. I.

Before CHRIST 1451. 1 The Lord appointeth Joshua to succeed Moses. 3 The borders of the promised land. 5, 9 God promiseth to assist Joshua. 8 He giveth him instructions. 10 He prepareth the people to pass over Jordan. 12 Joshua putteth the two tribes and half in mind of their promise to Moses. 16 They promise him fealty.

Chap. i. ver. 1. — Joshua the son of Nun,] His original name was Hoshea or Oshea, Deut. xxxii. 44, which Moses, whose minister he was, Exod. xxiv. 13, changed into Jehoshua, Numb. xiii. 16; and by contraction, Joshua or Jeshua, or Jesus, (according to the Greek pronunciation,) Acts vii. 45; Hebr. iv. 8; signifying "Saviour." He therefore was a type of Christ, both in his name and in his actions, as well as Moses. The first notice of him is on the occasion of the Amalekite war, Exod. xvii. 9, where he was appointed captain of a chosen party to repel their attack, at which time he was about forty-four years of age, and was called a young man, Exod. xxxiii. 11. Even then he was pre-ordained by the Lord to put the Israelites in

NOW after the death of Moses the servant of the LORD it came to pass, that the LORD spake unto Joshua the son of Nun, Moses' ^a minister, saying, 2 Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and possession of the promised land, as appears from the injunction to Moses to record in a book the aggression of the Amalekites, and the decree of their extermination, and to rehearse it in the ears of Joshua, as a memorial to him and the future judges, Exod. xvii. 14. The Lord appointed him to succeed Moses, at Numb. xxvii. 18. Joshua was about the age of eighty-four when, on the present occasion, after Moses's death, he was commanded to pass over Jordan and take possession of the promised land. Dr. Hales.

2. — this Jordan,] Within sight of which they lay encamped, and which flowed between them and the land of Canaan. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

Deut. 11.
21.
chap. 14. 9.

all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel.

3 ^b Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses.

4 From the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and unto the great sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your coast.

5 There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee:

^c Hebr. 13.

^c I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

5.
^d Deut. 31.

6 ^d Be strong and of a good courage: for || unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I swore unto their fathers to give them.

23.
|| Or, thou shalt cause this people to inherit the land, &c.

7 Only be thou strong and very courageous, that thou mayest observe to do according to all the law, which Moses my servant commanded thee: ^e turn not from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayest || prosper whithersoever thou goest.

^e Deut. 5.
32. & 28.
14.
|| Or,
do wisely.

8 This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein: for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt || have good success.

|| Or,
do wisely.

9 Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.

10 ¶ Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people, saying,

11 Pass through the host, and command the people, saying, Prepare you victuals; for within three days ye shall pass over this Jordan, to go in to possess the land, which the Lord your God giveth you to possess it.

4. From the wilderness &c.] From the wilderness of Zin, which was the boundary on the south, and this mountain, Lebanon, (so high that the top of it was seen from the place where they then were,) which was the boundary on the north, to the river Euphrates, which bounded the extent of the dominions of the Israelites on the east, (which afterwards came to pass in the days of David and Solomon,) and to the Mediterranean sea, which bounded it on the west, or towards the going down of the sun. Dr. Wells.

— the Hittites.] As these were a very powerful people inhabiting the country, some of which were of the race of the giants; they are therefore particularly mentioned, to shew that the most terrible people should not stand before Joshua. Bp. Patrick.

6. Be strong and of a good courage.] He commands Joshua to be “strong and courageous,” not only against the heathen, who were his outward enemies, but also in steadily persevering to obey the Divine commands, and to enforce similar obedience in those who were placed under his government. Dr. Wells.

12 ¶ And to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to half the tribe of Manasseh, spake Joshua, saying,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

13 Remember ^f the word which Moses ^f Numb. 32. 20. the servant of the Lord commanded you, saying, The Lord your God hath given you rest, and hath given you this land.

14 Your wives, your little ones, and your cattle, shall remain in the land which Moses gave you on this side Jordan; but ye shall pass before your brethren [†] armed, all the mighty men of valour, and help them; [†] Heb. marshalled by five.

15 Until the Lord have given your brethren rest, as he hath given you, and they also have possessed the land which the Lord your God giveth them: then ye shall return unto the land of your possession, and enjoy it, which Moses the Lord's servant gave you on this side Jordan toward the sunrising.

16 ¶ And they answered Joshua, saying, All that thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go.

17 According as we hearkened unto Moses in all things, so will we hearken unto thee: only the Lord thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses.

18 Whosoever he be that doth rebel against thy commandment, and will not hearken unto thy words in all that thou commandest him, he shall be put to death: only be strong and of a good courage.

CHAP. II.

1 Rahab receiveth and concealeth the two spies sent from Shittim. 8 The covenant between her and them. 23 Their return and relation.

AND Joshua the son of Nun sent out of Shittim two men to spy secretly, saying, Go view the land, even Jericho.

7. — turn not from it &c.] This is a metaphor taken from men on a journey, who go straight forward in the plain highway, and turn not aside into by-paths, which lead they know not whither. Bp. Patrick.

11. — within three days] The Hebrew word may be rendered, and ought to be rendered, after three days, for it is evident from chap. iii. 2, that the Israelites passed not over Jordan till after three days, viz. the next day after. Dr. Wells.

14. — all the mighty men] It appears that Joshua picked out the ablest warriors; for it is evident they did not all go over, but only 40,000 of them. See Josh. iv. 13. The rest, though fit for war, were left to defend their wives, children, and flocks, while those mighty men of valour went to help their brethren. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. II. ver. 1. And Joshua — sent out of Shittim] Rather, had sent, before the directions given to the officers, as mentioned in the last chapter. This best agrees with ver. 22 of this chap-

^{Before CHRIST 1451.} And they went, and ^a came into an harlot's house, named Rahab, and † lodged there.

^a Hebr. 11. 31. ^{James 2. 25.} 2 And it was told the king of Jericho, saying, Behold, there came men in hither to night of the children of Israel to search out the country.

3 And the king of Jericho sent unto Rahab, saying, Bring forth the men that are come to thee, which are entered into thine house: for they be come to search out all the country.

4 And the woman took the two men, and hid them, and said thus, There came men unto me, but I wist not whence they were:

5 And it came to pass about the time of shutting of the gate, when it was dark, that the men went out: whither the men went I wot not: pursue after them quickly; for ye shall overtake them.

6 But she had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax, which she had laid in order upon the roof. ^{Before CHRIST 1451.}

7 And the men pursued after them the way to Jordan unto the fords: and as soon as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shut the gate.

8 ¶ And before they were laid down, she came up unto them upon the roof;

9 And she said unto the men, I know that the LORD hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land † faint because of you. ^{† Heb. melt.}

10 For we have heard how the LORD ^b dried up the water of the Red sea for you, when ye came out of Egypt; and what ye did unto the two kings of the Amorites, that were on the other side Jordan, ^c Sihon and Og, whom ye utterly destroyed. ^b Exod. 14. 21. chap. 4. 23. ^c Numb. 21. 24.

ter, and with the rest of the narrative. Shittim was in the plains of Moab, where the Israelites now lay encamped, and where they had remained about two months, ever since the conquest of Sihon and Og. Bp. Patrick.

—into an harlot's house, named Rahab,] Rahab probably kept a publick house or inn, for the entertainment of strangers, by going into which the spies thought that they would be less suspected of any design. Bp. Patrick. She is called harlot either because persons who kept publick houses in those days often made their persons as common as their houses, or because Rahab had formerly been of this description, although she was now converted to better sentiments. Pyle. It cannot be denied, that in ancient times there was great affinity between the business of an hostess and an harlot; for this reason perhaps it is, that in the Hebrew tongue the same word denotes persons of both professions. For the same reason, the Septuagint, or Greek translators, have given Rahab the appellation of a harlot; and the two Apostles, St. Paul and St. James, (Heb. xi. 31, and Jam. ii. 25,) make use of the same expression, from this translation. It is to be observed however, that, as the expression is capable of another sense, the Chaldee paraphrast calls her by a word which signifies a woman who keeps a publick house, without any mark of infamy. Therefore, charity should incline us to think the best of a person, whom both these Apostles have ranked with Abraham, the father of the faithful, and propounded as an example of faith and good works. Rahab was afterwards married to Salmon, a prince of Judah; and king David descended from her: so that Jesus Christ did not disdain to reckon this Canaanitish woman among His ancestors. Stackhouse.

4. — I wist not whence they were:] In judging of Rahab's conduct on this occasion in telling an untruth, we should remember, that she had sufficient intimations of what God intended for His people Israel; and she expressed her faith in Him, by saying, "The Lord your God, He is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath." See ver. 11. She was deeply sensible, that the high Lord of heaven and earth had given that land to Israel, and she acted under a full persuasion of it; which faith of her's is that commended at Heb. xi. Therefore, not doubting but that the God of the universe had an uncontrollable right to set up, or to pull down; and to dispose of all kingdoms and countries, according to His good pleasure, she judged it reasonable to obey God rather than man; and therefore she endeavoured, as much as in her lay, to deliver up the land to the true owners, to those whom God had made the rightful proprietors. She would have been treacherous both to God and to them, if she had not done it, when she knew, as she expressly says, that the Lord had given them the land. Dr. Waterland. On the supposition that Rahab acted on this occasion in conformity with the intimation she had received of God's design towards the inhabitants of Canaan, her whole conduct will not only stand clear of every criminal imputation, but be highly commendable, and justly deserve a rank among those illustrious patterns which the Apostle proposes to our imitation, as being a person justified not only by her faith, but also by her works, James ii. 25. Stackhouse.

It is probable that Rahab was informed by an express revelation of the will of God on this occasion, and acted in obedience to it, or she could not have been an instance of the faith, which the inspired writer mentions in the Epistle to the Hebrews. If she had proceeded only on a general report respecting the people, who were invading the land, being raised up and supported by the miraculous power of God, her conduct would not have been justified; her concealment of the spies would have been treachery to her country, and might at last have proved an unavailing as well as a wicked action. But, on the other hand, if the design of God towards the inhabitants of Canaan had been made known to the king and people of Jericho; and he and they, though sufficiently warned to save themselves from destruction, refused to be guided by the warning, while Rahab on their refusal believed, and obediently acted according to what was required of her, her whole behaviour will then stand clear of every imputation, and her faith will be such as the Apostle might justly commend. Shuckford.

6. — to the roof of the house,] The houses in Eastern countries had flat roofs, so that men might walk or lie upon them. The stalks of flax were either newly cut and laid upon the roof of the house to be dried by the sun, till they were fit to be peeled; or they had been cut the year before, and were now made use of by Rahab to make the king's officers think that nobody had gone upon the roof where the stalks were. Bp. Patrick. In the East, they still use the roofs of their houses for drying raisins, flowers, &c. Harmer.

9. — I know that the Lord &c.] She here tells them the reasons for which she had ventured on an action so contrary to the common interests of her native country, and to the duties of a subject towards her prince: namely, that in reality she was a servant of the same one Almighty God with themselves: for that the plain and evident demonstrations of His power and justice in the deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt, &c. had fully convinced he

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb.
rose up.

11 And as soon as we had heard these things, our hearts did melt, neither † did there remain any more courage in any man, because of you: for the Lord your God, he is God in heaven above, and in earth beneath.

12 Now therefore, I pray you, swear unto me by the Lord, since I have shewed you kindness, that ye will also shew kindness unto my father's house, and give me a true token:

13 And that ye will save alive my father, and my mother, and my brethren, and my sisters, and all that they have, and deliver our lives from death.

† Heb.
instead of you to die.

14 And the men answered her, Our life † for your's, if ye utter not this our business. And it shall be, when the Lord hath given us the land, that we will deal kindly and truly with thee.

15 Then she let them down by a cord through the window: for her house was upon the town wall, and she dwelt upon the wall.

16 And she said unto them, Get you to the mountain, lest the pursuers meet you; and hide yourselves there three days, until the pursuers be returned: and afterward may ye go your way.

17 And the men said unto her, We will be blameless of this thine oath which thou hast made us swear.

† Heb.
gather.

18 Behold, when we come into the land, thou shalt bind this line of scarlet thread in the window which thou didst let us down by: and thou shalt † bring thy father, and thy mother, and thy brethren, and all thy father's household, home unto thee.

19 And it shall be, that whosoever shall go out of the doors of thy house into the street, his blood shall be upon his head, and we will be guiltless: and whosoever shall be with thee in the house, his blood shall be on our head, if any hand be upon him.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

20 And if thou utter this our business, then we will be quit of thine oath which thou hast made us to swear.

21 And she said, According unto your words, so be it. And she sent them away, and they departed: and she bound the scarlet line in the window.

22 And they went, and came unto the mountain, and abode there three days, until the pursuers were returned: and the pursuers sought them throughout all the way, but found them not.

23 ¶ So the two men returned, and descended from the mountain, and passed over, and came to Joshua the son of Nun, and told him all things that befell them:

24 And they said unto Joshua, Truly the Lord hath delivered into our hands all the land; for even all the inhabitants of the country do † faint because of us.

† Heb.
melt.

CHAP. III.

1 Joshua cometh to Jordan. 2 The officers instruct the people for the passage. 7 The Lord encourageth Joshua. 9 Joshua encourageth the people. 14 The waters of Jordan are divided.

AND Joshua rose early in the morning; and they removed from Shittim, and came to Jordan, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there before they passed over.

2 And it came to pass after three days, that the officers went through the host;

3 And they commanded the people, saying, When ye see the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and the priests the that the same irresistible arm would undoubtedly give the whole country into the hands of His chosen people, as a punishment on the sins of these Canaanitish nations. Pyle.

11. — is God in heaven] This is a plain confession of the true God, the Creator of heaven and earth; wherein He rules and governs all things according to His pleasure. This is her faith, celebrated by the Apostle to the Hebrews, which moved her to entertain the spies, and to preserve them with the danger of her own life, if she had been discovered. Bp. Patrick.

14. — Our life for your's,] They here pledge their lives for her's (swearing to her, as appears from ver. 17,) and wish they might perish themselves if they performed not what she desired; provided, on the other hand, she and her kindred did not make known the business they came about, and the agreement they had made with her. Dr. Wells.

15. — she dwelt upon the wall,] The meaning probably is, that the apartment she reserved to herself was next to the wall, and built upon it; the rest of her house towards the street being kept for strangers. This gave her the fair opportunity, without any noise, to let them down. Bp. Patrick.

17. — We will be blameless] Meaning, that the fault should not be their's, if this oath were not duly kept. Bp. Patrick.

18. — scarlet thread] It is probable that this was something more than a mere thread or line, as it was distinguished from a distance when hung in a window, and as it was used for lowering the men. Le Clerc would translate it, "this tissue of scarlet thread." Script. illust.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — early in the morning;] The morning of the last of the three days mentioned at chap. i. 11.

The distance from Shittim to Jordan is, according to most opinions, seven miles. Bp. Patrick.

3. — priests the Levites] Those of the tribe of Levi, who were priests. The Kohathites had generally the charge of the ark, Numb. iii. 28; iv. 15; but now, on this occasion, the priests are appointed to it. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST 1451. Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place, and go after it.

4 Yet there shall be a space between you and it, about two thousand cubits by measure: come not near unto it, that ye may know the way by which ye must go: for ye have not passed this way † heretofore.

† Heb. since yesterday and the third day.
5 And Joshua said unto the people, ^a Sanctify yourselves: for to morrow the LORD will do wonders among you.

6 And Joshua spake unto the priests, saying, Take up the ark of the covenant, and pass over before the people. And they took up the ark of the covenant, and went before the people.

7 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day will I begin to magnify thee in the sight of all Israel, that they may know that, ^b as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee.

8 And thou shalt command the priests that bear the ark of the covenant, saying, When ye are come to the brink of the water of Jordan, ye shall stand still in Jordan.

9 ¶ And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, Come hither, and hear the words of the LORD your God.

10 And Joshua said, Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11 Behold, the ark of the covenant of the LORD of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12 Now therefore take you twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13 And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the LORD, the LORD of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they ^c shall stand upon an heap. ^c Psal. 114. 9.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents, to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ^d ark of the covenant before the people; ^d Acts 7. 45.

15 And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water, (for ^e Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest,) ^e 1 Chron. 12. 15. Eccl^v 24. 26.

16 That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan: and those that came down

3. — and go after it.] The ark, which in their former marches was generally wont to go in the middle of the camp, Numb. ii. 17, &c. is now appointed to go in front, to lead and direct their course, in the same manner as the cloud of glory (which had now left them) used to do; and, as the cloud was wont to keep at some distance before the camp, so it was now ordered, that the ark should be followed at the distance of 2000 cubits, (about 800 or 1000 yards,) as the only remaining symbol of the Divine guidance through the unknown passages of the river. Pyle.

5. — Sanctify yourselves.] They were commanded to prepare themselves, by the means of sanctification, usual on extraordinary occasions, (see Numb. xi. 18; Exod. xix. 10,) for receiving the Divine benefits with proper feelings and meditations. Bp. Patrick.

10. — Hereby ye shall know that the living God &c.] Hereby, that is, by the miraculous passage God is about to make for you through Jordan, ye shall know that the living God, that is, the only true God, who has life of Himself, and is the Fountain or Giver of life to all things, is among you. Dr. Wells.

13. — it shall come to pass.] He tells them of the miracle beforehand, that they might not attribute it to any accidental cause, but solely to God's providence and power. Dr. S. Clarke.

15. — harvest.] This is meant of barley harvest, which began about the passover: the snows now melted from the neighbouring mountains, particularly of Lebanon, at the foot of which are the springs of Jordan. By this overflowing of the river, the miracle was increased. Bp. Patrick. No modern traveller has seen the Jordan in its state of overflowing. Mr. Maundrell observed that this river has two banks, the first and outermost of which appears to be that to which the overflow reaches. He says, that, after having descended the outermost bank, they had to go about a furlong on the level strand, before they came to the immediate bank of the river. Now, as the river certainly formed the outermost bank by its inundation, this bank is a lasting testimony that it sometimes overflows. As each bank is about a furlong from the bed of the river, and the river about twenty yards across, we thus get the breadth of water crossed by the Israelites. In proportion as the swelling of Jordan was rare, and the security of the Canaanites increased by it, the passage of the river by the Israelites was a more illustrious instance of Divine interposition. Script. illust.

16. — rose up upon an heap.] The waters above were made to stand still, rising in a heap, as if they were congealed. Bp. Patrick. As it is usual for waters to do when they are stopt by any common dam. Dr. Wells. The passage of this deep and rapid, though not wide river, at the most unfavourable season, was more manifestly miraculous, if possible, than that of the "Red sea." It seems therefore to have been providentially designed to silence cavils respecting the former; and it was done in the noonday, in the face of the sun, and in the presence, we may be sure, of the neighbouring inhabitants; and struck terror into the kings of the Amorites and Canaanites, westwards of the river, whose "heart melted, neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel," Josh. v. 1. Dr. Hales.

It requires no argument to prove that this fact was miraculous: it was not accidental, or it could not have been foreseen, ver. 5, 10, &c.: it was not natural, for the river was at its height, ver. 15: and the waters, that had been descending, stood on an heap, ver. 16: it was not the effect of art, for any artificial alteration of the channel the people must have known; and besides, the effect could not have been instantaneous. Dr. Graves.

— Adam, — Zaretan.] The waters rose in a heap "very far from the city Adam," which was probably situated at a short distance above the place where the ark was. As this was but a small place, its situation is further described by adding, "that is 1451.

Before
CHRIST

toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17 And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

CHAP. IV.

¹ Twelve men are appointed to take twelve stones for a memorial out of Jordan. ⁹ Twelve other stones are set up in the midst of Jordan. ^{10, 19} The people pass over. ¹⁴ God magnifieth Joshua. ²⁰ The twelve stones are pitched in Gilgal.

^a Deut. 27.
^{2.}
^b Chap. 3.
12.

AND it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed ^a over Jordan, that the Lord spake unto ^b Joshua, saying,
2 Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man,

3 And command ye them, saying, Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones, and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place, where ye shall lodge this night.

4 Then Joshua called the twelve men, whom he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of every tribe a man:

5 And Joshua said unto them, Pass over before the ark of the Lord your God into the midst of Jordan, and take you up every man of you a stone upon his shoulder, according unto the number of the tribes of the children of Israel:

† Heb.
to morrow.

6 That this may be a sign among you, that when your children ask their fathers † in time to come, saying, What mean ye by these stones?

7 Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the Lord; when it passed over Jordan, the waters of Jordan were cut off: and these stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

8 And the children of Israel did so as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones out of the midst of Jordan, as the Lord spake unto Joshua, according to the number of the tribes of the children of Israel, and carried them over with them unto the place where they lodged, and laid them down there.

9 And Joshua set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests which bare the ark of the covenant stood: and they are there unto this day.

10 ¶ For the priests which bare the ark stood in the midst of Jordan, until every thing was finished that the Lord commanded Joshua to speak unto the people, according to all that Moses commanded Joshua: and the people hastened and passed over.

11 And it came to pass, when all the people were clean passed over, that the ark of the Lord passed over, and the priests, in the presence of the people.

12 And ^c the children of Reuben, and the children of Gad, and half the tribe of Manasseh, passed over armed before the children of Israel, as Moses spake unto them:

^c Numb.
32. 27.

13 About forty thousand || prepared for war passed over before the Lord unto battle, to the plains of Jericho. || Or, ready armed.

14 ¶ On that day the Lord magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel; and they feared him, as they feared Moses, all the days of his life.

15 And the Lord spake unto Joshua, saying,

16 Command the priests that bear the ark of the testimony, that they come up out of Jordan.

17 Joshua therefore commanded the priests, saying, Come ye up out of Jordan.

beside Zaretan," being a place of greater note. Dr. Wells. The place where the Israelites passed the Jordan was called Bethabara, or "the place of passage," in our Saviour's time, John i. 28. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. IV. ver. 3. — Take you — out of the midst of Jordan, — twelve stones. It appears that the Jordan continued perfectly dry for some time after the Israelites had passed over; that is, till the priests removed from the place where they stood. They were to take twelve stones—great stones, as the Hebrew word imports, as big as they could well lift, and carry them to their lodging-place, that is, to Gilgal, the place where they lodged that night. Bp. Patrick.

9. — set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan. By altering a letter in the Hebrew text, this verse may be rendered, agreeably to some ancient translations, "Joshua set up twelve stones from out of the midst of Jordan, from under the place, &c." Josephus seems to have had no notion of any more than one monument set up on this occasion. Shuckford.

— and they are there unto this day. The stones remained until the time when this book was written, that is, till a short time before Joshua's death, when he is thought to have composed it. Dr. Wells. Many a great work had God done for Israel which was now forgotten. Joshua therefore will have monuments of God's mercy, that future ages might be both witnesses and applauders of the great works of their God. Bp. Hall.

12. — Reuben, &c. They were the first that passed over (according to their engagement, Numb. xxxii. 20, 21, 27, of which Joshua put them in mind, Josh. i. 13,) ready to encounter any enemy that might have opposed their landing. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

18 And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests' feet were † lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and † flowed over all his banks, as they did before.

† Heb. plucked up.

† Heb.
went.

19 ¶ And the people came up out of Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and encamped in Gilgal, in the east border of Jericho.

20 And those twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.

21 And he spake unto the children of Israel, saying, When your children shall ask their fathers † in time to come, saying, What mean these stones?

† Heb.
to-morrow.

22 Then ye shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land.

23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you, until ye were passed over, as the LORD your God did to the Red sea, ^a which he dried up from before us, until we were gone over: ^d Exod. 14. 21.

24 That all the people of the earth might know the hand of the LORD, that it is mighty: that ye might fear the LORD your God † for ever.

† Heb.
all days.

CHAP. V.

1 The Canaanites are afraid. 2 Joshua reneweth circumcision. 10 The passover is kept at Gilgal. 12 Manna ceaseth. 13 An Angel appeareth to Joshua.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings of the Amorites, which were on the side of Jordan westward, and all the kings of the Canaanites, which were by the sea, heard that the LORD had dried up the waters of Jordan from before the children of Israel, until we were passed over, that their heart melted, neither was there spirit in them any more, because of the children of Israel.

^a Exod. 4. 25.

2 ¶ At that time the LORD said unto Joshua, Make thee ^a || sharp knives, and ^b || Or, knives of flints.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — Amorites, — Canaanites,] Under the Amorites and Canaanites are here included the several other nations of Canaan, as the Hittites, Hivites, &c. these two being the most powerful nations. The Amorites on the side of Jordan "westward" are distinguished from the Amorites eastward of Jordan, whom the Israelites had subdued already. The Canaanites "by the sea," that is, by the Mediterranean sea, are the nation more properly called by this name, of which, however, there were colonies in other parts. In the consternation, or "melting of hearts," of this people, here mentioned, the providence of God is very discernible, since, by this means, the Israelites were securely circumcised, (as is now to be related;) whereas, if the people of Canaan had been at this time courageous and vigilant, they might have taken them at an advantage, as appears from the story of the Shechemites, Gen. xxxiv. 25. Bp. Patrick.

—until we were passed over,] The use of the word "we" proves that this book was written by Joshua, or by some one else alive at the time. Bp. Tomline.

2. — Make thee sharp knives, and circumcise again &c.] Make to thee knives of flints, literally: at this day they circumcise in the East with knives made of stone. The great number of stone hatchets and knives found in Britain leaves no room to doubt that stones may be sharpened to answer all the purposes of metal; and that stone knives, similar to those in the East, were formerly used in our own country. Script. illust. See the note on Exod. iv. 25. "Circumcise again," that is, renew the rite of circumcision. This does not imply that those who had been already circumcised were now to be circumcised again, but that another general circumcision was to be held of those, on whom the rite had been omitted. It is probable that the first general circumcision had been held at mount Sinai, in the first month of the second year, after they came out from Egypt, when they kept the passover, Numb. ix. 1—3. The reason of the omission of this rite during the last forty years, is given at ver. 6. As they were then in a wandering condition, and wholly uncertain at what time the removal of the cloud would summon them to proceed on their journey, they would have endangered their lives by submitting to an operation which rendered them incapable of moving immediately with safety. Bp. Patrick. The Israelites, on the present occasion, gave a signal proof of their faith, in submitting to this painful operation in the face of their

18. — flowed over all his banks,] All this is so particularly taken notice of, to shew that the passage of the Israelites was purely owing to the miraculous power of God; and that the miracle was the greater, on account of the passage being made when the river was in this state. Dr. Wells.

19. — the tenth day of the — month,] In which same month they came out of Egypt, on the fifteenth day: so that there wanted just five days of forty years since their coming from thence. Bp. Patrick.

20. And those twelve stones — did Joshua pitch in Gilgal.] We find many publick memorials of the most signal miracles, which are recorded in the Jewish history, not only in the names given to the places where they had been wrought, from the event, and at the time, but in sensible objects and monuments, set up at the moment the miracles had taken place, and constantly preserved with the most religious reverence. Thus the tables of stone in the ark were a monument of the miraculous deliverance of the Law at Sinai: the vessel of manna, of the miraculous food in the wilderness: Aaron's rod that budded, and the censer of Korah and his company, formed into large plates for covering the altar, as a memorial to the children of Israel of their offence, and miraculous punishment. The brasen serpent, by looking on which God ordered the people should be healed of the bites inflicted by the serpents in the wilderness, was preserved even to the days of king Hezekiah. Thus also twelve stones were taken out of the midst of Jordan, at the time of the miraculous passage over it, and set up by Joshua at Gilgal, as a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever. The setting up of these stones at the very time of the performance of the miracle, and the ordinance to the people to teach their children from age to age, and to instruct them in the meaning of this monument, are an incontestible proof of the reality of the fact, which the monument was raised to commemorate. Leslie, Dr. Graves.

23. — which he dried up from before us,] His use of the word "us" is remarkable; he means himself and Caleb, the only two who were now alive of those who passed the Red sea. Dr. Wells.

24. That all the people of the earth &c.] These two great miracles were wrought by God, that all the nations round about might acknowledge the power of the God of Israel, and that the people of Israel especially, for whom these wonders were wrought, might fear, that is, religiously worship and serve Him for ever. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

circumcise again the children of Israel the second time.

¶ Or, Gibeahhaaraloth.

3 And Joshua made him sharp knives, and circumcised the children of Israel at ¶ the hill of the foreskins.

4 And this is the cause why Joshua did circumcise: All the people that came out of Egypt, that were males, even all the men of war, died in the wilderness by the way, after they came out of Egypt.

5 Now all the people that came out were circumcised: but all the people that were born in the wilderness by the way as they came forth out of Egypt, them they had not circumcised.

¶ Numb.
14. 23.

6 For the children of Israel walked forty years in the wilderness, till all the people that were men of war, which came out of Egypt, were consumed, because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD: unto whom the LORD sware that ^b he would not shew them the land, which the LORD sware unto their fathers that he would give us, a land that floweth with milk and honey.

† Heb.
when the people had made an end to be circumcised.

7 And their children, whom he raised up in their stead, them Joshua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they had not circumcised them by the way.

8 And it came to pass, † when they had done circumcising all the people, that they enemies, relying on the Divine protection till they were healed; for Gilgal was only two miles from Jericho. Dr. Hales.

3. And Joshua — circumcised the children of Israel.] No person, left to himself, could have acted as Joshua did. He was arrived in an enemy's country, and it was necessary for him to keep the people upon their guard, as they had powerful nations to encounter. What then was his first action when he came among them? He made the whole army undergo an operation, which rendered every person in it incapable of acting. The people of the next hamlet might have cut them to pieces; see Gen. xxxiv. 25. The history tells us, that it was by Divine appointment, and so it must necessarily have been. The God, who insisted upon this instance of obedience and faith, would certainly preserve them for the confidence and duty which they shewed. But this was not in the power of their leader: the same conduct in him would have been madness. Bryant.

— at the hill of the foreskins.] Some understand the Hebrew words thus translated, Gibeah-haaraloth, to be the name by which the place where they were circumcised was afterwards called. Bp. Patrick.

4. — All the people that came out.] Namely, all that were then twenty years of age; for such only were reputed men of war, and were guilty of the sedition mentioned at Numb. xiv. for which they were doomed to perish in the wilderness. Bp. Patrick.

9. — have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you.] I have rolled away that which you esteemed the reproach of all other nations, and more particularly of the people of Egypt, among whom you lived, namely, uncircumcision. Shuckford, Dr. Wells. I have taken away from you that your uncircumcision, which you have kept all this while, out of that irreligious carelessness, which your fathers brought with you out of Egypt. Bp. Hall. The reproach of Egypt is supposed by some to relate to the reproaches which the Egyptians cast upon the Israelites during their wanderings in the wilderness, from which God now delivered them by the abode in their places in the camp, till they were whole. Before

CHRIST
1451.

9 And the LORD said unto Joshua, This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you. Wherefore the name of the place is called ¶ Gilgal unto this day. ¶ That is, rolling.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel encamped in Gilgal, and kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the month at even in the plains of Jericho.

11 And they did eat of the old corn of the land on the morrow after the passover, unleavened cakes, and parched corn in the selfsame day.

12 ¶ And the manna ceased on the morrow after they had eaten of the old corn of the land; neither had the children of Israel manna any more; but they did eat of the fruit of the land of Canaan that year.

13 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua was by Jericho, that he lifted up his eyes and looked, and, behold, there stood ^c a man over against him with his sword drawn in his hand: and Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries? ^c Exod. 23.
23.

14 And he said, Nay; but as ¶ captain ¶ Or, prince. of the host of the LORD am I now come.

assurance conveyed in the renewal of circumcision. But the most common opinion is, that by the reproach of Egypt is meant nothing else but uncircumcision, with which the Israelites always upbraided other people, and particularly the Egyptians, with whom they had lived long, and were best acquainted. Stackhouse.

10. — and kept the passover.] The Israelites, having become circumcised, were now qualified to celebrate the passover, which had been omitted from the second time of their observance of that rite at Sinai, in consequence of their rebellions; (Dr. Hales;) and also on account of the want of unleavened bread, and other things required for the proper celebration of it. Stackhouse.

11. — they did eat of the old corn &c.] “Old corn;” that which the inhabitants left in their barns when they fled into Jericho and other strong holds. Bp. Patrick. Or the Hebrew word may signify, the ripe corn then standing on the ground. Shuckford.

12. And the manna ceased.] Now that the Israelites had arrived in a country where was a sufficient supply of natural food, God ceased to supply them with manna, which had been their constant food for forty years, wanting about a month. Pyle. We are supplied by the example here afforded with a proof that God, in His dispensations to His creatures, vouchsafes not miracles and extraordinary means, when ordinary means are sufficient. Although the manna had been daily showered from heaven during their long sojourning in a barren and dry wilderness, yet from the day they ate of the old corn of Canaan, that is, when they began to enjoy common sustenance, and were enabled, by their own care and industry, to provide themselves with it for the future, their feeding on a daily miracle ceased together with that necessity which called for it. Dean Stanhope.

13. — a man.] One whom he took to be a man. Bp. Patrick.

14. — captain of the host of the Lord.] By “host of the Lord” may be denoted the angels of heaven, and also the whole body of

Before CHRIST 1451. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and did worship, and said unto him, What saith my lord unto his servant?

15 And the captain of the LORD's host said unto Joshua, "Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy." And Joshua did so.

CHAP. VI.

1 Jericho is shut up. 2 God instructeth Joshua how to besiege it. 12 The city is compassed. 17 It must be accursed. 20 The walls fall down. 22 Rahab is saved. 26 The builder of Jericho is cursed.

† Heb. did shut up, and was shut up. NOW Jericho † was straitly shut up because of the children of Israel: none went out, and none came in.

2 And the LORD said unto Joshua, See, I have given into thine hand Jericho, and the king thereof, and the mighty men of valour.

3 And ye shall compass the city, all ye men of war, and go round about the city once. Thus shalt thou do six days.

4 And seven priests shall bear before the ark seven trumpets of rams' horns: and the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven times, and the priests shall blow with the trumpets. Before CHRIST 1451.

5 And it shall come to pass, that when they make a long blast with the ram's horn, and when ye hear the sound of the trumpet, all the people shall shout with a great shout; and the wall of the city shall fall down † flat, and the people shall ascend up every man straight before him. † Heb. under it.

6 ¶ And Joshua the son of Nun called the priests, and said unto them, Take up the ark of the covenant, and let seven priests bear seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD.

7 And he said unto the people, Pass on, and compass the city, and let him that is armed pass on before the ark of the LORD.

8 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joshua had spoken unto the people, that the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns passed on before the LORD, and blew with the trumpets: and the ark of the covenant of the LORD followed them.

9 ¶ And the armed men went before the priests that blew with the trumpets, and the † rereward came after the ark, the † Heb. gathering host.

the Jewish people, whom God led forth from Egypt. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick. Commentators have not been agreed who this person was, that appeared to Joshua. Some have supposed him to be a created angel; but there are several reasons for believing him to be a divine, and not a created being. For, besides his assuming the title of the "captain of the host of the Lord," he is called directly Jehovah or the Lord at ver. 2 of the next chapter, allowing that text to refer to the same Divine appearance; and Joshua's falling down and worshipping him, not only without being reproved for doing him too much honour, but, on the contrary, with a command to do him more, by loosing his shoe from his foot, ver. 15, (which was the highest acknowledgment of a Divine presence customary among Eastern nations,) is a circumstance which affords the surest evidence of the divinity of his person. Stackhouse. That he who thus appeared as a warrior, and called himself captain of the Lord's host, was no other than "the Word," was plainly the sense of the ancient Jewish church. Dean Allix. It was the Son of God, it is conceived, who appeared to Joshua, as captain of the Lord's host, whom Joshua worshipped with the most profound prostrations, and who made the ground holy, whereon he stood. Dr. Woodward.

The design of this appearance was to assure Joshua, that the same God, who had appeared to Moses, ordering him to pull off his shoes, because he stood on holy ground, had now appeared to him: and to serve as an encouragement to him in the war, in which he was about to engage with many nations; as a confirmation of his faith; and as a lesson to him to obey in all things the commands of God, and to give the glory of his conquests to the Author of them, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Bp. Watson.

Joshua was now encouraged by the appearance of the "captain of the Lord's host," with a drawn sword in his hand, the same who appeared to Moses in the bush at Horeb; as appears to follow from the sameness of the injunction, "Loose thy shoe from off thy foot; for the place whereon thou standest is holy," ver. 13—15.

And most signally did He fight for Israel: 1st, In the miraculous downfall of the walls of Jericho, chap. vi. 20. 2dly, In destroying the confederated southern nations with hailstones in their flight, chap. x. 11. 3dly, In prolonging the day of battle to an unusual length, at Joshua's petition, by making the sun and moon stand still about a whole day, chap. x. 12—27. And 4thly, By driving out some of the northern nations by the hornet or gad-fly, chap. xxiv. 12, as foretold by Moses, Exod. xxiii. 28; Deut. vii. 20. Dr. Hales.

Chap. VI. ver. 2. And the Lord said] This seems to be the same Divine Person who is called in the foregoing chapter, the captain of the Lord's host, and is here called the Lord or Jehovah; (Bp. Patrick;) at the same place of interview; (Pyle;) while Joshua was standing barefoot. Dr. Wells.

3. And ye shall compass &c.] Instead of a formal siege they are commanded to use only some particular circumstances and forms, which might shew the more plainly the subversion of that idolatrous place to be from the miraculous hand of God. Pyle. We must suppose that the people of Jericho had previously refused offers of peace, which God had directed to be made by the Israelites to their enemies, Deut. xx. 10. Bp. Patrick.

4. — trumpets of rams' horns:] The inside of the ram's horn is by no means hard, and may easily be taken out, except about four or five inches at the point, which was to be sawed off, in order to proportion the aperture to the mouth; after which the rest is easily pierced. Trumpets thus made are used by the shepherds in the south of Germany. Universal History.

5. — shall fall—flat,] Or fall under it, as it is in the Hebrew; which seems to signify, that the foundations of the wall were subverted, so that it sunk and fell into the ditch. The whole wall did not fall, as afterwards appears, ver. 22; for Rahab's house stood, which was upon the wall; but such wide breaches were made every where round about, that the Israelites went straight forward, and found an easy entrance into the city. Bp. Patrick.

9. — the rereward came after] That is, such of the people as attended unarmed; old men, women, and children, who came in the rear of the ark. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

† Heb. make your voice to be heard.

10 And Joshua had commanded the people, saying, Ye shall not shout, nor † make any noise with your voice, neither shall any word proceed out of your mouth, until the day I bid you shout; then shall ye shout.

11 So the ark of the LORD compassed the city, going about it once: and they came into the camp, and lodged in the camp.

12 ¶ And Joshua rose early in the morning, and the priests took up the ark of the LORD.

13 And seven priests bearing seven trumpets of rams' horns before the ark of the LORD went on continually, and blew with the trumpets: and the armed men went before them; but the rereward came after the ark of the LORD, the priests going on, and blowing with the trumpets.

14 And the second day they compassed the city once, and returned into the camp: so they did six days.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they rose early about the dawning of the day, and compassed the city after the same manner seven times: only on that day they compassed the city seven times.

16 And it came to pass at the seventh time, when the priests blew with the trumpets, Joshua said unto the people, Shout; for the LORD hath given you the city.

¶ Or,
devoted.

17 ¶ And the city shall be ¶ accursed, even it, and all that are therein, to the LORD: only Rahab the harlot shall live, she and all that are with her in the house, because ^a she hid the messengers that we sent.

^a Chap. 2. 4.

18 And ye, in any wise keep yourselves from the accursed thing, lest ye make yourselves accursed, when ye take of the accursed thing, and make the camp of Israel a curse, and trouble it.

17.—the city shall be accursed.] Shall be devoted to perpetual destruction. Dr. Wells. This word cherem, (which we translate accursed;) signifies sometimes the gift itself which is devoted to God for His uses, Levit. xxvii. 28; sometimes that which is devoted to perpetual destruction, by the right which God has to punish capital enmities to Him, as here in this place. Bp. Patrick. The city shall be devoted to an absolute destruction, and all the living creatures that are in it; and sequestered to a revenge and extirpation from the Lord. Bp. Hall.

18. And ye, in any wise keep yourselves &c.] Take heed lest you meddle with any of the spoils which are devoted to God, and appropriate them to your own use, lest you bring yourselves under the same sentence of being devoted to destruction, and, more than that, lest ye expose the camp to the same danger. Bp. Patrick.

20.—the wall fell down] This stupendous miracle, at the 19 But all the silver, and gold, and vessels of brass and iron, are † consecrated unto the LORD: they shall come into the treasury of the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb.
holiness.

20 So the people shouted when the priests blew with the trumpets: and it came to pass, when the people heard the sound of the trumpet, and the people shouted with a great shout, that ^b the wall fell down † flat, so that the people went up into the city, every man straight before him, and they took the city.

^b Hebr. 11.

30.

† Heb.

under it.

21 And they utterly destroyed all that was in the city, both man and woman, young and old, and ox, and sheep, and ass, with the edge of the sword.

22 But Joshua had said unto the two men that had spied out the country, Go into the harlot's house, and bring out thence the woman, and all that she hath, ^c as ye sware unto her.

^c Chap. 2.

14.

Hebr. 11.

31.

23 And the young men that were spies went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father, and her mother, and her brethren, and all that she had; and they brought out all her † kindred, and left them without the camp of Israel.

† Heb.
families.

24 And they burnt the city with fire, and all that was therein: only the silver, and the gold, and the vessels of brass and of iron, they put into the treasury of the house of the LORD.

25 And Joshua saved Rahab the harlot alive, and her father's household, and all that she had; and she dwelleth in Israel even unto this day; because she hid the messengers, which Joshua sent to spy out Jericho.

26 ¶ And Joshua adjured them at that time, saying, ^d Cursed be the man before the LORD, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: he shall lay the foundation thereof in his firstborn, and in his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it.

^d 1 Kings
16. 34.

beginning of the war, was well calculated to terrify the devoted nations, and to encourage the Israelites, by shewing that the loftiest walls and the strongest barriers afforded no protection against the Almighty God of Israel. Dr. Hales.

23.—left them without the camp] It was not lawful to bring them into the camp, as it was rendered holy by the special presence or ark of the Lord, till they had abjured their heathenism and idolatry, and been admitted into the body of the Israelites. Dr. Wells.

26.—Joshua adjured them] He made all the people bind themselves by a solemn oath, adding thereto this curse on themselves, and their posterity, if any of them broke the oath. Dr. Wells.

—he shall lay the foundation thereof in his firstborn,] He shall lose his firstborn on beginning the work. In the progress of it, the rest of his children shall die; and when he has finished it, (which is, when he has "set up the gates,") he shall lose the 1451.

Before
CHRIST

27 So the LORD was with Joshua; and his fame was noised throughout all the country.

CHAP. VII.

1 The Israelites are smitten at Ai. 6 Joshua's complaint. 10 God instructeth him what to do. 16 Achan is taken by the lot. 19 His confession. 22 He and all he had are destroyed in the valley of Achor.

BUT the children of Israel committed a trespass in the accursed thing: for Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took of the accursed thing: and the anger of the LORD was kindled against the children of Israel.

2 And Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is beside Beth-aven, on the east side of Beth-el, and spake unto them, saying, Go up and view the country. And the men went up and viewed Ai.

3 And they returned to Joshua, and said unto him, Let not all the people go up; but let † about two or three thousand men

† Chap. 22.
20.
1 Chron. 2.
7.

† Heb.
about 2000
men, or,
about 3000
men.

last of them. This was punctually fulfilled in the reign of Ahab, upon Hiel, who ventured to rebuild it, 1 Kings xvi. 34. Bp. Patrick. This remarkable prophecy, concerning the fate of those who should rebuild Jericho, was fulfilled near 600 years after the time of its delivery. The prophecy and its completion are so plain in sacred history, that it is merely necessary to compare the words of Scripture here and at 1 Kings xvi. 34, to perceive its full force. Whiston. This curse was pronounced on the builder of Jericho, not on those who might inhabit it after it was built: for in aftertimes it was inhabited without scruple. Indeed this place was afterwards famous on many accounts. Here the Prophet sweetened the waters of the spring that supplied it and the neighbouring countries; here Herod built a sumptuous palace: this was the dwelling-place of Zaccheus, and was honoured with the presence of Christ, who vouchsafed to work some miracles here. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

The time will come, when every power of the world shall fall before the true Jesus, represented in the person of Joshua, whose name is also called Jesus in the Epistle to the Hebrews. As the wicked Canaanites were driven out of their land, when the measure of their iniquities was filled up; so shall the wicked be driven out of the earth, when that vengeance of God shall overtake them, which they have so long held in contempt and derision. The world itself shall be surrounded by the Son of God, as "the Captain of our salvation," and the army of saints and angels, which shall attend upon Him at His coming. The "last trumpet" shall sound, and the world shall be overthrown, as Jericho fell flat, when it had been compassed about seven days by the priests and ministers of God. When the priests blew, as they were commanded, at the time appointed, and all "the people shouted with a great shout," the fortifications of that proud city sunk at once into a heap of ruins. With reference to which history, we are reminded, that "the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God," 1 Thess. iv. 16. Jones of Nayland.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. But the children of Israel] That is, one among them committed a trespass: it is not an unusual form of speech in the Holy Scriptures, to ascribe that to many indefinitely, wherein one alone is concerned. "Took of the accursed thing:" that is, Achan purloined to his own use some of the spoils which were devoted to destruction, or appropriated to God's treasury.

go up and smite Ai; and make not all the people to labour thither; for they are but few.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

4 So there went up thither of the people about three thousand men: and they fled before the men of Ai.

5 And the men of Ai smote of them about thirty and six men: for they chased them from before the gate even unto Shebarim, and smote them || in the going down: wherefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water. || Or, in Morad.

6 ¶ And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the LORD until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads.

7 And Joshua said, Alas, O Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan, to deliver us into the hand of the Amorites, to destroy us? would to God we had been content, and dwelt on the other side Jordan!

Bp. Patrick. The Greek translation renders "took of the accursed thing," by words which signify "purloined the accursed thing," or "the thing that was consecrated to God," as was all the silver and gold, chap. vi. 19; and, when God relates to Joshua the sin of Israel, as the reason of their flying before their enemies, He represents Achan's crime as sacrilege, combined with theft and dissembling. Jos. Mede.

2. — from Jericho to Ai,] The distance from Jericho to Ai was three leagues, according to Masius. Dr. Wells.

5. — smote them in the going down:] In the descent from the hill on which Ai stood, to the plains of Jericho. Dr. Wells.

6. And Joshua rent his clothes, &c.] The behaviour of the people here is very remarkable. Ai could not muster much above 6,000 men; against whom were to be opposed all the myriads of Israel. But an advanced body was defeated, and thirty-six of the Israelites slain: upon which it is said, "the hearts of the people melted, and became as water. And Joshua rent his clothes, and fell to the earth upon his face before the ark of the Lord until the eventide, he and the elders of Israel, and put dust upon their heads." But wherefore was all this humiliation shewn? and why this general consternation at so inconsiderable a loss? This was the people, who were led on with a prospect of gaining the land of the Hivites and Amorites, and other powerful nations; and who were to be opposed to the sons of Anak, men of great stature and prowess, that had cities walled to heaven. We see that they faint at the first check. How could any leader, with such people and under such circumstances, entertain the least views of conquest? There were certainly none entertained by their leader, either from himself, or from his people. All his confidence was in the God of his fathers; and the whole history must be set aside, unless the interposition of the Deity be admitted. All the operations, which at first sight may appear strange, are calculated for this purpose, to shew throughout that God was the chief agent. This was particularly effected in the downfall of the city of Jericho, which was brought about merely by the priests of God, and the people going in procession round it for seven days, without the least military operation of the army. By these two events, they were shewn plainly the great object to which they were to trust; not to the prowess of man, but to the living God. Bryant.

7. — wherefore hast thou] This is not a sinful expostulation with God, but only a confession of his ignorance why these events

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb. neck.

† Heb.
falsest.

8 O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their † backs before their enemies!

9 For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our name from the earth: and what wilt thou do unto thy great name?

10 ¶ And the Lord said unto Joshua, Get thee up; wherefore † liest thou thus upon thy face?

11 Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them: for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff.

12 Therefore the children of Israel could not stand before their enemies, but turned their backs before their enemies, because they were accursed: neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you.

13 Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against to morrow: for thus saith the Lord God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel: thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you.

14 In the morning therefore ye shall be brought according to your tribes: and it shall be, that the tribe which the Lord taketh shall come according to the families thereof; and the family which the Lord shall take shall come by households; and the household which the Lord shall take shall come man by man.

15 And it shall be, that he that is taken with the accursed thing shall be burnt with fire, he and all that he hath: because he hath transgressed the covenant of the Lord, and because he hath wrought || folly ^{Before CHRIST 1451.} || Or, ^{wickedness.}

16 ¶ So Joshua rose up early in the morning, and brought Israel by their tribes; and the tribe of Judah was taken:

17 And he brought the family of Judah; and he took the family of the Zarahites: and he brought the family of the Zarahites man by man; and Zabdi was taken:

18 And he brought his household man by man; and Achan, the son of Carmi, the son of Zabdi, the son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was taken.

19 And Joshua said unto Achan, My son, give, I pray thee, glory to the Lord God of Israel, and make confession unto him; and tell me now what thou hast done; hide it not from me.

20 And Achan answered Joshua, and said, Indeed I have sinned against the Lord God of Israel, and thus and thus have I done:

21 When I saw among the spoils a goodly Babylonish garment, and two hundred shekels of silver, and a † wedge of gold of fifty shekels weight, then I coveted them, and took them; and, behold, they are hid in the earth in the midst of my tent, and the silver under it. ^{† Heb. tongue.}

22 ¶ So Joshua sent messengers, and they ran unto the tent; and, behold, it was hid in his tent, and the silver under it.

23 And they took them out of the midst of the tent, and brought them unto Joshua, and unto all the children of Israel, and † laid them out before the Lord. ^{† Heb. poured.}

24 And Joshua, and all Israel with him, were permitted. "Would to God," he adds, "we had been content." As far as he could apprehend, they had better have rested satisfied with what they had in possession, than be thus defeated in the attempt to acquire more. Bp. Patrick.

9. — what wilt thou do unto thy great name?] He feared that God would suffer the glory of all His miracles to be lost, and he thought unable to accomplish what He had begun to do to His people. Bp. Patrick. If those who had experienced so many miracles of God's mercies, and were the peculiar people whom He vouchsafed to love, should be driven back by a nation which knew not, or cared not for, His name and religion, Joshua could not see how God's own honour could be preserved. From such jealousy and apprehensions proceed all the passion and impatience which good and pious men express in great calamities. For this will always be a prevailing mode of reasoning, as it was in the days of Joshua. There will always be too many who will question God's providence from what He suffers His children to undergo. Lord Clarendon.

14. — the tribe which the Lord taketh] It is probable that this was done by lot, though it is not expressly so stated. The Jews affirm, that all the tribes were made to pass before the ark, and that the culpable tribe remained immovable: but the casting of lots is frequently mentioned in Scripture on similar occasions, as in the election of Saul, 1 Sam. x. 20; and in the affair of Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 41; also in the distribution of the lands of Canaan. Calmet.

19. — give — glory to the Lord God] By acknowledging that nothing can be hid from Him who knoweth the greatest secrets. Bp. Patrick. As thou hast offended and dishonoured God by thy sin, so now give honour to His omniscience and justice, who hath found thee out in thy sin, by acknowledging this heinous offence, whereby thou hast provoked God's anger against His people. Bp. Hall.

We give glory to God, not only when we promote His honour, and acknowledge His supreme dominion, but also, when we confess to Him our past sins, with true humiliation, and a just sense of the unworthiness and ungratefulness of sin. Thus in the words of Joshua to Achan; the sense of which is, "Acknowledge that nothing can be hid from God's all-seeing eye, and that to Him there is no secret nor shadow of darkness, where the workers of iniquity may hide themselves." Dr. S. Clarke.

21. — a goodly Babylonish garment] There was anciently a city called Arech, situated in Babylonia on the Tigris, and famous for weaving; here perhaps this garment was made. Fragm. to Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

took Achan the son of Zerah, and the silver, and the garment, and the wedge of gold, and his sons, and his daughters, and his oxen, and his asses, and his sheep, and his tent, and all that he had: and they brought them unto the valley of Achor.

25 And Joshua said, Why hast thou troubled us? the LORD shall trouble thee this day. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burned them with fire, after they had stoned them with stones.

26 And they raised over him a great heap of stones unto this day. So the LORD turned from the fierceness of his anger. Wherefore the name of that place was called, The valley of || Achor, unto this day.

|| That is,
trouble.

CHAP. VIII.

1 God encourageth Joshua. 3 The stratagem whereby Ai was taken. 29 The king thereof is hanged. 30 Joshua buildeth an altar, 32 writeth the law on stones, 33 propoundeth blessings and cursings.

^a Deut. 1.
21. & 7. 18.

AND the LORD said unto Joshua, ^a Fear not, neither be thou dismayed: take all the people of war with thee, and arise, go up to Ai: see, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai, and his people, and his city, and his land:

2 And thou shalt do to Ai and her king as thou didst unto ^b Jericho and her king: only the spoil thereof, and ^c the cattle thereof, shall ye take for a prey unto yourselves: lay thee an ambush for the city behind it.

Before
CHRIST
1451.
^b Chap. 6.
21.
^c Deut. 20.
14.

3 ¶ So Joshua arose, and all the people of war, to go up against Ai: and Joshua chose out thirty thousand mighty men of valour, and sent them away by night.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Behold, ye shall lie in wait against the city, even behind the city: go not very far from the city, but be ye all ready:

5 And I, and all the people that are with me, will approach unto the city: and it shall come to pass, when they come out against us, as at the first, that we will flee before them,

6 (For they will come out after us) till we have [†] drawn them from the city; for they will say, They flee before us, as at the first: therefore we will flee before them. [†] Heb. pulled.

7 Then ye shall rise up from the ambush, and seize upon the city: for the LORD your God will deliver it into your hand.

8 And it shall be, when ye have taken the city, that ye shall set the city on fire: according to the commandment of the

24. — his sons, and his daughters,] These were punished, because, perhaps, they were privy to their father's stealth, and concealed it. But some think Achan alone was stoned, (as we read in the next verse, "all Israel stoned him with stones,") and that his children were brought forth to be spectators of it; and when it is said, in the conclusion of the next verse, "they stoned them with stones," it relates to his oxen, asses, and sheep, which were stoned with him. Bp. Patrick. The actor alone does not smart with sacrilege; all that concerns him is unwrapped in judgment. Those that defile their hands with holy things, are enemies to their own flesh and blood. God's first revenges are so much the more fearful, because they must be exemplary. Bp. Hall.

25. — troubled] Joshua, by the Hebrew word Achar, which signifies "to trouble," alludes to the name of Achan: from henceforward they called him Achar, the troubler of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

Joshua, that true captain and faithful judge, made petition in his anguish and distress to Almighty God to shew him the cause of His wrath towards him, when his army was smitten and plagued. He obtained his prayer, and learnt that for one man's fault all the rest were punished. For the covetousness of Achan, who hid his money, as he thought, from God, many thousands were in agony, and fear of death. As soon as Joshua knew it, he straightway purged his army, and took away "the evil thing out of Israel," that is, wickedness from the people. For he called Achan before the people, and said, "Give glory to God, and make confession unto Him;" and forthwith he told the truth, and then he and his whole house suffered death. A godly ensample this, for all magistrates to follow. Joshua was the pattern of a true judge; he was no gift-taker; he was no winker; he was no by-walker. Bp. Latimer. The history of the foregoing chapter furnishes us with several useful reflections. 1st, In Achan, who, contrary to the most express prohibition, took of the accursed or devoted thing, we have an instance of the fatal effects of the love of riches, and a proof that nothing is sacred to those who are slaves to this passion. 2dly, The defeat of the children of Israel before Ai, occasioned by Achan's sacrilege, proves that the sin of one man may bring down the curse of God upon the publick, and that injustice and sacrilege deprive men of the Divine protection. 3dly, The wonderful manner of discovering Achan by lot must needs have filled the people with dread, and proves that no sin can escape the knowledge and the vengeance of the Almighty. 4thly, The tragical end of Achan shews that ill gotten wealth is never long possessed, and that a curse attends the sacrilegious and unjust. 5thly, This instance of severity must be considered as necessary to teach the children of Israel, that, if they did not reverence the laws of God, they would be severely punished; and to inspire them with reverential fear at a time when they were likely to be exposed to great temptations by their victories. Ostervald.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. — only the spoil thereof,] Only with this difference, that, whereas they were not to meddle with any of the spoil of Jericho, for their own use, in this instance they were permitted to take it for a prey unto themselves. Pyle.

— behind it.] On the west of it; for they were now in Gilgal, which lay eastward. Bp. Patrick.

3. — thirty thousand mighty men] Some think that thirty thousand men were all that were employed in this expedition, and that the five thousand men (ver. 12) formed the whole of those placed in ambush; according to which they understand in this verse, that he "sent away by night," not the whole thirty thousand, but a part of them; namely, the five thousand for the ambush; and in the 1st verse, by "all the men," they understand the choicest and most valiant of them. Others consider the thirty thousand men to have been sent to lie in ambush, and the five thousand mentioned at ver. 12, to be a distinct party sent out for another purpose. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells, Pyle.

8. — set the city on fire:] Set on fire some parts of the city,

Before
CHRIST
1451.

LORD shall ye do. See, I have commanded you.

9 ¶ Joshua therefore sent them forth: and they went to lie in ambush, and abode between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side of Ai: but Joshua lodged that night among the people.

10 And Joshua rose up early in the morning, and numbered the people, and went up, he and the elders of Israel, before the people to Ai.

11 And all the people, even the people of war that were with him, went up, and drew nigh, and came before the city, and pitched on the north side of Ai: now there was a valley between them and Ai.

¶ Or.
of Ai.

12 And he took about five thousand men, and set them to lie in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, on the west side ¶ of the city.

† Heb. their lying in wait.

13 And when they had set the people, even all the host that was on the north of the city, and † their liers in wait on the west of the city, Joshua went that night into the midst of the valley.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, when the king of Ai saw it, that they hastened and rose up early, and the men of the city went out against Israel to battle, he and all his people, at a time appointed, before the plain; but he wist not that there were liers in ambush against him behind the city.

15 And Joshua and all Israel made as if they were beaten before them, and fled by the way of the wilderness.

16 And all the people that were in Ai were called together to pursue after them: and they pursued after Joshua, and were drawn away from the city.

17 And there was not a man left in Ai or Beth-el, that went not out after Israel: and they left the city open, and pursued after Israel.

18 And the LORD said unto Joshua, Stretch out the spear that is in thy hand toward Ai; for I will give it into thine hand. And Joshua stretched out the spear that he had in his hand toward the city.

as a token they were possessed of it. For they were to take the spoil of the city before they burnt it, ver. 28. Bp. Patrick.

13. — went that night into the midst of the valley.] He went apart, it is probable, to pray to God for a blessing on his enterprise. In the next verse, "when the king of Ai saw it," means, "when he was informed that the city was invested on the north side." Bp. Patrick.

18. — stretched out the spear] Joshua hoisted up a spear, (most probably with a flag upon the top of it, so as to be visible at a distance,) as the signal for the ambuscade to enter the town;

19 And the ambush arose quickly out of their place, and they ran as soon as he had stretched out his hand: and they entered into the city, and took it, and hastened and set the city on fire.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

20 And when the men of Ai looked behind them, they saw, and, behold, the smoke of the city ascended up to heaven, and they had no † power to flee this way or that way: and the people that fled to the wilderness turned back upon the pursuers.

† Heb.
hand.

21 And when Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the city, and that the smoke of the city ascended, then they turned again, and slew the men of Ai.

22 And the other issued out of the city against them; so they were in the midst of Israel, some on this side, and some on that side: and they smote them, so that they ^d let none of them remain or escape. ^d Deut. 7. 2.

23 And the king of Ai they took alive, and brought him to Joshua.

24 And it came to pass, when Israel had made an end of slaying all the inhabitants of Ai in the field, in the wilderness wherein they chased them, and when they were all fallen on the edge of the sword, until they were consumed, that all the Israelites returned unto Ai, and smote it with the edge of the sword.

25 And so it was, that all that fell that day, both of men and women, were twelve thousand, even all the men of Ai.

26 For Joshua drew not his hand back, wherewith he stretched out the spear, until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

27 ^e Only the cattle and the spoil of that city Israel took for a prey unto themselves, according unto the word of the LORD which he ^f commanded Joshua. ^e Numb. 31. 22, 26. ^f Verse 2.

28 And Joshua burnt Ai, and made it an heap for ever, even a desolation unto this day.

29 And the king of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide: and as soon as the sun

God giving direction as to the very point of time when to put it in execution. Pyle.

25. — were twelve thousand.] The men of Beth-el seem to be included in this number, agreeably to the report of the spies, chap. vii. 3. The folly of these people in attempting with so small a number to oppose the Israelites, is hence more apparent: the Deity in His wisdom commanded that the Israelites should subdue them, not by force, but by stratagem, in order to make them ascribe the glory to Him to whom it was due, and not to themselves. Masius.

29. — the king of Ai he hanged &c.] Being the head of a

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^s Chap. 7.
25.

was down, Joshua commanded that they should take his carcase down from the tree, and cast it at the entering of the gate of the city, and ^s raise thereon a great heap of stones, that remaineth unto this day.

30 ¶ Then Joshua built an altar unto the LORD God of Israel in mount Ebal, 31 As Moses the servant of the LORD commanded the children of Israel, as it is written in the ^h book of the law of Moses, an altar of whole stones, over which no man hath lift up any iron: and they offered thereon burnt offerings unto the LORD, and sacrificed peace offerings.

32 ¶ And he wrote there upon the stones a copy of the law of Moses, which he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

33 And all Israel, and their elders, and officers, and their judges, stood on this side the ark and on that side before the priests the Levites, which bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD, as well the stranger, as he that was born among them; half of them over against mount Gerizim, and half of them over against mount Ebal; ⁱ as Moses the servant of the LORD had commanded before, that they should bless the people of Israel.

34 And afterward he read all the words of the law, the blessings and cursings, according to all that is written in the book of the law.

35 There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, which Joshua read not before all the congregation of Israel, ^k with the women, and the little ones, and the strangers that [†] were conversant among them.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^k Deut. 31.
12.

[†] Heb. walked.

CHAP. IX.

1 The kings combine against Israel. 3 The Gibeonites by craft obtain a league. 16 For which they are condemned to perpetual bondage.

AND it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coasts of the great sea over against Lebanon, the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite, heard thereof;

2 That they gathered themselves together, to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one [†] accord.

3 ¶ And when the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done unto Jericho and to Ai,

4 They did work wilily, and went and made as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles, old, and rent, and bound up;

5 And old shoes and clouted upon their

[†] Heb.
mouth.

very wicked people, he was fit to be made a publick spectacle of God's displeasure. Bp. Patrick.

30. Then Joshua built an altar] As mount Ebal, on which he built this altar, was near to Shechem, and a great way distant from Ai, therefore we must suppose that what is related was not done till they possessed the country about Shechem. Bp. Patrick. After the conquests related in chapters x, xi, and all that happened in chapters xv, xvi, and xvii. Dr. Wells.

32. — wrote — upon the stones a copy of the law] He wrote the chief heads of the law upon them, with the blessings and curses. Pyle. It is doubtful whether the “copy of the Law” here mentioned means the five books of Moses, or the book of Deuteronomy only, or the Ten Commandments. Bp. Patrick.

33. — as well the stranger] “The stranger” here, and “the strangers conversant among them,” ver. 35, are proselytes to the Jewish religion, who had undertaken to observe this law, and were to be made acquainted with it. Bp. Patrick.

35. There was not a word of all that Moses commanded, &c.] Such was the solemn promulgation of the Mosaic Law, at the very commencement of the settlement of the Jews in the land of their inheritance; and in every subsequent transaction of Joshua, we find he acted according to the same Law. See chap. xi. 15; see also chap. xiv. 2; xx. 2; xxii. 1; xxiii. 6; and the whole of the 23d and 24th chapters. “The book of the Law of God,” or “of Moses,” several times spoken of, is undoubtedly the same, of which it is said, that “when Moses had made an end of writing the words of the Law in a book, until they were finished, he commanded the Levites, saying, Take this book of the Law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be a witness against you,” Deut. xxxi. 24—26: that book, which he commanded to be “read before all Israel, at the end of every seven years, in the solemnity of the year of release, in the feast of tabernacles,” ver. 10, 11. This surely was the same with that which the Jews have received from the present hour back to the Babylonish captivity; which must have preceded that event, because it is also received by the hostile Samaritans, who were planted in Judea at the commencement of the captivity; which must have preceded the division of the kingdoms of Judah and Israel, because it was acknowledged in both; which must have preceded the establishment of the kings, because it supposes no such form of government, but rather condemns it: in a word, that “book of the Law,” which every writer and every sect amongst the Jews have quoted and acknowledged, in every possible form of quotation and acknowledgment, from the present period back to the immediate successor of Moses himself, who solemnly attests its authenticity and divine original. Dr. Graves.

Chap. IX. ver. 3. — the inhabitants of Gibeon] Gibeon was a town not far from Ai, to the westward: its inhabitants were a part of the Hivite Canaanites. Pyle.

4. — made as if they had been ambassadors] They pretended they were sent on an embassy from some distant country. Bp. Patrick.

— wine bottles, old, and rent] The Arabs, and all those who lead a wandering life, still keep their water, milk, and other liquors, in leathern bottles, which are generally made of goatskins. The liquors thus keep more fresh than they would otherwise do. These nations never go a journey without a small leathern bottle of water hanging by their side like a scrip. When these bottles are old and much used, they mend them either by sewing in a piece, or by gathering up the broken place in the manner of a purse. Sir J. Chardin.

5. — old shoes and clouted] Shoes which had the appearance of being worn out by long travel, and were patched up. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy.

6 And they went to Joshua unto the camp at Gilgal, and said unto him, and to the men of Israel, We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us.

7 And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and how shall we make a league with you?

8 And they said unto Joshua, We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye? and from whence come ye?

9 And they said unto him, From a very far country thy servants are come because of the name of the LORD thy God: for we have heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt,

10 And all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroth.

11 Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take victuals † with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants: therefore now make ye a league with us.

12 This our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy:

13 And these bottles of wine, which we filled, were new; and, behold, they be rent: and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

† Heb.
in your hand.

7. — Peradventure &c.] Their first question is, whether they were not of the country of Canaan, and belonged not to any of those idolatrous princes, who had already refused terms of peace; for if they were, it was expressly against the Law of God to make any alliance, or have any dealings with them. See Exod. xxiii. 32; xxxiv. 12; Deut. vii. 2, 3, &c. with other places. Pyle.

9. — From a very far country &c.] The Gibeonites, cunningly fravoin their answer, avoid making mention of any particular country from which they come, and pretend religion for the cause of their journey, which they knew would ensure them a favourable hearing: in reciting too the wonders which the God of Israel had wrought for His people, ver. 10, they prudently conceal their knowledge of the taking of Jericho and Ai, because they would have it supposed that the tidings of these events could not have reached their distant country. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick.

14. And the men took of their victuals,] That is, they ate with them probably in token of friendship and by way of covenant. Locke.

— asked not counsel at the mouth of the Lord.] In this consisted the fault of the Israelites on this occasion, that they depended on their own judgment, and did not consult the Divine oracle, which was at hand. It is no wonder that God should suffer them to be deluded by the Gibeonites, when they had an

14 And || the men took of their victuals, and asked not counsel at the mouth of the LORD.

Before-
CHRIST
1451.

15 And Joshua made peace with them; and made a league with them, to let them live: and the princes of the congregation sware unto them.

|| Or, they received the men by reason of their victuals.

16 ¶ And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbours, and that they dwelt among them.

17 And the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon, and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim.

18 And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes.

19 But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the LORD God of Israel: now therefore we may not touch them.

20 This we will do to them; we will even let them live, lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them.

21 And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes had ^a promised ^a Ver. 15. them.

22 ¶ And Joshua called for them; and he spake unto them, saying, Wherefore have ye beguiled us, saying, We are very far from you; when ye dwell among us?

infallible Director so near to them, and yet, in a matter of such moment, as that of entering on a national treaty, never once thought of consulting Him. Stackhouse.

15. And Joshua made peace with them,] By concluding this treaty with the Gibeonites, the Israelites unadvisedly brought themselves into a great strait: they had been commanded to take away from the people of Canaan both their "place and nation," and to divide their lands and cities among their own tribes. Now they bound themselves to stop the war when they came to the cities of the Gibeonites; they thus disarmed themselves, and were not at liberty to smite or destroy this people, because of the oath they had sworn; and yet they could not perform what they had sworn without a manifest neglect and violation of what God had in the strictest manner required. Shuckford.

17. And the children of Israel journeyed,] A party of the Israelites journeyed, being sent to understand the truth. Bp. Patrick. — Gibeon, &c.] Gibeon was the capital city on which the three others were dependent.

21. — unto all the congregation;] They were not to be hewers of wood and drawers of water for every private person, but for the benefit of the whole congregation; see ver. 23; for the service of God at the tabernacle, for which they were bound to find wood and water. Bp. Patrick. See note at 1 Chron. ix. 2.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

† Heb. not be cut off from you.

Deut. 7.
1.

23 Now therefore ye are cursed, and there shall † none of you be freed from being bondmen, and hewers of wood and drawers of water for the house of my God.

24 And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how that the LORD thy God ^b commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing.

25 And now, behold, we are in thine hand: as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do.

26 And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not.

27 And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the LORD, even unto this day, in the place which he should choose.

CHAP. X.

1 Five kings war against Gibeon. 6 Joshua rescueth it. 10 God fighteth against them with hailstones. 12 The sun and moon stand still at the word of Joshua. 16 The five kings are mured in a cave. 21 They are brought forth, 24 scornfully used, 26 and hanged. 28 Seven kings more are conquered. 43 Joshua returneth to Gilgal.

NOW it came to pass, when Adonizedec king of Jerusalem had heard how Joshua had taken Ai, and had utterly destroyed it; ^a as he had done to Jericho and her king, so he had done to ^b Ai and her king; and how the inhabitants of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were among them;

2 That they feared greatly, because Gibeon was a great city, as one of the † royal cities, and because it was greater than Ai; and all the men thereof were mighty.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

3 Wherefore Adoni-zedec king of Jerusalem sent unto Hoham king of Hebron, and unto Piram king of Jarmuth, and unto Japhia king of Lachish, and unto Debir king of Eglon, saying,

4 Come up unto me, and help me, that we may smite Gibeon: for it hath made peace with Joshua and with the children of Israel.

5 Therefore the five kings of the Amorites, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, the king of Eglon, gathered themselves together, and went up, they and all their hosts, and encamped before Gibeon, and made war against it.

6 ¶ And the men of Gibeon sent unto Joshua to the camp to Gilgal, saying, Slack not thy hand from thy servants; come up to us quickly, and save us, and help us: for all the kings of the Amorites that dwell in the mountains are gathered together against us.

7 So Joshua ascended from Gilgal, he, and all the people of war with him, and all the mighty men of valour.

8 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee.

9 Joshua therefore came unto them suddenly, and went up from Gilgal all night.

10 And the LORD discomfited them before Israel, and slew them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them along the way that goeth up to Beth-horon, and smote them to Azekah, and unto Makkedah.

11 And it came to pass, as they fled from before Israel, and were in the going

23. — cursed,] Though they escaped the common doom of being cut off with the rest of the Canaanites, yet there was a curse still reserved for them; namely, a certain degree of servitude to be entailed on them and their posterity. Pyle. They were subjected to certain personal servitude: whereas, had they but acted sincerely, they might have been received upon the footing of simple tributaries. Grotius.

27. — in the place which he should choose.] In the place which the Lord should choose for His tabernacle; (Dr. Wells;) which was now at Gilgal, afterwards at Shiloh, &c. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. X. ver. 1. — king of Jerusalem] It is thought that this city retained the name of Salem, which it had in the days of Abraham, till the Israelites came into the land of Canaan; and that it was called Jerusalem by them, when they first took possession of it. Bp. Patrick. This city is called Jebus at 1 Chron. xi, 4. It is very frequently called the "Holy city," Isai. xlvi. 2; Dan. ix. 24, &c. because the Lord chose it to place there His name, His temple, and His worship, Deut. xii. 5; xiv. 23; and to be the centre of union in religion and government for all the tribes of Israel. The name "Jerusalem" signifies "they shall see peace," derived probably from the name given by Abraham to mount Calvary, after his intended sacrifice of his son. Dr. Hales. Or else the name signifies "the vision of peace," or "the possession," or "the inheritance of peace." Calmet.

2. — as one of the royal cities,] Was as a royal city, that is, was not properly a royal city, having no king, but was, notwithstanding, equal to those cities which had kings. Bp. Patrick.

5. — five kings of the Amorites,] Called "of the Amorites," because these, being the most powerful people in Canaan, gave name to the rest; perhaps had brought the rest under their power. Bp. Patrick.

10. — that goeth up to Beth-horon,] To the place afterwards called by this name; the place itself was not built till the Israelites were settled in Canaan. See 1 Chron. vii. 24.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

down to Beth-horon, that the LORD cast down great stones from heaven upon them unto Azekah, and they died: they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword.

11. — the Lord cast down great stones] Great “hailstones,” as is explained in the succeeding part of the verse. In working miracles, God usually employs natural causes and productions. He does not create any thing new for the purpose, but makes use of what was already created in a new and extraordinary manner; and therefore, though the shower of hail, and probably the wind too, which made it fall with such impetuosity, were both of them natural; yet, in sending them at this very instant of time, and directing them to fall upon the enemy only, there was manifestly the hand of God, and something supernatural. Stackhouse. Joshua fought, but God discomfited the Amorites: the praise is to the Workman, not to the instrument. Bp. Hall.

12. Then spake Joshua to the Lord] He preferred an earnest petition to God to grant what he was now about to desire for the completion of his victory. Dr. Wells.

— Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; &c.] As Joshua is said to have “gone up from Gilgal all night,” ver. 9, it is probable that the events now related took place in the morning. The sun appeared to rise over Gibeon, which lay to the east of the Israelites, and the moon to be about setting over Ajalon, which lay to the west of them, towards the Mediterranean sea. In this situation, Joshua, moved by a divine impulse, uttered this invocation in the sight of Israel; and, in consequence, the sun “hasted not to go down about a whole day,” that is, in that climate, near the vernal equinox, about 13 hours; and thus about twenty-six hours of day-light were afforded them for the destruction of their enemies, during which they took the city of Makkedah, and slew the five kings who hid themselves in a cave near it, ver. 21, &c. Dr. Hales.

This signal miracle seems to have been particularly directed against the prevailing worship of “the host of heaven;” and nothing surely could be more strikingly calculated to correct this idolatry, than to behold “the sun and the moon stand still” at the command of the general of the armies of the God of Israel, “the Lord of heaven and earth.” Bp. Tomline.

The sun and the moon were the ordinary gods of the heathen world; and who amongst them could not but think that their standing still but one hour would be the ruin of nature? But now all the heathen could well see that there is a higher than their highest; that their gods are but the servants to the God whom they themselves should adore, and whose will all nature obeys. Bp. Hall.

A miraculous perversion of the course of nature, such as this, instead of being properly brought forward as an objection, is a great argument of the almighty power of God: for, to cause the sun “not to haste to go down,” that is, to stop the diurnal course of the globe for some hours, and then again to give it the same motion, required the same infinite power, which gave this vast globe its motion at the first. Dr. Derham.

It can never be affirmed, that the miracle here recorded of the sun standing still is impossible or incredible, since it is certain and self-evident that the great Author of nature, who gave being and motion to the sun and stars, may stop that motion when and as long as He pleases, especially when their rest will contribute to His glory, (as was the case in the present instance,) as much as their continued motion does. We talk of greater and lesser miracles, when, in reality, to the almighty power of God all things are equally easy. The motion and other properties of all created beings were at first impressed by Him; and, with the same facility, He can retard or suspend their operations, for they have no power of resisting the first movement of His will. Since therefore every thing, that is contrary to the ordinary course of nature, requires the interposition of an Almighty power, and whatever is not impossible in itself, is equally possible with God;

Before
CHRIST
1451.
c Isai. 28.
21.
Ecclesiast. 46.
4.
† Heb.
be silent.

12 ¶ Then spake Joshua to the LORD in the day when the LORD delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, “Sun, † stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon.

with Him there can be no difference between stopping the waters of Jordan, and drying up the Red sea; between drawing water from the stony rock, and arresting the sun in the firmament of heaven; for “whatsoever He pleaseth, that He doeth, in heaven and in earth, in the sea and all deep places.” Stackhouse.

It should well be observed, how remarkably pertinent this miracle was to the circumstances of the persons concerned in it. The sun, moon, and lights of heaven, were the deities at that time worshipped by the inhabitants of Canaan; but the Israelites were the servants of the true God, by whose command, and under whose protection, they were to war against these nations, and against their gods; and what greater demonstration could be given of the power of their God to support them, and of the inability of the false deities of the Canaanites to assist their worshippers, than to see that the God of Israel could cause these to contribute to, instead of preventing, the ruin that was coming on those who served them? We cannot imagine that Joshua should, without a special intimation from heaven, have addressed to God the prayer concerning the sun and moon, which he is recorded to have made in the sight of all Israel, ver. 12; for of how great extravagance would he have been proved guilty, if no effect had followed from his prayer? Or how could he be so wild as to think of an accomplishment of so strange an expectation, as this would have been, had the wish for it been only the private thought of his own heart? Unquestionably, the same Lord, who spake unto him before the battle, who bade him not fear the armies of the Canaanites, who assured him that they should not be able to stand before him, directed him to ask for this wonderful miracle; and, in granting what he had asked for, gave a full testimony, both to the Israelites and their enemies, that the gods of the heathen were but idols; and that it is the Lord that made, and that ruleth in the heavens.

It is remarkable, that the terms, in which this event is recorded in the sacred writings, do not agree with what is now known concerning the motions of the heavenly bodies; for, whereas it is recorded, that the sun and moon were made to stop for a whole day, it is now sufficiently known that day and night are not caused by any motion of the sun, but by the rotation of the earth on its own axis. It should be remembered, however, that, as in those early ages men had not the slightest notion of the modern discoveries in astronomy, it was unavoidably necessary that the event should be described according to the knowledge which then obtained. If God had dictated to Joshua to record the miracle in terms suitable to the modern discoveries in astronomy, Joshua would have appeared to express it in a manner directly contrary to all rules of science then known: and his account of what had happened would have been objected to, as false in astronomy. It would have appeared rather a wild fancy, or a gross blunder of his own, than a true account of a real miracle; and so would have been received with little attention by the persons for whom it was written. Thus, when God directed Joshua to record this miracle, He did not direct him to record it in a manner more agreeable to true astronomy; because, if He had done so, unless He inspired the world at the same time with a true knowledge of astronomy, the account would rather have tended to raise amongst those who read it and heard of it, disputes and “oppositions of science falsely so called,” than have promoted the great ends of religion intended by it. Shuckford.

A confused tradition concerning this miracle of the sun standing still, and a similar one in the time of Ahaz, when the sun went back ten degrees, had been preserved amongst one of the most ancient nations, as we are informed by one of the most ancient historians. Herodotus, speaking of the Egyptian priests, says, “They told me that the sun has four times deviated from his course, having

Before
CHRIST
1451.

|| Or,
the upright.

13 And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, until the people had avenged themselves upon their enemies. Is not this written in the book of || Jasher? So the sun stood still in the midst of heaven, and hasted not to go down about a whole day.

14 And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the LORD hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the LORD fought for Israel.

15 ¶ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

16 But these five kings fled, and hid themselves in a cave at Makkedah.

17 And it was told Joshua, saying, The five kings are found hid in a cave at Makkedah.

18 And Joshua said, Roll great stones upon the mouth of the cave, and set men by it for to keep them:

19 And stay ye not, but pursue after your enemies, and † smite the hindmost of them; suffer them not to enter into their cities: for the LORD your God hath delivered them into your hand.

20 And it came to pass, when Joshua and the children of Israel had made an end of slaying them with a very great slaughter, till they were consumed, that the rest which remained of them entered into fenced cities.

21 And all the people returned to the camp to Joshua at Makkedah in peace: none moved his tongue against any of the children of Israel.

22 Then said Joshua, Open the mouth of the cave, and bring out those five kings unto me out of the cave.

23 And they did so, and brought forth those five kings unto him out of the cave, the king of Jerusalem, the king of Hebron, the king of Jarmuth, the king of Lachish, and the king of Eglon.

24 And it came to pass, when they brought out those kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the men of Israel, and said unto the captains of the men of war which went with him, Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these kings. And they came near, and put their feet upon the necks of them.

25 And Joshua said unto them, Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of good courage: for thus shall the LORD do to all your enemies against whom ye fight.

26 And afterward Joshua smote them, and slew them, and hanged them on five trees: and they were hanging upon the trees until the evening.

27 And it came to pass at the time of the going down of the sun, that Joshua commanded, and they ^d took them down off the trees, and cast them into the cave wherein they had been hid, and laid great stones in the cave's mouth, which remain until this very day.

28 ¶ And that day Joshua took Makkedah, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king thereof he utterly destroyed, them, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain: and he did to the king of Makkedah ^e as he did unto the king of Jericho.

29 Then Joshua passed from Makkedah, and all Israel with him, unto Libnah, and fought against Libnah:

Before
CHRIST
1451.

^d Deut. 21.
23.
chap. 8. 29.

^e Chap. 6.
21.

twice risen where he uniformly goes down, and twice gone down where he uniformly rises. This, however, had produced no alteration in the climate of Egypt; the fruits of the earth, and the phenomena of the Nile, had been always the same." The last part of this observation confirms the conjecture that this account of the Egyptian priests had a reference to the two miracles respecting the sun mentioned in Scripture; for they were not of that kind which could introduce any change in climates or seasons. I think it idle, if not impious, to undertake to explain how the miracle was performed; but one who is not able to explain the mode of doing a thing, argues ill if he thence infers that the thing was not done. The machine of the universe is in the hand of God: He can stop the motion of any part, or of the whole, with less trouble, and less danger of injuring it, than any of us can stop a watch. Bp. Watson.

13. — written in the book of Jasher? Respecting the book of Jasher, which name means "the book of upright or righteous men," the opinions of the learned are much divided. We find mention of it no where else except at 2 Sam. i. 18; and there, on account of a song made by king David, which he caused to be recorded in this book. It probably contained an account of the lives, and some particular adventures of eminent Jewish worthies, and of all remarkable things which befell the nation. Some have supposed it to be a collection of verses, which the Israelites were used to learn by heart, the better to remember the miracles which God had been pleased to work in their favour. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

15. And Joshua returned. — unto the camp to Gilgal. Joshua did not return to Gilgal till the completion of the whole expedition, ver. 43: the meaning probably is, that he was about to return, when he heard of the five kings, and of several others of the enemy remaining. Bp. Patrick.

16. — hid themselves in a cave Caves, dug in the rocks, are very common in those countries: they are places of retreat, and forts, whither the people retire at the time of war and invasion. Reland.

21. And all the people returned — in peace: Returned without meeting any enemy to attack them. Dr. Wells. "None moved his tongue against any of them;" an expression of the completeness of their victory, and of the great tranquillity in which they were. Bp. Patrick.

24. — put your feet upon the necks of these kings. Joshua gave this command, not from insolence and pride, but in token of the complete fulfilment of the Divine promise, in bringing these kings and their countries under absolute subjection to the Israelites. Bp. Patrick.

29. — Makkedah, — Libnah. — For the situation of these and

Before
CHRIST
1451.

30 And the LORD delivered it also, and the king thereof, into the hand of Israel; and he smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein; he let none remain in it; but did unto the king thereof as he did unto the king of Jericho.

31 ¶ And Joshua passed from Libnah, and all Israel with him, unto Lachish, and encamped against it, and fought against it:

32 And the LORD delivered Lachish into the hand of Israel, which took it on the second day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein, according to all that he had done to Libnah.

33 ¶ Then Horem king of Gezer came up to help Lachish; and Joshua smote him and his people, until he had left him none remaining.

34 ¶ And from Lachish Joshua passed unto Eglon, and all Israel with him; and they encamped against it, and fought against it:

35 And they took it on that day, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and all the souls that were therein he utterly destroyed that day, according to all that he had done to Lachish.

36 And Joshua went up from Eglon, and all Israel with him, unto Hebron; and they fought against it:

37 And they took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and the king there-other places, the reader is referred to the map of Canaan, illustrating the books of Joshua and Judges.

37. — the king thereof,] The king of Hebron had been before mentioned as one of the five whom Joshua recently slew; it appears that the inhabitants had now set up a new king: Hebron was a place of note, as we read in this verse of "the cities thereof," that is, of other cities dependent on it. Bp. Patrick.

40. — the country of the hills, and of the south,] The country of the hills even of the south; that is, the hill country lying in the south part of Canaan. "The country of the vale and of the springs," that is, the vale country adjoining, abounding more with springs. Dr. Wells.

— utterly destroyed all that breathed,] This must be restrained to mankind, for they kept the cattle for a prey unto themselves. It is here expressly added, that they did this "as the Lord God of Israel commanded;" this being a complete justification of the Israelites from all imputation of cruelty or severity; in fact, they only executed a Divine sentence against the Canaanites for their abominable wickedness, with which they themselves were in danger of being infected. Bp. Patrick. God Himself being, all this time, the Supreme Director and Author of Joshua's success, by whose special command he executed these severities against idolatrous nations, now by an incurable degree of wickedness become ripe for exemplary destruction. Pyle.

If it be maintained, that it is contrary to God's moral justice to doom to destruction the crying or smiling infants of the Canaanites; why do we not maintain it to be equally contrary to His moral justice, that He should suffer crying or smiling infants to be swallowed up by an earthquake, drowned by an of, and all the cities thereof, and all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining, according to all that he had done to Eglon; but destroyed it utterly, and all the souls that were therein.

38 ¶ And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to Debir; and fought against it:

39 And he took it, and the king thereof, and all the cities thereof; and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and utterly destroyed all the souls that were therein; he left none remaining: as he had done to Hebron, so he did to Debir, and to the king thereof; as he had done also to Libnah, and to her king.

40 ¶ So Joshua smote all the country of the hills, and of the south, and of the vale, and of the springs, and all their kings: he left none remaining, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the LORD God of Israel ^f commanded.

^f Deut. 20.
16, 17.

41 And Joshua smote them from Kadesh-barnea even unto Gaza, and all the country of Goshen, even unto Gibeon.

42 And all these kings and their land did Joshua take at one time, because the LORD God of Israel fought for Israel.

43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, unto the camp to Gilgal.

CHAP. XI.

1 Divers kings overcome at the waters of Merom. 10 Hazor is taken and burnt. 16 All the country taken by Joshua. 21 The Anakims cut off.

inundation, consumed by a fire, starved by famine, or destroyed by a pestilence. Perhaps it may be replied, that the evils which the Canaanites suffered from the express command of God were different from those which are brought on mankind by the operation of the laws of nature. Different in what? Not in the magnitude of the evil, not in the subjects of sufferance, not in the Author of it: for my philosophy at least instructs me to believe that God not only primarily formed, but that He hath through all ages executed, the laws of nature; and that He will through all eternity administer them for the general happiness of His creatures, whether we can, on every occasion, discern that end, or not. Bp. Watson. See the notes on Deut. vii. 2, 24; ix. 5; xx. 16.

41. — country of Goshen,] The Goshen here mentioned was in the tribe of Judah: it was probably so called from its excellent pasture, as was also the other Goshen in Egypt.

43. And Joshua returned,] From the account of all Joshua's victories, and of his speedy conquest of the land of Canaan, we learn that, while our success on every occasion depends on the Divine assistance, it is our duty always to join our own care and endeavours to our trust and confidence in God. We are hereby convinced too of the truth of all the promises which God had made to the children of Israel by Moses, that their enemies should not stand before them, and that He would give them their country and cities to dwell in. We are hence supplied with a proof that God is ever faithful to His promises, that He is almighty in fulfilling them, and that His blessing every where accompanies those that trust in Him and obey His commands. Ostervald.

Before
CHRIST
1451.

Before
CHRIST
1450.

AND it came to pass, when Jabin king of Hazor had heard those things, that he sent to Jobab king of Madon, and to the king of Shimron, and to the king of Achshaph,

2 And to the kings that were on the north of the mountains, and of the plains south of Chinneroth, and in the valley, and in the borders of Dor on the west,

3 And to the Canaanite on the east and on the west, and to the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Jebusite in the mountains, and to the Hivite under Hermon in the land of Mizpeh.

4 And they went out, they and all their hosts with them, much people, even as the sand that is upon the sea shore in multitude, with horses and chariots very many.

5 And when all these kings were [†]met together, they came and pitched together at the waters of Merom, to fight against Israel.

6 ¶ And the LORD said unto Joshua, Be not afraid because of them: for to morrow about this time will I deliver them up all slain before Israel: thou shalt hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire.

7 So Joshua came, and all the people of war with him, against them by the waters of Merom suddenly; and they fell upon them.

8 And the LORD delivered them into the hand of Israel, who smote them, and chased them unto || great Zidon, and unto || [†]Misrephoth-maim, and unto the valley of Mizpeh eastward; and they smote them, until they left them none remaining.

9 And Joshua did unto them as the LORD bade him: he houghed their horses, and burnt their chariots with fire.

10 ¶ And Joshua at that time turned back, and took Hazor, and smote the king thereof with the sword: for Hazor before-time was the head of all those kingdoms.

11 And they smote all the souls that were therein with the edge of the sword, utterly destroying them: there was not [†]any left to breathe: and he burnt Hazor with fire.

12 And all the cities of those kings, and all the kings of them, did Joshua take, and smote them with the edge of the sword, and he utterly destroyed them, ^a as Moses the servant of the LORD commanded.

13 But as for the cities that stood still [†]in their strength, Israel burned none of them, save Hazor only; that did Joshua burn.

14 And all the spoil of these cities, and the cattle, the children of Israel took for a prey unto themselves; but every man they smote with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them, neither left they any to breathe.

15 ¶ ^bAs the LORD commanded Moses ^chis servant, so ^cdid Moses command Joshua, and so did Joshua; [†]he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moses.

16 So Joshua took all that land, the hills, and all the south country, and all the land of Goshen, and the valley, and the plain, and the mountain of Israel, and the valley of the same;

17 Even from || the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir, even unto Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon under mount Hermon: and all their kings he took, and smote them, and slew them.

18 Joshua made war a long time with all those kings.

19 There was not a city that made peace

Before
CHRIST
1450.

[†] Heb. any breath.

^a Numb.
33. 52.
Deut. 7. 2.
& 20. 16,
17.
[†] Heb. on their heap.

^b Exod. 34.
^c Deut. 7.
2.
[†] Heb. he removed nothing.

|| Or,
the smoot mountain.

[†] Heb. assembled by appointment.

|| Or, Zi-
don-rabbah.
|| Or,
salt pits.
[†] Heb. burning of waters.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — Jabin king of Hazor] Hazor, and the other cities here mentioned, were in the northern parts of Canaan.

2. — Chinneroth,] Or Gennesareth, an ancient city which stood on the sea of Chinneroth or Gennesareth, otherwise called the sea of Galilee. Dr. Wells.

4. — chariots] See the note on Exod. xiv. 7.

5. — pitched — at the waters of Merom,] These waters are generally supposed by learned men to be the lake Senechon, which lies between the head of the river Jordan, and the lake of Gennesareth. Stackhouse. These waters are not so large as the lake of Gennesareth, and the tract about them is marshy ground. Dr. Wells.

6. — thou shalt hough their horses, and burn their chariots with fire.] This is not the common practice in war; nor do princes, who want horses to mount their own troops, use to destroy those taken from the enemy, or render them useless by hamstringing them. But God had forbidden the people to have horses and chariots of war for their defence; see Dent. xvii. 16; xx. 1; not because they were thought useless in war, for it is well known that the strength of the ancient militia consisted chiefly in them, as appears in the Scripture-history, and in the oldest writers of profane story; but because He Himself had undertaken their cause, and He wanted neither horse nor foot to fight His battles. There can be no foundation for the command to Joshua to destroy the horses, but this, that it was not lawful for him to keep them for the reason here assigned. Bp. Sherlock.

8. — Zidon, — Misrephoth-maim, — Mizpeh] Zidon, a city of note, to the northwest of Canaan, on the Mediterranean sea. The word Misrephoth-maim is understood by some to denote "salt pits," by others, to signify "hot waters;" all agree in placing it near Zidon. The valley of Mizpeh must denote some valley adjoining to mount Gilead: as this lay "eastward," it appears that the defeated Canaanites in their confusion fled, some to the east, and others to the west. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

13. — the cities that stood still in their strength,] It appears that the Israelites forbore to destroy those cities, whose walls were not battered down, or which were seated on an eminence, and of greater strength; reserving them for habitations for themselves. Dr. Wells.

17. — Halak, — Baal-gad] Halak, the boundary of the country of Edom, and consequently of Joshua's conquest, southward; Baal-gad, the boundary northward. Dr. Wells.

18. Joshua made war a long time] It is computed by many,

Before
CHRIST
1450.

* Chap. 9. 3.

with the children of Israel, save ^d the Hivites the inhabitants of Gibeon: all other they took in battle.

20 For it was of the Lord to harden their hearts, that they should come against Israel in battle, that he might destroy them utterly, and that they might have no favour, but that he might destroy them, as the Lord commanded Moses.

21 ¶ And at that time came Joshua, and cut off the Anakims from the mountains, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the mountains of Judah, and from all the mountains of Israel: Joshua destroyed them utterly with their cities.

22 There was none of the Anakims left in the land of the children of Israel: only in Gaza, in Gath, and in Ashdod, there remained.

23 So Joshua took the whole land, according to all that the Lord said unto Moses; and Joshua gave it for an inheritance unto Israel ^e according to their divisions by their tribes. And the land rested from war.

* Numb.
26. 51.
1415.

CHAP. XII.

1 The two kings whose countries Moses took and disposed of. 7 The one and thirty kings on the other side Jordan which Joshua smote.

1452.

NOW these are the kings of the land, which the children of Israel smote, and possessed their land on the other side Jordan toward the rising of the sun, from the river Arnon unto mount Hermon, and all the plain on the east:

* Numb.
21. 24.
Deut. 3. 6.

2 ^a Sihon king of the Amorites, who dwelt in Heshbon, and ruled from Aroer, which is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and from the middle of the river, and from half Gilead, even unto the river Jabbok, which is the border of the children of Ammon;

3 And from the plain to the sea of Chinneroth on the east, and unto the sea of the plain, even the salt sea on the east, the way to Beth-jeshimoth; and from || the south, under || ^b Ashdod-pisgah:

Before
CHRIST
1452.

4 ¶ And the coast of Og king of Bashan, which was of ^c the remnant of the giants, that dwelt at Ashtaroth and at Edrei,

|| Or,
Teman.
|| Or,
the springs of Pisgah, or the hill.

5 And reigned in mount Hermon, and in Salcah, and in all Bashan, unto the border of the Geshurites and the Maachathites, and half Gilead, the border of Sihon king of Heshbon.

^b Deut. 3.
17. & 4. 49.
^c Deut. 3.
11.
chap. 13.
12.

6 Them did Moses the servant of the Lord and the children of Israel smite: and ^d Moses the servant of the Lord gave it for a possession unto the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh.

^d Numb.
32. 29.
Deut. 3. 12.
chap. 13. 8.

7 ¶ And these are the kings of the country which Joshua and the children of Israel smote on this side Jordan on the west, from Baal-gad in the valley of Lebanon even unto ^e the mount Halak, that goeth up to Seir; which Joshua gave unto the tribes of Israel for a possession according to their divisions;

^e Chap. 11.
17.

8 In the mountains, and in the valleys, and in the plains, and in the springs, and in the wilderness, and in the south country; the Hittites, the Amorites, and the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites:

9 ¶ ^f The king of Jericho, one; ^g the king of Ai, which is beside Beth-el, one;

1451.
^f Chap. 6. 2.
^g Chap. 8.

10 ^h The king of Jerusalem, one; the king of Hebron, one;

29.
^h Chap. 10.
23.

11 The king of Jarmuth, one; the king of Lachish, one;

12 The king of Eglon, one; ⁱ the king of Gezer, one;

ⁱ Chap. 10.
33.

13 ^k The king of Debir, one; the king of Geder, one;

^k Chap. 10.
38.

14 The king of Hormah, one; the king of Arad, one;

15 ^l The king of Libnah, one; the king of Adullam, one;

^l Chap. 10.
29.

16 ^m The king of Makkedah, one; the king of Beth-el, one;

^m Chap. 10.
28.

22. — Gaza, — Gath, — Ashdod,] Three cities of the Philistines, whose country the Israelites did not possess till the time of David.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. Now these are the kings of the land, &c.] The inspired author of this book, before he gives an account of the division of the land, thinks fit to lay down, as in a table, before the reader's eyes, the lands which had been conquered, and were now to be divided.

8. In the mountains, and in the valleys, &c.] In the former part of this verse, the country is described according to its face and general condition: in the latter part, "the Hittites, Amorites, &c." it is described according to its former inhabitants. Dr. Wells.

that Joshua spent six years in this war before he could finish it. Bp. Patrick. Josephus reckons that it lasted five years. Dr. Hales. God Himself assigns the reason at Exod. xxiii. 29, why the war was so long continued: "I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, &c." Stackhouse.

20. — it was of the Lord to harden their hearts,] God left these thoughtless and irreclaimable people to the impulse of their own passions, and the effects of those judgments which Moses had formerly pronounced upon them. Pyle.

21. — all the mountains of Judah, — of Israel:] The mountainous country which, in the distribution of lands made soon after, fell to the tribe of Judah, — and to the rest of the tribes of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

- ^{Before CHRIST 1451.} 17 The king of Tappuah, one; the king of Hephher, one;
^{Or, Sharon. Chap. 11. 10.} 18 The king of Aphek, one; the king of Lasharon, one; ^{1450.} 19 The king of Madon, one; ^a the king of Hazor, one;
 20 The king of Shimron-meron, one; the king of Achshaph, one;
 21 The king of Taanach, one; the king of Megiddo, one;
 22 The king of Kedesh, one; the king of Jokneam of Carmel, one;
^{Gen. 14. 1.} 23 The king of Dor in the coast of Dor, one; the king of the nations of Gilgal, one;
 24 The king of Tirzah, one: all the kings thirty and one.

CHAP. XIII.

- ¹ The bounds of the land not yet conquered. ⁸ The inheritance of the two tribes and half. ^{14, 33} The Lord and his sacrifices are the inheritance of Levi. ¹⁵ The bounds of the inheritance of Reuben. ²² Balaam slain. ²⁴ The bounds of the inheritance of Gad, ²⁹ and of the half tribe of Manasseh.

^{1445.} NOW Joshua was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land [†] to be possessed.

² This is the land that yet remaineth: all the borders of the Philistines, and all Geshuri,

³ From Sihor, which is before Egypt, even unto the borders of Ekron northward, which is counted to the Canaanite: five lords of the Philistines; the Gazathites, and the Ashdothites, the Eshkalonites, the Gittites, and the Ekronites; also the Avites:

23. — king of the nations of Gilgal,] This does not mean the Gilgal, where Joshua encamped when he first passed over Jordan. It is by some supposed to mean the country of Galilee. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

24. — all the kings thirty and one.] As so small a country was divided among so many kings, it is evident that, by the term "kings," we are merely to understand petty princes, or lords perhaps of some single cities, with a few dependent villages, whose inhabitants were their tenants. Bp. Patrick. See the note on Deut. xxxiii. 5.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. Now Joshua was old] To what age he was now advanced we cannot certainly know, because we do not know what his age was, when he came out of Egypt. Some think he was then forty-three; according to which he was eighty-three when they came into Canaan; and now, it may be gathered from many probable conjectures, that he wanted not much of a hundred. Since from his declining years he could not hope to conquer the "land which yet remained," he is commanded now to begin the business of dividing the land of Canaan among the several tribes. It should be always remembered, that the promise made by God of driving out the

^{Before CHRIST 1445.} 4 From the south, all the land of the Canaanites, and || Mearah that is beside the Sidonians, unto Aphek, to the borders of the Amorites: ^{Or, the cave.}

⁵ And the land of the Giblites, and all Lebanon, toward the sunrising, from Baal-gad under mount Hermon unto the entering into Hamath.

⁶ All the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon unto Misrephoth-maim, and all the Sidonians, them will I drive out from before the children of Israel: only divide thou it by lot unto the Israelites for an inheritance, as I have commanded thee.

⁷ Now therefore divide this land for an inheritance unto the nine tribes, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

⁸ With whom the Reubenites and the Gadites have received their inheritance, ^a which Moses gave them, beyond Jordan eastward, even as Moses the servant of the LORD gave them;

^a Numb. 32. 33. Deut. 3. 18. chap. 22. 4.

⁹ From Aroer, that is upon the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain of Medeba unto Dibon;

¹⁰ And all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, unto the border of the children of Ammon;

¹¹ And Gilead, and the border of the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all mount Hermon, and all Bashan unto Salcah;

¹² All the kingdom of Og in Bashan, which reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei, who remained of ^b the remnant of the giants: for these did Moses smite, and cast them out.

^b Deut. 9. 11. chap. 12. 4.

¹³ Nevertheless the children of Israel old inhabitants, ("Them will I drive out," ver. 6;) was conditional, and depended on the adherence of the Israelites to His worship and service. Accordingly, in consequence of their flagrant and repeated disobedience, they only partially deserved the fulfilment of the promise. We do not read that the Sidonians, ver. 6, were ever conquered by the Israelites, and the people of Lebanon were not made tributary till the days of David and Solomon. Bp. Patrick.

For the situation of the several tribes, and the boundaries of their different allotments, the reader is referred to the map of Canaan, illustrating the book of Joshua, &c. in which the places here mentioned are laid down with as much accuracy, as our knowledge of the geography of the Holy Land admits.

⁹ From Aroer, &c.] Joshua, having in the foregoing verses, 1—8, set down what command he had received from God, saw fit to repeat here the division of the land east of Jordan, between the tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh, in order to prevent any future disputes about the matter, and to preclude the possibility of undue claims being set up by any of the tribes to the allotments of the others, whether east or west of Jordan. Accordingly, he begins with describing the extent of the whole country beyond or east of Jordan. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1445.

expelled not the Geshurites, nor the Maachathites : but the Geshurites and the Maachathites dwell among the Israelites until this day.

14 Only unto the tribe of Levi he gave none inheritance ; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Israel made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them.

15 ¶ And Moses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reuben inheritance according to their families.

16 And their coast was from Aroer, that is on the bank of the river Arnon, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain by Medeba ;

¶ Or, the high places of Baal,
and house of Baal-meon.

17 Heshbon, and all her cities that are in the plain ; Dibon, and ¶ Bamoth-baal, and Beth-baal-meon,

18 And Jahaza, and Kedemoth, and Mephath,

19 And Kirjathaim, and Sibmah, and Zareth-shahar in the mount of the valley,

* Deut. 3.
17.

¶ Or, springs of Pisgah, or,
the hill.

20 And Beth-peor, and * ¶ Ashdodpishgah, and Beth-jeshimoth,

* Numb.
31. 8.

21 And all the cities of the plain, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, which reigned in Heshbon, whom Moses smote ^d with the princes of Midian, Evi, and Rekem, and Zur, and Hur, and Reba, which were dukes of Sihon, dwelling in the country.

¶ Or, Gimmer.

22 ¶ Balaam also the son of Beor, the ¶ soothsayer, did the children of Israel slay with the sword among them that were slain by them.

23 And the border of the children of Reuben was Jordan, and the border thereof. This was the inheritance of the children of Reuben after their families, the cities and the villages thereof.

24 And Moses gave inheritance unto the tribe of Gad, even unto the children of Gad according to their families.

25 And their coast was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the children of Ammon, unto Aroer that is before Rabbah ;

26 And from Heshbon unto Ramath-mizpeh, and Betonim ; and from Mahanaim unto the border of Debir ;

27 And in the valley, Beth-aram, and Beth-nimrah, and Succoth, and Zaphon, the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon, Jordan and his border, even unto the edge of the sea of Chinnereth on the other side Jordan eastward.

Before
CHRIST
1445.

28 This is the inheritance of the children of Gad after their families, the cities, and their villages.

29 ¶ And Moses gave inheritance unto the half tribe of Manasseh : and this was the possession of the half tribe of the children of Manasseh by their families.

30 And their coast was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the towns of Jair, which are in Bashan, threescore cities :

31 And half Gilead, and Ashtaroth, and Edrei, cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan, were pertaining unto the children of Machir the son of Manasseh, even to the one half of the ^c children of Machir by their families.

^c Numb.
32. 39.

32 These are the countries which Moses did distribute for inheritance in the plains of Moab, on the other side Jordan, by Jericho, eastward.

33 ^f But unto the tribe of Levi Moses gave not any inheritance : the LORD God of Israel was their inheritance, ^g as he said unto them.

^f Chap. 18.
7.

^g Numb.
18. 20.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The nine tribes and a half are to have their inheritance by lot. 6 Caleb by privilege obtaineth Hebron.

AND these are the countries which the children of Israel inherited in the land of Canaan, ^a which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, distributed for inheritance to them.

about 1444.

^a Numb.
34. 17.

2 ^b By lot was their inheritance, as the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses, for the nine tribes, and for the half tribe.

^b Numb.
26. 55. &
33. 54.

3 For Moses had given the inheritance of two tribes and an half tribe on the other side Jordan : but unto the Levites he gave none inheritance among them.

4 For the children of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim : therefore [Chap. XIV. ver. 1. And these are the countries] This chapter is a kind of preface to the 15th, 16th, &c. chapters ; and the countries here meant are those of which the division is detailed in them.

4. For the children of Joseph were two tribes,] The privilege of the firstborn was transferred from Reuben to Joseph, 1 Chron. v. 1, 2 ; so that a double portion was given to his descendants, as two tribes sprang from his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim. Thus there were still twelve tribes to share the land, without reckoning Levi as one. The Levites, as it follows in this verse, had no part in the land, except cities to dwell in : they had them for a habitation, not for a possession, and could not sell them, as the other tribes could their possessions. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1444.

they gave no part unto the Levites in the land, save cities to dwell in, with their suburbs for their cattle and for their substance.

^c Numb. 35. 2. chap. 21. 3. 5 ^c As the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel did, and they divided the land.

6 ¶ Then the children of Judah came unto Joshua in Gilgal: and Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite said unto him, Thou knowest the thing that the LORD said unto Moses the man of God concerning me and thee in Kadesh-barnea.

7 Forty years old was I when Moses the servant of the LORD sent me from Kadesh-barnea to espy out the land; and I brought him word again as it was in mine heart.

8 Nevertheless my brethren that went up with me made the heart of the people melt: but I wholly ^d followed the LORD my God.

9 And Moses sware on that day, saying, Surely the land whereon thy feet have trodden shall be thine inheritance, and thy children's for ever, because thou hast wholly followed the LORD my God.

10 And now, behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he said, these forty and five years, even since the LORD spake this word unto Moses, while the children of Israel [†] wandered in the wilderness: and now, lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old.

† Heb. walked.
1444.

11 ^e As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out, and to come in.

^e Eccl^{as}
46. 9.

12 Now therefore give me this mountain, whereof the LORD spake in that day; for thou heardest in that day how the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced: if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out, as the LORD said.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

13 And Joshua blessed him, and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance.

14 ^f Hebron therefore became the inheritance of Caleb the son of Jephunneh the Kenezite unto this day, because that he wholly followed the LORD God of Israel.

^f Chap. 21.
12.
1 Mas. 2.
56.

15 And ^g the name of Hebron before was Kirjath-arba; which Arba was a great man among the Anakims. And the land had rest from war.

^g Chap. 15.
18.

CHAP. XV.

1 The borders of the lot of Judah. 13 Caleb's portion and conquest. 16 Othniel, for his valour, hath Achsah, Caleb's daughter, to wife. 18 She obtaineth a blessing of her father. 21 The cities of Judah. 63 The Jebusites not conquered.

THIS then was the lot of the tribe of the children of Judah by their families; ^a even to the border of Edom the ^b wilderness of Zin southward was the uttermost part of the south coast.

^a Numb.
34. 3.
^b Numb.
33. 36.

2 And their south border was from the shore of the salt sea, from the [†] bay that looketh southward:

† Heb.
tongue.

3 And it went out to the south side to || Maaleh-acrabbim, and passed along to Zin, and ascended up on the south side unto Kadesh-barnea, and passed along to Hezron, and went up to Adar, and fetched a compass to Karkaa:

|| Or,
the going up to Acrab-bim.

6. Then the children of Judah &c.] Before the division of the land began, (perhaps before the conclusion of the war, as may be inferred from the last words of this chapter,) the claim of Caleb to a peculiar possession is preferred by some of his brethren, according to the promise made first by God Himself, Numb. xiv. 24; and repeated by Moses, Deut. i. 36. Joshua accordingly blessed him, ver. 13, that is, acknowledged his deserts, and besought God to prosper him in his undertaking; and gave him the mountain, (or mountainous country,) ver. 12, 13, of Hebron, not the city of Hebron, for that was a city allotted to the priests, Josh. xxi. 11, 13. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

10. — these forty and five years.] The children of Israel wandered in the wilderness thirty-eight years after the promise made to Moses respecting Caleb. Hence it appears, that, at the time when Caleb spoke this, seven years had passed since their first arrival in Canaan. As to the time which followed, between the complete division of the land, and the death of Joshua, it is not set down in this book, nor have we any means of making a probable conjecture. It is said indeed at Josh. xxiii. 1, that a long time after God had given rest unto Israel, Joshua waxed old; from which expression it may well be inferred, that the period should not be restrained to seven or ten years, but may rather be thought to extend to twenty, as Dupin computes. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. This then was the lot &c.] In respect to the division of the land of Canaan, it is well deserving of remark, that as Jacob and Moses, at the approach of their deaths, foretold the very soil and situation of every particular country that should fall to each tribe, so, on this distribution of the lots, it actually came to pass. To the tribe of Judah, there fell a country abounding with vines and pasture grounds, Gen. xlix. 11; to that of Asher, one plenteous in oil, iron, and brass, Deut. xxxiii. 24; to that of Naphtali, one extending from the west to the south of Judea, Deut. xxxiii. 23; to that of Benjamin, one in which the temple was afterwards built, Deut. xxxiii. 12; to that of Zebulun, a country abounding in sea ports, Gen. xlix. 13; to those of Ephraim and Manasse, countries renowned for their precious fruits, Deut. xxxiii. 14; and to those of Simeon and Levi, no particular countries at all, inasmuch as the former had a portion with Judah, and the latter was dispersed through the several tribes. Since, therefore, each particular lot answered so exactly to each prediction, we are supplied with the most indisputable proof that there 1444.

Before
CHRIST

4 From thence it passed toward Azmon, and went out unto the river of Egypt; and the goings out of that coast were at the sea: this shall be your south coast.

5 And the east border was the salt sea, even unto the end of Jordan. And their border in the north quarter was from the bay of the sea at the uttermost part of Jordan:

6 And the border went up to Beth-hogla, and passed along by the north of Beth-arabah; and the border went up to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben:

7 And the border went up toward Debir from the valley of Achor, and so northward, looking toward Gilgal, that is before the going up to Adummim, which is on the south side of the river: and the border passed toward the waters of En-shemesh, and the goings out thereof were at En-rogel:

^c 1 Kings
1. 9.

8 And the border went up by the valley of the son of Hinnom unto the south side of the Jebusite; the same is Jerusalem: and the border went up to the top of the mountain that lieth before the valley of Hinnom westward, which is at the end of the valley of the giants northward:

9 And the border was drawn from the top of the hill unto the fountain of the water of Nephtoah, and went out to the cities of mount Ephron; and the border was drawn to Baalah, which is Kirjath-jearim:

10 And the border compassed from Baalah westward unto mount Seir, and passed along unto the side of mount Jearim, which is Chesalon, on the north side, and went down to Beth-shemesh, and passed on to Timnah:

11 And the border went out unto the side of Ekron northward: and the border was drawn to Shicron, and passed along to mount Baalah, and went out unto Jabneel; and the goings out of the border were at the sea.

12 And the west border was to the great sea, and the coast thereof. This is the coast of the children of Judah round about according to their families.

was Divine inspiration in these predictions, and Divine direction in the distribution of the lots. Stackhouse.

12. — This is the coast of the children of Judah] Thus their lot was bounded on all sides, in the first draught of it: but being afterwards found too large, it was contracted into a narrower compass, that more room might be made for the tribe of Simeon, who had part of this lot given to them; and other places were taken out of it for the tribes of Benjamin and Dan, as will appear at Josh. xix. 1, 9. &c. Bp. Patrick.

18. — she lighted off her ass;) This was done in reverence to

Before
CHRIST
1444.

13 ¶ And unto Caleb the son of Je-phunneh he gave a part among the children of Judah, according to the commandment of the LORD to Joshua, even ^d || the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron.

^d Chap. 14.
15.
|| Or,
Kirjath-arba.
^e Judg. 1.
10.

14 And Caleb drove thence ^e the three sons of Anak, Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai, the children of Anak.

15 And he went up thence to the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher.

16 ¶ And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

17 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, the brother of Caleb, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

18 And it came to pass, as she came unto him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wouldest thou?

19 Who answered, Give me a blessing; for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And he gave her the upper springs, and the nether springs.

20 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Judah according to their families.

21 And the uttermost cities of the tribe of the children of Judah toward the coast of Edom southward were Kabzeel, and Eder, and Jagur,

22 And Kinah, and Dimonah, and Adadah,

23 And Kedesh, and Hazor, and Ithnan,

24 Ziph, and Telem, and Bealoth,

25 And Hazor, Hadattah, and Kerioth, and Hezron, which is Hazor, 26 Amam, and Shema, and Moladah,

27 And Hazar-gaddah, and Heshmon, and Beth-palet,

28 And Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba, and Bizjothjah,

29 Baalah, and Iim, and Azem,

30 And Eltolad, and Chesil, and Hormah, her father. The alighting of those that ride is considered in the East as an expression of deep respect. Pococke tells us, that they descend from their asses in Egypt when they come near some tombs there, and that Christians and Jews are obliged to submit to this. Harmer. Caleb's daughter asked him for "a blessing," that is, for a gift or favour: he had given, as she describes, a south land, that is, probably, a dry and mountainous land towards the south, exposed to the sun and scorching winds, and she begs for a field with some springs of water. Caleb appears to grant her more than she desired, both "the upper and nether

Before
CHRIST
1444.

31 And Ziklag, and Madmannah, and Sansannah,

32 And Lebaath, and Shilhim, and Ain, and Rimmon: all the cities are twenty and nine, with their villages:

33 And in the valley, Eshtaol, and Zo-reah, and Asmah,

34 And Zanoah, and En-gannim, Tappuah, and Enam,

35 Jarmuth, and Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah,

¶ Or, or.

36 And Sharaim, and Adithaim, and Gederah, ¶ and Gederothaim; fourteen cities with their villages:

37 Zenan, and Hadashah, and Migdalgad,

38 And Dilean, and Mizpeh, and Joktheel,

39 Lachish, and Bozkath, and Eglon,

40 And Cabbon, and Lahmam, and Kithlish,

41 And Gederoth, Beth-dagon, and Naamah, and Makkedah; sixteen cities with their villages:

42 Libnah, and Ether, and Ashan,

43 And Jiphtah, and Ashnah, and Nezib,

44 And Keilah, and Achzib, and Mare-shah; nine cities with their villages:

45 Ekron, with her towns and her villages:

† Heb.
by the place
of.

46 From Ekron even unto the sea, all that lay † near Ashdod, with their villages:

47 Ashdod with her towns and her villages, Gaza with her towns and her villages, unto the river of Egypt, and the great sea, and the border thereof:

48 ¶ And in the mountains, Shamir, and Jattir, and Socoh,

49 And Dannah, and Kirjath-sannah, which is Debir,

50 And Anab, and Eshtemoah, and Anim,

51 And Goshen, and Holon, and Giloh; eleven cities with their villages:

52 Arab, and Dumah, and Eshean,

¶ Or, Janus.

53 And ¶ Janum, and Beth-tappuah, and Aphekah,

† Chap. 14.
15.

54 And Humtah, and † Kirjath-arba, which is Hebron, and Zior; nine cities with their villages:

springs," those which were in the mountain and those which were below. Bp. Patrick.

32. — all the cities are twenty and nine,] No less than thirty-eight places have been mentioned. The difference is explained, either by supposing that twenty-nine only of the places mentioned could be called cities; or that, of the thirty-eight here mentioned as first given to Judah, nine were afterwards given to Simeon, Josh. xix. 2, 3; and so are considered in the general amount, as belonging to that tribe.

36. — fourteen cities] Fifteen have been mentioned: the two

55 Maon, Carmel, and Ziph, and Juttah,

56 And Jezreel, and Jokdeam, and Zanoah,

57 Cain, Gibeah, and Timnah; ten cities with their villages:

58 Halhul, Beth-zur, and Gedor,

59 And Maarath, and Beth-anoth, and Eltekon; six cities with their villages:

60 Kirjath-baal, which is Kirjath-jearim, and Rabbah; two cities with their villages:

61 In the wilderness, Beth-arabah, Middin, and Secacah,

62 And Nibshan, and the city of Salt, and En-gedi; six cities with their villages.

63 ¶ As for the Jebusites the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the children of Judah could not drive them out: but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Judah at Jerusalem unto this day.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The general borders of the sons of Joseph. 5 The border of the inheritance of Ephraim. 10 The Canaanites not conquered.

AND the lot of the children of Joseph † fell from Jordan by Jericho, unto the water of Jericho on the east, to the wilderness that goeth up from Jericho throughout mount Beth-el, † Heb. went forth.

2 And goeth out from Beth-el to ^a Luz, ^a Judg. 1. 26. and passeth along unto the borders of Archi to Ataroth,

3 And goeth down westward to the coast of Japhleti, unto the coast of Beth-horon the nether, and to Gezer: and the goings out thereof are at the sea.

4 So the children of Joseph, Manasseh and Ephraim, took their inheritance.

5 ¶ And the border of the children of Ephraim according to their families was thus: even the border of their inheritance on the east side was Ataroth-addar, unto Beth-horon the upper;

6 And the border went out toward the sea to Michmethah on the north side; and the border went about eastward unto Taa-last are probably names of the same place, Gederah, or Gederothaim, as the margin gives it.

63. — the Jebusites dwell] The Jebusites (descended from Jebus, the son of Canaan) possessed the town of Jerusalem till after the death of Joshua, Judg. i. 8; and the castle till the reign of David. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — the children of Joseph] That is, the whole tribe of Ephraim, and that half of the tribe of Manasseh, which had not been provided for, east of Jordan. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1414.

nath-shiloh, and passed by it on the east to Janohah;

7 And it went down from Janohah to Ataroth, and to Naarath, and came to Jericho, and went out at Jordan.

8 The border went out from Tappuah westward unto the river Kanah; and the goings out thereof were at the sea. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Ephraim by their families.

9 And the separate cities for the children of Ephraim were among the inheritance of the children of Manasseh, all the cities with their villages.

10 And they drove not out the Canaanites that dwell in Gezer: but the Canaanites dwell among the Ephraimites unto this day, and serve under tribute.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The lot of Manasseh. 8 His coast. 12 The Canaanites not driven out. 14 The children of Joseph obtain another lot.

* Gen. 41.
51. & 46.
20. & 50.
23.
Numb. 22.
39.

THERE was also a lot for the tribe of Manasseh; for he was the firstborn of Joseph; to wit, for Machir the firstborn of Manasseh, the father of Gilead: because he was a man of war, therefore he had Gilead and Bashan.

* Numb.
26. 29.

2 There was also a lot for the rest of the children of Manasseh by their families; for the children of Abiezer, and for the children of Helek, and for the children of Asriel, and for the children of Shechem, and for the children of Hepher, and for the children of Shemida: these were the male children of Manasseh the son of Joseph by their families.

* Numb.
26. 33. &
27. 1. &
36. 2.

3 ¶ But Zelophehad, the son of Hepher, the son of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh, had no sons, but daughters: and these are the names of his daughters, Mahlah, and Noah, Hoglah, Mileah, and Tirzah.

4 And they came near before Eleazar

9. And the separate cities] That is, cities which were possessed by the Ephraimites, although they lay in the portion of Manasseh; on which account they are here called separate cities. Dr. Wells.

10. And they drove not out &c.] See notes on Judg. i. The conquest of Gezer, mentioned at Judg. i. 29, seems to be repeated from this place. As it is here said that "the Canaanites serve under tribute unto this day," we are furnished with an incidental proof, if proof were wanting, that the author of this book wrote before the conquest of Gezer by the king of Egypt, to give it as a portion to his daughter the wife of Solomon, 1 Kings ix. 16. Calmet.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — for he was the firstborn of Joseph;] The Hebrew particle, translated for, may be translated though; then 1414.

Before
CHRIST

the priest, and before Joshua the son of Nun, and before the princes, saying, The Lord commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our brethren. Therefore according to the commandment of the Lord he gave them an inheritance among the brethren of their father.

5 And there fell ten portions to Manasseh, beside the land of Gilead and Bashan, which were on the other side Jordan;

6 Because the daughters of Manasseh had an inheritance among his sons: and the rest of Manasseh's sons had the land of Gilead.

7 ¶ And the coast of Manasseh was from Asher to Michmethah, that lieth before Shechem; and the border went along on the right hand unto the inhabitants of En-tappuah.

8 Now Manasseh had the land of Tappuah: but Tappuah on the border of Manasseh belonged to the children of Ephraim;

9 And the coast descended unto the river Kanah, southward of the river: these cities of Ephraim are among the cities of Manasseh: the coast of Manasseh also was on the north side of the river, and the outgoings of it were at the sea: || Or, brook of reeds.

10 Southward it was Ephraim's, and northward it was Manasseh's, and the sea is his border; and they met together in Asher on the north, and in Issachar on the east.

11 And Manasseh had in Issachar and in Asher Beth-shean and her towns, and Ibleam and her towns, and the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of En-dor and her towns, and the inhabitants of Taanach and her towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns, even three countries.

12 Yet the children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of those cities; the meaning is plain, that the lot of Manasseh came up after that of Ephraim, not before it, though he was the firstborn of Joseph, for Jacob had preferred Ephraim before him, Gen. xlviii. 19, 20. The other half of the tribe of Manasseh, the descendants of Machir, Manasseh's eldest son, had received their portion beforehand, on the eastern side of Jordan, because Machir "was a man of war." Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

5. — there fell ten portions to Manasseh,] It appears that the lot was divided into six parts, according to the six sons of Manasseh, mentioned at ver. 2; and one of these parts, that assigned to Hepher, was again divided into five parts for the five daughters mentioned at ver. 3. Thus, on the whole, there were ten portions. Dr. Wells.

12. — could not drive out the inhabitants &c.] They could not drive them out, through want of faith in God, and of zeal to per-

Before
CHRIST
1444.

but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

13 Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute; but did not utterly drive them out.

14 And the children of Joseph spake unto Joshua, saying, Why hast thou given me but one lot and one portion to inherit, seeing I am a great people, forasmuch as the LORD hath blessed me hitherto?

|| Or,
Rephaim.

15 And Joshua answered them, If thou be a great people, then get thee up to the wood country, and cut down for thyself there in the land of the Perizzites and of the ||giants, if mount Ephraim be too narrow for thee.

16 And the children of Joseph said, The hill is not enough for us: and all the Canaanites that dwell in the land of the valley have chariots of iron, both they who are of Beth-shean and her towns, and they who are of the valley of Jezreel.

17 And Joshua spake unto the house of Joseph, even to Ephraim and to Manasseh, saying, Thou art a great people, and hast great power: thou shalt not have one lot only:

18 But the mountain shall be thine; for it is a wood, and thou shalt cut it down: and the outgoings of it shall be thine: for thou shalt drive out the Canaanites, though they have iron chariots, and though they be strong.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The tabernacle is set up at Shiloh. 2 The remainder of the land is described, and divided into seven parts. 10 Joshua divideth it by lot. 11 The lot and border of Benjamin. 21 Their cities.

AND the whole congregation of the children of Israel assembled together at Shiloh, and set up the tabernacle of the congregation there. And the land was subdued before them.

2 And there remained among the children of Israel seven tribes, which had not yet received their inheritance.

3 And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, How long are ye slack to go to possess the land, which the LORD God of your fathers hath given you?

4 Give out from among you three men for each tribe. and I will send them, and they shall rise, and go through the land, and describe it according to the inheritance of them; and they shall come again to me.

5 And they shall divide it into seven parts: Judah shall abide in their coast on the south, and the house of Joseph shall abide in their coasts on the north.

6 Ye shall therefore describe the land into seven parts, and bring the description form His commands. Here the fountain of all the evils which afterwards befell the Israelites, begins to be opened, in that, either through sloth or covetousness, or distrust of God's power, they did not attempt to drive out those people that were stronger than ordinary; or, through want of faith in God, failed in the attempt. Bp. Patrick.

13.—they put the Canaanites to tribute;] Herein they grievously offended against the Divine command; see Deut. xx. 16, 17; by which they were peremptorily commanded to destroy the Canaanites when they were able. In thus putting them to tribute, they were probably influenced by motives of indolence and gain. Bp. Patrick. This early degree of sloth and worldly mindedness, afterwards displayed in other instances, Judg. i. 28, laid the foundation of all the ensuing calamities which befell the people. Pyle.

14.—Why hast thou given me but one lot &c.] The children of Joseph, that is, the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, complain to Joshua of the narrowness of their allotment, which was increased by the Canaanites still retaining so large a portion of it. Joshua, though a descendant himself of Joseph, remained perfectly impartial; and told them, they must enlarge the country by their valour, by driving out their enemies from the woody and mountainous parts, and thus making them habitable for themselves. Pyle.

It appears that the children of Joseph, consisting of a tribe and a half, and in all respects a flourishing people, had only one lot or portion assigned to them in the division; whereas, according to the rate at which the lands were assigned to the other tribes, they ought to have had one portion and a half. Shuckford.

18. But the mountain shall be thine;] Joshua consents to add "the mountain" to their portion, which, as it was settled by a Divine decree, they could not enlarge in any other way. "The outgoings" of this were to be their's, meaning probably the passages to, from, and about it, and the places bordering on it. Bp. Hall. He concludes with an assurance, that, notwithstanding the great force and numbers of the enemies who now possessed it, they should be able, with God's help, to drive them out. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1.—at Shiloh,] This place was situated in the south part of the tribe of Ephraim; according to some, it lay about two hours' journey from Jerusalem. The ark, which was now removed to this place, continued there, not only during the remainder of Joshua's life, but also during all the times of the judges of Israel, to the time of Samuel the Prophet, and just before the death of Eli the priest, as appears from 1 Sam. iv. 3, &c. Some suppose, from what is said at Deut. xii. 10, 11, that the ark was placed here by the immediate direction of God; but this seems rather to refer to Jerusalem, which is throughout Scripture mentioned, as the place where God caused "His name to dwell." The real reason of the ark being placed in the tribe of Ephraim for so long a time, was probably no other than this, that Joshua himself belonged to this tribe; and as he was, during his life, the chief administrator of the government, it was proper that the tabernacle and ark should be in the same tribe. It is further to be remarked, that, together with the tabernacle and ark, the camp of the Israelites was now removed from Gilgal to Shiloh, that is, the camp of the seven remaining tribes; for it has appeared, that two tribes and a half had already received their inheritance. Dr. Wells. The whole period, during which the tabernacle remained at Shiloh, is thought to be 350 years. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

hither to me, that I may cast lots for you here before the LORD our God.

7 But the Levites have no part among you; for the priesthood of the LORD is their inheritance: and Gad, and Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh, have received their inheritance beyond Jordan on the east, which Moses the servant of the LORD gave them.

8 ¶ And the men arose, and went away: and Joshua charged them that went to describe the land, saying, Go and walk through the land, and describe it, and come again to me, that I may here cast lots for you before the LORD in Shiloh.

9 And the men went and passed through the land, and described it by cities into seven parts in a book, and came again to Joshua to the host at Shiloh.

10 ¶ And Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh before the LORD: and there Joshua divided the land unto the children of Israel according to their divisions.

11 ¶ And the lot of the tribe of the children of Benjamin came up according to their families: and the coast of their lot came forth between the children of Judah and the children of Joseph.

12 And their border on the north side was from Jordan; and the border went up to the side of Jericho on the north side, and went up through the mountains westward; and the goings out thereof were at the wilderness of Beth-aven.

13 And the border went over from thence toward Luz, to the side of Luz, which is Beth-el, southward; and the border descended to Ataroth-adar, near the hill that lieth on the south side of the nether Beth-horon.

14 And the border was drawn thence, and compassed the corner of the sea southward, from the hill that lieth before Beth-horon southward; and the goings out thereof were at Kirjath-baal, which is Kirjath-jearim, a city of the children of Judah: this was the west quarter.

15 And the south quarter was from the end of Kirjath-jearim, and the border went out on the west, and went out to the well of waters of Nephtoah:

Before
CHRIST
1444.

16 And the border came down to the end of the mountain that lieth before the valley of the son of Hinnom, and which is in the valley of the giants on the north, and descended to the valley of Hinnom, to the side of Jebusi on the south, and descended to En-rogel,

17 And was drawn from the north, and went forth to En-shemesh, and went forth toward Geliloth, which is over against the going up of Adummim, and descended to the stone of Bohan the son of Reuben,

18 And passed along toward the side over against ¶ Arabah northward, and went down unto Arabah: ¶ Or, the plain.

19 And the border passed along to the side of Beth-hoglah northward: and the outgoings of the border were at the north † bay of the salt sea at the south end of Jordan: this was the south coast. † Heb. tongue.

20 And Jordan was the border of it on the east side. This was the inheritance of the children of Benjamin, by the coasts thereof round about, according to their families.

21 Now the cities of the tribe of the children of Benjamin according to their families were Jericho, and Beth-hoglah, and the valley of Keziz,

22 And Beth-arabah, and Zemaraim, and Beth-el,

23 And Avim, and Parah, and Ophrah,

24 And Chephar-haammonai, and Ophni, and Gaba; twelve cities with their villages:

25 Gibeon, and Ramah, and Beeroth,

26 And Mizpeh, and Chephirah, and Mozah,

27 And Rekem, and Irpeel, and Taralah,

28 And Zelah, Eleph, and Jebusi, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and Kirjath; fourteen cities with their villages. This is the inheritance of the children of Benjamin according to their families.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The lot of Simcon, 10 of Zebulun, 17 of Issachar, 24 of Asher, 32 of Naphtali, 40 of Dan. 46 The children of Israel give an inheritance to Joshua.

9. — and described it — into seven parts in a book,] The Hebrew words may signify “delineated it — in a book or map.” It is probable that they made a map of the country, drawn on a considerable scale, shewing every city and its boundaries, in seven parts, which, united together, formed a book. Script. illust.

14. — compassed the corner of the sea southward,] It is certain that the border of the tribe of Benjamin did not compass any corner of the Mediterranean sea, nor come near to it. On this account it should be observed, that the Hebrew word translated “sea,” may be understood to mean “the west,” on which side the sea (that is, the Great or Mediterranean sea) lay: so the same word is translated in ver. 12. Thus the plain meaning of the expression, “compassed the corner of the west,” seems to be, that the western border there made an angle or corner, as was really the case. Dr. Wells.

21. — Jericho,] As the city itself had been destroyed, the territory, probably, which was named from the city, is here meant; or perhaps a few houses and walls were still standing in the city. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
444.

AND the second lot came forth to Simeon, even for the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families: and their inheritance was within the inheritance of the children of Judah.

2 And they had in their inheritance Beer-sheba, Sheba, and Moladah,

3 And Hazar-shual, and Balah, and Azem,

4 And Eltolad, and Bethul, and Hormah,

5 And Ziklag, and Beth-marcaboth, and Hazar-susah,

6 And Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhem; thirteen cities and their villages:

7 Ain, Remmon, and Ether, and Ashan; four cities and their villages:

8 And all the villages that were round about these cities to Baalath-beer, Ramath of the south. This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Simeon according to their families.

9 Out of the portion of the children of Judah was the inheritance of the children of Simeon: for the part of the children of Judah was too much for them: therefore the children of Simeon had their inheritance within the inheritance of them.

10 ¶ And the third lot came up for the children of Zebulun according to their families: and the border of their inheritance was unto Sarid:

11 And their border went up toward the sea, and Maralah, and reached to Dabbasheth, and reached to the river that is before Jokneam;

12 And turned from Sarid eastward toward the sunrising unto the border of Chisloth-tabor, and then goeth out to Daberath, and goeth up to Japhia,

13 And from thence passeth on along on the east to Gittah-hepher, to Ittah-kazin, and goeth out to Remmon-methoar to Neah;

14 And the border compasseth it on the north side to Hannathon: and the outgoings thereof are in the valley of Jiphthah-el:

15 And Kattath, and Nahallal, and Shimron, and Idalah, and Beth-lehem: twelve cities with their villages.

16 This is the inheritance of the children of Zebulun according to their families, these cities with their villages.

17 ¶ And the fourth lot came out to Issachar, for the children of Issachar according to their families.

18 And their border was toward Jezreel, and Chesulloth, and Shunem,

19 And Haphraim, and Shihon, and Anaharath,

20 And Rabbith, and Kishion, and Abez,

21 And Remeth, and En-gannim, and En-haddah, and Beth-pazzez;

22 And the coast reacheth to Tabor, and Shahazimah, and Beth-shemesh; and the outgoings of their border were at Jordan: sixteen cities with their villages.

23 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Issachar according to their families, the cities and their villages.

24 ¶ And the fifth lot came out for the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families.

25 And their border was Helkath, and Hali, and Beten, and Achshaph, 26 And Alammelech, and Amad, and Misheal; and reacheth to Carmel westward, and to Shihor-libnath;

27 And turneth toward the sunrising to Beth-dagon, and reacheth to Zebulun, and to the valley of Jiphthah-el toward the north side of Beth-emek, and Neiel, and goeth out to Cabul on the left hand,

28 And Hebron, and Rehob, and Hammon, and Kanah, even unto great Zidon;

29 And then the coast turneth to Ramah, and to the strong city † Tyre; and the coast turneth to Hosah; and the outgoings there-

Before
CHRIST
1441.† Heb.
Tyre.Or, which is awn.

Chap. XIX. ver. 2. — Beer-sheba, Sheba,] Beer-sheba, or Sheba; different names for the same place: it is necessary thus to understand, in order to make the number of places thirteen, as stated at ver. 6. Dr. Lightfoot.

9. — the part of the children of Judah was too much for them:] Those persons who were now sent to make a new survey of the whole land, found that those who had surveyed it formerly had not measured it exactly, but made one division, which fell to the tribe of Judah, too large in proportion to the rest. A portion accordingly was taken from them, and given to the tribe of Simeon. On this account the boundaries of the tribe of Simeon, on every side, are not described, as had been done with respect to the other tribes, because the boundaries of Judah's possession had already been given, and the same cities, which, at chap. xv. i—32, were allotted to the tribe of Judah, are in this chapter,

Vol. I.

ver. 2—8, assigned to the tribe of Simeon. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

15. — twelve cities] More than twelve have been named; therefore some of them are probably only mentioned as boundaries of the country. In the same manner, at ver. 30, the cities are said to be twenty-two, although more than twenty-two have been mentioned; and the same at ver. 38.

26. — Carmel westward,] Or Carmel by the sea, to distinguish it from another Carmel in the tribe of Judah, near Hebron. Bp. Patrick.

29. — the strong city Tyre;] A strong and celebrated city, called by the Hebrews Tsor or Zor, whence it is thought that the whole adjoining country had the name of Syria given it by the Greeks. Dr. Wells. Its Hebrew name Tsor or Zor signifies a rock. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

of are at the sea from the coast to Ach-zib:

30 Ummah also, and Aphek, and Rehob: twenty and two cities with their villages.

31 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Asher according to their families, these cities with their villages.

32 ¶ The sixth lot came out to the children of Naphtali, even for the children of Naphtali according to their families.

33 And their coast was from Heleph, from Allon to Zaanannim, and Adami, Nekeb, and Jabneel, unto Lakum; and the outgoings thereof were at Jordan:

34 And then the coast turneth westward to Aznoth-tabor, and goeth out from thence to Hukkok, and reacheth to Zebulun on the south side, and reacheth to Asher on the west side, and to Judah upon Jordan toward the sunrising.

35 And the fenced cities are Ziddim, Zer, and Hammath, Rakkath, and Chinnereth, 36 And Adamah, and Ramah, and Hazor,

37 And Kedesh, and Edrei, and En-hazor,

38 And Iron, and Migdal-el, Horem, and Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh; nineteen cities with their villages.

39 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Naphtali according to their families, the cities and their villages.

40 ¶ And the seventh lot came out for the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families.

41 And the coast of their inheritance was Zorah, and Eshtaol, and Ir-shemesh,

42 And Shaalabbin, and Ajalon, and Jethlah, Before
CHRIST
1444.

43 And Elon, and Thimnathah, and Ekron,

44 And Eltekeh, and Gibbethon, and Baalath,

45 And Jehud, and Bene-berak, and Gath-rimmon,

46 And Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the border || before || Japho. || Or, over against.
|| Or,
Joppa,
Acts 9. 36.

47 And the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them: therefore the children of Dan went up to fight against Leshem, and took it, and smote it with the edge of the sword, and possessed it, and dwelt therein, and called Leshem, ^a Dan, after the name of Dan their father. ^a Judges 18 29.

48 This is the inheritance of the tribe of the children of Dan according to their families, these cities with their villages.

49 ¶ When they had made an end of dividing the land for inheritance by their coasts, the children of Israel gave an inheritance to Joshua the son of Nun among them:

50 According to the word of the LORD they gave him the city which he asked, even ^b Timnath-serah in mount Ephraim: and he built the city, and dwelt therein. ^b Chap. 24 30.

51 ^c These are the inheritances, which Eleazar the priest, and Joshua the son of Nun, and the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel, divided for an inheritance by lot in Shiloh before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. So they made an end of dividing the country. ^c Numb.
34. 17.
1444.

34. — to Judah upon Jordan] This cannot be meant of the tribe of Judah, which lay at a considerable distance from the border of Naphtali; it seems therefore most easy and natural to understand it of a place so named, lying on the river Jordan, which will account for its being called, by way of distinction, "Judah upon Jordan." Dr. Wells.

46. — the border before Japho.] This place afterwards became celebrated under the name of Joppa, and continues to this day retaining the name of Japha or Jaffa, which in Hebrew signifies fair or beautiful. Bp. Patrick. By comparing the cities just mentioned with those at Josh. xv. 33, it appears that many of those which were at first assigned to Judah, were afterwards allotted to Dan: hence it is reasonably supposed, that the inheritance of the tribe of Dan was within the inheritance of the tribe of Judah; this tribe is therefore, with universal agreement, placed by geographers in the western part of the portion, at first allotted to the children of Judah. Dr. Wells.

47. — the coast of the children of Dan went out too little for them.] In the Hebrew the words run thus: The coast of the children of Dan went out from them; that is, they were dispossessed of it in some parts by their powerful neighbours the Amorites, who forced them into the mountains. Bp. Patrick. The children of Dan therefore fought against, and took Leshem, a city not far from Jordan, called Laish in the book of Judges; in aftertimes

Cesarea Philippi. They dwelt therein, or remained in undisturbed possession of it, and gave it the name of Dan; all this was done after Joshua's death, and is related more largely in the book of Judges, chap. xviii. It is supposed that Ezra, or some other thought good in aftertimes to insert this verse here, in order to complete the account of the Danites' possession. Bp. Patrick Shuckford.

50. According to the word of the Lord] It hence appears, although it is no where else expressed, that the Lord granted to Joshua a peculiar privilege of choosing his portion, as He had done to Caleb. Dr. Wells.

51. — So they made an end of dividing the country.] It may generally be remarked, that, of the midland region to the north which was allotted to the tribes of Ephraim, Issachar, and Naphtali, and the half of Manasseh, the lot of the sons of Joseph especially that of Ephraim, was the richest and most considerable reaching from the Jordan eastwards, to the Mediterranean sea westward. The remainder of the maritime coast, westward, was allotted to Dan, Zebulun, and Asher, from the Philistine border southward, to Zidon northward: for Zebulun was foretold to be maritime tribe by Jacob, Gen. xlix. 13, and Dan and Asher are declared to be so by Deborah, Judg. v. 17. Of the southern tribes, the most powerful was Judah; of the northern, Ephraim whence originated a jealousy between the two, which broke out

Before
CHRIST
1444.

CHAP. XX.

1 God commandeth, 7 and the children of Israel appoint the six cities of refuge.

THE LORD also spake unto Joshua, saying,

^a Exod. 21.
13.
Numb. 35.
6. 11, 14.
Deut. 19.
2.

2 Speak to the children of Israel, saying, ^a Appoint out for you cities of refuge, whereof I spake unto you by the hand of Moses:

3 That the slayer that killeth any person unawares and unwittingly may flee thither: and they shall be your refuge from the avenger of blood.

4 And when he that doth flee unto one of those cities shall stand at the entering of the gate of the city, and shall declare his cause in the ears of the elders of that city, they shall take him into the city unto them, and give him a place, that he may dwell among them.

5 And if the avenger of blood pursue after him, then they shall not deliver the slayer up into his hand; because he smote his neighbour unwittingly, and hated him not beforetime.

^a Numb.
35. 25.

6 And he shall dwell in that city, until he stand before the congregation for judgment, and ^b until the death of the high priest that shall be in those days: then shall the slayer return, and come unto his own city, and unto his own house, unto the city from whence he fled.

[†] Heb.
sanctified.

7 ¶ And they [†] appointed Kedesh in Galilee in mount Naphtali, and Shechem in mount Ephraim, and Kirjath-arba, which is Hebron, in the mountain of Judah.

^c Deut. 4.
43.
1 Chron. 6.
78.

8 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward, they assigned ^c Bezer in the wilderness upon the plain out of the tribe of Reuben, and Ramoth in Gilead out of the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Bashan out of the tribe of Manasseh.

9 These were the cities appointed for all the children of Israel, and for the stranger that sojourneth among them, that whosoever early, and laid the foundation of that fatal schism, which took place on the death of Solomon, by the revolt of the ten tribes under Jeroboam an Ephraimite. Dr. Hales.

Chap. XX. ver. 7. And they appointed Kedesh &c.] It has been remarked, that not only were these cities of refuge seated on high and eminent places, so that they might be seen afar off, but they were appointed at such distances from each other, that all the country might more easily have the benefit of one or the other of them. Kedesh was in the north, Hebron in the south, and Shechem between both. The cities on the other side Jordan, Bezer, Ramoth, and Golan, had been assigned by Moses, Deut. iv. 43, but did not, until now, obtain the privilege of cities of refuge. All these cities of refuge belonged to the Levites. The expres-killeth any person at unawares might flee thither, and not die by the hand of the avenger of blood, until he stood before the congregation.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Eight and forty cities given by lot, out of the other tribes, unto the Levites. 43 God gave the land, and rest unto the Israelites, according to his promise.

THEN came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites unto Eleazar the priest, and unto Joshua the son of Nun, and unto the heads of the fathers of the tribes of the children of Israel;

2 And they spake unto them at Shiloh in the land of Canaan, saying, ^a The LORD ^a Numb. 35. 2. commanded by the hand of Moses to give us cities to dwell in, with the suburbs thereof for our cattle.

3 And the children of Israel gave unto the Levites out of their inheritance, at the commandment of the LORD, these cities and their suburbs.

4 And the lot came out for the families of the Kohathites: and the children of Aaron the priest, which were of the Levites, had by lot out of the tribe of Judah, and out of the tribe of Simeon, and out of the tribe of Benjamin, thirteen cities.

5 And the rest of the children of Kohath had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Ephraim, and out of the tribe of Dan, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh, ten cities.

6 And the children of Gershon had by lot out of the families of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the half tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

7 The children of Merari by their families had out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve cities.

8 And the children of Israel gave by lot sion, ver. 8, "on the other side Jordan by Jericho eastward," means, "on the other side of Jordan, and to the east of Jericho." Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. Then came near the heads of the fathers of the Levites] Although no division of the land was assigned to the tribe of Levi, yet abundant compensation was made to them, in having the priesthood of the Lord for their inheritance: and they were wisely distributed among the rest of the tribes, in order to maintain the national worship, and to superintend the education of youth. Thus forty-eight cities were appropriated throughout all the tribes, for the residence of the three families of the Levites, Kohath, Gershon, and Merari. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

unto the Levites these cities with their suburbs, as the Lord commanded by the hand of Moses.

† Heb.
called.

9 ¶ And they gave out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, these cities which are here † mentioned by name,

10 Which the children of Aaron, being of the families of the Kohathites, who were of the children of Levi, had: for their's was the first lot.

§ Or, Atrish-arbu.

11 And they gave them || the city of Arba the father of Anak, which city is Hebron, in the hill country of Judah, with the suburbs thereof round about it.

¶ Chap. 14.
14
1 Chron. 6.
56.

12 But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, gave they to ^b Caleb the son of Jephunneh for his possession.

13 ¶ Thus they gave to the children of Aaron the priest Hebron with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Libnah with her suburbs,

14 And Jattir with her suburbs, and Eshtemoa with her suburbs,

15 And Holon with her suburbs, and Debir with her suburbs,

16 And Ain with her suburbs, and Juttah with her suburbs, and Beth-shemesh with her suburbs; nine cities out of those two tribes.

17 And out of the tribe of Benjamin, Gibeon with her suburbs, Geba with her suburbs, 18 Anathoth with her suburbs, and Almon with her suburbs; four cities.

19 All the cities of the children of Aaron, the priests, were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

20 ¶ And the families of the children of Kohath, the Levites which remained of the children of Kohath, even they had the cities of their lot out of the tribe of Ephraim.

21 For they gave them Shechem with her suburbs in mount Ephraim, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Gezer with her suburbs, 22 And Kibzaim with her suburbs, and Beth-horon with her suburbs; four cities.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

23 And out of the tribe of Dan, Eltekeh with her suburbs, Gibbethon with her suburbs, 24 Aijalon with her suburbs, Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; four cities.

25 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh, Tanach with her suburbs, and Gath-rimmon with her suburbs; two cities.

26 All the cities were ten with their suburbs for the families of the children of Kohath that remained.

27 ¶ And unto the children of Gershon, of the families of the Levites, out of the other half tribe of Manasseh they gave Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Beesh-terah with her suburbs; two cities.

28 And out of the tribe of Issachar, Kishon with her suburbs, Dabareh with her suburbs, 29 Jarmuth with her suburbs, En-gannim with her suburbs; four cities.

30 And out of the tribe of Asher, Mishal with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, 31 Helkath with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs; four cities.

32 And out of the tribe of Naphtali, Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Hammoth-dor with her suburbs, and Kartan with her suburbs; three cities.

33 All the cities of the Gershonites according to their families were thirteen cities with their suburbs.

34 ¶ And unto the families of the children of Merari, the rest of the Levites, out of the tribe of Zebulun, Jokneam with her suburbs, and Kartah with her suburbs, 35 Dimnah with her suburbs, Nahalal with her suburbs; four cities.

36 And out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer with her suburbs, and Jahazah with her suburbs, 13. — to the children of Aaron] Of the forty-eight Levitical cities, thirteen, ver. 13—19, were properly sacerdotal, being assigned to the sons of Aaron, to whom the priesthood was exclusively confined. Although the cities were all assigned by lot, yet it was directed by a special Providence, that the share which fell to the priests should be in the tribes nearest to the great city, which God intended should be the fixed place of His worship, to the end that the priests might be always ready to give their attendance. Bp. Patrick.

It is remarkable, that all the cities of the priests lay within the southern tribes; eight belonging to Judah, four to Benjamin, and only one to Simeon. This was wisely allotted by Providence, to guard, as it were, against the evils of schism between the southern and northern tribes. For, by this arrangement, all these cities, except one, lay in the faithful tribes of Judah and Benjamin, to keep up the national worship in them, in opposition to the apostasy of the other tribes; and that one may have remained under the control of Judah, as being situated on his frontier. Otherwise, the kingdom of Judah might have experienced a scarcity of priests, or have been burdened with the maintenance of those who fled from the kingdom of Israel, 2 Chron. xi. 13, 14, when the base and wicked policy of Jeroboam made priests of the lowest of the people, without learning or religion, to officiate in their room. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

37 Kedemoth with her suburbs, and Mephaath with her suburbs; four cities.

38 And out of the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, to be a city of refuge for the slayer; and Mahanaim with her suburbs, 39 Heshbon with her suburbs, Jazer with her suburbs; four cities in all.

40 So all the cities for the children of Merari by their families, which were remaining of the families of the Levites, were by their lot twelve cities.

41 All the cities of the Levites within the possession of the children of Israel were forty and eight cities with their suburbs.

42 These cities were every one with their suburbs round about them: thus were all these cities.

43 ¶ And the LORD gave unto Israel all the land which he sware to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it, and dwelt therein.

44 And the LORD gave them rest round about, according to all that he sware unto their fathers: and there stood not a man of all their enemies before them; the LORD delivered all their enemies into their hand.

^c Chap. 23.
14, 15.

45 ^c There failed not ought of any good thing which the LORD had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass.

CHAP. XXII.

¹ The two tribes and half with a blessing are sent home.

⁹ They build the altar of testimony in their journey.

¹¹ The Israelites are offended thereat. ²¹ They give them good satisfaction.

THEN Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh,

2 And said unto them, Ye have kept all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded you, and have obeyed my voice in all that I commanded you:

43. — the Lord gave unto Israel all the land] He gave them a right to the whole country, which was distributed among them, as He appointed, by a lot which He ordered and directed; and He gave them the actual possession and enjoyment of the greater part of it, with power to subdue the rest, provided they continued in obedience; according to this understanding, “there failed not ought of any good thing which the Lord had spoken unto the house of Israel,” ver. 45. Bp. Patrick.

44. And the Lord gave them rest] That is, He permitted them to enjoy the undisturbed possession of their lands, without any molestation, and “delivered their enemies into their hand;” which is not to be understood, as if all the people of Canaan were actually under their power, but that, as long as Joshua lived, not a man appeared to fight against them, who was not delivered into their hands. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

3 Ye have not left your brethren these many days unto this day, but have kept the charge of the commandment of the LORD your God.

4 And now the LORD your God hath given rest unto your brethren, as he promised them: therefore now return ye, and get you unto your tents, and unto the land of your possession, ^a which Moses the servant of the LORD gave you on the other side Jordan.

^a Numb.
32. 33.
chap. 13.
8.

5 But take diligent heed to do the commandment and the law, which Moses the servant of the LORD charged you, ^b to love the LORD your God, and to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments, and to cleave unto him, and to serve him with all your heart and with all your soul.

^b Deut. 10.
12.

6 So Joshua blessed them, and sent them away: and they went unto their tents.

7 ¶ Now to the one half of the tribe of Manasseh Moses had given possession in Bashan: but unto the other half thereof gave Joshua among their brethren on this side Jordan westward. And when Joshua sent them away also unto their tents, then he blessed them,

8 And he spake unto them, saying, Return with much riches unto your tents, and with very much cattle, with silver, and with gold, and with brass, and with iron, and with very much raiment: divide the spoil of your enemies with your brethren.

9 ¶ And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan, to go unto the country of Gilead, to the land of their possession, whereof they were possessed, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

10 ¶ And when they came unto the borders of Jordan, that are in the land of Ca-

Chap. XXII. ver. 3. — these many days] For the space of seven years at least, some think as many more, they had continued in the service of their brethren, until they saw them settled in quiet possession of their lots. Bp. Patrick.

5. — take diligent heed] He exhorts them, like a wise and religious governour, to improve the experience they had of the great providences of God towards themselves and their whole nation, into a constant and dutiful observance of the laws He had prescribed in common to them all, as the only condition of all their future enjoyments. Pyle.

9. — the country of Gilead,] The country of Gilead, here put for the whole country possessed by the Israelites, to the east of Jordan: so called from Gilead, the son of Machir, and grandson of Manasseh. Stackhouse.

10. — came unto the borders of Jordan,— in the land of Canaan,]

Before
CHRIST
1441.

naan, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh built there an altar by Jordan, a great altar to see to.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel heard say, Behold, the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh have built an altar over against the land of Canaan, in the borders of Jordan, at the passage of the children of Israel.

12 And when the children of Israel heard of it, the whole congregation of the children of Israel gathered themselves together at Shiloh, to go up to war against them.

13 And the children of Israel sent unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, into the land of Gilead, Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest,

† Heb. house of the father.

14 And with him ten princes, of each † chief house a prince throughout all the tribes of Israel; and each one was an head of the house of their fathers among the thousands of Israel.

15 ¶ And they came unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the half tribe of Manasseh, unto the land of Gilead, and they spake with them, saying,

16 Thus saith the whole congregation of the LORD, What trespass is this that ye have committed against the God of Israel, to turn away this day from following the LORD, in that ye have builded you an altar, that ye might rebel this day against the LORD?

This expression would seem to import, that they built the altar in the land of Canaan, before they went over Jordan: but this is by no means probable; and indeed is contradicted by the next verse, which says, that they built it over against Jordan. The meaning must be, that, when they came to the borders of Jordan, and then passed into their own country, they staid there to build the altar. Bp. Patrick.

— great altar to see to. Namely, an altar which made a great shew, being built very high, so that it might be seen afar off, but after the pattern of the altar of the burnt offering at the tabernacle. Dr. Wells. Their purpose was no more than to erect this as a monumental record to posterity: by raising it in the particular shape of an altar, they intended it as a memorial of the near relation, close friendship, and perfect unity of religion, that subsisted between them and their brethren in western Canaan. Pyle. A memorial, that, though they were parted by the river, yet they were of the same religion and extraction with the other tribes, and had an equal right to the tabernacle of Shiloh, and the worship of God there performed. Stackhouse.

12. — gathered themselves together] The tribes now lived separate, having gone to settle in their several possessions.

— to go up to war] To consult about going to war: for they imagined them to be apostates from their religion, which requir-

17 Is the iniquity^c of Peor too little for us, from which we are not cleansed until this day, although there was a plague in the congregation of the LORD, Before
CHRIST
1444.
^c Numb.
25. 4.

18 But that ye must turn away this day from following the LORD? and it will be, seeing ye rebel to day against the LORD, that to morrow he will be wroth with the whole congregation of Israel.

19 Notwithstanding, if the land of your possession be unclean, then pass ye over unto the land of the possession of the LORD, wherein the LORD's tabernacle dwelleth, and take possession among us: but rebel not against the LORD, nor rebel against us, in building you an altar beside the altar of the LORD our God.

20 ^d Did not Achan the son of Zerah commit a trespass in the accursed thing, and wrath fell on all the congregation of Israel? and that man perished not alone in his iniquity. ^d Chap. 7.
1, 5.

21 ¶ Then the children of Reuben and the children of Gad and the half tribe of Manasseh answered, and said unto the heads of the thousands of Israel,

22 The LORD God of gods, the LORD God of gods, he knoweth, and Israel he shall know; if it be in rebellion, or if in transgression against the LORD, (save us not this day,)

23 That we have built us an altar to turn from following the LORD, or if to offer thereon burnt offering or meat offering, or if to offer peace offerings thereon, let the LORD himself require it;

24 And if we have not rather done it for fear of this thing, saying, † In time to † Heb.
To morrow.

ed them to worship the Lord alone, and at no other place but that which He Himself had chosen. Bp. Patrick. They thought this altar to be built, either in imitation of heathen high places, or as a separate place of sacrifice and publick worship, distinct from that of the tabernacle, and consequently to imply a plain revolt from the express law of God. Pyle.

17. Is the iniquity of Peor too little &c.] Is the iniquity, of which so many of us were guilty in worshipping Peor, too small a provocation committed by us towards God, from which we are not cleansed until this day? there being some remaining, they feared, infected with those idolatrous inclinations, whom God might justly cut off, although "there was" on the former occasion "a plague" which destroyed 24,000, Numb. xxv. 9. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

19. — if the land of your possession be unclean,] If you think that the land of your possession is unclean, or less holy, for want of an altar among you, then "pass ye over" unto our land. Dr. Wells. This expresses a wonderful zeal for God and the common good, wherewith they were now possessed, which made them rather desire to give up some of their own lands to the tribes east of Jordan, than suffer them to "rebel against the Lord," and thereby break the common bond, which bound the tribes to each other as well as to God. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

come your children might speak unto our children, saying, What have ye to do with the LORD God of Israel ?

25 For the LORD hath made Jordan a border between us and you, ye children of Reuben and children of Gad ; ye have no part in the LORD : so shall your children make our children cease from fearing the LORD.

26 Therefore we said, Let us now prepare to build us an altar, not for burnt offering, nor for sacrifice :

* Gen. 31.
48,
chap. 24.
27.
ver. 31.

27 But that it may be a witness between us, and you, and our generations after us, that we might do the service of the LORD before him with our burnt offerings, and with our sacrifices, and with our peace offerings ; that your children may not say to our children in time to come, Ye have no part in the LORD.

28 Therefore said we, that it shall be, when they should so say to us or to our generations in time to come, that we may say again, Behold the pattern of the altar of the LORD, which our fathers made, not for burnt offerings, nor for sacrifices ; but it is a witness between us and you.

29 God forbid that we should rebel against the LORD, and turn this day from following the LORD, to build an altar for burnt offerings, for meat offerings, or for sacrifices, beside the altar of the LORD our God that is before his tabernacle.

30 ¶ And when Phinehas the priest, and the princes of the congregation and heads of the thousands of Israel which were with him, heard the words that the children of

25. — ye have no part in the Lord :] Ye are none of the Lord's people, as not living within the bounds of the promised land. Dr. Wells.

28. — Behold the pattern of the altar of the Lord,] They could not have exactly imitated the pattern of the true altar of God, if they had not attended it, as a place of worship, together with their brethren ; on which account their altar would be " a witness" that they (the Eastern tribes) had a right to approach the tabernacle, as well as the Western. Bp. Patrick.

29. God forbid that we should rebel against the Lord,] We cannot have a stronger proof of the zeal of the whole nation for the observance of the Divine law, than this transaction between the two tribes and a half, and the remaining tribes. Here we see the two tribes and a half building an altar at the passage of Jordan, a pattern, or after the pattern, of the altar of the Lord. The remaining congregation, alarmed at the idea of this being a rebellion against God, who had commanded that there should be only one altar for His people, prepared to punish it by instant war. But, on their sending ambassadors to expostulate, the two tribes and a half shew, by the earnestness of their answer, " God forbid that we should rebel &c." that the impression was indeed most deep, which the judgments of God had made on the whole nation, that they were animated with the most watchful anxiety to fulfil the Law, and to avoid the wrath of Jehovah, at once their Sovereign and their God. Dr. Graves.

Reuben and the children of Gad and the children of Manasseh spake, † it pleased them.

Before
CHRIST
1444.

† Heb.
*it was goods
in their eyes.*

31 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest said unto the children of Reuben, and to the children of Gad, and to the children of Manasseh, This day we perceive that the LORD is among us, because ye have not committed this trespass against the LORD : † now ye have delivered the children of Israel out of the hand of the LORD.

† Heb.
then.

32 ¶ And Phinehas the son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes, returned from the children of Reuben, and from the children of Gad, out of the land of Gilead, unto the land of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them word again.

33 And the thing pleased the children of Israel ; and the children of Israel blessed God, and did not intend to go up against them in battle, to destroy the land wherein the children of Reuben and Gad dwelt.

34 And the children of Reuben and the children of Gad called the altar || Ed : for it shall be a witness between us that the LORD is God.

|| That is,
A witness.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Joshua's exhortation before his death, 3 by former benefits, 5 by promises, 11 and by threatenings.

AND it came to pass a long time after that the LORD had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua waxed old and † stricken in age.

† Heb.
*come into
days.*

2 And Joshua called for all Israel, and

34. — that the Lord is God.] That the Lord is our God, that we own no other God, and will worship Him only ; and consequently that we have a right to serve Him at His tabernacle as well as they. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. — a long time after] According to Abp. Usher, this happened seventeen years after the division of the land. See the dates in the margin of the Bible.

— Joshua waxed old] This had been said of him before the division of the land took place, Josh. xiii. 1 ; and, since that time, he built a city on his own allotment. It is probable that he was now in the last year of his life. Bp. Patrick.

2. And Joshua called for all Israel, &c.] In this and the following chapter, Joshua appears a true imitator of Moses, concluding his book and his life with a pious exhortation to the duties of religion, as the only means of procuring and perpetuating the blessings of Heaven. We also see in him a worthy pattern for every parent to follow in life, to lead his children by a holy example ; and, at the end thereof, to recommend to them, with his last breath, the love and service of God. Such advice is the best legacy, the fairest portion, and most effectual blessing he can leave them. In this great man we likewise behold a noble instance of that happy, calm, and sweet composure of mind, which attends the death of the righteous man ; in his last moments, he shews no concern for the parting with life, or the approach of

Before
CHRIST
about 1427.

for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and said unto them, I am old and stricken in age :

* Exod. 14.
14.

3 And ye have seen all that the LORD your God hath done unto all these nations because of you ; for the ^a LORD your God is he that hath fought for you.

† Heb.
at the sunset.

4 Behold, I have divided unto you by lot these nations that remain, to be an inheritance for your tribes, from Jordan, with all the nations that I have cut off, even unto the great sea † westward.

5 And the LORD your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out of your sight ; and ye shall possess their land, as the LORD your God hath promised unto you.

b Deut. 5.
32. & 29.
14.

6 Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, ^b that ye turn not aside therefrom to the right hand or to the left ;

c Psal. 16.
4.

7 That ye come not among these nations, these that remain among you ; neither ^c make mention of the name of their gods, nor cause to swear by them, neither serve them, nor bow yourselves unto them :

¶ Or,
For if you will cleave,
&c.

¶ Or,
Then the LORD will drive.

8 ¶ But cleave unto the LORD your God, as ye have done unto this day.

d Lev. 26.
8.
Deut. 32.
20.

9 ¶ For the LORD hath driven out from before you great nations and strong : but as for you, no man hath been able to stand before you unto this day.

10 ^d One man of you shall chase a thousand : for the LORD your God, he it is that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you.

† Heb. souls.

11 Take good heed therefore unto yourselves, that ye love the LORD your God.

12 Else if ye do in any wise go back, death. All his care is for the honour of God, and the true happiness of those he leaves behind. Wogan.

5. — the Lord your God, he shall expel them] This relates to the Canaanites yet remaining unsubdued, whom the Israelites, provided they faithfully adhered to the worship of the true God, would certainly be enabled to conquer. Bp. Patrick.

7. — neither make mention of the name of their gods,] That is, do not mention their names, as objects of worship, with any sort of reverence.

— nor cause to swear by them,] This being a peculiar mark of respect, as implying an acknowledgment that he, in whose name the oath was taken, had power to punish those who forswore themselves. Dr. Wells.

9. — the Lord hath driven out &c.] The literal meaning is plain and easy ; the Lord made good His promise to those Israelites to whom the words were spoken, brought them into Canaan, and cast out the heathen. If these were strong motives to that people of gratitude and obedience, how much more are we bound to be grateful and obedient, by the far greater victories, which our heavenly Joshua, the blessed Jesus, hath obtained for us over our and cleave unto the remnant of these nations, even these that remain among you, and shall make marriages with them, and go in unto them, and they to you :

Before
CHRIST
about 1427.

13 Know for a certainty that the LORD your God will no more drive out any of these nations from before you ; ^e but they shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

* Exod. 23.
33.
Numb. 33.
55.
Deut. 7. 16.

14 And, behold, this day I am going the way of all the earth : and ye know in all your hearts and in all your souls, that ^f not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the LORD your God spake concerning you ; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.

† Chap. 21.
45.

15 Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the LORD your God promised you ; so shall the LORD bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the LORD your God hath given you.

16 When ye have transgressed the covenant of the LORD your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them ; then shall the anger of the LORD be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Joshua assembleth the tribes at Shechem. 2 A brief history of God's benefits from Terah. 14 He reneweth the covenant between them and God. 26 A stone the witness of the covenant. 29 Joshua's age, death, and burial. 32 Joseph's bones are buried. 33 Eleazar dieth.

spiritual enemies, and which He still daily performs for us ; for those, who are enlisted under His banner, are indeed enabled to "chase a thousand," not indeed by their own strength, but, by the power of Christ. Wogan.

13. — the Lord your God will no more drive out any of these nations] Thus the promise which God had made to the Israelites was conditional : and, as they manifestly forfeited their part of the obligation, by engaging first in affinity, and afterwards in idolatry with the nations which they were bound to destroy, so God would no longer grant them success and enlargement of their boundary ; but, as they had been the ministers of His vengeance in punishing the disorders of the Canaanites, so the Canaanites were now, in their turn, to be made the instruments of His chastising the disobedience of His own people. Stackhouse.

— they shall be snares and traps unto you,] They shall remain in the land to seduce and inveigle you to further impiety.

— and scourges in your sides,] They shall be the means of bringing the sorest chastisements and most grievous afflictions upon you. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1427.

AND Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers; and they presented themselves before God.

² And Joshua said unto all the people, ^a Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, ^a Your fathers dwelt on the other side of the flood in old time, even Terah, the father of Abraham, and the father of Nachor: and they served other gods.

³ And I took your father Abraham from the other side of the flood, and led him throughout all the land of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and ^b gave him Isaac.

⁴ And I gave unto Isaac ^c Jacob and Esau: and I gave unto ^d Esau mount Seir, to possess it; ^e but Jacob and his children went down into Egypt.

⁵ ^f I sent Moses also and Aaron, and I plagued Egypt, according to that which I did among them: and afterward I brought you out.

⁶ And I ^g brought your fathers out of Egypt: and ye came unto the sea; and the Egyptians pursued after your fathers with chariots and horsemen unto ^h the Red sea.

⁷ And when they cried unto the Lord, he put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea upon them, and covered them; and your eyes have seen what I have done in Egypt: and ye dwelt in the wilderness a long season.

⁸ And I brought you into the land of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other side Jordan; ⁱ and they fought with you: and I gave them into your hand, that ye might possess their land; and I destroyed them from before you.

⁹ Then Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab, arose and warred against Israel, and ^k sent and called Balaam the son of Beor to curse you:

¹⁰ But I would not hearken unto Balaam; therefore he blessed you still: so I delivered you out of his hand.

¹¹ And ye went over Jordan, and came unto Jericho: and the men of Jericho fought against you, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Girgashites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; and I delivered them into your hand.

¹² And ^l I sent the hornet before you, which drove them out from before you, even the two kings of the Amorites; but not with thy sword, nor with thy bow.

¹³ And I have given you a land for which ye did not labour, and cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them; of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat.

¹⁴ ¶ Now therefore fear the Lord, and serve him in sincerity and in truth: and

Before
CHRIST
about 1427.

ⁱ Numb.
21. 33.

^k Numb.
22. 5.
Deut. 23. 4

^l Exod. 23.
28.
Deut. 7.
20.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. And Joshua] It is probable that Joshua, having his life prolonged beyond what he had expected when he made the foregoing speech, called the tribes again together, for the purpose of giving them wholesome admonitions. Bp. Patrick.

— to Shechem,] Two Greek MSS. read Shiloh here, instead of Shechem. Shechem was distant about ten miles from Shiloh, according to St. Jerome. As it is here said that they presented themselves "before God," it appears that the holy tabernacle was at hand. Allowing then the received reading, we must understand, either that Joshua, being old and infirm, caused the ark on this occasion to be brought from Shiloh to Shechem, being nearer to his own residence, (Bp. Patrick), or that Shiloh is here called Shechem, because it was in the territory of Shechem, (Dr. Wells), or that all the tribes were assembled at Shechem, whence the heads, officers, &c. went to present themselves before the ark at Shiloh, as occasion required. Shuckford.

³. — from the other side of the flood,] From the other side of the river Euphrates. Bp. Patrick.

¹². And I sent the hornet before you,] The sting of the larger wasp or hornet is in hot Eastern climates extremely venomous and even deadly, as may be collected from the effects of it here alluded to. Parkhurst. The meaning may either be, that, before the Israelites came into those parts, God sent hornets which so infested them, that many of the inhabitants were forced to leave the country and fly into other parts; or that, when the Israelites were come into the country, these hornets, by assailing and infesting the inhabitants, facilitated the victory over them. God had before promised to "send the hornets" at Exod. xxiii. 28; Deut. vii. 20; and here Joshua recites how faithful He had been to His promise. In the book of Wisdom, chap. xii. 3, the wasps or hornets are called "the forerunners of God's host." Bp. Patrick.

VOL. I.

We have no account of the actual expulsion of the inhabitants by means of hornets, among the events related in the book of Joshua. On which account, it is more probable that this Divine visitation upon them took place before the Israelites came into the land. Masius.

The manner, in which Joshua here mentions the sending of the hornets, shews that he is alluding to a real event, well known to all whom he was addressing. It may appear incredible at first sight that any insects should have the effect of driving a people from their country; it should be recollected however, that, in hot climates, such animals are far more fatal and venomous than in colder climates; and historians have preserved to us a number of instances of similar events. Among others, it is recorded that the people of Chalcis were driven from their country by flies; that certain inhabitants of Ethiopia were forced from their country by scorpions which infested them, as were the Mysians also by a sort of large fly, and those of Phaselis by swarms of wasps. Calmet.

¹⁴. Now therefore fear the Lord,] Joshua, in this solemn assembly, the last he was to see, expresses the strongest solicitude for what he knew would constitute the publick happiness, the preservation of true religion, and consequently of virtue, in opposition to the superstitious follies and shocking vices of the nations around them. To promote this end, he recounts to them, by the especial direction of Heaven, the miraculous and gracious dispensations of Providence, which their fathers and they had experienced, and of which he had so long been a witness, concluding the history with their present happy condition; and his inference from the whole is, "Now therefore fear the Lord." Abp. Seeker.

Before CHRIST about 1427. put away the gods which your fathers served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt; and serve ye the LORD.

15 And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD.

16 And the people answered and said, God forbid that we should forsake the LORD, to serve other gods;

17 For the LORD our God, he it is that brought us up and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage, — your fathers served] Idolatry was the religion of their fathers, and had spread itself over the greatest and most ancient nations in the world; and those too, most famous for learning and arts. So that Joshua represents the heathen religion with all its strength and advantage, and does not dissemble its confident pretension to antiquity and universality, whereby they would also insinuate the novelty and singularity of the worship of the God of Israel. It is worthy of observation, that one or both of these have always been the exceptions of false religions (especially of idolatry and superstition) against the true religion. They have been urged by the ancient idolaters against the true religion of the Israelites; by Jews and Heathens against Christianity; and, in later times, by Roman Catholics against Protestants. Abp. Tillotson.

15. — if it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord,] He could not think they would turn Atheists, and have no God at all; and he was unwilling to suppose they would prefer any other God to Him who had obliged them by so many benefits. He expresses this in a rhetorical form of speech, which is as much as to say, If ye like not God's service, tell me whom ye will serve. Bp. Patrick. As if he had said, I leave it to your own conscience, whether a people in your circumstances should suffer it to remain a question, what God you should serve, and to what religion you should adhere. Pyle.

Being sensible that mankind are strangely apt to think themselves not in a good state when they are in the best, he proceeds to entreat them, that, if any are dissatisfied with the fruits of observing their present religion and laws, they would consider well, under what other, on the whole, they would rather wish to be; for under some they must be. They might, if they pleased, after all he had said, try a change, and take the consequences: but he had seen too much of the benefit of adhering to God, to have the least desire of experiencing what would be the effect of forsaking Him; and his prayer and endeavour, he affirms, shall be, that all under his influence may tread for ever in the same steps. Abp. Secker.

He does not insinuate that they were at liberty whether they should serve the true God or not; but he intimates, that religion ought to be their free choice; and likewise, that true religion has those real advantages on its side, that it may be safely referred to any considerate man's choice. "If it seem evil unto you;" as if he had said, If all the demonstrations which God has given of His miraculous presence among you, and the mighty obligations He has laid upon you, by bringing you out of Egyptian bondage with so stretched out an arm, and by driving out the nations before you: if, after all this, you can think it fit to quit the service of God and to worship the idols, those vanquished and baffled deities of the nations whom you have subdued—if you can think it reasonable so to do, but surely you cannot, then take your choice. Abp. Tillotson.

— as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.] A resolution truly worthy of so great a prince and so good a man: in which we have a double pattern for us: first, of the brave reso-and which did those great signs in our sight, and preserved us in all the way wherein we went, and among all the people through whom we passed: Before CHRIST about 1427

18 And the LORD drove out from before us all the people, even the Amorites which dwelt in the land: therefore will we also serve the LORD; for he is our God.

19 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye cannot serve the LORD: for he is an holy God; he is a jealous God; he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.

20 If ye forsake the LORD, and serve strange gods, ^m then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. m Chap. 23. 15.

lution of a good man, namely, that, if there were occasion, and things were brought to that extremity, he would stand alone in the profession and practice of true religion. Secondly, of the pious care of a good father and master of a family, to train up those under his charge in the true religion and worship of God. From the first, we should learn to hold fast the profession of our faith, and to take up the same pious resolution which Joshua did, under any trials to which God may be pleased to expose us; from the second, to exert the greatest possible diligence to make our "houses serve the Lord," to have our children carefully educated, and our families regularly and religiously ordered. Abp. Tillotson.

This was a noble resolution, formed by a very eminent person, on a very solemn occasion. The last words of any man are usually listened to with attention, as likely to be words of truth and importance. But the last words of a veteran officer like Joshua, under whom the Israelites had fought and conquered, of a wise and Heaven-directed ruler, by whom they had been settled, according to their tribes, in pleasant and peaceful habitations, must above all others deserve to be heard and remembered for ever. After reminding the people of the various mercies they had experienced, Joshua drew his instructions and admonitions to a point, and thus left his testimony recorded on the behalf of himself and his family: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Bp. Horne.

19. — Ye cannot serve the Lord:] The inference intended from the expression, "Ye cannot serve the Lord," is, Therefore give the more diligence, and use the more care and endeavour, to serve God as ye ought. Dr. Lightfoot. This expression is far from implying an utter impossibility of their serving God; but is employed to intimate, that, such was their extreme proneness to idolatry, they would never be able to persevere steadfast in their resolution, unless they constantly reflected upon, and laid to heart, the many great considerations, which obliged them to implicit obedience. Bp. Patrick. For "He is an holy God," or One who has no equal; "a jealous God" who endures no rival; "He will not forgive your transgressions" in giving to another the worship due solely to Him. Dr. Wells.

It appears that the point debated on this occasion between Joshua and his people, was not, whether the Israelites should return to God, as having rejected and forsaken Him; but whether they should serve Him only, or, as Joshua expresses it, "serve Him in sincerity and in truth:" for, on their exclaiming against the impiety of rejecting Him, "God forbid that we should forsake the Lord, we will serve Him;" (meaning, along with other gods;) their leader replies, "Ye cannot serve the Lord, for He is an holy God; He is a jealous God;" that is, As a holy God, He will not be served with the lewd and polluted rites of the nations; and, as a jealous God, He will not suffer you to serve idols of wood and stone with His rites. The consequence is, you must serve Him alone, and only with that worship which He has appointed. Bp. Warburton.

Before CHRIST about 1427. 21 And the people said unto Joshua, Nay; but we will serve the LORD.

22 And Joshua said unto the people, Ye are witnesses against yourselves that ye have chosen you the LORD, to serve him. And they said, We are witnesses.

23 Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the LORD God of Israel.

24 And the people said unto Joshua, The LORD our God will we serve, and his voice will we obey.

25 So Joshua made a covenant with the people that day, and set them a statute and an ordinance in Shechem.

26 ¶ And Joshua wrote these words in the book of the law of God, and took a great stone, and set it up there under an oak, that was by the sanctuary of the LORD.

27 And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard all the words of the Before CHRIST about 1427. LORD which he spake unto us: it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God.

28 So Joshua let the people depart, every man unto his inheritance.

29 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old. about 1426

30 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in "Timnath-serah, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north side of the hill of Gaash. * Chap. 19. 50. Judg. 2. 9

31 And Israel served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that *†*overlived Joshua, and which had known all the works of the LORD, that he had done for Israel. † Heb. prolonged their days after Joshua.

32 ¶ And ^o the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel brought up out of Egypt, buried they in Shechem, in a parcel of ground which Jacob bought of ^p the ^o Gen. 50. 25. Exod. 13. 19. ^p Gen. 33. 19.

21. — Nay; but we will serve the Lord.] It is not to be doubted that very many amongst mankind are as well inclined to the service of God as were the Israelites, and ready to make the same declaration which they did. They are so sensible of the folly and mischievous consequences of a sinful life, and the infinite obligation which God has laid upon them to live virtuously and religiously, that they fully purpose, with the grace of God, to quit all evil courses, and devote themselves to God's service; to forsake the idol gods which men of the world worship, and, as Joshua expresses it, ver. 14, "to serve the Lord in sincerity and in truth." But it is fit that all should be well forewarned, as Joshua insinuates to the Israelites, how much easier a matter it is to make resolutions about serving God, than to perform them after they are made; and consequently they, who mean to have their resolutions come to any effect, should take especial care to use their utmost prudence and consideration in the forming of them, and their utmost diligence in adhering to them afterwards. Abp. Sharp.

23. Now therefore put away — the strange gods] These are the very same words, which Jacob used to his household, when he suspected them of idolatry, Gen. xxxv. 2; although none was openly practised among them. Bp. Patrick. Joshua knew, by Divine inspiration, what was the inward disposition of the people, and their secret affection to idols; and that some amongst them worshipped false gods in private. Dr. Wells.

25. So Joshua made a covenant &c.] So Joshua renewed the covenant by which the Israelites had before bound themselves, both in the time of Moses, and in his time: and "he set before them a statute," that is, he read, or ordered to be read unto them the several precepts of the law, which were the conditions of the covenant then renewed. Dr. Wells.

26. — in the book of the law of God,] The book which was laid up by Moses, in the side of the ark, Deut. xxxi. 24—26. Bp. Patrick. — and took a great stone,] This was an ancient way of preserving the memory of past transactions, as appears from what Jacob did, Gen. xxviii. 18, and from what they themselves had done, Josh. iv. 3, 20. Bp. Patrick.

— under an oak, — by the sanctuary] It was forbidden to plant a grove of trees near the sanctuary, Deut. xvi. 21; but this did not render it unlawful to set up the sanctuary, for a short time especially, under a tree planted before. Bp. Patrick.

— under an oak,] This was probably the place (called, Gen. xii. 6, "the place of Sichem") where Abraham first sat down, and where, on the Lord's first appearing to him, he erected his first altar in the land of Canaan: for the words at Gen. xii. 6, "unto the plain of Moreh," are sometimes rendered, "unto the oak of Moreh." See note on Gen. xii. 6. And what place could be more proper for Abraham's posterity to renew a covenant with their God, than that, where their God first made His covenant with Abraham their father. Jos. Mede.

27. — for it hath heard all the words] By a figure of speech, the stone is said to have heard what had passed, because it would remain to all posterity to testify the engagements there contracted. Bp. Patrick.

Nothing is more frequent in Scripture than expressions, which cannot be understood in a literal, and therefore must be in a metaphorical or figurative sense; of which this language of Joshua is an example. Lord Clarendon.

29. And it came to pass] These five last verses were evidently not written by Joshua. It is probable they were written by Phinehas, or rather by Samuel, who, being a Prophet, was moved and directed by God to continue the history of this people from the death of Joshua to his own time. Dr. Gray.

— that Joshua — died,] The Son of Sirach gives a long commendation of Joshua at Ecclus. xlvi. 1, &c. Josephus, giving his character concisely, says, that he was a man of political prudence, and endued also with singular felicity of popular eloquence in expressing his thoughts; brave and indefatigable in war, and no less just and dexterous in peace; in short, that he was a person qualified for all great purposes. Stackhouse.

It should be well remarked, what pious conclusion Joshua made of a useful life, and how carefully he provided, that, after his decease, his people should be steadfast in his religion, and unmovable in their adherence to the Divine Law. Such religious and zealous exhortations of governors to their people are highly commendable upon several accounts: they are very pleasing to God, and a proper means to derive His blessing on the government; they are apt to affect the people's hearts with a sense of the Divine Majesty, and a love and reverence of His holy name; and if enforced by the zealous example of the persons themselves who deliver them, must have the greatest effect in reclaiming the bad, and in promoting righteous practice. Reading.

31. — the elders that overlived Joshua,] Men of distinguished piety, who "had known all the works of the Lord," that is, had not only seen, but observed and kept in mind, the wonderful works of God, and put others in mind of them, and taught them to serve and obey the Lord. Bp. Patrick.

32. — the bones of Joseph, — buried they in Shechem,] It is

Before
CHRIST
about 1427.
§ Or,
1 am/s.

sons of Hamor the father of Shechem for an hundred || pieces of silver: and it became the inheritance of the children of Joseph.

probable that the Israelites buried the bones of Joseph during the lifetime of Joshua; but, as the event was not recorded by Joshua himself, the account was added after his death. Dr. Wells. The circumstance of the Israelites bringing the bones of Joseph from Egypt is mentioned at Exod. xiii. 19.

The arms of the Israelites prevailed every where, during the vigorous administrations of Moses and Joshua, who enforced obedience to the Law, and were jealous to prevent the introduction of idolatry: but, as will afterwards appear, when the tribes began to be settled, they were so intent on the operations of agriculture, and on their own separate concerns, that the stronger tribes neglected to assist the weaker in the reduction of the several "fenced cities" or fortresses which still held out; and so by their divisions they weakened the force of the whole nation. Hence the history of the judges is what might naturally be expected to follow from 33 And Eleazar the son of Aaron died; and they buried him in a hill that pertained to Phinehas his son, which was given him in mount Ephraim.

Before
CHRIST
about 1420.

such neglect of the common interest. The native powers gradually recruited their strength, revolted, and, in their turn, subdued and oppressed the Israelites, either totally or partially.

However, even in Joshua's time, the Israelites were not purged of the idolatries of their ancestors in Mesopotamia, which he warned them to put away; declaring the resolution of himself and his family to serve the Lord wholly, chap. xxiv. 14, 15. And, like Moses, he predicted their relapse into the idolatries of the Amorites and the surrounding heathens: "Ye cannot serve the Lord: for He is a holy God; (and His ordinances are too pure for your observance;) He is a jealous God; He will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins," chap. xxiv. 19, 20; and the two last chapters in general contain an admirable and affectionate exhortation to obedience, and denunciations of the punishments of disobedience, in the true spirit of Moses' disciple. Dr. Hales.

The following Chapters from the Book of Joshua are appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. X.	-	-	-	-	1st Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— XXIII.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.

THE BOOK OF J U D G E S.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS book has been variously attributed to Samuel, to Phinehas, to Hezekiah, to Ezekiel, and also to Ezra, who is supposed by some to have collected it from the memoirs, which the several judges respectively furnished of their own government. It seems however most probable, that Samuel was the author; who, being a Prophet or seer, and described in the book of Chronicles as an historian, may reasonably be supposed, as he was the last of the judges, to have written this part of the Jewish history, since the inspired writers alone were permitted to describe those relations, in which were interwoven the instructions and judgments of the Lord. That it was certainly written before the reign of David is proved from the following passage, chap. i. ver. 21, "The Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin unto this day:" for it is certain, 2 Sam. v. 6, that the Jebusites were driven out of that city early in the reign of David.

The history of this book may be divided into two parts; the first, containing an account of the judges from Othniel to Samson, ending at the 16th chapter. The second part describing remarkable particulars which occurred not long after the death of Joshua, which are placed towards the end of the book, in the 17th and following chapters, that they may not interrupt the course of the history. What relates to the two last judges, Eli and Samuel, is recorded in the 1st book of Samuel. It comprehends a period of about 309 years from the death of Joshua to that of Samson; but there is great difficulty in settling the precise chronology of the several facts related in it, because many of them are reckoned from different eras, which cannot now be exactly ascertained. This book gives an account of the farther conquests of the Israelites in the land of Canaan, of their disobedience to the commands of God, and of their consequent subjection to the king of Mesopotamia. Bp. Tomline, Dr. Gray.

CHAP. I.

Before
CHRIST
about 1425.

1 The acts of Judah and Simeon. 4 Adoni-bezek justly requited. 8 Jerusalem taken. 10 Hebron taken. 11 Othniel hath Achsah to wife for taking of Debir. 16 The Kenites dwell in Judah. 17 Hormah, Gaza, Askelon and Ekron taken. 21 The acts of Benjamin. 22 Of the house of Joseph, who take Beth-el. 30 Of Zebulun. 31 Of Asher. 33 Of Naphtali. 34 Of Dan.

NOW after the death of Joshua it came to pass, that the children of Israel asked the LORD, saying, Who shall go up for us against the Canaanites first, to fight against them?

2 And the LORD said, Judah shall go up: behold, I have delivered the land into his hand. Before
CHRIST
about 1425.

3 And Judah said unto Simeon his brother, Come up with me into my lot, that we may fight against the Canaanites; and I likewise will go with thee into thy lot. So Simeon went with him.

4 And Judah went up; and the LORD delivered the Canaanites and the Perizzites into their hand: and they slew of them in Bezek ten thousand men.

5 And they found Adoni-bezek in Be-

Chap. I. ver. 1. Now after the death of Joshua] Joshua deviated from the example of his illustrious predecessor, in not applying, like him, to the Lord to appoint a successor to lead the people, Numb. xxvii. 17. What were his reasons for this remarkable omission, which made an essential breach in the constitution of the government, and led to all the disorders of anarchy, is not noticed in Scripture, and can only be supplied by conjecture. Perhaps the rising jealousy and rivalry of the northern and southern states, headed by the tribes of Ephraim and Judah, may have prevented their uniting in the choice of a judge for the common weal; and God may have left them to themselves, to follow their own imaginations, in politicks and in religion, in order to prove them, and to humble their pride, and to chastise them for their good: as also, for these wise reasons, He left a remnant of the devoted nations, and part of the land, unsubdued by Joshua, "without hastily driving them out," Judges ii. 20—23; iii. 1—4. Dr. Hales.

It is probable that, after the death of Joshua, every tribe was governed by its respective head, or elder; (which form of government subsisted about thirty years;) and that, in their wars with the Canaanites, they made these their commanders. Stackhouse.

3. — Judah said unto Simeon his brother,] Simeon and Judah were brethren by the same father and mother; and the tribes descended from them were also joined together in situation, the lot of Simeon being taken out of the lot of Judah, Josh. xix. 9. Bp. Patrick.

^{Before CHRIST about 1425.} zek: and they fought against him, and they slew the Canaanites and the Perizzites.

6 But Adoni-bezek fled; and they pursued after him, and caught him, and cut off his thumbs and his great toes.

7 And Adoni-bezek said, Threescore and ten kings, having [†] their thumbs and their great toes cut off, || gathered their meat under my table: as I have done, so God hath requited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he died.

† Heb. the thumbs of their hands and of their feet.
|| Or, gleaned.

8 Now the children of Judah had fought against Jerusalem, and had taken it, and smitten it with the edge of the sword, and set the city on fire.

^a Josh. 10. 56. & 11. 21 & 15. 15.

9 ¶ ^a And afterward the children of Judah went down to fight against the Canaanites, that dwelt in the mountain, and in the south, and in the || valley.

|| Or, the low country.

10 And Judah went against the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron: (now the name of Hebron before was ^b Kirjath-arba:) and they slew Sheshai, and Ahiman, and Talmai.

^b Josh. 15. 15.

11 And from thence he went against the inhabitants of Debir: and the name of Debir before was Kirjath-sepher:

1444.

12 And Caleb said, He that smiteth Kirjath-sepher, and taketh it, to him will I give Achsah my daughter to wife.

13 And Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother, took it: and he gave him Achsah his daughter to wife.

14 And it came to pass, when she came to him, that she moved him to ask of her father a field: and she lighted from off her ass; and Caleb said unto her, What wilt thou?

15 And she said unto him, Give me a blessing: for thou hast given me a south land; give me also springs of water. And Caleb gave her the upper springs and the nether springs.

^{Before CHRIST about 1425.}

16 ¶ And the children of the Kenite, Moses' father in law, went up out of the city of palm trees with the children of Judah into the wilderness of Judah, which lieth in the south of Arad; and they went and dwelt among the people.

about 1425.

17 And Judah went with Simeon his brother, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and utterly destroyed it. And the name of the city was called ^c Hormah.

^c Numb. 21. 3.

18 Also Judah took Gaza with the coast thereof, and Askelon with the coast thereof, and Ekron with the coast thereof.

19 And the LORD was with Judah; and || he drave out the inhabitants of the mountain; but could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron.

|| Or, he possessed the mountain.

20 And they gave Hebron unto Caleb, ^d as Moses said: and he expelled thence the three sons of Anak.

^d Numb. 14. 24. Josh. 14. 13. & 15. 14.

21 And the children of Benjamin did not drive out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem; but the Jebusites dwell with the children of Benjamin in Jerusalem unto this day.

22 ¶ And the house of Joseph, they also went up against Beth-el: and the LORD was with them.

23 And the house of Joseph sent to descry Beth-el. (Now the name of the city before was ^e Luz.)

^e Gen. 28. 19.

24 And the spies saw a man come forth out of the city, and they said unto him,

6. — cut off his thumbs and his great toes.] They did this, to render him incapable of any warlike action in future, and in just retaliation of his pride and cruelty towards others, as follows in the next verse; (Pyle;) to render him unable to handle arms by reason of the loss of his thumbs, or to run swiftly (which was a notable quality in a warrior of those days) from the loss of his great toes. Bp. Patrick.

7. — as I have done, so God hath requited me.] Thus does the suffering of punishment extort the confession of guilt. Adoni-bezek, who scarcely believed, or at least not well remembered, there was a God till now, is here forced to confess, The irresistible God, who crusheth down the proud, He hath requited me. Jos. Mede.

12. And Caleb said, &c.] This and the three following verses occurred before at Josh. xv. 16: they seem to have been there inserted from this place, for the purpose of bringing together, and more fully illustrating, all that related to the tribe of Judah.

16. — the children of the Kenite, Moses' father in law,] We read at Numb. x. 29, that Hobab, the son of Jethro, was invited by Moses to accompany him to the land of Canaan; and the offer, it appears, was accepted. Bp. Patrick.

— the city of palm trees] Meaning Jericho, about which grew a number of palm trees. They probably dwelt in the territory round it, for the city itself was destroyed by Joshua: probably, however, some fortifications and houses remained; for we read, at chap. iii. 13, that the Moabites took it. Bp. Patrick.

19. — could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley,] Here now began to be opened the fountain of all the evils that afterwards befell the Israelites; in that, either through sloth or covetousness, or distrust of God's power, or forgetfulness of His promise, or more lenity than the Law of Moses allowed, they did not attempt to subdue those people who were stronger than ordinary; or, being unfaithful to God, failed in the attempt; or, having some success, only brought them under tribute. Bp. Patrick. They feared, or cared not, to attack the inhabitants of the low country "because they had chariots of iron," because they were formidable from their numbers, strength, and instruments of war. Dr. Wells, Pyle.

21. — did not drive out the Jebusites] They probably did not attempt to drive them out, from a similar distrust of the power of God. Dr. Wells.

22. — the house of Joseph,] Meaning the tribe of Ephraim; for Manasseh, Joseph's other son, is mentioned at ver. 27. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1425.

† Josh. 2.
14.

Shew us, we pray thee, the entrance into the city, and we will shew thee mercy.

25 And when he shewed them the entrance into the city, they smote the city with the edge of the sword; but they let go the man and all his family.

26 And the man went into the land of the Hittites, and built a city, and called the name thereof Luz: which is the name thereof unto this day.

* Josh. 17.
11, 12.

27 ¶ Neither did Manasseh drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shean and her towns, nor Taanach and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Dor and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Ibleam and her towns, nor the inhabitants of Megiddo and her towns: but the Canaanites would dwell in that land.

28 And it came to pass, when Israel was strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute, and did not utterly drive them out.

‡ Josh. 16.
10.

29 ¶ Neither did Ephraim drive out the Canaanites that dwelt in Gezer; but the Canaanites dwelt in Gezer among them.

30 ¶ Neither did Zebulun drive out the inhabitants of Kitron, nor the inhabitants of Nahalol; but the Canaanites dwelt among them, and became tributaries.

31 ¶ Neither did Asher drive out the inhabitants of Accho, nor the inhabitants of Zidon, nor of Ahlab, nor of Achzib, nor of Helbah, nor of Aphik, nor of Rehob:

27. — the Canaanites would dwell in that land.] That is, they were content to pay tribute, rather than be driven out: so the Hebrew word, which we translate would, may signify. Dr. Wells.

28. — they put the Canaanites to tribute.] This early degree of sloth and worldlimindedness laid the foundation of all the ensuing calamities which befell the people. Pyle. Herein the Israelites acted contrary to the Divine Law, by which they were peremptorily commanded to destroy the Canaanites when they were able. They were probably influenced by motives of indolence and gain. Bp. Patrick.

32. — the Asherites dwelt among the Canaanites.] It appears from this expression that the tribe of Asher did not even make the Canaanites tributary, but entered into a league of friendship with them, and mixed with them, as if they had been one nation. Bp. Patrick.

36. — from the rock.] The Hebrew word here is Selah; as some think, the name of a city in Edom, called Petra by the Greeks and Romans. The limits of the country are here laid down, to which the Amorites were now confined by the Israelites. Dr. Wells.

The situation of the Jewish nation, during the government of its judges, seems calculated to promote the efficacy of that system of discipline, under which it was placed, by the very circumstance which at first sight seems most repugnant to it, the want of a close union and common interest between the several tribes. If, on the one hand, this prevented them from regularly uniting under a common leader, except when such an one was pointed out by some clear manifestation of the Divine will in his appointment, and Divine aid in his support, and thus left them, both as tribes and individuals, to do "what was right in their own eyes," without any immediate, visible, and regular control; on the other hand, this very circumstance enabled the Deity to exhibit more conspicuously the operation of that particular Providence, which

Before
CHRIST
about 1425.

32 But the Asherites dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: for they did not drive them out.

33 ¶ Neither did Naphtali drive out the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh, nor the inhabitants of Beth-anath; but he dwelt among the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land: nevertheless the inhabitants of Beth-shemesh and of Beth-anath became tributaries unto them.

34 And the Amorites forced the children of Dan into the mountain: for they would not suffer them to come down to the valley:

35 But the Amorites would dwell in mount Heres in Aijalon, and in Shaal-bim: yet the hand of the house of Joseph † prevailed, so that they became tributaries.

† Heb. was heavy.

36 And the coast of the Amorites was from || the going up to Akkrabbim, from the rock, and upward.

|| Or,
Maale-Akkrabbim.

CHAP. II.

1 An angel rebuketh the people at Bochim. 6 The wickedness of the new generation after Joshua. 14 God's anger and pity towards them. 20 The Canaanites are left to prove Israel.

AND an || angel of the LORD came up || Or,
from Gilgal to Bochim, and said, I messenger.
made you to go up out of Egypt, and have

He had declared should distribute temporal prosperity and calamity, according to the degree of obedience or disobedience to the Mosaic Law, which not only the people collectively, but each distinct tribe and family, should manifest; and thus gradually to imprint more deeply on the whole nation the necessity of obedience to the Divine will, by examples within their immediate observance, the full force of which they could distinctly apprehend. Of the plan of distributing prosperity or calamity to the different tribes, according to their good or ill conduct, we have numerous instances. Thus Judah and Simeon, Judg. i. went to attack and dispossess the Canaanites, who were remaining in the territory allotted to their inheritance, and the Lord was with them, and gave their arms success, as far as they continued their confidence in the Divine aid. A similar observation is made with regard to the tribe of Joseph; while five other tribes are enumerated, who, indulging their own indolence, or destitute of sufficient faith in the Divine aid, would not drive out the Canaanites, but were satisfied with making them tributary; and the subsequent history shews, that this was the cause of the severest calamities to these tribes: those nations soon became "thorns in their sides," Judg. ii. 3; the instruments of the Divine chastisements, merited by this disobedience, and by the subsequent idolatries to which it led. Dr. Graves.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — an angel of the Lord] From the words which follow, "I made you to go up out of Egypt," it appears that this was not a created, but an uncreated angel, "the Angel of the covenant," the same which appeared to Joshua near Jericho, Josh. v. 13, which, as was there shewn, was the Son of God Himself. Bp. Patrick.

— came up from Gilgal to Bochim.] The Divine Person spake first perhaps to some considerable persons at Gilgal, and then to the whole assembly at Bochim. Pyle. In all probability,

Before
CHRIST
about 1405.

* Deut. 7. 2.

* Deut. 12.

†

* Josh. 23.

13.

* Exod. 23.

32. & 34.

12.

† That is,
weepers.

about 1444.

brought you unto the land which I swore unto your fathers; and I said, I will never break my covenant with you.

2 And ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of this land; ye shall throw down their altars: but ye have not obeyed my voice: why have ye done this?

3 Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you.

4 And it came to pass, when the angel of the LORD spake these words unto all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voice, and wept.

5 And they called the name of that place Bochim: and they sacrificed there unto the LORD.

6 ¶ And when Joshua had let the people go, the children of Israel went every man unto his inheritance to possess the land.

7 And the people served the LORD all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that † outlived Joshua, who had seen all the great works of the LORD, that he did for Israel.

8 And Joshua the son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died, being an hundred and ten years old.

9 And they buried him in the border of his inheritance in Timnath-heres, in the mount of Ephraim, on the north side of the hill Gaash.

10 And also all that generation were gathered unto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Israel.

11 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim:

12 And they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods,

Before
CHRIST
about 1444.

† Heb. prolonged days after Joshua.
about 1426

the latter place was Shiloh, where the people of Israel were wont to assemble, and which was now called Bochim. Bp. Patrick. Or else it lay near to Shiloh. Dr. Wells.

3. Wherefore I also said,] "I said" means "I resolved." Dr. Wells.

6. And when Joshua had &c.] The inspired writer here repeats what had before been mentioned in the book of Joshua; probably in order to shew that the Israelites went to their possessions well disposed, although their love of the world and study of their own private advantages so increased, as to make them forget the public good, and take little care of their religion. Bp. Patrick.

7. — served the Lord all the days of Joshua,] The Jews were strictly commanded to complete the expulsion of the Canaanites, fully empowered to do so, and warned of the guilt of neglecting it; of the temptation to which that neglect would expose them, and the certain punishment which would await their transgression. On their disobeying the Divine command, an angel was sent to remind them of their duty, and of the danger they incurred. Notwithstanding, however, their repeated and flagrant disobedience, the wonders they had already seen, and the discipline under which they had been trained, produced on that generation a decisive and permanent effect, for "Israel served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and of the elders that outlived Joshua." Dr. Graves.

10. — which knew not the Lord,] Which did not regard the Lord, nor cleave to His religion. Bp. Patrick. Which had not been eyewitnesses of the before-mentioned miracles, and therefore were thoughtless of God, and careless of their duty towards Him. Dr. Wells.

The Jews were, at this period, mere children in moral and religious conduct: they were very inattentive to the history of past transactions, so that many of the very next generation after Joshua "knew not," that is, considered not, and therefore acted as if they had not known, the wonders which God had wrought for Israel. The temptations to intermarry with their neighbours, and adopt their manners and worship, were too powerful for their unsteady and carnal minds: the beauty of the women of Canaan, the pomp and gaiety of their festivals, the voluptuousness of their impure rites, the hope of gratifying their curiosity by idolatrous divinations, the overpowering fears impressed on their souls by idolatrous superstition; their anxiety to conciliate the favour of those divinities, who were represented as the peculiar gods of the country in which they were newly settled; these and other similar motives demanded a strict and immediate discipline to counteract their influence, and to preserve amidst this backsliding and unstable people the main principles of religion and morality. Dr. Graves.

11. — served Baalim:] The idol gods or deified men of the Canaanites and other nations. The word Baal, in Hebrew, signifies "Lord," and was applied as a general name to the idols of Syria, Palestine, and the neighbouring nations. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. "Baal and Ashtaroth," ver. 13, the sun and the moon. Dr. Hales.

12. And they forsook the Lord God of their fathers,] It has sometimes been asserted, that the repeated relapses of the Jews into idolatry, at various periods of their history, render the reality of the Mosaic miracles suspicious: for, according to those who thus argue, it is not credible that the witnesses of such stupendous miracles, or their immediate posterity, should have so soon forgotten the Divine power thus plainly manifested, or apostatize from a religion thus awfully enforced. But these reasoners entirely mistake the nature of this apostasy, and forget the character of the people among whom, and the period when, it took place. These relapses into idolatry never implied a rejection of Jehovah, as their God, or a doubt of the truth of the Mosaic Law. The Jewish idolatry consisted for the most part in worshipping the true God by images and symbols; or in worshipping Him in forbidden places, on high hills, and under groves; or in combining idolatrous rites with the Mosaic appointment, and joining together the worship of God and idols, none of which imply any doubt of the existence of the true Jehovah, but arose from their proneness to imitate the superstitions of the neighbouring nations. Even when they gave way to that most flagrant species of idolatry, the worship of idols without God; yet even then they did not so much reject the true God, as conceive that there were intermediate and subordinate deities, with whom they had more immediate concern. In truth, the temptations to some or all of these kinds of idolatry were so powerful, from errors in opinion widely spread, and sanctioned by the Egyptians and Canaanites, and strengthened by the habitual attachment of the Jews to the idols, the symbols, and the rites of Egypt, as well as the sensual allurements of idolatrous worship, and the overpowering terrors of idolatrous superstition; that we have rather reason to wonder that the Jews, dull, sensual, and stubborn as they were, could by any system of discipline be corrected, than to doubt that such Divine superintendence and control was actually exercised, because they relapsed so frequently into their idolatries. Dr. Graves.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

of the gods of the people that were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the LORD to anger.

13 And they forsook the LORD, and served Baal and Ashtaroth.

^c Psal. 44.
12.
Isa. 50. 1.

14 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he delivered them into the hands of spoilers that spoiled them, and ^c he sold them into the hands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before their enemies.

^f Lev. 26.
Deut. 28.

15 Whithersoever they went out, the hand of the LORD was against them for evil, as the LORD had said, and ^f as the LORD had sworn unto them: and they were greatly distressed.

[†] Heb. saved.

16 ¶ Nevertheless the LORD raised up judges, which [†] delivered them out of the hand of those that spoiled them.

17 And yet they would not hearken unto their judges, but they went a whoring after other gods, and bowed themselves unto them: they turned quickly out of the way which their fathers walked in, obeying the commandments of the LORD; but they did not so.

18 And when the LORD raised them up judges, then the LORD was with the judge, and delivered them out of the hand of their enemies all the days of the judge: for it repented the LORD because of their groanings by reason of them that oppressed them and vexed them.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

19 And it came to pass, ^e when the judge was dead, that they returned, and || corrupted themselves more than their fathers, in following other gods to serve them, and to bow down unto them; [†] they ceased not from their own doings, nor from their stubborn way.

^e Chap. 3.
12.
|| Or,
were corrupt.

[†] Heb.
they let nothing fall of their.

20 ¶ And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel; and he said, Because that this people hath transgressed my covenant which I commanded their fathers, and have not hearkened unto my voice;

21 I also will not henceforth drive out any from before them of the nations which Joshua left when he died:

22 That through them I may prove Israel, whether they will keep the way of the LORD to walk therein, as their fathers did keep it, or not.

23 Therefore the LORD || left those nations, without driving them out hastily; neither delivered he them into the hand of Joshua.

|| Or, suffered.

CHAP. III.

1 The nations which were left to prove Israel. 6 By communion with them they commit idolatry. 8 Oth-

14, 15. And the anger of the Lord was hot &c.] The Divine vengeance soon began to repay them the effects of their folly and ingratitude; the Canaanites became their masters, and treated them on all sides with desolation, insolence, and slavery. Thus God fulfilled His threatenings, Deut. xxviii; and, in proportion to the increase of their iniquities, they became weak and destitute, and a perfect prey to their enemies. Pyle.

16. —judges,] These were extraordinary rulers, inspired with courage and wisdom for their deliverance from slavery, and for effecting their reformation. Pyle. They appear to have had authority chiefly in time of war, so that, commonly, when they had wrought the deliverance for the people, and the army was dismissed, they became private persons again: still some had an established authority for their life, not over the whole commonwealth of Israel, but over that part of it which they rescued from slavery. The constant phrase concerning these great men, is, "that the Lord raised them up;" that is, stirred them, by an extraordinary motion, to undertake things beyond the reach of human wisdom or power. Bp. Patrick.

They were governours, possessing a power between that of a king and an ordinary magistrate; inferior to that of the former, and superior to the latter. Scripture tells us, that God "raised them up;" that is, communicated to them gifts, natural and supernatural, according to the exigencies of the people; and, in all their encounters with their enemies, attended them with a peculiar providence. They were appointed by God; being, however, only marked out for the office by the gifts with which He invested them, and the exploits which He enabled them to perform. They were, in fact, God's vicegerents for the government of the people: every attempt at raising themselves to the regal dignity was deemed an usurpation on His right, who was the only Sovereign of the Hebrews; and therefore we find Gideon refusing this supreme authority when it was offered to him, chap. viii. 23. In short, these judges were by office the protectors of the laws, the defenders of religion, and the avengers of all crimes, particularly of idolatry. It must be owned, that, as the power of working miracles is not necessarily accompanied with a holy life, so the persons, thus employed by God, did not always lead lives answerable to this high character: they were men of the same passions and infirmities with others; and the great advantages which, under God, they procured for the Israelites, did not exempt them from that frailty, which is incident to all things human. Stackhouse. They were raised up by God, not in regular succession, but as emergencies required, when the repentance of the Israelites influenced Him to compassionate their distress, and to afford them deliverance from their dangers. They frequently acted by a Divine suggestion, and were endowed with preternatural strength and fortitude. Some reckon, on the whole, fifteen, and some sixteen, judges. Dr. Gray. God raised up various judges and kings and Prophets to deliver, to instruct, and to govern His people; and He gave them such aids of valour, prudence, knowledge, and such a degree of success, as were sufficient for the purposes they were necessarily to answer; but He did not make them, or the nation at large, infallible or incapable of sinning: the judges often fell into errors and crimes; Samson abused his supernatural strength; as in aftertimes, David's piety and virtue were overpowered by criminal desire acquiring an undue ascendancy; and Solomon, notwithstanding his extraordinary wisdom, was corrupted by sensuality, and fell into idolatry. But this does not render it at all incredible that they were actually employed by God to effect His purposes, and were, on particular occasions, assisted with extraordinary aid. Dr. Graves.

18. —for it repented the Lord] That is, God altered the course of His providence towards them, when they groaned under their oppressions, and cried to Him for help with the promise of amendment, chap. iii. 9, 15; vi. 7, 8. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

mel delivereth them from Chushan-rishathaim. 12
Ehud from Eglon. 31 Shamgar from the Philistines.

NOW these are the nations which the LORD left, to prove Israel by them, even as many of Israel as had not known all the wars of Canaan;

2 Only that the generations of the children of Israel might know, to teach them war, at the least such as before knew nothing thereof;

3 Namely, five lords of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, and the Sidonians, and the Hivites that dwelt in mount Lebanon, from mount Baal-hermon unto the entering in of Hamath.

4 And they were to prove Israel by them, to know whether they would hearken unto the commandments of the LORD, which he commanded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

5 ¶ And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, and Amorites, and Perizzites, and Hivites, and Jebusites:

6 And they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods.

about 1406. 7 And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD, and forgot the LORD their God, and served Baalim and the groves.

8 ¶ Therefore the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he sold them into the hand of Chushan-rishathaim king of † Mesopotamia: and the children of Israel served Chushan-rishathaim eight years.

9 And when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised up a † deliverer to the children of Israel, who delivered them, even Othniel the son of Kenaz, Caleb's younger brother.

10 And the Spirit of the LORD † came upon him, and he judged Israel, and went out to war: and the LORD delivered Chushan-rishathaim king of † Mesopotamia into his hand; and his hand prevailed against Chushan-rishathaim.

11 And the land had rest forty years. And Othniel the son of Kenaz died.

12 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD: and the LORD strengthened Eglon the king of Moab against Israel, because they had done evil in the sight of the LORD.

13 And he gathered unto him the children of Ammon and Amalek, and went and smote Israel, and possessed the city of palm trees.

14 So the children of Israel served Eglon the king of Moab eighteen years.

15 But when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, the LORD raised them up a deliverer, Ehud the son of Gera, † a Benjamite, a man † left-handed: and by him

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.
† Heb.
Aram-nahuraim.

about 1402.
† Heb.
saviour.
about 1594.

† Heb. was.

† Heb.
Aram.

about 1354.

about 1336.
‡ Or, the son of Jemini.
† Heb. shut off his right hand.

Chap. III. ver. 2. — that the generations — might know, to teach them war.] Another reason is here given for a portion of the Canaanites being left among the Israelites; namely, to keep up their warlike discipline and disposition, to prevent their growing sluggish from the want of occasions to exercise their courage, and to make them feel more sensibly their continued dependence on the power of God. Bp. Patrick.

6. — took their daughters to be their wives.] Which was a much more flagrant breach of the law of God, than the mere making leagues with them. Bp. Patrick.

7. — and the groves.] By “groves” we are here to understand the images of their gods in the groves. Selden. Or, the idols fixed in temples, which were surrounded anciently with trees, to make the places more solemn and awful. Pyle. Some take the expression of “serving the groves,” to mean, literally, worshipping the trees themselves, which were sometimes consecrated to particular deities. Bp. Patrick. See 2 Kings xvii. 10; xxi. 7; xxiii. 4, 6, 7, 14, 15.

8. — he sold them into the hand] Brought them under tribute, and forced them to buy their peace on hard terms. Bp. Patrick.

— Mesopotamia:] The country which lay between the rivers Tigris and Euphrates. Bp. Patrick.

10. — the Spirit of the Lord came upon him,] He had an extraordinary impulse from God to take upon him the government of the country, and to judge Israel, that is, to rectify what was amiss, and especially to bring them back to the true worship of God. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. “The Spirit of the Lord,” by which he was said to be inspired, here and in many other parts of the Old Testament, intimates the spirit of fortitude, or extraordinary courage, as opposed to the spirit of fear or faintness of heart. Dr. Hales.

12. And the children of Israel did evil again] No sooner “had Israel rest,” than it is added, “they did evil again.” Thus the security of any people is too often the cause of their corruption. While the Israelites were exercised with war, how scrupulous were they of the least intimation of idolatry: the mere news of an altar beyond Jordan, Josh. xxii. 15, &c. drew them together for a revenge; now when they are at peace with their enemies, they become at variance with God. Bp. Hall.

The most remarkable circumstance in the various Jewish apostasies seems to be this; that it was only in their prosperity the Mosaic Law was neglected and violated; in adversity, when reflection was awakened, and seriousness restored, they always cried to their God, as the only sure source of deliverance, and as uniformly received the deliverance they sought. Surely this can be accounted for, only on the supposition that the Mosaic Law was really dictated by a Divine authority, and continually supported by a Divine interposition. Dr. Graves.

From the circumstance of the Israelites being most prone to idolatry in prosperous times, and generally returning to the God of their fathers at the season of adversity, we are supplied with a clear proof that their defection from the true God was not any doubt of His goodness or power, but a wanton abuse of His blessings. If they had doubted the truth and Divine authority of their Law, their behaviour would have been naturally otherwise: they would have adhered to it in times of prosperity, and would have left it in adversity and trouble. Bp. Warburton.

13. — went and smote Israel,] That part of Israel which lived east of Jordan; and also, passing over Jordan, took the city and territory of Jericho in the tribe of Benjamin. Dr. Wells.

15. — a man left-handed:] The Hebrew word is thought to Before CHRIST about 1336. the children of Israel sent a present unto Eglon the king of Moab.

16 But Ehud made him a dagger which had two edges, of a cubit length; and he did gird it under his raiment upon his right thigh.

17 And he brought the present unto Eglon king of Moab: and Eglon was a very fat man.

18 And when he had made an end to offer the present, he sent away the people that bare the present.

19 But he himself turned again from the || quarries that were by Gilgal, and said, I have a secret errand unto thee, O king: who said, Keep silence. And all that stood by him went out from him.

20 And Ehud came unto him; and he was sitting in † a summer parlour, which he had for himself alone. And Ehud said, I have a message from God unto thee. And he arose out of his seat.

21 And Ehud put forth his left hand, and took the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into his belly:

22 And the haft also went in after the blade; and the fat closed upon the blade, so that he could not draw the dagger out of his belly; and || the dirt came out.

23 Then Ehud went forth through the porch, and shut the doors of the parlour upon him, and locked them.

24 When he was gone out, his servants came; and when they saw that, behold, the doors of the parlour were locked, they said, Surely he || covereth his feet in his summer chamber.

25 And they tarried till they were ashamed: and, behold, he opened not the doors of the parlour; therefore they took a key, and opened them: and, behold, their lord was fallen down dead on the earth.

26 And Ehud escaped while they tarried, and passed beyond the quarries, and escaped unto Seirath.

27 And it came to pass, when he was come, that he blew a trumpet in the mountain of Ephraim, and the children of Israel went down with him from the mount, and he before them.

28 And he said unto them, Follow after me: for the Lord hath delivered your enemies the Moabites into your hand. And they went down after him, and took the fords of Jordan toward Moab, and suffered not a man to pass over.

29 And they slew of Moab at that time about ten thousand men, all † lusty, and † Heb. ^{fat} all men of valour; and there escaped not a man.

30 So Moab was subdued that day under the hand of Israel. And the land had rest fourseore years.

31 ¶ And after him was Shamgar the son of Anath, which slew of the Philistines mean, properly, one who could wield a sword equally with either hand; could use both his hands as his right. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

16. — upon his right thigh.] As men usually wear their swords on the left thigh, this was done to avoid suspicion, and also to draw it out the more readily with his left hand. Bp. Patrick.

18. — made an end to offer the present.] There is still preserved in the East a great deal of pomp and parade in presenting their gifts; they frequently load on four or five horses what might easily be carried on one. Something of this pomp is referred to, in the account of the present made by Ehud, when we read of a number of persons who conveyed it, and of their “making an end of offering the present.” Harmer.

19. — the quarries] It is doubtful what is meant by this word; some understand a place where stones were dug; others, the twelve stones which Joshua set up in Gilgal; others, again, (as in our margin,) graven images, or idols set up by the Moabites, the sight of which, it is thought, stirred up Ehud to revenge the affront to his God. Bp. Patrick.

20. — I have a message from God] This in some sense was true, but not in the sense in which the king understood it. He probably thought that Ehud had met with some Divine apparition, or had been to consult some oracle. Bp. Patrick.

— he arose out of his seat.] Out of reverence to the name of God, whose words he supposed he was to hear. This is a remarkable instance of the ancient veneration which men paid to all that carried the name and authority of God, and reproaches those who now behave themselves irreverently in the Divine worship and service. Bp. Patrick.

We cannot but wonder at the devout reverence of this heathen prince: no sooner does he hear news of a message from God, than he rises up from his throne, and reverently attends the tenour thereof. Though he had no superiour to control him, yet he could not bear to be unmannerly in the presence of God. This man was an idolater, a tyrant; yet what outward respect does he pay to the true God! Bp. Hall.

21. And Ehud put forth &c.] This would have been a very unjustifiable act, if he had not been specially excited to it by an express order from God, for the punishment of so oppressive and wicked a tyrant. Pyle. How far such an assassination was justifiable, we cannot presume to say: Scripture barely states the fact, without any comment: the case is not to be judged by ordinary rules, nor drawn into a precedent in other times. Dr. Hales. The text at chap. iii. 15, expressly says, that “the Lord raised up Ehud:” it is well known that all the deliverances which the Jews had under the judges were directed and conducted by the immediate hand of God, according as the people, by their repentance, became fit to receive them. Ehud was under a special direction of Heaven, and proceeded under a Divine warrant, which is a clear foundation of action; but this can never be drawn into a precedent by others, who have no warrant to act upon. Dr. Waterland. Or it may be sufficient to understand that God made use of Ehud as an instrument; not by inspiring him with a disposition to kill Eglon, but by giving him, when found with such a disposition, power to execute his purpose. Edit.

23. — the porch.] There is uncertainty in the word thus translated: some understand the guard chamber, or place where the king's servants sat, through which Ehud boldly passed. Bp. Patrick.

24. — he covereth his feet] Or he is laid down to sleep: they were wont in those countries to sleep in the heat of the day, and then, lying down in their clothes, covered their feet with them. Bp. Patrick.

27. — from the mount.] From the mountainous country of Ephraim. Dr. Wells.

^{Before CHRIST about 1316.} six hundred men with an ox goad: and he also delivered Israel.

CHAP. IV.

1 Deborah and Barak deliver them from Jabin and Sisera. 18 Jael killeth Sisera.

^{about 1316.} AND the children of Israel again did evil in the sight of the Lord, when Ehud was dead.

2 And the Lord sold them into the hand of Jabin king of Canaan, that reigned in Hazor; the captain of whose host was Sisera, which dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles.

3 And the children of Israel cried unto the Lord: for he had nine hundred chariots of iron; and twenty years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

31. — with an ox goad.] The goad of Palestine is of enormous size, and well calculated for a military offensive weapon, according to the description of the intelligent Maundrell, who observes in his diary, "At Kane Leban, (a place about a day's journey from Jerusalem,) the country people were, at the time when I was there, ploughing every where in the fields. It was observable, that in ploughing they used goads of an extraordinary size: I found some of them, on measuring, to be eight feet long, and at the bigger end, six inches in circumference. They were armed at the lesser end with a sharp prickle for driving the oxen; and, at the other end, with a small spade or paddle of iron, strong and massy, for cleansing the plough from the clay which encumbers it in working. May we not hence conjecture, that it was with such a goad as one of these, that Shamgar made that prodigious slaughter? I am confident that whoever should see one of these instruments, which are commonly used in all these parts, would judge it to be a weapon, not less fit, perhaps fitter than a sword, for such an execution." It is probable that the policy of disarming the Israelites, mentioned in Saul's time, 1 Sam. xiii. 19, was now introduced by their enemies; and that Shamgar, for want of other weapons, had recourse to an ox goad, which was left for purposes of agriculture. Dr. Hales.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. — the children of Israel again did evil] Well might we wonder at the frequent relapses of the children of Israel into idolatry, did we not find the same evil propensity in ourselves, the same proneness to forsake God, and idolize the creature. Ease and prosperity are apt to produce in us as ungrateful returns to our great Benefactor, as they did in the Jews. No sooner were they delivered from the smart of punishment, but the next account of them is, that they "did evil again." Again they are punished; again they cry to God; again they are delivered. Thus, likewise, when affliction presses us sore, we cry unto the Lord in our trouble, and He saveth us from our distress. Yet no sooner are our fears and dangers over, than we abuse the mercy, and start aside like a broken bow. Thus our lives are made up, as was the history of the Jews, of acts of disobedience and of repentances; of judgments and mercies; checked, as it were, with sin and punishment, with forgiveness and sin. Wogan.

2. — Jabin, — Hazor;] Hazor had been destroyed by Joshua, Josh. xi. 10, and the king of it, named Jabin, slain, chap. xi. 1; xii. 19. Thus it appears that Jabin was a common name of the kings, as Pharaoh was of the Egyptian kings; and either the place had been now rebuilt, or the name Hazor applies not to the city, but to the neighbouring country. Bp. Patrick.

— Harosheth of the Gentiles.] So called perhaps because people of many different nations dwelt there under Jabin's protection. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. See the note on Gen. xiv. 1.

4 ¶ And Deborah, a prophetess, the ^{Before CHRIST about 1316.} wife of Lapidoth, she judged Israel at that time.

5 And she dwelt under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Beth-el in mount Ephraim: and the children of Israel came up to her for judgment.

6 And she sent and called Barak the son ^{about 1296.} of Abinoam out of Kedesh-naphtali, and said unto him, Hath not the Lord God of Israel commanded, saying, Go and draw toward mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men of the children of Naphtali and of the children of Zebulun?

7 And I will draw unto thee to the ^{a Ps. 83. 6.} river Kishon Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, ^{10.} with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand.

4. — Deborah, a prophetess.] The term prophetess is applied to Deborah in the same sense as it was to Miriam; meaning that she was endued with Divine gifts to instruct, direct, and govern others, and also excited by God's Holy Spirit to declare His will to the people; which was the peculiar office of a prophet. Bp. Patrick.

The words prophet and prophetess are of ambiguous signification in both Testaments. Sometimes they denote persons extraordinarily inspired by God, and endued with the power of working miracles, and foretelling things to come; and sometimes they are used for persons endued with special, though not miraculous gifts or graces, for the better understanding the word of God. As we read nothing of any miraculous action which Deborah performed, she perhaps was only a woman of eminent holiness and prudence, and knowledge of the Scriptures, by which she was singularly qualified to "judge the people," that is, to determine causes and controversies among them, according to the word of God. Stackhouse. See the note on Numb. xi. 25.

— the wife of Lapidoth.] Some understand Lapidoth to be a place, and translate a woman of Lapidoth. Bp. Patrick.

— she judged Israel] Possessed the supreme authority, being so well known to be divinely inspired as to procure for her universal reverence, and submission to her judgment. Bp. Patrick.

5. — dwelt under the palm tree] She sat under the palm tree when she administered judgment. Bp. Patrick.

6. — Hath not the Lord God] A form of expression, which signifies, "Assuredly He hath commanded." Dr. Wells.

— mount Tabor.] A famous mountain in Galilee, in the tribe of Zebulun. It appears to have been a remarkably commodious place for the rendezvous of Barak's forces, since it stood upon the confines of so many different tribes, was not accessible by the enemy's horses and chariots, and had on its top a spacious plain, where he could conveniently discipline his troops. What modern travellers tell us of this mountain is much to the same purpose; "After a very laborious ascent (says Maundrell) we reached the highest parts of the mountain, which has a plain area at top, fertile and delicious, about a furlong in length, and two in breadth. The top of this mountain was anciently environed with walls, trenches, and other fortifications, of which some remains are still visible." It has generally been believed that our Saviour's transfiguration took place on this mountain. Stackhouse.

7. — I will draw unto thee] These are the words of God, pronounced by Deborah, signifying that He would by His secret providence incline Sisera to come within his power, so as to be destroyed. Bp. Patrick.

— river Kishon] This river rises out of mount Tabor, and, flowing westward, empties itself into the Mediterranean sea, near

Before
CHRIST
about 1296.

8 And Barak said unto her, If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go.

9 And she said, I will surely go with thee: notwithstanding the journey that thou takest shall not be for thine honour; for the LORD shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman. And Deborah arose, and went with Barak to Kedesh.

10 ¶ And Barak called Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; and he went up with ten thousand men at his feet: and Deborah went up with him.

b Numb.
10. 29.

11 Now Heber the Kenite, which was of the children of ^bHobab the father in law of Moses, had severed himself from the Kenites, and pitched his tent unto the plain of Zaanaim, which is by Kedesh.

12 And they shewed Sisera that Barak the son of Abinoam was gone up to mount Tabor.

† Heb. gathered by cry, or, proclamation.

13 And Sisera † gathered together all his chariots, even nine hundred chariots of iron, and all the people that were with him, from Harosheth of the Gentiles unto the river of Kishon.

14 And Deborah said unto Barak, Up; for this is the day in which the LORD hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: is not the LORD gone out before thee? So Barak went down from mount Tabor, and ten thousand men after him.

mount Carmel. Dr. Wells. Mr. Maundrell says, that when he saw it, its waters were inconsiderable; but it had the appearance of being liable to excessive swellings on sudden rains, chap. v. 21. Stackhouse.

8. — If thou wilt go with me,] Barak is commended for his faith in God by the Apostle, Hebr. xi. 32, though it was so weak and imperfect, that he made conditions with God's messenger, and absolutely refused to obey till they were granted. He seems to have wanted the advice of Deborah in doubtful matters, and her authority also to keep the soldiers in good order, and inspire them with courage. Bp. Patrick. Barak's answer is faithful, though conditionate; he does not so much intend to refuse to go with her, as to bind her to afford her presence with him. Bp. Hall.

11. Now Heber the Kenite,] What is related in this verse seems inserted to explain that which follows concerning Jael, who was Heber's wife. Bp. Patrick.

Heber was of the posterity of Hobab, the son of Jethro, father in law of Moses, and is here called a Kenite, because originally he descended from those people who dwelt westward of the Dead sea, and extended themselves pretty far into Arabia Petrea. These Kenites were some of the people, whose lands God had promised to the descendants of Abraham; nevertheless, in consideration of Jethro, all that submitted to the Israelites were permitted to live in their own country. Though they were proselytes, and worshipped the true God according to the Mosaic Law, yet, being strangers by birth, and so not pretending to any right or title to the land of Canaan, they held it their best policy, in those troublesome times, to observe a neutrality, and maintain peace, as well as they could, both with the Israelites and Canaan-

Before
CHRIST
about 1296.
c Psal. 83.
10.

15 And the LORD discomfited Sisera, and all his chariots, and all his host, with the edge of the sword before Barak; so that Sisera lighted down off his chariot, and fled away on his feet.

16 But Barak pursued after the chariots, and after the host, unto Harosheth of the Gentiles: and all the host of Sisera fell upon the edge of the sword; and there was not † a man left.

† Heb.
unto one.

17 Howbeit Sisera fled away on his feet to the tent of Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite: for there was peace between Jabin the king of Hazor and the house of Heber the Kenite.

18 ¶ And Jael went out to meet Sisera, and said unto him, Turn in, my lord, turn in to me; fear not. And when he had turned in unto her into the tent, she covered him with a ‖ mantle.

‖ Or, rug, or, blanket.

19 And he said unto her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water to drink; for I am thirsty. And she opened a ^d bottle of milk, and gave him drink, and covered him.

^d Chap. 5.
25.

20 Again he said unto her, Stand in the door of the tent, and it shall be, when any man doth come and enquire of thee, and say, Is there any man here? that thou shalt say, No.

21 Then Jael Heber's wife took a nail of the tent, and † took an hammer in her hand, and went softly unto him, and smote ^{put.}

ites. Thus it probably happened that there was peace at this time between Jabin and the house of Heber, ver. 17, and that Sisera in his distress fled to Heber's tent for protection. Stackhouse, Howell.

14. — hath delivered] Hath in purpose delivered. Dr. Wells. She speaks of the victory as already gained, that she might work in him a more perfect assurance of it. Bp. Patrick. The faith of Deborah and Barak was not appalled by the world of adversaries opposed to them. They knew whom they had believed, and how little the arm of flesh can do against the God of hosts. Bp. Hall.

19. — she opened a bottle of milk,] Out of respect to Sisera, she brought him the best liquor she possessed, and of the best sort. Bp. Patrick. Among the later Arabs, to give a person drink is thought to be the strongest assurance of receiving him under protection: hence we may infer, that the conduct of Jael, in destroying Sisera after shewing him this mark of hospitality, was such, as would, under ordinary circumstances, have been deemed most treacherous and dishonourable. Harmer.

21. — Jael — took a nail of the tent,] One of the great pins by which the tent was fastened to the ground. Bp. Patrick. These tents (of the Bedoween Arabs) are kept firm and steady, by bracing or stretching down their eves with cords tied down to hooked wooden pins well pointed, which they drive into the ground with a mallet; one of these pins answering to the nail, as the mallet does to the hammer, which Jael used in fastening to the ground the temples of Sisera. Shaw. Jael was moved probably to this action by some extraordinary and overruling impulse, making her the instrument of Divine vengeance: this can alone justify that otherwise unaccountable breach of hospitality,

Before
CHRIST
about 1296.

the nail into his temples, and fastened it into the ground: for he was fast asleep and weary. So he died.

22 And, behold, as Barak pursued Sisera, Jael came out to meet him, and said unto him, Come, and I will shew thee the man whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tent, behold, Sisera lay dead, and the nail was in his temples.

23 So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel.

24 And the hand of the children of Israel † prospered, and prevailed against Jabin the king of Canaan, until they had destroyed Jabin king of Canaan.

† Heb. going went and was hard.

CHAP. V.

The song of Deborah and Barak.

about 1296.

THEN sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying, which is held so sacred among the Arabs, that a violation of it is the bitterest reproach that can be applied to any person in their language. This case, like that of Ehud, is not to be judged by ordinary rules. Dr. Hales. Although there is no necessity of justifying the conduct of Jael, and it may be sufficient to understand that God used her as an instrument for accomplishing His purpose; yet it can scarce be doubted, but that she had some Divine direction or impulse to stir her up to do what she did. The enterprise was exceeding bold and hazardous, above the courage of her sex: the resolution she took appears very extraordinary, and so has the marks and tokens of its being from the extraordinary hand of God. In this view, all is clear and right; she ought to obey God rather than man, and all obligations to man cease, when brought in competition with our higher obligations towards God. Dr. Waterland.

2 Praise ye the LORD for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves.

It should be observed, that many actions here recorded were justifiable only on the supposition of Divine warrant, which superseded all general rules of conduct. Without this, the deeds of Ehud and of Jael would be pronounced censurable for their treachery, however prompted by commendable motives. Dr. Gray.

Chap. V. ver. 1. Then sang Deborah &c.] On occasion of the foregoing deliverance, Deborah, by the assistance of prophetick inspiration, composed the following elegant and majestic hymn; which Barak the general, in conjunction with her authority, ordered to be sung by the people, in religious commemoration of so signal a mercy, and for preserving in the minds of the Israelites a sense of their future duty, and of their gratitude. Pyle. This hymn is evidently expressed in another kind of language than the historical part of the book; and in such variety of elegant figures, and such native expressions of those affections which the occasion required, that none of the ancient Greek or Latin poets have ever equalled. Hence it appears, that there was a most excellent spirit of poetry among the Hebrews, especially among such of them as were divinely inspired, when the Greeks lay in dark ignorance. Bp. Patrick.

The design of this beautiful hymn, which breathes the characteristic softness and luxuriance of female composition, seems to be twofold; religious, and political: first, to thank God for the recent victory and deliverance of Israel from Canaanitish bondage

3 Hear, O ye kings; give ear, O ye princes; I, even I, will sing unto the LORD; I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.

Before
CHRIST
about 1296.

4 LORD, ^a when thou wentest out of ^b Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the earth trembled, and the heavens dropped, the clouds also dropped water.

^a Deut. 4.
^b 11.

5 ^b The mountains † melted from before the LORD, even ^c that Sinai from before the LORD God of Israel.

^b Psal. 97.
^c 5.
† Heb.
flowed.

6 In the days of ^d Shamgar the son of Anath, in the days of ^e Jael, the highways were unoccupied, and the † travellers walked through † byways.

^d Exod. 15.
^e 18.
^f Chap. 3.
^g 31.

7 The inhabitants of the villages ceased, they ceased in Israel, until that I Deborah arose, that I arose a mother in Israel.

^h Chap. 4.
ⁱ 18.
† Heb. walkers of paths.
† Heb. crooked ways.

8 They chose new gods; then was war in the gates: was there a shield or spear seen among forty thousand in Israel?

9 My heart is toward the governors of Israel, that offered themselves willingly among the people. Bless ye the LORD.

and oppression; and next, to celebrate the zeal and alacrity with which some of the tribes volunteered their services against the common enemy; and to censure the lukewarmness and apathy of others, who staid at home, and thus betrayed the publick cause. Dr. Hales.

4. — when thou wentest out of Seir, — Edom,] This is but a repetition of the same thing: Edom and Seir signifying the country where the posterity of Esau dwelt, who refused to give Israel a passage through their land, as the Lord led them unto Canaan: and therefore He conducted them another way, and made them encompass the land, Numb. xxi. 4; Deut. ii. 1. Bp. Patrick.

— the earth trembled, &c.] These are poetical expressions, to denote the great consternation in which all those countries were, when they saw Sihon king of the Amorites, and Og the king of Bashan, suddenly overthrown by the Israelites, Numb. xxi. 21. Bp. Patrick.

It should be observed, that Deborah, on praising God for present mercies, begins higher, and takes occasion to commemorate the more wonderful instance of His goodness to them, in their deliverance from Egyptian bondage, and His protection of them in the wilderness. Thus every pious soul should take occasion, from every particular act of Divine mercy, to reflect on the much greater work of our redemption, to praise God for the favours shewn to His church, and the inestimable benefit of salvation. Wogan.

5. The mountains melted] All the inhabitants of the mountains melted with fear. Dr. Wells.

6. — the highways were unoccupied,] The people, being corrupted in their religion, broke out into all manner of violence, and turned highway robbers, so that men durst not travel on the common roads. Bp. Patrick. A strong expression of the miserable calamities, under which the people lately laboured, as the just reward of their folly, vice, and depravity. Pyle.

7. The inhabitants of the villages ceased,] Men were forced to forsake the villages, and fly into walled towns and fortified places. Bp. Patrick.

— a mother in Israel.] A judge or ruler: as good rulers and deliverers are called fathers of their country, so Deborah calls herself “a mother in Israel.” Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1296. 10 || Speak, ye that ride on white asses, ye that sit in judgment, and walk by the way.

|| Or, Meditate.

† Heb. righteousnesses of the LORD.

11 They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the † righteous acts of the LORD, even the righteous acts toward the inhabitants of his villages in Israel: then shall the people of the LORD go down to the gates.

12 Awake, awake, Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam.

13 Then he made him that remaineth have dominion over the nobles among the people: the LORD made me have dominion over the mighty.

14 Out of Ephraim was there a root of them against Amalek; after thee, Benjamin, among thy people; out of Machir came down governors, and out of Zebulun they that † handle the pen of the writer.

† Heb. draw with the pen, &c.

15 And the princes of Issachar were with Deborah; even Issachar, and also Barak: he was sent on † foot into the valley. || For the divisions of Reuben there were great † thoughts of heart.

† Heb. his feet.
|| Or, in the divisions, &c.

16 Why abodest thou among the sheepfolds, to hear the bleatings of the flocks?

† Heb. impressions.

10. — ye that ride on white asses,] Contemptible as this animal may at present appear, from the beginning it was not so. In many countries, and particularly in Judea, persons of the highest distinction were usually so mounted. The governours of Israel are so described here: and the thirty sons of Jair, who was judge and prince over Israel twenty-two years, are said to ride on thirty asses, chap. x. 4: and another judge of Israel is recorded to have had forty sons and thirty nephews, that rode on seventy ass colts, chap. xii. 14. It would be easy to confirm this observation with many more authorities. Bp. Sherlock.

She calls on governours and great men. There were no horses in Judea, so that the greatest persons rode on asses: these animals, in this country, were generally of a reddish colour, and therefore asses of a colour tending to white were highly esteemed for their rarity, and used only by honourable persons. Bp. Patrick. Others think, that the expression “white asses,” refers to the white garments which were spread upon them for the accommodation of the riders; none but white garments being used by persons of distinction, or on days of publick rejoicing. Burder.

— and walk by the way.] Merchants who now travel in safety, which they durst not do before their deliverance. Bp. Patrick.

11. They that are delivered] The shepherds, who, before their deliverance, were disturbed by robbers shooting at them, when they went to water their flocks. Bp. Patrick. There is a beautiful rill in Barbary, received into a large bason, which bears a name signifying, “Drink and away,” from the great danger of meeting there with rogues and assassins. Shaw.

12. — lead thy captivity captive,] Lead in triumph, to the honour of God, the principal persons and spoils taken from the enemy. Dr. Wells.

14, 15. Out of Ephraim &c.] Here follows a catalogue of those Israelites who bravely assisted in the war. “Out of Ephraim was there a root of them,” namely, a small portion of them came from Ephraim. Bp. Patrick.

|| For the divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.

Before CHRIST about 1296.

17 Gilead abode beyond Jordan: and why did Dan remain in ships? Asher continued on the || sea shore, and abode in his || breaches.

|| Or, in.

|| Or, port.
|| Or, creeks.

18 Zebulun and Naphtali were a people that † jeoparded their lives unto the death in the high places of the field.

† Heb. exposed to reproach.

19 The kings came and fought, then fought the kings of Canaan in Taanach by the waters of Megiddo; they took no gain of money.

20 They fought from heaven; the stars in their † courses fought against Sisera.

† Heb. pat'ls.

21 The river of Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon. O my soul, thou hast trodden down strength.

22 Then were the horsehoofs broken by the means of || the pransings, the pransings of their mighty ones.

|| Or, tramlings, or, plungings.

23 Curse ye Meroz, said the angel of the LORD, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof; because they came not to the help of the LORD, to the help of the LORD against the mighty.

24 Blessed above women shall Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite be, blessed shall she be above women in the tent.

25 He asked water, and she gave him

16. — For the divisions of Reuben there were great searchings of heart.] For the division of counsels among the Reubenites, and their separation from the rest of their brethren, there were many sad thoughts among the other tribes. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

17. — in his breaches.] Or, in his creeks, as in the margin; that is, only minded his sea commerce. Dr. Wells.

20. They fought from heaven;] On the other hand, the angels of God fought for the Israelites, sending thunder, rain, &c. to discomfit their enemies. Dr. Wells.

— the stars in their courses &c.] Either literally, by yielding light after it became night to the Israelites to pursue their victory; (Dr. Wells;) or figuratively, to express that God gave so entire a victory, as if the skies and stars had been their confederates against the infidel general and his army. Pyle. Or, the expression is poetical; the meaning may be, that, by mighty and sudden rains, which the common opinion ascribed to the special influence of the planets, the river of Kishon, near which Sisera's army lay, was so raised and swoln, as to drown the greatest part of that huge host. Abp. Tillotson.

21. — O my soul, thou hast &c.] This is an elegant turning of her speech to herself, whose happiness she applauds, in beholding the most powerful enemies quite vanquished by her commission from God, and her prayers to Him. Bp. Patrick.

23. — Meroz,] Probably a city not far from mount Tabor, or the river Kishon; near which the battle was fought. Dr. Wells.

It seems to be a notable effect of this curse, that the name of this city is blotted out, and not the least remains of it left upon earth. Reading.

24. Blessed above women &c.] The action of Jael is not written for our imitation, but instruction. See notes on chap. iv. 21. But there is another point of useful instruction to be drawn from this passage; which is, that we should be very cautious how we condemn or approve what God has not condemned or approved. Wogan.

Before
CHRIST
about 1206.

milk; she brought forth butter in a lordly dish.

† Heb.
hammered.

26 She put her hand to the nail, and her right hand to the workmen's hammer; and with the hammer she † smote Sisera, she smote off his head, when she had pierced and stricken through his temples.

† Heb.
between.

27 † At her feet he bowed, he fell, he lay down: at her feet he bowed, he fell: where he bowed, there he fell down † dead.

† Heb. destroyed.

28 The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?

† Heb.
words.

29 Her wise ladies answered her, yea, she returned † answer to herself,

† Heb. to the head of a man.

30 Have they not sped? have they not divided the prey; † to every man a damsel or two; to Sisera a prey of divers colours, a prey of divers colours of needlework, of divers colours of needlework on both sides, meet † for the necks of them that take the spoil?

† Heb. for the necks of the spoil.

31 So let all thine enemies perish, O LORD: but let them that love him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might. And the land had rest forty years.

CHAP. VI.

1 The Israelites for their sin are oppressed by Midian. 8 A prophet rebuketh them. 11 An angel sendeth Gideon for their deliverance. 17 Gideon's present is consumed with fire. 24 Gideon destroyeth Baal's altar, and offereth a sacrifice upon the altar Jehovah-shalom. 28 Joash defendeth his son, and calleth him Jerubbaal. 33 Gideon's army. 36 Gideon's signs.

25. — butter in a lordly dish.] Butter, or buttermilk, which is still esteemed a great treat among the Arabs. Dr. Hales.

Dr. Pococke, giving an account of an Arab's entertaining him in the Holy Land, says, that, among other things, they served him with some sour buttermilk. The Eastern way of churning is, by putting the cream into a goat's skin turned inside out, which the Arabs suspend in their tents, and then press it to and fro, in one uniform direction; thus a separation of the parts is quickly occasioned, and butter is produced. Harmer.

28. The mother of Sisera &c.] In the passage which follows is afforded an admirable representation of the impatience of the mother of Sisera at his delay in returning, and her sanguine anticipation of his success; in which she dwells, not upon the greatness of his exploits, or the slaughter of his enemies, but upon the circumstances most likely to engage a light female mind: such as captive damsels, and embroidered garments, the spoils of victory, which she repeats and amplifies with much grace and elegance. Dr. Hales.

How exquisitely just a description have we here of a mother, longing for the return of her beloved son; nay, impatient not only to see him safe, and crowned with victory, but loaded with spoils. The spoils too are such as most affected a female passion; damsels, to set off the pomp and splendour of her retinue, vests of needlework of divers colours, and curiously wrought on both sides to adorn her person. This was the gaudy prey she longed to see brought by her son in triumph. How natural are these sentiments! the tenderness of a mother on one hand, the foible and vanity of the female breast on the other. How very aptly applied

AND the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the LORD: and the LORD delivered them into the hand of Midian seven years.

Before
CHRIST
about 1256.

2 And the hand of Midian † prevailed against Israel: and because of the Midianites the children of Israel made them the dens which are in the mountains, and caves, and strong holds.

† Heb. was strong.

3 And so it was, when Israel had sown, that the Midianites came up, and the Amalekites, and the children of the east, even they came up against them;

4 And they encamped against them, and destroyed the increase of the earth, till thou come unto Gaza, and left no sustenance for Israel, neither ‖ sheep, nor ox, ‖ Or, goat. nor ass.

5 For they came up with their cattle and their tents, and they came as grasshoppers for multitude; for both they and their camels were without number: and they entered into the land to destroy it.

6 And Israel was greatly impoverished because of the Midianites; and the children of Israel cried unto the LORD.

7 ¶ And it came to pass, when the children of Israel cried unto the LORD because of the Midianites,

about 1215.

8 That the LORD sent † a prophet unto the children of Israel, which said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought you up from Egypt, and brought you forth out of the house of bondage;

† Heb.
a man a prophet.

9 And I delivered you out of the hand by a woman to one of her own sex; to the mother of Sisera, by a mother in Israel. Wogan.

29. Her wise ladies.] The ladies of her court. Pyle.

31. So let all thine enemies perish, O Lord:] This abrupt and unexpected apostrophe, which concludes the poem, tacitly insinuates the utter disappointment of their vain hopes of conquest and spoils more fully and forcibly than any express declaration of words; while it marks the author's piety and sole reliance on God's protection of His people, and the glorious prospect of a greater and future deliverance, perhaps by the Son of righteousness, Mal. iv. 2. Dr. Hales.

Chap. VI. ver. 3. — the children of the east,] Meaning, probably, the Arabians who inhabited Arabia Deserta, from the country of the Moabites and Ammonites, as far as the Euphrates. Calmel.

The children of the East included the posterity of Abraham's sons by Keturah, of whom the Midianites were the principal, Gen. xxv. 6. It also included the Ishmaelites, Judg. viii. 24, who were settled near the Midianites, Gen. xxxvii. 28, in the wilderness of Paran, Gen. xxi. 21. Dr. Hales.

4. — till thou come unto Gaza,] That is, they made an universal devastation from one end of the country to the other: for they came from the East, and destroyed as far as Gaza, which was on the western coast. Bp. Patrick.

5. — as grasshoppers] Rather, as locusts, which had their name in Hebrew from their prodigious numbers and increase. Parkhurst. See notes on Exod. x.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppressed you, and drave them out from before you, and gave you their land;

10 And I said unto you, I am the LORD your God; ^a fear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but ye have not obeyed my voice.

11 ¶ And there came an angel of the LORD, and sat under an oak which was in Ophrah, that pertained unto Joash the Abi-ezrite: and his son ^b Gideon threshed wheat by the winepress, [†] to hide it from the Midianites.

12 And the angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, The LORD is with thee, thou mighty man of valour.

13 And Gideon said unto him, Oh my Lord, if the LORD be with us, why then is all this befallen us? and where be all his miracles which our fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites.

14 And the LORD looked upon him, and said, Go in this thy might, and thou shalt save Israel from the hand of the Midianites: have not I sent thee?

15 And he said unto him, O my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel? behold, || my family is poor in Manasseh, and I am the least in my father's house.

16 And the LORD said unto him, Surely I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites as one man.

17 And he said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, then shew me a sign that thou talkest with me.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

18 Depart not hence, I pray thee, until I come unto thee, and bring forth my || present, and set it before thee. And he said, || Or, meat offering. I will tarry until thou come again.

19, ¶ And Gideon went in, and made ready [†] a kid, and unleavened cakes of an ephah of flour: the flesh he put in a basket, and he put the broth in a pot, and brought it out unto him under the oak, and presented it.

† Heb.
a kid of the goats.

20 And the angel of God said unto him, Take the flesh and the unleavened cakes, and lay them upon this rock, and pour out the broth. And he did so.

21 ¶ Then the angel of the LORD put forth the end of the staff that was in his hand, and touched the flesh and the unleavened cakes; and there rose up fire out of the rock, and consumed the flesh and the unleavened cakes. Then the angel of the LORD departed out of his sight.

22 And when Gideon perceived that he was an angel of the LORD, Gideon said, Alas, O Lord God! ^c for because I have seen an angel of the LORD face to face.

^c Exod. 33.
20.
chap. 13.
22.

23 And the LORD said unto him, Peace be unto thee; fear not: thou shalt not die.

24 Then Gideon built an altar there unto the LORD, and called it || Jehovahshalom: unto this day it is yet in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites.

¶ That is,
The LORD
send peace.

25 ¶ And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Take thy father's young bullock, || even the second || Or, and. bullock of seven years old, and throw down

10. — fear not the gods] Rather, worship not the gods. Dr. Wells.

11. — there came an angel of the Lord,] There came "the Angel of the Lord," many years after His appearance at Bochim, to deliver His people, when they cried to Him, from their oppressors. Dr. Hales. That He was not a mere created angel, is plain from the incommunicable name Jehovah, which He assumes, and by which He suffers Himself to be frequently called, ver. 14, 16, 23, 24, &c. Therefore the Jews, according to their Targum, which styles Him the Word of the Lord, look upon this angel not merely as a heavenly messenger sent from God, but as the Son of God Himself, appearing in the form of an angel. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

— Ophrah, — Gideon] Gideon was of the family of Abi-ezer, of the tribe of Manasseh; and so the Ophrah, where he dwelt, must be understood to be situated in the half tribe of Manasseh, on the west side of Jordan; and for this reason it is styled "Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites," chap. viii. 32, to distinguish it from another Ophrah, which lay in the tribe of Benjamin. Dr. Wells.

— threshed wheat by the winepress,] The common mode of threshing corn was by treading it with oxen. The word here used signifies to thresh out with a stick. This Gideon did "to hide it from the Midianites;" and "by the winepress," where none would suspect his threshing of corn. Bp. Patrick.

13. — if the Lord be with us, why then is all this befallen us?] The valiant man is here weak; weak in faith, weak in discourse; while he argues God's absence by affliction, His presence by deliverances, and the improbability of success by his own disability. All these are gross inconsequences. He should rather have inferred God's presence with the Israelites from the correction which they suffered: for, wheresoever God chastiseth, there He is; yea, there He is in mercy: nothing more proves us His, than His stripes; He bestows not correction where He loves not. Bp. Hall.

15. — O my Lord, wherewith shall I save Israel?] Humility is both a sign of future glory, and a way to it, and an occasion of it. Vain glory and height of spirit will not avail with God: none have ever been raised by Him, but those who have formerly dejected themselves; none have been confounded by Him that are abased in themselves: it is immediately on Gideon's using these words, that God says to him, ver. 16, "Surely I will be with thee." Bp. Hall.

22. — Alas, O Lord God!] He speaks as a person under great alarm, and breaks off his discourse abruptly. Bp. Patrick.

25. — throw down the altar of Baal] Baal's altar must first be destroyed, ere God's be built; both cannot stand together: the true God will have no society with idols, neither will He allow it to us. In this instance, He does not desire to have consecrated to Himself, the altar which had been abused to Baal; but, as one whose holy jealousy will admit no worship, till there be no idolatry, He first commands them to destroy the monuments of superstition, and then enjoins His own service. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

† Heb. strong
place.
‖ Or, in an orderly manner.

the altar of Baal that thy father hath, and cut down the grove that is by it :

26 And build an altar unto the Lord thy God upon the top of this † rock, ‖ in the ordered place, and take the second bullock, and offer a burnt sacrifice with the wood of the grove which thou shalt cut down.

27 Then Gideon took ten men of his servants, and did as the Lord had said unto him : and so it was, because he feared his father's household, and the men of the city, that he could not do it by day, that he did it by night.

28 ¶ And when the men of the city arose early in the morning, behold, the altar of Baal was cast down, and the grove was cut down that was by it, and the second bullock was offered upon the altar that was built.

29 And they said one to another, Who hath done this thing ? And when they enquired and asked, they said, Gideon the son of Joash hath done this thing.

30 Then the men of the city said unto Joash, Bring out thy son, that he may die : because he hath cast down the altar of Baal, and because he hath cut down the grove that was by it.

31 And Joash said unto all that stood against him, Will ye plead for Baal ? will ye save him ? he that will plead for him, let him be put to death whilst it is yet morning : if he be a god, let him plead for himself, because one hath cast down his altar.

32 Therefore on that day he called him

26. — in the ordered place,] Where the flesh and cakes were laid in order on the rock, ver. 20. Or the words may signify, as in the margin, "in an orderly manner." Although Gideon was no priest, yet he was here required to offer a burnt sacrifice, by God's special order ; which would have been otherwise a presumptuous sin. The command was extraordinary. Bp. Patrick.

31. — if he be a god, let him plead for himself,] Let the injured god, he tells them, avenge his own cause : if Baal be what he has been supposed to be, you may safely trust to him to maintain his own honour. Pyle.

33. — in the valley of Jezreel.] The city of Jezreel (which gave name to the valley) belonged to the half tribe of Manasseh, on the west of Jordan. In the history of the kings of Israel, this city is frequently mentioned, as, by reason of the pleasantness of the situation, some of them had a royal palace there, though their capital was Samaria. The vale of Jezreel is, according to Mr. Maundrell, of a vast extent, very fertile, but uncultivated, and only serving the Arabs for pasture. Some have supposed, however, that the valley of Jezreel, here mentioned, denotes some lesser valley, between mount Hermon and mount Gilboa. Dr. Wells.

34. — the Spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon,] Exciting him now to put in execution the commission which God had given him to deliver Israel, and filling him with an extraordinary degree of courage for such an undertaking. Dr. Wells. The Spirit

Jerubbaal, saying, Let Baal plead against him, because he hath thrown down his altar. Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

33 ¶ Then all the Midianites and the Amalekites and the children of the east were gathered together, and went over, and pitched in the valley of Jezreel.

34 But the Spirit of the Lord † came upon Gideon, and he † blew a trumpet ; and Abi-ezer † was gathered after him. † Heb. clothed.
* Numb. 10
3.
chap. 3. 27.
† Heb. was called after him

35 And he sent messengers throughout all Manasseh ; who also was gathered after him : and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali ; and they came up to meet them.

36 ¶ And Gideon said unto God, If thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said, 37 Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor ; and if the dew be on the fleece only, and it be dry upon all the earth beside, then shall I know that thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said.

38 And it was so : for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl full of water.

39 And Gideon said unto God, * Let * not thine anger be hot against me, and I will speak but this once : let me prove, I pray thee, but this once with the fleece ; let it now be dry only upon the fleece, and upon all the ground let there be dew. * Gen. 16.
32.

40 And God did so that night : for it was dry upon the fleece only, and there was dew on all the ground.

of the Lord, by which Gideon was animated to undertake the deliverance of his country, was a spirit of fortitude and prudence, and of all the virtues requisite in a commander. Dr. Hales.

36. — If thou wilt save Israel, — as thou hast said,] He desires another miracle to confirm his faith, perhaps for the sake of those that were to follow him ; or perhaps, wishing to know by a sign whether God would make him victorious at that particular time. Bp. Patrick.

Of all the instruments which God used in so great a work, we find none so weak as Gideon. The former miracle was strong enough to carry him through his first exploit, of ruining the idolatrous grove and altar : but now, when he saw the swarm of the Midianites and Amalekites approaching, he called for new aid ; and, not trusting to his thousands of Israel, flew to God for a further assurance of victory. The refuge was good, but the manner of seeking it savours of distrust. Bp. Hall.

39. — let it now be dry only upon the fleece, &c.] If we understand that the miracle of the dew on the fleece was a kind of public testimony to satisfy the officers and people under him, we then see the reason of its repetition, with the opposite variation : for, if there were any of his adherents who suspected deception in the first instance, when the threshingfloor was dry, and the fleece wet with dew, they might be convinced by the contrary effect, when the fleece was dry, and the threshingfloor wet with dew. Script. illust.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

CHAP. VII.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

1 Gideon's army of two and thirty thousand is brought to three hundred. 9 He is encouraged by the dream and interpretation of the barley cake. 16 His stratagem of trumpets and lamps in pitchers. 24 The Ephraimites take Oreb and Zeeb.

THEN Jerubbaal, who is Gideon, and all the people that were with him, rose up early, and pitched beside the well of Harod: so that the host of the Midianites were on the north side of them, by the hill of Moreh, in the valley.

2 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people that are with thee are too many for me to give the Midianites into their hands, lest Israel vaunt themselves against me, saying, Mine own hand hath saved me.

3 Now therefore go to, proclaim in the ears of the people, saying, ^a Whosoever is fearful and afraid, let him return and depart early from mount Gilead. And there returned of the people twenty and two thousand; and there remained ten thousand.

^a Deut. 20.
8.
1 Mac. 3.
56.

4 And the LORD said unto Gideon, The people are yet too many; bring them down unto the water, and I will try them for thee there: and it shall be, that of whom I say unto thee, This shall go with thee, the same shall go with thee; and of whomsoever I say unto thee, This shall not go with thee, the same shall not go.

5 So he brought down the people unto the water: and the LORD said unto Gideon, Every one that lappeth of the water with his tongue, as a dog lappeth, him shalt thou set by himself; likewise every one that boweth down upon his knees to drink.

6 And the number of them that lapped, putting their hand to their mouth, were three hundred men: but all the rest of the people bowed down upon their knees to drink water.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. — lest Israel vaunt themselves] God knew the disposition of the Israelites, and foresaw that, from motives of vanity, they would be disposed to ascribe the victory to their own power and prowess, and not to Him: whereas He intended to shew to all the world that it was His miraculous work. Bp. Patrick.

3. — from mount Gilead.] Not the mountain of that name, often mentioned in Scripture, which was east of Jordan; but another, on the west side of Jordan, in the tribe of Manasseh. Bp. Patrick.

4. — The people are yet too many;] If human strength were to be opposed, there should have needed an equality of strength; but now that God meant to give the victory, His care was not how to get it, but how not to lose the glory of it. He was willing to give deliverance unto Israel, but the praise of the deliverance He would keep to Himself: it was the same with Him to save with many as with few; but he rather chose to save by few, that all the victory might redound to Himself. Bp. Hall.

5. — Every one that lappeth &c.] We may well suppose they

7 And the LORD said unto Gideon, By the three hundred men that lapped will I save you, and deliver the Midianites into thine hand: and let all the other people go every man unto his place.

8 So the people took victuals in their hand, and their trumpets: and he sent all the rest of Israel every man unto his tent, and retained those three hundred men: and the host of Midian was beneath him in the valley.

9 ¶ And it came to pass the same night, that the LORD said unto him, Arise, get thee down unto the host; for I have delivered it into thine hand.

10 But if thou fear to go down, go thou with Phurah thy servant down to the host:

11 And thou shalt hear what they say; and afterward shall thine hands be strengthened to go down unto the host. Then went he down with Phurah his servant unto the outside of the ¶ armed men that were in the host.

¶ Or, ranks by five.

12 And the Midianites and the Amalekites and ^b all the children of the east lay along in the valley like grasshoppers for multitude; and their camels were without number, as the sand by the sea side for multitude.

^b Chap. 6.
33.

13 And when Gideon was come, behold, there was a man that told a dream unto his fellow, and said, Behold, I dreamed a dream, and, lo, a cake of barley bread tumbled into the host of Midian, and came unto a tent, and smote it that it fell, and overturned it, that the tent lay along.

14 And his fellow answered and said, This is nothing else save the sword of Gideon the son of Joash, a man of Israel: for into his hand hath God delivered Midian, and all the host.

15 ¶ And it was so, when Gideon heard were thirsty with the heat of the weather, and with the march; which made them greedily betake themselves to the water. Bp. Patrick. It has been variously conjectured, what symptoms of courage or cowardice were collected from these different ways of drinking amongst the soldiers; some supposing that the snatching it up with the hand denoted a fearful temper; others, on the contrary, supposing that this way of drinking betokened courage, or a temperate and hardy disposition. It is more probable, that the manner of drinking was a symptom of neither; but that God, foreknowing all things, chose this manner of pitching on the smaller number, without any regard to their personal valour. Pyle.

The true reason and design of this method seems to be this: God was minded to reduce the army of Gideon to a very small number, which, it was probable, would be effected by this means; for as the season was hot, and the generality of the soldiers weary, thirsty, and faint, it was most probable that they would lie down, (as indeed they did,) and refresh themselves plentifully; and it was scarcely to be expected that any great number would deny themselves in this matter. Stackhouse.

Before
CHRIST
about 1219.
† Heb. the breaking thereof.

the telling of the dream, and † the interpretation thereof, that he worshipped, and returned into the host of Israel, and said, Arise; for the Lord hath delivered into your hand the host of Midian.

† Heb.
trumpets in the hand of all of them.
|| Or,
firebrands,
or, torches.

16 And he divided the three hundred men into three companies, and he put † a trumpet in every man's hand, with empty pitchers, and || lamps within the pitchers.

17 And he said unto them, Look on me, and do likewise: and, behold, when I come to the outside of the camp, it shall be that, as I do, so shall ye do.

18 When I blow with a trumpet, I and all that are with me, then blow ye the trumpets also on every side of all the camp, and say, The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon.

19 ¶ So Gideon, and the hundred men that were with him, came unto the outside of the camp in the beginning of the middle watch; and they had but newly set the watch: and they blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers that were in their hands.

20 And the three companies blew the trumpets, and brake the pitchers, and held the lamps in their left hands, and the trumpets in their right hands to blow withal: and they cried, The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon.

21 And they stood every man in his place round about the camp: and all the host ran, and cried, and fled.

† Isai. 9. 4.

22 And the three hundred blew the trumpets, and † the Lord set every man's sword against his fellow, even throughout all the host: and the host fled to Beth-shittah || in Zererath, and to † the border of Abel-meholah, unto Tabbath.

† Or, towards.
† Heb. tip.

15. — that he worshipped,] Gave humble thanks to God for His goodness, in giving this new encouragement to proceed in his undertaking. Bp. Patrick.

16. — with empty pitchers,] Earthen pitchers. Bp. Patrick. Though leathern bottles were much used by the people of the East, earthen jars or pitchers were sometimes used also. Dr. Chandler mentions having used an earthen jar for carrying water in travelling through Asia Minor. If this was the practice in Gideon's time, it could not be difficult for him to collect three hundred water jars from among ten thousand men. Harmer.

— lamps] Rather, torches, which were concealed in the pitchers. Bp. Patrick.

Though God had promised by these three hundred men to chase the Midianites, yet Gideon neglected not wise stratagems to secure the victory. To wait for God's performance, and do nothing, is to abuse that Divine providence, which will always so work, as not to allow us to remain in inactivity. Bp. Hall.

18. — The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon.] This watchword was taken from the interpretation of the Midianites' dream, as referring to "the sword of Gideon," ver. 14; to which Gideon piously prefixed "the sword of the Lord," as the Author of the stratagem, of the dream, and of its interpretation. Dr. Hales.

23 And the men of Israel gathered themselves together out of Naphtali, and out of Asher, and out of all Manasseh, and pursued after the Midianites.

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

24 ¶ And Gideon sent messengers throughout all mount Ephraim, saying, Come down against the Midianites, and take before them the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered themselves together, and took the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.

25 And they took † two princes of the Midianites, Oreb and Zeeb; and they slew Oreb upon the rock Oreb, and Zeeb they slew at the winepress of Zeeb, and pursued Midian, and brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon on the other side Jordan.

4 Psal. 89.
† Isai. 10. 26.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Gideon pacifieth the Ephraimites. 4 Succoth and Penuel refuse to relieve Gideon's army. 10 Zebah and Zalmunna are taken. 13 Succoth and Penuel are destroyed. 17 Gideon revengeth his brethren's death on Zebah and Zalmunna. 22 He refuseth government. 24 His ephod cause of idolatry. 28 Midian subdued. 29 Gideon's children, and death. 33 The Israelites' idolatry and ingratitude.

AND the men of Ephraim said unto him, † Why hast thou served us thus, that thou calledst us not, when thou wentest to fight with the Midianites? And they did chide with him † sharply.

† Heb.
What thing is this, thou hast done unto us?
† Heb. strongly.

2 And he said unto them, What have I done now in comparison of you? Is not the gleaning of the grapes of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abi-ezer?

3 God hath delivered into your hands the princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb: and what was I able to do in comparison of

19. — in the beginning of the middle watch;] The Hebrews and other Eastern nations divided the night into three parts, which were called the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd watches; because the guards or watches were changed three times. The Romans, and from them the Jews in later times, divided the night into four watches; whence we read in the Gospel of the 4th watch. Lewis.

24. — took the waters unto Beth-barah and Jordan.] That is, they secured all the fords or passes along the river Jordan, from Beth-barah, (which is thought to be the same as Bethabara, mentioned by St. John,) lying near the south end of the river Jordan, to the beginning of Jordan, or its issuing from the sea of Galilee. Dr. Wells.

25. — the rock Oreb,] The rock, called Oreb in future times, from the event here related. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VIII. ver. 2. — Is not the gleaning &c.] A common proverb, probably, in those days, by which they were wont to commend the smallest action of one, as superiour to the greatest of another. It is as if he had said, These scattered parties, which you have gleaned and picked up at the fords of Jordan, are far more than those which I and my whole host have destroyed. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1249. you? Then their † anger was abated toward him, when he had said that.

† Heb. spirit. 4 ¶ And Gideon came to Jordan, and passed over, he, and the three hundred men that were with him, faint, yet pursuing them.

5 And he said unto the men of Succoth, Give, I pray you, loaves of bread unto the people that follow me; for they be faint, and I am pursuing after Zebah and Zalmunna, kings of Midian.

6 ¶ And the princes of Succoth said, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thine army?

† Heb. thresh. 7 And Gideon said, Therefore when the LORD hath delivered Zebah and Zalmunna into mine hand, then I will † tear your flesh with the thorns of the wilderness and with briers.

8 ¶ And he went up thence to Penuel, and spake unto them likewise: and the men of Penuel answered him as the men of Succoth had answered him.

9 And he spake also unto the men of Penuel, saying, When I come again in peace, I will break down this tower.

¶ Or, an hundred and twenty thousand, every one drawing a sword. 10 ¶ Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and their hosts with them, about fifteen thousand men, all that were left of all the hosts of the children of the east: for there fell || an hundred and twenty thousand men that drew sword.

11 ¶ And Gideon went up by the way of them that dwelt in tents on the east of Nobah and Jogbehah, and smote the host: for the host was secure.

12 And when Zebah and Zalmunna fled, he pursued after them, and took the two kings of Midian, Zebah and Zalmunna, and † discomfited all the host.

† Heb. terrified.

Before CHRIST about 1249. 13 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash returned from battle before the sun was up, 14 And caught a young man of the men of Succoth, and enquired of him: and he † described unto him the princes of Succoth, and the elders thereof, even threescore and seventeen men.

15 And he came unto the men of Succoth, and said, Behold Zebah and Zalmunna, with whom ye did upbraid me, saying, Are the hands of Zebah and Zalmunna now in thine hand, that we should give bread unto thy men that are weary?

16 And he took the elders of the city, and thorns of the wilderness and briers, and with them he † taught the men of Succoth.

17 And he beat down the tower of ^a Penuel, and slew the men of the city.

18 ¶ Then said he unto Zebah and Zalmunna, What manner of men were they whom ye slew at Tabor? And they answered, As thou art, so were they; each one † resembled the children of a king.

19 And he said, They were my brethren, even the sons of my mother: as the LORD liveth, if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you.

20 And he said unto Jether his firstborn, Up, and slay them. But the youth drew not his sword: for he feared, because he was yet a youth.

21 Then Zebah and Zalmunna said, Rise thou, and fall upon us: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gideon arose, and slew Zebah and Zalmunna, and took away the || ornaments that were on their camels' necks.

22 ¶ Then the men of Israel said unto Gideon, Rule thou over us, both thou, and great strength as dignity; and would sooner despatch them than a stripling could do. Bp. Patrick.

— ornaments &c.] The Hebrew word used here is found no where else but at ver. 26, and in Is. iii. 18: our margin translates, "ornaments like the moon," as it was an ancient custom to wear ornaments of this figure. Bp. Patrick. These were probably chains, like those which Bp. Pococke saw in Egypt, hanging from the bridles of the agas of the seven military bodies of that country to the breastplates of the animals on which they rode, in the grand procession of the caravan, about setting out for Mecca. They were undoubtedly marks of distinction and grandeur. Harmer.

They were golden ornaments, perhaps crescents, consecrated to the moon, which was worshipped in that neighbourhood before Abraham's days. These crescents are still in use among the Arabs, and even among the Mahometans in general, however scrupulous about images; being evidently a remnant of that ancient pagan superstition of the worship of the heavenly bodies, which too often infected the extraneous posterity of the faithful Abraham, and even the Israelites themselves. Dr. Hales.

5. — Succoth,] See Gen. xxxiii. 17.

6. — Are the hands &c.] They bid him first take those kings captive, and bring them with their hands bound behind them, before he made any demands upon them. It is a bitter sort of taunt, arising from irreligion, which made them doubt whether the hand of God was in the victory, and whether Gideon would be able to perfect it. Bp. Patrick.

9. — this tower.] The tower of their city, in which they confided, and to which perhaps they pointed when they gave this rude answer. Bp. Patrick.

16. — with them he taught the men of Succoth.] With them he beat the elders of the city, for a warning unto the men of Succoth; who by their example were taught how dangerous it is to slight the agents of God. Bp. Hall.

19. — if ye had saved them alive, I would not slay you.] As they were not Canaanites, he was not obliged to kill them; but, as they had slain his brethren in cool blood, he was by law the avenger of their blood. Poole.

21. — as the man is, so is his strength.] They thought it more honourable to die by the hand of Gideon, who was a man of as

Before
CHRIST
about 1249.

thy son, and thy son's son also: for thou hast delivered us from the hand of Midian.

23 And Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you: the Lord shall rule over you.

24 ¶ And Gideon said unto them, I would desire a request of you, that ye would give me every man the earrings of his prey. (For they had golden earrings, because they were Ishmaelites.)

25 And they answered, We will willingly give them. And they spread a garment, and did cast therein every man the earrings of his prey.

¶ Or, sweet jewels.

26 And the weight of the golden earrings that he requested was a thousand and seven hundred shekels of gold; beside ornaments, and || collars, and purple raiment that was on the kings of Midian, and beside the chains that were about their camels' necks.

27 And Gideon made an ephod thereof, and put it in his city, even in Ophrah: and all Israel went thither a whoring after it: which thing became a snare unto Gideon, and to his house.

28 ¶ Thus was Midian subdued before the children of Israel, so that they lifted up their heads no more. And the country was in quietness forty years in the days of Gideon.

Before
CHRIST
about 1219.

29 ¶ And Jerubbaal the son of Joash went and dwelt in his own house.

30 And Gideon had threescore and ten sons † of his body begotten: for he had many wives. † Heb. going out of his thigh.

31 And his concubine that was in Shechem, she also bare him a son, whose name he † called Abimelech. † Heb. set.

32 ¶ And Gideon the son of Joash died in a good old age, and was buried in the sepulchre of Joash his father, in Ophrah of the Abi-ezrites. about 1209.

33 And it came to pass, as soon as Gideon was dead, that the children of Israel turned again, and went a whoring after Baalim, and made Baal-berith their god.

34 And the children of Israel remembered not the Lord their God, who had delivered them out of the hands of all their enemies on every side:

35 Neither shewed they kindness to the house of Jerubbaal, namely, Gideon, according to all the goodness which he had shewed unto Israel.

CHAP. IX.

1 Abimelech by conspiracy with the Shechemites, and murder of his brethren, is made king. 7 Jotham by a

22. — for thou hast delivered us &c.] They pretended to make this offer out of gratitude to him; but, in truth, they were disposed now (as their posterity were afterwards) to throw off the Divine government, being desirous to set a king over themselves, like the rest of the nations round about them: Gideon absolutely rejected their offer, because he considered God as their king, and accounted this an attempt to alter His government. Bp. Patrick.

23. And Gideon said, — I will not rule over you,] There is no greater example of modesty than Gideon. When the angel spake to him, he abased himself before all Israel: when the Ephraimites contended with him, he preferred their gleanings to his vintage, and cast his honour at their feet: and now, when Israel proffered him that crown which he had merited, he refused it. He that in overcoming would allow them to cry, "The sword of the Lord, and of Gideon," chap. vii. 18; in governing will have nothing but "the sword of the Lord." Bp. Hall.

24. — because they were Ishmaelites.] The Chaldee Paraphrase says, Because they were Arabians: called "children of the East," chap. vi. 3, it being the general custom of all those people to wear earrings. Bp. Patrick.

26. — a thousand and seven hundred shekels] In the same manner Hannibal, after the battle of Cannæ, measured the gold rings of the Roman knights by bushels. Dr. Wall.

— purple raiment] Purple seems anciently to have been appropriated to kings, and to those on whom kings bestowed it. It is here mentioned by the sacred historian, as being found on the Midianitish kings. "A garment of fine linen and purple" is given to a favourite by king Ahasuerus, Esther viii. 15. The Jews made a decree that Simon should wear purple and gold, and that none of the people should wear it without his permission. Burder.

27. And Gideon made an ephod &c.] Gideon had no other view, in asking these gold earrings and jewels of the soldiery, but to furnish out a costly and magnificent trophy or ensign, as a monument of this signal victory wrought by his hands. He accordingly made it in the form of an ephod, or long robe, to be hung up, and displayed like a military standard; and suspended it in his own house, or in some large and spacious place built on purpose for it, in the town where he lived. But, whether Gideon himself meant any ill by it or not, the Israelites afterwards made a vile and superstitious use of it, paying regards to it as to a sacred thing, consulting it in a religious way, as they used to do the holy ephod in the tabernacle; in derogation to the true worship and honour of God. So that the successors of Gideon's family, taking no care to abolish this impious abuse, soon fell to decay, and his name became as it were extinct. Pyle. He intended the ephod merely as a monument of victory, but in aftertimes it came to be perverted to a bad use, gave occasion to a fresh apostasy, and proved the ruin of Gideon's family. Stackhouse.

29. And Jerubbaal] Jerubbaal being another name for Gideon, chap. vii. 1.

31. — whose name he called Abimelech.] His name is here set down, when nothing is said of the names of the rest, because the story of the following chapter depends upon it. Bp. Patrick.

33. — Baal-berith] A new god, not known to them before, and mentioned only here and in the next chapter; reputed, as some think, the god that punished those who broke their covenants and contracts; or so called, as others think, because his servants covenanted to maintain his worship and service. Bp. Patrick.

34. — remembered not the Lord their God,] It is a sore aggravation of sin, when it is committed after great mercies and deliverances vouchsafed to us; because it is an argument of great ingratitude. Thus we find it here recorded as a heavy charge upon the people of Israel, that they "remembered not the Lord their God," "neither shewed kindness," ver. 35, to Jerubbaal, who had been their deliverer. Abp. Tillotson.

Before
CHRIST
about 1209.

parable rebuketh them, and foretelleth their ruin. 22 Gual conspireth with the Shechemites against him. 30 Zebul revealeth it. 34 Abimelech overcometh them, and soweth the city with salt. 46 He burneth the hold of the god Berith. 50 At Thebez he is slain by a piece of a milstone. 56 Jotham's curse is fulfilled.

AND Abimelech the son of Jerubbaal went to Shechem unto his mother's brethren, and communed with them, and with all the family of the house of his mother's father, saying,

2 Speak, I pray you, in the ears of all the men of Shechem, † Whether is better for you, either that all the sons of Jerubbaal, which are threescore and ten persons, reign over you, or that one reign over you? remember also that I am your bone and your flesh.

3 And his mother's brethren spake of him in the ears of all the men of Shechem all these words: and their hearts inclined † to follow Abimelech; for they said, He is our brother.

4 And they gave him threescore and ten pieces of silver out of the house of Baalberith, wherewith Abimelech hired vain and light persons, which followed him.

5 And he went unto his father's house at Ophrah, and slew his brethren the sons of Jerubbaal, being threescore and ten persons, upon one stone: notwithstanding yet Jotham the youngest son of Jerubbaal was left; for he hid himself.

† Heb.
What is good? whether, &c.

† Heb.
after.

Chap. IX. ver. 2. — I am your bone and your flesh.] Meaning, your fellow-citizen, and belonging to the same tribe. Bp. Patrick.

4. — vain and light persons.] The Hebrew word, which we translate vain, signifies empty; that is, poor and needy persons: and that translated light, signifies idle vagabond fellows, of loose lives, who could settle to no business. Bp. Patrick.

5. — and slew his brethren.] There was never such a pattern of unthankfulness, as these Israelites: they, who lately, chap. viii. 22, thought a kingdom too small a recompense of Gideon and his sons, now think it too much for his seed to live; and take life away from the sons of him, who gave them both life and liberty. If this had been done some long time afterwards, when the memory of Gideon was worn out, it might have borne a better excuse; but, ere their deliverer was cold in his coffin, to pay his benefits with the extirpation of his posterity, was more than savage. What can be looked for from idolaters? If a man has cast off his God, he will easily cast off his friends. When religion is once gone, humanity will not stay long after. Bp. Hall.

— upon one stone.] This stone some will have to be an altar, which Abimelech dedicated to the idol Berith, and erected in the same place where his father Gideon had destroyed his altar before: and so they account, that this slaughter of his sons was designed for an expiatory sacrifice of their father's pretended crime, in demolishing the altar and grove dedicated to that idol. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

6. — all the house of Millo,] The word Millo, it is probably thought, is derived from a Hebrew word which signifies, "to be full or filled." Many learned persons consider it to denote in the sacred writings a large capacious place, which was designed for publick meetings. Accordingly, in this place, by "all the house

Before
CHRIST
about 1209.

6 And all the men of Shechem gathered together, and all the house of Millo, and went, and made Abimelech king, || by the plain of the pillar that was in Shechem.

7 ¶ And when they told it to Jotham, he went and stood in the top of mount Gerizim, and lifted up his voice, and cried, and said unto them, Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, that God may hearken unto you.

8 The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive tree, Reign thou over us.

9 But the olive tree said unto them, Should I leave my fatness, wherewith by me they honour God and man, and || go to be promoted over the trees?

10 And the trees said to the fig tree, Come thou, and reign over us.

11 But the fig tree said unto them, Should I forsake my sweetness, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees?

12 Then said the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us.

13 And the vine said unto them, Should I leave my wine, which cheereth God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees?

14 Then said all the trees unto the || bramble, Come thou, and reign over us.

15 And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you,

|| Or,
by the oak of the pillar.
See Josh.
24. 26.

|| Or, go up and down for other trees.

|| Or, thistle.

of Millo," are meant all the principal inhabitants who were wont to assemble in the publick townhouse; and who on this occasion consented to the setting up of Abimelech as king. Dr. Wells. See note on 2 Sam. v. 9.

— by the plain of the pillar] Our margin translates, "by the oak of the pillar," which refers us to the stone set up by Joshua, under the oak in Shechem. Jos. Mede. See the note on Gen. xii. 6.

7. — the top of mount Gerizim,] Which overlooked the city of Shechem. Deut. xxvii. 12, 13. Bp. Patrick.

8. The trees went forth &c.] It hence appears, that such fictions as these, wherein the most serious truths are represented, were in use among the Jews in ancient times, as they are still in Eastern countries. They seem to have made choice of them for two reasons; 1st, Because men would suffer themselves to be reproved in this manner, when they would not endure plain words; 2nd, Because they heard these fictions with delight and pleasure, and more easily remembered them than a rational discourse. Bp. Patrick.

13. — wine, which cheereth God and man,] A poetical expression, denoting the common custom of the world, of offering up and drinking wine to the honour of their gods. Pyle. The words in the original may be rendered in the plural, "gods and men;" according to which we must suppose, that Jotham speaks of "gods" because he was addressing himself to the idolatrous Shechemites, and adapted his discourse to their notions. Dr. Waterland. Again, the words Elohim and anasim, translated God and man, may mean only "kings, and men of inferiour quality," "high and low." Dr. Wall. "Prince and peasant." Script. illust.

14. — the bramble,] The meanest of all trees, good for nothing but to be burnt; aptly representing Abimelech, from whom they could receive no benefit, but much trouble and vexation.

Before
CHRIST
about 1209

then come and put your trust in my shadow: and if not, let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon.

16 Now therefore, if ye have done truly and sincerely, in that ye have made Abimelech king, and if ye have dealt well with Jerubbaal and his house, and have done unto him according to the deserving of his hands;

† Heb. at his l's. † 17 (For my father fought for you, and † adventured his life far, and delivered you out of the hand of Midian:

18 And ye are risen up against my father's house this day, and have slain his sons, threescore and ten persons, upon one stone, and have made Abimelech, the son of his maidservant, king over the men of Shechem, because he is your brother;)

19 If ye then have dealt truly and sincerely with Jerubbaal and with his house this day, then rejoice ye in Abimelech, and let him also rejoice in you:

20 But if not, let fire come out from Abimelech, and devour the men of Shechem, and the house of Millo; and let fire come out from the men of Shechem, and from the house of Millo, and devour Abimelech.

21 And Jotham ran away, and fled, and went to Beer, and dwelt there, for fear of Abimelech his brother.

about 1206. 22 ¶ When Abimelech had reigned three years over Israel,

23 Then God sent an evil spirit between

15. — put your trust in my shadow:] By this is admirably represented how ridiculous Abimelech was, in imagining that he should be able to maintain the authority of a king; for a bramble does not spread itself out, so as to afford any shadow or shelter. Bp. Patrick.

— and devour the cedars &c.] By which is represented the vengeance which Abimelech would take of the greatest of them, if they proved unfaithful to him. Bp. Patrick. The preceding fable of the trees choosing a king, is the oldest and most beautiful extant. Jotham pointedly contrasts, with the mild and unassuming dispositions of his pious and honourable brethren, (represented by the olive tree, the fig tree, and the vine,) the upstart ambition and arrogance of the wicked and turbulent Abimelech, represented by the bramble; inviting his new and nobler subjects, the cedars of Lebanon, to put their trust in his pigmy shadow, which they did not want, and he was unable to afford them; and threatening them imperiously, on their refusal, to send forth a fire from himself, and devour those cedars; whereas the fire of the bramble was short and momentary, even to a proverb, Ps. lviii. 9. Dr. Hales.

20. But if not, let fire come out &c.] This is not a prediction, but an execration or curse, as appears from the opposition to the foregoing verse, and from ver. 57, where it is called Jotham's curse. Bp. Patrick. The meaning of the expression, "let fire come out," is, May you prove a mutual destruction to each other. Dr. Wells.

23. — God sent an evil spirit &c.] God so ordered things in His providence, that they grew jealous and distrustful of each other, and fell into discords and dissensions: by which means He intended to punish Abimelech for the cruel murder of his brethren, and the men of Shechem for assisting him in the commission of

Before
CHRIST
about 1206.

Abimelech and the men of Shechem; and the men of Shechem dealt treacherously with Abimelech:

24 That the cruelty done to the threescore and ten sons of Jerubbaal might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their brother, which slew them; and upon the men of Shechem, which † aided him in the killing of his brethren.

† Heb. strengthened his hand to kill.

25 And the men of Shechem set liers in wait for him in the top of the mountains, and they robbed all that came along that way by them: and it was told Abimelech.

26 And Gaal the son of Ebed came with his brethren, and went over to Shechem: and the men of Shechem put their confidence in him.

27 And they went out into the fields, and gathered their vineyards, and trode the grapes, and made || merry, and went into the house of their god, and did eat and drink, and cursed Abimelech.

|| Or, songs.

28 And Gaal the son of Ebed said, Who is Abimelech, and who is Shechem, that we should serve him? is not he the son of Jerubbaal? and Zebul his officer? serve the men of Hamor the father of Shechem: for why should we serve him?

29 And would to God this people were under my hand! then would I remove Abimelech. And he said to Abimelech, Increase thine army, and come out.

30 ¶ And when Zebul the ruler of the that wickedness. Bp. Patrick. The meaning is, as it is explained in the following words, God permitted Abimelech to be deceived and dealt treacherously with by the men of Shechem, that his cruelty, and the blood which he had shed, might come upon him. It is nothing more than an acknowledgment of the justice and wisdom of Providence, in suffering wicked men to be judicially blinded, that they may fall according to their own deserts. Dr. S. Clarke. This is an usual form of speech in Scripture, and denotes, not any positive action, but a permission only, or at most a direction from God. Stackhouse.

— the men of Shechem dealt treacherously with Abimelech:] How could Abimelech hope for fidelity from them, whom he had made and found traitors to his father's blood? He, that has been unfaithful to one, knows the way to be perfidious, and is only fit to be trusted by him, who deserves to be deceived. The friendship that is begun in evil cannot stand: wickedness, both of its own nature, and through the curse of God, is ever unsteady; whereas that affection which is knit in God is indissoluble. Bp. Hall.

26. — Gaal the son of Ebed] Gaal was probably a known enemy of Abimelech's, who, hearing that the men of Shechem were on terms of difference with him, came to offer them his service against him. Bp. Patrick.

27. — trode the grapes,] In the East they still tread their grapes for the ancient manner. Dr. Chandler, in his Travels, says, "The vintage (near Smyrna) was now begun; the juice of the grapes was expressed for wine: a man with his feet and legs bare was treading the fruit in a kind of cistern, with a hole or vent near the bottom, and a vessel beneath to receive the liquor." Burder.

Before
CHRIST
about 1206.
|| Or, hot.

city heard the words of Gaal the son of Ebed, his anger was || kindled.

† Heb. crucially, or,
to Tormah.

31 And he sent messengers unto Abimelech † privily, saying, Behold, Gaal the son of Ebed and his brethren be come to Shechem; and, behold, they fortify the city against thee.

32 Now therefore up by night, thou and the people that is with thee, and lie in wait in the field:

33 And it shall be, that in the morning, as soon as the sun is up, thou shalt rise early, and set upon the city: and, behold, when he and the people that is with him come out against thee, then mayest thou do to them † as thou shalt find occasion.

† Heb.
as thine hand shall find.

34 ¶ And Abimelech rose up, and all the people that were with him, by night, and they laid wait against Shechem in four companies.

35 And Gaal the son of Ebed went out, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and Abimelech rose up, and the people that were with him, from lying in wait.

36 And when Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, Behold, there come people down from the top of the mountains. And Zebul said unto him, Thou seest the shadow of the mountains as if they were men.

37 And Gaal spake again and said, See there come people down by the † middle of the land, and another company come along by the plain of || Meonenim.

† Heb.
navel.

|| Or,
the regard-ers of times.

38 Then said Zebul unto him, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou saidst, Who is Abimelech, that we should serve him? is not this the people that thou hast despised? go out, I pray now, and fight with them.

39 And Gaal went out before the men of Shechem, and fought with Abimelech.

40 And Abimelech chased him, and he fled before him, and many were overthrown and wounded, even unto the entering of the gate.

41 And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah: and Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, that they should not dwell in Shechem.

42 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people went out into the field; and they told Abimelech.

Before
CHRIST
about 1206.

43 And he took the people, and divided them into three companies, and laid wait in the field, and looked, and, behold, the people were come forth out of the city; and he rose up against them, and smote them.

44 And Abimelech, and the company that was with him, rushed forward, and stood in the entering of the gate of the city: and the two other companies ran upon all the people that were in the fields, and slew them.

45 And Abimelech fought against the city all that day; and he took the city, and slew the people that was therein, and beat down the city, and sowed it with salt.

46 ¶ And when all the men of the tower of Shechem heard that, they entered into an hold of the house of the god Berith.

47 And it was told Abimelech, that all the men of the tower of Shechem were gathered together.

48 And Abimelech gat him up to mount Zalmon, he and all the people that were with him; and Abimelech took an ax in his hand, and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it, and laid it on his shoulder, and said unto the people that were with him, What ye have seen † me do, make haste, and do as I have done.

† Heb.
I have done.

49 And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough, and followed Abimelech, and put them to the hold, and set the hold on fire upon them; so that all the men of the tower of Shechem died also, about a thousand men and women.

50 ¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebez, and encamped against Thebez, and took it.

51 But there was a strong tower within the city, and thither fled all the men and women, and all they of the city, and shut it to them, and gat them up to the top of the tower.

52 And Abimelech came unto the tower, and fought against it, and went hard unto the door of the tower to burn it with fire.

53 And a certain woman ^a cast a piece ^{a 2 Sam. 11. 21.} of a milstone upon Abimelech's head, and all to brake his skull.

45. — sowed it with salt.] As the last insult of a triumphant and enraged enemy. Salt lands are barren: thus, though the mere sowing a place with salt is not sufficient to make it perpetually barren, yet this action was a token of the conqueror's indignation, and implied his wishes for its utter desolation. Pyle. See the note on Jer. xvii. 6.

53. — and all to brake his skull.] "All-to" or "al-to" is entirely. Various instances occur in Chaucer and Spenser, and in later writers, as in Milton also. T. Warton. See Judges ix. 53. "And a certain woman cast a piece of a milstone upon Abimelech's head, and all-to brake his skull:" for so it should be printed. Some editions of the Bible corruptly read, "all to break," placing the verb improperly in the infinitive mood. Todd.

Before
CHRIST
about 1206.

54 Then he called hastily unto the young man his armourbearer, and said unto him, Draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died.

55 And when the men of Israel saw that Abimelech was dead, they departed every man unto his place.

56 ¶ Thus God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, which he did unto his father, in slaying his seventy brethren :

57 And all the evil of the men of Shechem did God render upon their heads : and upon them came the curse of Jotham the son of Jerubbaal.

CHAP. X.

1 Tola judgeth Israel in Shamir. 3 Jair, whose thirty sons had thirty cities. 6 The Philistines and Ammonites oppress Israel. 10 In their misery God sendeth them to their false gods. 15 Upon their repentance he pitieth them.

about 1206.

¶ Or, deliver.
† Heb.
save.

AND after Abimelech there arose to ¶ † defend Israel Tola the son of Puah, the son of Dodo, a man of Issachar; and he dwelt in Shamir in mount Ephraim.

about 1183.

2 And he judged Israel twenty and three years, and died, and was buried in Shamir.

3 ¶ And after him arose Jair, a Gileadite, and judged Israel twenty and two years.

4 And he had thirty sons that rode on thirty ass colts, and they had thirty cities,

56. Thus God rendered &c.] Here is the concluding lesson of the preceding story : that thus Providence returned upon the head of this man the proper reward of his insatiable ambition and cruelty towards the house of his own father ; causing him, and the ungrateful and vain people which set him up, to become in a short space of time the instruments of each other's ruin and destruction. Pyle. How sure and just are the retaliations of God ! Gideon's ephod is punished with the blood of his sons ; the blood of his sons is shed by the procurement of the Shechemites ; the blood of the Shechemites is shed by Abimelech ; the blood of Abimelech is shed by a woman. The tyrant now has his payment ; and that time, which he should have bestowed in calling for mercy on God, and in washing his soul with the last tears of contrition, he vainly spends in deprecating an idle reproach, "Slay me, that men say not of me, A woman slew him ;"—a fit conclusion for such a life. Bp. Hall.

The whole history of the manner in which "God rendered the wickedness of Abimelech, &c." supplies a further striking instance of the method of the Divine administration, now carried on towards His people. The apparent severity in some of these instances arose from the operation of human passions in the agents employed, or permitted, to execute the judgments, without being directly controlled in their conduct ; or if in any case the severity was directly commanded, we may be well assured it was indispensably necessary to effect the purposes of the Divine economy, when even that severity was not sufficient entirely to prevent subsequent offences. Dr. Graves.

which are called ¶ Havoth-jair unto this day, which are in the land of Gilead.

Before
CHRIST
about 1183.

5 And Jair died, and was buried in Camon.

¶ Or,
The villages of Jair.
about 1161.

6 ¶ And the children of Israel did evil again in the sight of the LORD, and served Baalim, and Ashtaroth, and the gods of Syria, and the gods of Zidon, and the gods of Moab, and the gods of the children of Ammon, and the gods of the Philistines, and forsook the LORD, and served not him.

Chap. 2.
11. & 3. 7.
& 4. 1. & 6.
1. & 13. 1.
Chap. 2.
13.

7 And the anger of the LORD was hot against Israel, and he sold them into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hands of the children of Ammon.

about 1161.

8 And that year they vexed and † oppressed the children of Israel eighteen years, all the children of Israel that were on the other side Jordan in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead.

† Heb.
crushed.

9 Moreover the children of Ammon passed over Jordan to fight also against Judah, and against Benjamin, and against the house of Ephraim ; so that Israel was sore distressed.

10 ¶ And the children of Israel cried unto the LORD, saying, We have sinned against thee, both because we have forsaken our God, and also served Baalim.

11 And the LORD said unto the children of Israel, Did not I deliver you from the Egyptians, and from the Amorites, from the children of Ammon, and from the Philistines ?

Chap. X. ver. 1. — after Abimelech there arose &c.] Abimelech was no judge or governour of God's appointment, but an usurper and a tyrant : these, who succeeded, appear to have arisen by Divine instigation and appointment ; keeping the Israelites in the worship of the true God, maintaining their laws, and defending them from their enemies, without assuming over them a monarchical power. Dr. Wells, Pyle.

4. — that rode on thirty ass colts,] It is probable that this circumstance is here mentioned, because these persons were ordered by their father to ride circuit up and down the country, to administer justice according to the law, as Samuel did when he judged Israel, 1 Sam. vii. 16. Bp. Patrick. As in those days the Israelites had but few chariots, and were not allowed to keep many horses ; the most honourable of them were used to be mounted on asses, which, in Eastern countries, were much higher and more beautiful than they are with us. Stackhouse. See the note on Numb. xxii. 21.

— Havoth-jair] Other towns had been called by the same name, Numb. xxxii. 41 ; Deut. iii. 14 ; by a former Jair, an ancestor probably of the person here mentioned. Bp. Patrick.

7. — Philistines, — children of Ammon.] The Ammonites vexed them on the east, and the Philistines on the west : thus, by the invasion of their enemies on both sides, their punishment increased with their idolatry. The two oppressions seem to have happened at the same time ; but, to avoid confusion, Scripture first gives an account of the war with the Ammonites, managed by Jephthah, ch. xi, xii. then of that with the Philistines, ch. xiii. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.

12 The Zidonians also, and the Amalekites, and the Maonites, did oppress you; and ye cried to me, and I delivered you out of their hand.

^c Deut. 32.
15.
Jer. 2. 13.

13 ^c Yet ye have forsaken me, and served other gods: wherefore I will deliver you no more.

14 Go and cry unto the gods which ye have chosen; let them deliver you in the time of your tribulation.

15 ¶ And the children of Israel said unto the LORD, We have sinned: do thou unto us whatsoever [†] seemeth good unto thee; deliver us only, we pray thee, this day.

[†] Heb. is good in thine eyes.

16 And they put away the [†] strange gods from among them, and served the LORD: and his soul [†] was grieved for the misery of Israel.

[†] Heb. gods of strangers.
[†] Heb. was shortened.

17 Then the children of Ammon were [†] gathered together, and encamped in Gilead. And the children of Israel assembled themselves together, and encamped in Mizpeh.

[†] Heb.
cried together.

18 And the people and princes of Gilead said one to another, What man is he that will begin to fight against the children of Ammon? he shall ^a be head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

^a Chap. 11.
6.

CHAP. XI.

1 The covenant between Jephthah and the Gileadites, that he should be their head. 12 The treaty of peace between him and the Ammonites is in vain. 29 Jephthah's vow. 32 His conquest of the Ammonites. 34 He performeth his vow on his daughter.

^a Hebr. 11.
32. called Jephthae.

NOW ^a Jephthah the Gileadite was a mighty man of valour, and he was the son of [†] an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.

2 And Gilead's wife bare him sons; and his wife's sons grew up, and they thrust out Jephthah, and said unto him, Thou shalt not inherit in our father's house; for thou art the son of a strange woman.

[†] Heb.
a woman
an harlot.

3 Then Jephthah fled [†] from his brethren, and dwelt in the land of Tob: and there were gathered vain men to Jephthah, and went out with him.

[†] Heb. from the face.

4 ¶ And it came to pass [†] in process of time, that the children of Ammon made war against Israel.

[†] Heb.
after days.

5 And it was so, that when the children of Ammon made war against Israel, the elders of Gilead went to fetch Jephthah out of the land of Tob:

6 And they said unto Jephthah, Come, and be our captain, that we may fight with the children of Ammon.

7 And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, Did not ye hate me, and expel me out of my father's house? and why are ye come unto me now when ye are in distress?

8 And the elders of Gilead said unto Jephthah, Therefore we turn again to thee now, that thou mayest go with us, and fight against the children of Ammon, and be our head over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

9 And Jephthah said unto the elders of Gilead, If ye bring me home again to fight against the children of Ammon, and the LORD deliver them before me, shall I be your head?

10 And the elders of Gilead said unto much mercy resolved, upon their repentance, to deliver them. Stackhouse. See the note from Stackhouse on Gen. vi. 6.

— his soul was grieved for the misery of Israel. God had compassion on the miseries which the Israelites brought on themselves by their idolatry. Bp. Hall.

17. — in Mizpeh. There were several towns of this name in Canaan; this was on the east of Jordan, in Gilead, under mount Hermon; mentioned before at Josh. xi. 3. Dr. Wall, Bp. Patrick.

18. — the people and princes of Gilead Meaning the Gadites and Manassites, who inhabited the land of Gilead. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — of an harlot: Called “a strange woman,” ver. 2, a concubine-wife, or one who was a stranger, of a different nation. Pyle, Dr. Wells. Among the Jews, if persons of a foreign nation embraced the law, their children were not stained; and on this account Jephthah complains of the injustice of his expulsion, ver. 7. Bp. Patrick.

3. — the land of Tob: This name occurs only here, and at ver. 5: it is conjectured to be the same with Ish-tob, mentioned at 2 Sam. x. 6: according to which, the country would lie not far from Gilead, the country of Jephthah. Dr. Wells.

— vain men Rather, poor and needy men. Bp. Patrick,

12. — the Maonites,] Another nation of the children of the East, that, together with the Amalekites, assisted the Midianites. Dr. Wells.

14. Go and cry unto the gods] After reproaching them for their vile stupidity and ingratitude, under the course of His mercies, forgivenesses, and deliverances; He bids them go and seek their refuge from the senseless idols, which they had worshipped so long, and so often. Pyle. It was an argument of a most perverse and incorrigible temper, and that which made the sin of the children of Israel so sinful above all measure, that, after so many signal deliverances, and so many terrible judgments, they fell into the same again. This circumstance it was which incensed God against them so highly on this occasion, and made Him upbraid them so severely. Abp. Tillotson.

16. And they put away the strange gods] This is the most remarkable repentance and reformation, of which we read in the history of the judges; and it seems to be so serious, that, in the time of the three judges who succeeded Jephthah, we read nothing of their relapsing into idolatry. As their repentance was sincere, so the expression of the Divine compassion towards them, namely, “that His soul was grieved for the misery of Israel,” is the strongest that we meet with; although every one knows that the Divine nature is not capable of grief, properly so called; but the meaning is, that He quite altered His former intention, and in

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.
† Heb. be the hearer between us.

Jephthah, The LORD † be witness between us, if we do not so according to thy words.

11 Then Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead, and the people made him head and captain over them: and Jephthah uttered all his words before the LORD in Mizpeh.

about 1143.

12 ¶ And Jephthah sent messengers unto the king of the children of Ammon, saying, What hast thou to do with me, that thou art come against me to fight in my land?

13 And the king of the children of Ammon answered unto the messengers of Jephthah, ^b Because Israel took away my land, when they came up out of Egypt, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and unto Jordan: now therefore restore those lands again peaceably.

^a Numb.
21. 12.

14 And Jephthah sent messengers again unto the king of the children of Ammon:

^c Deut. 2.
9.

15 And said unto him, Thus saith Jephthah, ^c Israel took not away the land of Moab, nor the land of the children of Ammon:

16 But when Israel came up from Egypt, and walked through the wilderness unto the Red sea, and came to Kadesh;

^d Numb.
20. 14.

17 Then ^d Israel sent messengers unto the king of Edom, saying, Let me, I pray thee, pass through thy land: but the king of Edom would not hearken thereto. And in like manner they sent unto the king of Moab: but he would not consent: and Israel abode in Kadesh.

^e Numb.
21. 13. &
21. 24.

18 Then they went along through the wilderness, and compassed the land of Edom, and the land of Moab, and came by the east side of the land of Moab, and pitched on the other side of Arnon, ^e but came not within the border of Moab: for Arnon was the border of Moab.

11. — uttered all his words before the Lord] He appears to have laid before God, in a solemn address or prayer, all that he had said to the Gileadites, imploring, probably, His approbation and direction. Bp. Patrick.

12. And Jephthah sent messengers] Jephthah was noted for his valour, yet he treated with Ammon before he fought; it was only when reason would not prevail, that he betook himself to the sword. To make war any other than our last remedy, is not courage, but cruelty and rashness. Bp. Hall.

24. Wilt not thou possess that which Chemosh thy god &c.] He appeals to themselves, whether, as they ascribed their victories and possessions to their supposed deity Chemosh, the Israelites have not the same right and duty to what their God had bestowed upon them. Pyle.

It cannot possibly be thought that Jephthah, a judge in Israel, intended by these words to acknowledge the real divinity of the Ammonitish idol. He is evidently using an argument formed 19 And ^f Israel sent messengers unto Sihon king of the Amorites, the king of Heshbon; and Israel said unto him, Let us pass, we pray thee, through thy land into my place. Before

CHRIST
about 1143.
^f Deut. 2.
26.

20 But Sihon trusted not Israel to pass through his coast: but Sihon gathered all his people together, and pitched in Jahaz, and fought against Israel.

21 And the LORD God of Israel delivered Sihon and all his people into the hand of Israel, and they smote them: so Israel possessed all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of that country.

22 And they possessed all the ^g coasts of the Amorites, from Arnon even unto Jabbok, and from the wilderness even unto Jordan. ^g Deut. 2.
36.

23 So now the LORD God of Israel hath dispossessed the Amorites from before his people Israel, and shouldest thou possess it?

24 Wilt not thou possess that which Chemosh thy god giveth thee to possess? So whomsoever the LORD our God shall drive out from before us, them will we possess.

25 ^h And now art thou any thing better than Balak the son of Zippor, king of Moab? did he ever strive against Israel, or did he ever fight against them, ^h Numb.
22. 2.
Deut. 23. 4.
Josh. 24. 9.

26 While Israel dwelt in Heshbon and her towns, and in Aroer and her towns, and in all the cities that be along by the coasts of Arnon, three hundred years? why therefore did ye not recover them within that time?

27 Wherefore I have not sinned against thee, but thou doest me wrong to war against me: the LORD the Judge be judge this day between the children of Israel and the children of Ammon.

28 Howbeit the king of the children of upon the principles of his adversaries, and therefore conclusive to them. As if he had said, "You deem yourselves entitled to any possession, acquired, as you imagine, by the assistance of him, whom you call your god; and you cannot reasonably expect us to yield that, which we know the Lord our God has awarded to us." Jephthah, in a negotiation with the Ammonites, had no occasion to discuss the subject of their idolatry, or to tell them what he thought of Chemosh; but states the matter according to their own ideas, supposing them, for a moment, to be true, although he knew them to be false. Bp. Horne.

— Chemosh thy god] Otherwise Chamos, the god of the Ammonites, supposed by some to be the sun. Calmet.

27. — the Lord the Judge be judge &c.] He concludes by committing his cause to God, the righteous Judge of the whole world, who, he had no doubt, would decide, by the event of the war, on the justice of his cause. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1143. Ammon hearkened not unto the words of Jephthah which he sent him.

29 ¶ Then the Spirit of the LORD came upon Jephthah, and he passed over Gilead, and Manasseh, and passed over Mizpeh of Gilead, and from Mizpeh of Gilead he passed over unto the children of Ammon.

30 And Jephthah vowed a vow unto the LORD, and said, If thou shalt without fail deliver the children of Ammon into mine hands, † Heb. that which cometh forth, which shall come forth. ¶ Or, or I will offer it, &c.

31 Then it shall be, that † whatsoever cometh forth of the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, shall surely be the LORD's, † and I will offer it up for a burnt offering.

32 ¶ So Jephthah passed over unto the children of Ammon to fight against them; and the LORD delivered them into his hands.

29. Then the Spirit of the Lord came] God now publicly declared His approbation of the people's choice, by making Jephthah their judge, as He had done others before, chap. iii. 10; and by endowing him with an extraordinary measure of courage, wisdom, and all other qualities necessary to render him fit to be the ruler of His people. Bp. Patrick.

30. And Jephthah vowed a vow] He appears not to have had any doubt of the victory, but still to have thought he might be the more assured of it, if he made a religious vow beforehand, of being very grateful to God for it. Bp. Patrick.

— If thou shalt — deliver the children of Ammon] Jephthah began his war, in craving victory from God, and pouring out his vow to Him: while his hand took hold of his sword, his heart cleaved to God. He who is especially commended for his strength, dared trust in none but the arm of God. If Jephthah had not looked upwards for his victory, in vain had the Gileadites looked up to him. And this is the disposition of all good hearts: they look to their sword or their bow, as servants, not as patrons; and, while they use them, trust in God. If men would do so in all their actions, they would have more joy in their success, and less discomfort in their miscarriage. Bp. Hall.

31. — shall surely be the Lord's, and I will offer it up] The more true translation of these words may be, "Shall be the Lord's, or else I will offer it up for a burnt offering," for so the Hebrew particle is often used. See the margin. The sense of the vow will then be, Whatsoever cometh out of the house to meet me shall be the Lord's; if it be a human person, servant, &c. it shall be dedicated to His service; or, if it be a beast fit to be offered, it shall be offered for a burnt offering. Pyle, Dr. Wall.

34. — came out to meet him] To congratulate him on his victory, with musick and dancing: such was the ancient custom, Exod. xv. 20, which continued afterwards, 1 Sam. xviii. 6. Bp. Patrick.

35. — thou hast brought me very low, — for I have opened my mouth &c.] Thou art unwittingly a cause of much sorrow and affliction to me; for I have made a vow unto God, and cannot reverse it. Bp. Hall.

36. — do to me according to &c.] Many a daughter would have dissuaded her father with tears, and would have wished rather her father's impiety than her own prejudice: but she sues for the performance of her father's vow. We learn how obsequious children ought to be to their parents, when we see this holy maid willing to abandon the world on the rash vow of a father. Bp. Hall.

It has been the subject of endless controversy, whether Jeph-

33 And he smote them from Aroer, even till thou come to Minnith, even twenty cities, and unto † the plain of the vineyards, with a very great slaughter. Thus the children of Ammon were subdued before the children of Israel.

34 ¶ And Jephthah came to Mizpeh unto his house, and, behold, his daughter came out to meet him with timbrels and with dances: and she was his only child; † † beside her he had neither son nor daughter.

35 And it came to pass, when he saw her, that he rent his clothes, and said, Alas, my daughter! thou hast brought me very low, and thou art one of them that trouble me: for I have opened my mouth unto the LORD, and I cannot go back.

36 And she said unto him, My father, if thou hast opened thy mouth unto the LORD, do to me according to that which thah did really offer up his daughter "for a burnt offering" to the Lord, or only devote her to perpetual virginity, which might be considered as a sacrifice in those times, especially when every woman looked forward to the production of the promised Seed. The Jews, and early Christian Church, believed that Jephthah actually sacrificed his daughter; and the compilers of the Homilies of our Church agree in substance with the same opinion. On the other hand, there are some strong objections to this opinion; for the terms of the vow do not necessarily imply that he really sacrificed her: see note on ver. 31: also human sacrifices were so forbidden by the Jewish law, and declared so abominable to God, that it is scarcely possible to believe Jephthah would have been guilty of so great a crime. Again, the consequence of the vow recorded at ver. 39, that "she knew no man," seems to imply that she was devoted to perpetual virginity; and the excessive lamentations on the occasion may be sufficiently accounted for, by the prevailing ideas in those times respecting a state of celibacy. Stackhouse, Dr. Gray, Pyle.

Jephthah's extreme grief on the occasion, and the request of his daughter for a respite of two months to bewail her virginity, are both perfectly natural. Having no other issue, he could only look forward to the extinction of his name or family; and a state of celibacy, which is reproachful among women every where, was peculiarly so among the Israelites, and was therefore no ordinary sacrifice on her part, who, though she generously gave up, could not but regret the loss of becoming "a mother in Israel." That Jephthah could not possibly have sacrificed his daughter, (according to the vulgar opinion founded on incorrect translation,) may appear from the following considerations, among others. 1. The sacrifice of children to Moloch was an abomination to the Lord, of which, in numberless passages, He expresses His detestation; it was also prohibited by an express law, under pain of death, Lev. xx. 2, 3. 2. No father, merely by his own authority, could put an offending, much less an innocent, child to death, upon any account, without the sentence of the magistrates, and the consent of the people, Deut. xxi. 18—21. Dr. Hales.

However the more disputable points be determined, it can never be inferred that the God of Israel commanded or countenanced human sacrifices. Those that interpret the vow in the harshest sense, call it rash, and censure Jephthah as ignorant of the Law of God. Others, who think the vow capable of a milder construction, acquit the Scripture and Jephthah of any imputation in the affair. What is most probable is, that Jephthah did not sacrifice his daughter, nor intend any such thing. Dr. Waterland.

From this history of Jephthah's vow, we should be led to copy

Before CHRIST about 1143.

¶ Or, Abel.

¶ Or, he had not of his own either son or daughter. † Heb. of himself.

Before
CHRIST
about 1143.

hath proceeded out of thy mouth; forasmuch as the Lord hath taken vengeance for thee of thine enemies, even of the children of Ammon.

† Heb. go, and go down.

37 And she said unto her father, Let this thing be done for me: Let me alone two months, that I may go † up and down upon the mountains, and bewail my virginity, I and my fellows.

38 And he said, Go. And he sent her away for two months: and she went with her companions, and bewailed her virginity upon the mountains.

39 And it came to pass at the end of two months, that she returned unto her father, who did with her according to his vow which he had vowed: and she knew no man. And it was a || custom in Israel, ordinance.

|| Or,

† Heb. from year to year.

|| Or,
to talk with.

40 That the daughters of Israel went † yearly || to lament the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite four days in a year.

CHAP. XII.

1 The Ephraimites, quarrelling with Jephthah, and discerned by Shibboleth, are slain by the Gileadites. 7 Jephthah dieth. 8 Ibzan, who had thirty sons and thirty daughters, 11 and Elon, 13 and Abdon, who had forty sons and thirty nephews, judged Israel.

† Heb.
were called.

AND the men of Ephraim † gathered themselves together, and went northward, and said unto Jephthah, Wherefore passedst thou over to fight against the children of Ammon, and didst not call us to go with thee? we will burn thine house upon thee with fire.

after the faith, the piety, the strict sense of honour, and religion, so eminently conspicuous in Jephthah and his daughter. As, on the one hand, we should be cautious how we make rash vows, which may involve us in difficulty and perplexity; so, on the other hand, let us neither seek nor admit of any pretences for dispensing with our duty. Let no distresses or difficulties shake our constancy, or prevail with us to go back from the paths of virtue and religion; but let us prefer our duty and our honour to all considerations of interest or affection. Let us "ever follow that which is good," "abstaining from all appearance of evil," and "keeping a conscience void of offence towards God and man." Dr. Randolph.

40. — went yearly to lament] Went yearly to talk with, as in the margin; or, as the Hebrew word may also be rendered, to make presents to, the daughter of Jephthah. And according to either of these significations, it will be evident that she must have survived the completion of her father's vow. Dr. Randolph.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. And the men of Ephraim &c.] The Ephraimites at this time seem to have been a haughty and quarrelsome people; they had before envied Gideon his glory, chap. viii. 1, &c. though it tended so much to their common advantage; and now, when Jephthah returned victorious, quarrelled with him on the pretence of his not having consulted them in the war. Pyle.

— went northward,] To the country of Manasseh, east of Jordan, towards the north. Bp. Patrick.

3. — I put my life in my hands,] Meaning, 'I exposed my life to the utmost hazard;' for he had but a small part of the

2 And Jephthah said unto them, I and my people were at great strife with the children of Ammon; and when I called you, ye delivered me not out of their hands.

Before
CHRIST
about 1143.

3 And when I saw that ye delivered me not, I put my life in my hands, and passed over against the children of Ammon, and the Lord delivered them into my hand: wherefore then are ye come up unto me this day, to fight against me?

4 Then Jephthah gathered together all the men of Gilead, and fought with Ephraim: and the men of Gilead smote Ephraim, because they said, Ye Gileadites are fugitives of Ephraim among the Ephraimites, and among the Manassites.

5 And the Gileadites took the passages of Jordan before the Ephraimites: and it was so, that when those Ephraimites which were escaped said, Let me go over; that the men of Gilead said unto him, Art thou an Ephraimite? If he said, Nay;

6 Then said they unto him, Say now Shibboleth: and he said Sibboleth: for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him, and slew him at the passages of Jordan: and there fell at that time of the Ephraimites forty and two thousand.

7 And Jephthah judged Israel six years. Then died Jephthah the Gileadite, and was buried in one of the cities of Gilead.

about 1157.

8 ¶ And after him Ibzan of Beth-lehem judged Israel.

people of Israel with him, to fight with their powerful oppressors. Bp. Patrick.

6. — Say now Shibboleth:] To find out whether they spake the truth, they put them to the test of pronouncing the word Shibboleth; which the people of Ephraim, having a pronunciation different from the other tribes, were accustomed to speak as Sibboleth. This word was chosen, probably, as being fit for the purpose: Shibboleth means floods of water; so that the test to which they put them was this, to make them say, "Let us pass over the waters." Bp. Patrick. Nothing is more notorious, than that the people of the same nation, who speak the same language, differ very much in their pronunciation of it, in different parts of the same country. In Palestine, the people of Galilee, and those that lived at Jerusalem, spake the same tongue; and yet in the time of Christ, the latter could say to St. Peter, "Thy speech bewrayeth thee," Matth. xxvi. 73. In Greece all spake Greek, yet the Ionians, Atticks, &c. spake very differently. And here, though the Gileadites and Ephraimites were of the same nation, yet the latter could not pronounce the Hebrew letter schin, the first in Shibboleth. Stackhouse.

— and there fell — of the Ephraimites forty and two thousand.] This was a terrible slaughter for one tribe to make of another; but the Ephraimites seem to have deserved it, as a just punishment of their pride and insolence, in despising so great a man as Jephthah, who had saved all the people of Israel, and threatening to destroy his house after so glorious a victory; also in reviling their brethren, invading them without a cause, and attempting to drive them out of the country. Stackhouse.

Before
CHRIST
about 1137.

9 And he had thirty sons, and thirty daughters, whom he sent abroad, and took in thirty daughters from abroad for his sons. And he judged Israel seven years.

10 Then died Ibzan, and was buried at Beth-lehem.

about 1130.

11 ¶ And after him Elon, a Zebulonite, judged Israel; and he judged Israel ten years.

12 And Elon the Zebulonite died, and was buried in Aijalon in the country of Zebulun.

about 1120.

13 ¶ And after him Abdon the son of Hillel, a Pirathonite, judged Israel.

† Heb.
sons' sons.

14 And he had forty sons and thirty nephews, that rode on threescore and ten ass colts: and he judged Israel eight years.

about 1112.

15 And Abdon the son of Hillel the Pirathonite died, and was buried in Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Israel is in the hand of the Philistines. 2 An angel appeareth to Manoah's wife. 8 The angel appeareth to Manoah. 15 Manoah's sacrifice, whereby the angel is discovered. 24 Samson is born.

about 1161.
† Heb. added to commit, &c.
a Chap. 2.
11. & 3. 7.
& 4. 1. & 6.
1. & 10. 6.

AND the children of Israel †^a did evil again in the sight of the LORD; and the LORD delivered them into the hand of the Philistines forty years.

2 ¶ And there was a certain man of Zorah, of the family of the Danites, whose name was Manoah; and his wife was barren, and bare not.

3 And the angel of the LORD appeared unto the woman, and said unto her, Behold now, thou art barren, and bearest not: but thou shalt conceive, and bear a son.

9. — whom he sent abroad.] That is, whom he disposed of in marriage, and sent to their husbands' houses. These circumstances seem mentioned to shew the great blessing of God on Ibzan and his family. Bp. Patrick.

14. — that rode &c.] See the note on chap. x. 4.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. And the children of Israel &c.] The sacred historian, having detailed the events which regarded the Ammonite oppression, now proceeds to that of the Philistines. See chap. x. 7.

4. — drink not wine &c.] The child which was conceived in her was to be a Nazarite, ver. 5; and on this account she is desired to live as the Nazarites did, while she bare him in her womb. A Nazarite (see Numb. vi. 2, 3) was one, who, under the Levitical Law, either to attain the favour of God, or to avert His judgments, or to acknowledge His mercies, vowed a vow of particular purity, and was separated in an extraordinary manner to the service of God. Samson's Nazaritism, to which he was consecrated by his parents, was to last the whole term of his life; but his frequent intercourse with the Philistines, and the great havock and slaughter which he so often made among them, render it probable that he had a particular dispensation, exempting him from the observation of many of the rules. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.

4 Now therefore beware, I pray thee, and ^bdrink not wine nor strong drink, and eat not any unclean thing:

^b Numb. 6.
2, 3.

5 For, lo, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; and ^cno razor shall come on his head: for the child shall be a Nazarite unto God from the womb: and he shall begin to deliver Israel out of the hand of the Philistines.

^c Numb. 6.
5.
1 Sam. 1.
11.

6 ¶ Then the woman came and told her husband, saying, A man of God came unto me, and his countenance was like the countenance of an angel of God, very terrible: but I asked him not whence he was, neither told he me his name:

7 But he said unto me, Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bear a son; and now drink no wine nor strong drink, neither eat any unclean thing: for the child shall be a Nazarite to God from the womb to the day of his death.

8 ¶ Then Manoah intreated the LORD, and said, O my Lord, let the man of God which thou didst send come again unto us, and teach us what we shall do unto the child that shall be born.

9 And God hearkened to the voice of Manoah; and the angel of God came again unto the woman as she sat in the field: but Manoah her husband was not with her.

10 And the woman made haste, and ran, and shewed her husband, and said unto him, Behold, the man hath appeared unto me, that came unto me the other day.

11 And Manoah arose, and went after his wife, and came to the man, and said unto him, Art thou the man that spakest unto the woman? And he said, I am.

5. — he shall begin to deliver Israel] Samson, as will appear, did not perfectly deliver the Israelites from the yoke of the Philistines, for this was not accomplished till after his death, by Samson, who put an end to their tyranny by his victory at Ebenezer, 1 Sam. vii. 13; but Samson put a check to them by the damage and slaughter which he wrought among them. Bp. Patrick.

6. — A man of God] She took him probably for a Prophet sent from God. Bp. Patrick.

— like the countenance of an angel] Of a form and countenance perfectly angelick, mixed up with terror and sweetness, plainly bespeaking something more than human. Pyle.

8. — and teach us what we shall do unto the child] When we see the strength of Manoah's faith, we cannot marvel that he had a Samson for his son. He saw not the messenger, he heard not the errand, he examined not the circumstances; yet now he took thought, not whether he should have a son, but how he should order the son whom he should have: he sued to God, not for the son whom as yet he had not, but for the direction of governing him when he should be. "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed," John xx. 29. True faith takes all for granted, yea for performed, which is once promised. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.

† Heb.
What shall be the manner of the,
&c.

|| Or, what shall he do?
† Heb.
what shall be his work?

12 And Manoah said, Now let thy words come to pass. † How shall we order the child, and || † how shall we do unto him?

13 And the angel of the Lord said unto Manoah, Of all that I said unto the woman let her beware.

14 She may not eat of any thing that cometh of the vine, neither let her drink wine or strong drink, nor eat any unclean thing: all that I commanded her let her observe.

15 ¶ And Manoah said unto the angel of the Lord, I pray thee, let us detain thee, until we shall have made ready a kid † for thee.

† Heb.
before thee.

16 And the angel of the Lord said unto Manoah, Though thou detain me, I will not eat of thy bread: and if thou wilt offer a burnt offering, thou must offer it unto the Lord. For Manoah knew not that he was an angel of the Lord.

17 And Manoah said unto the angel of the Lord, What is thy name, that when thy sayings come to pass we may do thee honour?

18 And the angel of the Lord said unto him, Why askest thou thus after my name, seeing it is || secret?

|| Or,
wonderful.

19 So Manoah took a kid with a meat offering, and offered it upon a rock unto the Lord: and the angel did wonderfully; and Manoah and his wife looked on.

20 For it came to pass, when the flame went up toward heaven from off the altar, that the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar. And Manoah and his wife looked on it, and fell on their faces to the ground.

Before
CHRIST
about 1161.

21 But the angel of the Lord did no more appear to Manoah and to his wife. Then Manoah knew that he was an angel of the Lord.

22 And Manoah said unto his wife, ⁴ We shall surely die, because we have seen God. ⁴ Exod. 33. 20, chap. G. 22.

23 But his wife said unto him, If the Lord were pleased to kill us, he would not have received a burnt offering and a meat offering at our hands, neither would he have shewed us all these things, nor would as at this time have told us such things as these.

24 ¶ And the woman bare a son, and called his name Samson: and the child grew, and the Lord blessed him.

25 And the Spirit of the Lord began to move him at times in the camp of Dan between Zorah and Eshtaol.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Samson desireth a wife of the Philistines. 6 In his journey he killeth a lion. 8 In a second journey he findeth honey in the carcass. 10 Samson's marriage feast. 12 His riddle by his wife is made known. 19 He spoileth thirty Philistines. 20 His wife is married to another.

AND Samson went down to Timnath, ^{about 1141.} and saw a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the Philistines.

2 And he came up, and told his father and his mother, and said, I have seen a woman in Timnath of the daughters of the 16. — if thou wilt offer a burnt offering,] If thou wilt offer a burnt offering to express thy thankfulness to God for the favour vouchsafed unto thee, thou must offer it wholly unto the Lord. Dr. Wells.

17. — What is thy name, &c.] Manoah, still taking him for a Prophet, probably asked him his name, in order that he might shew his gratitude by making him some suitable present. Bp. Patrick.

18. — it is secret?] Rather, as in the margin, “it is wonderful,” or admirable. Bp. Patrick.

19. — did wonderfully;] Wrought a great miracle, according to the name, which he had just given himself; for he caused fire from heaven to consume the provisions, as an acceptable offering to God, and then ascended up himself in the flame, and vanished out of sight. Pyle.

This was a significant sign to this pious couple, that He was the Angel of the Lord Himself, ver. 16, who formerly had appeared to Gideon, and set fire to his sacrifice upon the rock, and now vanished in the flame, by a fuller manifestation of His divinity. His name wonderful is repeated among the magnificent titles, applied in prophecy to the great Deliverer of the faithful, when His future birth was announced by Isaiah: “His name shall be called Wonderful, &c.” Isai. ix. 6; or “He shall be great,” as in the application of this prophecy to Christ, by the angel Gabriel, Luke i. 32, at the annunciation of the Virgin Mary. And from the fears of death expressed on seeing Him by Manoah, ver. 22, and intimated by Gideon before, chap. vi. 22, 23, it appears that He was the same God who told Moses, “There shall no man see Me and live,” Exod. xxxiii. 20.—or, the Son of God. Dr. Hales.

23. — If the Lord were pleased] She argued that such gracious appearances, on so comfortable a message, with so wonderful and kind an acceptance of their offering, plainly bespoke the favour, not the anger, of God; and therefore they might rest assured with the hope of the promise being fulfilled. Pyle.

24. — Samson:] The meaning of this name is uncertain: it is probably derived from the Hebrew Shemesh, the sun, denoting him to be the light and strength of Israel. Bp. Patrick.

25. — the Spirit of the Lord began to move him] To perform extraordinary things, as specimens of singular strength and valour. Dr. Wells.

— in the camp of Dan between Zorah &c.] The sense is, “In the camp of Dan, and between Zorah and Eshtaol:” for that place did not lie near the two latter, but in or near the tribe of Judah. Pyle. The camp of Dan was so called from the Israelites encamping there in their expedition against Laish: it is the same as Mahaneh-dan, chap. xviii. 12. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — to Timnath,] Timnath was a city in the tribe of Dan, but had fallen, it is probable, into the possession of the Philistines, (near to whose country it lay,) who at this time oppressed the Israelites, and made them their tributaries. Bp. Patrick.

Painted by W^m Hamilton R.A

Engraved by R. Vandy.

MANOAH'S SACRIFICE,

Judges C 13, v: 19-20

London, Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge J. 1797

Before CHRIST about 1141. Philistines : now therefore get her for me to wife.

3 Then his father and his mother said unto him, Is there never a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, or among all my people, that thou goest to take a wife of the uncircumcised Philistines? And Samson said unto his father, Get her for me; for † she pleaseth me well.

† Heb. she is right in mine eyes.

4 But his father and his mother knew not that it was of the LORD, that he sought an occasion against the Philistines: for at that time the Philistines had dominion over Israel.

5 ¶ Then went Samson down, and his father and his mother, to Timnath, and came to the vineyards of Timnath: and, behold, a young lion roared † against him.

† Heb. in meeting him.

6 And the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and he rent him as he would have rent a kid, and he had nothing in his hand: but he told not his father or his mother what he had done.

7 And he went down, and talked with the woman; and she pleased Samson well.

8 ¶ And after a time he returned to take her, and he turned aside to see the carcase of the lion: and, behold, there was a swarm of bees and honey in the carcase of the lion.

9 And he took thereof in his hands, and went on eating, and came to his father and mother, and he gave them, and they did eat: but he told not them that he had taken the honey out of the carcase of the lion.

10 ¶ So his father went down unto the woman: and Samson made there a feast; for so used the young men to do.

11 And it came to pass, when they saw him, that they brought thirty companions to be with him.

12 ¶ And Samson said unto them, I will now put forth a riddle unto you: if ye can certainly declare it me within the seven days of the feast, and find it out, then I will give you thirty || sheets and thirty change of garments: Before CHRIST about 1141. || Or, shirts.

13 But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye give me thirty sheets and thirty change of garments. And they said unto him, Put forth thy riddle, that we may hear it.

14 And he said unto them, Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness. And they could not in three days expound the riddle.

15 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that they said unto Samson's wife, Entice thy husband, that he may declare unto us the riddle, lest we burn thee and thy father's house with fire: have ye called us † to take that we have? is it not so? † Heb. to possess us, or, to impoverish us?

16 And Samson's wife wept before him, and said, Thou dost but hate me, and lovest me not: thou hast put forth a riddle unto the children of my people, and hast not told it me. And he said unto her, Behold, I have not told it my father nor my mother, and shall I tell it thee?

17 And she wept before him || the seven days, while their feast lasted: and it came to pass on the seventh day, that he told her, because she lay sore upon him: and she told the riddle to the children of her people. || Or, the rest of the seven days, &c.

18 And the men of the city said unto him on the seventh day before the sun went down, What is sweeter than honey? and what is stronger than a lion? And he said unto them, If ye had not plowed with my heifer, ye had not found out my riddle.

3. — to take a wife &c.] The Israelites were forbidden by their law to intermarry with any inhabitants of Canaan, Exod. xxxiv. 16; Deut. vii. 3. Though the Philistines were not of the seven nations of Canaan, yet they were under the same condemnation, and their land was given to the Israelites. Bp. Patrick. Of all the deliverers of Israel, there is none, of whom are reported so many weaknesses as Samson; all his strength begins in infirmity. One maid of the Philistines overcomes the champion, who was destined to overcome the Philistines. Bp. Hall.

4. — knew not that it was of the Lord.] The expression, "it was of the Lord," probably means, that God intended to fetch good out of Samson's evil; not to approve that for good in his conduct, which seems to have been really evil. Bp. Hall.

6. — the Spirit of the Lord came — upon him.] The Lord endued him suddenly with an extraordinary measure of strength. Bp. Hall.

8. — a swarm of bees — in the carcase of the lion.] It is observed by some naturalists, that bees abhor stinking smells, and abstain from flesh; on which account it may be thought strange that a swarm of bees should be found in the carcase of the lion.

VOL. I.

It may be well supposed, however, that either time may have consumed, or birds and beasts devoured, all the flesh, so that only the skeleton was left. Stackhouse.

10. — for so used the young men] This was according to the custom of all countries; the feast was called by the Jews the nuptial joy, with which no other was to be intermixed; and all labour ceased as long as it lasted. Bp. Patrick.

12. — I will now put forth a riddle] This shews how ancient was the custom, which we find afterwards amongst the Greeks, of proposing questions to be resolved in their festival meetings, in order to exercise and sharpen the wits of the company. Bp. Patrick. This riddle of Samson is an instance from Scripture of a custom common in the East; the proposing of ambiguities and enigmas for solution to a party met for merriment. Script. illust.

17. — she lay sore upon him:] Made him uneasy by her importunities. Bp. Patrick.

18. — If ye had not plowed with my heifer,] If ye had not tampered with my wife. Dr. Hales. Used the means of my wife for the knowledge of this secret. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

Or,
apparel.

19 ¶ And the Spirit of the LORD came upon him, and he went down to Ashkelon, and slew thirty men of them, and took their || spoil, and gave change of garments unto them which expounded the riddle. And his anger was kindled, and he went up to his father's house.

20 But Samson's wife was given to his companion, whom he had used as his friend.

CHAP. XV.

1 Samson is denied his wife. 3 He burneth the Philistines' corn with foxes and firebrands. 6 His wife and her father are burnt by the Philistines. 7 Samson smiteth them hip and thigh. 9 He is bound by the men of Judah, and delivered to the Philistines. 14 He killeth them with a jawbone. 18 God maketh the fountain En-hakkore for him in Lehi.

about 1140.

BUT it came to pass within a while after, in the time of wheat harvest, that Samson visited his wife with a kid; and he said, I will go in to my wife into the chamber. But her father would not suffer him to go in.

2 And her father said, I verily thought that thou hadst utterly hated her; therefore I gave her to thy companion: is not her younger sister fairer than she? † take her, I pray thee, instead of her.

† Heb. let her be thine.

Or, Now shall I be blameless
from the Philistines,
though, &c.

3 ¶ And Samson said concerning them, || Now shall I be more blameless than the Philistines, though I do them a displeasure.

19. — went up to his father's house.] Left his wife with her own relations, and went to live at home with his father. Bp. Patrick.

20. But Samson's wife was given to his companion.] We can no more justify Samson in the leaving of his wife, than in choosing her. He chose her, because she pleased him; and because she deceived him, he left her. Though her fear made her false to him in his riddle, yet she was true to his bed; that weak treachery was worthy of a check, not of a desertion. Slight occasions may not break the knot of matrimonial love; and, if any just offence have slackened it on either part, it must be fastened again by speedy reconciliation. Bp. Hall.

Chap. XV. ver. 1. — with a kid.] This was no contemptible present, as appears from the story of Judah and Tamar, Gen. xxxviii. 17. The flesh of a kid was esteemed delicious food, not only in Judea, but in other countries. Bp. Patrick.

3. — Now shall I be more blameless.] He seems to have turned away in scorn and indignation, without making any reply to his father in law; exclaiming aloud, or revolving in his mind, that he would be revenged of the Philistines for the wrong that had been done him, and that they would have to blame themselves for the mischief he intended them. Bp. Patrick.

4. — three hundred foxes.] Some have made a difficulty of this passage, on the ground that so large a number of foxes are not easily caught. It should be considered, however, that this country abounded, if not with foxes, yet with other creatures, very like the fox, called thoes, or jackalls, which go together in large herds; so that, as good authors report, two hundred of them have been seen in a company together: that he may have caught them

4 And Samson went and caught three hundred foxes, and took || firebrands, and turned tail to tail, and put a firebrand in the midst between two tails. Before
CHRIST
about 1140.
Or, torches.

5 And when he had set the brands on fire, he let them go into the standing corn of the Philistines, and burnt up both the shocks, and also the standing corn, with the vineyards and olives.

6 ¶ Then the Philistines said, Who hath done this? And they answered, Samson, the son in law of the Timnite, because he had taken his wife, and given her to his companion. And the Philistines came up, and burnt her and her father with fire.

7 ¶ And Samson said unto them, Though ye have done this, yet will I be avenged of you, and after that I will cease.

8 And he smote them hip and thigh with a great slaughter: and he went down and dwelt in the top of the rock Etam.

9 ¶ Then the Philistines went up, and pitched in Judah, and spread themselves in Lehi.

10 And the men of Judah said, Why are ye come up against us? And they answered, To bind Samson are we come up, to do to him as he hath done to us.

11 Then three thousand men of Judah † went to the top of the rock Etam, and said to Samson, Knowest thou not that the Philistines are rulers over us? what is this that thou hast done unto us? And he said † Heb.
went down.

in snares and nets, with the assistance of servants and neighbours, and not at one time or in a single day, but in a considerable space of time. Bp. Patrick. There is reason to believe that there was nothing new or uncommon in this operation of Samson's. Both Roman and Greek authors have allusions to mischief done to standing corn, by sending into it different animals, and foxes among others, with firebrands tied to them. Bryant. Particularly Ovid, the Roman poet, (Fasti iv. 681.) mentions a custom observed at Rome every year, of turning out foxes into the circus, with burning torches on their backs; which custom Bochart derives from this very exploit of Samson. Parkhurst. The fox is an animal not common in Judea; but the animal, called the lesser jackall, bearing a great resemblance to the fox, is very abundant. These jackalls go in droves, in troops, so that Samson might easily procure as many as he chose; they enter gardens, villages, tents, and houses in the night time, so that they would carry the fire with them to all quarters. Fragments to Calmet.

8. — smote them hip and thigh.] It is not easy to determine the sense of this phrase. The Chaldee Paraphrast interprets it, that he smote both horsemen and footmen. They, that think this to be forced, take the meaning to be, that he smote them both on their legs and thighs, as they fled away, so as to disable them from any service. Bp. Patrick. By the supernatural strength with which he was endued, he killed some, wounded and disabled others, by bruising and breaking their legs and thighs with the violence of his strokes. Pyle. Or literally, "hip upon thigh," a proverbial phrase to express an utter rout. Edit.

9. — in Lehi.] This word signifies a jawbone: the place was so called afterwards from the jawbone with which Samson smote the Philistines, ver. 16. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST about 1140. unto them, As they did unto me, so have I done unto them.

12 And they said unto him, We are come down to bind thee, that we may deliver thee into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson said unto them, Swear unto me, that ye will not fall upon me yourselves.

13 And they spake unto him, saying, No; but we will bind thee fast, and deliver thee into their hand: but surely we will not kill thee. And they bound him with two new cords, and brought him up from the rock.

14 ¶ And when he came unto Lehi, the Philistines shouted against him: and the Spirit of the LORD came mightily upon him, and the cords that were upon his arms became as flax that was burnt with fire, and his bands † loosed from off his hands.

15 And he found a † new jawbone of an ass, and put forth his hand, and took it, and slew a thousand men therewith.

16 And Samson said, With the jawbone of an ass, † heaps upon heaps, with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men.

17 And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking, that he cast away the jawbone out of his hand, and called that place ‖ Ramath-lehi.

18 ¶ And he was sore athirst, and called on the LORD, and said, Thou hast given this great deliverance into the hand of thy servant: and now shall I die for thirst, and fall into the hand of the uncircumcised?

19 But God clave an hollow place that was in ‖ the jaw, and there came water thereout; and when he had drunk, his spirit came again, and he revived: wherefore he called the name thereof ‖ En-hakkore, which is in Lehi unto this day.

20 And he judged Israel in the days of the Philistines twenty years.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Samson at Gaza escapeth, and carrieth away the gates of the city. 4 Delilah, corrupted by the Philistines, enticeth Samson. 6 Thrice she is deceived. 15 At last she overcometh him. 21 The Philistines take him, and put out his eyes. 22 His strength renewing, he pulleth down the house upon the Philistines, and dieth.

THEN went Samson to Gaza, and saw there † an harlot, and went in unto her.

2 And it was told the Gazites, saying, Samson is come hither. And they compassed him in, and laid wait for him all night in the gate of the city, and were † quiet all the night, saying, In the morning, when it is day, we shall kill him.

3 And Samson lay till midnight, and arose at midnight, and took the doors of the gate of the city, and the two posts, and went away with them, † bar and all, and put them upon his shoulders, and carried them up to the top of an hill that is before Hebron.

4 ¶ And it came to pass afterward, that he loved a woman ‖ in the valley of Sorek, whose name was Delilah.

15. — slew a thousand men] To such a miraculous degree did God enlarge, and continue his activity, strength, and swiftness; without which no human power could have done the like in the same space of time. Pyle. This victory was not in the weapon, was not in the arm; it was in the Spirit of God, which moved the weapon in the arm. O God, if the means be weak, yet Thou art strong! Bp. Hall.

16. And Samson said, &c.] On this victory Samson composed a short song of praise and triumph, and called the place Ramath-lehi, as much as to say, the lifting up or casting away of the jawbone: but it commonly went by the name of Lehi or the jawbone. Pyle.

19. — clave an hollow place that was in the jaw,] Rather, clave a hollow place in the ground or rock, which bore the name of Lehi, the jawbone. Bp. Patrick, Abp. Usher, Dr. Wells, Dr. Wall, Dr. Hales, &c.

Those who have travelled through this part of Palestine inform us, that, in the suburbs of Eleutheropolis, where Lehi very probably stood, there is a fountain called to this day the Fountain of the Jaw, supposed to be that which rose on this occasion. Stackhouse.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — to Gaza,] This city was made by Joshua part of the tribe of Judah; but, after him, it fell into the hands of the Philistines, being situated towards the southern extremity of the promised land. The advantageous situation of this place was the cause of its becoming subject, in following times, to many revolutions. Stackhouse.

— saw there an harlot,] The general corruption and debauchery of manners, spreading through the Israelitish nation, discovered itself but too much in Samson himself. While he appeared among the Philistines as an instrument of special Providence for giving a check to their oppressive power, he suffered himself to become a slave to the inordinate love of women, and that without any distinction between those which were Israelites, or the daughters of idolaters. Pyle. We cannot wonder more at Samson's strength than his weakness: he that began to cast away his love upon a Philistine wife, went on to mispend his time on a Philistine harlot. His affections blinded him first, ere the Philistines could do it. Would he else, after the effusion of so much of their blood, have suffered his passions to carry him within their walls, as one that cared more for his pleasure than for his life? How easily do vigour of body and infirmity of mind lodge under one roof! Samson's victories subdued him, and made him first a slave to lewd desires, then to the Philistines. Bp. Hall.

3. — hill that is before Hebron,] Meaning, "that is in the way leading from Gaza to Hebron:" Hebron was distant twenty miles from Gaza. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

4. — in the valley of Sorek,] Or, as in the margin, "by the brook of Sorek:" it was a brook which passed through the tribe of Dan. Eusebius says, there was in his time a town called Caphar Sorek, or the town of Sorek, near Zorah, where Samson was born. Calmet.

— Delilah,] It is not mentioned whether she was an Israelitish woman, or a daughter of the Philistines; nor whether Samson was married to her, or kept company with her, as an harlot: the story which follows proves that she had not the affection of a

Before
CHRIST
about 1120.

Or,
humble.

Or,
new cords.
† Heb.
must.
† Heb.
one.

† Heb.
smelleth.

† Heb. wherewith work hath not been done.

5 And the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and said unto her, Entice him, and see wherein his great strength lieth, and by what means we may prevail against him, that we may bind him to || afflict him: and we will give thee every one of us eleven hundred pieces of silver.

6 ¶ And Delilah said to Samson, Tell me, I pray thee, wherein thy great strength lieth, and wherewith thou mightest be bound to afflict thee.

7 And Samson said unto her, If they bind me with seven || † green withs that were never dried, then shall I be weak, and be as † another man.

8 Then the lords of the Philistines brought up to her seven green withs which had not been dried, and she bound him with them.

9 Now there were men lying in wait, abiding with her in the chamber. And she said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he brake the withs, as a thread of tow is broken when it † toucheth the fire. So his strength was not known.

10 And Delilah said unto Samson, Behold, thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: now tell me, I pray thee, wherewith thou mightest be bound.

11 And he said unto her, If they bind me fast with new ropes † that never were occupied, then shall I be weak, and be as another man.

12 Delilah therefore took new ropes, and bound him therewith, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And there were liers in wait abiding in the chamber. And he brake them from off his arms like a thread.

Before
CHRIST
about 1120.

13 And Delilah said unto Samson, Hitherto thou hast mocked me, and told me lies: tell me wherewith thou mightest be bound. And he said unto her, If thou weavest the seven locks of my head with the web.

14 And she fastened it with the pin, and said unto him, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awaked out of his sleep, and went away with the pin of the beam, and with the web.

15 ¶ And she said unto him, How canst thou say, I love thee, when thine heart is not with me? thou hast mocked me these three times, and hast not told me wherein thy great strength lieth.

16 And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was † vexed unto death; † Heb. shortened.

17 That he told her all his heart, and said unto her, There hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man.

18 And when Delilah saw that he had told her all his heart, she sent and called for the lords of the Philistines, saying, Come up this once, for he hath shewed me all his heart. Then the lords of the Philistines came up unto her, and brought money in their hand.

19 And she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of wife towards him, and that she was a mercenary woman, who would do any thing to obtain money. Bp. Patrick.

St. Chrysostom and others are of opinion that he was married to her; but, had this been the case, it is probable some mention would have been made of his marriage ceremonies, in this as in his former wife's case. It appears from her whole behaviour that she was a most mercenary woman, and accordingly Josephus calls her a common prostitute of the Philistines. Stackhouse.

6. — Tell me, — wherein thy great strength lieth,] Was ever such a request made to a reasonable man? Who would not have spurned such a suitor out of doors? Yet he, that killed the thousand Philistines for coming to bind him, endured this harlot of the Philistines enticing him to his ruin; and when, upon the trial of a false answer, he saw such manifest treachery, yet wilfully betrayed his life by her to his enemies: all sins and passions have power to infatuate a man, but lust most of all. Bp. Hall.

7. — If they bind me &c.] He probably suspected something from her last words, and was now too wise to trust her with so important a secret; and therefore either intended to tell her a direct falsehood, or else jested with her, deeming it impossible that she could take so improbable a thing for truth. Bp. Patrick.

10. — now tell me, I pray thee,] She probably did not say this immediately after the former attempt, but waited a favourable opportunity, when Samson had ceased to suspect her.

13. — If thou weavest the — locks of my head] Samson, being a Nazarite, never cut his hair, but curled it up in locks, or plaited and braided it, after the manner of a chain. He seems to direct Delilah to wrap these (seven) locks about a weaver's beam, (as the Chaldee understands it,) or to weave them one within another, so that they should be but one lock. Bp. Patrick. As a hood-winked man sees some glimmering of light, but not enough to guide him, so was the case with Samson, who had reason enough left to make trial of Delilah by a crafty misinformation, but not enough, upon that trial, to distrust and hate her: he had not resolution enough to deceive her thrice, nor wit enough to keep himself from being deceived by her. It is not so great wisdom to prove those, whom we distrust, as it is folly to trust those whom we have found treacherous. Thrice had he seen the Philistines in his chamber ready to surprise him, yet will he needs continue a slave to his traitor. Warning not taken is a certain presage of destruction. Bp. Hall.

16. — his soul was vexed unto death;] He was so racked by two contrary passions struggling within him, love of Delilah, and regard for his own life and strength, that he became weary of life, and careless what became of him: God now forsook him because he abandoned himself to sensual pleasure; and his love of the harlot prevailed over his care of himself. Bp. Patrick.

^{Before CHRIST about 1120.} his head; and she began to afflict him, and his strength went from him.

20 And she said, The Philistines be upon thee, Samson. And he awoke out of his sleep, and said, I will go out as at other times before, and shake myself. And he wist not that the LORD was departed from him.

^{† Heb. bored out.} 21 ¶ But the Philistines took him, and † put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house.

^{† Or, as when he was shaven.} 22 Howbeit the hair of his head began to grow again || after he was shaven.

23 Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto Dagon their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hand.

^{† Heb. and who multiplied our slain.} 24 And when the people saw him, they praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, † which slew many of us.

25 And it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house; and he made † them sport: and they set him between the pillars. ^{† Heb. before them.}

26 And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

27 Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the roof about three thousand men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

28 And Samson called unto the LORD, and said, O Lord God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.

29 And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and || on which it was borne up, of the one ^{† Or, he leaned on them.} with his right hand, and of the other with his left.

30 And Samson said, Let † me die with ^{† Heb. my soul.}

21. — and he did grind in the prison house.] Before the invention of mills turned by wind and water, men made use of hand-mills to grind their corn. This being laborious work, was assigned to malefactors and slaves; and probably in this prison where Samson was confined, a publick mill was placed, to be worked by those who were imprisoned. From this and other circumstances we collect, that the Philistines' purpose was, not to put Samson to death, but to punish him in a manner more severe and intolerable than death itself. Le Clerc.

22. — the hair of his head began to grow.] In his present miserable condition, he probably passed his time in deep penitence and sorrow for his folly and disregard of God's laws, deploring his ingratitude, and begging to be restored to the favour of Heaven; till the Divine majesty was reconciled to him, and restored his former strength as his hair was renewed. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

The God of mercy looked upon the blindness of Samson, and in his fetters enlarged his heart from the worse prison of his sin. God's merciful humiliations of His servants are sometimes so severe, that they seem to differ little from desertion; yet still He loves them, and, when they have smarted enough, will make His love manifest. Bp. Hall.

Samson's strength was evidently miraculous, and was withdrawn when the Lord forsook him for his vices: but along with his repentance in adversity, and the growing of his hair, God was pleased to renew his strength. Dr. Hales. It is not necessary to suppose that Samson's strength literally resided in his hair. When, in compliance with his harlot, he suffered his hair to be cut off, he broke the covenant between God and him, the sign of which covenant was his hair; and, forfeiting his spirit of strength and courage, was left to his own natural weakness. When confined in prison, he began to repent of his folly, and, praying to God to be pardoned for having broken his vow of Nazaritism, he was restored to the Divine favour; and, in proportion with his hair, his strength began to grow. Stackhouse.

23. — Dagon.] The name of this image signifies "a fish:" and its figure is represented to have been that of a man from the navel upwards, and that of a fish downwards. Pyle.

27. — there were upon the roof &c.] Every one knows that the roof of the houses and temples in those countries was flat, so that men might stand or walk there. Bp. Patrick. The Eastern method of building may assist us in accounting for the particular structure of the temple or house of Dagon, and the great number of persons that were buried under it, by pulling down the two principal pillars. The palaces and courts of justice, in those countries, are frequently built with a court or enclosure, surrounded entirely, or in part, with some plain or cloistered buildings: in these, on their times of festival and publick rejoicing, the wrestlers, &c. perform in the area, while the roof of the cloisters round about is crowded with spectators. In such open structures as these, in the midst of their guards and counsellors, are the bashaws and other great officers assembled to distribute justice, and transact publick business. Here likewise they have their publick entertainments, as the lords of the Philistines had in the house of Dagon. On the supposition, therefore, that in the house of Dagon there was a cloistered structure of this kind, the pulling down of the front or centre pillars only, which supported it, would be attended with the catastrophe which befell the Philistines. Dr. Shaw.

It is remarkable that the exploits of Samson against the Philistines were performed singly, and without any cooperation from his countrymen to vindicate their liberties: whether it was, that the arm of the Lord might be more visibly revealed in him, or that his countrymen were too much depressed by the severity of their servitude, to be animated by his example. They seem also to have feared him almost as much as they did the Philistines: else why should 3000 men of Judah have gone to persuade him to surrender himself to the Philistines; when, with such a leader, they might naturally expect to be invincible. Or why, when he destroyed a thousand Philistines with so simple a weapon, did they not join in the pursuit of the rest? So true was the prediction of the angel to his mother, that he should only begin to deliver Israel.—The case of Samson affords an instructive and awful example, that extraordinary gifts of the Spirit are not always accompanied with corresponding graces, or fruits of the Spirit. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
about 1120.

the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein. So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.

31 Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him, and brought him up, and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the burying-place of Manoah his father. And he judged Israel twenty years.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Of the money that Micah first stole, then restored, his mother maketh images, 5 and he ornaments for them. 6 He hireth a Levite to be his priest.

about 1406.

AND there was a man of mount Ephraim, whose name was Micah.

2 And he said unto his mother, The eleven hundred shekels of silver that were taken from thee, about which thou cursedst, and spakest of also in mine ears, behold, the silver is with me; I took it. And his mother said, Blessed be thou of the LORD, my son.

3 And when he had restored the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother, his mother said, I had wholly dedicated the silver unto the LORD from my hand for my son, to make a graven image and a molten image: now therefore I will restore it unto thee.

Chap. XVII. Here begins the second part of this book, which gives an account of several memorable transactions, in or about the time of the judges; the history of whom the writer was unwilling to interrupt, and accordingly reserved these events to be related apart by themselves, in the five following chapters. In the present chapter, he relates the manner in which idolatry first crept into the tribe of Ephraim. Bp. Patrick. After the tenth verse of the second chapter is the proper place and order of these chapters: for, though they be laid at the end of the book, yet the events mentioned in them occurred in the beginning of their wickedness, after the death of Joshua and the elders. Dr. Lightfoot.

Vcr. 2. — about which thou cursedst,] Meaning, that she adjured all her family to discover the money, with a curse upon them if they knew where it was, and concealed it.

3. — to make a graven image] To make some resemblance of God for the convenience of Micah and his family, that he might worship at home, without the trouble of going on all occasions to the tabernacle of Shiloh. For it appears by the name "Lord," (Jehovah,) to which she consecrated the silver, that she did not intend to forsake the God of Israel, but only to worship Him by an image: to this practice the Israelites had very early inclined, Exod. xxxii. and they afterwards, in the days of Jeroboam, generally relapsed into it. Bp. Patrick.

5. — had an house of gods,] The Hebrew words should rather be translated, "a house of God;" for his intention was, to make, at his own home, an imitation of the house of God at Shiloh: still it is not improper to say, (as we translate,) "an house of gods," because, whatsoever his intention was, to worship God by images was accounted the worshipping of other gods. To increase this resemblance to the true Divine service, he caused priestly garments

4 Yet he restored the money unto his mother; and his mother took two hundred shekels of silver, and gave them to the founder, who made thereof a graven image and a molten image: and they were in the house of Micah.

5 And the man Micah had an house of gods, and made an ^a ephod, and ^b teraphim, and ^c consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest.

6 ^c In those days there was no king in Israel, but every man did that which was right in his own eyes.

7 ¶ And there was a young man out of Beth-lehem-judah of the family of Judah, who was a Levite, and he sojourned there.

8 And the man departed out of the city from Beth-lehem-judah to sojourn where he could find a place: and he came to mount Ephraim to the house of Micah, [†] as he journeyed.

9 And Micah said unto him, Whence comest thou? And he said unto him, I am a Levite of Beth-lehem-judah, and I go to sojourn where I may find a place.

10 And Micah said unto him, Dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a priest, and I will give thee ten shekels of silver by the year, and ^{||} [†] a suit of apparel, and thy victuals. So the Levite went in.

11 And the Levite was content to dwell with the man; and the young man was unto him as one of his sons.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

^a Chap. 3.
27.

^b Gen. 31.
19.

^c Hos. 3. 4.
[†] Heb.

filled the hand.

^c Chap. 16.
1. & 21. 25.

[†] Heb.
in making his way.

^{||} Or,
a double suit, &c.

[†] Heb.
an order of garments.

to be made, especially an ephod, (like that which the high priest wore;) and teraphim, or images, by means of which probably he thought he might consult God; and consecrated one of his sons to be priest. Bp. Patrick. His intention was to set up an oracle in his own house in imitation of the sanctuary of Moses; and, to make the resemblance the greater, he appears to have erected a kind of ark, on which he placed his two teraphim, (in imitation perhaps of the two cherubim in the tabernacle,) and caused the priest, who officiated for him, to wear an ephod, in the manner of the high priest when he consulted God. Since the laws of God condemn the making of images of any kind, as objects of adoration, it is certain that Micah was guilty of a violation of these prohibitions, and cannot be excused from the crime of idolatry. Stackhouse.

6. In those days there was no king] That is, this was before the time of the judges, who had a sovereign power to correct abuses, and especially to suppress idolatry. Bp. Patrick. It is thought to have been between the death of those elders that outlived Joshua, and the first oppression of Israel by Cushan. Dr. Wells. It is well seen that there was then no king in Israel, when the laws of God were thus violated: if Moses or Joshua had been their king, their sword would have aved them; if any other, the courses of Israel could not have been so heedless. We are beholden to government for order, for peace, for religion. Bp. Hall.

8. — to sojourn where he could find a place:] By this it appears, that he rambled about from place to place to find a subsistence. Sufficient provision was made for the Levites by the tithes of the land; but we may suppose they were not well paid in a time of such confusion, when there was no supreme authority. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

12 And Micah consecrated the Levite; and the young man became his priest, and was in the house of Micah.

13 Then said Micah, Now know I that the LORD will do me good, seeing I have a Levite to my priest.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The Danites send five men to seek out an inheritance. 3 At the house of Micah they consult with Jonathan, and are encouraged in their way. 7 They search Laish, and bring back news of good hope. 11 Six hundred men are sent to surprize it. 14 In the way they rob Micah of his priest and his consecrate things. 27 They win Laish, and call it Dan. 30 They set up idolatry, wherein Jonathan inherited the priesthood.

about 1406.
Chap. 17.
G. & 21. 25.

IN^a those days there was no king in Israel: and in those days the tribe of the Danites sought them an inheritance to dwell in; for unto that day all their inheritance had not fallen unto them among the tribes of Israel.

† Heb.
sons.

2 And the children of Dan sent of their family five men from their coasts, † men of valour, from Zorah, and from Eshtaol, to spy out the land, and to search it; and they said unto them, Go, search the land: who when they came to mount Ephraim, to the house of Micah, they lodged there.

3 When they were by the house of Micah, they knew the voice of the young man the Levite: and they turned in thither, and said unto him, Who brought thee hither? and what makest thou in this place? and what hast thou here?

4 And he said unto them, Thus and thus dealeth Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am his priest.

5 And they said unto him, Ask counsel, we pray thee, of God, that we may know whether our way which we go shall be prosperous.

6 And the priest said unto them, Go in peace: before the LORD is your way wherein ye go.

7 ¶ Then the five men departed, and came to Laish, and saw the people that were therein, how they dwelt careless, after the manner of the Zidonians, quiet and secure; and there was no † magistrate in the land, that might put them to shame in any thing; and they were far from the Zidonians, and had no business with any man.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

† Heb. possessor, or, heir of restraint.

8 And they came unto their brethren to Zorah and Eshtaol: and their brethren said unto them, What say ye?

9 And they said, Arise, that we may go up against them: for we have seen the land, and, behold, it is very good: and are ye still? be not slothful to go, and to enter to possess the land.

10 When ye go, ye shall come unto a people secure, and to a large land: for God hath given it into your hands; a place where there is no want of any thing that is in the earth.

11 ¶ And there went from thence of the family of the Danites, out of Zorah and out of Eshtaol, six hundred men † appointed with weapons of war.

† Heb.
girded.

12 And they went up, and pitched in Kirjath-jearim, in Judah: wherefore they called that place Mahaneh-dan unto this day: behold, it is behind Kirjath-jearim.

13 And they passed thence unto mount Ephraim, and came unto the house of Micah.

14 ¶ Then answered the five men that went to spy out the country of Laish, and said unto their brethren, Do ye know that there is in these houses an ephod, and teraphim, and a graven image, and a molten image? now therefore consider what ye have to do.

15 And they turned thitherward, and came to the house of the young man the Levite, even unto the house of Micah, and † saluted him.

† Heb. asked him of peace.

16 And the six hundred men appointed with their weapons of war, which were of the children of Dan, stood by the entering of the gate.

13. — Now know I &c.] By this it is evident, that he did not intend to forsake the Lord; but was so blinded by false notions, that he took one small benefit for a sufficient sign of His favour, when he was guilty of such great offences; first, in making idols, then in appointing one of his sons a priest, and afterwards in taking upon him to consecrate a Levite to be priest, of which office he was not capable. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. — sought them an inheritance] They had an inheritance allotted to them like the rest of the tribes, Josh. xix. 40, &c. but, from their own sloth, and the want of that brotherly assistance which the other tribes should have afforded them, they could not get possession of a considerable part of it, being forced by the Amorites to inhabit the mountainous part of the country. Mention was before made at Josh. xix. 47, 48, of the expedition of the Danites, which now follows. Bp. Patrick.

5. — Ask counsel, — of God,] By this it appears, that they were as ignorant or regardless of true religion as the Levite and Micah, in thinking that God would answer them as well there as at His own tabernacle. Dr. Wells.

7. — they were far from the Zidonians,] And therefore could not obtain assistance from them on any sudden invasion.

14. — consider what ye have to do.] They desire them to consider, whether it might not be expedient to carry those sacred things along with them, which, they seem to have supposed, would afford an assurance of the Divine presence with them; and by means of which they appear to have thought that the Levite had before given them an answer. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

17 And the five men that went to spy out the land went up, and came in thither, and took the graven image, and the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image : and the priest stood in the entering of the gate with the six hundred men that were appointed with weapons of war.

18 And these went into Micah's house, and fetched the carved image, the ephod, and the teraphim, and the molten image. Then said the priest unto them, What do ye ?

19 And they said unto him, Hold thy peace, lay thine hand upon thy mouth, and go with us, and be to us a father and a priest : is it better for thee to be a priest unto the house of one man, or that thou be a priest unto a tribe and a family in Israel ?

20 And the priest's heart was glad, and he took the ephod, and the teraphim, and the graven image, and went in the midst of the people.

21 So they turned and departed, and put the little ones and the cattle and the carriage before them.

22 ¶ And when they were a good way from the house of Micah, the men that were in the houses near to Micah's house were gathered together, and overtook the children of Dan.

23 And they cried unto the children of Dan. And they turned their faces, and said unto Micah, What aileth thee, † that thou comest with such a company ?

† Heb. that thou art gathered together?

24 And he said, Ye have taken away my gods which I made, and the priest, and ye are gone away : and what have I more ? and what is this that ye say unto me, What aileth thee ?

25 And the children of Dan said unto him, Let not thy voice be heard among us, lest † angry fellows run upon thee, and † Heb. bitter of soul.

30. — set up the graven image :] Thus was this kind of superstitious worship introduced into the tribe of Dan, and by these means it spread and was propagated through the country, the town of Dan long continuing the seat of this impiety. Pyle. This false worship continued in this place, notwithstanding the zeal of many judges, who were good men and great reformers, but could not extend their authority to the very skirts of the country, where idolatry still lurked. And it was probably owing to this place being much addicted to idolatrous worship, that when Jeroboam set up his golden calves, he erected one of them here at Dan, as the other at Beth-el. Lewis.

Now the wildfire of idolatry, which was confined before to the private hall of Micah, flew furiously through all the tribe of Dan, who, like to thieves that have carried away contagious clothes, have insensibly infected themselves and their posterity to death. Heresy and superstition have small beginnings, dangerous proceedings, pernicious conclusions. This contagion is like a canker:

thou lose thy life, with the lives of thy household. Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

26 And the children of Dan went their way : and when Micah saw that they were too strong for him, he turned and went back unto his house.

27 And they took the things which Micah had made, and the priest which he had, and came unto Laish, unto a people that were at quiet and secure : and they smote them with the edge of the sword, and burnt the city with fire.

28 And there was no deliverer, because it was far from Zidon, and they had no business with any man ; and it was in the valley that lieth by Beth-rehob. And they built a city, and dwelt therein.

29 And they called the name of the ^b city Dan, after the name of Dan their ^b father, who was born unto Israel : howbeit ^b Josh. 19. 47. the name of the city was Laish at the first.

30 ¶ And the children of Dan set up the graven image : and Jonathan, the son of Gershom, the son of Manasseh, he and his sons were priests to the tribe of Dan until the day of the captivity of the land.

31 And they set them up Micah's graven image, which he made, all the time that the house of God was in Shiloh.

CHAP. XIX.

1 A Levite goeth to Beth-lehem to fetch home his wife. 16 An old man entertaineth him at Gibeah. 22 The Gibeonites abuse his concubine to death. 29 He divideth her into twelve pieces, to send them to the twelve tribes.

AND it came to pass in those days, ^a when there was no king in Israel, that there was a certain Levite sojourning on the side of mount Ephraim, who took to him † a concubine out of Beth-lehem-judah.

^a Chap. 17. 6. & 18. 1. & 21. 25.

† Heb.
a woman a concubine, or, a wife a concubine.

2 And his concubine played the whore at first it is scarcely visible, afterwards it eats away the flesh and consumes the body. Bp. Hall.

— until the day of the captivity] Some have endeavoured to frame an argument from this passage, that this book was written in later times, after the ten tribes were carried away by Shalmaneser ; but it is highly improbable that these images should have been suffered to continue so long, especially through the reign of David. It is therefore with the greatest reason concluded, that by “ the captivity of the land,” is meant the taking of the ark by the Philistines, and the carrying of it captive into the temple of Dagon, 1 Sam. iv. 11, &c. This interpretation is confirmed by the next verse, which says, that the images remained during the continuance of the ark and sanctuary at Shiloh ; which continuance ended in Eli's time, when the ark was taken by the Philistines, and never after carried back to Shiloh. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XIX. ver. 1. — a concubine] A concubine-wife ; one

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

|| Or, a year and four months.
† Heb. days, four months.
† Heb.
to her heart.

against him, and went away from him unto her father's house to Beth-lehem-judah, and was there ||† four whole months.

3 And her husband arose, and went after her, to speak † friendly unto her, and to bring her again, having his servant with him, and a couple of asses: and she brought him into her father's house: and when the father of the damsel saw him, he rejoiced to meet him.

4 And his father in law, the damsel's father, retained him; and he abode with him three days: so they did eat and drink, and lodged there.

† Heb.
Strengthen.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the fourth day, when they arose early in the morning, that he rose up to depart: and the damsel's father said unto his son in law, † Comfort thine heart with a morsel of bread, and afterward go your way.

6 And they sat down, and did eat and drink both of them together: for the damsel's father had said unto the man, Be content, I pray thee, and tarry all night, and let thine heart be merry.

7 And when the man rose up to depart, his father in law urged him: therefore he lodged there again.

† Heb.
till the day declined.

8 And he arose early in the morning on the fifth day to depart: and the damsel's father said, Comfort thine heart, I pray thee. And they tarried † until afternoon, and they did eat both of them.

† Heb. is weak.
† Heb.
it is the pitching time of the day.
† Heb.
to thy tent.

9 And when the man rose up to depart, he, and his concubine, and his servant, his father in law, the damsel's father, said unto him, Behold, now the day † draweth toward evening, I pray you tarry all night: behold, † the day groweth to an end, lodge here, that thine heart may be merry; and to morrow get you early on your way, that thou mayest go † home.

who was really his wife, but was taken without a dowry, and had nothing to do with the government of his family. Dr. Wells.

2. — went away from him] To escape the punishment to which she was liable as an adulteress.

9. — the day draweth toward evening,] In the Hebrew the words are, (as stated in the margin,) "It is the pitching time of the day." The term pitching, here used, undoubtedly refers to tents, and intimates that the day is so far advanced, as to make it proper to pitch a tent, and halt for the night. So it is said, in Dr. Shaw's Travels, "Our constant practice was to rise at break of day, set forward with the sun, and travel till the middle of the afternoon: at which time we began to look out for the encampments of the Arabs; who, to prevent such parties as ours from living at free charges upon them, take care to pitch in woods, valleys, or places the least conspicuous." Harmer.

12. — the city of a stranger,] Jebus or Jerusalem was now occupied by its old inhabitants, and the children of Israel had little or no power there. Bp. Patrick. It was the fault of Israel that a 10 But the man would not tarry that night, but he rose up and departed, and came † over against Jebus, which is Jerusalem; and there were with him two asses saddled, his concubine also was with him.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

† Heb. to over against Je-bus.

11 And when they were by Jebus, the day was far spent; and the servant said unto his master, Come, I pray thee, and let us turn in into this city of the Jebusites, and lodge in it.

12 And his master said unto him, We will not turn aside hither into the city of a stranger, that is not of the children of Israel; we will pass over to Gibeah.

13 And he said unto his servant, Come, and let us draw near to one of these places to lodge all night, in Gibeah, or in Ramah.

14 And they passed on and went their way; and the sun went down upon them when they were by Gibeah, which belongeth to Benjamin.

15 And they turned aside thither, to go in and to lodge in Gibeah: and when he went in, he sat him down in a street of the city: for there was no man that took them into his house to lodging.

16 ¶ And, behold, there came an old man from his work out of the field at even, which was also of mount Ephraim; and he sojourned in Gibeah: but the men of the place were Benjamites.

17 And when he had lifted up his eyes, he saw a wayfaring man in the street of the city: and the old man said, Whither goest thou? and whence comest thou?

18 And he said unto him, We are passing from Beth-lehem-judah toward the side of mount Ephraim; from thence am I: and I went to Beth-lehem-judah, but I am now going to the house of the Lord; and heathenish town stood yet in the centre of the tribes, and that Jebus was not turned to Jerusalem: it was owing to their lenity and neglect, that no man could pass from Beth-lehem-judah to mount Ephraim, except by the city of the Jebusites, who were strangers. Bp. Hall.

15. — he sat him down in a street of the city:] See the note on Gen. xix. 2.

16. — there came an old man from his work] This good old man, seeing one who was a stranger, an Israelite, a Levite, an Ephraimite, and that in his way to the house of God, proffered him the kindness of his houseroom. Industrious spirits are the fittest receptacles of kind emotions; whereas those, who give themselves to idle and loose courses, are careless even of themselves. We hear but of one man at his work in all Gibeah, the rest were quaffing and revelling. This one man ends his work with a charitable action, the others end their play in brutality and violence. Bp. Hall.

18. — going to the house of the Lord;] To Shiloh, where the

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

† Heb.
gathereth.

there is no man that † receiveth me to house.

19 Yet there is both straw and provender for our asses; and there is bread and wine also for me and for thy handmaid, and for the young man which is with thy servants: there is no want of any thing.

20 And the old man said, Peace be with thee; howsoever let all thy wants lie upon me; only lodge not in the street.

21 So he brought him into his house, and gave provender unto the asses: and they washed their feet, and did eat and drink.

22 ¶ Now as they were making their hearts merry, behold, the men of the city, certain sons of Belial, beset the house round about, and beat at the door, and spake to the master of the house, the old man, saying, Bring forth the man that came into thine house, that we may know him.

† Gen. 19.
6.

23 And ^b the man, the master of the house, went out unto them, and said unto them, Nay, my brethren, nay, I pray you, do not so wickedly; seeing that this man is come into mine house, do not this folly.

24 Behold, here is my daughter a maiden, and his concubine; them I will bring out now, and humble ye them, and do with them what seemeth good unto you: but unto this man do not † so vile a thing.

† Heb.
the matter of this folly.

25 But the men would not hearken to him: so the man took his concubine, and brought her forth unto them; and they knew her, and abused her all the night until the morning: and when the day began to spring, they let her go.

26 Then came the woman in the dawning of the day, and fell down at the door of the man's house where her lord was, till it was light. Before CHRIST

about 1406.

27 And her lord rose up in the morning, and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way: and, behold, the woman his concubine was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the threshold.

28 And he said unto her, Up, and let us be going. But none answered. Then the man took her up upon an ass, and the man rose up, and gat him unto his place.

29 ¶ And when he was come into his house, he took a knife, and laid hold on his concubine, and divided her, together with her bones, into twelve pieces, and sent her into all the coast of Israel.

30 And it was so, that all that saw it said, There was no such deed done nor seen from the day that the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day: consider of it, take advice, and speak your minds.

CHAP. XX.

1 The Levite in a general assembly declarcth his wrong. 8 The decree of the assembly. 12 The Benjamites, being cited, make head against the Israelites. 13 The Israelites in two battles lose forty thousand. 26 They destroy by a stratagem all the Benjamites, except six hundred.

THEN all the children of Israel went out, and the congregation was gathered together as one man, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, with the land of Gilead, unto the LORD in Mizpeh.

2 And the chief of all the people, even of all the tribes of Israel, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of house of God was settled, in the tribe of Ephraim: he was perhaps going thither, either to return thanks for the restoration of his wife, or to offer an expiation for her sin. Bp. Patrick.

21. — and they washed their feet,] As was the custom in those countries, after travelling. See the note on Gen. xviii. 7.

25. — so the man took his concubine,] This was done probably with the consent of herself and of her husband, as the least of the evils between which they had to choose. Bp. Patrick.

— and abused her] How just and even is the course which the Almighty Judge holds in all His retributions. This woman had shamed the bed of a Levite by her former wantonness, and had thus far gone away smoothly with her sins. Now, when the world had forgotten her offence, God called her to reckoning, and punished her with her own sin. Adultery was her sin, adultery was her death. Bp. Hall.

26. — fell down at the door] Fell down dead, probably with grief and shame, and the injury she had received.

29. — divided her, — with her bones, into twelve pieces,] That every tribe, Benjamin not excepted, might have a portion of her body: he hoped that there would be found among them some who would resent so foul an act, though committed by their own brethren. Bp. Patrick. The ancients had several ways of uniting themselves together in strict ties, which lasted for a stipulated time: amongst these it was very common to sacrifice a bullock or other animal, and to distribute the pieces of the body to different persons; who hereby entered into a strict engagement to espouse the interests of the person concerned. The conduct of the Levite on this occasion seems to have had a reference to this established usage; and to have been intended to bind the several tribes by an indissoluble engagement, to see justice done him for the injury he had received. Burder.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — all the children of Israel] Except the people of Jabesh-gilead, chap. xxi. 5, 8, and the tribe of Benjamin. Bp. Patrick.

— from Dan even to Beer-sheba,] See note at Gen. xxi. 31. The city Dan was the utmost of all Israel to the north or north-east, as Beer-sheba was to the south or southwest: hence this expression is frequently used to denote the length of the land of Israel.

— unto the Lord in Mizpeh.] To the tabernacle which was in Shiloh, to consult the Lord, and to encamp together in Mizpeh, which was near Shiloh, on the confines of Judah and Benjamin. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

God, four hundred thousand footmen that drew sword.

3 (Now the children of Benjamin heard that the children of Israel were gone up to Mizpeh.) Then said the children of Israel, Tell us, how was this wickedness?

† Heb.
the man the Levite.

4 And † the Levite, the husband of the woman that was slain, answered and said, I came into Gibeah that belongeth to Benjamin, I and my concubine, to lodge.

5 And the men of Gibeah rose against me, and beset the house round about upon me by night, and thought to have slain me: and my concubine have they † forced, that she is dead.

† Heb.
humbled.

6 And I took my concubine, and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout all the country of the inheritance of Israel: for they have committed lewdness and folly in Israel.

7 Behold, ye are all children of Israel; give here your advice and counsel.

8 ¶ And all the people arose as one man, saying, We will not any of us go to his tent, neither will we any of us turn into his house.

9 But now this shall be the thing which we will do to Gibeah; we will go up by lot against it;

10 And we will take ten men of an hundred throughout all the tribes of Israel, and an hundred of a thousand, and a thousand out of ten thousand, to fetch victual for the people, that they may do, when they come to Gibeah of Benjamin, according to all the folly that they have wrought in Israel.

† Heb.
fellows.

11 So all the men of Israel were gathered against the city, † knit together as one man.

12 ¶ And the tribes of Israel sent men through all the tribe of Benjamin, saying,

10. — that they may do, &c.] One man in every ten was selected to provide forage for the army, in order that the rest might be wholly intent on punishing the inhabitants of Gibeah according to their deserts. Bp. Patrick.

16. — seven hundred chosen men lefthanded;] It is probable, as commentators observe, that when the Philistines had disarmed the Israelites of swords and spears, as we read they did, this oppressed people became so much the more diligent in the exercise of the sling, which could not be taken from them. Many ancient nations were trained to peculiar skill in the sling; among others, it is said that the Balears, or ancient inhabitants of Majorca and Minorca, bred their children to this exercise from their cradles, and that their mothers used to set up the food of their children as a mark, which they were obliged to strike with a sling before they were permitted to eat. Reading.

— lefthanded;] Who could use the left hand as well as the

What wickedness is this that is done among you?

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

13 Now therefore deliver us the men, the children of Belial, which are in Gibeah, that we may put them to death, and put away evil from Israel. But the children of Benjamin would not hearken to the voice of their brethren the children of Israel:

14 But the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together out of the cities unto Gibeah, to go out to battle against the children of Israel.

15 And the children of Benjamin were numbered at that time out of the cities twenty and six thousand men that drew sword, beside the inhabitants of Gibeah, which were numbered seven hundred chosen men.

16 Among all this people there were seven hundred chosen men ^a lefthanded; ^a Chap. 3. 15. every one could sling stones at an hair breadth, and not miss.

17 And the men of Israel, beside Benjamin, were numbered four hundred thousand men that drew sword: all these were men of war.

18 ¶ And the children of Israel arose, and went up to the house of God, and asked counsel of God, and said, Which of us shall go up first to the battle against the children of Benjamin? And the Lord said, Judah shall go up first.

19 And the children of Israel rose up in the morning, and encamped against Gibeah.

20 And the men of Israel went out to battle against Benjamin; and the men of Israel put themselves in array to fight against them at Gibeah.

21 And the children of Benjamin came forth out of Gibeah, and destroyed down to the ground of the Israelites that day twenty and two thousand men.

right, in any exercise. See chap. iii. 15. So expert, that they could even with their left hand wield their weapons. Bp. Hall.

21. — twenty and two thousand men.] In just punishment for the general vices and idolatrous practices of the whole nation, God suffered the Benjamites to gain this signal victory over them. Pyle.

Their error consisted in this, that, from an excessive confidence in the goodness of their cause, and their superiority of numbers, when they went to consult God, they only inquired of Him, which of the tribes should lead the van, without placing their confidence in Him, or depending on His assistance for success, which repeated disasters soon brought to their recollection: before the third engagement, therefore, they humbled themselves, ver. 26, before God in a proper manner. Stackhouse. They fought in a holy quarrel, but with confidence in themselves: for, as presuming of victory, they asked of God, not what should be

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

22 And the people the men of Israel encouraged themselves, and set their battle again in array in the place where they put themselves in array the first day.

23 (And the children of Israel went up and wept before the LORD until even, and asked counsel of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up again to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother? And the LORD said, Go up against him.)

24 And the children of Israel came near against the children of Benjamin the second day.

25 And Benjamin went forth against them out of Gibeah the second day, and destroyed down to the ground of the children of Israel again eighteen thousand men; all these drew the sword.

26 ¶ Then all the children of Israel, and all the people, went up, and came unto the house of God, and wept, and sat there before the LORD, and fasted that day until even, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD.

27 And the children of Israel enquired of the LORD, (for the ark of the covenant of God was there in those days, 28 And Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron, stood before it in those days,) saying, Shall I yet again go out to battle against the children of Benjamin my brother, or shall I cease? And the LORD said, Go up; for to-morrow I will deliver them into thine hand.

29 And Israel set liers in wait round about Gibeah.

30 And the children of Israel went up against the children of Benjamin on the third day, and put themselves in array against Gibeah, as at other times.

† Heb. to smite of the people wounded as a: &c.

31 And the children of Benjamin went out against the people, and were drawn away from the city; and they began † to smite of the people, and kill, as at other times, in the highways, of which one goeth up || to the house of God, and the other to Gibeah in the field, about thirty men of Israel.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.
|| Or,
Beth-el

32 And the children of Benjamin said, They are smitten down before us, as at the first. But the children of Israel said, Let us flee, and draw them from the city unto the highways.

33 And all the men of Israel rose up out of their place, and put themselves in array at Baal-tamar: and the liers in wait of Israel came forth out of their places, even out of the meadows of Gibeah.

34 And there came against Gibeah ten thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and the battle was sore: but they knew not that evil was near them.

35 And the LORD smote Benjamin before Israel: and the children of Israel destroyed of the Benjamites that day twenty and five thousand and an hundred men: all these drew the sword.

36 So the children of Benjamin saw that they were smitten: for the men of Israel gave place to the Benjamites, because they trusted unto the liers in wait which they had set beside Gibeah.

37 And the liers in wait hasted, and rushed upon Gibeah; and the liers in wait || drew themselves along, and smote all the city with the edge of the sword.

|| Or, made a long sound with the trumpet
|| Or, time.
† Heb.
with
† Heb.
elevation.

38 Now there was an appointed || sign between the men of Israel † and the liers in wait, that they should make a great † flame with smoke rise up out of the city.

39 And when the men of Israel retired in the battle, Benjamin began † to smite and kill of the men of Israel about thirty persons: for they said, Surely they are smitten down before us, as in the first battle.

† Heb. to smite the wounded.

40 But when the flame began to arise their success, but who should be their captain. Number and innocence made them too secure; it was just therefore with God to let them feel, that even good zeal cannot bear out presumption, and that victory lies not in the cause, but in the God that owns it. Bp. Hall.

27. — enquired of the Lord,] They had inquired of the Lord before, but not as they ought to have done, and therefore no mention is made till now of the presence of God continuing among them; confiding in the justice of their cause and their vast forces, they seem to have made but slight and hasty addresses to God before they undertook the war. Bp. Patrick.

It might have been feared that this double discomfiture would have made Israel either distrustful or weary of a good cause; but still we find them no less courageous, with more humility. Now they fast, weep, and sacrifice. These weapons would have been victorious in their first assault. Benjamin would never have been in danger of pride for overcoming, if this humiliation of Israel had preceded the fight. Bp. Hall.

28. And Phinehas, — stood before it] To stand before the ark, means, to minister to God before the ark; see Deut. x. 8; xviii. 7. The fact of Phinehas being the person who now ministered, shews that the time, when the war now related took place, was not long subsequent to the death of Joshua. Bp. Patrick.

29. And Israel set liers in wait] This seems to intimate that, in the former onsets, they had relied too much on their numbers: but now, though they were encouraged by God Himself, they grew more humble, and less audacious in their enterprise, laying ambushes secretly in several places. Bp. Patrick.

31. — Gibeah in the field,] So called to distinguish it from Gibeah on the hill, the place which they were now attacking.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

† Heb.
the whole consumption.

† Heb. touched
them.

up out of the city with a pillar of smoke, the Benjamites looked behind them, and, behold, † the flame of the city ascended up to heaven.

41 And when the men of Israel turned again, the men of Benjamin were amazed: for they saw that evil † was come upon them.

42 Therefore they turned their backs before the men of Israel unto the way of the wilderness; but the battle overtook them; and them which came out of the cities they destroyed in the midst of them.

43 Thus they inclosed the Benjamites round about, and chased them, and trode them down || with ease † over against Gibeah toward the sunrising.

44 And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thousand men; all these were men of valour.

45 And they turned and fled toward the wilderness unto the rock of Rimmon: and they gleaned of them in the highways five thousand men; and pursued hard after them unto Gidom, and slew two thousand men of them.

46 So that all which fell that day of Benjamin were twenty and five thousand men that drew the sword; all these were men of valour.

47 ^b But six hundred men turned and fled to the wilderness unto the rock Rimmon, and abode in the rock Rimmon four months.

48 And the men of Israel turned again upon the children of Benjamin, and smote them with the edge of the sword, as well the men of every city, as the beast, and all that † came to hand: also they set on fire all the cities that † they came to.

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

† Heb. was found.
† Heb. were found.

CHAP. XXI.

1 The people bewail the desolation of Benjamin. 8 By the destruction of Jabesh-gilead they provide them four hundred wives. 16 They advise them to surprize the virgins that danced at Shiloh.

NOW the men of Israel had sworn in Mizpeh, saying, There shall not any of us give his daughter unto Benjamin to wife.

2 And the people came to the house of God, and abode there till even before God, and lifted up their voices, and wept sore;

3 And said, O LORD God of Israel, why is this come to pass in Israel, that there should be to day one tribe lacking in Israel?

4 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the people rose early, and built there an altar, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings.

5 And the children of Israel said, Who is there among all the tribes of Israel that came not up with the congregation unto the LORD? For they had made a great oath concerning him that came not up to the LORD to Mizpeh, saying, He shall surely be put to death.

6 And the children of Israel repented them for Benjamin their brother, and said,

|| Or,
from Menu-
chah, &c.
† Heb. unto over against.

^b Chap. 21.
13.

48. And the men of Israel turned again &c.] Notwithstanding the laws against idolatry were so very severe, Deut. xiii. 8, yet, in the case of Micah and the tribe of Dan, the rulers of Israel were so far from putting the laws in force, that they appear to have connived at it. Therefore God took occasion, from this quarrel between the other tribes and the tribe of Benjamin, to use the latter as scourges to punish the base connivance of the former. And, after He had twice employed them for this purpose, He inverted the fate of war, and in so doing made the confederate army of Israel the instruments of His terrible vengeance on the Benjamites. Such is the wonderful wisdom of God's providence, to employ the passions of men to His purposes, and to make one wicked set of people the instruments for punishing another. Stackhouse.

Chap. XXI. ver. 3. — why is this come to pass &c.] This is an usual way of expressing great grief: they now bewail the melancholy prospect of the loss of a whole tribe, as there were no women remaining with whom the few remaining Benjamites might marry; and they had bound themselves by oath not to give them any of their own daughters. Bp. Patrick.

Commiseration of their brethren now led them to publick repentance. Even the most just revenge of men is capable of pity. Charitable minds are grieved to see that done, which they would not wish undone. God Himself takes no pleasure in the death of a sinner, yet loves the punishment of sin: as a good parent corrects his child, yet weeps himself. There is a measure in punishment, however just; when this is exceeded, mercy is lost in the pursuit of justice. Bp. Hall.

4. — built there an altar,] They probably erected, on this occasion, a new altar besides the usual one; as they intended to offer such a multitude of sacrifices, that the ordinary altar would not be sufficient to contain them. Thus Solomon did, when he dedicated the temple, 1 Kings viii. 64. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

6. — repented them for Benjamin] Lamented their too great severity towards Benjamin. The concern which the Israelites expressed at the havock made among their brethren of the tribe of Benjamin, in their late defeat, should teach us never to rejoice at any advantage we gain when others suffer by it, though they should have brought the evil upon themselves by their own fault. We should likewise learn from this history, never to give way to resentment, how just soever it may appear, nor to chastise the guilty with too much severity; lest, in our anger, we commit a deed of which we may have reason afterwards to repent. This was the case with the Israelites, who, instead of using their victory over the Benjamites with moderation, made too great a slaughter of them; and, when they perceived that one of the tribes was almost extinct, were deeply concerned at it. Again, as the Israelites laboured to recover the tribe of Benjamin, humanity and charity require us to contribute all in our power to the relief and comfort of the miserable, especially of our brethren, and

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

There is one tribe cut off from Israel this day.

7 How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing we have sworn by the LORD that we will not give them of our daughters to wives?

8 ¶ And they said, What one is there of the tribes of Israel that came not up to Mizpeh to the LORD? and, behold, there came none to the camp from Jabesh-gilead to the assembly.

9 For the people were numbered, and, behold, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead there.

10 And the congregation sent thither twelve thousand men of the valiantest, and commanded them, saying, Go and smite the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the edge of the sword, with the women and the children.

11 And this is the thing that ye shall do, ^a Ye shall utterly destroy every male, and every woman that † hath lain by man.

* Numb.
31. 17.
† Heb. knoweth the lying with man.
† Heb. young women virgins.

12 And they found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead four hundred † young virgins, that had known no man by lying with any male: and they brought them unto the camp to Shiloh, which is in the land of Canaan.

† Heb. and spoke and called.
|| Or, proclaim
peace.

13 And the whole congregation sent some † to speak to the children of Benjamin that were in the rock Rimmon, and to || call peaceably unto them.

14 And Benjamin came again at that time; and they gave them wives which they had saved alive of the women of Jabesh-gilead: and yet so they sufficed them not.

when the glory of God and the good of religion require it at our hands. Ostervald.

11. — Ye shall utterly destroy every male.] The massacre of the people of Jabesh-gilead was a cruel expedient to extricate the Israelites from a difficulty, in which their superstitious observance of an unlawful oath had involved them; and is a sad instance of the iniquity and barbarity of the times. If it be said that the cherem or sentence of utter execration was passed upon them, it does not appear with what justice the virgins, ver. 12, could be spared, unless we suppose that God signified His intention of dispensing with the full execution of the sentence, by reason of public necessity. Stackhouse.

The indiscriminate massacre of the people of Jabesh-gilead, and the rape of the virgins at Shiloh, were certainly stamped with marks of injustice and cruelty; and must be condemned on those principles, which the Scriptures have elsewhere furnished, though, in the brevity of the sacred history, they are here recorded without comment. Dr. Gray.

15. — the Lord had made a breach] It appears that the punishment of the crime of the Benjamites was approved by God, although the Israelites had executed it with too much severity. Bp. Patrick.

17. — There must be an inheritance] In the Hebrew the words are, “The inheritance of them that are escaped is for Benjamin.”

Before
CHRIST
about 1406.

15 And the people repented them for Benjamin, because that the LORD had made a breach in the tribes of Israel.

16 ¶ Then the elders of the congregation said, How shall we do for wives for them that remain, seeing the women are destroyed out of Benjamin?

17 And they said, There must be an inheritance for them that he escaped of Benjamin, that a tribe be not destroyed out of Israel.

18 Howbeit we may not give them wives of our daughters: for the children of Israel have sworn, saying, Cursed be he that giveth a wife to Benjamin.

19 Then they said, Behold, there is a feast of the LORD in Shiloh † yearly in a ^{† Heb.} place which is on the north side of Beth-el, ^{from year to year.} || on the east side || of the highway that ^{|| Or,} goeth up from Beth-el to Shechem, and on ^{towards the} the south of Lebonah. ^{sunrising.} || Or, on.

20 Therefore they commanded the children of Benjamin, saying, Go and lie in wait in the vineyards;

21 And see, and, behold, if the daughters of Shiloh come out to dance in dances, then come ye out of the vineyards, and catch you every man his wife of the daughters of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin.

22 And it shall be, when their fathers or their brethren come unto us to complain, that we will say unto them, || Be favourable ^{|| Or,} unto them for our sakes: because we re- ^{Gratify us} served not to each man his wife in the war: ^{in them.} for ye did not give unto them at this time, that ye should be guilty.

23 And the children of Benjamin did so,

That is, those of the Benjamites which remain must still possess the lot of inheritance which was given to their tribe. Bp. Patrick.

19. — a feast of the Lord in Shiloh] All the three great festivals were to be observed in the place where God settled His habitation, which was now at Shiloh. It is thought by many, that the feast now mentioned is the feast of tabernacles, which was the season of harvest and vintage, and a time of great joy and festivity. Bp. Patrick.

It is more probable that this was some festival peculiar to the people of Shiloh, of which the Benjamites knew nothing, and were therefore put in mind by the “elders of the congregation.” Josephus tells us, it was celebrated thrice a year. It might be customary, on this festival, for the young women to go out into the fields, to dance by themselves, which afforded those who had designs upon them the very opportunity they wanted. Le Clerc.

21. — come out to dance] As it was probable that they would express their joy in this customary manner. By “daughters of Shiloh” are perhaps meant, not only those who lived in that city, but in the neighbouring country. Bp. Patrick.

22. — for ye did not give unto them &c.] They tell them, they might safely acquiesce without incurring the guilt of breaking their oath, as they did not willingly give the wives, but yielded them by force. Dr. Wells.

^{Before CHRIST about 1406.} and took them wives, according to their number, of them that danced, whom they caught: and they went and returned unto their inheritance, and repaired the cities, and dwelt in them.

24 And the children of Israel departed

25. In those days &c.] Thus ended this bloody and desperate civil war amongst God's own people, being the effect of that lewdness and degeneracy of manners that spread itself through the nation during the forementioned periods of time; when God, in His just indignation at their idolatrous practices, gave them up to themselves, and left them without any extraordinary governours, to keep them under restraint, and vindicate either their private or publick wrongs. Pyle.

The book of Judges, on the whole, furnishes a lively description of a fluctuating and unsettled nation; a striking picture of the disorders and dangers which prevailed in a republick without magistracy, when "the highways were unoccupied," chap. v. 6; when few Prophets were appointed to control the people, (for we read of only two Prophets in this book, chap. iv. 4; vi. 8,) and "every man did that which was right in his own eyes," chap. xvii. 6. It exhibits the contest of true religion with superstition, displays the beneficial effects which flow from the former, and represents the miseries and evil consequences of impiety. From the scenes of civil discord and violence which darken this history, the Author of the Epistle to the Hebrews hath presented us, Heb. xi. 32, with some illustrious examples of faith in the characters of Gideon, Barak, Samson, and Jephthah. Dr. Gray.

That the system of Divine administration over the Jews, under thence at that time, every man to his tribe ^{Before CHRIST about 1406.} and to his family, and they went out from thence every man to his inheritance.

25 ^b In those days there was no king in Israel: every man did that which was right ^{Chap. 17. 6. & 18. 1. & 19. 1.} in his own eyes.

their judges, was as effectual in securing their obedience to the Divine Law, as from their situation and character we could reasonably expect, may appear when we recollect, that, of 450 years which elapsed from the settlement of the Israelites in Canaan by Joshua, to the first election of a king in the person of Saul, when taken together, distinct from the intervals of occasional relapses into idolatry, above 350 seem to have passed under the government of the various judges, whom God raised up at various times, to recall the people from their errors, and retain them in the observance of His law: and that, during the lives of each of these judges, there was no material apostasy from the national religion, and no material interruption of the publick tranquillity and prosperity, by the punishments which always attended such apostasy. It is peculiarly necessary to notice this circumstance, because, by a superficial reader of sacred history, the whole period under the judges may be easily mistaken as one uninterrupted series of idolatries and crimes: from his not observing that the lapses which incurred punishment, and the Divine deliverances which attended repentance, are related so fully and distinctly, as to occupy almost the entire narrative; while very long periods, when under the government of their judges the people followed God, and the land enjoyed peace, are passed over in a single verse, as productive of no occurrence which required a particular detail. Dr. Graves.

The following are the Chapters from the Book of Judges, appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. IV.	-	-	-	-	-	Second Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— V.	-	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.

THE BOOK OF RUTH.

INTRODUCTION.

THE book of Ruth is so called from the name of the person, a native of Moab, whose history it contains. It may be considered as a supplement to the book of Judges, to which it was joined in the Hebrew canon, and the latter part of which it greatly resembles, being a detached story belonging to the same period. Ruth had a son called Obed, who was the grandfather of David; which circumstance probably occasioned her history to be written, as the genealogy of David, from Pharez the son of Judah, from whom the Messiah was to spring, is here given: and some commentators have thought the descent of our Saviour from Ruth, a Gentile woman, to be an intimation of the comprehensive nature of the Christian dispensation. We are no where informed when Ruth lived; but, as king David was her great grandson, we may place her history about 1250 years before Christ. This book was certainly written after the birth of David, chap. iv. 22, and probably by the Prophet Samuel, though some have attributed it to Hezekiah, and others to Ezra. The subject of it is of so private a nature, that, at the time of its being written, the generality of people might not have thought it worth recording: but we Christians may plainly see the wisdom of God in having done it. It had been foretold to the Jews, that the Messiah should be of the tribe of Judah, and it was afterwards revealed further, that He should be of the family of David. It was therefore necessary, for the full understanding of these prophecies, that the history of the family of David in that tribe should be written before these prophecies were revealed, that so there might not be the least suspicion of fraud or design. And thus this book, these prophecies, and the accomplishment of them, serve to illustrate and explain each other.

In this history, we have to remark the merciful providence of God towards the afflicted, the widows and the fatherless; the reward of constancy and obedience; and the blessing of heaven upon those who fear God and trust in Him. Bp. Tomline, Bedford, Lewis.

CHAP. I.

Before
CHRIST
about 1322.

1 Elimelech driven by famine into Moab, dieth there. 4 Mahlon and Chilion, having married wives of Moab, die also. 6 Naomi returning homeward, 8 dissuadeth her two daughters in law from going with her. 14 Orpah leaveth her, but Ruth with great constancy accompanieth her. 19 They two come to Beth-lehem, where they are gladly received.

† Heb.
judget.

NOW it came to pass in the days when the judges † ruled, that there was a famine in the land. And a certain man of Beth-lehem-judah went to sojourn in the country of Moab, he, and his wife, and his two sons.

Chap. I. ver. 1. — in the days when the judges ruled,] It is uncertain under what judges the events here recorded happened: Archbishop Usher conjectures, under Ehud or Shamgar; Bp. Patrick inclines to think, that the events occurred in the days of Gideon, from the fact of there being a famine in the land, for this is the only period in the history of the judges, respecting which a famine is recorded, Judg. vi. 3, 4. Dr. Wells.

2. — Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah.] Ephratah was another name for Beth-lehem-judah: they are described as Ephrathites, besides being called of Beth-lehem-judah, perhaps, because they were not only born, but also bred up, and had uniformly lived, in the same place with their father. Bp. Patrick.

2 And the name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of his wife Naomi, and the name of his two sons Mahlon and Chilion, Ephrathites of Beth-lehem-judah. And they came into the country of Moab, and † continued there.

Before
CHRIST
about 1322.

† Heb. were.

3 And Elimelech Naomi's husband died; and she was left, and her two sons.

4 And they took them wives of the women of Moab; the name of the one was Orpah, and the name of the other Ruth: and they dwelled there about ten years.

4. — they took them wives] It is uncertain whether Mahlon and Chilion did evil or not in taking these wives, inasmuch as it is not evident whether these wives became proselytes or not to the Jewish religion, previously to their marriage. If they did become previously proselytes, nothing unlawful was done in marrying them. But from the expression, ver. 15, "thy sister in law is gone back unto her gods," it would appear that they were not previously proselytes to the Jewish religion; in which case Naomi's sons committed evil in marrying them, which might be the cause of God's shortening their days by way of punishment. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1322.

5 And Mahlon and Chilion died also both of them; and the woman was left of her two sons and her husband.

about 1312.

6 ¶ Then she arose with her daughters in law, that she might return from the country of Moab: for she had heard in the country of Moab how that the LORD had visited his people in giving them bread.

7 Wherefore she went forth out of the place where she was, and her two daughters in law with her; and they went on the way to return unto the land of Judah.

8 And Naomi said unto her two daughters in law, Go, return each to her mother's house: the LORD deal kindly with you, as ye have dealt with the dead, and with me.

9 The LORD grant you that ye may find rest, each of you in the house of her husband. Then she kissed them; and they lifted up their voice, and wept.

10 And they said unto her, Surely we will return with thee unto thy people.

11 And Naomi said, Turn again, my daughters: why will ye go with me? are there yet any more sons in my womb, that they may be your husbands?

12 Turn again, my daughters, go your way; for I am too old to have an husband. If I should say, I have hope, || if I should have an husband also to night, and should also bear sons;

|| Or,
if I were with an husband.

† Heb.
hope.

13 Would ye † tarry for them till they were grown? would ye stay for them from having husbands? nay, my daughters; for † it grieveth me much for your sakes that the hand of the LORD is gone out against me.

† Heb.
I have much bitterness.

14 And they lifted up their voice, and

7. — to return unto the land of Judah.] How miserable do we now find poor Naomi, left destitute of her country, her husband, her children, and her friends; and turned loose and solitary to the mercy of the world; yet, out of these hopeless ruins, God will raise comfort to His servant. She, that came from Beth-lehem, under the protection of her husband, attended by her sons, stored with substance, resolves now to measure all that way alone. Her adversity had stript her of all but a good heart; that remained with her, and bore her up in the deepest of her extremity. True Christian fortitude wades through all difficulties. Bp. Hall.

9. — find rest, each of you in the house of her husband.] May be happily settled with husbands in houses of your own, enjoying peace and quietness. Bp. Patrick.

11. — are there yet any more sons &c.] She says this, because, when a person died leaving no issue, his brothers were under an obligation of marrying his widow, Deut. xxv. 5. As this expression is used by Naomi to her Moabite daughters in law, it hence appears, that this custom obtained among nations which had no connexion with the Jews, and were not descended from Abraham. Bp. Patrick.

13. — that the hand of the Lord is gone out against me.] The wept again: and Orpah kissed her mother in law; but Ruth clave unto her.

VOL. I.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

15 And she said, Behold, thy sister in law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods: return thou after thy sister in law.

16 And Ruth said, || Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God:

|| Or,
Be not ugainst me.

17 Where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried: the LORD do so to me, and more also, if ought but death part thee and me.

18 When she saw that she † was steadfastly minded to go with her, then she left speaking unto her.

† Heb.
strengthened herself.

19 ¶ So they two went until they came to Beth-lehem. And it came to pass, when they were come to Beth-lehem, that all the city was moved about them, and they said, Is this Naomi?

20 And she said unto them, Call me not || Naomi, call me || Mara: for the Almighty hath dealt very bitterly with me.

|| That is,
pleasant.
|| That is,
bitter.

21 I went out full, and the LORD hath brought me home again empty: why then call ye me Naomi, seeing the LORD hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me?

22 So Naomi returned, and Ruth the Moabitess, her daughter in law, with her, which returned out of the country of Moab: and they came to Beth-lehem in the beginning of barley harvest.

CHAP. II.

1 Ruth gleaneth in the fields of Boaz. 4 Boaz taking meaning is, "that God has reduced me to such mean circumstances, that I can do nothing for you." Dr. Wells.

17. — the Lord do so to me, &c.] This is a form of imprecation, in which Ruth begged that God would punish her in the severest manner He thought proper, if she were wanting to her promise. There is a similar form at 2 Sam. xix. 13. Calmel.

20. — Call me not Naomi, call me Mara:] Call me not any longer Naomi, that name signifying one of a comely presence, or beautiful aspect, and therefore not suitable to me; but call me Mara, which signifies "bitter," and is a proper name for me now. Dr. Wells.

Ten years have turned Naomi into Mara. What assurance is there of these earthly things, whereof one hour may strip us? What man can say of the years to come, "Thus I will be." Bp. Hall.

The virtue and piety of Naomi are well deserving of attention, who, when she had lost her husband and her two sons in a strange land, preserved a tender affection for her two daughters in law, though they were women of Moab; and bore with patience and resignation the several afflictions with which the Lord was pleased to visit her, in the loss of her husband and sons, and returned to her own country, as soon as she could, to worship God according to the law. Ostervald.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

knowledge of her, 8 sheweth her great favour. 18
That which she got, she carrieth to Naomi.

AND Naomi had a kinsman of her husband's, a mighty man of wealth, of the family of Elimelech; and his name was Boaz.

2 And Ruth the Moabitess said unto Naomi, Let me now go to the field, and glean ears of corn after him in whose sight I shall find grace. And she said unto her, Go, my daughter.

† Heb. hap happened.

¶ Called,
Matth. 1.
5, Booz.

3 And she went, and came, and gleaned in the field after the reapers: and her † hap was to light on a part of the field belonging unto ¶ Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech.

4 ¶ And, behold, Boaz came from Bethlehem, and said unto the reapers, The LORD be with you. And they answered him, The LORD bless thee.

5 Then said Boaz unto his servant that was set over the reapers, Whose damsel is this?

6 And the servant that was set over the reapers answered and said, It is the Moabitish damsel that came back with Naomi out of the country of Moab:

7 And she said, I pray you, let me glean and gather after the reapers among the sheaves: so she came, and hath continued even from the morning until now, that she tarried a little in the house.

8 Then said Boaz unto Ruth, Hearest thou not, my daughter? Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens:

9 Let thine eyes be on the field that they do reap, and go thou after them: have I not charged the young men that they shall not touch thee? and when thou art athirst, go unto the vessels, and drink of that which the young men have drawn.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

10 Then she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldest take knowledge of me, seeing I am a stranger?

11 And Boaz answered and said unto her, It hath fully been shewed me, all that thou hast done unto thy mother in law since the death of thine husband: and how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and the land of thy nativity, and art come unto a people which thou knewest not heretofore.

12 The LORD recompense thy work, and a full reward be given thee of the LORD God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to trust.

13 Then she said, ¶ Let me find favour in thy sight, my lord; for that thou hast comforted me, and for that thou hast spoken † friendly unto thine handmaid, though I be not like unto one of thine handmaidens.

¶ Or,
I find favour.

14 And Boaz said unto her, At mealtime come thou hither, and eat of the bread, and dip thy morsel in the vinegar. And she sat beside the reapers: and he reached her parched corn, and she did eat, and was sufficed, and left.

15 And when she was risen up to glean, Boaz commanded his young men, saying, Let her glean even among the sheaves, and † reproach her not:

† Heb.
shame her not.

16 And let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose for her, and leave them, that she may glean them, and rebuke her not.

17 So she gleaned in the field until even,

Chap. II. ver. 2. — in whose sight I shall find grace.] It would seem from this verse, and ver. 7, that either she did not know that poor strangers had a right to glean, as well as the poor in Israel, Levit. xix. 9; or, out of her great piety, she would not challenge it as a right, but request it as a favour, which she would thankfully acknowledge. Bp. Patrick.

5. Then said Boaz unto his servant &c.] It appears he had a servant who during his absence watched over his harvest. Such were the manners of ancient times, when agriculture was deemed an employment honourable for the greatest men. In the same manner Homer describes "a king standing in the middle of his reapers with a sceptre in his hand, looking on in silence, and rejoiced to see the abundant harvest." Calmet.

11. — It hath fully been shewed me, &c.] It here appears, that Boaz shewed kindness to Ruth because he had been informed of her pious behaviour to her mother in law, and of her earnest desire to be joined to the people of God, which she shewed in leaving the land of her nativity. This is an evident proof that Boaz himself was a man of virtue, and married Ruth afterwards because he had conceived an esteem for her. And, since it was Ruth's reputation which occasioned these marks of kindness from Boaz, we should consider Ruth's good fortune as a reward of her prudent behaviour, and an instance of that blessing from the Lord, which attends those who seek Him, and particularly those who faithfully discharge their duty to their parents. Osterwald.

12. — under whose wings thou art come to trust.] To whose protecting care and good providence thou art come to commit thyself. The phrase of trusting under the wings of the Divine Majesty is often used by the Psalmist, Ps. xvii. 8; xxxvi. 7, &c. and is taken from the protection afforded to young birds under the wings of their mother. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

14. — eat of the bread, — the vinegar.] Under the name of bread is comprehended all the provision which was made for the reapers; vinegar was used for sauce, being very cool and refreshing in hot countries. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps we are not to understand this of simple vinegar, but of vinegar mingled with a small portion of oil. The Algerines at this day indulge their captives with a small portion of oil to the vinegar they allow them with their bread. Harmer. Or by the word translated vinegar may be meant, a kind of acid or strongly fermented wine, of which frequent mention is made in writings of antiquity, and which was very refreshing in hot climates. Calmet.

— parched corn,] See the note on 2 Sam. xvii. 23.

Before CHRIST about 1312. and beat out that she had gleaned: and it was about an ephah of barley.

18 ¶ And she took it up, and went into the city: and her mother in law saw what she had gleaned: and she brought forth, and gave to her that she had reserved after she was sufficed.

19 And her mother in law said unto her, Where hast thou gleaned to day? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that did take knowledge of thee. And she shewed her mother in law with whom she had wrought, and said, The man's name with whom I wrought to day is Boaz.

20 And Naomi said unto her daughter in law, Blessed be he of the Lord, who hath not left off his kindness to the living and to the dead. And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, || one of our next kinsmen.

21 And Ruth the Moabitess said, He said unto me also, Thou shalt keep fast by my young men, until they have ended all my harvest.

22 And Naomi said unto Ruth her daughter in law, It is good, my daughter, that thou go out with his maidens, that they || meet thee not in any other field.

23 So she kept fast by the maidens of Boaz to glean unto the end of barley harvest and of wheat harvest; and dwelt with her mother in law.

|| Or, one that hath right to redeem.

|| Or, full upon thee.

17. — an ephah] Esteemed to be about a bushel of our measure.

20. — The man is — one of our next kinsmen.] In the Hebrew, “is one of our redeemers;” which means a person who has the right of purchase on the fields of one of his family, who has alienated his patrimony, or who has sold his liberty: and denotes here a person who was obliged by law and custom to marry the widow of his brother or near relation, who had died without children. She does not say absolutely “he is our redeemer,” but “he is one of our redeemers.” Many think that Boaz was nephew of Elimelech, son of his brother. Calmel.

21. — by my young men,] The Hebrew word here used signifies not young men merely, but all young people, and particularly the maidens, with whom she was desired to remain, ver. 8. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — shall I not seek rest for thee,] Shall I not procure for thee a settlement in a house of thy own, so that thou mayest live more comfortably than thou canst with me? Bp. Patrick.

Naomi's heart was now set on providing her daughter with a husband, in order to lay a foundation for recovering the prosperous condition of her decayed family. And the kindness and generosity of Boaz encouraged her to hope, that he might be disposed to assist her in this matter, either in his own person, or by some relation. Accordingly, she puts Ruth on the conduct which follows. Pyle.

2. — is not Boaz of our kindred,] By the Jewish law (Levit. xxv. 25; Deut. xxv. 5) it belonged to the nearest of kin to redeem the land of a deceased brother, and to raise up his name, by marrying his widow. Bp. Patrick.

CHAP. III.

Before CHRIST about 1312. 1 By Naomi's instruction, 5 Ruth lieth at Boaz's feet. 8 Boaz acknowledgeth the right of a kinsman. 14 He sendeth her away with six measures of barley.

THEN Naomi her mother in law said unto her, My daughter, shall I not seek rest for thee, that it may be well with thee?

2 And now is not Boaz of our kindred, with whose maidens thou wast? Behold, he winnoweth barley to night in the threshingfloor.

3 Wash thyself therefore, and anoint thee, and put thy raiment upon thee, and get thee down to the floor: but make not thyself known unto the man, until he shall have done eating and drinking.

4 And it shall be, when he lieth down, that thou shalt mark the place where he shall lie, and thou shalt go in, and || uncover his feet, and lay thee down; and he will tell thee what thou shalt do.

5 And she said unto her, All that thou sayest unto me I will do.

6 ¶ And she went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother in law bade her.

7 And when Boaz had eaten and drunk, and his heart was merry, he went to lie down at the end of the heap of corn: and she came softly, and uncovered his feet, and laid her down.

|| Or, lift up the clothes that are on his feet.

2. — he winnoweth barley to night] The manner of winnowing corn in warm climates is to throw it up in the air when the wind is brisk; the grain then falls, and the wind carries away the husk. In Palestine, as in other countries bordering on the sea, a breeze usually springs up from the sea every evening; and this accounts for the expression which we have here, of winnowing barley to-night. Calmel.

7. — at the end of the heap of corn,] A striking representation this of the simplicity of living in those ancient times, when the most wealthy persons looked after their own business, both at home and in the field. It appears that Boaz spent the night in his threshingfloor, the better to preserve his corn from depredators, till it might be carried home and lodged in safety. Bp. Patrick.

— and laid her down.] Though the action of Ruth, here set forth, seems at first sight hardly consistent with decency; yet, if we consider the simplicity of those times, it will appear very excusable: to which if we add the virtuous character of the woman, the age of Boaz, the manner of his addressing her when he first perceived her, the testimony he bore to her prudence and good conduct, the publick proceedings before the wedding, and the several other circumstances of this history, there is not the least ground to suspect the virtue of either of them; and there is nothing but the purest innocence in the whole transaction. Ostervald. If we consider the end, the motives, and the circumstances of this action, we shall not pass on it an unfavourable judgment. Ruth had a right to pretend to marriage with Boaz, whom Naomi seems to have thought her nearest of kin. She endeavours to discover some means of making him acquainted with her desire to take advantage of this right: she well knew the justice, the probity, the age of Boaz; and was resolved on her

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

¶ Or, took hold on.

¶ Or, one that hath right to redeem.

† Heb. gate.

¶ Or, sheet, or, apron.

8 ¶ And it came to pass at midnight, that the man was afraid, and || turned himself: and, behold, a woman lay at his feet.

9 And he said, Who art thou? And she answered, I am Ruth thine handmaid: spread therefore thy skirt over thine handmaid; for thou art || a near kinsman.

10 And he said, Blessed be thou of the Lord, my daughter: for thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than at the beginning, inasmuch as thou followedst not young men, whether poor or rich.

11 And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for all the † city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman.

12 And now it is true that I am thy near kinsman: howbeit there is a kinsman nearer than I.

13 Tarry this night, and it shall be in the morning, that if he will perform unto thee the part of a kinsman, well; let him do the kinsman's part: but if he will not do the part of a kinsman to thee, then will I do the part of a kinsman to thee, as the Lord liveth: lie down until the morning.

14 ¶ And she lay at his feet until the morning: and she rose up before one could know another. And he said, Let it not be known that a woman came into the floor.

15 Also he said, Bring the || vail that thou hast upon thee, and hold it. And when she held it, he measured six measures of barley, and laid it on her: and she went into the city.

16 And when she came to her mother in law, she said, Who art thou, my daughter? And she told her all that the man had done to her.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

17 And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty unto thy mother in law.

18 Then said she, Sit still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall: for the man will not be in rest, until he have finished the thing this day.

CHAP. IV.

1 Boaz calleth into judgment the next kinsman. 6 He refuseth the redemption according to the manner in Israel. 9 Boaz buyeth the inheritance. 11 He marrieth Ruth. 13 She beareth Obed the grandfather of David. 18 The generation of Pharez.

THEN went Boaz up to the gate, and sat him down there: and, behold, the kinsman of whom Boaz spake came by; unto whom he said, Ho, such a one! turn aside, sit down here. And he turned aside, and sat down.

2 And he took ten men of the elders of the city, and said, Sit ye down here. And they sat down.

3 And he said unto the kinsman, Naomi, that is come again out of the country of Moab, selleth a parcel of land, which was our brother Elimelech's:

4 And † I thought to advertise thee, saying, Buy it before the inhabitants, and before the elders of my people. If thou wilt redeem it, redeem it: but if thou wilt not redeem it, then tell me, that I may know: for there is none to redeem it beside thee; and I am after thee. And he said, I will redeem it.

† Heb.
I said I will reveal in thine ear.

part, with the assistance of God, which she could best hope to ensure by dutiful obedience to Naomi, to form no connexion with him, except by the ties of lawful marriage. Boaz regarded her conduct as flowing from a virtuous principle, and dictated of the desire of becoming a good Israelite, by giving birth to children who might revive the name of her deceased husband; and spoke to her in the terms of commendation recorded at ver. 10. In fact, she sufficiently displayed the uprightness of her intentions, by not attaching herself to young men, as he there expresses it, but to an old man, who was of an age to be a father to her. Calmet.

9. — spread therefore thy skirt] In the Hebrew, spread thy wing: a phrase which imports the taking a person under protection; and here not a common, but a matrimonial, protection. Hence, at this day, when two persons are married among the Jews, the man throws the skirt of his robe over his spouse, and covers her head with it. Bp. Patrick.

10. — he said, Blessed be thou of the Lord,] Nothing can be more honourable than the testimony which Boaz gives in this and the next verse to the character of Ruth; which, while it removes all suspicions from her reputation, proves at the same time that Boaz himself acted upon principle, and was a man of true discernment and real piety.

— thou hast shewed more kindness &c.] This last kindness of yours surpasses that which you shewed at first. Your attachment to your husband when alive, and to your mother in law, are most praiseworthy: but the desire which you have shewn of reviving the name and memory of your husband, by marrying one of his relations, displays more manifestly your steady and generous attachment, since you have preferred this to a youthful attachment, more suitable to your age. Calmet.

15. — the vail] The Hebrew word for this is variously interpreted; it seems to signify any kind of covering; some translate an apron or kirtle: but it appears most properly rendered by us a vail, with which modest women cover their faces. Bp. Patrick.

— six measures of barley,] It should be considered, that, in those countries, barley was a more valuable sort of corn than in other parts of the world; for bread was commonly made of it, not only by the poor, but also by persons of better condition; of which we find several examples both in the Old and New Testament. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. Then went Boaz up to the gate,] We here see the simple manner in which judicial proceedings took place in those times. The judge sat in the gate, the place of resort in every city where publick business was transacted; no writings were employed or tedious formalities observed, but the party was merely summoned to make his appearance. In this instance Boaz probably summoned the person by name, although the sacred writer has not expressed the name, but has merely used the general words which we translate "Ho, such a one!" Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

5 Then said Boaz, What day thou buyest the field of the hand of Naomi, thou must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the dead, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance.

6 ¶ And the kinsman said, I cannot redeem it for myself, lest I mar mine own inheritance: redeem thou my right to thyself; for I cannot redeem it.

^a Deut. 25.
7, 9.

7 ^a Now this was the manner in former time in Israel concerning redeeming and concerning changing, for to confirm all things; a man plucked off his shoe, and gave it to his neighbour: and this was a testimony in Israel.

8 Therefore the kinsman said unto Boaz, Buy it for thee. So he drew off his shoe.

9 ¶ And Boaz said unto the elders, and unto all the people, Ye are witnesses this day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the hand of Naomi.

10 Moreover Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my wife, to raise up the name of the dead upon his inheritance, that the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this day.

11 And all the people that were in the

5. Then said Boaz, &c.] It should be well observed, that Boaz, before he took Ruth to wife, applied to one who was more nearly related to her than himself, to know whether he would make use of his right of redemption; and did not marry her till this man had refused to do it. This publick proceeding before the judges, with all the formalities usual on the like occasion, proves the uprightness and purity of Boaz's conduct. Ostervald.

6. — I cannot redeem it for myself, &c.] The Chaldee paraphrases thus: "I cannot redeem it upon this condition, because I have a wife already, and do not choose to bring another into my house, lest quarrels and divisions arise in it, and lest I hurt my own inheritance."

7. Now this was the manner &c.] The manner and ceremony of conveying over a title and estate amongst the ancient Israelites, was this: the person who sold or conveyed over his title pulled off one of his shoes, and in open court delivered it to the purchaser, thereby signifying that he had full right to walk, enter into, or tread upon the land, &c. as his own proper and entire possession. Pyle. The Targum, instead of the shoe, mentions the right-hand glove, it being then the custom perhaps to give that instead of the shoe: in later times the Jews deliver a handkerchief for the same purpose. Bp. Patrick.

11. — The Lord make the woman — like Rachel and like Leah,] Such a solemn benediction of those who were going to be married was very ancient, as we learn from Gen. xxiv. 60. The Jews continue the practice to this day; which, they say, is always in the presence of ten grave persons at the least, conformable to this example of Boaz, ver. 2, and the eldest of them pronounces the benediction, which is a sort of ratification of the engagement entered into. The elders here pray that the Lord may make her "like Rachel and like Leah, which two did build the house of Israel;" that is, fruitful as they, who were blessed with a numerous offspring. Bp. Patrick.

12. — be like the house of Pharez,] Both Boaz and all the gate, and the elders, said, We are witnesses. The LORD make the woman that is come into thine house like Rachel and like Leah, which two did build the house of Israel: and || do thou worthily in Ephratah, and † be famous in Beth-lehem:

12 And let thy house be like the house of Pharez, ^b whom Tamar bare unto Judah, of the seed which the LORD shall give thee of this young woman.

13 ¶ So Boaz took Ruth, and she was his wife: and when he went in unto her, the LORD gave her conception, and she bare a son.

14 And the women said unto Naomi, Blessed be the LORD, which hath not † left thee this day without a || kinsman, that his name may be famous in Israel.

15 And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy life, and † a nourisher of † thine old age: for thy daughter in law, which loveth thee, which is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him.

16 And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it.

17 And the women her neighbours gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.

18 ¶ Now these are the generations of Pharez: ^c Pharez begat Hezron,

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

|| Or, get thee riches, or,
power.
† Heb. proclaim thy name.
^b Gen. 38.
29.

¹ Chron. 2.
4.
Math. 1. 3.

† Heb. caused to cease unto thee.
|| Or,
redeemer.
† Heb. to nourish.
† Heb. thy gray hairs.

^c 1 Chron.
2. 4.
Math. 1. 3.

Beth-lehemites derived their original from Pharez, whose family was very illustrious in Israel; and therefore they could not have wished Boaz a greater blessing, than to have as noble an issue as he was to Judah. Bp. Patrick. This benediction was fulfilled in David and his royal progeny, and most eminently in the Messiah. Dr. Wells.

14. — Blessed be the Lord, &c.] Now is Mara turned back again to Naomi; and Orpah, if she hear of this in Moab, cannot but envy at her sister's happiness. O the sure and bountiful payments of God! Who ever came under His wing in vain? Who ever lost by trusting Him? Who ever forsook the Moab of this world for the true Israel, and did not at last rejoice in the change? Bp. Hall.

15. — which is better to thee than seven sons,] Which by her kindness and affection to thee contributes more to thy comfort and happiness than any number of sons, which are usually accounted the greatest blessings. Edit.

17. And the women &c.] It did not belong to the neighbours, but to the father or mother, to give the name to the child: it seems they suggested to Naomi to call it by a name suitable to their foregoing discourse. Bp. Patrick.

— he is the father of Jesse, &c.] The sacred historian points out to us in these words what appears to have been the principal design of this book: namely, to inform us of the origin of the family of David, and consequently of that of the Messiah; on which account the following genealogy is annexed. Lord Clarendon.

This circumstance alone is sufficient to render this little history of inestimable value and esteem, that it delivers down to us the original of Christ according to the flesh, whose derivation was not only from such a particular tribe of Israel, Gen. xlix. 10, in confirmation of the indubitable prophecies concerning Him, but partly also from a virtuous Gentile woman; denoting that all nations were to share in Him and have just hopes in His mercy. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

|| Or,
Salmaah.

19 And Hezron begat Ram, and Ram begat Amminadab,
20 And Amminadab begat Nahshon, and Nahshon begat || Salmon,

21, 22. — Salmon — David.] Salmon married Rahab, and therefore lived at the time of the Israelites' first entrance into Canaan. Now between this period, and the birth of David, are computed 366 years. Thus, as only four generations are mentioned, we must either suppose that some names of persons, who come between, are omitted, (for which we have no warrant,) or that, as is more probable, Salmon, Boaz, Obed, and Jesse, all had their children born to them at a very advanced period of their lives. Bp. Patrick.

The story related in this book is extremely interesting. The 21 And Salmon begat Boaz, and Boaz begat Obed, 22 And Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David.

Before
CHRIST
about 1312.

widowed distress of Naomi, her affectionate concern for her daughters, the reluctant departure of Orpah, the dutiful attachment of Ruth, and the sorrowful return to Beth-lehem, are very beautifully told. The simplicity of manners, likewise, which is shewn in the account of Ruth's industry and attention to Naomi, of the elegant charity of Boaz, and of his acknowledgment of his kindred with Ruth, affords a very pleasing contrast to the turbulent scenes which have been described in the preceding book. The respect also, which the Israelites paid to the Mosaic Law, chap. iv. 5, 10, and their observance of ancient customs, chap. iv. 7, are represented in a very lively and animated manner. Dr. Gray.

THE FIRST BOOK OF S A M U E L,

OTHERWISE CALLED,

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE KINGS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE two books of Samuel are styled, in the Vulgate or old Latin translation, the first and second books of Kings; as being two of those four books which contain the history of the kings of Israel and Judah. In the Hebrew, they are considered as forming only one book.

The Hebrews suppose that Samuel wrote the twenty-four first chapters of the first book, and that the rest were added by the Prophets Gad and Nathan. This opinion is founded on these words in the first book of Chronicles, chap. xxix. 29, "Now the acts of David the king, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of Samuel the seer, and in the book of Nathan the Prophet, and in the book of Gad the seer;" and it is approved by many writers of considerable authority. We may therefore assent to this general opinion, that Samuel was the author of at least the greater part of the first book, and that he probably composed it towards the latter end of his life. Certain it is, that, from its admission into the canon, as well as from the predictions which it contains, the book was the production of a Prophet; not to mention that it is referred to by our Saviour in vindication of his disciples, Matt. xii. 3, 4.

The first book of Samuel opens with an account of the birth of Samuel. It describes his consecration to the ministry, and his appointment to the prophetic office; the capture of the ark, and the completion of God's judgments on Eli's house; the curse on those who possessed the ark; its return, and the signal punishment of those who daringly profaned its sanctity; the election of Saul to be king; the wars and evils, which arose, as had been foretold, in consequence of this change of government; the sins and rejection of Saul; the anointing of David, and the first display of his piety and heroism; the disinterested friendship of David and Jonathan; the ungenerous suspicions of Saul; the death of Samuel; the appearance of his spirit, denouncing God's judgments against the impiety of Saul; in the accomplishment of which the book terminates, with the account of the miserable fate of Saul and his sons. The sacred writer illustrates the characters, and describes the events of his history in the most engaging manner. The weak indulgence of Eli is well contrasted with the firm piety of Samuel. The rising virtues of David, and the sad depravity of Saul, are strikingly opposed. The sentiments and instructions scattered through the work are excellent, and the inspired hymn of Hannah furnishes us with a grand prophecy of Christ, who is here for the first time in Scripture described as the Messiah, or the Anointed of the Lord.
Dr. Gray.

CHAP. I.

Before
CHRIST
about 1171.

1 Elkanah a Levite, having two wives, worshippeth yearly at Shiloh. 4 He cherisheth Hannah, though barren, and provoked by Peninnah. 9 Hannah in grief prayeth for a child. 12 Eli first rebuking her, afterwards blesseth her. 19 Hannah having born Samuel, stayeth at home till he be weaned. 24 She presenteth him, according to her vow, to the LORD.

Chap. I. ver. 1. — his name was Elkanah,] It appears from this genealogy, compared with 1 Chron. vi. 33, that Samuel was by descent a Levite, of the branch of the Kohathites.

2. — had two wives;] Hannah seems to have been his first wife; and, on her proving barren, his earnest desire to have chil-

NOW there was a certain man of Ramathaim-zophim, of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elkanah, the son of Jeroham, the son of Elihu, the son of Tohu, the son of Zuph, an Ephrathite:

Before
CHRIST
about 1171.

2 And he had two wives; the name of the one was Hannah, and the name of the dren moved him to take another, as Abraham had done by Sarah's consent. This practice was not in those times disallowed by God, who saith Himself, that He had given to David many wives, 2 Sam. xii. 8; which shews that it was not then a sin to have more than one. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1171.

other Peninnah: and Peninnah had children, but Hannah had no children.

* Deut. 16.
16.
† Heb. from year
to year.

3 And this man went up out of his city ^a † yearly to worship and to sacrifice unto the LORD of hosts in Shiloh. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, the priests of the LORD, ~~were~~ there.

4 ¶ And when the time was that Elkanah offered, he gave to Peninnah his wife, and to all her sons and her daughters, portions:

|| Or,
a double portion.

5 But unto Hannah he gave || a worthy portion; for he loved Hannah: but the LORD had shut up her womb.

† Heb.
angered her.

6 And her adversary also † provoked her sore, for to make her fret, because the LORD had shut up her womb.

|| Or,
from the time that she, &c.
† Heb. from her going up.

7 And as he did so year by year, || † when she went up to the house of the LORD, so she provoked her; therefore she wept, and did not eat.

8 Then said Elkanah her husband to her, Hannah, why weepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thy heart grieved? am not I better to thee than ten sons?

9 ¶ So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh, and after they had drunk. Now Eli the priest sat upon a seat by a post of the temple of the LORD.

† Heb. bitter of
soul.

10 And she was † in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the LORD, and wept sore.

11 And she vowed a vow, and said, O LORD of hosts, if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid † a man child, then I will give him unto the LORD all the days of his life, and ^b there shall no razor come upon his head.

† Heb.
seed of men.
^b Numb. 6.
5.
Judg. 13. 5.

4. — gave to Peninnah — portions:] The males only were required to appear before God at these festivals; but devout persons were wont to bring their wives and daughters with them. The portions here mentioned are the parts of the peace offerings, which belonged to the person who offered them, and on which he was wont to feast with his family; thereby imparting to them a communion with the Lord, in partaking of the sacrifice which had been offered at His altar. Bp. Patrick.

5. — but the Lord had shut up] Or, though the Lord had shut up, &c.—Meaning, that her barrenness did not make him love her less, but rather more, because he would support and comfort her under that affliction. Pyle.

9. — upon a seat by a post] The Hebrew word signifies, upon a throne: meaning, a seat raised to some height, so that he might see, and be seen by, all that came to the tabernacle; and that, by his presence and eye overlooking them, he might the more easily preserve order and regularity; for which purpose his throne was placed by “a post,” at the entrance of the tabernacle, or “temple,” as it is here called. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

11. And she vowed a vow, and said, &c.] She that could not find comfort in the loving persuasions of her husband, seeks it in 12 And it came to pass, as she † continued praying before the LORD, that Eli marked her mouth. Before

CHRIST
about 1171.

† Heb. multiplied
to pray.

13 Now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard: therefore Eli thought she had been drunken.

14 And Eli said unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? put away thy wine from thee.

15 And Hannah answered and said, No, my lord, I am a woman † of a sorrowful spirit: I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured out my soul before the LORD.

† Heb. hard of spirit.

16 Count not thine handmaid for a daughter of Belial: for out of the abundance of my || complaint and grief have I spoken hitherto. || Or, meditation.

17 Then Eli answered and said, Go in peace: and the God of Israel grant thee thy petition that thou hast asked of him.

18 And she said, Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad.

19 ¶ And they rose up in the morning early, and worshipped before the LORD, and returned, and came to their house to Ramah: and Elkanah knew Hannah his wife; and the LORD remembered her.

20 Wherefore it came to pass, when † the time was come about after Hannah had conceived, that she bare a son, and called his name || Samuel, saying, Because I have asked him of the LORD. † Heb.
revolution of days.
about 1171.
|| That is,
asked of God.

21 And the man Elkanah, and all his house, went up to offer unto the LORD the yearly sacrifice, and his vow.

22 But Hannah went not up; for she her prayers. There she pours out her prayers and supplications. Whatsoever the complaint be, there is the remedy. When all other helps fail, this remains to us. Bp. Hall.

— I will give him unto the Lord] The Levites were not bound to serve at the tabernacle till they were twenty-five years old, and not after they were fifty: but she devoted her future son to the ministry there from his childhood, as long as he lived; from his earliest youth till the day of his death; and she vowed also to make him a Nazarite. Bp. Patrick.

12. — Eli marked her mouth.] The inward anguish of her soul, it is probable, made the motions of her mouth and countenance very different from what was usual. Bp. Patrick.

19. — to Ramah:] From comparing this with ver. 1, it appears, that this Ramah was also called Ramathaim-zophim; probably to distinguish it from other places bearing the name of Ramah. It seems undoubted that this is the place which still goes under the name of Rama, lying in the usual road taken by pilgrims from Joppa or Jaffa to Jerusalem. It is still a considerable town, containing about 3000 inhabitants. It is supposed to be the Arimatea of the New Testament. Dr. Wells.

21. — and his vow.] A vow which he made, probably, either

Before CHRIST about 1171. said unto her husband, I will not go up until the child be weaned, and then I will bring him, that he may appear before the LORD, and there abide for ever.

23 And Elkanah her husband said unto her, Do what seemeth thee good; tarry until thou have weaned him; only the LORD establish his word. So the woman abode, and gave her son suck until she weaned him.

about 1165. 24 ¶ And when she had weaned him, she took him up with her, with three bullocks, and one ephah of flour, and a bottle of wine, and brought him unto the house of the LORD in Shiloh: and the child was young.

22 And they slew a bullock, and brought the child to Eli.

26 And she said, O my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto the LORD.

27 For this child I prayed; and the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of him:

28 Therefore also I have || lent him to the LORD; as long as he liveth || he shall be lent to the LORD. And he worshipped the LORD there.

CHAP. II.

1 Hannah's song in thankfulness. 12 The sin of Eli's sons. 18 Samuel's ministry. 20 By Eli's blessing Hannah is more fruitful. 22 Eli reproveth his sons. 28 A prophecy against Eli's house.

AND Hannah prayed, and said, My heart rejoiceth in the LORD, mine horn is exalted in the LORD; my mouth is enlarged over mine enemies; because I rejoice in thy salvation.

2 There is none holy as the LORD: for there is none beside thee: neither is there any rock like our God.

3 Talk no more so exceeding proudly; let not † arrogance come out of your mouth: † Heb. hard.

Before CHRIST about 1165.

|| Or, returned him, whom I have obtained by petition, to the LORD.

|| Or, he whom I have obtained by petition shall be returned.

when he found that his wife was likely to bear a child, or perhaps before, when she told him what hope she had of her prayer being heard. Bp. Patrick.

22. — there abide for ever.] That is, for the natural term of his life. Dr. Berriman.

24. — with three bullocks,] Several versions give here, “one bullock of three years old:” and, as one bullock only is mentioned in the next verse, perhaps this reading may be preferable. Houbigant.

28. — I have lent him] Rather, I have given him: so the Hebrew word ought to be here rendered. Dr. Wells. I have, upon my vow, returned him to the Lord, as formerly consecrated to Him by me. Bp. Hall.

The character of Hannah well deserves a place in the sacred writings, for the sake of many excellent instructions which it affords; for, in her we see the reward of temperance and sanctity; also of a patient trust and dependence on God. Though the accomplishment of her prayer for a child was long deferred, yet this delay did not discourage her from continuing instant in her prayers, which were answered at last to her full satisfaction. In her too we see the advantages of a meek and quiet spirit, which suffereth injuries, and is not easily provoked. She had abundance of mortifying treatment from her rival, yet she endured all with meekness, and returned not the same behaviour to her insulting adversary. She committed her cause to God, who, she knew, in His good time could make the barren to fill the house; being persuaded, as she afterwards expressed in her thanksgiving song, that God alone is the Author of all good things. Reading.

We should observe the piety of this holy woman, which appeared in her prayers to God in Shiloh; in her humble and respectful answer to Eli, who accused her of being drunk; in the vow she made to dedicate the child to God, and in the care she took to fulfil that vow, by carrying the young child to Shiloh. This is a noble example of piety and meekness, which is particularly calculated to teach parents, and mothers especially, to bring up their children in the fear of the Lord, and devote them to His service. Ostervald.

Chap. II. ver. 1. And Hannah prayed,] On the occasion of the birth of so eminent a son, Hannah composed the following inspired and prophetick hymn. To the composition of such hymns, holy souls were sometimes raised by Divine inspiration, in their devout meditations on the extraordinary goodness of God towards them. Indeed this was the most ancient way of preserving the memory of things to posterity, poets being more ancient than historians or orators. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. This admirable hymn excels in simplicity of composition, closeness of connexion, and uniformity of sentiment; breathing the pious effusions of a devout mind, deeply impressed with a conviction of God's mercies to herself in particular, and of His providential government of the world in general; in exalting the poor in spirit, or the humble-minded, and abasing the rich and arrogant, rewarding the righteous, and punishing the wicked. Hannah was a prophetess of the first class. Besides predicting her own fruitfulness, ver. 5, she foretells not only the more immediate judgments of God on the Philistines, during her son's administration, but His remoter judgments on “the ends of the earth,” ver. 10, in the true spirit of the prophecies of Jacob, Balaam, and Moses. Like them, she describes the promised Saviour of the world, as a King, before there was any king in Israel: and she first applied to Him the remarkable epithet Messiah in Hebrew, Christ in Greek, and Anointed in English; which was adopted by all the succeeding Prophets of the Old Testament, and by the Apostles and Prophets of the New. Dr. Hales. The ancient Jews referred this hymn of Hannah to the times of the Messiah. Dean Allix.

— mine horn is exalted &c.] I am now powerfully delivered from the reproach of barrenness; I can lift up my head with comfort. Bp. Wilson. How transported was this holy matron with the sense of the Divine goodness! the humbler was the sense she entertained of her own unworthiness, the more highly she admired the greatness of the mercy she had received. Wogan.

As the principal defence of horned beasts consists in their horns, we continually find the horn mentioned in Scripture as the symbol of strength. Thus it is said in various passages, “that the Lord exalteth the horn of David, the horn of His people, &c. that He breaketh the horn of the ungodly.” Calmet.

There is something remarkable in the headdress of the governors of provinces in Abyssinia. A large broad fillet is bound upon their foreheads, and tied behind the head. In the middle of this is a horn, or a conical piece of silver, gilt, about four inches long, much in the shape of our common candle extinguishers. This is called kirn or horn, and is only worn in reviews or parades after victory. This, I apprehend, like all their other usages, is taken from the Hebrews; and there appear to be several allusions to the practice in Scripture, where mention is made of “exalting” or “lifting up the horn.” Bruce.

Before
CHRIST
about 1165.

for the LORD is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed.

4 The bows of the mighty men are broken, and they that stumbled are girded with strength.

5 They that were full have hired out themselves for bread; and they that were hungry ceased: so that the barren hath born seven; and she that hath many children is waxed feeble.

* Deut. 32.
29.
Wisd. 16.
13
Tob. 13. 2.

6^a The LORD killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to the grave, and bringeth up.

7 The LORD maketh poor, and maketh rich: he bringeth low, and lifteth up.

* Psal. 113.
7.

8 He^b raiseth up the poor out of the dust, and lifteth up the beggar from the dunghill, to set them among princes, and to make them inherit the throne of glory: for the pillars of the earth are the LORD's, and he hath set the world upon them.

9 He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness; for by strength shall no man prevail.

* Chap. 7.
10.

10 The adversaries of the LORD shall be broken to pieces; ^c out of heaven shall he thunder upon them: the LORD shall judge the ends of the earth; and he shall give strength unto his king, and exalt the horn of his anointed.

11 And Elkanah went to Ramah to his

4. The bows of the mighty men &c.] The great sense she had of God's power now branches out into an humble acknowledgment of this glorious attribute in several instances, as in vanquishing the victorious, turning the course of human affairs, &c. Bp. Patrick.

5. They that were full &c.] The rest of this song bears so near a resemblance to the hymn of the Blessed Virgin, Luke i. 46, &c. that we may well conceive the design and import of both to be the same; namely, not only to set forth the general providence of God in the government of mankind, but to magnify, more particularly, the grace of God to His Church, and its superiour advantage over all temporal blessings whatsoever. Wogan.

6. The Lord killeth, &c.] We learn particularly from this song, that Providence overrules all things; that God confounds the proud, that He takes care of the weak and afflicted who fear Him, that He protects them and hears their prayers. This is a doctrine full of consolation to good men; supporting them in their trials, and leading them to holiness, and trust in God. Osterveld.

10. — the Lord shall judge &c. — the horn of his anointed.] As this may be understood in a primary sense of God's judging and subduing the Philistines, and all the other enemies of Israel that joined on to their country, and of His exalting David to the throne, and giving him great success and victory, and thereby enlarging his dominion: so, in a secondary sense, it is to be understood of "the Anointed" most eminently so called, that is, the Messiah or Christ, alluding to the great success of the Gospel, and to Christ's being exalted to the right hand of God; there to sit as King and Judge of the world. Dr. Wells. This is the first time that the name of the Messiah (or the Anointed) is found in Scripture, there being no such word in any of the preceding books. "Who doth not see," saith St. Austin, "that the spirit of Hannah prophesied of the Christian religion, the city of God; whose King and Founder is Christ: and of the grace of God, from which the proud are house. And the child did minister unto the LORD before Eli the priest.

Before
CHRIST
about 1165.

12 ¶ Now the sons of Eli were sons of Belial; they knew not the LORD.

13 And the priest's custom with the people was, that, when any man offered sacrifice, the priest's servant came, while the flesh was in seething, with a fleshhook of three teeth in his hand;

14 And he struck it into the pan, or kettle, or caldron, or pot; all that the fleshhook brought up the priest took for himself. So they did in Shiloh unto all the Israelites that came thither.

15 Also before they burnt the fat, the priest's servant came, and said to the man that sacrificed, Give flesh to roast for the priest; for he will not have sodden flesh of thee, but raw.

16 And if any man said unto him, Let them not fail to burn the fat [†] presently, and then take as much as thy soul desireth; then he would answer him, Nay; but thou shalt give it me now: and if not, I will take it by force. ^{† Heb. as on the day.}

17 Wherefore the sin of the young men was very great before the LORD: for men abhorred the offering of the LORD.

18 ¶ But Samuel ministered before the LORD, being a child, ^d girded with a linen ephod. ^{d Exod. 28. 4.}

estranged, but with which the humble are filled." This indeed is the chief import of this hymn, the words of which are too magnificent to be confined to so low a sense, as that of the circumstances which immediately respected Hannah. Bp. Patrick.

12. — were sons of Belial;] Very wicked men, Deut. xiii. 13; being covetous, guilty of violence, and filthy lusts, who "knew not the Lord;" that is, did not mind the Divine service, nor take care to do honour to God. Bp. Patrick.

Though they were the children of a holy man, of a priest of God, themselves priests, yet "they knew not the Lord." Virtue is not always hereditary, nor piety the necessary privilege of a sacred office. These young men had grown wicked, for want, not of instruction, but of seasonable restraints and necessary correction. Too great lenity and indulgence had defeated all the benefit of a pious education. Wogan.

— they knew not the Lord.] They did not acknowledge the Lord by a dutiful regard to His service: they were not careful to do Him honour. Locke.

13—16. And the priest's custom &c.] Whereas the law had particularly stated the parts and portions of all the peace offerings which belonged to the priests and to the offerers; these profane wretches introduced many new and arbitrary claims and customs, such as are here mentioned, to the great scandal of God's religion. Bp. Patrick.

17. — men abhorred the offering] That is, the worship of God was brought into discouragement and contempt by these practices. Pyle.

18. — girded with a linen ephod.] We do not read of any peculiar garments for the Levites in their ministration, but only for the priests. The ephod here mentioned was probably an honorary vestment, resembling in some sort that of the high priest, and worn by the other priests, in order to make them more respected; and Eli perhaps directed the child Samuel to wear it,

Before
CHRIST
about 1165.

19 Moreover his mother made him a little coat, and brought it to him from year to year, when she came up with her husband to offer the yearly sacrifice.

¶ Or, petition which he asked, &c.

20 ¶ And Eli blessed Elkanah and his wife, and said, The LORD give thee seed of this woman for the loan which is lent to the LORD. And they went unto their own home.

21 And the LORD visited Hannah, so that she conceived, and bare three sons and two daughters. And the child Samuel grew before the LORD.

† Heb. assembled by troops.

22 ¶ Now Eli was very old, and heard all that his sons did unto all Israel; and how they lay with the women that † assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

¶ Or,
I hear evil words of you.

23 And he said unto them, Why do ye such things? for I hear of your evil dealings by all this people.

¶ Or,
to cry out.

24 Nay, my sons; for it is no good report that I hear: ye make the LORD's people to transgress.

25 If one man sin against another, the judge shall judge him: but if a man sin against the LORD, who shall intreat for him? Notwithstanding they hearkened not unto the voice of their father, because the LORD would slay them.

Before
CHRIST
about 116

26 And the child Samuel grew on, and was in favour both with the LORD, and also with men.

27 ¶ And there came a man of God unto Eli, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Did I plainly appear unto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypt in Pharaoh's house?

28 And did I choose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to offer upon mine altar, to burn incense, to wear an ephod before me? and did I give unto the house of thy father all the offerings made by fire of the children of Israel? ^{c Lev. 10. 14.}

29 Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifice and at mine offering, which I have commanded in my habitation; and honourest thy sons above me, to make yourselves fat with the chiefest of all the offerings of Israel my people?

30 Wherefore the LORD God of Israel saith, I said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father, should walk before me for ever: but now the LORD saith, Be it far from me; for them that honour me I as a peculiar privilege, because he saw in him so great an appearance of the grace of God. Bp. Patrick.

21. — grew before the Lord.] Not in stature only, but in wisdom also and virtue. Of so great moment is it to season the minds of children early with a sense of God and of religion, which, it is probable, will continue in them, and improve, as they grow in years. Bp. Patrick.

23. — Why do ye such things?] Their notorious wickedness should have moved him to greater severity than merely to reprove them with such gentleness and lenity, as these and the following words import: this proceeded, probably, partly from the coldness of old age, and partly from his too great indulgence to his children. Bp. Patrick. Nothing but age can plead for Eli, that he was not the first accuser of his sons. Now, when their enormities came to be the voice of the multitude, he must hear it perforce; and doubtless he heard it with grief enough, but not with anger enough: he, that was the judge of Israel, should have judged impartially his own flesh and blood. Indulgent parents are cruel to themselves and their posterity. Eli could not have devised any way to have plagued himself and his house so much, as by his kindness to his children's sins. Bp. Hall.

It is a great fault in a parent to use mildness towards his children, in the case of a wilful and heinous sin; especially if it be of extensive example and publick influence. To rebuke gently on such an occasion, is rather to countenance the fault; and seems to argue a want of sufficient detestation of it. Such cold reproof, as that which Eli gave his sons, where the crime was so great and notorious, was in some measure a participation of it. It was so interpreted by God, who calls it, ver. 29, "a kicking at His sacrifice;" and on this very account threatens Eli with most terrible judgments. Abp. Tillotson.

25. — because the Lord would slay them.] The Hebrew words may be rendered, "Therefore the Lord would slay them:" that is, on account of their hardness, He determined to deliver them up to an untimely death. Pyle, Dr. Waterland. But according to our translation, the sense is right enough: for when men have long sinned grievously against many admonitions, whereby they become incurable, God deprives them of that prudent consideration and discretion, which would save them from destruction. Bp. Patrick. The reason here assigned, "because the Lord would slay them," answers exactly to that expression in modern language, Because they were abandoned, graceless, or profligate. In which manner of speaking, nobody understands want of grace to be a charging of any defect on God's part, but a describing of the persons themselves to be worthy of destruction. Dr. S. Clarke.

27. — a man of God] A Prophet, who was divinely inspired to deliver the following message to him.

— Did I plainly appear unto the house of thy father,] The passage should rather be translated, "Did not I plainly appear &c." According to the manner in which the same expression is rendered in 2 Sam. xxiii. 17, "Is not this the blood of the men?" W. Lenth.

29. Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifice] An expression signifying the highest irreverence and contempt of God's authority: it is taken from refractory oxen, which are wont to kick, when pricked with the goad.

30. — I said indeed that thy house, &c.] God here revokes the decree He had made in favour of him and his family, of being high priests throughout all generations. This office was first settled upon Eleazar, the eldest son of Aaron; thence came to Phinehas, the eldest son of Eleazar: was transferred from him, probably for some sin or other, to Eli, a descendant of Aaron's youngest son Ithamar, as it is now transferred back to the family of Eleazar, on account of the horrid sins of the sons of Eli. Bp. Patrick.

— them that honour me I will honour,] I will distinguish with suitable marks of favour them that honour Me; that is, them that obey My commandments. We best testify our veneration for God, by obeying His commandments; and the honour which we thus give to His laws, He is pleased to accept, as done immediately to Himself. Dr. S. Clarke. We have here a fair and full

Before
CHRIST
about 1165.

will honour, and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed.

31 Behold, the days come, that I will cut off thine arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thine house.

1 Or,
the affliction of the tabernacle, for all the wealth which God would have given Israel.

32 And thou shalt see || an enemy in my habitation, in all the wealth which God shall give Israel: and there shall not be an old man in thine house for ever.

33 And the man of thine, whom I shall not cut off from mine altar, shall be to consume thine eyes, and to grieve thine heart: and all the increase of thine house shall die † in the flower of their age.

† Heb. men.

34 And this shall be a sign unto thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, on Hophni and Phinehas; in one day they shall die both of them.

35 And I will raise me up a faithful priest, that shall do according to that which is in mine heart and in my mind: and I assurance from God Himself, that the benefit of our seeking our Master's glory redounds most abundantly on ourselves; that when we unfeignedly seek His glory, we do infallibly procure our own. By doing Him service, we best serve ourselves; there accrueth no advantage to Him thereby, the gain is solely ours. Bp. Sanderson.

To those who honour God here, that is, who reverence His holy name, His holy word, and His holy places; who willingly and carefully practise all piety and virtue for conscience sake, and in avowed obedience to His holy will, and for the promotion of His glory; He hath reserved an honour infinitely great and excellent, in comparison with which all honours here are but dreams, the loudest acclamations of men are but empty sounds, the brightest glories of this world are but duskish and fleeting shadows; an honour most solid, most durable, an eternal weight of glory. They shall in the face of all the world be approved by the unquestionable sentence of their most righteous Judge; they shall be esteemed in the unanimous opinion of angels and saints; they shall be applauded by the general voice and attestation of Heaven; they shall then be seated upon immovable thrones, their heads encircled with unfading crowns, their faces shining with rays of inconceivable glory and majesty. The less of honour they have received here in this transitory moment of life, the more shall they enjoy in that future eternal state, where, with Him who through the whole course of His life sought not His own honour, but the honour of Him that sent Him; with all those who have consecrated their endeavours, and sacrificed their lives to the promoting of God's honour, they shall possess everlasting glory. Dr. I. Barron.

32. — thou shalt see an enemy in my habitation,] The marginal translation seems most literal, "Thou shalt see the affliction of the tabernacle." Bp. Patrick. Thou shalt live to know that an enemy (the Philistine) hath taken possession of My ark and tabernacle. Bp. Hall.

33. — a faithful priest,] This seems to be meant of Zadok, anointed in the place of Abiathar, 1 Chron. xxix. 22, in whose line the high priesthood continued till the Babylonish captivity. Procopius here notes, that though this according to the history is meant of Zadok, yet it belongs to none in the highest sense but unto our Lord Jesus Christ, who offered Himself to the Father for us, and is our great High Priest for evermore. Bp. Patrick.

36. — Put me, I pray thee, &c.] This seems to have been fulfilled in the days of Abiathar, who for treason was not only put out of his office, but deprived of the portion given to the priests will build him a sure house; and he shall walk before mine anointed for ever.

Before
CHRIST
about 1165.

36 And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left in thine house shall come and crouch to him for a piece of silver and a morsel of bread, and shall say, † Put me, I pray thee, into || one of the priests' offices, that I may eat a piece of bread.

† Heb.
Join.
|| Or,
somewhat about the priesthood.

CHAP. III.

1 How the word of the Lord was first revealed to Samuel. 11 God telleth Samuel the destruction of Eli's house. 15 Samuel, though loth, telleth Eli the vision. 19 Samuel groweth in credit.

AND the child Samuel ministered unto the Lord before Eli. And the word of the Lord was precious in those days; there was no open vision.

2 And it came to pass at that time, when Eli was laid down in his place, and his eyes began to wax dim, that he could not see;

about 1141.

3 And ere the lamp of God went out in in the temple, 1 Kings ii. 26, 27. By this means, his posterity fell into extreme want; in which the just judgment of God may be observed, that the children of those, who were so wanton that they could not be content unless they had the choicest part of the sacrifice, should fall into so low a condition as to beg their bread. Bp. Patrick.

We see here another instance, among the many we meet with in Scripture, of God's punishing in kind the notorious crimes of men. The offence of Eli was prostituting the authority of his age and office, his paternal and sacerdotal power, to the profane licentiousness of his two wicked sons; his not punishing, at least not restraining, their scandalous practices. For this reason, the just judgment of God threatens, that none of his family should ever after live long enough to arrive at the venerable authority of old age, which he had misused: nor be invested with the highest order of priesthood, which he had profaned. Again, as his sons, by their profligate lives, and he by his inexcusable lenity, had brought a scandal on religion, and abused the plenty and affluence, as well as the honour, of their high station, to the vices of lust and intemperance, not only they are doomed to untimely ends, but their family and posterity are condemned to the want of bread: yea, the tabernacle, which had been profaned by them, was to be stripped of its glory, and the very ark of God's presence to be delivered into the hands of an enemy. God bears long, and is provoked every day: but flagrant crimes will not always go unpunished; and no sins are more provoking than those which bring disgrace on God and His Church. Wogan.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — the word of the Lord was precious] Meaning, that God very rarely, in those days, revealed His mind to any person. "There was no open vision:" here vision includes all the ways, by which God revealed Himself to men; which He did then so seldom, that whatsoever revelation there might be privately to some pious persons, there was no one publicly acknowledged to be a Prophet, unto whom the people might resort to know the mind of God. Bp. Patrick. Or no open vision may mean, No manifestation of His presence, since that recorded to Manoah and his wife, seventy years before. Dr. Hales.

2. — was laid down in his place,] Was laid down for repose in the court of the tabernacle, where were divers rooms for the uses of the priests. Bp. Patrick.

3. — ere the lamp of God went out] This seems to imply that the lamp was extinguished in the morning: on the other hand, it is said, Lev. xxiv. 2, that the lamps were to burn continually. It

From the Bible.

Engraved by H. Moses.

SAMUEL TELLING HIS VISION TO ELI.

1 Samuel ch. 3. v. 18.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, Sep. 1891.

Before CHRIST about 1141. the temple of the LORD, where the ark of God was, and Samuel was laid down to sleep;

4 That the LORD called Samuel : and he answered, Here am I.

5 And he ran unto Eli, and said, Here am I ; for thou calledst me. And he said, I called not ; lie down again. And he went and lay down.

6 And the LORD called yet again, Samuel. And Samuel arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I ; for thou didst call me. And he answered, I called not, my son ; lie down again.

7 || Now Samuel did not yet know the LORD, neither was the word of the LORD yet revealed unto him.

8 And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. And he arose and went to Eli, and said, Here am I ; for thou didst call me. And Eli perceived that the LORD had called the child.

9 Therefore Eli said unto Samuel, Go, lie down : and it shall be, if he call thee, that thou shalt say, Speak, LORD ; for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and lay down in his place.

10 And the LORD came, and stood, and called as at other times, Samuel, Samuel. Then Samuel answered, Speak ; for thy servant heareth.

11 ¶ And the LORD said to Samuel, Behold, I will do a thing in Israel, at which both the ears of ^a every one that heareth it shall tingle.

12 In that day I will perform against Eli all things which I have spoken concerning his house : † when I begin, I will also make an end.

13 || ^b For I have told him that I will judge his house for ever for the iniquity which he knoweth ; because his sons made themselves || vile, and he † restrained them not.

14 And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.

15 ¶ And Samuel lay until the morning, and opened the doors of the house of the LORD. And Samuel feared to shew Eli the vision.

16 Then Eli called Samuel, and said, Samuel, my son. And he answered, Here am I.

17 And he said, What is the thing that the LORD hath said unto thee ? I pray thee hide it not from me : God do so to thee, and † more also, if thou hide any || thing from me of all the things that he said unto thee.

18 And Samuel told him † every whit, and hid nothing from him. And he said, It is the LORD : let him do what seemeth him good.

Before CHRIST about 1141.

^a 2 Kings 21. 12.

† Heb. beginning an ending.

|| Or, And I will tell him, &c. ^b Chap. 2. 29, 30, 31, &c.

|| Or, accursed. † Heb. frowned not upon them.

|| Or, Thus did Samuel, before he knew the LORD, and before the word of the LORD was revealed unto him.

† Heb. so add. || Or, word.

† Heb. all the things, or, words.

is probable that some lamps were kept always burning, and others extinguished in the day time. Dr. Berriman.

4. — and he answered, Here am I.] We should note the ready obedience of Samuel, for our instruction and example. In him we observe a quick attention and unwearied diligence ; he hears and runs at every call ; he stays not to be twice called, before he goes. We see here the greatest simplicity of mind, and a most perfect humility of will. He murmurs not ; he argues not ; he complains not ; he delays not ; at every call he rises from his bed and runs. It is to such a child as this our Lord requires us to be like, “for of such is the kingdom of God,” Mark x. 14. Wogan.

10. — Speak ; for thy servant heareth.] Such was the pious answer of the Prophet Samuel, then only a youth, on his receiving a message from the Lord. It implies his entire readiness to obey the commands of God, in whatever way those commands should be made known to him. To him they were conveyed in a vision ; a mode of conveying the commands of God, which hath ceased since the establishment of the Gospel. But there are various other ways, in which the Almighty speaks to man ; especially, by the works of creation, by their consciences, and by the Scriptures. In whatever manner He addresses us, it is our duty obediently to reply, “Speak, Lord ; for Thy servant heareth.” Gilpin.

11. — at which both the ears — shall tingle.] Which shall stun and amaze all that hear it. This was fulfilled when the doleful news came, that the ark was taken, and both Eli and his sons slain, &c. Bp. Patrick.

13. — I will judge his house for ever] “For ever” signifies here, as in several other places of Scripture, “for many successive generations.” Dr. S. Clarke.

18. And Samuel told him every whit.] The behaviour of Samuel, who at first was afraid to tell Eli what the Lord had said unto him, but, when he was called upon to do it, concealed nothing from him, is a beautiful example of modesty, and at the same time of courage and resolution. Let us always be thus loth to speak disagreeable truths ; yet, when we are called to it, neither shame nor fear should hinder us from doing it. Ostervald.

— It is the Lord : let him do &c.] Eli hears with an unmoved patience and humble submission the sentence of beggary, death, and desolation, denounced against his family. His words express an admirable faith and more than human constancy, worthy of the aged president of Shiloh, worthy of a heart sacrificed to that God, whose justice had refused to expiate his sin by sacrifice. If Eli was a bad father to his sons, yet he is a good son to God, and is ready to kiss the very rod with which he was to smart. It is the Lord, he says, whom I have ever found holy, just, and gracious, and He cannot but be Himself : let Him do what seemeth Him good ; for whatsoever seemeth good to Him, cannot but be good, however it seems to me. Every man can open his hand to God while He blesses ; but to expose ourselves willingly to the afflicting hand of our Maker, and to kneel to Him while He scourges us, is peculiar only to the faithful. Bp. Hall.

This answer of Eli was truly humble ; and humility never appears more sincere, than when it disposes us, with an unreserved submission, and perfect resignation, to accept whatever God is pleased to inflict upon us for our sins. In the mouth of Eli, this declaration seems as sincere as it was humble. For although he had grievously offended God, by conniving at his son's abominable actions, and not restraining them by his judicial or paternal authority, nevertheless, the meek submission he expresses for the Divine sentence pronounced against himself and his family, and the testimony he afterwards gave of his much greater concern for the taking of God's ark, than for the death of the two sons whom he had so much indulged, makes it probable that, though a weak man, he was truly humble and pious. Wogan.

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

19 ¶ And Samuel grew, and the LORD was with him, and did let none of his words fall to the ground.

¶ Or, foulful.

20 And all Israel from Dan even to Beer-sheba knew that Samuel was ¶ established to be a prophet of the LORD.

21 And the LORD appeared again in Shiloh: for the LORD revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh by the word of the LORD.

CHAP. IV.

1 The Israelites are overcome by the Philistines at Eben-ezer. 3 They fetch the ark unto the terror of the Philistines. 10 They are smitten again, the ark taken, Hophni and Phinehas are slain. 12 Eli at the news, falling backward, breaketh his neck. 19 Phinehas' wife, discouraged in her travail with I-chubod, dieth.

¶ Or, came to pass.
† Heb.
was.

AND the word of Samuel ¶ † came to all Israel. Now Israel went out against the Philistines to battle, and pitched beside Eben-ezer: and the Philistines pitched in Aphek.

† Heb.
the battle was spread.
† Heb.
the array.

2 And the Philistines put themselves in array against Israel: and when † they joined battle, Israel was smitten before the Philistines: and they slew of † the army in the field about four thousand men.

† Heb. take unto us.

3 ¶ And when the people were come into the camp, the elders of Israel said, Wherefore hath the LORD smitten us to day before the Philistines? Let us † fetch the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of Shiloh unto us, that, when it cometh among us, it may save us out of the hand of our enemies.

4 So the people sent to Shiloh, that they might bring from thence the ark of the covenant of the LORD of hosts, which dwelleth between the cherubims: and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

5 And when the ark of the covenant of the LORD came into the camp, all Israel shouted with a great shout, so that the earth rang again.

6 And when the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said, What meaneth the noise of this great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the LORD was come into the camp.

7 And the Philistines were afraid, for they said, God is come into the camp. And they said, Woe unto us! for there hath not been such a thing † heretofore.

† Heb.
yesterday,
or the third day.

8 Woe unto us! who shall deliver us out of the hand of these mighty Gods? these are the Gods that smote the Egyptians with all the plagues in the wilderness.

9 Be strong, and quit yourselves like men, O ye Philistines, that ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, ^a as they have been to you: † quit yourselves like men, and fight.

^a Judg. 13.
1.
† Heb. be men.

10 ¶ And the Philistines fought, and Israel was smitten, and they fled every man into his tent: and there was a very great slaughter; for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen.

11 And the ark of God was taken; and the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, † were slain.

† Heb.
died.

21. — by the word of the Lord.] Not by dreams or visions, but by speaking to him in an audible voice. Bp. Patrick. "By the word of the Lord," means very probably that Jehovah made His revelations by His Word the Son, who acted all things in the Father's name, and bore His authority, title, and character. Pyle.

This passage must be understood of the Son, by whom alone the Lord has been pleased to reveal Himself to any of us. It is on this account that we only find Him called "the Word," with respect to the beginning of the creation, when God spake all things out of nothing, or else with respect to the revelations which He hath made of Himself to the world. Bp. Beveridge. See the note on Gen. xv. 1.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. And the word of Samuel came] The word or the revelations of God grew frequent in Israel by means of Samuel. Bp. Patrick. The word or will of the Lord by Samuel came, or was made known to all or any of Israel, that consulted Samuel, to that purpose, on any occasion. Dr. Wells.

— Israel went out] Probably without consulting Samuel. Dr. Wells. This was in the middle of that forty years' dominion, which the Philistines had over the Israelites, mentioned Judg. xiii. 1, unto which they were encouraged, perhaps, by the death of the lords of the Philistines, and by the great slaughter which Samson had made of them at his death, Judg. xvi. 27, &c. Bp. Patrick.

3. — Let us fetch the ark] Their defeat threw them into a great consternation, but had no better effect than to direct them to a project still more foolish and unwarrantable. They trusted little to real religion, and had scarcely any of it left among them: so they vainly relied on the external symbols of the Divine presence, and resolved to carry the ark into the field to give them deliverance, little dreaming that they were doomed to destruction by Him, for whose sake alone the ark was to be had in veneration. Pyle. They seem to have brought out the ark in imitation of Joshua, who marched with the ark against Jericho: but he had Divine authority for doing it, and they had none; and their acting without any warrant from God, provoked His anger instead of procuring His favour. Bp. Patrick. Who gave them authority to command the ark of God at their pleasure? Here was no consulting of the ark which they were about to fetch, no inquiry of Samuel whether they should fetch it, but a headstrong resolution of presumptuous elders to force God into the field, and to challenge success. Bp. Hall.

8. — these mighty Gods? &c.] The Hebrew words, which we translate mighty Gods, are translated by Theodoret the strong God, which agrees with what goes before, God is come into the camp. So the following words would be translated, "this is the God," instead of "these are the Gods." Bp. Patrick.

11. — the two sons of Eli, — slain.] The defeat of the Israel-

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

12 ¶ And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and came to Shiloh the same day with his clothes rent, and with earth upon his head.

13 And when he came, lo, Eli sat upon a seat by the wayside watching: for his heart trembled for the ark of God. And when the man came into the city, and told it, all the city cried out.

14 And when Eli heard the noise of the crying, he said, What meaneth the noise of this tumult? And the man came in hastily, and told Eli.

* Chap. 3. 2.
† Heb. stood.

15 Now Eli was ninety and eight years old; and ^b his eyes † were dim, that he could not see.

16 And the man said unto Eli, I am he that came out of the army, and I fled to day out of the army. And he said, What † is there done, my son?

† Heb.
as the thing.

17 And the messenger answered and said, Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there hath been also a great slaughter among the people, and thy two sons also, Hophni and Phinehas, are dead, and the ark of God is taken.

18 And it came to pass, when he made mention of the ark of God, that he fell from off the seat backward by the side of the gate, and his neck brake, and he ites, the death of Eli's sons, and of Eli himself, were proofs of God's wrath against the people of Israel and the family of Eli, and the completion of those threatenings which had been denounced by God against that priest. The threatenings of the Lord never fail to be executed; and sooner or later His judgments fall on a guilty people, upon families where vice prevails, and especially upon the ministers of religion who neglect their duty and disgrace their character by irregular lives. Ostervald.

18. — when he made mention of the ark of God, &c.] Eli, though too indulgent a father, was highly commendable in this, that he was not so much affected with the slaughter of his sons and of his people, as with the loss of the ark of God: he kept up his courage and did not fall, till he heard that mentioned. Bp. Patrick. The good old man hears the other intelligence, though with sorrow, yet with patience: but, when the messenger tells him of the ark of God taken, he can live no longer; that word strikes him backward from his throne, and kills him in the fall: no sword of a Philistine could have slain him more painfully. Bp. Hall. The sacred historian has offered some extenuation of Eli's offence by stating that he was very old when he heard of his sons' doings; he was then eighty-eight years old. He appears to have been a religious man himself, but of too easy a disposition for a judge, or watcher over Israel, appointed to warn and punish the wicked, under the awful responsibility of having their blood required at his hand, even though they die in their own sins, Ezek. iii. 17, 20. Dr. Hales.

The history of Eli is so fully set forth in Scripture, in order to teach us, that, if we govern those committed to our charge with such partial affections as are subversive of the Divine law, we teach rebellion against our Supreme Father, and bring ruin on those whom we foolishly indulge. This history shews us, that such indulgence is real hatred under the false appearance of love: Eli and his children might have gone to the grave in peace, and in the favour of God, if he had brought them up under proper nurdied: for he was an old man, and heavy. And he had judged Israel forty years.

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

19 ¶ And his daughter in law, Phinehas' wife, was with child, near † to be delivered: and when she heard the tidings that the ark of God was taken, and that her father in law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and travailed; for her pains † came upon her.

† Or,
to cry out.

† Heb. were turned.

20 And about the time of her death the women that stood by her said unto her, Fear not; for thou hast born a son. But she answered not, † neither did she regard it.

† Heb. set not her heart.

21 And she named the child † I-chabod, saying, The glory is departed from Israel: because the ark of God was taken, and because of her father in law and her husband.

† That is,
Where is the glory?
or, There is no glory.

22 And she said, The glory is departed from Israel: for the ark of God is taken.

CHAP. V.

1 The Philistines having brought the ark into Ashdod, set it in the house of Dagon. 3 Dagon is smitten down and cut in pieces, and they of Ashdod smitten with emerods. 8 So God dealeth with them of Gath, when it was brought thither: 10 and so with them of Ekron, when it was brought thither.

AND the Philistines took the ark of God, and brought it from Eben-ezer unto Ashdod.

ture and discipline. By neglecting this, he was sadly answerable for their conduct and their sufferings, and himself was punished by the revelation of that tragical sentence which he lived to see executed upon them. Reading.

21. — saying, The glory is departed from Israel: &c.] She is insensible of the death of her father, her husband and herself, in comparison with the loss of the ark of God; calls her (then unseasonable) son I-chabod, or, "There is no glory;" and says with her last breath, "The glory is departed from Israel." She cares nothing for a posterity, which was to want the ark of God: she cares nothing for a son, come into the world of Israel, when God was gone from it; and she departs willingly from them, from whom God was departed. Not outward magnificence, nor wealth, nor the favour of the mighty, but the presence of God in His ordinances, were the glory of Israel; the withdrawing of which was a greater judgment than destruction. Bp. Hall.

Chap. V. ver. 1. And the Philistines took the ark &c.] The reasons why God permitted the ark of His presence to be taken by the Philistines appear to have been these; that the Israelites had presumed to send for it, without ever consulting God, as they used to do on all momentous affairs; that the iniquities of the people had become so enormous, as to deserve no longer the Divine presence among them; and that the flagitiousness of the priests (who were killed in defending the ark) had for a long time called for some judgment upon them; so that it was more inconsistent with the honour of the Deity to continue His assistance to the wicked and presumptuous, than to admit of the profanation of even the most sacred things. We may further suppose, from what afterwards follows, that God's design in permitting the capture of His ark, was to demonstrate His power among the heathen, and to let the Philistines know that His dominion reached every where, that He was equally Lord, both of the conquerors and of the conquered; and that the pretended deities, whom they adored, were,

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

2 When the Philistines took the ark of God, they brought it into the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon.

3 ¶ And when they of Ashdod arose early on the morrow, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the earth before the ark of the Lord. And they took Dagon, and set him in his place again.

4 And when they arose early on the morrow morning, behold, Dagon was fallen upon his face to the ground before the ark of the Lord; and the head of Dagon and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold; only || the stump of Dagon was left to him.

¶ Or,
the fishy part.

5 Therefore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that come into Dagon's house, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod unto this day.

* Psal 78.
6c.

6 But the hand of the Lord was heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he destroyed them, and smote them with ^a emerods, even Ashdod and the coasts thereof.

7 And when the men of Ashdod saw that it was so, they said, The ark of the God of Israel shall not abide with us: for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our god.

8 They sent therefore and gathered all the lords of the Philistines unto them, and said, What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And they answered, Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about unto Gath. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about thither.

Before
CHRIST
about 1141.

9 And it was so, that, after they had carried it about, the hand of the Lord was against the city with a very great destruction: and he smote the men of the city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts.

10 ¶ Therefore they sent the ark of God to Ekron. And it came to pass, as the ark of God came to Ekron, that the Ekronites cried out, saying, They have brought about the ark of the God of Israel to us, to slay us and our people.

11 So they sent and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and said, Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go again to his own place, that it slay us not, and our people: for there was a deadly destruction throughout all the city; the hand of God was very heavy there.

12 And the men that died not were smitten with the emerods: and the cry of the city went up to heaven.

CHAP. VI.

1 After seven months the Philistines take counsel how to in comparison with Him, powerless, and things of nought. Stack-house.

On this occasion God, by permitting the Israelites to be defeated and His ark taken, punished their presumption in relying on His protection without repenting of their crimes: while on the idol of the Philistines and his worshippers He inflicted such signal chastisement, without any intervention of human agency, as seems admirably adapted, not only to punish, but to reform their idolatry. Yet all was in vain. At that period the human mind appears to have been incapable of being thus reformed. The deluded Philistines acknowledged the resistless power of Jehovah, but they were merely stimulated by it to remove the immediate pressure of that power from their idols and themselves. They never once felt the reasonableness of forsaking such base absurdities and adhering steadily to the worship of the God of Israel. Dr. Graves.

— Ashdod.] A place lying on the shore between Gaza and Joppa, the same which is called Azotus in the New Testament, Acts viii. 40. Dr. Wells.

3. — Dagon was fallen &c.] In a posture of the most humble adoration, hereby acknowledging the God of Israel to be above all gods. Bp. Patrick.

5. — tread on the threshold &c.] So foolishly did they pervert the meaning of God, that, instead of concluding Dagon to be no god, they honoured the very threshold of his temple, as if it had some divinity in it. Bp. Patrick. Hence the phrase of "those that leap on the threshold" was afterwards used to signify the Philistines, as in Zephani. i. 9. Pyle.

— unto this day.] The day when Samuel wrote this book: when the events happened he was a youth, but the book was written when he was advanced in years. Bp. Patrick.

6. — with emerods, &c.] A sudden and violent disease in their bowels, which occasioned great pain and torture. Pyle.

10. — to Ekron.] They sent the ark to Ekron, as being the last city of the Philistines, lying in the north border of Judah. Dr. Wells.

11. — the hand of God was very heavy there.] How miserable was the estate of these Philistines! Every man was either sick or dead; those that were still living, through their extremity of pain, envied the dead, and the cry of their whole cities went up to heaven. It is happy that God hath such store of plagues and thunderbolts for the wicked: if He had not a fire of judgment, wherewith the iron hearts of men might be made flexible, He would want obedience, and the world would want peace. Bp. Hall. The Philistines, on taking the ark of the God of Israel, placed it in the temple of their god Dagon, under the idea that the worship of the two might be carried on in common; but they were soon taught, by fearful experience, that the true God endured no alliance with the gods of the Gentiles. From this time we hear no more of any attempts of the Gentiles to join the Jewish worship with their own. But they considered the God of Israel as a tutelary God, altogether unsociable, and therefore in this respect different from all the other tutelary gods, each of which was supposed to live willingly in community with all the rest. Bp. Warburton. All this happened to prevent the Philistines from insulting the God of Israel, because they had taken His ark and defeated His people; and to convince them, that the gods they worshipped were weak and dead idols, and the God of Israel the only true and almighty God. Thus does God secure His own glory; and, if He sometimes suffers His enemies to get the better, and things to fall out, which seem to interfere with His glory, He at last exerts His power to the confusion of those that offend Him, and to the honour of His holy name. Ostervald.

12. — the cry of the city went up to heaven.] In this chapter are displayed all the attributes of God: His justice in punishing His own people; His goodness in thus manifesting Himself to those who knew Him not; His power in making the idols fall before Him; His truth in vindicating Himself upon the Israelites for their sins, and upon the Philistines for their idolatry. Bp. Wilson.

Before
CHRIST
about 1140.

send back the ark. 10 They bring it on a new cart with an offering unto Beth-shemesh. 19 The people are smitten for looking into the ark. 21 They send to them of Kirjath-jearim to fetch it.

Before
CHRIST
about 1140.

AND the ark of the LORD was in the country of the Philistines seven months.

2 And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying, What shall we do to the ark of the LORD? tell us wherewith we shall send it to his place.

3 And they said, If ye send away the ark of the God of Israel, send it not empty; but in any wise return him a trespass offering: then ye shall be healed, and it shall be known to you why his hand is not removed from you.

4 Then said they, What shall be the trespass offering which we shall return to him? They answered, Five golden emerods, and five golden mice, according to the number of the lords of the Philistines: for one plague was on † you all, and on your lords.

5 Wherefore ye shall make images of your emerods, and images of your mice that mar the land; and ye shall give glory unto the God of Israel: peradventure he will lighten his hand from off you, and from off your gods, and from off your land.

6 Wherefore then do ye harden your hearts, as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened their hearts? when he had wrought || wonderfully among them, * did they not let † the people go, and they departed?

7 Now therefore make a new cart, and take two milch kine, on which there hath come no yoke, and tie the kine to the cart, and bring their calves home from them:

8 And take the ark of the LORD, and lay it upon the cart; and put the jewels of gold, which ye return him for a trespass offering, in a coffer by the side thereof; and send it away, that it may go.

9 And see, if it goeth up by the way of his own coast to Beth-shemesh, then || he || hath done us this great evil: but if not, then we shall know that it is not his hand that smote us; it was a chance that happened to us.

10 ¶ And the men did so: and took two milch kine, and tied them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home:

11 And they laid the ark of the LORD upon the cart, and the coffer with the mice of gold and the images of their emerods.

12 And the kine took the straight way to the way of Beth-shemesh, and went along the highway, lowing as they went, and turned not aside to the right hand or to the left; and the lords of the Philistines went after them unto the border of Beth-shemesh.

13 And they of Beth-shemesh were reaping their wheat harvest in the valley: and they lifted up their eyes, and saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it.

14 And the cart came into the field of Joshua, a Beth-shemite, and stood there, where there was a great stone: and they clave the wood of the cart, and offered the kine a burnt offering unto the LORD.

15 And the Levites took down the ark of the LORD, and the coffer that was with † Heb.

thsm.

|| Or, reproachfully.

* Exod. 12.

31.

† Heb.
thsm.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. — in the country of the Philistines] The Hebrew word, which we translate country, signifies also field: whence some think, that the Philistines, being so plagued on account of the ark in their cities, sent it into the open fields; but were still disappointed of their hope, for mice sprang up from the ground and wasted their corn and fruits, (see ver. 5,) and accordingly they determined to send the ark quite away. Bp. Patrick.

2. — priests and the diviners,] The priests who were best skilled in their sacred ceremonies; and the diviners, who pretended to know the will of God, and foretell future events. Bp. Patrick.

3. — a trespass offering:] Designed as an acknowledgment that they had offended the God of Israel by bringing His ark from its proper place, for which offence they begged forgiveness by this offering. This was in conformity with the notions of the heathens, who all thought their gods were to be appeased by honorary gifts. Bp. Patrick.

4. — Five golden emerods, and five golden mice,] This was also a custom among the ancient heathens, to consecrate to their gods such monuments of their deliverances, as represented the evils from which they were freed. Tavernier relates, that this is still practised among the Indians: he says, that when any pilgrim goes to a pagod for the cure of disease, he brings the figure of the limb or part of the body which is affected, made either of gold, silver, or copper, according to his quality, which he offers to his god, and then begins to sing, as all others do, after they have offered. Mr. Selden also has observed, that mice were used among the ancient heathen for lustration and cleansing. Bp. Patrick. A similar practice of hanging up figures of the limbs or parts afflicted with disease, still prevails in churches of the Romish communion.

What was the shape of these emerods which were offered, has been the subject of considerable doubt. The prevailing opinion has been, that they were made in the shape of the part of the human body which was diseased. Pole's Syn. Crit.

7. — two milch kine, on which there hath come no yoke,] The priests and diviners seem to have directed the Philistines to take milch kine, which had never before been yoked, to draw the cart, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the hand of God was concerned in what had befallen them. It would be impossible that these animals should draw jointly together, should not either immediately return home, or, when there were so many different ways, should go directly towards Judea, without any manner of deviation, unless there was a special Providence concerned in directing them. Stackhouse.

9. — by the way of his own coast] By the coast of the land of Israel, to Beth-shemesh, a city of Judah. Dr. Wells.

10. — and shut up their calves at home:] Natural instinct would have undoubtedly made the milch kine return home to their calves, if the hand of God had not led them in a contrary direction.

Before
CHRIST
about 1140.

it, wherein the jewels of gold were, and put them on the great stone: and the men of Beth-shemesh offered burnt offerings and sacrificed sacrifices the same day unto the LORD.

16 And when the five lords of the Philistines had seen it, they returned to Ekron the same day.

17 And these are the golden emerods which the Philistines returned for a trespass offering unto the LORD; for Ashdod one, for Gaza one, for Askelon one, for Gath one, for Ekron one; great stone.

|| Or,

18 And the golden mice, according to the number of all the cities of the Philistines belonging to the five lords, both of fenced cities, and of country villages, even unto the || great stone of Abel, whereon they set down the ark of the LORD: which stone remaineth unto this day in the field of Joshua, the Beth-shemite.

19 ¶ And he smote the men of Beth-shemesh, because they had looked into the ark of the LORD, even he smote of the people fifty thousand and threescore and ten men: and the people lamented, because the LORD had smitten many of the people with a great slaughter.

20 And the men of Beth-shemesh said, Who is able to stand before this holy LORD

19. — because they had looked into the ark] God had strictly forbidden this, not only to the common people, but also to the sons of Levi, Numb. iv. 20. In this instance, their curiosity made them forget their duty; being desirous perhaps to discover whether the Philistines had taken out the tables of the covenant, or wishing to have a view of such an ancient sacred monument, written by God's own hand. Bp. Patrick.

It was a particular prohibition, Numb. iv. 20, that not only the common people, but even the Levites themselves, should not dare to look into the ark, or any other of the holy utensils belonging to the service of God, upon pain of death; and the severity of this law will not seem unreasonable, when it is considered, how much, in every nation, it has been accounted the greatest profaneness to obtrude into the mysteries of religion: and if the Philistines, for their irreverence to the ark, were treated with less rigour than the Beth-shemites, it should be remembered, that the former were not instructed in the laws of God, nor placed under an obligation to observe them. Stackhouse. The ark dealt blows and death on every side; to Philistines, to Israelites; to both of them for profaning it, the one with their idol, the other with their eyes. It is a fearful thing to use the holy ordinances of God with an irreverent boldness: fear and trembling become us in our access to the majesty of the Almighty. Bp. Hall. The punishment which befell the men of Beth-shemesh for looking into the ark, tended to produce in the Israelites reverence and fear; and to make them sensible, that, if the Lord returned to dwell among them, they should take care not to provoke Him to wrath, lest His presence might become as fatal to them, as it was to the Philistines. It is a great advantage to have God present among us, in the signs of His covenant, and pledges of His grace and favour: but this engages us to reverence that holy and righteous God, lest by offending Him we expose ourselves to His vengeance. Ostervald.

— fifty thousand and threescore and ten men:] This trans-

God? and to whom shall he go up from us? Before CHRIST
about 1140.

21 ¶ And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Kirjath-jearim, saying, The Philistines have brought again the ark of the LORD; come ye down, and fetch it up to you.

CHAP. VII.

1 They of Kirjath-jearim bring the ark into the house of Abinadab, and sanctify Eleazar his son to keep it. 2 After twenty years 3 the Israelites, by Samuel's means, solemnly repent at Mizpeh. 7 While Samuel prayeth and sacrificeth, the Lord discomfith the Philistines by thunder at Eben-ezer. 13 The Philistines are subdued. 15 Samuel peaceably and religiously judgeth Israel.

AND the men of Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched up the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of Abinadab in the hill, and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the LORD.

2 And it came to pass, while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, that the time was long; for it was twenty years: and all the house of Israel lamented after the LORD. about 1120.

3 ¶ And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do return unto the LORD with all your hearts, then ^a put away the strange gods and ^b Ashtaroth from among you, and prepare your hearts unto the LORD, and ^c serve him only: and he ^a Josh. 24. 15, 23.
^b Judg. 2. 13.
^c Deut. 6. 4. Matt. 4. 10. Luke 4. 8.

lation seems evidently wrong, and is caused by a transposition of the words. As Beth-shemesh was but a small village, it is improbable that it should contain as many inhabitants as are here mentioned to be slain. The interpretation of Bochart is far more reasonable, He smote threescore and ten men, fifty out of a thousand: meaning, that God was so indulgent as not to slay all that were guilty, but only seventy of them; observing this proportion, that, out of a thousand offenders, He smote only fifty persons; that is, the twentieth part. Bp. Patrick. Or it may be rendered, He smote threescore and ten men out of fifty thousand; that is, not of the Beth-shemites only, but of other Israelites, who out of the neighbouring tribes were assembled together from curiosity to the number of 50,000, to see the ark. Dr. Waterland, Le Clere. Josephus, relating this event, mentions that seventy men, and no more, were slain. Dr. Wall. The reading of the Syriack and Arabick versions is 5070 men. Dr. Hales.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. — while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, &c.] This is not to be understood of the whole time that the ark remained there; for it continued in this place till the time of David, 2 Sam. vi. 3, about forty-six years. Thus the expression, “it was twenty years,” refers to the time when “the house of Israel lamented after the Lord,” that is, were awakened to some sense of their duty, and began to seek the favour of God, and to lament their apostasy from Him. Bp. Patrick. Kirjath-jearim is expressly reckoned among the cities of Judah at Josh. xv. 60; lying in the north border of that tribe: the name means “the city of Jearim,” being taken from mount Jearim, upon or near which it lay. Dr. Wells.

— the house of Israel lamented after the Lord.] The house of Israel, being humbled by their servitude under the Philistines, made great lamentation to God for remission and favour. Bp. Hall.

Before CHRIST about 1120. will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

⁴ Judg. 2. 11.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away ^d Baalim and Ashtaroth, and served the LORD only.

5 And Samuel said, Gather all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray for you unto the LORD.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh, and drew water, and poured it out before the LORD, and fasted on that day, and said there, We have sinned against the LORD. And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Mizpeh.

7 And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard it, they were afraid of the Philistines.

[†] Heb. Be not silent from us from crying.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, [†] Cease not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

^{||} Or, answered.

9 ¶ And Samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered it for a burnt offering wholly unto the LORD: and Samuel cried unto the LORD for Israel; and the LORD ^{||} heard him.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: but the LORD thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them, until they came under Beth-car,

12 Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it ^{||} Eben-ezer, saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.

Before CHRIST about 1120.
^{||} That is, The stone of help.

13 ¶ So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

15 And Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life.

16 And he went from year to year [†] in [†] Heb. and he circumscribed.

17 And his return was to Ramah; for there was his house; and there he judged Israel; and there he built an altar unto the LORD.

CHAP. VIII.

1 By occasion of the ill government of Samuel's sons, the Israelites ask a king. 6 Samuel praying in grief, is comforted by God: 10 He telleth the manner of a king. 19 God willet Samuel to yield unto the importunity of the people.

AND it came to pass, when Samuel was about 1112. old, that he made his sons judges over Israel.

2 Now the name of his firstborn was Joel; and the name of his second, Abiah: they were judges in Beer-sheba.

3 And his sons walked not in his ways, but turned aside after lucre, and ^a took ^a Deut. 16. 19. bribes, and perverted judgment.

5. — to Mizpeh,] There were two or three places of this name, Josh. xv. 38; xviii. 26. This is supposed to have been in the confines of Benjamin and Judah. Dr. Wells.

6. — drew water, and poured it out] As this sentence refers to a day of humiliation and prayer, interpreters commonly expound the pouring out of water in connexion with the same. But conjectures about the meaning are various. Some think that they washed their bodies in water, signifying the purification of their bodies from the filthiness of sin; others, that this water was poured on the ground, in token of the expiation of their sin, which they hoped might be remembered no more, as water poured on the ground could no more be seen. However, it seems more probable that they poured out water in token of joy, after they had fasted and confessed their sins, as they were wont to do in the feast of tabernacles: to this custom Isaiah refers, Is. xii. 3, "With joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation." There is the greater reason in this interpretation, because Samuel had just conveyed to them a promise of deliverance from the Philistines, on condition of their repentance; which made them rejoice in hope of it, because they did now sincerely turn to God. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

9. — and Samuel cried unto the Lord for Israel;] It is here related, that the people, terrified at the approach of the Philistines, had recourse to the intercession of Samuel; and he, by his intercession and prayers, obtained a miraculous victory. The greatest blessing that any people can enjoy, is to have wise rulers, and such as fear God: the prayers of good men, and of the faithful servants of God, are of great efficacy; and, for their sakes, God often spares and blesses a nation. Ostervald.

15. — all the days of his life.] As Samuel was the author of this book, he could not speak literally of "all the days of his life:" the sense probably is, that he was so diligent in the discharge of his office, that he gave himself no rest, but sat to judge causes every day. Bp. Patrick. All that the text says comes to this; that Samuel discharged his office with the greatest exactness, and that he employed himself in it every day of his life. Locke.

17. — there he built an altar] No doubt, by God's direction or permission for the present; as He had made no declaration where He wished the ark to be fixed, after it was taken from Shiloh; and as it was fit that there should be an altar where Samuel himself resided, for the purpose of invoking God's direction and blessing, when the people came to consult the Divine majesty through him. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

4 Then all the elders of Israel gathered themselves together, and came to Samuel unto Ramah,

5 And said unto him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now ^b make us a king to judge us like all the nations.

^a Hos. 13.
10.
Acts 15. 21.
† Heb. was evil in the eyes of Samuel.

6 ¶ But the thing [†] displeased Samuel, when they said, Give us a king to judge us. And Samuel prayed unto the Lord.

7 And the Lord said unto Samuel, Hearken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee: for they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them.

8 According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt even unto this day, wherewith they have forsaken me, and served other gods, so do they also unto thee.

† Or, obey.

9 Now therefore ^{||} hearken unto their voice: ^{||} howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them, and shew them the manner of the king that shall reign over them.

† Or, notwithstanding, when thou hast solemnly protested against them, then thou shalt shew, &c.

10 ¶ And Samuel told all the words of the Lord unto the people that asked of him a king.

11 And he said, This will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: He Chap VIII. ver. 5. — make us a king to judge us] The inconvenience, which the Israelites allege, arising from the age of Samuel, and the misconduct of his sons, was so plainly temporary and easily removable, that it could have been but a mere pretence. The real motive undoubtedly was, that they should be governed “like all the (other) nations:” a motive originating in their not sufficiently attending to the Divine interpositions of the judges, but yielding to their ardent and culpable fondness for the manners and customs of the surrounding idolatrous states; a fondness they were restrained from indulging, by the control of that theocracy established by the Mosaic Law; which control they in all probability secretly hoped would be less strict, if they changed the form of their civil government. This criminal disposition God exposes and reprobates, ver. 7. Dr. Graves. It is generally thought, that the circumstance which made the Israelites so urgent at this time for a king, was a present strait, into which they had fallen, for want of an able leader, when Nahash king of the Amorites came up against Jabesh-gilead. But their duty was to inquire of the Lord, as at other times, who it was that He would be pleased to constitute their general in this exigency, to lead out their forces against their enemies. Stackhouse.

7. — Hearken unto the voice &c.] God grants their desire of having a king, not as approving their request, but, on the contrary, that it might turn to their punishment, as is affirmed, Hos. xiii. 11. Dr. Wells. God was unwilling to exercise such a resistless control, as totally to disregard the choice of His people, and chain down their freewill: this would have been inconsistent with His character as a moral Governour. He indeed commanded His Prophet solemnly to protest to them, declaring His condemnation of their criminal desires, and warning them of the various inconveniences which would attend the kingly government. Yet, on their persisting in their demand, ver. 19, he is com-will take your sons, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen; and some shall run before his chariots.

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

12 And he will appoint him captains over thousands, and captains over fifties; and will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of war, and instruments of his chariots.

13 And he will take your daughters to be confectionaries, and to be cooks, and to be bakers.

14 And he will take your fields, and your vineyards, and your oliveyards, even the best of them, and give them to his servants.

15 And he will take the tenth of your seed, and of your vineyards, and give to his [†] officers, and to his servants.

† Heb.
eunuchs.

16 And he will take your menservants, and your maidservants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, and put them to his work.

17 He will take the tenth of your sheep: and ye shall be his servants.

18 And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the Lord will not hear you in that day.

manded to hearken unto their voice, and set a king over them. Dr. Graves. No government can certainly be imagined more happy, more safe, more free, and more honourable, than that, in which He, who is the fountain of all wisdom and power, of all justice and goodness, presided. The least, therefore, that we can say of the Israelites in desiring to change this form for an absolute and despotick monarchy, such as the nations around them had, where the princes were tyrants, and the subjects all slaves, is, that their conduct argues a high degree of folly and indiscretion, an ingratitude of temper, a spirit of rebellion, and a secret attachment to the idolatries of those people, whose government they were eager to imitate. The manner too in which they demanded a king was no less blamable than the end proposed: for, instead of consulting God in an affair of this consequence, they went hastily to Samuel; and when, by fair remonstrances, he attempted to dissuade them from so dangerous an enterprise, they turned impetuously upon him, insisting that they “would have a king.” Stackhouse.

11. — This will be the manner of the king &c.] He proceeds to shew them, that the sufferings, into which they were about to run, were much greater than those of which they complained; that, in subjecting themselves to an arbitrary prince, they would lie at the mercy of one who would have the power, and perhaps the disposition, to treat them rather as slaves than as subjects; and who would hold at his disposal their persons, estates, time, and labour. Pyle.

15. — the tenth] It was part of the royal right in Eastern countries, to have the tenth part of the fruit of the land for the king's share; and, if they contented themselves with this portion, they were accounted good kings. Bp. Patrick.

18. — the Lord will not hear you] He will rather leave you to continue under the heavy yoke of such a king, as a just punishment for your not hearkening to all that is now laid before you by

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

19 ¶ Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us;

20 That we also may be like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles.

21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and he rehearsed them in the ears of the LORD.

22 And the LORD said to Samuel, Hearken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

CHAP. IX.

1 Saul despairing to find his father's asses, 6 by the counsel of his servant, 11 and direction of young maidens, 15 according to God's revelation, 18 cometh to Samuel. 19 Samuel entertaineth Saul at the feast. 25 Samuel, after secret communication, bringeth Saul on his way.

^a Chap. 14.
51.
1 Chron. 8.
33.

NOW there was a man of Benjamin, whose name was ^a Kish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Be-

His merciful order, in order to prevent your subjecting yourselves to this heavy yoke. Dr. Wells.

20. That we also may be like all the nations;] Blinded by a strange infatuation, they did not see that it was their singular happiness to be in this respect unlike to other nations; and that God, who was their peculiar Governour, never failed to raise up, in time of need, men of wonderful merit to be their deliverers. It was their vainglorious humour which made them think they were inferiour to other nations, unless they saw a prince set over them, shining in gold and jewels, living in a sumptuous palace, and attended with the pomp and state of numerous guards. Bp. Patrick.

The establishment of the kingly form of government in Judea forms a distinguished era in the history of the chosen people. This change had been provided for in the Divine economy, having been foretold in the prophetick declaration of Moses, delivered to the assembled nation shortly before his death, Deut. xvii. 14, in such a manner as supplies a striking proof of the authenticity of the Pentateuch. It was not however established till four hundred years after the prediction was delivered. But the lateness of the introduction of the kingly government supplies in itself considerable evidence of the Divine original of the Mosaic Law. Had this form of government been established from the first, it would have been difficult to remove the suspicion that temporal motives and political arts had contributed to give a factitious Divine authority to a code of laws, which an able legislator had contrived, and a series of powerful kings had maintained. But in the existing case all such suspicion is precluded, as the Law must have been universally recognised before the establishment of that regal authority: it was therefore not unproductive of advantage to the permanent interests of religion, that this great change was delayed by Providence till the Mosaic Law had subsisted long enough to prove, that its first establishment had not originated in any human policy, and that its subsequent support was independent of any human power. Dr. Graves.

22. — Hearken unto their voice, &c.] We perceive from this history, that God may yield to our importunities, and satisfy our longings, when He is not pleased with our requests. We must therefore not consider every thing we obtain as a mark of the Divine favour, but must reflect with what mind we have solicited for it, and what steps we have taken in the pursuit of it. If we chorath, the son of Aphiah, || a Benjamite, a mighty man of || power.

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

2 And he had a son, whose name was Saul, a choice young man, and a goodly: and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people.

|| Or, the son of a man of Jermini.
|| Or, substance.

3 And the asses of Kish Saul's father were lost. And Kish said to Saul his son, Take now one of the servants with thee, and arise, go seek the asses.

4 And he passed through mount Ephraim, and passed through the land of Shalisha, but they found them not: then they passed through the land of Shalim, and there they were not: and he passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they found them not.

5 And when they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant that was with him, Come, and let us return; lest my father leave caring for the asses, and take thought for us.

are as headstrong and violent as these Israelites, we may possibly prevail; but it would have been far better for us, if we had not prevailed, and if we had calmly awaited the Divine dispensations. Reading.

The king which God consented to give the Israelites was only His viceroy or deputy; and on that account he was not left to the people's election, but was chosen by Himself: the only difference between God's appointment of the judges and of Saul being this, that they were stirred up by internal influence, he chosen by outward designation. Bp. Warburton. When the Israelites persisted in asking a king, God ordered Samuel to set one over them; but first warned them by him of the many inconveniences which would be the consequence of this change of government. God, in love to men, makes known to them His will and their duty; and forewarns them of the misfortunes they will bring upon themselves by following the guidance of their own will, rather than His. But when they will not follow His wholesome counsels, and are obstinately bent on their own resolutions, He hinders them not. By which means God permits many things to be done which He does not approve: and men are always the authors of all the evils which befall them. Ostervald.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — a mighty man of power.] This seems to be meant of his great bodily strength and courage; for Saul himself describes his family to be "the least of all the families of Benjamin," ver. 21. Bp. Patrick.

2. — a choice young man,] In this choice of Saul, for the comeliness and stature of his person, God had regard to the opinion of the Israelites, in common with the rest of the Eastern nations, who prided themselves in princes of a stately mien and countenance. Pyle. It should be observed, that God, who permitted the people of Israel to have a king over them, did not leave them at liberty to take whom they pleased, but gave them one Himself. God always, as in this instance, disposes all things for the execution of His designs, and brings them about by unforeseen ways. His providence ruleth over all, and by Him, in particular, kings govern. Ostervald.

5. — the land of Zuph, &c.] A territory in the tribe of Ephraim, where some of Samuel's ancestors had lived, chap. i. 1; and where Ramah, Samuel's present abode, seems to have been. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

6 And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city a man of God, and he is an honourable man; all that he saith cometh surely to pass: now let us go thither; peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go.

† Heb. is gone out of; &c.
† Heb. is with us?

7 Then said Saul to his servant, But, behold, if we go, what shall we bring the man? for the bread † is spent in our vessels, and there is not a present to bring to the man of God: what † have we?

† Heb.
there is found in my hand.

8 And the servant answered Saul again, and said, Behold, † I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver: that will I give to the man of God, to tell us our way.

9 (Beforetime in Israel, when a man went to enquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the seer: for he that is now called a Prophet was beforetime called a Seer.)

† Heb.
Thy word is good.

10 Then said Saul to his servant, † Well said; come, let us go. So they went unto the city where the man of God was.

† Heb.
in the ascent of the city.

11 ¶ And as they went up † the hill to the city, they found young maidens going out to draw water, and said unto them, Is the seer here?

12 And they answered them, and said,

7. — what shall we bring the man?] It was not only the ancient custom in Eastern countries to approach men of rank with presents of some kind or other, but the custom is preserved with great strictness to this day. Mr. Maundrell says, "He visited no bashaw or great person without this previous respect, as it was accounted uncivil in those countries, to make such a visit without an offering in hand. All such persons expect it, as a tribute due to their character, deeming themselves affronted, and even defrauded, when this compliment is omitted. Even in familiar visits among inferiour people, you seldom observe them coming without bringing some flower or orange, or other token of respect to the person visited. The Turks in this respect keep up the ancient Oriental custom hinted in 1 Sam. ix. 7, which is to be understood in conformity to this usage, as denoting a token of respect, and not a price of divination." Pyle. Presents are considered essential to humane and civil intercourse in the East: whether they consist of dates or of diamonds, they form so customary a part of Eastern manners, that without them an inferiour will never be at peace in his own mind, or think that he has hold of his superiour for protection. Bruce.

9. — for he that is now called a Prophet &c.] The word now refers to the time when this book was written, probably the latter part of Samuel's life. The verse explains that, at the time when Saul was appointed king, the Hebrew word Roch, "a seer of secret things," was usually applied to inspired persons; but that afterwards the word Nabi, or "prophet," (which had been very anciently known, as appears from the books of Moses,) came into common use. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. The word Nabi, "prophet," was in use in the time of Moses or Abraham; see Gen. xx. 7; but then it only implied, a man favoured of God: whereas, in the time of Samuel, it was appropriated to one who foresaw future events. Dr. Gray. It is remarkable, that the title seer occurs principally, if not altogether, under the regal government of Israel; the first time we meet with it being in this passage, with reference to the Prophet Samuel. Fragments to Calmet.

He is; behold, he is before you: make haste now, for he came to day to the city; for there is a || sacrifice of the people to day in the high place:

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.
|| Or, feast.

13 As soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because he doth bless the sacrifice; and afterwards they eat that be bidden. Now therefore get you up; for about † this time ye shall find him.

† Heb.
to day.

14 And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out against them, for to go up to the high place.

15 ¶ Now the LORD had † told Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying,

b Chap. 15.
1.
Acts 13.
21.

16 To morrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be captain over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have looked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me.

† Heb. revealed the ear of Samuel.

17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the LORD said unto him, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall † reign over my people.

† Heb.
restrain in.

12. — a sacrifice — to day] Either at some solemn festival, (some imagine that of the new moon,) or upon some special occasion of prayer and thanksgiving to God.

— in the high place:] Or greatest eminency of the hill, on which the city stood; where it is probable that Samuel built, by God's direction, the altar mentioned at chap. vii. 17. Dr. Wells. The sacrifices were to be offered regularly, in the place which the Lord should choose. But while this choice remained suspended, because Shiloh was laid desolate, and no other place was appointed, the sacrifices were offered in places where was neither tabernacle nor ark. Afterwards, when the ark was settled, it became unlawful to offer sacrifices in high places. In several places of Scripture the Canaanites are said to have had their high places, on which they worshipped their idols; but this is the first instance of any belonging to the people of God. It is the opinion of some learned persons, that this appointment of a private place of worship, by so great an authority as that of Samuel, gave rise to the institution of synagogues in aftertimes. Bp. Patrick.

13. — doth bless the sacrifice;] The feast after the sacrifice: the greater part of that which was offered belonged to him who made the offering, and on this he entertained his friends. The expression of "blessing the sacrifice" alludes to the custom among the Hebrews, of giving thanks before their meals. Locke.

16. — that he may save my people] Saul, as will appear in 1 Sam. xiii. xiv. gained great advantages over the Philistines in the beginning of his reign, and prevented their giving disturbance to the Israelites. He also waged successful war against the Ammonites, Amalekites, Moabites, &c. Calmet.

17. — shall reign] The word which we translate reign signifies something of coercion and restraint, as is observed in the margin: it denotes, that he should rule them with an absolute uncontrollable power, sternly and rigidly, after the manner of the Eastern monarchs; which was designed to punish them for throwing off the mild and gentle government of God. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is.

19 And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the seer: go up before me unto the high place; for ye shall eat with me to day, and to morrow I will let thee go, and will tell thee all that is in thine heart.

† Heb. to day three days.

20 And as for thine asses that were lost † three days ago, set not thy mind on them; for they are found. And on whom is all the desire of Israel? Is it not on thee, and on all thy father's house?

21 And Saul answered and said, Am not I a Benjamite, of the smallest of the tribes of Israel? and my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? wherefore then speakest thou † so to me?

† Heb.
according to this word?

22 And Samuel took Saul and his servant, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the chiefest place among them that were bidden, which were about thirty persons.

23 And Samuel said unto the cook, Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee.

24 And the cook took up the shoulder, and that which was upon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold that which is || left! set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time hath it been kept for thee since I said, I have invited the people. So Saul did eat with Samuel that day.

|| Or,
reserved.

25 ¶ And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon the top of the house.

20. — on whom is all the desire &c.] The meaning is, All Israel desire a king, and there is none fitter for it than thyself, and God is resolved to advance thy family. Bp. Patrick. The word "desire" is used for that affection with which the people are actuated towards an intended king or governour, even before they have any actual knowledge of his person. Dr. Berriman.

24. — took up the shoulder,] The shoulder of a lamb is esteemed a peculiar delicacy in the East: Josephus says, that it was called the royal portion. It is there eaten covered over with butter and milk. The sacred historian perhaps alludes to this, when he mentions "that which was upon it," an expression which an European reader may well be at a loss to understand. Harmer.

25. — communed — upon the top of the house.] This passage is perfectly agreeable to Eastern customs. See note on Deut. xxii. 8. It appears that Samuel conversed with Saul for coolness on the housetop in the evening; and in the morning, ver. 26, he called Saul, who lodged there all night, and was not stirring. Harmer.

Chap. X. ver. 1. — took a vial of oil,] Samuel did this, apparently, not from any special command, but either in compliance with the customs of other nations in anointing their kings, or according to the ancient usages of his own nation, in the designation of things or persons to any particular and extraordinary purposes. Thus pillars were anointed, as reverential memorials, Gen. xxviii. 18, and xxxv. 14. So the priests were anointed, also the sacred

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

26 And they arose early: and it came to pass about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, saying, Up, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel, abroad.

27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid the servant pass on before us, (and he passed on,) but stand thou still † a while, that I may shew thee the word of God.

† Heb. to day.

CHAP. X.

1 Samuel anointeth Saul. 2 He confirmeth him by prediction of three signs. 9 Saul's heart is changed, and he prophesieth. 14 He concealeth the matter of the kingdom from his uncle. 17 Saul is chosen at Mizpeh by lot. 26 The different affections of his subjects.

THEN Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said, Is it not because the LORD hath anointed thee to be captain over his inheritance?

2 When thou art departed from me to day, then thou shalt find two men by ^a Rachel's sepulchre in the border of Benjamin at Zelzah; and they will say unto thee, The asses which thou wentest to seek are found: and, lo, thy father hath left † the care of the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son?

^a Gen. 35.
20.

3 Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain of Tabor, and there shall meet thee three men going up to God to Beth-el, one car-

† Heb. the business.

utensils of the tabernacle, and accordingly kings; not by any express command, but by an usage, as expressive of the forementioned purpose. Pyle. Though we read of no express command for the anointing of kings, yet it is plain, from the parable of Jotham, Judg. ix. 8, that this was a custom 200 years before this time. As Samuel was no priest, it is probable that he made use of common oil, and not of the sacred oil, on this occasion. Bp. Patrick.

— kissed him,] In token of subjection or reverence to him: according to the custom of the most ancient times, Gen. xli. 40; and of those which followed, Ps. ii. 12. The Jews call it the kiss of homage. Bp. Patrick.

2. When thou art departed &c.] To confirm the truth and authority of what he said and did, Samuel tells him what was to happen to him in the way home to his father, in several instances. Pyle.

— by Rachel's sepulchre] It is related at Gen. xxxv. 20, that Jacob raised a pillar over the grave of Rachel. We need not infer that this same pillar was actually standing in the days of Samuel, but only that the place retained the name of Rachel's sepulchre. Dr. Wells. See note at Gen. xxxv. 20.

3. — the plain of Tabor,] Not near the famous mountain of that name, but a place called Elon-tabor, southeast of Ramah. Dr. Wells.

— Beth-el,] This had been a religious place ever since the

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.

† Heb.
ask thee of
peace.

rying three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine :

4 And they will † salute thee, and give thee two loaves of bread ; which thou shalt receive of their hands.

5 After that thou shalt come to the hill of God, where is the garrison of the Philistines : and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city, that thou shalt meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place with a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp, before them ; and they shall prophesy :

6 And the Spirit of the Lord will come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into another man.

† Heb.
it shall come to pass, that when these signs, &c.

† Heb.
do for thee
as thine hand shall find.
Chap. 13.
8.

7 And † let it be, when these signs are come unto thee, † that thou do as occasion serve thee ; for God is with thee.

8 And thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal ; and, behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt offerings, and to sacrifice sacrifices of peace offerings : ^b seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do.

† Heb. shoulder.
† Heb. turned.

9 ¶ And it was so, that when he had turned his † back to go from Samuel, God † gave him another heart : and all those signs came to pass that day.

10 And when they came thither to the hill, behold, a company of prophets met him ; and the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them.

11 And it came to pass, when all that knew him beforetime saw that, behold, he prophesied among the prophets, then the people said † one to another, What is this that is come unto the son of Kish ? ^c Is Saul also among the prophets ?

Before
CHRIST
about 1095.
† Heb.
a man to his neighbour.
Chap. 19.
24.
† Heb.
from thence.

12 And one † of the same place answered and said, But who is their father ? Therefore it became a proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets ?

13 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

14 ¶ And Saul's uncle said unto him and to his servant, Whither went ye ? And he said, To seek the asses : and when we saw that they were no where, we came to Samuel.

15 And Saul's uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said unto you.

16 And Saul said unto his uncle, He told us plainly that the asses were found. But of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, he told him not.

17 ¶ And Samuel called the people together unto the LORD to Mizpeh ;

18 And said unto the children of Israel, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel ; I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you :

19 And ye have this day rejected your God, who himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations ; and ye have said unto him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes, and by your thousands.

days of Jacob, as if, by God's appearance to him there, it had been consecrated to prayer and sacrifice. As the ark was now without any determined place, they sacrificed here, as well as in other high places. Bp. Patrick.

5. — the hill of God,] So called, because they were wont to sacrifice there ; or because a school of the Prophets, called the men of God, was there.

— a company of prophets coming down] By prophets are meant, persons settled for the instruction of youth in the laws of God, and the duties of religion. They were probably returning from sacrifice, praising God for His benefits with variety of instrumental musick, as the word prophecy sometimes signifies. Bp. Patrick.

It hence appears, that the great estimation in which the ministers of their religion were held among the Jews, was derived from them to their enemies the Philistines, who dwelt upon their skirts ; insomuch that, in a garrison of the Philistines, there was a college of Prophets, newly instituted by Samuel, unharmed and undisturbed, though they were enemies to the nation : also, when Dav. I fled from Saul, 1 Sam. xix. 18, he came to Naioth, where the Prophets dwelt, and thought to take sanctuary there, knowing it was a privileged place. Bp. Jer. Taylor.

6 — thou shalt prophesy with them,] Thou shalt be suddenly inspired with such thoughts and affections, as to become like one of them ; able in an instant to compose hymns in honour of God, and to adapt them to melodies, which thou hast never learnt. Bp. Patrick.

9. — gave him another heart :] Wrought a sensible change in him by these new abilities which He infused into his heart. Bp. Hall.

10. — the Spirit of God came upon him,] It is worthy of observation, that "the Spirit of the Lord, which came upon Saul, and turned him into another man," as foretold by Samuel, ver. 6, by no means interfered with his freewill or free agency ; he was still free "to act as occasion should serve," or require, chap. x. 7 ; and accordingly, when his uncle wanted him to tell what the Prophet had said unto him, he mentioned the finding of the asses, but "of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, he told him not," chap. x. 16. He followed the dictates of his own prudence on this occasion, as afterwards, in "holding his peace," when insulted by the seditious. But he was still at liberty to "grieve the Spirit," and even to "quench the Spirit," and to be possessed, on the contrary, with an evil spirit from the Lord, when he lost that modesty and humility which first recommended him, and became envious, jealous, cruel, and tyrannical. Dr. Hales.

12. — But who is their father ?] Their wonder was presently satisfied by a prudent person among them, who bade them consider who it was that made the Prophets ; not men, nor education merely, but God alone ; who, being the Father of all the children or disciples of the Prophets, could impart the spirit of prophecy to any one whom He pleased. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1095.

20 And when Samuel had caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was taken.

21 When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken: and when they sought him, he could not be found.

22 Therefore they enquired of the LORD further, if the man should yet come thither. And the LORD answered, Behold, he hath hid himself among the stuff.

23 And they ran and fetched him thence: and when he stood among the people, he was higher than any of the people from his shoulders and upward.

24 And Samuel said to all the people, See ye him whom the LORD hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? And all the people shouted, and said, †God save the king.

† Heb.
Let the king
live.

25 Then Samuel told the people the manner of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house.

26 ¶ And Saul also went home to Gibeah; and there went with him a band of men, whose hearts God had touched.

¶ Or, he was as though he had been deaf.

27 But the children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents. But ¶ he held his peace.

20. — the tribe of Benjamin was taken.] A similar phrase was used at Josh. vii. 16, respecting the discovery of the person who had offended in the accursed thing; and it is generally supposed to have been done by the casting of lots. Bp. Patrick.

25. — and wrote it in a book,] Josephus says, that Samuel here wrote down the evils which were to befall the Israelites in consequence of their choosing a king, and laid up the writing in the tabernacle, to be a memorial of the truth of his predictions to future ages. Some think that he merely recorded the solemn election of Saul; and others, (with more probability perhaps,) that he recorded the rules and principles, according to which the king was constitutionally to govern. Calmet.

26. — went home to Gibeah;] Called Gibeah of Benjamin, being in the tribe of Benjamin; and Gibeah of Saul, being the native place of Saul, and afterwards his royal seat. It lay north of Jerusalem between twenty and thirty furlongs. It stood on a hill, as the name imports. Dr. Wells.

— whose hearts God had touched.] Whom God inclined to follow him as his guard: or who were moved perhaps by the authority of Samuel (the man of God) to go and attend him.

27. — children of Belial] Some lewd wicked men, who had no regard to the Divine appointment, and either hated all government, or, being men of quality themselves, and proud, were vexed to see one of so mean a family set up for king. Dr. Wells.

— brought him no presents.] It was a constant custom among the Eastern nations, and is even to this day, whenever they approach the prince, to make him some present; and especially this was the proper method of recognising Saul on his first accession to the throne. Stackhouse.

CHAP. XI.

Before
CHRIST
1095.

1 Nahash offereth them of Jabesh-gilead a reproachful condition. 4 They send messengers, and are delivered by Saul. 12 Saul thereby is confirmed, and his kingdom renewed.

THEN Nahash the Ammonite came up, and encamped against Jabesh-gilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee.

2 And Nahash the Ammonite answered them, On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right eyes, and lay it for a reproach upon all Israel.

3 And the elders of Jabesh said unto him, † Give us seven days' respite, that we may send messengers unto all the coasts of Israel: and then, if there be no man to save us, we will come out to thee.

† Heb.
Forbear us.

4 ¶ Then came the messengers to Gibeah of Saul, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and all the people lifted up their voices, and wept.

5 And, behold, Saul came after the herd out of the field; and Saul said, What aieth the people that they weep? And they told him the tidings of the men of Jabesh.

6 And the Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly.

7 And he took a yoke of oxen, and hewed them in pieces, and sent them

Chap. XI. ver. 2. — thrust out all your right eyes,] The reason why Nahash thrust out their right eyes was, not only to bring a reproach on Israel, as himself declares, but also to disable them from serving in war; for, as the manner of fighting in those days was chiefly with bow and arrow, sword and shield, the loss of the right eye made them incapable of either. Yet this barbarous king thought it not proper to put out both their eyes, for then he would have made them less serviceable to himself as slaves, and less able to pay him the tribute which he expected. Stackhouse. The loss of eyes is a punishment regularly inflicted in the East on rebels, &c. to this day. Mr. Hanway, in his journey in Persia, gives very striking instances of this practice. Fragments to Calmet. See Jer. xxxix. 7, and the note there.

The king of the Ammonites attacked the Israelites most unjustly, and wished to impose on them the most barbarous and shameful conditions; but God punished, ver. 11, the haughtiness and cruelty of that prince, and proved that His providence humbles the proud and the oppressor. Ostervald.

5. — came after the herd out of the field;] It hence appears, that Saul now lived retired in rustick occupations, exercising no authority over the people, but leaving all to the management of Samuel. Bp. Patrick.

7. — he took a yoke of oxen, &c.] Saul on this occasion gives proof of his resolution, and assumes, for the first time, the exercise of his authority, which was not acknowledged by "the children of Belial," chap. x. 27, till he enforced it by his determined conduct, and by his threatening to destroy the oxen of those who did not support him.

Before
CHRIST
1095.† Heb.
as one man.|| Or,
deliverance.

throughout all the coasts of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying, Whosoever cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall it be done unto his oxen. And the fear of the Lord fell on the people, and they came out † with one consent.

8 And when he numbered them in Bezek, the children of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand.

9 And they said unto the messengers that came, Thus shall ye say unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, To morrow, by that time the sun be hot, ye shall have || help. And the messengers came and shewed it to the men of Jabesh; and they were glad.

10 Therefore the men of Jabesh said, To morrow we will come out unto you, and ye shall do with us all that seemeth good unto you.

11 And it was so on the morrow, that Saul put the people in three companies; and they came into the midst of the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day: and it came to pass, that they which remained were scattered, so that two of them were not left together.

8. — the men of Judah] It is observable, that the tribe of Judah are here mentioned separately from the rest; this appears to be a peculiar honour done to this tribe, as having preeminence over the rest. Bp. Patriek.

13. — not a man be put to death] An instance this of great moderation, and fit to be imitated by all who have enemies in their power. Bp. Wilson.

14. — renew the kingdom there.] There ratify and establish Saul in the possession of his throne. Pyle.

15. — they made Saul king] The mode in which Saul was made king is peculiarly remarkable; the people retained such reverence for their God, and such confidence in their Prophet, that they did not attempt to elect a king themselves, but waited for the Divine appointment. In this appointment, care was taken to preserve in its full force the Divine government originally established over the Jews. A king was elected by the express declaration of the Divine oracle, raised from an obscure family, chap. ix. 21, so that he himself, as well as the entire nation, should know and feel, that he derived his authority solely from that appointment, chap. x. 25. The rules and forms too of the regal government were prescribed by the Prophet; which proves that the executive power alone was confided to this vicegerent of Jehovah, who still reserved to Himself all legislative authority. Nor was the solemn inauguration of the new monarch completed, until God by a miracle had convinced the people of His displeasure at the criminal motives in which their demand of a king had originated, chap. xii. 16; and thus filled them with terror, humbled them to repentance, and led them to confess their crime, and implore pardon and a continuance of the Divine protection. Dr. Graves.

Chap. XII. ver. 1. And Samuel said unto all Israel,] Samuel's spirited justification of his conduct before all Israel is an admirable composition. He first challenges them to adduce any instance of oppression, fraud, or bribery, on his part, while he judged Israel; that he and his sons both stood before the tribunal of the publick, ready to await their sentence: and when the people ex-12 ¶ And the people said unto Samuel, Who is he that said, Shall Saul reign over us? bring the men, that we may put them to death.

13 And Saul said, There shall not a man be put to death this day: for to day the Lord hath wrought salvation in Israel.

14 Then said Samuel to the people, Come, and let us go to Gilgal, and renew the kingdom there.

15 And all the people went to Gilgal; and there they made Saul king before the Lord in Gilgal; and there they sacrificed sacrifices of peace offerings before the Lord; and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced greatly.

CHAP. XII.

1 Samuel testifieth his integrity. 6 He reproveth the people of ingratitude. 16 He terrifieth them with thunder in harvest time. 20 He comforteth them in God's mercy.

AND Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made a king over you.

2 And now, behold, the king walketh before you: and I am old and grayheaded; and, behold, my sons are with you: and I pressly acknowledged his integrity, he then reminded them of the servitudes they had incurred for forgetting or forsaking God; and the deliverers, whom God, on their repentance, occasionally raised up to them, such as Jerubbaal, Bedan, Jephthah, and Samuel. And he concluded by threatening them with the Divine chastisements upon them and their king, whom the Lord had granted to them, if they should rebel any more against Him: and to mark the Divine displeasure at their proceedings, and also his own power with God, he called down thunder and rain from heaven at the unusual season of wheat harvest. And when "all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samuel" His Prophet, and besought him to intercede for them, that their lives might be spared, he kindly encouraged them to trust in the Lord, notwithstanding this additional crime of asking a king; and he still assured them of his intercession in their behalf, and of his services as their civil judge and teacher, for that the omission would be a sin on his own part. This illustrious Prophet, like his predecessor Moses, was mighty to intercede for his backsliding people, and has placed the duty of publick intercession on its firmest basis, the sin incurred by neglecting it on the part of the ministers of religion, and of the guardians of the state. Dr. Hales. The bright example of Samuel's integrity, in the execution of his office as a magistrate, appears in the confident but modest appeal which he makes to the people, touching his conduct; but more especially in that publick and unanimous testimony by them given to the uprightness and justice of his administration, and the unspotted purity of his life. In the excellent but uncommon example of Samuel's resigning his office with a clear conscience and unblemished reputation, every private Christian may also find a noble pattern for his imitation. No man, in God's family, is without some office; every one is either in, or under authority, either as a magistrate to command and govern, or as a subject to obey. And whereas every relation infers a duty peculiar thereto, so the faithful discharge of that duty is the obedience we owe to our common Lord and Master. Wogan.

2. — behold, my sons are with you:] He seems to mean, that

Before
CHRIST
1095.

Before CHRIST 1095. have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.

^a Eccl^{us} 46. 19. 3 Behold, ^a here I am: witness against me before the LORD, and before his anointed: whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hand have I received any † bribe || to blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you.

† Heb. ransom.
|| Or, that I should hide mine eyes at him.

4 And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.

5 And he said unto them, The LORD is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that ye have not found ought in my hand. And they answered, He is witness.

|| Or, made.

6 ¶ And Samuel said unto the people, It is the LORD that || advanced Moses and Aaron, and that brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt.

7 Now therefore stand still, that I may reason with you before the LORD of all the † righteous acts of the LORD, which he did † to you and to your fathers.

† Heb. righteousnesses, or, benefis.
† Heb. with.

^b Gen. 46. 5, 6.
^c Exod. 4. 16.

8 ^b When Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers cried unto the LORD, then the LORD ^c sent Moses and Aaron, which brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place.

^c Judges 4. 2.

9 And when they forgot the LORD their God, ^d he sold them into the hand of Sisera, captain of the host of Hazor, and into the hand of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them.

10 And they cried unto the LORD, and said, We have sinned, because we have forsaken the LORD, and have served Baalim and Ashtaroth: but now deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee.

Before CHRIST 1095.

11 And the LORD sent Jerubbaal, and Bedan, and ^e Jephthah, and Samuel, and delivered you out of the hand of your enemies on every side, and ye dwelled safe.

^e Judg. 11. 1.

12 And when ye saw that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon came against you, ye said unto me, Nay; but a king shall reign over us: when the LORD your God was your king.

13 Now therefore behold the king whom ye have chosen, and whom ye have desired! and, behold, the LORD hath set a king over you.

14 If ye will fear the LORD, and serve him, and obey his voice, and not rebel against the † commandment of the LORD, then shall both ye and also the king that reigneth over you † continue following the LORD your God:

† Heb. mouth.

† Heb. be after.

15 But if ye will not obey the voice of the LORD, but rebel against the commandment of the LORD, then shall the hand of the LORD be against you, as it was against your fathers.

16 ¶ Now therefore stand and see this great thing, which the LORD will do before your eyes.

17 Is it not wheat harvest to day? I will call unto the LORD, and he shall send thunder and rain; that ye may perceive and see that your wickedness is great, which ye have done in the sight of the LORD, in asking you a king.

18 So Samuel called unto the LORD; and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day: and all the people greatly feared the LORD and Samuel.

the sons of whom they complained (see chap. viii. 5) are now in their hands, deprived of their publick station, reduced to the rank of subjects to the king, like the rest of the people, and punishable before his tribunal according to their deserts. Dr. Wall.

3. Behold, here I am: witness against me] While we contemplate the unspotted conduct of the Prophet, even from his childhood to his gray hairs, we cannot but admire the undaunted courage of his innocence; and how happy must that man be, to whose integrity both his conscience and the world bear testimony. Wogan.

7. — righteous acts] By “righteous acts” are here meant the acts of grace and favour which God had shewn towards them in all His dispensations, even those of correction and judgment. His severest judgments are intended to reform vice, and to confirm virtue; not to destroy His people, but to amend them; and to improve their graces and to increase their rewards. Wogan.

11. — and Bedan.] It is remarkable that there is no such name as Bedan mentioned in the book of Judges. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps Barak may be meant. Dr. Hales.

17. Is it not wheat harvest to day?] The harvest in Judea began about the end of June or the beginning of July, in which season thunder and rain were never known: the seasons of rain are only in the spring and autumn, the one called the former, the other the latter rain. Therefore Samuel, by this preamble, “Is it not wheat harvest to day?” meant to signify the greatness of the miracle which God was about to work; namely, that He could in an instant, and at a time when they least of all expected it, deprive them of all the comforts of life, as they justly deserved, for their great wickedness in rejecting Him and His Prophet. Stackhouse.

The former rain is the first that falls in autumn after a long summer's drought, which is usually terminated in Judea and the neighbouring countries by heavy showers that last for some days. In Judea, according to Dr. Shaw, who must have learnt it by inquiries from the inhabitants of the country, the beginning of November is the time of the first descent of rain; though in other parts of Syria it happens sooner. The latter rain is that which generally comes about the middle of April; after which it seldom or never rains during the whole summer. And therefore when, at the prayer of Samuel, the Lord sent thunder and rain in the time of wheat harvest, such an unusual phenomenon, happening immediately according to the Prophet's prediction, was justly considered as an authentick sign of his having spoken by the Divine authority. Dr. Blayney.

— your wickedness is great.] See note from Bp. Horsley on Hosea xiii. 11.

18. — feared the Lord and Samuel.] They feared lest God should destroy them for their presumption, and lest Samuel should not intercede for them, on account of the affront they had put upon him by asking a king. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1095.

19 And all the people said unto Samuel, Pray for thy servants unto the LORD thy God, that we die not: for we have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king.

20 ¶ And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have done all this wickedness: yet turn not aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart;

21 And turn ye not aside: for then should ye go after vain things, which can not profit nor deliver; for they are vain.

22 For the LORD will not forsake his people for his great name's sake: because it hath pleased the LORD to make you his people.

† Heb. from ceasing.

23 Moreover as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the LORD † in ceasing to pray for you: but I will teach you the good and the right way:

24 Only fear the LORD, and serve him in truth with all your heart: for consider || how great things he hath done for you.

|| Or, what a great thing,
&c.

25 But if ye shall still do wickedly, ye shall be consumed, both ye and your king.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Saul's selected band. 3 He calleth the Hebrews to Gilgal against the Philistines, whose garrison Jonathan had smitten. 5 The Philistines' great host. 6 The distress of the Israelites. 8 Saul, weary of staying for Samuel, sacrificeth. 11 Samuel reproveth him. 17 The three spoiling bands of the Philistines. 19 The policy of the Philistines, to suffer no smith in Israel.

† Heb.
the son of one year in his reigning.

SAUL † reigned one year; and when he had reigned two years over Israel,

19. — we have added — this evil, to ask us a king.] How clearly does the whole transaction respecting the Israelites' asking a king illustrate in all its circumstances the nature of that government, which God exercised over His people, and shew how admirably it was adapted to their situation and character! It exhibits, not the overwhelming violence of resistless power, but the steady, yet mild control of parental authority, correcting this wayward people with necessary strictness, yet attentive to their feelings, indulgent even to their weaknesses, ever ready to hear their supplications, and accept their penitence. While in the people we perceive a puerile turn of mind, easily caught by outward shew, and breaking forth into tumultuous applause, at beholding the stature and beauty of their new sovereign, chap. x. 23, 24; rather weak and inconstant in their moral and religious character, than obstinately impious and depraved; often inattentive to the guardian hand of Providence, but never deliberately rejecting the authority of their heavenly King. On the contrary, when their reflection is roused, and their seriousness awakened, by a sensible proof of the Divine displeasure, chap. xii. 16—19, they, as it should seem, humbly confess and deeply lament their transgressions, acknowledge gratefully the past mercies of their God, deprecate His wrath with heartfelt terror, and engage for their own future obedience with heartfelt sincerity. Such appears the real character of the Jewish people; such the nature of that discipline, and the degree of that control which the wisdom of God exercised over them, as sufficient for securing the great objects of the Divine dispensations. Dr. Graves.

21. — vain things,] False gods or idols.

Before
CHRIST
1093.

2 Saul chose him three thousand men of Israel; whereof two thousand were with Saul in Michmash and in mount Beth-el, and a thousand were with Jonathan in Gibeah of Benjamin: and the rest of the people he sent every man to his tent.

3 And Jonathan smote the garrison of the Philistines that was in || Geba, and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, Let the Hebrews hear. || Or,
the hill.

4 And all Israel heard say that Saul had smitten a garrison of the Philistines, and that Israel also † was had in abomination with the Philistines. And the people were called together after Saul to Gilgal. † Heb.
did stink.

5 ¶ And the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand which is on the sea shore in multitude: and they came up, and pitched in Michmash, eastward from Beth-aven.

6 When the men of Israel saw that they were in a strait, (for the people were distressed,) then the people did hide themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in high places, and in pits.

7 And some of the Hebrews went over Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul, he was yet in Gilgal, and all the people † followed him trembling.

† Heb.
trembled
after him.
Chap. 10.
8.

8 ¶ And he tarried seven days, according to the set time that Samuel had ap-

23. — God forbid that I should sin — in ceasing to pray for you:] Samuel counted it a sin to cease to pray, even for those who had entreated him ill. His love and zeal for them were not diminished, but increased, by their ingratitude. He saw it the more necessary to “teach them the good and right way,” because they had forsaken it, and to offer up his prayers for them, because they had offended God and done wickedly. Christian parents and masters, as well as Christian priests and divines, should study and practise this excellent pattern. They should reprove, if it be necessary, those under their care, with sharpness and authority; but at the same time, in the spirit of the good Samuel, should never cease to instruct them and to pray for them. Wogan.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. Saul reigned one year; &c.] Interpreters are much divided in their interpretation of this passage. The sense seems to be this: that Saul had reigned one year when that happened which is related in the foregoing chapter; namely, Samuel's convening the people, and reproving them. Then the history proceeds to relate what afterwards passed; namely, that when he had reigned two years, he “chose three thousand men &c.” Wogan.

5. — thirty thousand chariots,] This number appears prodigious: the Syriack and Arabick Versions have 3000, instead of 30,000, which is probably the true reading; and even then we must suppose, that under the name of chariots are included carriages of every description which attended the army. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

^{Before CHRIST 1093.} pointed: but Samuel came not to Gilgal; and the people were scattered from him.

9 And Saul said, Bring hither a burnt offering to me, and peace offerings. And he offered the burnt offering.

10 And it came to pass, that as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, behold, Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might † salute him.

† Heb. bless him.

11 ¶ And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed, and that the Philistines gathered themselves together at Michmash;

12. — I forced myself therefore, &c.] This excuse of Saul's carries a plausible appearance; but, at the bottom, it is nothing more than his setting up his own discretion and conduct against the positive command of God: for God was Governour in chief of the affairs of Israel, and Saul had nothing to fear from the Philistines, so long as he obeyed His orders. Saul's piety on this occasion was merely pretended: for when he prayed to God to prosper his undertaking in a way which was contrary to His own clear revelation, his conduct was so far from deserving the name of piety, that it was a direct affront on His infinite wisdom. Reading.

13. — Thou hast done foolishly: &c.] The command which Samuel had given to Saul when he anointed him, chap. x. 8, was, to come to Gilgal to offer sacrifice, to wait for him there seven days, and to act by his direction. Saul transgressed every part of this command, in offering the sacrifice himself which should have been offered only by the Prophet; in not waiting till the end of the seventh day, but offering on the morning of that day; and in intending to begin the war without any direction from Samuel. Thus he broke the commandment of God, which was expressly given to prove his trust in God's word, and his obedience to the law, and obtruded himself, without authority, on the office of the priest; herein giving proof of a presumptuous and impatient temper. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. Probably Samuel came not within the time appointed, on purpose, perhaps, to prove the faith and patience of Saul. Dr. Hales. Saul, impatient and weak in faith, snatched at the seeming advantage of the moment, and shrunk not from purchasing it at the price of disobedience. He called for burnt offerings and peace offerings. Scarcely had he made an end of offering when Samuel arrived. Saul endeavoured partly to extenuate, partly to vindicate, his conduct, and pleaded the critical emergency. The Prophet cut off at once all excuses by a declaration, to which the understanding and conscience of the king immediately bore witness, "Thou hast done foolishly." Gisborne. God would have us adhere inviolably to what He commands, and not depart from it on any pretence whatever. We must never seek excuses or make use of pleas when God commands; for nothing is more offensive to Him than disobedience to His orders. Ostervold.

— for ever.] Not strictly for ever, but for a long time, or as long as his posterity should remain: for God could not intend to establish the kingdom in Saul for ever, without contradicting the prophecy of Jacob, Genesis xlix. 10, who had promised the sceptre to the tribe of Judah. Bp. Patrick.

14. — the Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart,] God had not yet commanded David to lead His people, but He fully intended so to do, if Saul did not repent and obtain a pardon of Him for his offence: he had not yet provoked Him so far, as to have an irreversible sentence passed upon him: but the sen-

12 Therefore said I, The Philistines will ^{Before CHRIST 1093.} come down now upon me to Gilgal, and I have not † made supplication unto the LORD: I forced myself therefore, and offered a burnt offering. ^{† Heb. intreated the face.}

13 And Samuel said to Saul, Thou hast done foolishly: thou hast not kept the commandment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee: for now would the LORD have established thy kingdom upon Israel for ever.

14 But now thy kingdom shall not continue: the LORD hath sought him a man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him to be captain over his people, because thou hast not kept that which the LORD commanded thee.

tence might have been revoked if he had not persisted in his folly, and committed a much greater offence against the Divine Majesty in his war against Amalek. Bp. Patrick. David is here called "a man after God's own heart," because he acted in conformity to the main purpose of God's heart. He is so called, not on account of his private virtues, but of his publick conduct; not for a spotless purity of manners, but for his abhorrence of idolatry, and his strict adherence to the civil and religious laws of his country. Whoever exerted himself vigorously and effectually in upholding true religion, which was the great end and main design of the Divine government established over the Jews, might with the strictest propriety be called a man after God's own heart. Now this was the distinguishing excellence of David's life: he was a sincere and hearty lover of his country, a zealous observer of its laws in opposition to all idolatry, from which he kept himself and his people at the utmost distance. If any Christian writers have supposed that this title was the mark of moral perfection, and, in consequence of that, have exalted David's character into a standard of virtue, they have, with a very good meaning perhaps, done a very injudicious thing. Bp. Porteus. Whoever observes the occasion of this expression will find, that it ought to be taken principally in a comparative sense, and in reference to the conduct of Saul, whose transgression, in sparing Amalek, the Prophet Samuel was then reprovng; it means, that, in executing God's decrees against the idolatrous nations round about him, David would be more punctual, and not so remiss as Saul had been, and in this respect would conform to the Divine will, or be "the man after God's own heart." Stackhouse. "The man after God's own heart" stands in opposition to the character of Saul, who is described as acting foolishly, by breaking the commandment of God, and rejected by Him; that is, deprived of the succession to the crown in his family, on account of his folly, presumption, and disobedience. It therefore means, one who would act prudently, and obey the commandments of God delivered to him by His Prophets, and whom therefore God would thus far approve and continue to favour. There are therefore two senses, which are evidently implied in this character of a man after God's own heart; a man who would faithfully execute the will of God according as he was commanded; and one who, on that account, and so far, would be the object of His approbation. In one or other, or both, of these senses, we find the expression always used. Dr. Chardler. In a general and indefinite way of speaking, where the subject treated of is only the general relation of man to God, no one can be called "a man after God's own heart," but he who uses his best endeavours to imitate God's purity, as far as humanity will allow, in the uniform practice of every virtue: but, in the case of David, this character was not given for his private morals, but for his publick conduct, for his zeal especially in advancing the glory of the Divine government. Bp. Warburton.

Before
CHRIST
1033.

† Heb.
found.

15 And Samuel arose, and gat him up from Gilgal unto Gibeah of Benjamin. And Saul numbered the people that were † present with him, about six hundred men.

16 And Saul, and Jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, abode in Gibeah of Benjamin: but the Philistines encamped in Michmash.

17 ¶ And the spoilers came out of the camp of the Philistines in three companies: one company turned unto the way that leadeth to Ophrah, unto the land of Shual:

18 And another company turned the way to Beth-horon: and another company turned to the way of the border that looketh to the valley of Zeboim toward the wilderness.

19 ¶ Now there was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel: for the Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears:

20 But all the Israelites went down to the Philistines, to sharpen every man his share, and his coulter, and his ax, and his mattock.

† Heb.
a file with mouths.

† Heb.
to set.

21 Yet they had † a file for the mattocks, and for the coulters, and for the forks, and for the axes, and † to sharpen the goads.

22 So it came to pass in the day of battle, that there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan: but with Saul and with Jonathan his son was there found.

¶ Or, standing camp.

23 And the ¶ garrison of the Philistines went out to the passage of Michmash.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Jonathan, unwitting to his father, the priest, or the people, goeth and miraculously smiteth the Philistines' garrison. 15 A divine terror maketh them beat themselves. 17 Saul, not staying the priest's answer, setteth on them. 21 The captivated Hebrews, and the hidden Israelites, join against them. 24 Saul's unadvised adjuration hindereth the victory. 32 He restraineth the people from eating blood. 35 He buildeth an altar. 36 Jonathan, taken by lot, is saved by the people. 47 Saul's strength and family.

19. — there was no smith found &c.] Such was the miserable condition to which the tyranny of the Philistines had reduced the Israelites. By a similar policy the Chaldeans took away the smiths of the Israelites, 2 Kings xxiv. 14; Jer. xxiv. 1; xxix. 2; and Persenna obliged, by covenant, the Roman people to use no iron, except in tilling their fields. Bp. Patrick.

20. — down to the Philistines, &c.] Not to the country of the Philistines, which was distant, but to the garrisons which the Philistines held among them. Bp. Patrick.

23. — the passage of Michmash.] The passage which led to Michmash, and which it was thought necessary to secure. Dr. Wells.

NOW || it came to pass upon a day, that Jonathan the son of Saul said unto the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over to the Philistines' garrison, that is on the other side. But he told not his father.

Before
CHRIST
about 1087.
|| Or, there was a
day.

2 And Saul tarried in the uttermost part of Gibeah under a pomegranate tree which is in Migron: and the people that were with him were about six hundred men;

3 And Abiah, the son of Ahitub, ^a I-chabod's brother, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eli, the Lord's priest in Shiloh, wearing an ephod. And the people knew not that Jonathan was gone.

^a Chap. 4.
21.

4 ¶ And between the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over unto the Philistines' garrison, there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side: and the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Senelh.

5 The † forefront of the one was situate northward over against Michmash, and the other southward over against Gibeah.

† Heb.
tooth.

6 And Jonathan said to the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over unto the garrison of these uncircumcised: it may be that the Lord will work for us: for there is no restraint to the Lord ^b to save by many or by few.

^b 2 Chron.
14. 11.

7 And his armourbearer said unto him, Do all that is in thine heart: turn thee; behold, I am with thee according to thy heart.

8 Then said Jonathan, Behold, we will pass over unto these men, and we will discover ourselves unto them.

9 If they say thus unto us, † Tarry until we come to you; then we will stand still in our place, and will not go up unto them.

† Heb.
Be still.

10 But if they say thus, Come up unto us; then we will go up: for ^c the Lord hath delivered them into our hand: and this shall be a sign unto us.

^c 1 Macc.
4. 30.

11 And both of them discovered themselves unto the garrison of the Philistines:

Chap. XIV. ver. 1. — that is on the other side.] On the other side of "the passage of Michmash," mentioned in the last verse. This attempt of Jonathan's would have been rash and criminal, as he had no orders from his father, who commanded the army, if he had not been stirred to it by a Divine impulse. Bp. Patrick.

10. — this shall be a sign unto us.] This shall be a watchword to us, presaging our certain victory. Bp. Hall. Hence it appears, that the undertaking of Jonathan proceeded wholly from a Divine instinct, which had suggested to him what is contained in this and the foregoing verse, as a sign of what they were to do. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1087.

and the Philistines said, Behold, the Hebrews come forth out of the holes where they had hid themselves.

12 And the men of the garrison answered Jonathan and his armourbearer, and said, Come up to us, and we will shew you a thing. And Jonathan said unto his armourbearer, Come up after me: for the LORD hath delivered them into the hand of Israel.

13 And Jonathan climbed up upon his hands and upon his feet, and his armourbearer after him: and they fell before Jonathan; and his armourbearer slew after him.

¶ Or, half a furrow of an acre of land.

14 And that first slaughter, which Jonathan and his armourbearer made, was about twenty men, within as it were || an half acre of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow.

† Heb.
a trembling of God.

15 And there was trembling in the host, in the field, and among all the people: the garrison, and the spoilers, they also trembled, and the earth quaked: so it was † a very great trembling.

16 And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked; and, behold, the multitude melted away, and they went on beating down one another.

17 Then said Saul unto the people that were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armourbearer were not there.

18 And Saul said unto Ahiah, Bring hither the ark of God. For the ark of God was at that time with the children of Israel.

¶ Or, tumult.

19 ¶ And it came to pass, while Saul talked unto the priest, that the || noise that was in the host of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said unto the priest, Withdraw thine hand.

20 And Saul and all the people that were

15. — and the earth quaked:] Some think there was a real earthquake, which increased their fear; but it may be no more than a metaphorical expression for the great tumult into which they were thrown. Bp. Patrick.

16. — the multitude melted away.] The multitude of the Philistines grew less and less, from the confusion into which they were thrown. Dr. Wells.

18. — Bring hither the ark of God.] The ark mentioned here, as also at 2 Sam. xi. 11, is understood not to mean the ark of the covenant which contained the tables of the Decalogue, but another ark or chest, which was made for the convenience of carrying about the sacred ephod with the Urim and Thummim, that they might be able to consult God on any sudden emergency. Dr. Berriman.

23. — the battle passed over unto Beth-aven.] These words seem to imply that the fight continued till they came to this place, which lay westward from Michmash, chap. xiii. 5; and there the

Before
CHRIST
about 1087.

with him † assembled themselves, and they came to the battle: and, behold, † every man's sword was against his fellow, and there was a very great discomfiture.

† Heb. were cried
together.
¶ Judg. 7.
22.
2 Chron.
20. 23.

21 Moreover the Hebrews that were with the Philistines before that time, which went up with them into the camp from the country round about, even they also turned to be with the Israelites that were with Saul and Jonathan.

22 Likewise all the men of Israel which had hid themselves in mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they also followed hard after them in the battle.

23 So the LORD saved Israel that day: and the battle passed over unto Beth-aven.

24 ¶ And the men of Israel were distressed that day: for Saul had adjured the people, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food until evening, that I may be avenged on mine enemies. So none of the people tasted any food.

25 And all they of the land came to a wood; and there was honey upon the ground.

26 And when the people were come into the wood, behold, the honey dropped; but no man put his hand to his mouth: for the people feared the oath.

27 But Jonathan heard not when his father charged the people with the oath: wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it in an honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his eyes were enlightened.

28 Then answered one of the people, and said, Thy father straitly charged the people with an oath, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food this day. And the people were || faint.

¶ Or, weary.

29 Then said Jonathan, My father hath troubled the land: see, I pray you, how Philistines threw down their arms, and fled as fast as they could to their own country. Bp. Patrick.

24. — for Saul had adjured] As Saul's intention in making this adjuration was good, namely, to execute vengeance on the enemies of God and His people; so the matter of the obligation was not in itself unlawful, if he had not been so rigorous in the exclusion of food, without any exception for cases of necessity, and in obliging the people to it under pain of an accursed death, which was a punishment far exceeding the fault. Poole.

25. — there was honey upon the ground.] Which dropped from the hollow trees or the clefts of rocks, where bees make their combs in that country, as they do sometimes on the ground. Wild honey was so copious there, and flowed so plentifully, that it gave occasion to the hyperbolical expression in the book of Job, chap. xx. 17, of brooks or torrents of honey and butter. Bp. Patrick.

27. — and his eyes were enlightened.] He received new strength, by which all his senses were cheered and revived. Bp. Hall.

^{Before CHRIST about 1087.} mine eyes have been enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey.

30 How much more, if haply the people had eaten freely to day of the spoil of their enemies which they found? for had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines?

31 And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Aijalon: and the people were very faint.

32 And the people flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people did eat them with the blood.

^{* Lev. 7. 26. & 19. 26. Deut. 12. 16.}

33 ¶ Then they told Saul, saying, Behold, the people sin against the LORD, in that they eat with the blood. And he said, Ye have || transgressed: roll a great stone unto me this day.

^{|| Or, dealt treacherously.}

34 And Saul said, Disperse yourselves among the people, and say unto them, Bring me hither every man his ox, and every man his sheep, and slay them here, and eat; and sin not against the LORD in eating with the blood. And all the people brought every man his ox † with him that night, and slew them there.

^{† Heb. in his hand.}

35 And Saul built an altar unto the LORD: † the same was the first altar that he built unto the LORD.

^{† Heb. that altar he began to build unto the LORD.}

36 ¶ And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then said the priest, Let us draw near hither unto God.

37 And Saul asked counsel of God, Shall I go down after the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel? But he answered him not that day. ^{Before CHRIST about 1087.}

38 And Saul said, Draw ye near hither, all the † chief of the people: and know and see wherein this sin hath been this day. ^{Judg. 20. 2. † Heb. corners.}

39 For, as the LORD liveth, which saveth Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die. But there was not a man among all the people that answered him.

40 Then said he unto all Israel, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people said unto Saul, Do what seemeth good unto thee.

41 Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, || Give a perfect lot. And Saul and Jonathan were taken: but the people † escaped.

^{|| Or, Shew the innocent. † Heb. went forth.}

42 And Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken.

43 Then Saul said to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and, lo, I must die.

44 And Saul answered, God do so and more also: for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan.

45 And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: as the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not.

46 Then Saul went up from following the Philistines: and the Philistines went to their own place.

32. — did eat them with the blood.] For want of patience to dress their provisions in due form, they eat their flesh, half boiled and half roasted, with the blood not duly drained from it, contrary to the express injunction of their law, Levit. vii. 26; xix. 26; Deut. xv. 23; xii. 16. Pyle. It seems probable, that on this occasion the people, in their haste to satisfy their hunger, began eating the animals while there was some natural warmth in them, and the possibility of life remaining. Dr. J. Clarke.

33. — roll a great stone unto me this day.] He desires them to roll a great stone unto him, for the purpose of building an altar, as is related at ver. 35, in order that they might slaughter their animals on it before God, and under his own view; or else that the blood of the animal slaughtered might sooner run off, by its head hanging from the stone; for, before, they had been slaughtering their animals on the level ground, by which means the blood was so long in running off, that, in the impatience of their hunger, they could not wait for it.—“This day,” means “now,” “at this time.” Poole's Syn. Critic.

35. — built an altar unto the Lord.] To offer sacrifices of peace offerings, and to give thanks to God for this great victory; though others think it was a monument in the form of an altar, in remembrance of the Divine mercy in the late deliverance. Bp. Patrick.

38. — wherein this sin hath been] From God's not regarding his supplication, he concluded that some sin had been committed, which had provoked His displeasure. Bp. Patrick.

41. — Give a perfect lot.] The word “lot” is not in the original: but the Hebrew words signify give perfect, that is, declare who is innocent. Bp. Patrick.

45. — So the people rescued Jonathan.] By their petition to Saul, and also by earnest prayers to God, who perhaps signified to the high priest that He approved the people's desire, and annulled Saul's oath as rash and inconsiderate. Dr. Wells.

Saul's conduct on this memorable day was rash and impolitic in the extreme. Instead of trusting in the Lord to avenge him of his enemies, like his pious son Jonathan, he cursed any of the people, who would eat food until the evening, that nothing might interrupt the slaughter: but he “troubled the land” thereby, for the people, growing faint with hunger, were forced to transgress; and Jonathan would have suffered death for inadvertently incurring the curse, had not the people interfered in his favour. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
about 1037.

47 ¶ So Saul took the kingdom over Israel, and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children of Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of Zobah, and against the Philistines: and whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them.

¶ Or, wrought mightily.

48 And he gathered an host, and smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of them that spoiled them.

49 Now the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Ishui, and Melchishua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the firstborn Merab, and the name of the younger Michal:

50 And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the son of Ner, Saul's uncle.

51 And Kish was the father of Saul; and Ner the father of Abner was the son of Abiel.

52 And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul: and when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, he took him unto him.

CHAP. XV.

1 Samuel sendeth Saul to destroy Amalek. 6 Saul favoureth the Kenites. 8 He spareth Agag and the best of the spoil. 10 Samuel denounceth unto Saul, commending and excusing himself, God's rejection of him for his disobedience. 24 Saul's humiliation. 32 Samuel killeth Agag. 34 Samuel and Saul part.

52. — he took him unto him.] That is, he chose the best men for strength and courage to be his guards, and to be preferred in the army. Pyle.

Chap. XV. ver. 3. — go and smite Amalek, &c.] This heavy sentence was pronounced against the Amalekites long ago, Exod. xvii. 14; and renewed at the entrance of the Israelites into Canaan, with a charge not to forget it, Deut. xxv. 19: the order is now given to put it in execution. Bp. Patrick. It may justly be esteemed a question of some difficulty, whence it might come to pass that God should give so very severe a command. There certainly cannot happen any case, wherein it would be justifiable for any mortal power, upon his own authority, to take upon him to deal in such a manner with any enemy whatever. But God, who is the supreme Author and Lord of all, and who has an unquestioned right to take away that life which He Himself at first freely gave, and who alone can without error judge when a nation has filled up the measure of their iniquity, and who in the life to come can without respect of persons distinguish equitably the case of every individual person, which in the exemplary severity of a national judgment was not proper to be distinguished here; He may, very consistently with justice and equity, command such universal judgments to be inflicted, when and where He thinks fit: there being in reality no difference whether he commands a whole nation, without distinction of persons, to be destroyed in war, as in the present case of Amalek and that of the nations of Canaan; or whether He consumes them by a flood, as at the universal deluge; or by fire from heaven, as in the case of Sodom; or by a sudden earthquake, or by pestilential diseases, or by a natural death. All these things in the hand of God, who ruleth over all,

SAMUEL also said unto Saul, ^a The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the LORD.

Before
CHRIST
about 1079.
^a Chap. 9.
16.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel, ^b how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.

^b Exod. 17.
8.
Numb. 24.
20.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 And Saul gathered the people together, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah.

5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and laid wait in the valley.

6 ¶ And Saul said unto the Kenites, Go, depart, get you down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for ye shewed kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites.

¶ Or, fought.

7 And Saul smote the Amalekites from Havilah until thou comest to Shur, that is over against Egypt.

8 And he took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive, and utterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword.

9 But Saul and the people spared Agag, and who hath an undoubted power and right over that life which He Himself gave, and who in the world to come can make that exact distinction of persons, which there is no necessity should be made here; in His hand (I say) all these things are equally proper instruments of justice; and without all question He may destroy a wicked nation by what means He Himself thinks fit. Dr. S. Clarke. The severity of this sentence has given offence to infidels and false philanthropists; but without any just ground. The Amalekites had all along shewn the most determined and inveterate hostility towards the Israelites, by waylaying them, and prematurely attacking them, and joining their enemies, Deut. xxv. 18; Numb. xiv. 43; Judg. iii. 13, &c.; and, besides, were great sinners themselves, 1 Sam. xv. 18: but they were not cut off till their iniquity had come to the full, as was the case of the devoted nations in general, Gen. xv. 16; and after a respite of more than 400 years from the time when their sentence was first pronounced, Exod. xvii. 8; of which they could not be ignorant, but which they might have averted by repentance. They were therefore fit objects of the vengeance of the righteous Judge of all the earth, to be inflicted by the sword of the Israelites, the executioners of His decrees. Dr. Hales.

7. — from Havilah &c.] That is, the whole extent of the country of Arabia, of which Havilah was the boundary on the northeast, and Shur on the southwest. Bp. Patrick.

9. — spared Agag, &c.] In this Saul disobeyed the commandment of God, and followed his own fancy and affection, being either struck with admiration of the personal appearance of Agag, or else intending to lead him in triumph. Bp. Patrick. Here Saul was guilty of two very great faults: 1st, of covetousness, in about 1079.

Before
CHRIST

† Or, of the second test.

and the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile and refuse, that they destroyed utterly.

10 ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Samuel, saying,

11 It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is turned back from following me, and hath not performed my commandments. And it grieved Samuel; and he cried unto the LORD all night.

12 And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to Carmel, and, behold, he set him up a place, and is gone about, and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

13 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, Blessed be thou of the LORD: I have performed the commandment of the LORD.

14 And Samuel said, What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?

15 And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

16 Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, preserving for himself the best of all those spoils which God had expressly commanded to be utterly destroyed; 2dly, of vanity and ostentation, in taking Agag the king of Amalek alive, and bringing him with him in triumph, when God had peremptorily commanded him to destroy them all. Dr. S. Clarke.

11. It repenteth me that I have set up &c.] Meaning, that He had resolved to cast him down from the throne. Repentance in God implies only a change in His dispensation towards His creatures: it is ascribed to God when He alters His course and method of dealing, and treats a person as if He indeed repented of the kindness He had shewed him. Bp. Patrick. God speaks as a man, to make Himself understood of men. Wogan. See notes at Gen. vi. 6.

— and hath not performed my commandments.] This very king Saul, but a little time before, would have put his brave son Jonathan to death only for tasting a little honey, contrary to his command. Behold here the pride and impiety of man's heart, full of resentment, if his own unreasonable will be not in all things complied with, and quite negligent and forgetful of the holy will of God! Whereby he plainly honours himself far above his Maker, expecting the greatest deference to his own word, while at the same time he pays little or no reverence to that of the Most High. Reading.

12. — came to Carmel,] Not the famous mountain so called, but a city in the south part of the tribe of Judah, mentioned Josh. xv. 55, which seems to have given name to the territory round it. Eusebius and St. Jerome mention, that there was in their time a town called Carmelia, ten miles from Hebron to the east, in which the Romans kept a garrison, which might very well be the same with the Carmel here mentioned. Dr. Wells.

— he set him up a place,] Meaning either that he encamped there for the night, or that he erected a triumphal arch in celebration of his victory. Dr. Wells.

13. — Blessed be thou of the Lord:] A form of salutation, and I will tell thee what the LORD hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on. Before CHRIST about 1079.

17 And Samuel said, When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the LORD anointed thee king over Israel?

18 And the LORD sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until † they be consumed.

† Heb.
they consume them.

19 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

20 And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, I have obeyed the voice of the LORD, and have gone the way which the LORD sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

21 But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.

22 And Samuel said, Hath the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, † to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

† Eccles. 5.
1.
Hos. 6. 6.
Matth. 9.
13. & 12. 7.

wishing him all happiness from God; who had ordered him to undertake this service. Bp. Patrick.

— I have performed &c.] It might seem from this confident address to the Prophet, that Saul expected praise and not reproof for what he had done; but, as appears from the Prophet's answer, while the sinner neither saw nor heard his sins, they cried aloud in the ears of God. We cannot but notice here the strange blindness of a carnal and worldly heart; we are all too apt, like Saul, to mistake a part for the whole of our duty, and even to pride ourselves in such a partial obedience, as if it was uniform and complete. Wogan.

15. — the people spared] This was a mean excuse, to throw all the blame upon the people, when he himself was principally in fault, and when he had it in his power to govern the people better. Bp. Patrick. As one sin naturally draws on another, Saul, having first transgressed in the principal action, falls into other continual provocations. On Samuel's coming to meet him, ver. 13, he first presumptuously declares that he had obeyed the commandment of the LORD. When the falsity of this declaration was immediately laid open, by the spoils which he had taken being present before him, he endeavours to transfer the fault from himself to others, ver. 15, as if what the people did was not done by his direction and authority. This being too apparent to be denied, he next adds an excuse drawn from a pretence of religion; which was as much as to say, we have disobeyed the commandment of God in order to serve Him. Dr. S. Clarke.

22. — Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, &c.] The meaning is, that a virtuous and good life is better, not only than Jewish rites and ceremonies, but better even than the best of any other worship that is paid to God, either on earth or in heaven. Nevertheless, as the one ought above all things to be done, so the other ought not by any means to be left undone; nay, the worshipping Him is part of that very obedience, and a means to enable men to perform more acceptably the other parts of their

Before
CHRIST
about 1079.
† Heb.
divination.

23 For rebellion is as the sin of † witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

24 ¶ And Saul said unto Samuel, I have sinned : for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD, and thy words : because I feared the people, and obeyed their voice.

25 Now therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD.

26 And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee : for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

27 And as Samuel turned about to go away, he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent.

28 And Samuel said unto him, The LORD hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and hath given it to a neighbour of thine, that is better than thou.

29 And also the || Strength of Israel will || Or, Eternity, or, victory. not lie nor repent : for he is not a man, that he should repent.

obedience to Him. Dr. S. Clarke. In the case of sacrifice, and all other ritual observances, it was the inward principle of humble and dutiful obedience which made them acceptable : the outward observance, when separate from that, is vain and insignificant. Dr. Berriman. There can be no excuse for swerving from the precise rule which God hath prescribed to us ; nor must we propound a religion out of the good purposes and intentions of piety and devotion, for our convenience, while for the present we decline a fundamental point of our religion, obedience to what He has commanded. We are not judges what is to be preserved, or which is the way of preserving. It may be God thinks it fit that our estates, liberties, and lives, should be sacrificed to His truth, and for the defence of it ; and then, the redeeming either by artifices or compliances is no less than sacrilege. What He hath determined shall be destroyed or utterly lost to us, must not be kept for sacrifices ; and what He hath appointed for sacrifice to Him, must not be preserved to ourselves. Lord Clarendon.

23. — rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, &c.] The word we here render "witchcraft," signifies the following of divinations and enchantments, which were superstitions forbidden with the severest penalties under the law, and were justly looked upon as a renouncing of God, in having recourse to other real or imaginary powers in opposition to Him. When therefore a crime is said to be "as the sin of witchcraft," the meaning is, that it is a fault of so deep a dye, of so heinous and provoking a nature, that the obstinate commission of it is altogether inconsistent with all true principles of religion, and, in effect, a total renunciation of them. The word "iniquity," in the latter part of the verse, is iniquity towards God, the forsaking His worship, the denying Him His true honour, the turning from Him to false gods, or joining them with Him ; and therefore it is expressed by two words together, iniquity and idolatry. The latter part of the verse is only a repeating and strengthening of the assertion laid down in the former part : rebelling by obstinate disobedience against the true God, is like serving a false one ; and stubbornness in obeying God partially, or serving Him only after our own way or humour, is the same thing as not serving Him at all. Dr. S. Clarke.

God considers all opposition against lawful authority as a sin against Himself. He declares, that "rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry : " the meaning of which is this ; that if a man were a Jew, and yet a rebel, he might as well be an heathen : if he were too stubborn to submit to the ordinances of God, he might as well be a sorcerer, or serve idols. And it is worthy of observation, that this severe sentence is against Saul, a king, who usurped the authority of the priesthood, and pleaded a godly reason for it. But so jealous is God, for the wisest ends, upon this subject, that no dignity of person, no appearance of reason, is admitted in excuse for the sin of rebellion. We therefore rightly pray in the Liturgy of the Church of England, that God would deliver us from rebellion in the state and schism in the church ; and in order to this we should also pray, that He would deliver us from the principles out of which they proceed ; for none of our reasonings will prevail in this case. Jones of Nayland.

— he hath also rejected thee from being king.] The ungrateful monarch, stubborn in rebellion against the will of his heavenly Benefactor, is now decisively informed that God had rejected him. At first, with daring falsehood he steadily averred to Samuel, that he had obeyed the commandment of the Lord. Then he charged the disobedience on the people ; then pretended that the sheep and oxen were saved for purposes of sacrifice. Driven from evasion to evasion, he could no longer dissemble his guilt, but was constrained to confess that he had feared the people instead of God, had obeyed their voice instead of the voice of God. The extreme solicitude with which, after his confession, he importuned Samuel to turn with him and honour him before the elders of the people, shewed that the respect of men was still the darling object of his heart. To the conduct of Saul, in the whole of this transaction, can a name more appropriate than Folly be ascribed ? Can any fact be more clearly ascertained than that sin and folly are the same ? Gisborne.

24. — because I feared the people,] It is probable that in this Saul only prevaricated, and endeavoured to dissemble with God ; his authority was so great and absolute, that he had no occasion to fear the people ; and his own covetousness certainly made him readily consent to the people and army, even if, as does not appear, the first motion came from them. Dr. Wells. If this excuse had been true, it would have been rather an aggravation, than a diminution of his crime. To fear the people whom he ought to command, was a weakness unworthy of a king. To dispense with a positive command of God, was an impious presumption ; to obey man rather than God, was wicked and profane. Wogan.

28. — The Lord hath rent &c.] God was not moved with Saul's expressions of repentance, because his repentance was not sincere ; and the fear of being deprived of his kingdom was his chief motive. For this reason, Samuel insisted that God had rejected him, and would never see him more. The sorrow of the wicked is not always true repentance ; it is often nothing but a worldly sorrow ; and therefore God, who knoweth the heart, disregards it, and forsakes them when the measure of their iniquity is full. Ostervald.

29. — the Strength of Israel &c.] He tells him it must be unavailing for him to importune any further, for that it was not with the great and all-wise God as with hasty and irresolute men ; and it was His unalterable decree to transfer the crown from him, and give it to one of less passion and more piety. Pyle. As any judge or inferior magistrate would deserve to suffer death, who should neglect his duty to his sovereign, when peremptorily commanded to execute justice in any matter ; so, considering the infinite difference between God and man, and the long train of wickedness into which Saul afterwards ran, the severity of God can hardly be thought excessive, in punishing his contempt of this great command by the alienation of the crown from his family. Stackhouse.

Before
CHRIST
about 1079.

30 Then he said, I have sinned: yet honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD thy God.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul; and Saul worshipped the LORD.

32 ¶ Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to me Agag the king of the Amalekites. And Agag came unto him delicately. And Agag said, Surely the bitterness of death is past.

* Exod. 17.
11.
Numb. 14.
45.

33 And Samuel said, ^a As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the LORD in Gilgal.

34 ¶ Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul went up to his house to Gibeah of Saul.

35 And Samuel came no more to see Saul until the day of his death: nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul: and the LORD repented that he had made Saul king over Israel.

CHAP. XVI.

¹ Samuel sent by God, under pretence of a sacrifice, cometh to Beth-lehem. ⁶ His human judgment is re-proved. ¹¹ He anointeth David. ¹⁵ Saul sendeth for David to quiet his evil spirit.

about 1063.

AND the LORD said unto Samuel, How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Beth-lehemite: for I have provided me a king among his sons.

2 And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer [†] with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice to the LORD.

† Heb.
in thine
hand.

3 And call Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and

30. — yet honour me — before the elders of my people,] Saul, though he used no diligence to regain the favour of God, was yet very solicitous that his honour might be preserved in the opinion of the people. Thus do too many care little for their consciences, yet stand much upon their credit. They are loth to leave their sins, and as loth to own them: therefore they try to throw a cloak over them, that the outside may look comely, and the dishonour that is underneath may not be seen. Bp. Sanderson.

32. — came unto him delicately.] Not like an offender expecting sentence of death, but in the garb and gesture which became his kingly quality. Poole.

— Surely the bitterness &c.] Having been spared by Saul and his army, he now apprehended no hurt from Samuel.

33. — And Samuel hewed] Caused it to be done by the publick executioner. It appears from Samuel's words to Agag that he was not cut off merely for the sins of his ancestors, but also for his own merciless cruelties. Bp. Patrick.

thou shalt anoint unto me him whom I name unto thee. Before CHRIST
about 1063.

4 And Samuel did that which the LORD spake, and came to Beth-lehem. And the elders of the town trembled at his [†] coming, and said, Comest thou peaceably? † Heb.
meeting.

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the LORD: sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 ¶ And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely the LORD's anointed is before him.

7 But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the [†] outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the ^a heart. † Heb.
eyes.
^a 1 Chron.
28. 9.
Psal. 7. 9.
Jer. 11. 20.
& 17. 10.
& 20. 12.

8 Then Jesse called Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

9 Then Jesse made Shammah to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

10 Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The LORD hath not chosen these.

11 And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, ^b Send and fetch him: for we will not sit [†] down till he come hither. ^b 2 Sam. 7.
8.
Psal. 78. 70.

12 And he sent, and brought him in. Now he was ruddy, and withal [†] of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. And the LORD said, Arise, anoint him: for this is he. † Heb.
round.
† Heb.
fair of eyes.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and anointed him in the midst of his bre-

Chap. XVI. ver. 2. — and say, I am come to sacrifice] Though the principal design of Samuel's journey to Beth-lehem was to anoint the son of Jesse, yet there was no falsehood in saying, according to the instruction given him, that he came to sacrifice. In fact, he did offer sacrifice as the Lord commanded, ver. 5. It is true, he had a further intention, but he was under no obligation to disclose this; and the concealing one design by going upon another can never be matter of blame, when concealment tends to good. Dr. Waterland.

4. — Comest thou peaceably?] They suspected that the purpose of his coming might be, to reprove them for some misdemeanor, or to pronounce some judgment on them: for it. Pyle.

13. — anointed him] He did not hereby invest him actually with the kingly power, but only marked him out to succeed Saul after his death. Thus David always understood it, looking upon Saul, as long as he lived, as the Lord's anointed, or as king of Israel.

Before
CHRIST
about 1065.

thren: and the Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

|| Or, terrified.

14 ¶ But the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the LORD || troubled him.

15 And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit from God troubleth thee.

16 Let our lord now command thy servants, which are before thee, to seek out a man, who is a cunning player on an harp: and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall play with his hand, and thou shalt be well.

17 And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring him to me.

|| Or, speech.

18 Then answered one of the servants, and said, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Beth-lehemite, that is cunning in playing, and a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, and prudent in || matters, and a comely person, and the LORD is with him.

19 ¶ Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, and said, Send me David thy son, which is with the sheep.

20 And Jesse took an ass laden with — in the midst of his brethren:] It should have been translated, from the midst of his brethren; that is, he singled him out from the rest, and privately anointed him. For it is manifest that Samuel was afraid to have it known, and therefore did not anoint him publicly in the midst of his brethren. And by Eliab's treatment of David after this, chap. xvii. 28, it plainly enough appears that he did not know him to be the king elect of God's people. Bp. Patrick.

— the Spirit of the Lord came upon David] God, by the influence of His power and Spirit, inspired a disposition into David, as He had before inspired into Saul, after his consecration, worthy of royalty. He no longer considered himself as a shepherd, but as destined to be a king; and was endued with courage, resolution, and prudence to fit him for the events which awaited him, and for the government of God's people, whenever he should be promoted to that dignity. Dr. Chandler.

The Spirit of the Lord coming upon David, accounts for the extraordinary effects and endowments, which immediately followed after his designation to the throne: otherwise it would indeed be difficult to explain, how a designation to empire, which in common circumstances is too apt to debase, corrupt, and overset with vanity, should raise an obscure uneducated youth, in an obscure age and country, without the advantage either of instruction or example, into the greatest musician, the noblest poet, and the most consummate hero of all antiquity. Stackhouse.

14. — an evil spirit from the Lord troubled him.] An evil spirit, by permission of God, troubled him by causing in him, or putting into his mind, suspicious, timorous, envious, and melancholy thoughts. Dr. Wells. The obstinate infatuation, afterwards displayed by Saul, savours of something more than common frenzy or madness; it seems similar to the case of Pharaoh, after he had resisted all the means of grace, when the Lord at length hardened his heart to his destruction. The "evil spirit from the Lord" which actuated Saul strongly resembles the demoniacal possessions of the New Testament; for the persons, so possessed bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent them by David his son unto Saul.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

21 And David came to Saul, and stood before him: and he loved him greatly; and he became his armourbearer.

22 And Saul sent to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray thee, stand before me; for he hath found favour in my sight.

23 And it came to pass, when the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, that David took an harp, and played with his hand: so Saul was refreshed, and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him.

CHAP. XVII.

1 The armies of the Israelites and Philistines being ready to battle, 4 Goliath cometh proudly forth to challenge a combat. 12 David, sent by his father to visit his brethren, taketh the challenge. 28 Eliab chideth him. 30 He is brought to Saul. 32 He sheweth the reason of his confidence. 38 Without armour, armed by faith, he slayeth the giant. 55 Saul taketh notice of David.

NOW the Philistines gathered together their armies to battle, and were gathered together at Shochoh, which belongeth to Judah, and pitched between Shochoh and Azekah, in || Ephes-dammim.

|| Or,
the coast of Dammim.

2 And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and pitched by the val-of devils, raved on several occasions in a manner much resembling the conduct of Saul. Dr. Hales. Or perhaps it is meant, that the remorse of his conscience, the menaces of Samuel, God's rejection of him, and his continual apprehensions of being dethroned by his competitor, exasperated his natural temper, generated a melancholy habit of mind, and carried him by fits into actual madness. Stackhouse. The evil spirit that came on him from, or by permission of, the Lord, was the evil spirit of melancholy, jealousy, envy, and cruelty: such an evil spirit will, in the nature of things, banish the spirit of a sound mind, moderation, equity, and every princely virtue; introduce an almost perpetual gloom, and dispose men to the most unwarrantable and criminal excesses. Dr. Chandler.

23. — the evil spirit departed from him.] The bad effects of the melancholy and disorder caused by the evil spirit departed from him for a time, being removed by the alteration which the musick made in his animal spirits. Dr. Wells.

The original use of musick was probably to compose the spirits, and to render the mind sedate, at the solemnities of religion, sacrifice, &c.; afterwards, to soothe and tranquillize the imagination and the fancy, for purposes of repose: and this appears still to be the character in which Eastern musick excels, where not science, but expression prevails. Saul was at this time an hypochondriack, whose low spirits were relieved by the cheerful and animating vibrations of the young shepherd's careless harp; and it may easily be conceived how well adapted to such a purpose were the unstudied strains of David, which were bold and free from his courage, and sedate through his piety. Script. illust.

Chap. XVII. ver. 1. — Shochoh and Azekah,] These places lay to the south of Jerusalem, and east of Beth-lehem; about four leagues from the former, and five from the latter. Calmct.

2. — by the valley of Elah,] "After some miles of hard journey over hills and rocks, we entered the famous Terebinthine vale,

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

† Heb. ranged the battle.

ley of Elah, and † set the battle in array against the Philistines.

3 And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them.

4 ¶ And there went out a champion out of the camp of the Philistines, named Goliath, of Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span.

† Heb.
clothed.

5 And he had an helmet of brass upon his head, and he was † armed with a coat of mail; and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass.

¶ Or, gorget.

6 And he had greaves of brass upon his legs, and a ‖ target of brass between his shoulders.

7 And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron: and one bearing a shield went before him.

8 And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me.

9 If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants: but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and serve us.

10 And the Philistine said, I defy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight together.

11 When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

* Chap. 16.
1.

12 ¶ Now David was ^a the son of that Ephrathite of Beth-lehem-judah, whose name was Jesse; and he had eight sons:

renowned for centuries as the field of the victory gained by David over the uncircumcised Philistine. Nothing has occurred to alter the face of the country. The very brook whence David chose the five smooth stones has been noticed by many a thirsty pilgrim, journeying from Jaffa to Jerusalem, all of whom must pass it in their way. The ruins of goodly edifices indeed attest the religious veneration, entertained in later periods for the hallowed spot; but even these are now become so insignificant, that they are scarcely discernible; and nothing can be said to interrupt the native dignity of this memorable scene." Dr. E. D. Clarke.

4. — six cubits and a span.] Above eleven feet, according to Bp. Cumberland.

5. — was five thousand shekels] The estimate of this weight depends on that of the shekel; it could hardly be less than 150 lbs. nor more than 200. The weight of his spear's head, ver. 7, 600 shekels, was probably from 16 to 24lbs. Script. illust.

6. — greaves of brass] These were necessary to defend the legs and feet from the iron stakes placed in the way by the enemy, to gall and wound their opponents: they were a part of ancient military furniture, rendered necessary by the artifices of the contending parties. Burder.

and the man went among men for an old man in the days of Saul.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

13 And the three eldest sons of Jesse went and followed Saul to the battle: and the names of his three sons that went to the battle were Eliab the firstborn, and next unto him Abinadab, and the third Shammah.

14 And David was the youngest: and the three eldest followed Saul.

15 But David went and returned from Saul to feed his father's sheep at Beth-lehem.

16 And the Philistine drew near morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.

17 And Jesse said unto David his son, Take now for thy brethren an ephah of this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren;

18 And carry these ten † cheeses unto the † captain of their thousand, and look how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge.

† Heb. cheeses of milk.
† Heb. captain of a thousand.

19 Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel, were in the valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines.

20 ¶ And David rose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went, as Jesse had commanded him; and he came to the ‖ trench, as the host was going forth to the ‖ fight, and shouted for the battle.

¶ Or, place of the carriage.
¶ Or, battle array,
or, place of fight.

21 For Israel and the Philistines had put the battle in array, army against army.

22 And David left † his carriage in the hand of the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army, and came and † saluted his brethren.

† Heb.
the vessels from upon him.
† Heb. asked his brethren of peace.

23 And as he talked with them, behold,

17. — Take now for thy brethren &c.] It is reasonably supposed, that, in those days, the soldiers went to war at their own charge, or found themselves in provisions. Dr. Wells. It is observable, that David himself was not at first concerned in the war, and only went to the army apparently by accident. In all this, the particular hand of Providence is visible, which thus disposed circumstances for the exaltation of David, when he thought nothing of it; and, from the lowly condition of life in which he had been brought up, made him the deliverer of his people, and afterwards their king. Ostervald.

18. — take their pledge.] The meaning of this phrase is not clear. According to some, it means that he should bring something from them which might certify Jesse of their health. Others translate the word, not pledge, but business; and understand the sense to be, Bring me word what they do, how they behave themselves, with whom they associate, &c. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps the pledge is meant which they gave for the purchase of this food. Houbigant.

22. — left his carriage] In which he had brought the provision sent by his father. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

there came up the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake according to the same words: and David heard them.

† Heb. from his face.

24 And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled † from him, and were sore afraid.

Josh. 15.
16.

25 And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defy Israel is he come up: and it shall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and ^bwill give him his daughter, and make his father's house free in Israel.

26 And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel? for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God?

27 And the people answered him after this manner, saying, So shall it be done to the man that killeth him.

28 ¶ And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men; and Eliab's anger was kindled against David, and he said, Why camest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle.

29 And David said, What have I now done? Is there not a cause?

25. — make his father's house free] Free from tribute and taxes: this was a royal privilege, and ennobled the family on which it was conferred. Dr. Wells.

26. — What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, &c.] The workings of David's modesty and valour are finely painted in these questions. His modesty would not suffer him directly and openly to accept the challenge, and profess himself Goliath's antagonist; and yet the fortitude of his own beating breast, and the glory of the undertaking, left him wholly at a loss why others should decline it. Dr. Delaney.

28. — and Eliab's anger was kindled] Eliab, who knew David's spirit, soon perceived his design; and, filled with indignation lest David should achieve what he himself had not dared to undertake, reproved him with the most taunting questions, as if nothing but vanity and a vicious curiosity had drawn him thither. Dr. Delaney.

29. — Is there not a cause?] Is there not just cause for my offering myself to encounter this giant, since none other is bold enough to take away this reproach from Israel, and our God? Dr. Wells. David has first to overcome his brethren's envy, before he engages the proud Philistine; but his greatest victory is over himself. His meekness does this; his faith and love to God did the other. His mild answer, "Is there not a cause?" implied both, and shewed at once his virtue and his piety. He is fittest to be God's champion, who has learnt to master his own passions. Wogan.

33. — Thou art not able to go] Meaning, "Thou mayest not go;" "It is not fitting thou shouldst go." Bp. Kidder.

30 ¶ And he turned from him toward another, and spake after the same † manner: and the people answered him again after the former manner.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.
† Heb.
word.

31 And when the words were heard which David spake, they rehearsed them before Saul: and he † sent for him.

† Heb. took him.

32 ¶ And David said to Saul, Let no man's heart fail because of him; thy servant will go and fight with this Philistine.

33 And Saul said to David, Thou art not able to go against this Philistine to fight with him: for thou art but a youth, and he a man of war from his youth.

34 And David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, and a bear, and took a || lamb out of || Or, kid. the flock:

35 And I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him.

36 Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear: and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God.

37 David said moreover, The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, Go, and the Lord be with thee.

38 ¶ And Saul † armed David with his armour, and he put an helmet of brass clothed David with his clothes.

† Heb.

34. — Thy servant kept his father's sheep, &c.] This relation of David's is admirable for its artless simplicity, and for the united dignity and humility of mind which it displays. Self-praise is, for the most part, offensive to the human ear, as proceeding from self-love and intemperate vanity; but yet when it is extorted, as it was on this occasion, nothing can be more becoming or more noble: it is then adorned with all the dignity of self-defence, under a false imputation of the heaviest guilt. And David's temperance and modesty in reciting his own praises are remarkable. He describes his combat with the lion in the shortest and simplest narration that ever was made of such a combat, and, as if to avoid dwelling on his own exploits, says no more of his combat with the bear, than merely that he slew him; and as if this had been too much, he concludes all in the style of a man, who had been delivered by God, not who had conquered by his own prowess. Dr. Delaney.

36. — seeing he hath defied &c.] Here we see that David's confidence of success is founded on Goliath's blasphemy; he felt assured that God would prosper him in his combat with such a blasphemer, as formerly with the lion and the bear. Dr. Delaney.

37. — The Lord that delivered me &c.] The zeal which David evinced on this occasion, his noble confidence before Saul in the Divine protection, his trusting afterwards solely to his shepherd's sling, and his boldly foretelling the destruction of the Philistine, altogether afford the finest illustration of that "Spirit of the Lord," chap. xvi. 13, by which he was then so fully actuated. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
about 1065.

upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail.

39 And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go; for he had not proved it. And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them. And David put them off him.

Or,
valley.
† Heb.
vessel.

40 And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the || brook, and put them in a shepherd's † bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine.

41 And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.

42 And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, he disdained him: for he was but a youth, and ruddy, and of a fair countenance.

43 And the Philistine said unto David, Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods.

44 And the Philistine said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: but I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied.

† Heb. shut thee
up.

46 This day will the LORD † deliver thee into mine hand; and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give the carcasses of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth;

39. — for he had not proved it.] He had not been accustomed to use arms of this description, and therefore requested permission to lay them aside, as rather likely to encumber him than to facilitate his enterprise. Bp. Patrick.

46. This day will the Lord deliver thee into mine hand;] In saying this, David does not vainly and rashly boast beforehand of the victory, as Goliath hath done; but, being full of faith, he praised the Divine Omnipotence, and prophesied of an assured victory. Bp. Patrick.

David excelled not only king Saul, but perhaps all other kings that ever reigned, in this; that, as he rejoiced to do the will of God, and to fight His battles, so he went about his work with a singular alacrity, a marvellous affiance in God, and dependence on His arm for succour and assistance. When he heard the proud boastings of this Philistine, his zeal was fired for God and his country. He considered his gigantick enemy no otherwise than the lion or bear, who came to devour his flock. He knew that by the general law and sentence of God the Philistines were doomed to destruction, and that Goliath had more particularly deserved it, by the reproaches and revilings which he had cast on that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel. Before CHRIST

about 1065.

47 And all this assembly shall know that the LORD saveth not with sword and spear: for the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands.

48 And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose, and came and drew nigh to meet David, that David hasted, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine.

49 And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth.

50 So ^c David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David. ^c Eccl^o
47. 4.
1 Mac. 4.
30.

51 Therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they fled.

52 And the men of Israel and of Judah arose, and shouted, and pursued the Philistines, until thou comest to the valley, and to the gates of Ekron. And the wounded of the Philistines fell down by the way to Shaaraim, even unto Gath, and unto Ekron.

53 And the children of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines, and they spoiled their tents.

54 And David took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem; but he put his armour in his tent.

55 ¶ And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner, whose son

God and His people. He therefore entered the lists, as one who fought under the banners of the God of Israel, and appeared in vindication of His honour and glory. Reading.

47. — for the battle is the Lord's, &c.] What a strain of piety pervades these words of David! How it must have filled the hearts of the people with inexpressible joy, to hear their young shepherd speak so like a prophet, priest, and king; so incomparably beyond any thing they could expect from his age and experience! It is plain that, even at this time, David was inspired with a large measure of the Spirit of God. Reading.

51. — cut off his head] This was customary in those countries. Niebuhr presents us with a similar scene, where he relates, that the son of an Arab chief killed his father's enemy and rival, and, according to the custom of the Arabs, cut off his head and carried it in triumph to his father. He adds in a note, cutting off the head of a slain enemy, and carrying it in triumph, is an ancient custom. Burder.

54. — put his armour in his tent.] The armour was afterwards in the holy tabernacle, as was the sword, to remain there for a trophy. Bp. Patrick.

Painted by Carlo Marzatti.

Engraved by H.M.

DAVID WITH THE HEAD OF GOLIATH.

1 Samuel ch. 17. v. 52.

Published by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge May 1. 18.

Before CHRIST about 1063. is this youth? And Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell.

56 And the king said, Enquire thou whose son the stripling is.

57 And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul with the head of the Philistine in his hand.

58 And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered, I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Beth-lehemite.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Jonathan loveth David. 5 Saul envieth his praise, 10 seeketh to kill him in his fury, 12 feareth him for his good success, 17 offereth him his daughters for a snare. 22 David persuaded to be the king's son in

58. — Whose son art thou, thou young man?] It may seem extraordinary that Saul should know nothing of David, who had so very lately attended on him at his court. It should be observed, however, that Saul does not ask who David himself is, for he and those about him perhaps sufficiently knew his person: but what Saul really asks is, Whose son is David? which he and Abner might well forget. If this be observed, all difficulty respecting the order of events in these two chapters ceases at once. Dr. Wells. Or David's adventure with Goliath was perhaps prior in time to his solacing Saul with his musick; and the latter story is given by anticipation in chap. xvi, the historian bringing together the effect of Saul's rejection, and the endowment of David with various graces, among which was his skill on the harp. Bps. Warburton and Hall. David was at this time twenty-two years of age. Bedford.

While we cannot fail to admire the resolution and courage of David, in offering to encounter Goliath, and, above all, his religious trust in Almighty God, we must be particularly struck with his wonderful success, in slaying the giant with such a weapon as a sling. In all this it visibly appears that God assisted David in an extraordinary manner, and also that He was pleased to vindicate His own honour, which Goliath had attacked, and make those idolaters sensible that He was the Almighty God. Thus we likewise see, how God helps those that trust in Him, and makes use of means, in appearance very weak, to bring down the pride of the wicked, and to destroy those powers which seem to be most formidable. Ostervald.

Chap. XVIII. ver. 1. — Jonathan loved him as his own soul.] There is no instance in history of two persons being joined together in close friendship, comparable to that of Jonathan and David; who entered into the most sacred bonds of mutual assistance and defence to their very death, and of kindness to their posterity, even after either of them should be dead. Jonathan in particular, through the whole story, shews towards David a greatness of soul, a constancy of mind, and disinterestedness of heart, of which few romances can produce an example. Calmet.

Jonathan's love to David sprang from a nobler principle than that which binds one brave soldier to another. David's combat with Goliath had shewed him in a more exalted character than that of a soldier: the pretensions he set forth before he engaged, and the success he met with, shewed him to be a favourite servant of the Lord's; and there was a principle of religion, as well as a military sympathy, which knit the soul of Jonathan to the soul of David. How much better did Jonathan reason on the discovery of God's favour to David, than Saul did! Saul ventured to be angry with God's choice, and made David the object of his hatred, for a reason which entitled him to his esteem. So rash law, giveth two hundred foreskins of the Philistines for Michal's dowry. 28 Saul's hatred, and David's glory increaseth.

Before CHRIST about 1063.

AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

2 And Saul took him that day, and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

3 Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

4 And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle.

and so wicked is envy, that it sets our weak and unreasonable wishes in opposition to the Divine wisdom, and lifts up an arm of flesh against the resistless arm of the Almighty. Jonathan reasoned better, although his circumstances as fitly led him to envy David, as did Saul's, had he been liable to the same disposition. In God's designation of David to fill the throne of Israel, he saw what was contrary to his own natural expectations; for his birth and character might naturally point him out as his father's successor. But when he was led to conclude, by David's conduct and success, that God had designed it otherwise, he had prudence and religion enough to submit to the appointment; and, instead of hating a man who was to set him aside from his father's throne, he loved the man who was qualified to fill it, and fixed his esteem where God had fixed His choice. Dr. H. Stebbing.

It is here related, that "when David had made an end of speaking unto Saul," Jonathan from that moment conceived for him the tenderest and strongest affection. There is inexpressible dignity in the silence of Scripture on this and other such occasions. Minute description would bring the narrative down too near the level of ordinary history; whereas, in the present management, the writer's end is fully answered, by a short account of the effects of this conversation on the heart of a pious, intelligent, and heroic youth. We now behold this part of sacred history in all the dignity of a noble portrait; in which David, bending to his prince, and having laid the head of his fiercest foe at his feet, appears in the fairest light, and noblest attitude, in which youthful hero was ever drawn. Hard indeed would it be fully to paint the congenial joy, the glowing gladness of Jonathan's generous heart upon the success of so much piety and virtue; and as hard perhaps to shew the secret workings of Saul's growing envy, under all the outward semblance of complacency and applause. Dr. Delaney.

3. — made a covenant,] Entered into a solemn league of mutual friendship.

4. — stripped himself of the robe &c.] He did this, that his singular affection to David might be known to all, and that they might appear the more closely united into one. This was a customary method of testifying affection. We read in Tavernier of a Nazar, whose virtue and behaviour so pleased a king of Persia, after being put to the test, that he caused himself to be disapparelled, and gave his habit to the Nazar; which is the greatest honour that a king of Persia can bestow on a subject. The giving a girdle, in particular, was deemed a token of the greatest confidence and affection: in some cases it was considered an act of adoption. In regard to the sword and the bow, it has been customary in all countries to make such military presents as these to brave adventurers: of which instances occur in Greek and Roman writers. Fragments to Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.
Or,
prospered.

5 ¶ And David went out whithersoever Saul sent him, and || behaved himself wisely: and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

¶ Or,
Philistines.

6 And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the || Philistine, that the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with † instruments of musick.

† Heb.
threestringed instruments.
* Chap. 21.
11. & 29. 5.
Eccl. 47.
6.

7 And the women answered one another as they played, and said, * Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.

† Heb. was evil in his eyes.

8 And Saul was very wroth, and the saying † displeased him; and he said, They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but the kingdom?

9 And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.

10 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times: and there was a javelin in Saul's hand.

11 And Saul cast the javelin; for he said, I will smite David even to the wall with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.

6. — the women came out] It appeared before, from Exod. xv. 20, that it was customary for women to sing the praises of God in publick on remarkable occasions; and, as is there related, Miriam and the women then answered one another as they played, as they do in the present instance. Bp. Patrick.

9. — eyed David] Looked upon him, as one whom he envied, hated, and feared. Bp. Patrick.

10. — the evil spirit from God] The evil spirit which had formerly haunted him, and now, by his discontent, anger, and melancholy, was brought upon him again. Bp. Patrick.

— and he prophesied] He used in his fits of distraction such expressions and gestures, as if he had been possessed with a prophetic impulse, above the power of his own mind to direct and restrain. Pyle. Or he sung some sacred songs; which he did the rather, that David might suspect no danger from him: perhaps too, his mind being disturbed with various roving thoughts about his own condition and about David, he was made by God to foretell that David would be heir of his kingdom. Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew word will admit of being translated "he howled and grumbled" in his frenzy, no uncommon effect of a melancholy, disordered mind. Dr. Chandler. Saul's disease seems to have been a true madness, and of the melancholy kind; the fits returned upon him at uncertain periods, as is frequently the case in this sort of disease. The remedy which was applied, playing on the harp, was an extremely proper one for this disease: for physicians have long since taught us, that symphonies, and musick in general, are of service towards dissipating melancholy thoughts. Dr. Mead.

12. — Saul was afraid of David,] Saul's envy of David now

12 ¶ And Saul was afraid of David, because the LORD was with him, and was departed from Saul. Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

13 Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand; and he went out and came in before the people.

14 And David || behaved himself wisely in all his ways; and the LORD was with him. ¶ Or,
prospered.

15 Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.

16 But all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

17 ¶ And Saul said to David, Behold my elder daughter Merab, her will I give thee to wife: only be thou † valiant for me, and fight the LORD's battles. For Saul said, Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him. † Heb.
a son of valour.

18 And David said unto Saul, Who am I? and what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son in law to the king?

19 But it came to pass at the time when Merab Saul's daughter should have been given to David, that she was given unto Adriel the Meholahite to wife.

20 And Michal Saul's daughter loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing † pleased him. † Heb. was right in his eyes.

21 And Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be a snare to him, and that began to be mixed with terror; for that he, so skilful at his weapons, should twice miss his aim, and at so near a distance, had surely something very extraordinary. It was natural for him to think this could not be without a Divine interposition, and for some extraordinary end; and what end could this be, but David's designation to royalty? Dr. Delaney.

13. — went out and came in before the people.] "Went out" on the expeditions to which Saul commanded him, and "came in" from them with success, "before the people;" who took great notice of his prudent and successful conduct. Dr. Wells.

17. — her will I give thee to wife:] He now bethinks himself of his promise publicly made (chap. xvii. 25) to him that should kill Goliath; but still retains the insidious design of taking away David's life, by his dangerous expeditions against the enemy. He afterwards offered a most high affront to David, by giving his daughter to another; an act of great injustice and perfidy: accordingly, this marriage was accursed by God, and the children begotten in it were by Divine appointment cut off, 2 Sam. xxi. Poole.

— and fight the Lord's battles.] Maintain the cause of the Lord in defending His people against their enemies. The wars of the Hebrews, as long as they were undertaken and conducted by the orders of God, truly deserved the name of "the Lord's battles." But, when they were carried on from a love of conquest and a spirit of domination, they ceased to deserve this name, and became mere wars of profane ambition. Cahnet.

21. — that she may be a snare to him,] That he might perish in some of the dangers, to which he was to be exposed, as the condition of having her to wife. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1053.

the hand of the Philistines may be against him. Wherefore Saul said to David, Thou shalt this day be my son in law in the one of the twain.

22 ¶ And Saul commanded his servants, saying, Commune with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee: now therefore be the king's son in law.

23 And Saul's servants spake those words in the ears of David. And David said, Seemeth it to you a light thing to be a king's son in law, seeing that I am a poor man, and lightly esteemed?

24 And the servants of Saul told him, saying, † On this manner spake David.

25 And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any dowry, but an hundred foreskins of the Philistines, to be avenged of the king's enemies. But Saul thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines.

26 And when his servants told David these words, it pleased David well to be the king's son in law: and the days were not † expired.

27 Wherefore David arose and went, he and his men, and slew of the Philistines two hundred men; and David brought their foreskins, and they gave them in full tale to the king, that he might be the king's son in law. And Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife.

28 ¶ And Saul saw and knew that the LORD was with David, and that Michal Saul's daughter loved him.

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

29 And Saul was yet the more afraid of David; and Saul became David's enemy continually.

30 Then the princes of the Philistines went forth: and it came to pass, after they went forth, that David behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul; so that his name was much † set by.

† Heb.
† tedious.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Jonathan discloseth his father's purpose to kill David.

4 He persuadeth his father to reconciliation. 8 By reason of David's good success in a new war, Saul's malicious rage breaketh out against him. 12 Michal deceiveth her father with an image in David's bed. 18 David cometh to Samuel in Naioth. 20 Saul's messengers sent to take David, 22 and Saul himself, prophesy.

AND Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.

2 But Jonathan Saul's son delighted much in David: and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father seeketh to kill thee: now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself:

3 And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee; and what I see, that I will tell thee.

4 ¶ And Jonathan spake good of David unto Saul his father, and said unto him, Let not the king sin against his servant,

† Heb.
According to these words.

† Heb. fulfilled.

— in the one of the twain.] By marrying one of his two daughters: for, though David was disappointed in one of them, yet Saul's promise was fulfilled if he married the other. Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew expression means literally, "in the twain," and so some translations render it; but it is doubted whether it refers to his two daughters, Merab and Michal, one of whom was betrothed to David, and the other should actually be given to him; or to David's two claims of merit, in having killed Goliath, and in slaughtering the required number of the Philistines. Poole's Syn. Crit.

25. — not any dowry, but an hundred foreskins of the Philistines.] This condition was imposed by Saul with an insidious design; but the custom hath prevailed in many countries, to give their daughters in marriage to the most valiant men, or to those who might bring so many heads of their enemies. Particularly, it was the custom among a people in Carmania, that, if any were desirous of marrying, it was necessary he should first bring to the king the head of an enemy. As to dowries, it was customary among the Hebrews for the husband to endow the wife, and to receive nothing at all with her. Bp. Patrick. Saul seems to have mentioned the foreskins, and not the heads of the Philistines, by way of reproach upon them, as an uncircumcised and infidel people. Pyle. Or rather, to prevent any cheat or collusion in the matter, and to enable him to be sure that they were Philistines only whom he killed; for the Philistines were the only neighbouring people who were uncircumcised. Calmet.

27. — And Saul gave him Michal — to wife.] This whole history shews, that, notwithstanding all which was done by Saul for the destruction of David, he was forced to give him his daughter Michal; that God blessed David every day with some new success; and that the snares laid by Saul turned to his own confusion, and to David's glory, and served to endear him more and more to the people. Thus we see, that nothing can hurt those whom God loves; that He always watches over them for good; and turns all that the wicked undertake against them to their real welfare and advantage. Ostervald.

29. — Saul became David's enemy.] Such strange infatuation did Saul's anger, hatred, and other bad passions, bring upon him, that he set himself against the man, whom he saw and knew had God for his friend. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XIX. ver. 4. — Let not the king sin.] Jonathan, on this occasion, shewed himself an admirable son, thus solicitous to preserve his father's honour; and an incomparable friend, thus to plead for his innocent injured friend, even in opposition to the tyrant who was bent on his destruction. Dr. Chandler. Jonathan's friendship now set itself at work, and shewed that true management which real friendship as naturally deserves on one side, as it suggests on the other. His courage led him to undertake David's defence before his father. His good sense directed him to ground his defence on such topics as placed the merit of his friend in its proper light, and at the same time disposed Saul to see and acknowledge it. Friendship is never more amiably engaged than when it is defending a good cause. Whoever steps forth in the defence of virtue, secures commendation by the choice he makes of his party; and whoever succeeds in his de-

Before
CHRIST
about 1063.

* Judges 9.
17. & 12. 3.
chap. 28.
21.
Psalm 119.
109.

† Heb. yesterday
third day.
about 1062.

† Heb.
his face.

against David; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good:

5 For he did put his ^a life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel: thou sawest it, and didst rejoice: wherefore then wilt thou sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause?

6 And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan: and Saul sware, As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain.

7 And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan shewed him all those things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, as † in times past.

8 ¶ And there was war again: and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter; and they fled from † him.

9 And the evil spirit from the Lord was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand: and David played with his hand.

10 And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night.

11 Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, and to slay him in the morning: and Michal David's wife told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to night, to morrow thou shalt be slain.

12 ¶ So Michal let David down through fence, reaps a double reward from the thanks of the publick and the thanks of his friend. Dr. H. Stebbing.

Jonathan gave noble proofs indeed of his friendship for David, and of his virtue, when he used his utmost endeavours to pacify his father, and spake with so much respect and resolution in behalf of his friend, to reconcile his father to him. By this means, he discharged his duty to his friend, and at the same time to his father, by inspiring him with more just sentiments. Thus ought we ever to take part with the innocent when persecuted unjustly, never to be backward in our good offices towards others, and to use all means of appeasing those that are enraged. Ostervald.

5. — and slew the Philistine, &c.] In all the seeming simplicity of this plain and short intercession, we perceive all the strength of reasoning, and all the skill and delicacy of address, which could possibly be crowded into so few words. Jonathan had much more to say in David's favour; but he well knew, that to enumerate David's merits, would be to inflame his father's enmity: and therefore, though he mentioned David's merits in general, yet he insisted only on that single point, in which Saul himself had some merit and much complacence; and he well knew, that the bare remembrance of it would bring back to his father's mind the greatness and generosity of the prize proposed, which excited David's valour, and led to that happy event, in which Saul himself was so greatly a partaker. Dr. Delaney.

10. And Saul sought to smite David &c.] How sad and shocking a scene was this! David labouring with all his skill to relieve the anguish of Saul, and Saul in the same instant meditating his dea window: and he went, and fled, and escaped.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

13 And Michal took an image, and laid it in the bed, and put a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster, and covered it with a cloth.

14 And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, He is sick.

15 And Saul sent the messengers again to see David, saying, Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may slay him.

16 And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was an image in the bed, with a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster.

17 And Saul said unto Michal, Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go; why should I kill thee?

18 ¶ So David fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

19 And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah.

20 And Saul sent messengers to take David: and when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as appointed over them, the Spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they also prophesied.

21 And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also.

struction! sitting sullen and determined, with his javelin in his hand, watching his opportunity, and waiting perhaps till the power of musick had so far calmed his spirits as to steady his hand. On the failure of the attempt, we cannot fail to adore the providence of God, by which David was once more so signally protected and delivered. Dr. Delaney.

15. — saying, Bring him up to me] Such was his insatiable rage, that he could not stay to see the event of David's supposed sickness; but, when he was able to make no resistance, resolved to despatch him. Bp. Patrick.

17. — He said unto me, Let me go; &c.] The conjugal fidelity and affection displayed by Michal on this occasion are much obscured by this falsehood, which she told, to the disgrace of her husband, to excuse herself to her father. Dr. Delaney.

20. — sent messengers to take David:] His implacable hatred to David had abolished all respect and reverence to Samuel, (under whose protection David now was,) and to the college of Prophets, which was a kind of sanctuary to those who fled to it. Bp. Patrick. Envy is too hard to be subdued, although it is sometimes weak enough to be diverted: Saul's envy had only dropt its present purpose by his reconciliation with David; the passion was ready to resume its strength on another occasion of its being excited. Dr. H. Stebbing.

— they also prophesied.] They no sooner arrived, and heard the Prophets singing their Divine hymns, with Samuel at their head, than they were inspired with the same Spirit, sang the praises of God in the same strain, and had no inclination left to meddle with David. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

22 Then went he also to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David? And one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

23 And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and the Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied, until he came to Naioth in Ramah.

24 And he stripped off his clothes also, and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and † lay down naked all that day and all that night. Wherefore they say, ^b Is Saul also among the prophets?

† Heb. fell.
^b Chap. 10.
11.

CHAP. XX.

1 David consulteth with Jonathan for his safety. 11 Jonathan and David renew their covenant by oath. 18 Jonathan's token to David. 24 Saul, missing David, seeketh to kill Jonathan. 35 Jonathan lovingly taketh his leave of David.

AND David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came and said before Jonathan, What have I done? what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life?

2 And he said unto him, God forbid; thou shalt not die: behold, my father will do nothing either great or small, but that

23. — he went on, and prophesied,] So strangely obstinate and wicked was Saul, that he not only contended with the Spirit of God in sending others, but resolved at the last to go himself, as if he could oppose the Spirit of God: on the way, however, he was inspired by God, and he sang praises, as did the Prophets. This was to convince him that he laboured in a vain pursuit after David, whom the Spirit of God powerfully defended. Bp. Patrick.

— and prophesied,] See note on Numb. xi. 25. This is a word of extensive signification, and may denote sometimes those actions, motions, and distortions, which Prophets in their inspirations were wont to exhibit. But the generality of interpreters take prophesying, in this place, to signify Saul's singing of psalms, or hymns of thanksgiving and praise; which he was compelled to do, even against his will, to teach him the vanity of his designs against David, and to shew that, in them, he fought against God. Stackhouse. It is to little purpose to inquire what was the subject of Saul's prophesying. For what reason he and his messengers were seized with a prophetic spirit is most evident; namely, to prevent their intended violence to David. And this good effect was worthy the good Spirit of the Lord to produce. The circumstances here recorded afford a most pleasing instance, to a generous compassionate mind, of the care of Providence over persecuted virtue, and of the impotence of human malice towards those whom God is determined to preserve. Dr. Chandler. Mark the peculiar interposition of God on this occasion. He withheld Saul's hand from villany, and employed his tongue in such acts of devotion as he least intended: so that this incident served only to advance his shame and David's honour. Dr. H. Stebbing.

24. — lay down naked] In this expression, and others of the same import, (Is. xx. 2; Mic. i. 8,) we are not to understand that the persons were entirely naked, but only that they took off some external habit, or upper garment, which they were wont to wear when they went abroad, or that they had some part of their body uncovered. The word in the original admits this meaning. Stack- he will † shew it me: and why should my father hide this thing from me? it is not so.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

† Heb. uncover mine ear.

3 And David sware moreover, and said, Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes; and he saith, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved: but truly as the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death.

4 Then said Jonathan unto David, || Whatsoever thy soul † desireth, I will even do it for thee.

|| Or,
Say what is thy mind,
and I will do, &c.
† Heb. speaketh, or,
thinketh.

5 And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, to morrow is the new moon, and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat: but let me go, that I may hide myself in the field unto the third day at even.

6 If thy father at all miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run to Beth-lehem his city: for there is a yearly || sacrifice there for all the family.

|| Or, feast.

7 If he say thus, It is well; thy servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth, then be sure that evil is determined by him.

8 Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy servant; for ^a thou hast brought thy house. He had taken off his outward garment, his military habit and royal robe, and thus appeared like the rest of the Prophets, a plain, disarmed, and therefore naked, man. Dr. Chandler.

^a Chap. 18.
3. & 23. 18.

— Wherefore they say, Is Saul also &c.] This was mentioned as a proverb, by anticipation, at chap. x. 11, 12; but it is evident that the original of the proverb was this second prophesying among the Prophets; because Saul was not at that time known among the people, and because the origin of the proverb is here expressly referred to his second prophesying. This proverb was used to express any thing unlooked for, and improbable. The meaning is, Is Saul, who throughout his whole reign hath so much slighted and contemned the law, and would conduct his actions by the mere rules of human policy, is he at length become studious of, and zealous for, the law of God? Bp. Warburton.

Chap. XX. ver. 2. — behold, my father will do nothing &c.] Jonathan might well say this, when he had his father's oath to support his opinion. As many an honest man does, he judged of another's sentiments by his own; and, if he judged better of his father than he deserved, by firmly believing that he would not falsify his oath, the mistake turned to his own honour, as it shewed his own regard to such a religious obligation. Dr. H. Stebbing.

5. — to morrow is the new moon,] A solemn sacrifice, attended by a feast, took place every new moon; and on such an occasion David, as one of the king's family, was wont to eat with him. Bp. Patrick. The Jewish months were lunar, and never began before the new moon appeared above the horizon: for which purpose persons were stationed upon the mountains, some time before the new moon was expected, to give notice by the sound of a horn when it first appeared, that so the intelligence might be immediately carried to Jerusalem. Calnet.

8. — for thou hast brought thy servant] It was at Jonathan's instigation that they first made a solemn covenant of mutual friendship before God. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

servant into a covenant of the LORD with thee: notwithstanding, if there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself; for why shouldst thou bring me to thy father?

9 And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee: for if I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee, then would not I tell it thee?

10 Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? or what if thy father answer thee roughly?

11 ¶ And Jonathan said unto David, Come, and let us go out into the field. And they went out both of them into the field.

† Heb. searched.

12 And Jonathan said unto David, O LORD God of Israel, when I have † sounded my father about to morrow any time, or the third day, and, behold, if there be good toward David, and I then send not unto thee, and † shew it thee;

† Heb.
uncover thing e. r.

13 The LORD do so and much more to Jonathan: but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will shew it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace: and the LORD be with thee, as he hath been with my father.

14 And thou shalt not only while yet I live shew me the kindness of the LORD, that I die not:

15 But also thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever: no, not when the LORD hath cut off the enemies of David every one from the face of the earth.

† Heb. cut.

16 So Jonathan † made a covenant with the house of David, saying, Let the LORD even require it at the hand of David's enemies.

14. — the kindness of the Lord,] The kindness covenanted between us before the Lord. Dr. Wells.

15. — thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house] Jonathan's submission to the will of God in the designation of David for the throne, as it prompted him to see, so it entitled him to ask for, the benefits attending his advancement: and, finding that God had transferred the protection to other hands, he shewed that obedience to his heavenly Ruler, and that generous care for his own posterity, to seek protection where God had placed it. Dr. H. Stebbing.

From what passed between Jonathan and David, it appears that Jonathan was persuaded David would one day sit upon the throne, and yet he was not in the least jealous of him, because he knew it was the will of God. These sentiments of Jonathan express the greatness of his soul, and give proof of his piety. True and solid friendship is founded upon virtue; and, instead of being jealous of the advantages of our friends, makes their happiness our joy and satisfaction. Ostervald. How tender a sense had Jonathan of that friendship which he thus wishes to perpetuate! How unspeakable a generosity to stipulate for his own life with that man whose life was then absolutely in his power, interceding that his children might not be considered as enemies to him;

17 And Jonathan caused David to swear again, || because he loved him: for he loved him as he loved his own soul.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

|| Or,
by his love towards him.

18 Then Jonathan said to David, To morrow is the new moon: and thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be † empty.

† Heb. missed.

19 And when thou hast stayed three days, then thou shalt go down || † quickly, and come to the place where thou didst hide thyself † when the business was in hand, and shalt remain by the stone || Ezel.

|| Or, diligently.
† Heb.

greatly.
† Heb.
in the day of the business.

20 And I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as though I shot at a mark.

|| Or,
that sheweth the way.

21 And, behold, I will send a lad, saying, Go, find out the arrows. If I expressly say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them; then come thou: for there is peace to thee, and † no hurt; as the LORD liveth.

† Heb. not any thing.

22 But if I say thus unto the young man, Behold, the arrows are beyond thee; go thy way: for the LORD hath sent thee away.

23 And as touching the matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold, the LORD be between thee and me for ever.

24 ¶ So David hid himself in the field: and when the new moon was come, the king sat him down to eat meat.

25 And the king sat upon his seat, as at other times, even upon a seat by the wall: and Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Saul's side, and David's place was empty.

26 Nevertheless Saul spake not any thing that day: for he thought, Something hath befallen him, he is not clean; surely he is not clean.

27 And it came to pass on the morrow, which was the second day of the month, concluding with that remarkable and undistinguishing imprecation, "Let the Lord require it at the hand of David's enemies." Dr. Delaney.

23. — the Lord be between thee and me] As a witness and avenger, if we keep not the covenant we have made of perpetual friendship. Bp. Patrick.

25. — upon a seat by the wall:] It is conjectured from this expression, that the table was in a half circle, and that Saul's seat was in the middle, which in the nature of things was next to the wall. Dr. Delaney.

— and David's place was empty.] It may seem a little strange that Saul, who had so often endeavoured to kill David, should ever expect to see him at his table any more: but perhaps he thought that David might be disposed to overlook all that had passed, as the effect of his frenzy and melancholy, and to consider him now as returned to a sound mind: also, that because David had ventured into his presence again, after the first javelin was thrown at him, he might for the future be guilty of the same indiscretion. Calmet.

26. — he is not clean:] He thought that he had fallen into some legal uncleanness, which prevented him from appearing. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

that David's place was empty: and Saul said unto Jonathan his son, Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat, neither yesterday, nor to day?

28 And Jonathan answered Saul, David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Bethlehem:

29 And he said, Let me go, I pray thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and my brother, he hath commanded me to be there: and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren. Therefore he cometh not unto the king's table.

|| Or, Thou perverse rebel.

† Heb.
Sm of perverse rebellion.

30 Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, || † Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness?

† Heb. is the son of death.

31 For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Wherefore now send and fetch him unto me, for he † shall surely die.

32 And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, Wherefore shall he be slain? what hath he done?

33 And Saul cast a javelin at him to smite him: whereby Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David.

34 So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month: for he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.

35 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field at the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

36 And he said unto his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an arrow † beyond him.

† Heb. to pass over
him

37 And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

38 And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not. And Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master.

39 But the lad knew not any thing: only Jonathan and David knew the matter.

40 And Jonathan gave his † artillery unto † his lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

† Heb.
instruments.

† Heb. that was his.

41 ¶ And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times: and they kissed one another, and wept one with another, until David exceeded.

42 And Jonathan said to David, Go in peace, || forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the LORD, saying, The LORD be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. And he arose and departed: and Jonathan went into the city.

|| Or, the LORD be witness of that which,
&c.

CHAP. XXI.

1 David at Nob obtaineth of Ahimelech hallowed bread.
7 Doeg was present. 8 David taketh Goliath's sword.
10 David at Gath feigneth himself mad.

THEN came David to Nob to Ahimelech the priest: and Ahimelech was — until David exceeded.] Proceeded to an excess of grief, being about to become an exile from his friend, his wife, his kindred, and people, and the sacred solemnities of his religion. Bp. Patrick.

We may readily pronounce, that it was the sense, not of his own distress, but of Jonathan's generosity, which now overwhelmed David. He was leaving, perhaps taking his last leave of, that man, who, though he knew David stood between him and the throne, yet had often saved his life, and was now just come from saving it again, at the imminent hazard of his own. And how was he leaving this invaluable friend? He was leaving him to the rage of a furious incensed father, who would not fail to destroy him for the very kindness he was then shewing David, if it ever came to his knowledge. Jonathan was too delicate and too generous not to see all the movements of David's heart on this distressful occasion; and seeing them, he repressed his own grief, for fear of sinking his friend too much by excess of tenderness. This made him conclude the conference in that religious and calm manner recorded in the next verse, "Go in peace, forasmuch as &c." Dr. Delaney.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. — to Nob] A city in the tribe of Benjamin, one of the cities assigned to the priests, as appears from 30. — Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman,] The Hebrew should rather be rendered, Thou son of perverse rebellion; that is, Thou most perverse rebel. Bp. Patrick.

— unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness?] For the world would think that he was not the son of Saul, because he loved so greatly a person whom Saul thoroughly hated. Bp. Patrick. Or the meaning is, This thy favour to David will be to thy own wrong and shame, by depriving thee of the kingdom, as if thou wert base-born: and to the shame of thy mother, who will by this act be proclaimed an adulteress, and a dishonourer of my bed. Bp. Hall.

33. And Saul cast a javelin at him] If it be asked, How it came to pass, that Saul had always a javelin in his hand (on this and other occasions) to execute his evil purposes? the answer is, that spears were frequently the sceptres of those ages, which kings always carried in their hands. Stuckhouse. By his spear is to be understood his sceptre, according to the phrase of those times. Justin says of the early Romans that their kings had spears or javelins for signs of royal authority: and Pausanias says, that the kings of Argos called their sceptres, spears. Bp. Patrick.

40. — his artillery] His weapons, his bow and arrows. Dr. Wells.

41. — a place toward the south,] Probably on the south of the stone Ezel before mentioned.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

afraid at the meeting of David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee?

2 And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, The king hath commanded me a business, and hath said unto me, Let no man know any thing of the business whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee: and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place.

3 Now therefore what is under thine hand? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what there is † present.

4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand, but there is ^a hallowed bread; if the young men have kept themselves at least from women.

5 And David answered the priest, and said unto him, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days, since I came out, and the vessels of the young men are holy, and the bread is in a manner common, || yea, though it were sanctified this day in the vessel.

6 So the priest gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there but the shewbread, that was taken from before the LORD, to put hot bread in the day when it was taken away.

7 Now a certain man of the servants of † Heb.

found.

^a Exod. 25.
30.
Lev. 24. 5.
Matth. 12.
1.

! Or, especially when this day there is other sanctified in the vessel.

chap. xxii. 19, also from Nehem. xi. 32, where we find it reckoned among the Levitical cities. Dr. Wells.

— Ahimelech the priest:] The high priest. David intended perhaps, by coming to him, to recommend himself and his cause to God, and to beg His direction and protection. Bp. Patrick.

2. — The king hath commanded me &c.] It is evident from this passage how far excessive fear may make even an otherwise good man forget his duty of having a strict regard to truth. Dr. Wells. We are not hence to take an example of speaking untruths, but to deplore the wickedness of the world; since the most excellent men have sometimes been induced to tell a falsehood, for the purpose of preserving their lives. Bp. Patrick. It is thought by some, that, in compunction for his guilt on this occasion, David utters that lamentable complaint in Ps. cxix. 28, 29, "My soul melteth away — Take from me the way of lying." All persons however do not see his conduct in so unfavourable a light, considering that his intention was innocent, and that he industriously concealed his condition from the high priest, in order to keep him clear from all suspicion and charge of having combined with him against Saul. Dr. Delaney.

4. — hallowed bread:] The shewbread on the table of the tabernacle, which was to be eaten by none but the priests and their families; and which Ahimelech permits David and his soldiers to eat, provided they were in the same state of legal cleanness which was required of the priests.

5. — yea, though it were sanctified this day in the vessel.] The marginal translation is more plain, especially when this day there is other sanctified. He means, new bread was set upon the table of the Lord, so that no wrong was done to Him. By the vessel is meant, the dish on which the bread was placed, mentioned at Exod. xxv. 29. Bp. Patrick.

6. So the priest gave him &c.] In this, neither Ahimelech nor David committed any sin: for invincible necessity dispensed with Saul was there that day, detained before the LORD; and his name was Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of the herdmen that belonged to Saul.

8 ¶ And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under thine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste.

9 And the priest said, The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in ^b the valley of Elah, behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.

10 ¶ And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to Achish the king of Gath.

11 And the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king of the land? did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, ^c Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

12 And David laid up these words in his heart, and was sore afraid of Achish the king of Gath.

13 And he changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and || scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

^b Chap. 17.
2.

^c Chap. 13.
7. & 29. 5.
Ecclesiastes 47.
6.

|| Or, made marks.

all these ritual laws, as the Jews themselves confess. An argument respecting the sabbath is founded on this passage by our Saviour. See Matt. xii. 3, 4, &c. Bp. Patrick.

7. — detained before the Lord:] Detained at the tabernacle by some vow which he had upon him, or other religious performance, to which he had obliged himself. Bp. Patrick. The circumstance of Doeg's being present is here mentioned, with reference to his afterwards accusing Ahimelech for what now passed, as is related at ch. xxii. 9.

9. — The sword of Goliath the Philistine — is here] As it was an ancient custom among the Jews to hang up in the temple arms taken from their enemies, so the heathens were wont to do the same in their temples: it was in conformity with this custom that David dedicated to the Lord the sword with which he cut off Goliath's head, and delivered it to the priest, as a monument of his victory and the Israelites' deliverance. Calmet.

10. — went to Achish the king of Gath.] Such was his miserable condition, to be forced to flee for protection to those whom he had reason to think were his bitter enemies: Gath was the city of Goliath, whose sword David now had about him. Bp. Patrick.

11. — king of the land?] The person who sways so much in Israel. Bp. Hall. Either they meant, a chief commander; or they had heard of his being designed to be king instead of Saul. Bp. Patrick.

13. — and feigned himself mad] David's counterfeiting madness, when he was discovered by the Philistines in the city of Gath, must be considered as a weakness not altogether free from sin; since he shewed thereby that he did not sufficiently depend upon the promises of the Lord. This is a warning to us, never to have recourse to evil means, or do any thing unworthy of our character, to deliver ourselves from the dangers which threaten us. Ostervald.

Before CHRIST about 1062. 14 Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, ye see the man || is mad: wherefore then have ye brought him to me?
|| Or, playeth the mad man. 15 Have I need of mad men, that ye have brought this fellow to play the mad man in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?

CHAP. XXII.

1 Companies resort unto David at Adullam. 3 At Mizpeh he commendeth his parents unto the king of Moab. 5 Admonished by Gad, he cometh to Hareth. 6 Saul going to pursue him, complaineth of his servants' unfaithfulness. 9 Doeg accuseth Ahimelech. 11 Saul commandeth to kill the priests. 17 The footmen refusing, Doeg executeth it. 20 Abiathar escaping, bringeth David the news.

DAVID therefore departed thence, and escaped to the cave Adullam: and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him.

2 And every one that was in distress, and every one that † was in debt, and every one that was † discontented, gathered themselves unto him; and he became a captain over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 ¶ And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab: and he said unto the king of Moab, Let my father and my mother, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you, till I know what God will do for me.

4 And he brought them before the king of Moab: and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold.

5 ¶ And the prophet Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came into the forest of Hareth.

6 ¶ When Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him, (now Saul abode in Gibeah under || a tree in Ramah, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him;)

7 Then Saul said unto his servants that stood about him, Hear now, ye Benjamites; will the son of Jesse give every one of you fields and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds;

8 That all of you have conspired against me, and there is none that † sheweth me that my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse, and there is none of you that is sorry for me, or sheweth unto me that my son hath stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

9 ¶ Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants of Saul, and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to Ahimelech the son of Ahitub.

10 And he enquired of the LORD for him, and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11 Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father's house, the priests that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the king.

12 And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, † Here I am, my lord.

13 And Saul said unto him, Why have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse, in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast enquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

Before CHRIST about 1062.
|| Or, grave in a high place.

† Heb. uncovereth mine ear.

† Heb. Behold me.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — the cave Adullam:] A strong hold, 1 Chron. xi. 15, in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 35; to which tribe as David belonged, he might hope to find some friends there. Bp. Patrick. It was on David's happy escape from the Philistines on this occasion, that he wrote the xxxivth psalm. Dr. Chandler.

2. — every one that was in debt, &c.] David probably felt himself forced to take this course in his defence, that he might not be suddenly surprised by any party Saul might bring against him; and he seems to have adopted it, without the least intention of raising a rebellion against Saul, or of doing him an injury; much less of injuring his country. Dr. Wells. A most injurious imputation has sometimes been cast upon David, for his behaviour on this occasion, as if he was attempting to raise a rebellion against his sovereign. But his whole conduct shews that he acted entirely upon a principle of self-defence. He never opposed or disturbed the government of Saul; never endeavoured to excite a spirit of discontent, or entered into a conspiracy to dethrone him, or forcibly levied contributions on his subjects, or joined the enemies of his country to invade it; or even availed himself of opportunities offered, to seize his person, or destroy him; but, during his whole life, behaved with all the submission that became him, as a dutiful son-in-law to his father, and a good subject to his prince. Dr. Chandler.

3. — the king of Moab,] He applied to the king of Moab, not only as being at variance with Saul, chap. xiv. 47, but also, probably, because he himself was descended from a Moabite, by his mother's side; especially if Ruth the Moabitess were of the royal family, as the Jews imagine. Bp. Patrick.

4. — was in the hold.] Was forced to keep himself in some strong place, not easy of access. Dr. Wells.

6. — under a tree in Ramah,] Or, in a high place, as Ramah signifies: otherwise the first words must be translated, near Gibeah, or in the territory of Gibeah. Bp. Patrick.

8. That all of you have conspired against me, &c.] If this complaint of Saul's had been just, he would indeed have been to be pitied: to be betrayed by his own servants and his own tribe, in favour of a fellow-servant and one of another tribe; to be betrayed by his son in favour of his servant; nay, to have that servant excited against him by his son; this were indeed a lamentable condition. But the truth is, Saul had no ground for his suspicion, except the consciousness of having deserved what he dreaded. Dr. Delaney.

9. — the son of Jesse] He seems to use this as a name of reproach; the son of an obscure mean person. Dr. Delaney.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

14 Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is the king's son in law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine house?

15 Did I then begin to enquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, † less or more.

† Heb. little or great.

16 And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou, and all thy father's house.

‖ Or, guard.
† Heb.
runners.

17 ¶ And the king said unto the ‖ † footmen that stood about him, Turn, and slay the priests of the LORD; because their hand also is with David, and because they knew when he fled, and did not shew it to me. But the servants of the king would not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the LORD.

18 And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou, and fall upon the priests. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and he fell upon the priests, and slew on that day fourscore and five persons that did wear a linen ephod.

19 And Nob, the city of the priests, smote he with the edge of the sword, both men and women, children and sucklings,

15. Did I then begin &c.] He says, that, in consulting the oracle then, he did no more than what he had often done before, in duty to Saul, without being blamed; for he conceived that David his servant and son was employed on his business. Dr. Wells. Or, the words may very naturally be interpreted, so as to convey an absolute denial of the charge: "Did I then begin to inquire of God for him?" I never did it before, nor did I begin to do it now. Doeg charged him with consulting God for David, but, as it should seem, falsely and maliciously. Dr. Chandler.

18. — And Doeg — fell upon the priests,] We cannot but observe upon the wickedness and cruelty of Doeg, who, when he had prejudiced Saul against the innocent, and found his guards refuse to lay their hands on the Lord's ministers, slew them himself. Such is the character of wicked men: they stick at nothing; and, by their false accusations, lay themselves under a fatal necessity of committing every enormity, for the purpose of supporting their calumnies, and destroying the innocent. Ostervald.

19. And Nob, the city of the priests, &c.] Saul's fury transported him to deal worse with the city of the priests than he did with the Amalekites, some of whom he spared, though God commanded him to destroy them all. In this destruction of the priests was fulfilled the word of God against the house of Eli, as mentioned in chap. ii. and iii. of this book. Bp. Patrick. In this case he let none escape, in order to deter others from giving the least shelter or assistance to David, and to incite them the rather to come and give him information respecting his haunts and lurkingplaces. Stackhouse. His barbarity on this occasion was such, as many a savage would have abhorred to commit, or even to palliate or excuse. Dr. Chandler.

Such was the strange and irregular temper of this unhappy prince, that he destroyed the innocent and spared the guilty: through excess of zeal, he exterminated those whom he was oband oxen, and asses, and sheep, with the edge of the sword. Before CHRIST

about 1062.

20 ¶ And one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, escaped, and fled after David.

21 And Abiathar shewed David that Saul had slain the LORD's priests.

22 And David said unto Abiathar, I knew it that day, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he would surely tell Saul: I have occasioned the death of all the persons of thy father's house.

23 Abide thou with me, fear not: for he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life: but with me thou shalt be in safeguard.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 David, enquiring of the Lord by Abiathar, rescueth Keilah. 7 God shewing him the coming of Saul, and the treachery of the Keilites, he escapeth from Keilah. 14 In Ziph Jonathan cometh and comforteth him. 19 The Ziphites discover him to Saul. 25 At Maon he is rescued from Saul by the invasion of the Philistines. 29 He dwelleth at En-gedi.

THEN they told David, saying, Behold, the Philistines fight against Keilah, and they rob the threshingfloors.

2 Therefore David enquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the LORD said unto David, Go, and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah.

lized by the oath of God to protect; and, for want of zeal, he shewed mercy to the Amalekites, whom God had commanded him to destroy. But, howsoever faulty and strange this conduct may seem in him, the case is too frequently not unlike with us all. How apt are we to gratify our passions at the expense of our duty! How earnest to serve the world, our lusts, and our interests; but how cold, languid, and partial, in obeying the most positive commands of God! How often do we sacrifice the priests of God and spare the Amalekites; how often shew more favour to the enemies than to the friends of God! How apt to be merciful when we should be severe; severe and cruel when we ought to be merciful! A conduct and spirit, from which the most serious professors of religion are not wholly free. Wogan. Saul attained two ends by this massacre: he weakened the power of the priests, whom he had made his enemies by slaying so many of them, and stripping them of their possessions; and he strengthened the hands of his own family by conferring those possessions upon them. We should not dismiss this subject without remarking, that we have here a remarkable instance of God's turning the worst devices of the wicked to the purposes of His providence. In consequence of Eli's grievous offence, God had denounced that his race should be cut off by a sudden and surprising destruction, 1 Sam. ii.; and now, by Saul's unparalleled cruelty, this denunciation is fulfilled. Dr. Delancy.

Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. Then they told David,] Or, "Now they had told David;" for this was done before Abiathar came to tell David, ver. 6, of the slaughter of the priests. Dr. Waterland, Locke. Keilah was a city in the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 44.

— they rob the threshingfloors.] The threshingfloor was commonly without the city, for the convenience of wind to separate the chaff from the corn. See Ruth iii. 2, 15. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
about 1062.

3 And David's men said unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah: how much more then if we come to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?

4 Then David enquired of the LORD yet again. And the LORD answered him and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for I will deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

5 So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and smote them with a great slaughter. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

Chap. 22.
20.

6 And it came to pass, when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech ^a fled to David to Keilah, that he came down with an ephod in his hand.

about 1051.

7 ¶ And it was told Saul that David was come to Keilah. And Saul said, God hath delivered him into mine hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town that hath gates and bars.

8 And Saul called all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.

9 ¶ And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod.

10 Then said David, O LORD God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, to destroy the city for my sake.

11 Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O LORD God of

Before
CHRIST
about 1051.

Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. And the LORD said, He will come down.

12 Then said David, Will the men of Keilah † deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And the LORD said, They will deliver thee up. † Heb. shut up.

13 ¶ Then David and his men, which were about six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go. And it was told Saul that David was escaped from Keilah; and he forbore to go forth.

14 And David abode in the wilderness in strong holds, and remained in a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

15 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life: and David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a wood.

16 ¶ And Jonathan Saul's son arose, and went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God.

17 And he said unto him, Fear not: for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee; and that also Saul my father knoweth.

18 And they two made a covenant before the LORD: and David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his house.

19 ¶ Then came up the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeah, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strong holds in the wood, in the hill of Hachilah, which is † on the south of † Jeshimon? † Heb. on the right hand. † Or, the wilderness?

5. — So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.] This was a noble proof, as Grotius justly observes, of David's love for his country, that, though he was proscribed as a rebel by the king, he was so far from injuring his country, that he zealously served it at the cost of his enemies. Dr. Chandler.

This is one of the noblest adventures of David's life. Another man in his place would have rejoiced at this invasion, and perhaps encouraged it, and this both from self-preservation and policy; because he had nothing to fear for himself while Saul had such an enemy on his hands, and because the distress of the country was most likely to bring Saul to reason. But David was governed by no such narrow views; and neither safety nor honour was desirable to him, when purchased by the distress of his country and his friends. Dr. Delaney.

6. — with an ephod] Rather, with the ephod; namely, that of the high priest. It seems that, when Ahimelech and the rest of the priests were slain, Abiathar, who had been left to keep the sanctuary, took the principal vestment of the high priest, the ephod, with the breastplate, and Urim and Thummim annexed, and carried them to David. Bp. Patrick. Thus one consequence of Saul's slaughter of the priests was, that he deprived himself for ever of the protection and counsel of God, the ephod and oracle being now transferred to David. Dr. Chandler.

16. — strengthened his hand in God.] Encouraged him to trust in God, notwithstanding his present afflictions; for that God would certainly make good His promises at last, and enable him to prevail over his enemies. Dr. Wells.

The conduct of Jonathan in this remarkable transaction is truly disinterested, generous, and great. He could not now be ignorant of David's destination to the throne of Israel by the will of God, and knew that nothing could prevent his succession to it, as God had appointed it. In such a situation, how does he act? He scorns by fraud and violence to attempt the life of a man whom God had fixed on to be king, even in preference to himself; but seeks him out in the wilderness, where his father was hunting him to destruction, and "strengthened his hand in God," not by money, forces, or any military aid; not by promising to assist in disturbing his father's government, nor by any plot or conspiracy against his father's interest and honour; but by comforting him under his cruel persecution, and assuring him of God's protection, of his future advancement to the throne, and of his own confidence in his David's future friendship. Dr. Chandler.

17. — Fear not:] It were hard to determine which we ought most to admire on this occasion, the moderation, the friendship, the piety, or the unexampled generosity of Jonathan. To be able to resign a kingdom with that calmness, that frankness, that tender love and inviolable fidelity to his rival, and that steady submission to the will of God, seems to have something in it infinitely beyond all the other praises of heroism. Dr. Delaney.

Before
CHRIST
about 1061.

20 Now therefore, O king, come down according to all the desire of thy soul to come down; and our part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand.

21 And Saul said, Blessed be ye of the LORD; for ye have compassion on me.

22 Go, I pray you, prepare yet, and know and see his place where his † haunt is, and who hath seen him there: for it is told me that he dealeth very subtilly.

23 See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hideth himself, and come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you: and it shall come to pass, if he be in the land, that I will search him out throughout all the thousands of Judah.

24 And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul: but David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon, in the plain on the south of Jeshimon.

25 Saul also and his men went to seek him. And they told David: wherefore he came down into a rock, and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And when Saul heard that, he pursued after David in the wilderness of Maon.

26 And Saul went on this side of the mountain, and David and his men on that side of the mountain: and David made haste to get away for fear of Saul; for Saul and his men compassed David and his men round about to take them.

27 ¶ But there came a messenger unto Saul, saying, Haste thee, and come; for the Philistines have † invaded the land.

† Heb. spread themselves upon, &c.

28 Wherefore Saul returned from pursuing after David, and went against the Philistines: therefore they called that place || Sela-hammahlekoth.

Before
CHRIST
about 1061.

29 ¶ And David went up from thence, and dwelt in strong holds at En-gedi.

|| That is,
The rock of divisions.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 David in a cave at En-gedi, having cut off Saul's skirt, spareth his life. 8 He sheweth thereby his innocency. 16 Saul, acknowledging his fault, taketh an oath of David, and departeth.

AND it came to pass, when Saul was returned from † following the Philistines, that it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in the wilderness of En-gedi.

† Heb.
after.

2 Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seek David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats.

3 And he came to the sheepcotes by the way, where was a cave; and Saul went in to cover his feet: and David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.

4 And the men of David said unto him, Behold the day of which the LORD said unto thee, Behold, I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of † Saul's robe privily.

† Heb.
the robe which was Saul's.

5 And it came to pass afterward, that David's heart smote him, because he had cut off Saul's skirt.

6 And he said unto his men, The LORD forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the LORD's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD.

27. — there came a messenger] By the singular providence of God, which stirred the Philistines up at this very time to make an irruption into the land of Israel, for the preservation of David, when he was in extreme danger. Bp. Patrick.

29. — En-gedi.] A place in the tribe of Judah, not far from the Dead sea. As the country around it abounded with mountains, and those mountains had plenty of vast caves in them, it was a very commodious place, where David might retire and conceal himself. Stackhouse. En-gedi is taken notice of, Cant. i. 14, for its camphire, or (as others render it) cypress. St. Jerome tells us, that it was remarkable for opobalsamum, (supposed to be what we now call balm of Gilead;) also that it was a great town in his days. Dr. Wells.

The name En-gedi signifies in Hebrew "the kid's fountain;" and the place was probably so called, because the inhabitants of the country used to water their flocks there. It is now called Angedi. Dr. Delaney.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 3. — where was a cave;] Many of the caves in Palestine are extremely large. We visited one, in which David and his men might have been hid, and not seen by Saul. Bp. Pococke.

— went in to cover his feet:] Went in to take some sleep. See note on Judg. iii. 24.

5. — David's heart smote him,] He was inwardly troubled at having done an evil thing, it being deemed an indignity to a prince to have his royal robe so disfigured. Bp. Patrick. This one example of David's, under all the provocations he received from Saul, abundantly shews us that the persons of kings are sacred and inviolable. Stackhouse.

6. — The Lord forbid &c.] Here was a noble instance of David's moderation and forbearance, as well as greatness and generosity of mind. The feelings which restrained him were worthy of a brave and generous man; a man of honour, religion, and virtue. He durst not stretch forth his hand against his master, and "the Lord's anointed." Under this sacred character, he forgot that Saul was his implacable enemy, and instantly sacrificed his resentment to his conscience and duty: and hereby acted with a goodness and elevation of mind, which Saul himself thought no one besides him would have displayed. Dr. Chandler.

Let us learn to frame our lives after the noble example of king David, who, when he had many occasions given to work evil for evil towards king Saul, yea, and many times had opportunity to perform mischief and to slay him; nevertheless, fearing God, would not follow his fleshly affections, and walk inordinately without the will of God's word, which he confessed always to be his direction. Bp. Latimer.

Before
CHRIST
about 1061.
† Heb.
cut off.

7 So David † stayed his servants with these words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rose up out of the cave, and went on his way.

8 David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself.

9 ¶ And David said to Saul, Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?

10 Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the LORD had delivered thee to day into mine hand in the cave: and some bade me kill thee: but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is the LORD's anointed.

11 Moreover, my father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not, know thou and see that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou huntest my soul to take it.

12 The LORD judge between me and thee, and the LORD avenge me of thee: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

13 As saith the proverb of the ancients,

13. — Wickedness proceedeth &c.] He means to say, If I were so wicked as I have been thought by thee, I should not have hesitated to kill thee: but I am no such person, and therefore my hand shall not be upon thee. Dr. Wells. Guilt is the consequence and fruit of guilt: if I had been guilty of conspiring against thee, I should have crowned that guilt by killing thee, when thou wert in my power. Dr. Delaney.

14. — after a dead dog, &c.] One of the meanest and weakest of his subjects; of no more consideration and strength, in comparison of the king of Israel, than a dead dog or a contemptible flea. Dr. Chandler. David represents himself to be as contemptible as possible, that he might convince Saul it was not for his honour to take so much pains to kill him. Bp. Patrick.

16. — Saul lifted up his voice, and wept.] Saul himself, with all his rage and malice, could not withstand this instance of generosity in David, but melted and sunk under it; instead of lessening the merit of it with an unrelenting heart, he "lift up his voice, and wept," and with his tears acknowledged David's innocence, and his own guilt; and even prayed to God to reward that very person, whom, but the moment before, he was pursuing to destruction. Dr. Chandler.

19. — if a man find his enemy, &c.] Saul was now convinced of David's integrity, when he did not take advantage of him in the cave, where he might have securely destroyed him. He was never so confounded with the shame of his own jealousy and malice, as by this act of piety and magnanimity in David: though he had long known that David was anointed, and appointed by God to reign as king after him, yet he did not so thoroughly believe it, till this great instance of the temper of his mind, and of his relying on God's purpose so entirely, that he would not, by an act of his own, endeavour to bring that honour on himself sooner than the Divine wisdom intended it for him. He knew that God but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked: Before CHRIST about 1061.

14 After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? after a dead dog, after a flea.

15 The LORD therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and plead my cause, and † deliver me out of † Heb. judg.
thine hand.

16 ¶ And it came to pass, when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice, and wept.

17 And he said to David, Thou art more righteous than I: for thou hast rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil.

18 And thou hast shewed this day how that thou hast dealt well with me: forasmuch as when the LORD had † delivered † Heb. shut up.
me into thine hand, thou killedst me not.

19 For if a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away? wherefore the LORD reward thee good for that thou hast done unto me this day.

20 And now, behold, I know well that thou shalt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in thine hand.

21 Swear now therefore unto me by the would not have given to any man such a dominion over all his passions and affections, except He had resolved to establish him for the future in security and glory. We can never receive a greater earnest that He will wonderfully help us, than when He gives us grace not to help ourselves by any ill means that are offered us. Lord Clarendon.

— wherefore the Lord reward thee good] Saul's feeling of David's generosity must indeed be strong, when he beseeches God to reward it. Indeed, Saul had no equivalent to give David for the kindness shewn him; and therefore he refers him to God for retribution. For if, after this, he could even save David's life, he could only save the life of his best benefactor; whereas David both spared and saved the life of his mortal enemy. Dr. Delaney.

20. — I know well that thou shalt surely be king,] How wonderful it is, that Saul should so often have attempted to destroy David, with this knowledge of his high destination. He surely would not have done so, if he had always continued in his reasonable hours. But what will not a man do, when his passions destroy his reason, and when he is stimulated with the evil spirit of ambition, envy, rage, and malice? It was this which made the unhappy king regardless of God and man, and excited him to fight against heaven and earth. Dr. Chandler.

21. Swear now therefore unto me] David, by sparing his enemy, now found himself possessed of the proudest pleasure which human vanity could wish: to see his prince his petitioner, his enemy his suppliant, conscious and confessing his own guilt, and David's superiority, and begging that mercy to his issue which he himself had just experienced and had not deserved. Who would not, like David, spare an enemy for the sake of so glorious a triumph? Dr. Delaney.

Before
CHRIST
about 1061.

LORD, that thou wilt not cut off my seed after me, and that thou wilt not destroy my name out of my father's house.

22 And David sware unto Saul. And Saul went home; but David and his men gat them up unto the hold.

CHAP. XXV.

1 Samuel dieth. 2 David in Paran sendeth to Nabal. 10 Provoked by Nabal's churlishness, he mindeth to destroy him. 14 Abigail understanding thereof, 18 taketh a present, 23 and by her wisdom 32 pacifieth David. 36 Nabal hearing thereof dieth. 39 David taketh Abigail and Ahinoam to be his wives. 44 Michal is given to Phalti.

about 1060.

* Chap. 28.

5.

12cl* 46.

15, 20.

|| Or,
business.

AND ² Samuel died; and all the Israelites were gathered together, and lamented him, and buried him in his house at Ramah. And David arose, and went down to the wilderness of Paran.

2 And there was a man in Maon, whose || possessions were in Carmel; and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel.

3 Now the name of the man was Nabal; and the name of his wife Abigail: and she was a woman of good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance: but the man was churlish and evil in his doings; and he was of the house of Caleb.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

4 ¶ And David heard in the wilderness that Nabal did shear his sheep.

5 And David sent out ten young men, and David said unto the young men, Get you up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and † greet him in my name:

† Heb.
ask him in my name of peace.

6 And thus shall ye say to him that liveth in prosperity, Peace be both to thee, and peace be to thine house, and peace be unto all that thou hast.

7 And now I have heard that thou hast shearers: now thy shepherds which were with us, we † hurt them not, neither was there ought missing unto them, all the while they were in Carmel.

† Heb.
shamed.

8 Ask thy young men, and they will shew thee. Wherefore let the young men find favour in thine eyes: for we come in a good day: give, I pray thee, whatsoever cometh to thine hand unto thy servants, and to thy son David.

9 And when David's young men came, they spake to Nabal according to all those words in the name of David, and † ceased.

† Heb.
rested.

10 ¶ And Nabal answered David's ser-

22. And David sware unto Saul.] David generously took the oath, and honourably and religiously performed it. The whole address of Saul to David on this occasion was the natural effect of the various thoughts and passions which then agitated his breast. The full conviction he had of David's innocence, the proof now given him of the greatness of his temper, some remains of generosity in his own breast, the consciousness of the falsehood of his own suspicions, and of his own injurious and ungrateful conduct, the recollection of David's being appointed to succeed him, the vanity of opposing the order of God, the tender concern he had for the fate of his family under David's reign; all these considerations, and the various passions arising from them, crowding on his mind, and uniting their forces, drew forth an acknowledgment and a request, which nothing else could have forced from him. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. XXV. ver. 1. And Samuel died;] The Jews are of opinion, that Samuel died only four months before Saul: but, by the generality of Christian chronologers, he is supposed to have died about two years before the death of that prince, and in the ninety-eighth year of his age; twenty years of which had been spent in the government of Israel before Saul's inauguration, after which he lived eighteen. He was, while he lived, an excellent governour, and, through his whole administration, superiour to vanity, corruption, or any private views. Those who attend to his life may observe, that he was modest without meanness, mild without weakness, firm without obstinacy, and severe without harshness: a fine eulogy of him is given by the author of Ecclesiasticus, ch. xli. 13, &c. Besides the things recorded of him in this book, there are other matters related of him in the first book of Chronicles; as that he enriched the tabernacle with spoils taken from the enemies of Israel, chap. xxvi. 28; that he assisted in regulating the distribution of the Levites for the service of the temple, chap. ix. 22; and lastly, that he wrote the history of David in conjunction with the Prophets Nathan and Gad. But, as he died before David came to the throne, this can only be meant of the beginning of that history, which might be continued by the others. There is great probability that he composed the twenty-four first chapters of this first book of Samuel, containing historical facts in which he had so large a share. Stackhouse.

How singular was the character and piety of Samuel! devoted to God from the womb, and worthy to be so! Early dedicated to the Divinity, and hallowed by His influence! Descended from Prophets, himself a greater! The service of God made the early business of his life; nor was ever interrupted by any thing but the service of his country. Exalted to supreme power, without ambition; exerting it without oppression or avarice, and resigning it without reluctance, when his God commanded! Illustrious in the splendour of a throne, and yet more so in the shade of a cell; so far from envying his successor to the supreme power, that he pitied and prayed for him! It were hard to determine which was happiest, his life or his death. He lived to the noblest purposes, the glory of God, and the good of his country; he died full of years and honours, universally lamented. Such was Samuel! such always were, and such always will be, in a good measure, all those, whose beginnings are laid in true religion, whose duty is their delight, and their God their glory! Dr. Delaney.

5. — and greet him in my name:] This message of David to Nabal affords a fine picture of ancient and true politeness. The message is directed "to him that liveth;" that is, that liveth in prosperity: in Scripture, living, and being happy, are frequently synonymous; and now, David's benevolent spirit suggested to him, that, being happy ourselves, we should endeavour to make others share in our happiness. The great beauty and propriety of that ancient Eastern salutation, "Peace be to thee," is very emphatical, inasmuch as the best blessings of life, and all the social affections, attend upon peace: the modesty too of the message is very remarkable; for, though David had much real merit towards Nabal, yet he puts his request on having no demerit towards him; and at the same time referring him to his servants for fuller information. Harmer.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

vants, and said, Who is David? and who is the son of Jesse? there be many servants now a days that break away every man from his master.

† Heb.
slaughter.

11 Shall I then take my bread, and my water, and my † flesh that I have killed for my shearers, and give it unto men, whom I know not whence they be?

12 So David's young men turned their way, and went again, and came and told him all those sayings.

13 And David said unto his men, Gird ye on every man his sword. And they girded on every man his sword; and David also girded on his sword: and there went up after David about four hundred men; and two hundred abode by the stuff.

14 ¶ But one of the young men told Abigail, Nabal's wife, saying, Behold, David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master; and he † railed on them.

† Heb. flew upon them.

15 But the men were very good unto us, and we were not † hurt, neither missed we any thing, as long as we were conversant with them, when we were in the fields:

† Heb.
shamed.

16 They were a wall unto us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep.

17 Now therefore know and consider what thou wilt do; for evil is determined against our master, and against all his household: for he is such a son of Belial, that a man cannot speak to him.

18 ¶ Then Abigail made haste, and took two hundred loaves, and two bottles of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and an hundred || clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of figs, and laid them on asses.

|| Or,
lumps.

10. — there be many servants now a days &c.] This was one of the most atrocious reproaches that could be cast upon a well-born and innocent man; implying those crimes, on account of which bad servants become fugitives from their masters. Dr. Chandler. Nabal's answer was agreeable to his character, rude and sullen; a strong image of ungoverned brutality, and very natural to that insolence, which wealth is too apt to dictate to undisciplined spirits. Dr. Delaney.

11. — my bread, and my water,] Water is considered as an important part of the provision made for a repast in Eastern countries, and is sent as such to shearers and reapers in particular. The words of Nabal, in reply to David's messengers, are not in the least surprising. The following passage from Drummond's Travels affords proof of their propriety: "The men and women were then employed in reaping: other females were employed in carrying water to the reapers; so that none but infants were unemployed." Harmer.

13. — abode by the stuff.] Remained in the wilderness to guard their property. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

19 And she said unto her servants, Go on before me; behold, I come after you. But she told not her husband Nabal.

20 And it was so, as she rode on the ass, that she came down by the covert of the hill, and, behold, David and his men came down against her; and she met them.

21 Now David had said, Surely in vain have I kept all that this fellow hath in the wilderness, so that nothing was missed of all that pertained unto him: and he hath requited me evil for good.

22 So and more also do God unto the enemies of David, if I leave of all that pertain to him by the morning light any that pisseth against the wall.

23 And when Abigail saw David, she hasted, and lighted off the ass, and fell before David on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, 24 And fell at his feet, and said, Upon me, my lord, upon me let this iniquity be: and let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak in thine † audience, and hear the words of thine handmaid.

† Heb.
ears.

25 Let not my lord, I pray thee, † regard this man of Belial, even Nabal: for as his name is, so is he; Nabal is his name, and folly is with him: but I thine handmaid saw not the young men of my lord, whom thou didst send.

† Heb.
lay it to his heart.

26 Now therefore, my lord, as the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, seeing the LORD hath withholden thee from coming to shed blood, and from † avenging thyself with thine own hand, now let thine enemies, and they that seek evil to my lord, be as Nabal.

† Heb. saving thyself.

27 And now this || blessing which thine handmaid hath brought unto my lord, let

|| Or,
present.

17. — such a son of Belial,] So wilful and obstinate. Bp. Patrick.

18. — two bottles of wine,] It must be obvious to every reader, that two bottles of wine could not possibly supply the exigencies of David's army, if we understand such bottles as are now in use: but it is rather meant, two skins or leathern bags of wine, which were used in Eastern countries, being carried on asses and camels. It is manifest, that two such vessels as these might hold a quantity of wine proportioned to the rest of the present. Stackhouse.

22. — if I leave — to him &c.] If I leave to him any male alive. Bp. Patrick. If I leave so much as a dog alive. Bp. Hall.

25. — as his name is, so is he;] She represents him as a man that offended rather out of folly than from malice, which might plead some excuse for his rudeness. Nabal in Hebrew signifies "a foolish man." Bp. Patrick.

27. — this blessing] This present or gift. The same phrase is at 1 Sam. xxx. 26; 2 Kings v. 15.

Before CHRIST about 1060. it even be given unto the young men that [†] follow my lord.

† Heb. walk at the foot of, &c. 28 I pray thee, forgive the trespass of thine handmaid: for the LORD will certainly make my lord a sure house; because my lord fighteth the battles of the LORD, and evil hath not been found in thee all thy days.

* Heb. in the midst of the thought of a sling. 29 Yet a man is risen to pursue thee, and to seek thy soul: but the soul of my lord shall be bound in the bundle of life with the LORD thy God; and the souls of thine enemies, them shall he sling out, [†] as out of the middle of a sling.

30 And it shall come to pass, when the LORD shall have done to my lord according to all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have appointed thee ruler over Israel;

† Heb. staggerings, or, stumbling. 31 That this shall be [†] no grief unto thee, nor offence of heart unto my lord, either that thou hast shed blood causeless, or that my lord hath avenged himself: but when the LORD shall have dealt well with my lord, then remember thine handmaid.

32 ¶ And David said to Abigail, Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which sent thee this day to meet me:

33 And blessed be thy advice, and blessed be thou, which hast kept me this day from coming to shed blood, and from avenging myself with mine own hand. Before CHRIST about 1060.

34 For in very deed, as the LORD God of Israel liveth, which hath kept me back from hurting thee, except thou hadst hastened and come to meet me, surely there had not been left unto Nabal by the morning light any that pisseth against the wall.

35 So David received of her hand that which she had brought him, and said unto her, Go up in peace to thine house; see, I have hearkened to thy voice, and have accepted thy person.

36 ¶ And Abigail came to Nabal; and, behold, he held a feast in his house, like the feast of a king; and Nabal's heart was merry within him, for he was very drunken: wherefore she told him nothing, less or more, until the morning light.

37 But it came to pass in the morning, when the wine was gone out of Nabal, and his wife had told him these things, that his heart died within him, and he became as a stone.

38 And it came to pass about ten days after, that the LORD smote Nabal, that he died.

39 ¶ And when David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, Blessed be the LORD, that hath pleaded the cause of my reproach

29. — shall be bound in the bundle of life] That is, shall be preserved; for we are wont to bind up in bundles those things which we would not have lost or scattered about. "And the souls of thine enemies, them shall He sling out;" an expression which implies, that they shall be cast away out of sight, or destroyed. Bp. Patrick.

33. — blessed be thy advice, &c.] We must attribute David's design of destroying Nabal's family to his sudden transport of passion, exasperated perhaps by the instigations of his followers. Although in this we cannot commend him, yet certainly there is something extremely praiseworthy in his speedy reconciliation, on Abigail's first address and application. Stackhouse. The resolution against Nabal was the resolution of a mortal, not to say of a military man, too much injured and provoked, and urged by necessity and self-preservation. The change and the thanksgiving, upon being diverted from evil, were the sentiments of a hero and a saint. Dr. Delaney.

34. — the Lord God — which hath kept me back from hurting thee,] David knew full well that he durst not trust his own heart; and, being jealous over himself with a godly jealousy, ever made God his refuge. In this instance, when he had been kept back from sin, on an opportunity provoking him thereto, he blessed God for it, ver. 32; for he saw that it was God's doing, more than his own. Thus, without God's help and blessing, all human endeavours are vain: His help and blessing must therefore be especially sought for by prayer. Bp. Sanderson.

Who would not think that the ungrateful conduct of Nabal, heightened by reproachful language, would have warranted the sharpest revenge; such as began to boil and burn in the breast of this great warrior? But vengeance is so much the prerogative of the Almighty, so absolutely the peculiar of Heaven, that no consideration whatever can warrant the best of men in indulging such a feeling. On this occasion, David, being prevented, by a happy and seasonable pacification, from acting a bloody tragedy on which he was entering, and so turning his eyes from the baseness of him, who had stirred up his revenge, to the goodness of that God who had prevented it, breaks forth into the triumphant praises and thanksgivings here expressed; which serve to teach us the important truth, that prevention of sin is one of the greatest mercies which God can vouchsafe to us in this world. Dr. South.

35. — and have accepted thy person.] I have accepted thy interposition for Nabal, and for thy sake will not execute my intended vengeance. Dr. Chandler.

37. — he became as a stone.] He was struck with such astonishment, according to Josephus, that he fell into a dead numbness all over his body. Stackhouse.

38. — the Lord smote Nabal, that he died.] The history is here not recording a miracle, but only the man's being struck with a mortal disease. This and other such expressions are frequently nothing more than figurative acknowledgments of the universal superintendency of Providence over all human events. Dr. S. Clarke.

There are two reflections to be made on the history of Nabal. 1. The example of Nabal, who, by his greediness and churlishness, well nigh caused the ruin of his whole family, should teach us, that covetousness and ill nature may bring upon us great evils: we learn also from Nabal's death, that avarice, anger, and drunkenness, are generally attended with fatal consequences, and even sometimes occasion the death of those who run into these excesses. 2. From the conduct of David, who, in a transport of rage, vowed to destroy him and his whole family, we may learn how dangerous it is to suffer ourselves to be carried away by passion and resentment; that what is done in anger often occasions repentance and remorse of conscience, and that we ought to thank God when He keeps us from offending against His laws, and executing our evil intentions. Ostervald.

39. — Blessed be the Lord,] David does not rejoice in the death of Nabal, who was a worthless wretch; but in the justice

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

from the hand of Nabal, and hath kept his servant from evil: for the LORD hath returned the wickedness of Nabal upon his own head. And David sent and communed with Abigail, to take her to him to wife.

40 And when the servants of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake unto her, saying, David sent us unto thee, to take thee to him to wife.

41 And she arose, and bowed herself on her face to the earth, and said, Behold, let thine handmaid be a servant to wash the feet of the servants of my lord.

42 And Abigail hasted, and arose, and rode upon an ass, with five damsels of her's that went † after her; and she went after the messengers of David, and became his wife.

43 David also took Ahinoam ^b of Jezreel; and they were also both of them his wives.

44 ¶ But Saul had given ^c Michal his daughter, David's wife, to Phalti the son of Laish, which was of Gallim.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Saul, by the discovery of the Ziphites, cometh to Hachilah against David. 4 David coming into the trench slayeth Abishai from killing Saul, but taketh his spear and cruse. 13 David reproveth Abner, 18 and exhorteth Saul. 21 Saul acknowledgeth his sin.

AND the Ziphites came unto Saul to Gibeah, saying, ^a Doth not David hide himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon?

† Heb.
at her feet.

^b Josh. 15.
56.

^c 2 Sam. 3.
14, 15.

^b Chap. 14.
50. & 17.
55.
¶ Or, midst of his carriages.

^a Chap. 23.
19.

† Heb.
shut up.

of God, who shewed in this instance that right will be done to men, provided they have patience, without their taking vengeance into their own hands. Bp. Patrick. In the whole of this affair with Nabal, it must be allowed, that David's passion, and his oath to destroy Nabal and his family, are by no means to be vindicated: although the provocation given him was of the highest nature, particularly to a military man, and aggravated by circumstances of outrage, yet the oath was rash and the resolution cruel. Still, as the most generous minds are apt to be soonest irritated and most easily pacified, David was quickly soothed by Abigail's prudence; and then blessed the Lord God of Israel for sending her, blessed her advice, and blessed herself for keeping him from bloodshed: all this indicated an ingenuous disposition, and great moderation and humanity of temper. Dr. Chandler.

How fine a lesson is this to mankind to forgive injuries, to reffer themselves and their concerns to the providence of God, to quell the spirit of revenge in the haughty heart, and to recede from rash and wicked resolutions! Dr. Delaney.

44. But Saul had given] Rather, For Saul had given: it is assigned as a reason for David's taking another wife, that Saul had deprived him of his former wife. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXVI. ver. 2. Then Saul arose,] The inconstancy, false-ness, and implacable rage of this prince, are really inconceivable. Not long before, he had been indebted to David for his life, had 2 Then Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph.

3 And Saul pitched in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon, by the way. But David abode in the wilderness, and he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness.

4 David therefore sent out spies, and understood that Saul was come in very deed.

5 ¶ And David arose, and came to the place where Saul had pitched: and David beheld the place where Saul lay, and ^b Abner the son of Ner, the captain of his host: and Saul lay in the ¶ trench, and the people pitched round about him.

6 Then answered David and said to Ahimelech the Hittite, and to Abishai the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee.

7 So David and Abishai came to the people by night: and, behold, Saul lay sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster: but Abner and the people lay round about him.

8 Then said Abishai to David, God hath † delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day: now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear even to the earth at once, and I will not smite him the second time.

acknowledged his own error, and made David swear he would be kind to his posterity: yet here he openly declares himself his enemy again, and seeks to take his life. Bp. Patrick.

5. — lay in the trench,] Or rather, in his chariot; for so the Greek translators have rendered the Hebrew word here. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps a place surrounded with the carriages. Dr. Wells.

— the people pitched round about him.] An Arab camp is always round, when the disposition of the ground will admit it; the prince being in the middle, and the Arabs about him at a respectful distance. Their lances are fixed near them in the ground all the day, ready for action. D'Arvieux's Travels in Palestine. We have several representations in Homer of the chiefs sleeping, surrounded by their captains and soldiers, with their spears stuck in the ground. Dr. Delaney.

7. So David and Abishai came — by night:] This may seem a strange and bold attempt, for two persons to go into the midst of an army of 3000 chosen men. It should be considered, however, that while historians relate something similar of several gallant men, David had throughout an assurance given him, that God would preserve him in all dangers to succeed to the kingdom; and that, at this time, he may have had a particular impulse and incitement from God, in order that he might have a second opportunity of manifesting to Saul his innocence, and the justice of his cause. Dr. Delaney, Stackhouse.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

9 And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: for who can stretch forth his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless?

10 David said furthermore, As the LORD liveth, the LORD shall smite him; or his day shall come to die; or he shall descend into battle, and perish.

11 The LORD forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that is at his bolster, and the cruse of water, and let us go.

12 So David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster; and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither awaked: for they were all asleep; because a deep sleep from the LORD was fallen upon them.

13 ¶ Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of an hill afar off; a great space being between them:

14 And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king?

15 And David said to Abner, Art not thou a valiant man? and who is like to thee in Israel? wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? for there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord.

16 This thing is not good that thou hast

9. — who can stretch forth his hand against the Lord's anointed.] Although David was himself anointed king, and cruelly persecuted by Saul; and though he might have pleaded necessity and providence as much as any persons ever could, (when Saul was thus strangely delivered into his hands,) yet we see what opinion he had of the sacredness of the person of even a bad king. It was not his modesty or policy which kept him from injuring Saul; for he expressly declares, that it was the sin of so doing which kept him from it. He knew it was sufficient (as he states in the next verse) to leave the judgment of Saul's conduct to God. Bp. Stillingfleet.

David before had Saul at a similar advantage in the cave at En-gedi: then it was proposed to David to destroy him himself; but his answer was, God forbid; I will not do it. Now Abishai, knowing from the former instance that David would not do it, offers himself to perform the deed. What is his answer now? "Destroy him not." The short is, Neither waking, as at first, nor sleeping, as now; neither by day, as then, nor by night, as now; neither by himself, nor by other, will David endure to do it or have it done. But, in one and the other case, first and last, still and ever, his words are, Saul the Lord's anointed must not be destroyed. Bp. Andrewes. David rightly apprehended the thing itself, the offering violence to the Lord's anointed, to be utterly unlawful, and this it was which staid his hand: that unlawfulness alone he opposed to all probable advantages and seeming expediences, as a sufficient answer to them all. Bp. Sanderson.

19. — If the Lord &c.] If God hath excited you against me, on the score of any guilt for which I deserve to die, behold, here I am ready to be sacrificed in atonement for it. Dr. Delaney.

done. As the LORD liveth, ye are ^{Before}†worthy to die, because ye have not kept your master, the LORD's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his bolster. ^{CHRIST}about 1060. † Heb. the sons of death.

17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

18 And he said, Wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? for what have I done? or what evil is in mine hand?

19 Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the LORD have stirred thee up against me, let him †accept an offering: but if ^{† Heb. smell.}they be the children of men, cursed be they before the LORD; for they have driven me out this day from †abiding in the inheritance of the LORD, saying, Go, serve other gods. ^{† Heb. cleaving.}

20 Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the LORD: for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains.

21 ¶ Then said Saul, I have sinned: return, my son David: for I will no more do thee harm, because my soul was precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.

22 And David answered and said, Be-

Others understand the words as expressive of David's readiness to offer up any sacrifice; for God is not implacable, but willing to be reconciled, when an offence is committed against Him. Bp. Patrick.

— saying, Go, serve other gods.] This was the effect of what his enemies did, although they did not say so in express words: for they banished him into a nation of another religion. Jos. Mede. The adoption of the local gods of any nation, as well as of their rites, was so general, that David makes his being driven unjustly into an idolatrous land, the same thing as being forced to serve idolatrous gods. Bp. Warburton.

20. — to seek a flea,] To kill a person, from whose destruction could be derived neither profit nor glory. Bp. Patrick.

— as when one doth hunt a partridge.] The account given by Dr. Shaw of the manner of hunting partridges and other birds by the Arabs, affords an excellent comment on these words. "The Arabs have another though more laborious method, of catching these birds; for, observing that they become languid and fatigued after they have been hastily put up twice or thrice, they immediately run in upon them, and knock them down with their bludgeons." It was precisely in this manner that Saul hunted David, coming hastily upon him, and putting him up from time to time, in hope that he should at length, by frequent repetitions of it, be able to destroy him. Harmer.

21. — I have sinned: &c.] The duty and submission of David not only softened, but humbled the haughty and hard heart of Saul; humbled it, if not into a thorough penitent confession, at least into an open acknowledgment of guilt and folly. Dr. Delaney.

Before
CHRIST
about 1060.

hold the king's spear! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.

23 The LORD render to every man his righteousness and his faithfulness: for the LORD delivered thee into my hand to day, but I would not stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed.

24 And, behold, as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the LORD, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation.

25 Then Saul said to David, Blessed be thou, my son David: thou shalt both do great things, and also shalt still prevail. So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Saul hearing David to be in Gath seeketh no more for him. 5 David beggeth Ziklag of Achish. 8 He, invading other countries, persuadeth Achish he fought against Judah.

about 1053.

† Heb.
be consumed.

AND David said in his heart, I shall now † perish one day by the hand of Saul: there is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any coast of Israel: so shall I escape out of his hand.

2 And David arose, and he passed over with the six hundred men that were with him unto Achish, the son of Maach, king of Gath.

3 And David dwelt with Achish at Gath,

25. — So David went on his way.] Through the whole of the adventure related in this chapter, what propriety of character, what justness of sentiment, what tenderness of address do we find! Abishai appears, what he was, a soldier, warm and thirsty of revenge. David is resolute and brave, calm and steady, full of loyalty to his prince, of affection and duty to his father, and reverence for his God. Saul shews himself cruel, inconstant, and relenting: falls under conviction, owns his fault, justifies his son-in-law, promising in his present disposition to injure him no more; and in spite of all his faults moves our compassion towards him. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. XXVII. ver. 1. — I shall now perish one day] David, weary of wandering, weary of struggling with Saul's implacable spirit, and of obtaining a precarious subsistence by the spoils of his enemies, or the bounty of his friends, resolves at last to quit his country, and throw himself once more on the protection of his enemies. This resolution has been censured, on the ground that he should not have left the land of Judah to go into a heathen country, without the Divine command or permission. Wherefore the generality of writers ascribe this resolution to a want of Divine grace, and of a proper confidence in the protection of that God, who had so often and so signally delivered him under the greatest exigencies. Dr. Delaney.

These words seem to have been spoken by David in a melancholy fit, when he was under some great depression of spirit; for, as he had God's promise that he should become king of Israel, he had the strongest possible reason to believe, that Saul would never be able to compass his design against him. He was aware that

Before
CHRIST
about 1053.

he and his men, every man with his household, even David with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the Carmelitess, Nabal's wife.

4 And it was told Saul that David was fled to Gath: and he sought no more again for him.

5 ¶ And David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there: for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee?

6 Then Achish gave him Ziklag that day: wherefore Ziklag pertaineth unto the kings of Judah unto this day.

7 And † the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines was † a full year and four months.

† Heb.
the number of days.

† Heb.
a year of days.

¶ Or, Geshurites.

8 ¶ And David and his men went up, and invaded the Geshurites, and the ‖ Gezrites, and the Amalekites: for those nations were of old the inhabitants of the land, as thou goest to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt.

9 And David smote the land, and left neither man nor woman alive, and took away the sheep, and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned, and came to Achish.

10 And Achish said, ‖ Whither have ye ‖ Or, Did you not make a road, &c. made a road to day? And David said, Against the south of Judah, and against Saul's heart was not altered, although he had felt and expressed some compunction for his past conduct. Bp. Patrick.

6. — Achish gave him Ziklag] Ziklag was situate in the extreme parts of Judah to the south. In the division of the land, it was first given to the tribe of Judah, Josh. xv. 31; and afterwards to that of Simeon, Josh. xix. 5; but the Philistines seem all along to have kept possession; so that it never came into the hands of either tribe, till, by the gift of Achish, it became the peculiar inheritance of David and his successors. Stackhouse.

8. — the Geshurites, and the Gezrites] Of these we know little, only that they were neighbours of the Amalekites, living in the same territory with them, and were therefore, with the other nations, to be extirpated by the Israelites who were to possess their land. Dr. Chandler.

— the Amalekites:] Some that had escaped from the slaughter of Saul, or that were living afar off at the time. And the following words (ver. 11, of David's killing them all) must be understood, that he left none alive whom he found in these parts; for there were still Amalekites in other places, 1 Sam. xxx. 1. Bp. Patrick. The people whom he invaded were most probably the remains of the Canaanites and the Amalekites, whom God had commanded to be destroyed. And therefore, as David had greater obligations to the King of heaven than to the king of Gath, he acted as a good man ought to act. Dr. Waterland.

10. — a road] Or an excursion. Dr. Wells.

— Against the south of Judah, &c.] He answers Achish artfully in these ambiguous words; that he might understand him to have assaulted the land of Judah itself, whereas he had in reality assaulted the people who bordered on the parts he mentions.

Before
CHRIST
about 1058.

the south of the Jerahmeelites, and against the south of the Kenites.

11 And David saved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, saying, Lest they should tell on us, saying, So did David, and so will be his manner all the while he dwelleth in the country of the Philistines.

† Heb. to stink.

12 And Achish believed David, saying, He hath made his people Israel † utterly to abhor him; therefore he shall be my servant for ever.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Achish putteth confidence in David. 3 Saul, having destroyed the witches, 4 and now in his fear forsaken of God, 7 seeketh to a witch. 9 The witch, encouraged by Saul, raiseth up Samuel. 15 Saul, hearing his ruin, fainteth. 21 The woman with his servants refresh him with meal.

about 1056.

AND it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered their armies together for warfare, to fight with Israel. And Achish said unto David, Know thou Bp. Patrick. It is hard to reconcile this management with justice, truth, or gratitude; neither are we bound to justify or approve all the actions even of good men recorded in Scripture. Dr. Wall.

David's answer was ambiguous, but true; for all those people whom he mentions actually dwelt on the south of Judah: but Achish understood the answer as implying that the incursion was made on Judah, which David did not assert. If he was to be blamed, it was for giving an ambiguous answer to a question which he was not obliged to answer directly. Dr. Chandler. David's conduct does not seem to admit strictly of defence, for he certainly practised a deception: and it must be allowed, that all habits of deception have a natural tendency to bias the mind, and warp it from truth; they should therefore be avoided, even where the purpose of the deception is innocent, as was the case here. Dr. Delaney.

Chap. XXVIII. ver. 2. — keeper of mine head] Meaning, captain of his guard, or some great officer near his person. Bp. Patrick.

3. — put away those that had familiar spirits,] This was according to the Divine command, Levit. xx. 27; Deut. xviii. 10, 11: it was probably done by Saul, in the beginning of his reign, when he was guided by Samuel; and is mentioned here to prepare the way for what follows concerning the witch of Endor, and to shew the wickedness of Saul in resorting to a person of that description, all of whom God had commanded to be cut off. Dr. Wells. Or it was done by Saul in a lucid interval, perhaps, when he wished to make some atonement for his crimes. Dr. Hales.

4. — in Shunem:] A city in the tribe of Issachar. — Gilboa.] A ridge of mountains, according to Eusebius and St. Jerome, about six miles from Beth-shan, chap. xxxi. 10; among them was a city of the same name. Dr. Wells.

6. — when Saul enquired of the Lord,] Observe how careless and unthinking men are apt to be in their prosperity, and till the hour of distress comes on. Saul was a man of as much coldness and indifference in religion as any man could be; swayed, for the most part, by his own humour and vanity. He never thought of consulting God, or asking directions from Him, all the time that he was persecuting righteous David from city to city, hunting him through every quarter of the kingdom, and driving him assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to battle, thou and thy men. Before

CHRIST
about 1056.

2 And David said to Achish, Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. And Achish said to David, Therefore will I make thee keeper of mine head for ever.

3 ¶ Now ^a Samuel was dead, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own city. And Saul had put away those that had familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land. Chap. 25.
1.

4 And the Philistines gathered themselves together, and came and pitched in Shunem: and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in Gilboa.

5 And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was afraid, and his heart greatly trembled.

6 And when Saul enquired of the LORD, the LORD answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by Urim, nor by prophets.

7 ¶ Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and enquire out into a strange land. He never thought of consulting God, when he barbarously undertook to murder the Lord's priests, innocent men, who had deserved no evil at his hands. But now, at last, when he perceived his own life to be in danger, as if that alone were precious in God's sight, or that alone worthy of the Divine care and notice; then he began to apply to God, and pretended a respect and reverence for Him, although, all the time, his heart was far from Him. Danger and distress will sometimes frighten and dismay a hardened sinner; but that is all; for it is not a real sorrow for his sins that troubles him, but the sense of what he apprehends of the pain and the destruction just falling upon him. Dr. Waterland.

— the Lord answered him not,] In such cases, as this of Saul, God very justly turns away His ear, and will vouchsafe no answer in the ordinary way, to such grievous offenders. There is a certain degree of longsuffering and forbearance, beyond which even the Divine goodness will not extend. Provocations may proceed to such a height as to leave no room for further mercy. Patience long abused will at last give way to vengeance. God will then withdraw His grace, and lock up His favours, deserting the impenitent hardened wretch, and abandoning him to the wild pursuit of his own inventions. This is a matter of dreadful consideration to all inveterate impenitent offenders; and yet it should not be a discouragement to any man against repenting: because the very disposition or inclination to repentance is a hopeful symptom and a promising argument in his favour, that his day of grace is not past, and that it is not too late to return. Dr. Waterland.

7. — Seek me a woman &c.] Saul, when he was now reduced to extremities, instead of humbling himself before God, fell into another sin, in having recourse to a person that practised forbidden arts, which he himself, agreeably to the law of God, had forbidden under pain of death. This proceeding of Saul proves that he had not consulted God with sentiments of true repentance. This is the true character of sinners, who fill up gradually the measure of their iniquities, committing new and greater abominations, at the very time that the severest judgments are about to fall upon them. Ostervald.

— a woman that hath a familiar spirit,] A woman famed for raising up ghosts (as the world believed) by her sorceries and enchantments. It is not material here to enquire into the myste-

Before
CHRIST
about 1056.

of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor.

8 And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night: and he said, I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and bring me him up, whom I shall name unto thee.

9 And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die?

10 And Saul sware to her by the LORD, saying, As the LORD liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing.

11 Then said the woman, Whom shall I

Before
CHRIST
about 1056.

bring up unto thee? And he said, Bring me up Samuel.

12 And when the woman saw Samuel, she cried with a loud voice: and the woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for thou art Saul.

13 And the king said unto her, Be not afraid: for what sawest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I saw gods ascending out of the earth.

14 And he said unto her, † What form ^{† Heb. What is his form?} is he of? And she said, An old man cometh up; and he is covered with a mantle. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground, and bowed himself.

15 ¶ And Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring me up? And Saul answered, I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and God is departed from me, and answerries of that art to which she pretended. It is sufficient that fame reported this woman to have this power, and Saul believed it; and the woman, trusting to her art, undertook the thing, but God Himself, as it seems, interposed, and both conducted and governed the whole transaction. Dr. Waterland.

— there is a woman &c.] It hence appears, that although this sort of divination was not publicly practised, yet it was known there were some who privately continued the practice of professing to have familiar spirits. In having recourse to such a person, Saul acted like a distracted person. He had banished all wizards and sorcerers out of his kingdom, as a dangerous sort of people, who made profession of a wicked and unwarrantable art; yet now he puts his whole confidence in one, as capable of allaying the uneasiness of his mind, or securing him from the apprehension of danger. Bp. Patrick.

— En-dor.] A place in the tribe of Manasseh, west of Jordan, Josh. xvii. 11. Dr. Wells.

12. And when the woman saw Samuel, &c.] Respecting this history of the raising of Samuel, there have been three different opinions: 1st, It has been supposed that there was no real apparition, but that a delusion was practised on Saul by some person acting in concert with the woman, and making responses to him in a feigned voice; in support of which opinion it is observed, that the history does not say, Saul actually saw Samuel, but “Saul perceived that it was Samuel,” ver. 14; that is, knew him by the description which the woman gave. 2d, It has been conjectured, that some evil spirit appeared with the body and mantle of Samuel, spake articulately, and held this conversation with Saul, being enabled, by some knowledge of future events, to make those predictions which are contained in his answer. 3d, It is thought that the appearance of Samuel was real; God permitting it to take place for wise purposes of His providence; the woman herself crying in alarm “with a loud voice” at the sight of Samuel, as she only intended a delusion. Stackhouse. That God should permit evil spirits, employed by a wretched woman, to summon at pleasure His departed servants from the other world, is not to be imagined. It remains, therefore, either that the whole affair of Samuel’s appearance was a contrivance; or that, by the interposition of God, there was a real appearance, which the enchantress did not expect, and could not have effected. The surprise and alarm occasioned in her seem to favour the latter supposition. Thus it is probable, that when Saul was hoping to receive some kind answer from Samuel, and would have received a favourable one from some pretended Samuel; God was pleased to disappoint both the sorceress and him, by sending the truc Samuel, with a true and faithful message, quite contrary to what the woman and Saul had expected; which so confounded and disordered him, that he instantly fell into a swoon, and could no longer bear up against the bitter agonies of his mind. Bp. Horne. The most probable, and best supported opinion is, that God suffered Samuel’s departed spirit, or a miraculous representation of his person, to appear to Saul, and, as a punishment for his presumptuous impiety, to disclose his impending fate. The text positively calls him Samuel, (Samuel “himself” in the original,) and what he prophesied proved true: for “on the morrow,” that is, soon after, Saul and his sons were slain, and the host of Israel defeated. The woman was herself terrified at a real appearance, when probably she designed a deception, and was preparing her incantations. Dr. Gray. The gravity and suitableness of the answer shew that it was the spirit of Samuel himself: and the event shews that it was from God. Bp. Wilson.

The Son of Sirach, who seems to have had as much wisdom, penetration, and piety as any critick that came after him, is clearly of opinion with the sacred historian that it was Samuel himself who foretold the fate of Saul and his house, ver. 19, in this interview: and it is no unfair presumption, that such was also the judgment of the Jewish Church in his time. It should be well observed, that, whereas it has been made a question whether the Jews believed the existence of the soul after death; this history affords a full decision on this point; and perhaps the establishment of that truth on sensible evidence was one of the purposes of Samuel’s appearance on this occasion. Dr. Delaney.

13. — I saw gods ascending] The Hebrew word Elohim (here translated gods) is often taken in the singular a god, or a great person; and so it should have been rendered here. Dr. Wall. Others translate the words, I saw a judge. Bp. Patrick, Locke. A person like a judge. Dr. Wells. Or, if the plural be retained, we must suppose that, in order to raise Saul’s attention, and his opinion of her art and power, she pretends that she saw “gods” rising out of the earth, as if she had brought up several ghosts by her enchantments. Dr. Chandler.

15. — and God is departed from me,] We should well observe, from the history now before us, how miserable, how melancholy a thing it is, for a man to have sinned to such a degree, as to be entirely abandoned by God, and to have the best friend in the world become his enemy. There is no condition so disconsolate, so deplorable, as that is; there is no expedient that can help him, when so circumstanced, no contrivance that will not turn against

Heb.
CHRIST
about 1056.

† Heb.
by the hand of prophets.

|| Or,
for himself.
b Chap. 15.
28.
† Heb.
mine hand.

† Heb. made haste and fell with the fulness of his stature.

eth me no more, neither † by prophets, nor by dreams: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do.

16 Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?

17 And the LORD hath done || to him, as he spake by † me: for the LORD hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand; and given it to thy neighbour, even to David.

18 Because thou obeyedst not the voice of the LORD, nor excusedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath the LORD done this thing unto thee this day.

19 Moreover the LORD will also deliver Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines: and to morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me: the LORD also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.

20 Then Saul † fell straightway all along on the earth, and was sore afraid, because of the words of Samuel: and there was no strength in him; for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.

21 ¶ And the woman came unto Saul, and saw that he was sore troubled, and said unto him, Behold, thine handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have put my life in my hand, and have hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me.

22 Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also unto the voice of thine handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee; and eat, that thou mayest have strength, when thou goest on thy way.

23 But he refused, and said, I will not eat. But his servants, together with the woman, compelled him; and he hearkened unto their voice. So he arose from the earth, and sat upon the bed.

Before CHRIST about 1056.

24 And the woman had a fat calf in the house; and she hasted, and killed it, and took flour, and kneaded it, and did bake unleavened bread thereof:

25 And she brought it before Saul, and before his servants; and they did eat. Then they rose up, and went away that night.

CHAP. XXIX.

1 David marching with the Philistines, 3 is disallowed by their princes. 6 Achish dismisseth him, with commendations of his fidelity.

NOW the Philistines gathered together all their armies to Aphek: and the Israelites pitched by a fountain which is in Jezreel.

2 And the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds, and by thousands: but David and his men passed on in the re-ward with Achish.

3 Then said the princes of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews here? And Achish said unto the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David, the servant of Saul the king of Israel, which hath been with me these days, or these years, and I have found no fault in him since he fell unto me unto this day?

4 And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him; and the princes of the Philistines said unto him, ^a Make this fellow return, that he may go again to his place which thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to battle, lest in the battle he be an adversary to us: for wherewith should he reconcile himself him, and increase his misery instead of relieving it. What could unhappy Saul do, under his pressing difficulties? God would not assist him, and no one else could. He might think of his court-flatterers, and of his ablest counsellors, and of his troops and armies; but nothing in this world could give him comfort, or afford him relief. Then he thought of deceased Samuel, whom he had often slighted and despised, when alive; and was even foolish enough to imagine, that he could steal a favour from God's servant Samuel, when he could not obtain one from God Himself. Let this sad example convince every man who attends to it, how impossible, how impracticable it is, to lay any scheme of happiness that shall at all answer, without first taking care to make God his friend. Without this, every toil and endeavour must come to nothing. What can any man do, when God becomes his enemy, or but ceases to be his friend? Though he search the whole universe for a moment's protection, yet all is to no purpose; for all is in God's hands: to Him all creatures bow, and every element submits to His will and pleasure. Dr. Waterland.

^a 1 Chron. 12. 19.

19. — to morrow shalt thou &c.] "To morrow," that is, not the next day, but very shortly, shalt thou and thy sons be as I am, or amongst the dead. Bp. Patrick.

21. — I have put my life in my hand,] I have exposed my life to hazard, by letting thee know I practise arts of divination. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXIX. ver. 1. — to Aphek:] There were three places of this name: that in the tribe of Judah seems here meant. Dr. Wells.

— pitched by a fountain] It is related by William of Tyre, that the Christian kings of Jerusalem used to assemble their forces at a fountain between Nazareth and Sephoris, which was greatly celebrated on that account. He mentions also another fountain, near a town called Little Gerinam, which he says was the ancient Jezreel. Near this fountain Saladine pitched his camp, for the benefit of its waters; while Baldwin king of Jerusalem had, as usual, assembled his army at the first mentioned place. This solicitude in the princes of these sultry climates to encamp near fountains, and particularly the mention of one near Jezreel, serve to give an excellent illustration of the passage before us. Harmer.

Before CHRIST about 1056. unto his master? should it not be with the heads of these men?

^b Chap. 18. 7. & 21. 11. 5 Is not this David, of whom they sang one to another in dances, saying, ^b Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

6 ¶ Then Achish called David, and said unto him, Surely, as the LORD liveth, thou hast been upright, and thy going out and thy coming in with me in the host is good in my sight: for I have not found evil in thee since the day of thy coming unto me unto this day: nevertheless † the lords favour thee not.

7 Wherefore now return, and go in peace, that thou † displease not the lords of the Philistines.

8 ¶ And David said unto Achish, But what have I done? and what hast thou found in thy servant so long as I have been † with thee unto this day, that I may not go fight against the enemies of my lord the king?

9 And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, as an angel of God: notwithstanding the princes of the Philistines have said, He shall not go up with us to the battle.

10 Wherefore now rise up early in the morning with thy master's servants that are come with thee: and as soon as ye be up early in the morning, and have light, depart.

11 So David and his men rose up early to depart in the morning, to return into the land of the Philistines. And the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

CHAP. XXX.

1 The Amalekites spoil Ziklag. 4 David asking counsel is encouraged by God to pursue them. 11 By the means of a revived Egyptian he is brought to the enemies, and recovereth all the spoil. 22 David's law to

8. — But what have I done? &c.] David's answer was a prudent one, and such as became the circumstances in which he was placed; for he promised nothing, and laid himself under no sort of engagement: he neither denied what the Philistines suspected, that he would fall off to Saul in the battle, nor made the least mention of his readiness to fight with the Philistines against the Hebrews. He merely asked why he should be refused to fight against the enemies of the king. Dr. Chandler.

9. — as an angel of God:] Meaning, that he looked upon David as a man sent down to him from heaven. Bp. Patrick.

11. So David and his men.] We may easily apprehend to what straits David was reduced, on Achish insisting that he must go with him against Saul. He was now under the necessity of warring against his country, or betraying his benefactor. The alternative was indeed distressful: to Achish he owed allegiance; for protection exacts allegiance—but to Saul he owed more. Dr. Delaney. What peculiar providence was here, that David should be delivered out of his great strait, of either being false to his divide the spoil equally between them that fight and them that keep the stuff. 26 He sendeth presents to his friends. Before CHRIST about 1056.

AND it came to pass, when David and his men were come to Ziklag on the third day, that the Amalekites had invaded the south, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire;

2 And had taken the women captives, that were therein: they slew not any, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.

3 ¶ So David and his men came to the city, and, behold, it was burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken captives.

4 Then David and the people that were with him lifted up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep.

5 And David's two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite.

6 And David was greatly distressed; for the people spake of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was † grieved, every man for his sons and for his daughters: but David encouraged himself in the LORD his God.

7 And David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod. And Abiathar brought thither the ephod to David.

8 And David enquired at the LORD, saying, Shall I pursue after this troop? shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.

9 So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where those that were left behind stayed.

10 But David pursued, he and four hundred men: for two hundred abode behind, patron, or fighting against Saul and his own nation! Bp. Wilson.

Chap. XXX. ver. 8. And David enquired at the Lord,] David on this occasion shewed his piety in consulting the Lord to know what he was to do. And God having ordered him to pursue the Amalekites, he recovered all that they had taken away, delivered his wives, and took from them a considerable booty. By these means the evil that befell David turned to his advantage, and to his greater glory; and thus, those who in their troubles make the will of God their rule and guide, never fail to experience His favour and protection. Ostervald.

— Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake] At the time when this answer was given, the accomplishment of it was highly improbable; for the Amalekites were greatly superiour in number to David's forces: the route which they had taken was uncertain, and the chance of recovering the booty they had taken very small; still the oracle was positive, full, and express, and the success was answerable. Dr. Chandler.

Before
CHRIST
about 1056.

which were so faint that they could not go over the brook Besor.

11 ¶ And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he did eat; and they made him drink water;

12 And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: and when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him: for he had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days and three nights.

13 And David said unto him, To whom belongest thou? and whence art thou? And he said, I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite; and my master left me, because three days ago I fell sick.

14 We made an invasion upon the south of the Cherethites, and upon the coast which belongeth to Judah, and upon the south of Caleb; and we burned Ziklag with fire.

15 And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And he said, Swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to this company.

16 ¶ And when he had brought him down, behold, they were spread abroad upon all the earth, eating and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil that they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah.

† Heb. their morrow.

17 And David smote them from the twilight even unto the evening of † the next day: and there escaped not a man of them, save four hundred young men, which rode upon camels, and fled.

18 And David recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away: and David rescued his two wives.

19 And there was nothing lacking to them, neither small nor great, neither sons nor daughters, neither spoil, nor any thing that they had taken to them: David recovered all.

12. — a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: In the history of the piratical states of Barbary, it is said, concerning an expedition of some of the natives, "Their temperance is admirable: some meal, a few figs and raisins, which they carry in a goat's skin, serve them a seven or eight days' journey." This is similar to the account here given by the sacred writer, of the provisions carried by David and his men in their expedition against the Amalekites, as appears by what they gave the poor famished Egyptian. The bread of the Israelites answers to the meal of Barbary; and the figs and raisins are what the Moors carry at this day. Harmer.

14. — the south of Caleb; We read no where else of this

Before
CHRIST
about 1056.

20 And David took all the flocks and the herds, which they drave before those other cattle, and said, This is David's spoil.

21 ¶ And David came to the two hundred men, which were so faint that they could not follow David, whom they had made also to abide at the brook Besor: and they went forth to meet David, and to meet the people that were with him: and when David came near to the people, he || saluted them.

|| Or,
asked them how they did.
† Heb.
men.

22 Then answered all the wicked men and men of Belial, of † those that went with David, and said, Because they went not with us, we will not give them ought of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart.

23 Then said David, Ye shall not do so, my brethren, with that which the Lord hath given us, who hath preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us into our hand.

24 For who will hearken unto you in this matter? but as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that carrieth by the stuff: they shall part alike.

25 And it was so from that day † forward, that he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel unto this day.

† Heb. and forward.

26 ¶ And when David came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoil unto the elders of Judah, even to his friends, saying, Behold a † present for you of the spoil of the enemies of the Lord;

† Heb.
blessing.

27 To them which were in Beth-el, and to them which were in south Ramoth, and to them which were in Jattir,

28 And to them which were in Aroer, and to them which were in Siphmoth, and to them which were in Eshtemoa,

29 And to them which were in Rachal, and to them which were in the cities of the Jerahmeelites, and to them which were in the cities of the Kenites,

30 And to them which were in Hormah, land: it means, probably, the south part of Judah, which was given to Caleb, Josh. xiv. 13. Bp. Patrick.

23. — Ye shall not do so, my brethren, The humanity and justice of David are here displayed to great advantage, in his equitable distribution of the booty taken from the enemy, by ordering, that those who were disabled from actual fighting should share equally with the rest. Dr. Chandler. This determination of David's became a law among the Israelites from that day, ver. 25, till the time when this history was written: and we have reason to believe that it lasted after this, as long as the Jewish polity continued, and was restored with it: and it is generally understood to have been practised by the Maccabees, 2 Mac. viii. Dr. Delaney.

Before CHRIST 1056. and to them which were in Chor-ashan, and to them which were in Athach, 31 And to them which were in Hebron, and to all the places where David himself and his men were wont to haunt.

CHAP. XXXI.

1 Saul having lost his army, and his sons slain, he and his armourbearer kill themselves. 7 The Philistines possess the forsaken towns of the Israelites. 8 They triumph over the dead carcasses. 11 They of Jabesh-gilead, recovering the bodies by night, burn them at Jabesh, and mournfully bury their bones.

^a 1 Chron. 10. 1.

|| Or, wounded.

NOW ^a the Philistines fought against Israel: and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down || slain in mount Gilboa.

2 And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchishua, Saul's sons.

† Heb. shooters, men with bows.

3 And the battle went sore against Saul, and the † archers † hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.

† Heb. found him.

4 Then said Saul unto his armourbearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and || abuse me. But his armourbearer would not; for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.

|| Or, mock me.

Chap. XXXI. ver. 2. — slew Jonathan,] It was certainly no small grief to David, to hear of Jonathan's death, as well as a trial of his patience and resignation to the Divine will: yet still there seems to be a direction of Providence in suffering him to be slain, that David might more easily come to the throne. For, though Jonathan might have made a voluntary surrender of the throne, yet, as he was the people's favourite, there might have been some who would not allow of it. Stackhouse.

In the story of Jonathan and David, we see an instance of friendship properly founded and animated with warmth and tenderness; conducted too with prudence as well as warmth. Jonathan saw enough, in the virtues and distresses of David, to excite his love and pity; yet he conducted himself, not only with a friendly regard to the merits and distresses of David, but with a filial regard to him who was the author of that distress. He followed the call of friendship, but not beyond the call of allegiance to his father. We hear little more of Jonathan, after his separation from David when in exile: but it is easy to conclude, that, by remaining with his father, he had more opportunities of serving him than if he had followed him into exile. If he had gone to David, he must have struggled, not only with the envy of a jealous king, but with the resentment of an injured father; and would have lost the merit of his friendship in the guilt of rebellion against his father. By remaining at home, he could watch his father's heart, improve every favourable sentiment he saw rise within it, and soften, if not suppress the malignant ones. In short, Jonathan chose, not only the most honourable, but the most important, post of friendship, from whence he could dispense the several benefits which flow from the united character of a great man, a true subject, and a faithful friend. Dr. H. Stebbing. Who can fail to drop a tear over the faithful, the amiable, the excellent Jonathan! There are few characters among men more amiable or more extraordinary: he was endowed with 5 And when his armourbearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.

Before CHRIST 1056.

6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armourbearer, and all his men, that same day together.

7 ¶ And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were on the other side Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

8 And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen in mount Gilboa.

9 And they cut off his head, and stripped off his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to publish it in the house of their idols, and among the people.

10 And they put his armour in the house of Ashtaroth: and they fastened his body to the wall of Beth-shan.

11 ¶ And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard || of that which the Philistines had done to Saul;

|| Or, concerning him.

12 All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul and fortitude, fidelity, magnanimity, a soul susceptible of the most refined friendship, yet superiour to all the temptations of ambition and vanity; and all these crowned with the most resigned submission to the will of God. Dr. Delaney.

4. — unto his armourbearer,] It is the constant tradition of the Jews, that this armourbearer was Doeg. Dr. Delaney.

— lest these uncircumcised come &c.] He was afraid they might put him to some ignominious death, or make sport with him, as they did with Samson. Bp. Patrick.

6. So Saul died,] There is nothing to commend in the manner of Saul's death. He died, not gallantly fighting, but by his own hand; he died, not as a hero, but as a deserter. Self-murder is manifestly the effect of cowardice, and it is as irrational and iniquitous as it is base. God, whose creatures we are, is the sole Arbiter, as He is the sole Author of life: our lives are His property, and He has given us our country, our family, and our friends: thus, besides the injury done to our fellow creatures in a variety of relation, the act of self-murder incurs the heavy guilt of desertion of the post assigned to us by God, and of rebellious disobedience to His commands. Dr. Delaney.

9. — in the house of their idols,] That they might give thanks to their gods for the victory they had obtained. Bp. Patrick.

10. — in the house of Ashtaroth:] The custom of dedicating to the gods the spoils of a conquered enemy, and placing them in their temples as a trophy of victory, is extremely ancient. Frequent instances of it are mentioned in the Greek and Roman writers. See note at chap. xxi. 9.

— and they fastened his body] To expose it to publick shame and reproach, as we do the bodies of great malefactors. Bp. Patrick.

— Beth-shan.] A city in the tribe of Manasseh: to this place the people of Jabesh might march (ver. 12) in the course of a night. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1056. the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh, and ^b burnt them there.

^a Jer. 34. 5.

13 And they took their bones, and ^c buried them under a tree at Jabesh, and fasted seven days.

Before CHRIST 1056.

^c 2 Sam. 2. 4.

13. — fasted seven days.] As a token and expression of great sorrow. Bp. Patrick.

The death of Saul is well deserving of our serious attention. This prince, who had been chosen by God to the throne, and who began his reign so well, made a miserable end; and the threatenings denounced against him by God on several occasions were fully put in execution. Thus it always has been, and always will be, with the Divine denunciations, whether against particular persons, or against sinners in general. This event ought to inspire us with a wholesome fear, and to impress us with the conviction, that those, who are enriched by God with blessings, and who abuse those blessings, are at last abandoned by Him, and made examples of His indignation. When we see the sons of Saul, and Jonathan in particular, a man of so much piety and virtue, perish with him, we are made to call to mind how often the innocent are involved with the guilty in temporal judgments; a dispensation, which God ordains for wise and just reasons, and with the view of promoting the real welfare of His faithful servants. Ostervald.

The following Chapters from the first book of Samuel are appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. II.	-	-	-	-	3rd Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— III.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.
— XII.	-	-	-	-	4th Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— XIII.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.
— XV.	-	-	-	-	5th Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— XVII.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.
— XIX. ver. 18.	-	-	-	-	Whit-Tuesday,	-	-	-	-	Morning.

THE SECOND BOOK OF
S A M U E L,

OTHERWISE CALLED,

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Second book of Samuel bears an exact relation to the preceding history, and is likewise connected with that which succeeds. The history contains a period of near forty years, from about A. M. 2948 to 2988. It describes the establishment and prosperity of David's reign; which he deserved, as well by his generous respect for the memory of Saul, as by the excellency of those many qualities which his maturer piety displayed. It relates the extinction of Saul's family, and David's grateful and unsuspicious kindness to the surviving son of Jonathan. The inspired author then records the fall of David; and exhibits a sad proof of the unhappy depravity to which the noblest minds may be seduced by passion. He represents to us God's anger softened, but not appeased, by David's repentance; who was soon after punished by the death of the child, and many domestick calamities. The transgression of Amnon was the first consequence of his bad example; and "evil rose up against him out of his own house" (Nathan's prophetick threat, chap. xii. 11) in the ambitious intrigues and rebellion of Absalom. We soon behold him a degraded and fugitive sovereign, reviled by his meanest subjects, and severely punished for his conduct towards Uriah, by the incestuous outrage of his son, chap. xvi. 21, 22. The submissive repentance, however, and restored virtues of David, procured his pardon and reestablishment on his throne; which he dignified by the display of the greatest moderation, justice, and piety. If in the exultation of his recovered prosperity, God suffered him (chap. xxiv. 1; and 1 Chron. xxi. 1) to be betrayed into an ostentatious numbering of the people, "his heart smote him" to immediate repentance, and he piously threw himself on God's mercy, and entreated that he only might suffer from the indignation which he had provoked. The vicissitude of events which the book describes, the fall and restoration of David, the effects of his errors, and his return to righteousness, are represented in the most interesting manner, and furnish valuable lessons to mankind. The author, in the concise style of sacred history, selects only the most striking features of character, and the most important incidents of those revolutions of which he treats; and among the conspicuous beauties of the book, we can never sufficiently admire the feeling lamentation over Saul and Jonathan, the expressive parable of Nathan, and the triumphant hymn of David.

The prophecies contained in the book are, first, that which blended temporal and spiritual blessings in the promises relative to Solomon and the Messiah; the permanency of David's throne, and the perpetuity of that kingdom which is prefigured chap. vii. 12, 16; Heb. i. 5. Secondly, the predictive denunciations of Nathan, chap. xii. 11—14: and, lastly, the figurative descriptions of David's psalm, chap. xxii; by whom the "Spirit of the Lord spake," assuring him of an everlasting covenant, chap. xxiii. 2, 5. Dr. Gray.

CHAP. I.

Before
CHRIST
1056.

1 The Amalekite, who brought tidings of the overthrow, and accused himself of Saul's death, is slain. 17 David lamenteth Saul and Jonathan with a song.

NOW it came to pass after the death of Saul, when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag;

^a 1 Sam.
30. 17.

2 It came even to pass on the third day, that, behold, a man came out of the camp from Saul with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head: and so it was, when he came to David, that he fell to the earth, and did obeisance.

Before
CHRIST
1056.

3 And David said unto him, From whence comest thou? And he said unto

Before
CHRIST
1056.

† Heb.
If that was,
&c.

him, Out of the camp of Israel am I escaped.

4 And David said unto him, † How went the matter? I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, That the people are fled from the battle, and many of the people also are fallen and dead; and Saul and Jonathan his son are dead also.

5 And David said unto the young man that told him, How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son be dead?

6 And the young man that told him said, As I happened by chance upon mount Gilboa, behold, Saul leaned upon his spear; and, lo, the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him.

7 And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called unto me. And I answered, † Here am I.

† Heb.
Behold me.

8 And he said unto me, Who art thou? And I answered him, I am an Amalekite.

|| Or, my coat of mail, or, my embroidered coat hin-dereth me, that my,
&c.

9 He said unto me again, Stand, I pray thee, upon me, and slay me: for || anguish is come upon me, because my life is yet whole in me.

10 So I stood upon him, and slew him, because I was sure that he could not live after that he was fallen: and I took the crown that was upon his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord.

Before
CHRIST
1056.

11 Then David took hold on his clothes, and rent them; and likewise all the men that were with him:

Chap 3.
31. & 13.
31.

12 And they mourned, and wept, and fasted until even, for Saul, and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of the LORD, and for the house of Israel; because they were fallen by the sword.

13 ¶ And David said unto the young man that told him, Whence art thou? And he answered, I am the son of a stranger, an Amalekite.

14 And David said unto him, ° How wast thou not afraid to stretch forth thine hand to destroy the LORD's anointed? ° Psal. 105 15.

15 And David called one of the young men, and said, Go near, and fall upon him. And he smote him that he died.

16 And David said unto him, Thy blood be upon thy head; for thy mouth hath testified against thee, saying, I have slain the LORD's anointed.

17 ¶ And David lamented with this lamentation over Saul and over Jonathan his son:

18 (Also he bade them teach the chil-

6. — Saul leaned upon his spear;] Rather, perhaps, "Saul had fallen on his spear;" for it is mentioned at ver. 10, that he was now fallen. It appears from 1 Sam. xxxi. 4, that when Saul fell upon his spear, his armourbearer thought him immediately dead; but it seems he was not quite dead when this Amalekite came up; and desired to be killed outright. Thus Josephus relates the event. Dr. Wall. Or else, from the want of consistency between this account, and that of 1 Sam. xxxi, we must suppose that the Amalekite contrived a false account, perhaps to ingratiate himself with David, if he approved the fact. Dr. Wells, Bp. Patrick. It is by no means probable that the main circumstance told by this Amalekite could be true. According to the account of Saul's death, given in the course of the history, 1 Sam. xxxi, Saul desires his armourbearer to kill him, but he refuses: he then falls on his own sword; and his servant, seeing him dead, does the same. Now, where is the interval or opening for the scene between Saul and the Amalekite to take place? or, would the armourbearer, who refused to kill Saul, stand by, and suffer an Amalekite to kill him? Bp. Horne.

9. — anguish is come upon me,] There is no certainty about the Hebrew word, translated anguish: many persons understand the word to mean some article of dress, and therefore prefer the translation of our margin, "my embroidered coat (or coat of mail) is upon me;" meaning, that it prevented the spear from penetrating his body. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

12. And they mourned, and wept,] We may observe here the piety and honest heart of David, who behaved on this occasion with the same temper towards Saul, which he had borne in his lifetime, and was thus deeply concerned at his death, although it caused him to ascend the throne, and secured him from any further persecutions. Thus does every man of sincere piety and solid virtue behave. Whatever injuries his enemies have done to him, how wicked soever their lives have been, he never exults over their misfortunes, but rather grieves at them. Ostervald.

15. — he smote him that he died.] This he did, to punish his rashness and presumption, in laying hands upon a prince specially appointed by God, and under the immediate direction of His providence. Pyle. This self-convicted wretched Amalekite died for a crime which he had not committed; yet he well deserved to die, for taking the guilt of it upon him. David rightly judged that Saul had no power over his own life, and consequently should not have been obeyed in such a command: God and the state had as much right to his life when he was weary of it, as when he most loved it. Besides, it behoved David to vindicate his own innocence to the world by this public execution, since otherwise he might have been branded with the guilt of employing that wretch to murder his persecutor. Dr. Delaney. No doubt this wretch intended to make a merit of this affair, and to ingratiate himself with David, by telling him that he had destroyed Saul, and by presenting him with the spoils of royalty, of which he had stripped him. But, alas! he knew not David. He knew not that a crown would be unwelcome to him at the price of treason, and that a throne would not be tempting to him, if purchased with parricide. Dr. Chandler. David evidently saw through the character of the man, and perhaps concluded, from his forward officiousness in the affair, that he had taken some undue advantage of Saul in his wounded state; and slain him on purpose that he might find favour with his successor, by bringing him all this welcome intelligence. This may be inferred from David's words at 2 Sam. iv. 10. Bp. Horne.

17. And David lamented — over Saul and over Jonathan] This is the first specimen afforded us of David's poetical talents: it is elegant, tender, and pathetic. Dr. Hales.

18. (Also he bade them teach &c.) This comes in, as a parenthesis, between the former verse and that which follows, to shew the early endeavours of David to promote the good of his people; and his care of the living, amidst his lamentations for the dead. He ordered that the children of Judah should be immediately better instructed in the use of the bow and arrow, in order more effectually to contend with the Philistines. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1056.

4 Josh. 10.
13.
|| Or,
of the upright.
6 Micah 1.
10.

dren of Judah the use of the bow: behold, it is written ^d in the book of || Jasher.)

19 The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: how are the mighty fallen!

20 ^e Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

21 Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain, upon you, nor fields of offerings: for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty.

23 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and || pleasant in their lives, and in their death

|| Or,
sweet.

— behold, it is written] That is, the fact of his having given this order for teaching the children of Judah the use of the bow, “is written in the book of Jasher;” respecting which see note at Josh. x. 13. Bp. Patrick.

19. — how are the mighty fallen!] What a slaughter is made among the valiant men of the army; the flower of the nation, the choicest of its young men, lost, together with Saul and his sons! Bp. Patrick. This exclamation, with which three stanzas are marked, ver. 25, 27, seems to be the simple dictate of sorrow on the several topicks of lamentation which presented themselves. It is therefore to be considered as a kind of burden to the song. David knew that the death of these mighty men, with the flower of the army, as it was matter of reproach to the nation, so would be the subject of exultation to their enemies; and, not being able to endure the thought of this, breaks out into that beautiful apostrophe, “Tell it not in Gath,” the chief city of the Philistines, &c. Dr. Delaney.

21. — nor fields of offerings:] Meaning fruitful fields, from which offerings might be brought to the house of God. Bp. Patrick. There seem to have been fruitful fields about Gilboa, which, by the large increase they produced, afforded very liberally firstfruits for offerings to the Lord. Dr. Chandler.

— the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away,] Even “the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil;” that is, as if he had not been a king, but a common soldier. Bp. Patrick. The throwing away the shield was matter of the highest reproach among all nations of antiquity; and this, in the practice of so brave a prince as Saul, was an example of terrible consequence, and therefore must not go unproved, especially in a song which soldiers were to learn. Dr. Delaney. Or it may be meant, that, after the death of Saul, his shield was “vilely cast away” without any regard to the sacred character of the owner.

23. — in their death they were not divided:] This is said in the true spirit of friendship, and in one of its finest distresses; he congratulates Saul and Jonathan on that happy circumstance of their friendship, that they were undivided in death. Dr. Delaney.

27. — the weapons of war perished!] All military glory is gone from Israel. Bp. Patrick. Or, the weapons and armour of the slain are taken away by the Philistines in triumph. Dr. Wells.

Let any man but read over this admirable ode of David, than which there is nothing more elegant and passionate in all antiquity, and he will find in it all the marks of a generous grief, and the utmost decency and propriety in the expressions of it. In the encomiums passed respectively on Saul and Jonathan, there is nothing but what became the character of both, and suited the situation of him that gave them. He celebrates Saul for his former victories, and sheds a tear over him for his defeat, and the indigthey were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were stronger than lions.

24 Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.

25 How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places.

26 I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

27 How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

Before
CHRIST
1056.

CHAP. II.

1 David, by God's direction, with his company goeth up to Hebron, where he is made king of Judah. 5 He nities offered to him after his death; but without a single reflection on his past injustice and cruelty towards himself. And as to Jonathan his friend, the sorrow he expresses for him is most tender and pathetick. The lamentation over the slain heroes of Israel in the beginning, and several times repeated; the manner in which he expresses his grief at the thought of the defeat's being published among the Philistines; his passionately wishing that neither dews nor rains might ever fall on the mountains of Gilboa and the fields surrounding them; his recounting the past victories of Saul and Jonathan, who never drew a bow or brandished a sword without its proving fatal to their enemies, to set forth in a more lively manner the reverse of their condition; his honourable mention of their mutual affection while they lived, and their dying bravely together in the field of battle; his exclamation to the daughters of Israel to mourn over Saul; his celebration of the mutual tender friendship between himself and Jonathan; in a word, his whole elegy, both in sentiment and expression, hath all the charms with which the spirit of poetry can adorn it, shews the richness of David's genius, and will be a monument to his praise through all generations. Dr. Chandler. This ode is a lamentation equally pathetick and heroick, the lamentation of a brave man over brave men. The bursts of sorrow in it are so strong and sudden; so short, various, and unconnected, that never perhaps was grief painted in more living and lasting colours. It affords a beautiful proof that David's heart was so softened and melted by grief, as to lose every trace of Saul's cruelty to him. He remembered nothing in him now but the brave man, the valiant leader, the magnificent prince, the king of God's appointment, his own once indulgent master; the father of his Michal and his Jonathan; of his beloved wife and his lamented friend. Dr. Delaney.

Noble ideas aggrandize the soul of him, who writes with a true taste of virtue. David's lamentation over Saul and Jonathan is peculiarly pleasing, in that there is such an exquisite sorrow expressed in it, without the least allusion to the difficulties from which David was extricated by the fall of those great men in his way to empire. When he receives the tidings of Saul's death, his generous mind has in it no reflection upon the merit of the unhappy man who was taken out of his way, but what raises in him sorrow, instead of giving him consolation. How beautiful is the more amiable and noble part of Saul's character, represented by a man whom that very Saul pursued to death! But when he comes to mention Jonathan, the sublimity ceases; and, not able to mention his generous friendship and the most noble instances ever given by man, he sinks into a fondness that will not admit of high language or allusions to the greater circumstances of their life, and turns only upon their familiar converse: “I am distressed for thee, &c.” See ver. 26. Steele.

Before
CHRIST
1056.

commendeth them of Jabesh-gilead for their kindness to Saul. 8 Abner maketh Ish-bosheth king of Israel. 12 A mortal skirmish between twelve of Abner's and twelve of Joab's men. 18 Asahel is slain. 25 At Abner's motion Joab soundeth a retreat. 32 Asahel's burial.

AND it came to pass after this, that David enquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah? And the LORD said unto him, Go up. And David said, Whither shall I go up? And he said, Unto Hebron.

2 So David went up thither, and his two wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail Nabal's wife the Carmelite.

3 And his men that were with him did David bring up, every man with his household: and they dwelt in the cities of Hebron.

about 1055.
a 1 Mac. 2.
57.

4 ^a And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah. And they told David, saying, That ^b the men of Jabesh-gilead were they that buried Saul.

b 1 Sam. 31.
13.

5 ¶ And David sent messengers unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, and said unto them, Blessed be ye of the LORD, that ye have shewed this kindness unto your lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him.

6 And now the LORD shew kindness and truth unto you: and I also will requite you this kindness, because ye have done this thing.

† Heb. be ye the sons of valour.

7 Therefore now let your hands be strengthened, and † be ye valiant: for your master Saul is dead, and also the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

Before
CHRIST
about 1055.

8 ¶ But Abner the son of Ner, captain of † Saul's host, took Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim;

† Heb.
the host which was Saul's.

9 And made him king over Gilead, and over the Ashurites, and over Jezreel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all Israel.

10 Ish-bosheth Saul's son was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David.

1055.

11 And the † time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

† Heb. number of
days.

12 ¶ And Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to Gibeon.

13 And Joab the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out, and met † together by the pool of Gibeon: and they sat down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool.

about 1053.

† Heb. them together.

14 And Abner said to Joab, Let the young men now arise, and play before us. And Joab said, Let them arise.

15 Then there arose and went over by number twelve of Benjamin, which pertained to Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David.

16 And they caught every one his fellow by the head, and thrust his sword in his

Chap. 11. ver. 1. — Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah?] Though David well knew that his head was long before anointed, and though he had heard Saul himself confidently affirming his succession, yet he will not stir till he has consulted the Lord. It did not content him that he had God's warrant for the kingdom, but he must have His instructions for taking possession of it. How safe and happy is the man that is resolved to do nothing without God! Bp. Hall.

— Unto Hebron.] As Hebron was situate in the midst of the tribe of Judah, and a very ancient city, the metropolis of the whole tribe, and the possession of those priestly families, who espoused David's interest, it was a very commodious city for him to make the place of his residence at this juncture; as he was not insensible that the determination of the metropolis in his favour would be of great weight to influence the whole tribe: and accordingly we find, that he was soon invested with the sovereignty of it. Dr. Delancy. Hebron seems now to have been the capital city of Judah; Jerusalem, or at least the fortress of mount Sion, that commanded it, being at this time in the hands of the Jebusites. Dr. Chandler.

4. — there they anointed David] As he had before been privately anointed by Samuel, when he was first marked out for the kingdom; so he was now publicly anointed by way of inauguration on assuming the royal office. The men of Judah, here acting independently for themselves, did not presume to know the sense of the other tribes of Israel, but trusted they would afterwards follow this example, as in fact they did, chap. v. 3. Bp. Patrick.

8. — Abner — took Ish-bosheth the son of Saul,] If Abner had acted on principles of justice, and as a faithful friend to the succession of Saul's house, he would have advanced to the crown, not Ish-bosheth, but Mephibosheth, Jonathan's son, to whom, if the crown was to descend by hereditary right, it certainly belonged. Dr. Chandler.

— brought him over to Mahanaim;] Brought him over Jordan to Mahanaim, a place in the tribe of Gad, so called from the appearance of angels to Jacob, Gen. xxxii. 1, 2. Abner's reasons for retreating hither seem to have been, to secure the people on that side of Jordan, who were generally attached to Saul's family, to prevent the Philistines from falling on the king whom he had under his protection, and chiefly to be at a greater distance from David. Stackhouse.

9. — over all Israel.] Over all the tribes on the western side Jordan, save the tribe of Judah. Bp. Patrick.

14. — and play before us.] While the two armies faced one another, on different sides of the pool, Abner desires that some soldiers may be picked out, to make sport for the two armies, and to undergo a trial of their strength and courage. Bp. Patrick. Abner seems to have meant, not that they should fall upon, and destroy one another, but merely that they should practise a little their military exercises, to divert the spectators. Stackhouse.

16. — they caught every one &c.] The sense seems to be, that the servants of David thrust a sword into each of the Benjamites, so that the twelve men of Benjamin fell down dead together. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells. The sense is uncertain: either all the Ben-

Before
CHRIST
about 1053.
|| That is,
The field of strong men.

fellow's side; so they fell down together: wherefore that place was called || Helkath-hazzurim, which is in Gibeon.

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten, and the men of Israel, before the servants of David.

18 ¶ And there were three sons of Zeruiah there, Joab, and Abishai, and Asahel: and Asahel was as light † of foot † as a wild roe.

† Heb. of his feet.
† Heb.
as one of the roes that is in the field.
† Heb. from after Abner.

19 And Asahel pursued after Abner; and in going he turned not to the right hand nor to the left from † following Abner.

20 Then Abner looked behind him, and said, Art thou Asahel? And he answered, I am.

21 And Abner said to him, Turn thee aside to thy right hand or to thy left, and lay thee hold on one of the young men, and take thee his || armour. But Asahel would not turn aside from following of him.

|| Or,
spoil.

22 And Abner said again to Asahel, Turn thee aside from following me: wherefore should I smite thee to the ground? how then should I hold up my face to Joab thy brother?

23 Howbeit he refused to turn aside: wherefore Abner with the hinder end of the spear smote him under the fifth rib, that the spear came out behind him; and he fell down there, and died in the same place: and it came to pass, that as many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died stood still.

24 Joab also and Abishai pursued after Abner: and the sun went down when they were come to the hill of Ammah, that lieth before Giah by the way of the wilderness of Gibeon.

25 ¶ And the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together after Abner, and became one troop, and stood on the top of an hill.

26 Then Abner called to Joab, and said, Shall the sword devour for ever? knowest thou not that it will be bitterness in the latter end? how long shall it be then, ere thou bid the people return from following their brethren?

27 And Joab said, As God liveth, unless thou hadst spoken, surely then † in the morning the people had || gone up every † one from following his brother.

Before
CHRIST
about 1053.
† Heb. from the morning.
|| Or,
gone away.

28 So Joab blew a trumpet, and all the people stood still, and pursued after Israel no more, neither fought they any more.

29 And Abner and his men walked all that night through the plain, and passed over Jordan, and went through all Bithron, and they came to Mahanaim.

30 And Joab returned from following Abner: and when he had gathered all the people together, there lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asahel.

31 But the servants of David had smitten of Benjamin, and of Abner's men, so that three hundred and threescore men died.

32 ¶ And they took up Asahel, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Beth-lehem. And Joab and his men went all night, and they came to Hebron at break of day.

CHAP. III.

1 During the war David still waxeth stronger. 2 Six sons were born to him in Hebron. 6 Abner, displeased with Ish-bosheth, 12 revolteeth to David. 13 David requireth a condition to bring him his wife Michal. 17 Abner, having communed with the Israelites, is feasted by David, and dismissed. 22 Joab, returning from battle, is displeased with the king, and killeth Abner. 28 David curseth Joab, 31 and mourneth for Abner.

NOW there was long war between the house of Saul and the house of David: but David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker.

2 ¶ And unto David were sons born in Hebron: and his firstborn was Amnon, of Ahinoam the Jezreelitess;

3 And his second, Chileab, of Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom the son of Maacah the daughter of Talmai king of Geshur;

4 And the fourth, Adonijah the son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah the son of Abital;

5 And the sixth, Ithream, by Eglah David's wife. These were born to David in Hebron.

jamites fell by the hand of David's men, or the whole twenty-four fell by the hands of each other. Pyle.

23. — Abner with the hinder end of the spear &c.] These words should rather be rendered, "Abner smote him in the belly, turning his spear backwards." As Abner was the foremost, he turned his spear backward, and so killed Asahel. Houbigant.

— as many as came — stood still.] They ceased from the pursuit, fearing perhaps the same fate. Bp. Patrick.

27. — unless thou hadst spoken,] "Unless thou hadst sent the challenge," mentioned at ver. 14. Dr. Wells. Unless thou hadst provoked me to battle. Locke.

Before
CHRIST
about 1055.

6 ¶ And it came to pass, while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, that Abner made himself strong for the house of Saul.

* Chap. 21.
10.

7 And Saul had a concubine, whose name was ^a Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah : and Ish-bosheth said to Abner, Wherefore hast thou gone in unto my father's concubine ?

8 Then was Abner very wroth for the words of Ish-bosheth, and said, Am I a dog's head, which against Judah do shew kindness this day unto the house of Saul thy father, to his brethren, and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David, that thou chargest me to day with a fault concerning this woman ?

9 So do God to Abner, and more also, except, as the LORD hath sworn to David, even so I do to him ;

10 To translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and to set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, from Dan even to Beer-sheba.

11 And he could not answer Abner a word again, because he feared him.

1048.

12 ¶ And Abner sent messengers to David on his behalf, saying, Whose is the land ? saying also, Make thy league with me, and, behold, my hand shall be with thee, to bring about all Israel unto thee.

† Heb.
saying.

13 ¶ And he said, Well ; I will make a league with thee : but one thing I require of thee, † that is, Thou shalt not see my face, except thou first bring Michal Saul's daughter, when thou comest to see my face.

* 1 Sam.
18. 25, 27.

14 And David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth Saul's son, saying, Deliver me my wife Michal, which I espoused to me ^b for an hundred foreskins of the Philistines.

15 And Ish-bosheth sent, and took her from her husband, even from ^c Phaltiel the son of Laish.

Before
CHRIST
about 1048.

* 1 Sam.

25. 44.

Phalti.

† Heb.

going and weeping.

16 And her husband went with her † along weeping behind her to Bahurim. Then said Abner unto him, Go, return. And he returned.

17 ¶ And Abner had communication with the elders of Israel, saying, Ye sought for David † in times past to be king over you :

† Heb.
both yesterday, and the third day.

18 Now then do it : for the LORD hath spoken of David, saying, By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel out of the hand of the Philistines, and out of the hand of all their enemies.

19 And Abner also spake in the ears of Benjamin : and Abner went also to speak in the ears of David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel, and that seemed good to the whole house of Benjamin.

20 So Abner came to David to Hebron, and twenty men with him. And David made Abner and the men that were with him a feast.

21 And Abner said unto David, I will arise and go, and will gather all Israel unto my lord the king, that they may make a league with thee, and that thou mayest reign over all that thine heart desireth. And David sent Abner away ; and he went in peace.

22 ¶ And, behold, the servants of David and Joab came from pursuing a troop, and brought in a great spoil with them : but Abner was not with David in Hebron ; for he had sent him away, and he was gone in peace.

23 When Joab and all the host that was with him were come, they told Joab, saying, Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace.

Chap. III. ver. 7. — gone in unto my father's concubine ?] It was in those days looked upon as an insult to the royal family, and a proof of aspiring to the kingdom, to have any intercourse with the relicts of princes, of what denomination soever they were. This is exemplified in the case of Adonijah, 1 Kings ii. 17, &c. Stackhouse.

8. — Am I a dog's head,] He thought Ish-bosheth used him, not as captain of the host of Israel, but as if he had been keeper of his dogs. Bp. Patrick. Or else, "Am I as insignificant and worthless as a dog's head?" Dr. Chandler.

9. So do God to Abner, &c.] These words shew that he knew very well God had unalterably resolved to bestow the kingdom of Israel upon David ; and yet his ambition led him hitherto, to oppose not only David, but the Lord Himself. Bp. Patrick.

12. — saying, Whose is the land ?] Acknowledging, by these words, that he owned David to be lord of all the country, by God's special gift. Bp. Patrick. Abner, in his behaviour on this occasion, cannot be excused from a treacherous inconstancy. If Saul's son had no true title to the crown, why did he maintain it ? If he had, why did he forsake the cause and person ? Had Abner withdrawn his hand, out of remorse for furthering a false claim, I know not wherein he could be blamed, except for not doing it sooner ; but now, to withdraw his professed allegiance upon a private revenge, was to take a graceless leave of a bad action. Bp. Hall.

18. — the Lord hath spoken of David, &c.] Abner knew before full well that God had destined the kingdom for David ; yet then he was well content to smother a known truth for his own turn : but now that the publication of it may turn for his advantage, he wins the heart of Israel, by shewing God's charter for him whom he had so long opposed. Hypocrites make use of God for their own purposes, and care only to make Divine authority a colour for their own designs. Bp. Hall.

Printed by Atterbury.

THE JUDGMENT OF SOLOMON.

1 Kings ch. 3. v. 16.

Engraved by H. M. 1800.

Before
CHRIST
about 1043.

24 Then Joab came to the king, and said, What hast thou done? behold, Abner came unto thee; why is it that thou hast sent him away, and he is quite gone?

25 Thou knowest Abner the son of Ner, that he came to deceive thee, and to know thy going out and thy coming in, and to know all that thou doest.

26 And when Joab was come out from David, he sent messengers after Abner, which brought him again from the well of Sirah: but David knew it not.

1 Kings
2. 5.
Or,
peaceably.
Chap. 2.
23.

27 And when Abner was returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside in the gate to speak with him quietly, and smote him there under the fifth rib, that he died, for the blood of Asahel his brother.

28 And afterward when David heard it, he said, I and my kingdom are guiltless before the LORD for ever from the blood of Abner the son of Ner:

† Heb.
bloods.

29 Let it rest on the head of Joab, and on all his father's house; and let there not fail from the house of Joab one that hath an issue, or that is a leper, or that leaneth on a staff, or that falleth on the sword, or that lacketh bread.

† Heb. be cut off.

26. — the well of Sirah:] Probably not far from Hebron: Josephus says, twenty furlongs from it.

27. — in the gate] As this was a publick place, where men met to transact business, and the courts of justice sat, Abner suspected no danger there. Bp. Patrick.

— smote him there — that he died,] Who can but glorify God in His justice, when he sees the bitter end of this treacherous dissimulation! David might deservedly welcome a guest who undertakes to bring all Israel under allegiance to himself; but God never meant to use so unworthly means for so good a work. Joab returns from pursuing a troop; and, finding Abner dismissed in peace and expectation of beneficial return, follows him; and, whether out of envy at a new rival of honour, or from a desire of revenging Asahel, he repays him both dissimulation and death. God does most justly by the hand of Joab, that which Joab did for himself most unjustly. Bp. Hall. This murder of Abner by Joab is allowed to be a base piece of treachery: though his pretence for this villanous action was to revenge the death of his brother Asahel, yet undoubtedly his principal reason was, his jealousy of Abner, and his fear of losing the first post under the king. Dr. Chandler. How empty and ill-founded are the purposes of vain man! Abner, who promises kingdoms, (ver. 10,) cannot secure to himself one certain hour of life. David had sent him away, and he departed in peace; but, being called back by Joab, he fell. Envy, doubtless, and jealousy of Abner's merit with David, in gaining over the tribes to him, were the principal motives to this base action, as well as revenge for the blood of Asahel. Dr. Delaney.

29. Let it rest on the head of Joab, &c.] These, and the following words, must be looked upon rather as a prophetic prediction, than as a private imprecation; or else, as the expressions of violent passion, since he thought that the punishment for so horrid a crime could not be too severe or too lasting. Bp. Patrick.

— that falleth on the sword,] That commits suicide out of some discontent or disturbance of mind. Dr. Wells.

31. — the bier.] The word here translated, "the bier," is in the original, "the bed," in which persons of quality were wont

VOL. I.

30 So Joab and Abishai his brother slew Abner, because he had slain their brother Asahel at Gibeon in the battle.

Before
CHRIST
about 1043.

Chap. 2.
23.

31 ¶ And David said to Joab, and to all the people that were with him, Rend your clothes, and gird you with sackcloth, and mourn before Abner. And king David himself followed the bier.

† Heb. her-

32 And they buried Abner in Hebron: and the king lifted up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept.

33 And the king lamented over Abner, and said, Died Abner as a fool dieth?

34 Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet put into fetters: as a man falleth before wicked men, so fellest thou. And all the people wept again over him.

† Heb.
children of iniquity.

35 And when all the people came to cause David to eat meat while it was yet day, David sware, saying, So do God to me, and more also, if I taste bread, or ought else, till the sun be down.

36 And all the people took notice of it, and it pleased them: as whatsoever the king did pleased all the people.

† Heb. was good in their eyes.

37 For all the people and all Israel unto be carried forth to their graves, as ordinary people were upon that which we call a bier. Kings were sometimes carried out on beds richly adorned and gilt, as Josephus tells us was the case with Herod. Bp. Patrick.

33. — Died Abner as a fool dieth?] Died he by the hands of justice for some folly or wickedness? No such matter. Dr. Wells. Or, "Died he as a worthless vile fellow dieth?" so the Hebrew word properly signifies. Dr. Chandler.

The word, translated "fool," seems to signify a man of blasted character or morals; or perhaps one, who by his misdemeanor has forfeited the privileges of a citizen, and rendered himself obnoxious to public justice; in short, "a rogue," or "felon." No doubt such depravity implies folly in the extreme; but by "fool" we generally understand, not one who goes wilfully wrong, but one who has a natural defect in the understanding. For this reason the present passage is perhaps not properly understood in general. The meaning is this: David is represented as lamenting over the death of Abner, and doing justice at once to the character of that great general, and to his own innocence of any share or concern in the murder. His words properly understood are as follow: "Died Abner, as a felon or malefactor dieth?" No, for if he had, the circumstances of his death would have been different: he would have been led, as such persons used to be, bound hand and foot, to the place of execution. But, continues the king, "Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet put into fetters: as a man falleth before wicked men, so fellest thou." That is, thou sufferedst not by a legal sentence; but, as many good and virtuous men have done besides, thou fellest by the hand of envious and ruffianlike assassins. Dr. Blayney.

35. — came to cause David to eat meat &c.] This was a customary practice among the Hebrews, whose friends were wont to come, after the funeral was over, to comfort those who had buried their dead, and send in provisions to make a feast; it being supposed that they themselves were so sorrowful, as not to be able to think of their necessary food. See Jerem. xvi. 5, 7, 8; Ezek. xxiv. 17. Bp. Patrick. See the note on the above passage of Jeremiah.

Before
CHRIST
about 1018.

derstood that day that it was not of the king to slay Abner the son of Ner.

38 And the king said unto his servants, Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?

† Heb.
tender.

39 And I am this day † weak, though anointed king; and these men the sons of Zeruiah be too hard for me: the LORD shall reward the doer of evil according to his wickedness.

CHAP. IV.

1 The Israelites being troubled at the death of Abner,
2 Baanah and Rechab slay Ish-bosheth, and bring his head to Hebron. 9 David causeth them to be slain, and Ish-bosheth's head to be buried.

AND when Saul's son heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, his hands were feeble, and all the Israelites were troubled.

† Heb.
second.

2 And Saul's son had two men that were captains of bands: the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the † other Rechab, the sons of Rimmon a Beerothite, of the children of Benjamin: (for Beeroth also was reckoned to Benjamin:

3 And the Beerothites fled to Gittaim, and were sojourners there until this day.)

4 And Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son that was lame of his feet. He was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan out of Jezreel, and his nurse took him up, and fled: and it came to pass, as she made haste to flee, that he fell, and became lame. And his name was Mephibosheth.

5 And the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, went, and came about the heat of the day to the house of Ish-bosheth, who lay on a bed at noon.

Before
CHRIST
about 1018.

6 And they came thither into the midst of the house, as though they would have fetched wheat; and they smote him under the fifth rib: and Rechab and Baanah his brother escaped.

7 For when they came into the house, he lay on his bed in his bedchamber, and they smote him, and slew him, and beheaded him, and took his head, and gat them away through the plain all night.

8 And they brought the head of Ish-bosheth unto David to Hebron, and said to the king, Behold the head of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul thine enemy, which sought thy life; and the LORD hath avenged my lord the king this day of Saul, and of his seed.

9 ¶ And David answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, and said unto them, As the LORD liveth, who hath redeemed my soul out of all adversity,

10 When ^a one told me, saying, Behold, Saul is dead, † thinking to have brought good tidings, I took hold of him, and slew him in Ziklag, || who thought that I would have given him a reward for his tidings:

11 How much more, when wicked men have slain a righteous person in his own house upon his bed? shall I not therefore now require his blood of your hand, and take you away from the earth?

12 And David commanded his young

^a Chap. I.
15.

† Heb.
he was in his own eyes
as a bringer,
&c.

|| Or,
which was the reward
I gave him for his tidings.

38. — there is a prince and a great man fallen] The fall of a great man like Abner must inspire every mind with grave and serious reflections. A great man fallen! and fallen by so unexpected and so surprising a treachery, and in the very moment of his returning to his duty, and in the juncture of a great revolution, seemingly depending on his fate; but then this great man sported with the lives of his brethren, and perhaps deliberately opposed himself to the dictates of his known duty to God, for a series of years. It is true, Abner was now returned to his duty; but it is as true, that he returned to it now, as he departed from it before, upon a pique, and from motives of ambition, interest, and revenge. He well knew the purposes and declarations of God in relation to David, and yet he deliberately opposed himself to them. And it is but just in the appointments of Providence, (and nothing is more conspicuous in His government of the world,) not to permit the wicked to effect that good from wrong motives, which they once obstructed from the same motives. The occasions of duty, once notoriously neglected, seldom return, at least to equal advantage. Let no man decline the good that is within his power; if he once does so, he is no more worthy to be the happy instrument of effecting it in the hand of God. Dr. Delaney.

39. — I am this day weak, &c.] That is, he was not so established in his new kingdom, as to deem it prudent to punish Joab and Abishai, in the manner they deserved, for so base a fact. Dr. Wells.

Chap. IV. ver. 1. — his hands were feeble,] He despaired of his cause, knew that he had no strength to support his interest, and gave up all for lost. Dr. Chandler.

2. — of the children of Benjamin:] It is specially mentioned that Rechab and Baanah were Benjamites, because, being of the same tribe with Saul, they had stronger ties upon them to be honest and faithful to his family. It is thus shewn more fully how vile and ungrateful they were, and how justly they deserved the severe but exemplary punishment which David inflicted on them. Stackhouse.

— for Beeroth also &c.] Though this place was now in the hands of the Philistines, yet it belonged to the tribe of Benjamin, Josh. xviii. 25. Bp. Patrick.

5. — who lay on a bed at noon.] As the custom was, and still continues to be, in all hot climates. Dr. Chandler.

6. — as though they would have fetched wheat;] In the Hebrew, “carrying wheat:” which they either brought into the king's granaries for the use of his household; or carried forth for the supply of the soldiers, who were maintained at the king's charge. Bp. Patrick.

7. — through the plain] The flat country between Mahanaim and Hebron.

12. And David commanded his young men, &c.] The behaviour of David on this occasion is well worthy of attention. It is a proof of his virtue and integrity, and of his detestation and abhor-

Before CHRIST about 1048. men, and they slew them, and cut off their hands and their feet, and hanged them up over the pool in Hebron. But they took the head of Ish-bosheth, and buried it in the ^b sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

^a Chap. 3. 32.

CHAP. V.

1 The tribes come to Hebron to anoint David over Israel.
 4 David's age. 6 He taking Zion from the Jebusites dwelleth in it. 11 Hiram sendeth to David. 13 Eleven sons are born to him in Jerusalem. 17 David, directed by God, smiteth the Philistines at Baal-perazim, 22 and again at the mulberry trees.

^a 1 Chron. 11. 1.

THEN ^a came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the LORD said to thee, ^b Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel.

^b Psal. 78. 71.

3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; and king David made a league with them in Hebron before the LORD: and they anointed David king over Israel.

rence of treachery and cruelty, when, instead of approving and rewarding those who had killed their king Ish-bosheth, as they expected, he put them to death, though the death of that prince secured the kingdom to him. This teaches us in general, that we ought, not only to do no hurt to our enemies, but also that we ought in no instance to countenance injustice and vice in any degree, whatever advantage we may derive from them. Ostervald.

— cut off their hands and their feet.] It is still the custom in Turkey, when the ministers of state incur the displeasure of the people, to cut off their hands, head, and feet, and throw them before the palace gate. Thus were the sons of Rimmon served for slaying Ish-bosheth. Harmer.

— hanged them up over the pool] As a publick mark of greater ignominy, and of David's strong detestation of what they had done. Dr. Wells. David's behaviour in this treatment of the murderers of Ish-bosheth was highly commendable, not only as it was an act of justice in itself, but as it publickly declared that he would never be served by treachery and murder, nor ever forgive such crimes, however the pretence for committing them might be for his own interest and service. The concern he expressed for the death of Ish-bosheth, especially for the manner of it, "in his own house upon his bed," argued humanity and honour, and an utter abhorrence of villains and their crimes. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — we are thy bone and thy flesh.] Meaning, that they were of the same blood with him, being descended from their common father, Israel; and that he was therefore qualified by the law of God, Deut. xvii. 15, to be their king. Bp. Patrick.

2. — Thou shalt feed my people Israel.] This expression seems rather made use of, to put David in mind that he was created a king, not so much for the advancement of his own honour and interest, as for the good and benefit of the community, which he was to rule with all tenderness, and watch over with all diligence. The very manner of the expression implies, that kings ought to have the same care of their people, as the shepherd has of his flock; and that, as the shepherd is not the owner of the sheep he keeps, so should a king consider his subjects as a flock commit-

4 ¶ David was thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years. Before CHRIST about 1048.

5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah ^c seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah. ^c Chap. 2. 11.

6 ¶ And the king and his men went to Jerusalem unto the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land: which spake unto David, saying, Except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither: || thinking, David cannot come in hither.

¶ Or, saying, David shall not, &c.

7 Nevertheless David took the strong hold of Zion: the same is the city of David.

8 And David said on that day, Whosoever getteth up to the gutter, and smiteth the Jebusites, and the lame and the blind, that are hated of David's soul, ^d he shall be chief and captain. || Wherefore they said, The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.

^d 1 Chron. 11. 6.

¶ Or, Because they had said, even the blind and the lame, He shall not come into the house.

9 So David dwelt in the fort, and called it the city of David. And David built round about from Millo and inward.

ted to his care by the only true Lord of mankind, to whom he must give an account of his administration. Stackhouse.

This is the first time that we meet with any description of a ruler or governour of a people characterized under the idea of a shepherd; and it is remarkable, that the first person so characterized was at first in fact a shepherd. How fine an instruction does this expression convey to princes, that they are not, in the intention of Providence, the tyrants, but the guardians of their people; and that their business is the preservation and well-being of their flock, from the duty which they owe to the great Lord and Owner of both! Dr. Delaney.

6. — Except thou take away the blind and the lame,] This is said by way of scorn and contempt: they imagined their fortress to be so impregnable, that they told him the blind and the lame were able to defend it against him and all his forces. Bp. Patrick, Drs. Wells and Chandler.

8. — Whosoever getteth up &c.] There is some uncertainty as to the construction of this sentence. The words, "he shall be chief and captain," are supplied in our translation from the account of the same event at 1 Chron. xi. 6. The words of the original Hebrew, when taken in their order, admit of the following sense: "He that smiteth the Jebusites, let him throw down into the ditch both the blind and the lame, which David extremely hates;" which seems a preferable sense to that of our translation. Bp. Patrick, Bochart. They were hated by David, not only as being Jebusites, a people accursed of God, but also as possessing a place which David knew to be designed for God's solemn worship, and as having insolently defied the armies of Israel. Poole.

— Wherefore they said,] Here the reading of the margin is the best; according to which, "the house" means the very fort which the Jebusites held. Bp. Patrick, Pyle, Dr. Wells.

9. — from Millo] From the place where Solomon afterwards built Millo; for it appears from 1 Kings ix. 15, that it was not built till Solomon's reign. Respecting Millo, see note at Judg. ix. 6. It was probably a house for publick affairs; that is, where those, who formed the chief assembly in a country or city, met together to consult of publick affairs. To this sense agrees Judg. ix. 6, where the word first occurs, as also 2 Kings xii. 20. It may further be Before CHRIST about 1048. 10 And David † went on, and grew great, and the LORD God of hosts was with him.

† Heb. went, going and growing. about 1043. 11 ¶ And ^c Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and † masons: and they built David an house.

14. 1. † Heb. towers of the stone of the wall. 12 And David perceived that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for his people Israel's sake.

† 1 Chron. 3. 9. 13 ¶ And ^t David took him more concubines and wives out of Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron: and there were yet sons and daughters born to David.

† 1 Chron. 3. 5. 14 And ^s these be the names of those that were born unto him in Jerusalem; Shammuah, and Shobab, and Nathan, and Solomon,

15 Ibhar also, and Elishua, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

16 And Elishama, and Eliada, and Eliphalet.

† 1 Chron. 11. 16. & 14. 8. 1047. 17 ¶ ^b But when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David; and David heard of it, and went down to the hold.

18 The Philistines also came and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

19 And David enquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up to the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into mine hand?

Before CHRIST 1047. And the LORD said unto David, Go up: for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

20 And David came to ⁱ Baal-perazim, and David smote them there, and said, The LORD hath broken forth upon mine enemies before me, as the breach of waters. Therefore he called the name of that place || Baal-perazim. ⁱ Isai. 28. 21.

21 And there they left their images, and David and his men ^k || burned them. || That is, The plain of breaches. ^k 1 Chron. 14. 12.

22 ¶ And the Philistines came up yet again, and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim. || Or, took them away.

23 And when David enquired of the LORD, he said, Thou shalt not go up; but fetch a compass behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry trees.

24 And let it be, when thou hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself: for then shall the LORD go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines.

25 And David did so, as the LORD had commanded him; and smote the Philistines from Geba until thou come to Gazer.

CHAP. VI.

1 David fetcheth the ark from Kirjath-jearim on a new cart. 6 Uzzah is smitten at Perez-uzzah. 9 God blesseth Obed-edom for the ark. 12 David bringing the ark into Zion with sacrifices, danceth before it, for which Michal despiseth him. 17 He placeth it in a inferred from 2 Chron. xxxii. 5, that this publick house of state, which Millo was, was also a sort of armoury, or at least a place of more than ordinary strength; for it is mentioned, that among the means used by Hezekiah to fortify Jerusalem against Sennacherib, was the repairing of Millo. Dr. Wells. Millo was probably situated on the east side of mount Zion, and separated it from mount Moriah, on which the temple stood. Bp. Pococke.

10. And David went on, and grew great,] This happy conclusion of all David's troubles shews us, that God is ever faithful to His promises; that, though He defers the completion of them, He never fails in the execution, but always delivers those whom He loves; and that, after He has made His children pass through divers trials, He at length grants them the rest and prosperity He had promised them. Let us learn from hence to resign ourselves into the hand of Providence, and faithfully to discharge our duty towards Him, being fully assured that, as He was vigilant for the welfare and happiness of David, so He will always be towards His faithful and obedient servants. Ostervald.

13. — David took him more concubines and wives] David appears to have taken this great number of wives and concubines principally for two reasons, from the desire of issue, and from motives of policy. He had no child by either of his wives, Michal, Ahinoam, or Abigail, for several years. He knew of what importance the increase of his family would be to his establishment on the throne. God had promised to establish the kingdom, not only in his own person, but in that of his posterity; and for the purpose of procuring the fulfilment of this promise, he adopted the most probable means of procuring children. Policy, again, required David to strengthen his unsettled state by new alliances, and no more effectual method of attaining this end presented itself, than by forming matrimonial connexions with persons of the greatest power and credit in the country. These considerations prevent our viewing David's polygamy as proceeding from licentiousness, but rather place it on grounds of prudence, and, as some think, of piety. Still his conduct may justly be considered as proceeding from too worldly an intention of bringing the purposes and promises of God in his favour to a full and timely accomplishment. Dr. Delaney.

— there were yet sons &c.] It was considered matter of policy in princes to have many children, that, by matching them into great families, they might strengthen their interest, and have more supporters of their authority. Bp. Patrick.

17. — to the hold.] "To a hold" or strong place.

18. — the valley of Rephaim.] Which, at Josh. xv. 8, we translate the valley of the giants, lying not far from Jerusalem. The road from Jerusalem to Beth-lehem, as Mr. Maundrell informs us, lies through this valley, famous for being the scene of several victories obtained by David over the Philistines. Dr. Wells.

21. — their images,] Which they had brought into the field, to be carried before their armies, as a token of the presence of their gods among them. Bp. Patrick.

24. — the sound of a going in the tops &c.] A sound in the mulberry trees, as a signal of David's going against the enemy. Pyle. Or it may be rendered, A sound in the beginning of the mulberry trees; that is, in the entrance of the place where the mulberry trees are planted, God intending to make there a sound, as if a vast number of men were marching upon the Philistines. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

THE TEMPLE OF SOLOMON, as it was, according to the Temple of Solomon, as it was, according to the showing the EXTERIOR WALL and BUILDINGS thereon.

TEMPLE

REFERENCE

- A Outer Wall
- B Court of the Gentiles
- C Outer Wall of the Court of the Children of Israel
- D Court of the Children of Israel
- E Galleries round the Court of Israel supported by rows of Pillars
- F Chambers round the Court of Israel
- G Rooms at the corners of the Court for the use of the Priests
- H Stairs leading to the upper Chambers
- I Porches of the principal Gates
- K Steps of the principal Gates
- L Outer Wall of the Court of the Priests

Scale of Cubits.

Published for the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge by Messrs. Innes, 17, Strand, London, September 1844

TEMPLE
 showing the EXTERIOR WALL and BUILDINGS thereon.

REFERENCE

- A Outer Wall of the Court of the Priests
- B Court of the Priests
- C Chambers for the Singers, Levites, and various offices for the Priests
- D Marble Tables on which the Bread was killed
- E Chambers where the Meat was prepared for the offerings
- F Porches of the principal Gates
- G Steps of the principal Gates
- H North Gate and Porch here the Priests were killed
- I Pillars supporting the galleries round the Court of the Priests
- K Stairs leading to the upper Chambers of the Priests
- L Small Apartments round the Temple, where the necessary were kept for its use
- M Holy of Holies
- N Holy Place
- O The Porch
- P Steps at the Porch of the Temple
- Q Altar for burnt offerings
- R Steps of the Altar
- S Wall of separation round the Altar
- T Stairs to the upper Apartments
- V Wall of the Temple properly so called

Scale of Cubits.

Before
CHRIST
about 1042.

tabernacle with great joy and feasting. 20 Michal reproving David for his religious joy is childless to her death.

A GAIN, David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand.

^a 1 Chron.
13. 5, 6.

2 And ^a David arose, and went with all the people that were with him from Baale of Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God, || whose name is called by the name of the LORD of hosts that dwelleth between the cherubims.

|| Or,
at which the name, even the name of the LORD of hosts was called upon.

† Heb. made to ride.

|| Or,
the hill.

^b 1 Sam. 7.

2.
† Heb.
with.

3 And they † set the ark of God upon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in || Gibeah: and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart.

4 And they brought it out of ^b the house of Abinadab which was at Gibeah, † accompanying the ark of God: and Ahio went before the ark.

5 And David and all the house of Israel played before the LORD on all manner of instruments made of fir wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels, and on cornets, and on cymbals.

Before
CHRIST
about 1042.

• 1 Chron.
13. 9.

6 ¶ And ^c when they came to Nachon's threshingfloor, Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen || shook it.

|| Or,
stumbled.

7 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; and God smote him there for his || error; and there he died by the ark of God.

|| Or,
rashness.

8 And David was displeased, because the LORD had † made a breach upon Uzzah: and he called the name of the place || Perez-uzzah to this day.

† Heb. broken.

|| That is,
The breach of Uzzah.

9 And David was afraid of the LORD that day, and said, How shall the ark of the LORD come to me?

10 So David would not remove the ark of the LORD unto him into the city of David: but David carried it aside into the house of Obed-edom the Gittite.

11 And the ark of the LORD continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite

Chap. VI. ver. 2. — David — went with all the people] The reason why David summoned so many of his principal ministers and officers to accompany him in the expedition probably was, to possess the young people, who perhaps had heard nothing of the ark, on account of its long absence, with a mighty veneration for it, when they saw the king, and so many of the chief nobility waiting on it, with such variety of musick, and such publick demonstrations of joy. Stackhouse. During all the preceding periods of the Hebrew republick, the ark had no settled or fixed habitation, but removed from place to place, as convenience or necessity required. In this unsettled state of things, many great inconveniences must have arisen, and many important solemnities of the national religion must have been neglected. The honour of making the necessary settlement, and thereby perfecting the ceremonial of the Hebrew worship, was reserved for David, who, having taken Jerusalem, and adorned it with magnificent buildings, immediately formed the design of transferring the ark of God into it, that this emblem of God's immediate presence might be perpetually near him, and that the affairs in general of the whole kingdom relating to religion and justice might be conducted for the future with regularity, order, and dignity. Dr. Chandler.

— from Baale of Judah,] Which is the same with Kirjath-jearim, 1 Chron. xiii. 6; called also Kirjath-baal, Josh. xv. 60; hence Baalah, Josh. xv. 9, and Baale, of Judah, or belonging to that tribe. Bp. Patrick.

3. — upon a new cart,] It had been expressly commanded that the ark should be carried on the shoulders of the Kohathites, Numb. vii. 9. They seem to have acted on the present occasion from forgetfulness; perhaps inadvertently following the example of the Philistines, who had put the ark of God in the same manner, in a new cart, 1 Sam. vi. 7, 8. Bp. Patrick. The word "cart" in our translation conveys a degrading idea; it was probably a magnificent carriage provided by David. Dr. Chandler. This remarkable case shews how dangerous it is to follow good intentions, and do any thing in God's service without His express word; a consideration worthy of the attention of all self-called labourers in the vineyard: the instance of Uzzah, ver. 7, also proves, that sins of ignorance are punishable, where the error is not invincible. Dr. Hales.

6. — for the oxen shook it.] Or "stumbled," as in our marginal translation: it is probable, that, by some accident occurring to the oxen which drew the ark, it was in danger of being overturned. Bp. Patrick.

7. — smote him there for his error;] Or, for his rashness, in touching the ark: his error consisted, 1st, in not carrying the ark upon his shoulders, together with his brethren. 2dly, in touching it, which he ought not so much as to have seen: the priests were to cover it, and the Levites to take hold of the staves, for the purpose of carrying it, Numb. iv. 15, (Uzzah was a Levite, being the brother of Eleazar, who was consecrated to the office of a Levite, 1 Sam. vii. 1,) but, principally, in wanting faith in God, who, he ought to have known, was able to support His ark without human help. Bp. Patrick. The ark at this time had continued so long in obscurity, that the people had in a manner lost all sense of a Divine power residing in it, and approached it with irreverence. What wonder then if God, intending to testify His immediate presence with the ark, to retrieve the ancient honour of that sacred vessel, and to curb all licentious profanations of it for the future, should single out one, the most culpable of all, to be a monument of His displeasure, against either wilful ignorance, or a rude contempt of His precepts: that thus He might inspire both priests and people with a sacred dread of His majesty, and a profound veneration for His mysteries. Stackhouse.

Although it was the office of the Kohathites of the tribe of Levi to carry the ark upon their shoulders, Numb. vii. 9; 2 Chron. xxxv. 3; yet it was death for them to touch it, Numb. iv. 15. Uzzah therefore, although he was probably a Levite, acted contrary to an express law in touching the ark. His crime seems to have been the greater, after what had happened to the Beth-shemites for looking into the ark, 1 Sam. vi. 19. Indeed the conveying of the ark in a cart, instead of on men's shoulders, was doubtless a fault: and David seems to own this by the manner in which he ordered it to be carried from the house of Obed-edom, 1 Chron. xv. And when it is said, 2 Sam. vi. 8, that "David was displeased" at what befell Uzzah; it means, according to the Greek Version, he was afflicted, or dismayed and terrified: which seems to agree with what follows, that he would not then venture to carry the ark to his own habitation. Upon the whole, all the company being guilty, it was great clemency in God to punish only the most criminal. Dr. John Ward.

8. — was displeased,] Was afflicted and struck with this exemplary judgment. Pyle.

— a breach upon Uzzah:] A breaking forth of the Divine anger upon Uzzah. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1012.

three months: and the LORD blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.

* 1 Chron.
15. 25.

12 ¶ And it was told king David, saying, The LORD hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. ^d So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness.

13 And it was so, that when they that bare the ark of the LORD had gone six paces, he sacrificed oxen and fatlings.

14 And David danced before the LORD with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod.

15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

16 And as the ark of the LORD came into the city of David, Michal Saul's daughter looked through a window, and saw king David leaping and dancing before the LORD; and she despised him in her heart.

† Heb. stretched.

17 ¶ And they brought in the ark of the LORD, and set it in his place, in the midst of the tabernacle that David had † pitched for it: and David offered burnt offerings and peace offerings before the LORD.

13. — he sacrificed oxen and fatlings.] As a thanksgiving to God for the hope now afforded, that His former displeasure respecting the removal of the ark had ceased, and they might bring it safe to Jerusalem without a similar disaster. Dr. Wells. The Hebrew word, translated fatlings, is of uncertain sense: some take it for a ram or lamb: Bochart thinks it means a kind of bullock. Bp. Patrick.

14. — David was girded with a linen ephod.] He was so clothed on this solemnity, both out of reverence to God, and for convenience, as his royal robes were too cumbersome. Dr. Chandler. He laid aside his royal majesty and dress, as being in the immediate presence of God. Grotius.

15. — with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.] It is no wonder that David and his people should be transported with joy at this great event, as they could not but consider themselves arrived at that happy period, when all the affairs of religion and government were to be placed on a durable foundation. These things heighten the glory of David's reign, shew him to be "a man after God's own heart," every way fitted for the purpose, for which he was exalted; demonstrate the piety and goodness of his heart, and clothe him with a glory, in which no prince could ever rival or equal him. Dr. Chandler.

16. — saw king David leaping and dancing] It was customary among the Greeks and other nations, to use musick and dancing in religious processions. And it does not appear that David's behaviour on this occasion was any disparagement of his royal dignity. His dancing (by which is meant, his moving to certain serious and solemn measures, with musick of the same character and tendency) was an exercise highly conducive to purposes of piety; and his mixing with the publick festivities of his people was a condescension not unbecoming the greatest monarch. Stackhouse.

— she despised him in her heart.] Imagining that he debased himself, by stripping himself of the ornaments of majesty, and dancing among the common people. Bp. Patrick.

20. — How glorious &c.] This she speaks ironically, by way of derision and contempt. Bp. Patrick.

18 And as soon as David had made an end of offering burnt offerings and peace offerings, ^{Before CHRIST about 1012.} he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts. ^{* 1 Chron. 16. 2.}

19 And he dealt among all the people, even among the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to every one a cake of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine. So all the people departed every one to his house.

20 ¶ Then David returned to bless his household. And Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said, How glorious was the king of Israel to day, who uncovered himself to day in the eyes of the handmaids of his servants, as one of the vain fellows || shamelessly uncovered himself! ^{about 1012.} ^{|| Or, openly.}

21 And David said unto Michal, It was before the LORD, which chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of the LORD, over Israel: therefore will I play before the LORD.

22 And I will yet be more vile than thus, and will be base in mine own sight: ^{|| Or, of the handmaids of my servants.} and || of the maidservants which thou hast spoken of, of them shall I be had in honour.

— as one of the vain fellows] The haughty woman in the contempt of her heart calls the Levites, the bearers of the ark, "vain fellows," rather, "empty, low, worthless people;" and likens David to them, because he discovered himself as they discovered themselves; that is, appeared in the same habit, and played and danced just as they did. Dr. Chandler. She, probably, in a fit of passion, aggravates David's conduct as mean and below himself, intimating that he immodestly exposed himself as shameless fellows do, which is very incredible; for, no doubt, he kept within the rules of modesty, being employed upon a sacred business, and obeying the command of God, who required the Israelites to rejoice in their feasts, Deut. xii. 7; xvi. 11. Bp. Patrick. Though his putting off his royal robes might give some occasion to Michal's expression of his "uncovering himself," yet this opprobrious term proceeded from nothing but the overflowing spleen of a proud passionate woman. Stackhouse.

22. — I will yet be more vile &c.] He intimates, that he thinks nothing too mean for him to stoop to, provided he did honour to God; and that the more he humbled himself for that purpose, the more he would be honoured and esteemed by the people. Dr. Wells.

The vile insinuated reproach was absolutely false, and David knew that all his people knew it to be so. Therefore he gave himself no trouble to refute it; but barely contented himself with retorting the only truth contained in it, that is, his having uncovered or disrobed himself of his royalty, allowing that he had so done, but affirming that it was for the honour of God. His answer was truly worthy a great king, who knew so well how to unite the humility of a saint with the majesty of a monarch. Dr. Delaney.

— and of the maidservants &c.] The more he humbled himself to do honour to God, the more, he was confident, he should be had in honour by the people; the esteem of the meanest of whom he more valued than any praises Michal might bestow, for taking state upon him and neglecting God's service. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1042. 23 Therefore Michal the daughter of Saul had no child until the day of her death.

CHAP. VII.

1 Nathan first approving the purpose of David to build God an house, 4 after by the word of God forbiddeth him. 12 He promiseth him benefits and blessings in his seed. 18 David's prayer and thanksgiving.

^a 1 Chron. 17. 2. AND it came to pass, ^a when the king sat in his house, and the LORD had given him rest round about from all his enemies;

2 That the king said unto Nathan the prophet, See now, I dwell in an house of cedar, but the ark of God dwelleth within curtains.

3 And Nathan said to the king, Go, do all that is in thine heart; for the LORD is with thee.

4 ¶ And it came to pass that night, that the word of the LORD came unto Nathan, saying, † Heb. to my servant, to David. 5 Go and tell † my servant David, Thus saith the LORD, Shalt thou build me an house for me to dwell in?

6 Whereas I have not dwelt in any house since the time that I brought up the children of Israel out of Egypt, even to this day, but have walked in a tent and in a tabernacle.

¶ 1 Chron. 17. 6 any of the judges. 7 In all the places wherein I have walked with all the children of Israel spake I a word with || any of the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to feed my people Israel, saying, Why build ye not me an house of cedar?

23. — had no child] Either David resented this usage so far as to forsake her bed, or this was a judgment sent upon her for her insolence. Pyle.

Chap. VII. ver. 2. — See now, I dwell &c.] Like a religious prince, David spent much of his time in pious meditations; and, among other things, reflected on the meanness of God's habitation, in comparison with the splendour of his own palace. This he thought ought not to be endured, and therefore resolved to build a stately house for God's ark to dwell in. Bp. Patrick.

The pious intention of David to build a temple, as soon as he was placed in peaceable possession of the kingdom, teaches us, that we should shew more zeal for the honour of God than for our own private interest; and that the best use we can make of the goods and advantages which God bestows upon us, is to employ them for His service and glory. Ostervald.

5. — Shalt thou build me an house] That is, How canst thou design to build me an house? It is intended as a reproof for his forwardness in making a vow to this effect, without asking God's consent. Dr. Wells.

13. — I will stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever.] These words in their primary sense relate to the terrestrial kingdom of David's family, and the long duration of it, enough to justify the expression "for ever," taken in a less strict signification. But if we take it in a more sublime and absolute sense, it can belong to none but that Son of David, to whom God the Father gave an 8 Now therefore so shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, ^b I took thee from the sheepcote, ^b 1 Sam. 16. 12. † from following the sheep, to be ruler over my people, over Israel: [†] Heb. from after.

9 And I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, and have cut off all thine enemies † out of thy sight, and have made † Heb. thee a great name, like unto the name of [†] Heb. from thy face the great men that are in the earth.

10 Moreover I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime, 11 And as since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies. Also the LORD telleth thee that he will make thee an house.

12 ¶ And ^c when thy days be fulfilled, ^c 1 Kings 8. 20. and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom.

13 ^d He shall build an house for my name, and I will stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever. ^d 1 Kings 5. 5. & 6. 12. 1 Chron. 22. 10.

14 ^e I will be his father, and he shall be my son. ^e If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men: ^e Heb. 1. 5. † Psal. 89. 31, 32.

15 But my mercy shall not depart away from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee.

eternal kingdom (properly so called) over all things in heaven and in earth; which, though it was not so well known in the times when the prophecy was uttered, was by subsequent events made clear and evident. Stackhouse, Le Clerc.

14. I will be his father, &c.] These words, being applied Heb. i. 5 to Christ, plainly shew, that this, like many other prophecies, is of a mixed nature, partly belonging to Christ, and partly to Solomon, and his successors in the temporal kingdom of Israel. And it is manifest that Christ is solely intended in these words, "the beloved Son, in whom God is well pleased." Bp. Patrick. The Prophet intimates, that, as David would be succeeded by a son who would erect a temple to God, and in whose family the crown would continue, amidst occasional chastisement for their sins; so God, at His appointed season, would raise the promised Seed and Saviour, who would erect a nobler and more lasting spiritual kingdom for governing the hearts and lives of men: and, though the subjects of this kingdom should in like manner have a Divine hand of correction held over them for their negligence and disobedience, should undergo persecutions and calamities in this life, which would darken the outward prosperity of Christ's kingdom and church; yet should the kingdom or religion itself never be quite destroyed out of the world, but should continue and last, till time should be no more. Pyle.

— I will chasten him with the rod of men,] I will chastise him gently and favourably, as loving parents use to correct their dearest children. Bp. Hall.

Before
CHRIST
about 1042.

16 And thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever.

17 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

18 ¶ Then went king David in, and sat before the LORD, and he said, Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

19 And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. And is this the † manner of man, O Lord God?

† Heb.
law.

20 And what can David say more unto thee? for thou, Lord God, knowest thy servant.

21 For thy word's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all these great things, to make thy servant know them.

22 Wherefore thou art great, O LORD God: for there is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears.

Deut. 1. 7.

23 And ^s what one nation in the earth is like thy people, even like Israel, whom God went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make him a name, and to do for you great things and terrible, for thy land, be-

Before
CHRIST
about 1042.

fore thy people, which thou redeemedst to thee from Egypt, from the nations and their gods?

24 For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel to be a people unto thee for ever: and thou, LORD, art become their God.

25 And now, O LORD God, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant, and concerning his house, establish it for ever, and do as thou hast said.

26 And let thy name be magnified for ever, saying, The LORD of hosts is the God over Israel: and let the house of thy servant David be established before thee.

27 For thou, O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, hast † revealed to thy servant, saying, I will build thee an house: therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer unto thee.

† Heb. opened the ear.

28 And now, O Lord God, thou art that God, and ^h thy words be true, and thou hast promised this goodness unto thy servant:

^h John 17.
17.

29 Therefore now † let it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue for ever before thee: for thou, O Lord God, hast spoken it: and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed for ever.

† Heb. be thou pleased and bless.

16. — thy throne shall be established for ever.] If these strong and emphatical expressions were applied only to David's temporal successors, they would be confuted by the event. What can we then collect, but that, though his temporal kingdom would be cut off, there would arise in due time ONE of his posterity, in whom this promise of an everlasting kingdom would be punctually fulfilled? Dr. Berriman.

18. — sat before the Lord.] That is, before the ark, where was the symbol of the Divine presence. Bp. Patrick. "Sat," remained in a due posture of kneeling or lying prostrate on the ground, praying or returning thanks to God. Dr. Wells.

David, after he had received the foregoing gracious promise from the Prophet, offered up this excellent prayer to God, and returned most hearty thanks; expressing his faith and firm dependence on the promises of God, his great zeal for His glory, his joy and gratitude, and, above all, his profound humility. In this prayer he likewise implores, with great fervency of devotion, the Divine blessing on himself and on his family. This example should incite us to celebrate the goodness of the Lord towards us, with hearts sincerely sensible of His mercies, and of our own unworthiness; and continually to implore the Divine favour and benediction with all the fervency of true devotion. Ostervald. Though his request had been refused, yet the refusal was softened with the kindest promises and assurances, by promises of signal and long continuing favours to his posterity, long continuing in earthly splendour and authority, and concluding in an eternal dominion over the church and people of God. Accordingly, as soon as Nathan had delivered the Divine message, David, overwhelmed at once with gratitude and astonishment at the infinite bounty of God to him, hastened to the tabernacle, and poured out his acknowledgments to his Divine benefactor. Dr. Delaney.

— Who am I, O Lord God? &c.] He begins his address, as best became him, with a most profound debasement of himself, and confession of his own unworthiness; and continues throughout to acknowledge, in strains of the utmost gratitude and thankfulness, the special and unexampled favours and mercies of God, exceeding the highest of his wishes, and surpassing all his power to express. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

19. — but thou hast spoken — for a great while to come.] He magnifies the kindness of God, who did not think it enough, that he had made him a great king; but also promised that his posterity, and at last the Lord Christ, should sit upon his throne. Bp. Patrick.

29. — for thou, O Lord God, hast spoken it:] We cannot but notice the exemplary piety, gratitude, modesty, and humility of this great and excellent prince, upon the receipt of God's gracious message. Beginning with expressing a strong sense of his own unworthiness, he wants words to express his gratitude for the Divine goodness, and appeals to the heart-searching God for the sincerity of his gratitude, acknowledging that all is owing to the mere motion of His goodness, and for demonstrating His truth in the performance of His promises. How natural, after this, is the adoration of God, as supremely great and good; and the prayer which concludes the whole! Those, who cannot see the heart in this solemn address to God on this signal occasion, must be void of all that sensibility, which both dictates devotion, and greatly heightens the pleasure of it. Dr. Chandler.

In my opinion, the workings of a breast oppressed and overflowing with gratitude are painted stronger in this prayer than I ever observed in any other instance. It is easy to see that David's heart was wholly possessed with a subject which he did not know how to quit, because he did not know how to do justice to his own sense of the inestimable blessings poured down upon himself, and promised to his posterity, and much less to the infinite bounty of his Benefactor. Dr. Delaney.

Before
CHRIST
about 1040.

CHAP. VIII.

Before
CHRIST
about 1040.

1 David subdueth the Philistines and the Moabites. 3 He smiteth Hadadezer, and the Syrians. 9 Toi sendeth Joram with presents to bless him. 11 The presents and the spoil David dedicateth to God. 14 He putteth garrisons in Edom. 16 David's officers.

1 1 Chron.
18. 1, &c.
Psal. 60. 2.
|| Or,
the bridle of Ammah.

AND ^a after this it came to pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them: and David took || Metheg-ammah out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And he smote Moab, and measured them with a line, casting them down to the ground; even with two lines measured he to put to death, and with one full line to keep alive. And so the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts.

3 ¶ David smote also Hadadezer, the son of Rehob, king of Zobah, as he went to recover his border at the river Euphrates.

|| Or, of his.
|| As 1 Chr.
18. 4.

4 And David took || from him a thousand || chariots, and seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen: and David houghed all the chariot horses, but reserved of them for an hundred chariots.

5 And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succour Hadadezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then David put garrisons in Syria of Damascus: and the Syrians became servants to David, and brought gifts. And the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 And from Betah, and from Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, king David took exceeding much brass.

9 ¶ When Toi king of Hamath heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadadezer,

10 Then Toi sent Joram his son unto king David, to † salute him, and to bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer, and smitten him: for Hadadezer † had wars with Toi. And Joram † brought with him vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and vessels of brass:

11 Which also king David did dedicate unto the Lord, with the silver and gold that he had dedicated of all nations which he subdued;

12 Of Syria, and of Moab, and of the children of Ammon, and of the Philistines, and of Amalek, and of the spoil of Hadadezer, son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

13 And David gat him a name when he returned from † smiting of the Syrians in † Heb.

ask him of peace.

† Heb. was a man of wars with.

† Heb. in his hand were.

† Heb.
his smiting.

Chap. VIII. ver. 1. — Metheg-ammah] This name is variously understood by expositors; some taking it for an appellative, others for a proper name. It is evident, by comparing 1 Chron. xviii. 1. with this passage, that the writer of Chronicles understood by it "Gath and her towns." Dr. Wells.

2. — measured them with a line, &c.] Having conquered the whole country, he took an exact survey of it, laying level their strong holds and fortified places. Bp. Patrick.

— with two lines &c.] It means, that he divided the country into three parts, condemning two of them to be destroyed; and preserving one, that the country might not be quite dispeopled. This severity he exercised for the implacable enmity shewn by the Moabites against the Israelites. Thus was fulfilled the prophecy of Balaam, Numb. xxiv. 17. Bp. Patrick. These words seem to allude to a custom amongst the kings of the East, when they were thoroughly incensed against any people: namely, to make the captives come together in one place, and prostrate themselves upon the ground; that, being divided into two parts, as it were with a line, their conqueror might appoint which part he pleased (determined sometimes by lot) for life or for death. Stackhouse.

3. — Hadadezer, — king of Zobah,] It appears from 2 Sam. x. 19, that Hadadezer had several kings tributary to him; and it is probable, that he was the most powerful prince of those parts. From comparing together the several texts of Scripture where the kingdom of Zobah is mentioned, it seems clear that it lay on the borders of Neptali and the half tribe of Manasseh beyond Jordan, and so between the land of Israel and the river Euphrates, stretching from the neighbourhood of the Ammonites to the land of Hamath. Dr. Wells.

— to recover his border at the river Euphrates.] In the parallel place at 1 Chron. xviii. 3, the words are, "to stablish his dominion by the river Euphrates." He wished to extend his dominions to the Euphrates; and in order to it, designed to invade those of David which lay nearest to that river. David therefore had a right to prevent it by force. Dr. Chandler.

4. — a thousand chariots, and seven hundred horsemen,] The word "chariots" is supplied from 1 Chron. xviii. 4, in which book many things are explained, which are here briefly related: the number of horsemen too, there, is stated at 7000, instead of 700. Bp. Patrick.

— and David houghed all the chariot horses,] Agreeably to a general precept of the law in Deut. xvii. 16, and to a special command to Joshua, chap. xi. 6. See the notes on those two places. When David had taken a thousand chariots with their horses, by destroying nine out of ten, he shewed plainly that he had no thoughts of raising a military force of this kind. Probably he retained the others for his state, and might do it lawfully, without incurring the guilt of "multiplying horses;" which are the terms in which the law is conceived. Certain it is, he made no use of them in war, and so far he complied with the true sense and spirit of the law. Bp. Sherlock.

5. — the Syrians of Damascus] The Syrians who dwelt in and near Damascus. We do not read in Scripture of a king of Damascus till the reign of Solomon. It is probable that Damascus was at this time tributary to Hadadezer; and that the kingdom of Damascus may have been one and the same with the kingdom of Zobah, which formerly had Zobah, and afterwards Damascus, for its seat of empire. Dr. Wells.

9. — Toi king of Hamath] The city Hamath was probably the same as that called Epiphania by the Greeks. The kingdom of Hamath appears to have extended itself from the land of Canaan southward, to the city of Hamath northward, and how much higher is uncertain; and from the coast of the Mediterranean sea westward, to the kingdom of Damascus (or Syria more properly called) eastward. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
about 1040.

the valley of salt, being eighteen thousand men.

14 ¶ And he put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom put he garrisons, and all they of Edom became David's servants. And the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went.

15 And David reigned over all Israel; and David executed judgment and justice unto all his people.

16 And Joab the son of Zeruiah was over the host; and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder;

¶ Or, remembrancer, or, writer of chronicles.

17 And Zadok the son of Ahitub, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, were the priests; and Seraiah was the scribe;

¶ Or, secretary.
b 1 Chron.
18. 17.

18 ^b And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over both the Cherethites and the Pelethites; and David's sons were chief rulers.

¶ Or, princes.

CHAP. IX.

1 David by Ziba sendeth for Mephibosheth. 7 For Jonathan's sake he entertaineth him at his table, and restoreth him all that was Saul's. 9 He maketh Ziba his farmer.

AND David said, Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul, that I may shew him kindness for Jonathan's sake?

2 And there was of the house of Saul a servant whose name was Ziba. And when they had called him unto David, the king said unto him, Art thou Ziba? And he said, Thy servant is he.

3 And the king said, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may shew

13. — valley of salt,] Either the Salt sea, otherwise called the Dead sea; (Dr. Wells;) or a valley with salt springs in the country of Edom. Bp. Patrick.

— being eighteen thousand men.] The word “being” should not be inserted in our translation: he slew 18,000 men, who were Edomites, not Syrians, as we read expressly at 1 Chron. xviii. 12. Bp. Patrick.

16. — recorder;] This word in our translation is given, in the marginal note, remembrancer, or writer of chronicles; an employment of no mean estimation in the Eastern world, where it was customary with kings to keep daily registers of all the transactions of their reigns: whoever discharged this trust with effect, it was necessary, should be let into the true springs and secrets of action, and consequently be received into the greatest confidence. Dr. Delancy.

17. — the scribe;] The publick secretary, one who registered all publick acts and decrees. Bp. Patrick, Dr. Wells.

18. — Cherethites and the Pelethites;] Probably the constant guards about David's person, his household troops. Who they were, and why so called, is variously conjectured: they were probably named either from the place of their birth, or of their residence, or perhaps from their captain or commander. Stackhouse.

The Cherethites and Pelethites were the body guard who constantly attended the person of the Jewish king. They had a peculiar commander over them, and were selected as men of robust bodies and of approved fidelity. It is probable they were selected out of a particular people or family: for the Cherethites were a people inhabiting a part of Palestine; and the Pelethites, the kindness of God unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath yet a son, which is ² lame on his feet.

Before
CHRIST
about 1040.
² Chap. 4. 3.

4 And the king said unto him, Where is he? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lo-debar.

5 ¶ Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar.

6 Now when Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, was come unto David, he fell on his face, and did reverence. And David said, Mephibosheth. And he answered, Behold thy servant!

7 ¶ And David said unto him, Fear not: for I will surely shew thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually.

8 And he bowed himself, and said, What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such a dead dog as I am?

9 ¶ Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said unto him, I have given unto thy master's son all that pertained to Saul and to all his house.

10 Thou therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, shall till the land for him, and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have food to eat: but Mephibosheth thy master's son shall eat bread alway at my table. Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.

it is supposed, were a family in Israel, for we find two of the name of Peleth mentioned in Scripture, one of the tribe of Reuben, another of Judah. Their arms, it is supposed, were bows, arrows, and slings. The number of them may be conjectured from the targets and shields of gold which Solomon made, which were 500, and for the use of his guard. They were properly the king's domesticks, and lay in a guard chamber, at the entrance of the palace, to be ready at the least notice, and on the most sudden occasions. Lewis.

Chap. IX. ver. 1. — Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul,] David was not only a wise and good prince in publick administration, but a faithful and generous friend in private life. As he had great obligations to Jonathan, neither the splendour of his victories, nor the pleasures of prosperity, could make him unmindful of his covenant and oath with his former friend. Therefore, he had no sooner established peace with his enemies, than he inquired, if he could shew kindness to any of Saul's house. This was great generosity, to be thus solicitous for the welfare of an enemy's family, and to form the resolution of advancing to riches and honour any surviving branch of it, without considering whether such a step might prove dangerous to his own security. Dr. Chandler.

3. — the kindness of God] That is, great kindness, or the kindness that he solemnly before God promised to Saul, and especially to Jonathan. Dr. Wells. “That I may shew the kindness of God unto him;” that is, “that I may treat him kindly with God's assistance.” Houbigant.

Before
CHRIST
about 1040.

11 Then said Ziba unto the king, According to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so shall thy servant do. As for Mephibosheth, said the king, he shall eat at my table, as one of the king's sons.

12 And Mephibosheth had a young son, whose name was Micha. And all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants unto Mephibosheth.

13 So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem: for he did eat continually at the king's table; and was lame on both his feet.

CHAP. X.

1 David's messengers, sent to comfort Hanun the son of Nahash, are villainously entreated. 6 The Ammonites, strengthened by the Syrians, are overcome by Joab and Abishai. 15 Shobach, making a new supply of the Syrians at Helam, is slain by David.

about 1037.

* 1 Chron.
19. 1.

AND it came to pass after this, that the king of the children of Ammon died, and Hanun his son reigned in his stead.

2 Then said David, I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, as his father shewed kindness unto me. And David sent to comfort him by the hand of his servants for his father. And David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon.

3 And the princes of the children of Ammon said unto Hanun their lord, † Think-

† Heb.
In thine eyes doth David?

13. — and was lame on both his feet.] See the cause of his lameness related at 2 Sam. iv. 4. The conduct here detailed of David, in taking care of Mephibosheth the son of Jonathan, his dear friend, and giving him all that belonged to Saul, shews that he was a man of great equity and uprightness, as well as kind and affectionate. He would not suffer Mephibosheth to be deprived of that which justly belonged to him; he preserved in the midst of his prosperity a tender remembrance of Jonathan, his intimate friend, and religiously performed his promise of taking care of his family. From hence we learn, that promises ought to be religiously observed; that the duties of friendship are sacred and inviolable; that true and sincere friends remember those for whom they have affection, even after death; and that they express their affection to them by their care of their posterity. Further, the example of David, in doing good to Mephibosheth, who was left destitute, and at the same time weak and infirm, teaches us, that those who are in prosperity should always look on those who are injured and afflicted; and that we should ever be ready to comfort the miserable, and to do good to all. Ostervald.

Chap. X. ver. 2. — as his father shewed kindness] In what this kindness consisted, is not related: probably in offering him protection and assistance, while persecuted by Saul. Bp. Patrick.

4. — shaved off the one half of their beards.] This was one of the highest indignities that the malice of man could invent in those countries, where all people thought their hair the greatest ornament: insomuch that they never shaved their heads or their beards, except in case of mourning; and even in that case it was forbidden to the Israelites, Levit. xix. 27; Deut. xiv. 1. Thus when the Ammonites had caused one half of their beards to be est thou that David doth honour thy father, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? hath not David rather sent his servants unto thee, to search the city, and to spy it out, and to overthrow it?

4 Wherefore Hanun took David's servants, and shaved off the one half of their beards, and cut off their garments in the middle, even to their buttocks, and sent them away.

5 When they told it unto David, he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed: and the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return.

6 ¶ And when the children of Ammon saw that they stank before David, the children of Ammon sent and hired the Syrians of Beth-rehob, and the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thousand footmen, and of king Maacah a thousand men, and of Ish-tob twelve thousand men.

7 And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and all the host of the mighty men.

8 And the children of Ammon came out, and put the battle in array at the entering in of the gate: and the Syrians of Zoba, and of Rehob, and Ish-tob, and Maacah, were by themselves in the field.

9 When Joab saw that the front of the battle was against him before and behind, he chose of all the choice men of Israel,

Before
CHRIST
about 1037.

shaven, they abhorred to cut the other; which made them look ridiculously. It was one of the most infamous punishments of cowardice in Sparta, that those who turned their backs in the day of battle were obliged to appear abroad with one half of their beard shaved, and the other half unshaved. It is still a great mark of infamy among the Arabs to cut off the beard. Many people would prefer death to this kind of treatment. As they would think it a grievous punishment to lose the beard, they carry things so far as to beg for the sake of it; as, "By your beard," "God preserve your blessed beard:" and when they would express the value of any thing, they say, It is worth more than his beard. Bp. Patrick, Harmer.

— cut off their garments] The Hebrews, like other Eastern nations, wore long flowing garments; so that scarcely any thing could be conceived more disgraceful, than the cutting off their clothes, and thus exposing their persons. Dr. Chandler.

6. — saw that they stank before David,] Saw that they had highly provoked David, (Dr. Wells,) and were become very odious to him. Bp. Patrick.

— the Syrians of Beth-rehob,] Beth-rehob, or Rehob, seems to have been situated in the north part of the tribe of Asher, on the west of Laish, or Dan, which is said at Judg. xviii. 28. to be "in the valley that lieth by Beth-rehob." Thus it was within the land of Canaan; and the inhabitants are here called Syrians, either because the Syrians had really dispossessed the Canaanites, or because the inhabitants, although Canaanites, were in confederacy with the Syrians, and were therefore considered as Syrians by the Israelites. Dr. Wells.

9. — that the front of the battle was &c.] That the enemy was drawn up, so as to have a double front against him, the Syrians being before him, and the Ammonites behind him. Dr. Wells.

Before CHRIST about 1037. and put them in array against the Syrians:

10 And the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abishai his brother, that he might put them in array against the children of Ammon.

11 And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee.

12 Be of good courage, and let us play the men for our people, and for the cities of our God: and the Lord do that which seemeth him good.

13 And Joab drew nigh, and the people that were with him, unto the battle against the Syrians: and they fled before him.

14 And when the children of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abishai, and entered into the city. So Joab returned from the children of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem.

about 1036. 15 ¶ And when the Syrians saw that they were smitten before Israel, they gathered themselves together.

16 And Hadarezer sent, and brought out the Syrians that were beyond the river: and they came to Helam; and Shobach the captain of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

17 And when it was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and passed over Jordan, and came to Helam. And the Syrians set themselves in array against David, and fought with him. Before CHRIST about 1036.

18 And the Syrians fled before Israel; and David slew the men of seven hundred chariots of the Syrians, and forty thousand horsemen, and smote Shobach the captain of their host, who died there.

19 And when all the kings that were servants to Hadarezer saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and served them. So the Syrians feared to help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAP. XI.

1 While Joab besieged Rabbah, David committeth adultery with Bath-sheba. 6 Uriah, sent for by David to cover the adultery, would not go home neither sober nor drunken. 14 He carrieth to Joab the letter of his death. 18 Joab sendeth the news thereof to David. 26 David taketh Bath-sheba to wife.

AND it came to pass, † after the year was expired, at the time when kings go forth to battle, that ^a David sent Joab, and his servants with him, and all Israel; and they destroyed the children of Ammon, and besieged Rabbah. But David tarried still at Jerusalem. about 1035. † Heb. at the return of the year. 1 Chron. 20. 1.

2 ¶ And it came to pass in an evening-tide, that David arose from off his bed, and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and from the roof he saw a woman washing herself; and the woman was very beautiful to look upon.

12. — play the men] Fight like valiant men. Dr. Wells.

16. — Hadarezer] He had before been called Hadadezer, chap. viii. 3. The two Hebrew letters which correspond to d and r are so similar, that they are very easily mistaken by transcribers. Dr. Delaney.

— beyond the river:] Euphrates, which was the bound of their territories eastward. Bp. Patrick.

— Helam:] This Helam is probably thought to be the same with a place called Alamatha, mentioned by Ptolemy. Dr. Wells.

19. — when all the kings &c.] Thus the arms of David were blessed, and God accomplished the promises which He had made to Abraham, and renewed to Joshua, Gen. xv. 18; Josh. i. 2, 4. Thus, in the space of nineteen or twenty years, David had the good fortune to finish gloriously eight wars, all righteously undertaken, and all honourably terminated. What glory for the monarch of Israel, had not the splendour of this illustrious era been obscured by a complication of crimes, (see the next chapter,) of which no one could have supposed him capable! Dr. Delaney.

The period which had now elapsed of David's reign comprehends a space of about twenty years; during which he had waged several wars, all righteously begun, and successfully ended. He had fought no battle during that period which he did not win, and assaulted no city which he did not take. In a civil war of five years' continuance he never once lifted up his sword against a subject; and, at the end of it, he punished no rebel, he remembered no offence, he revenged no injury, but the murder of his rival. To crown all, with all his rare and true felicities, their only sure source and security, his religion and his innocence, still remained with him: and, had his innocence still remained with him, his happiness would have continued also. But a new and sad scene, very different from the past, is now to be opened. Dr. Delaney.

Chap. XI. ver. 1. — after the year was expired] In the Hebrew, at the return of the year; in the spring time, the season most fit for action. Bp. Patrick.

— Rabbah.] The capital city of the Ammonites.

2. — in an evening-tide, &c.] In the afternoon, when the sun was declining, he rose from the bed where he had lain down to sleep during the heat of the day, as was the manner in those countries. Bp. Patrick.

— walked upon the roof of the king's house.] The manner of building in all Eastern countries was to have the houses flat roofed, with a terrace and parapet wall, for the convenience of walking in the cool air; see note on Deut. xxii. 8: and, as David's palace was built on one of the highest places of mount Zion, he might easily look down on the lower parts of the town, and take a view of all the gardens that were within a due distance. Le Clerc.

— the woman was very beautiful to look upon.] David at first violated only the rules of decency, which he might easily have observed, by turning away his eyes from an improper object. This, which doubtless he was willing to think a very pardonable gratification of nothing worse than curiosity, carried him on far beyond his first intention, to the heinous crime of adultery. There undoubtedly he designed to stop, and keep what passed secret from all the world: but, after he had in vain tried to conceal his adultery, he was driven to the most horrible of all wickedness, murder; and a murder too, accompanied with the heaviest aggravations, deliberately planned and brought about by treachery. In this dreadful manner was one, who had been till

Before
CHRIST
about 1035.

3 And David sent and enquired after the woman. And one said, Is not this Bathsheba, the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Uriah the Hittite?

|| Or,
and when she had purified herself, &c. she returned.
† Lev. 15.
19. & 18. 19.

4 And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came in unto him, and he lay with her; || for she was ^b purified from her uncleanness: and she returned unto her house.

5 And the woman conceived, and sent and told David, and said, I am with child.

6 ¶ And David sent to Joab, saying, Send me Uriah the Hittite. And Joab sent Uriah to David.

† Heb. of the peace
of, &c.

7 And when Uriah was come unto him, David demanded of him † how Joab did, and how the people did, and how the war prospered.

† Heb. went out
after him.

8 And David said to Uriah, Go down to thy house, and wash thy feet. And Uriah departed out of the king's house, and there † followed him a mess of meat from the king.

then of an excellent character, hurried on, from a single, and seemingly slight, indulgence, into the depth of the grossest and most shocking villanies. And in the like manner may any one, if he be not on his guard against the deceitfulness of sin, be hurried unawares to his final destruction. Abp. Secker. How naturally do men forget themselves, and their God, and His favours, when they are in prosperity as David was! We often know not what we pray for, and wish, when we seek to be free from trouble, care, and danger. Bp. Wilson.

3. — the Hittite?] He was either a Hittite by descent, but a proselyte to the Jewish religion; or, as he was one of the king's body guard, who were all natives, and of the tribe of Judah, it is possible that this name may have been given him for some gallant action achieved against the Hittites. Stackhouse.

4. — sent messengers, and took her;] Notwithstanding he was informed she was another man's wife, he sent messengers to her, to invite her to his palace, into which he received her. This was a very great crime, committed deliberately and advisedly; and is here recorded for several great ends and purposes: among others, to make the best of men sensible, in what need they stand continually of Divine assistance; for which they should therefore earnestly pray, lest they fall into temptations: also to shew us, that those are but men whose examples are set before us, and therefore we must live by rule, not merely by example. Bp. Patrick. With what reluctance, with what dread do I look upon the miscarriage of the man after God's own heart! O holy Prophet, who can promise himself always to stand, when he sees thee fallen and maimed with the fall? who can assure himself of an immunity from the foulest sins, when he sees thee offending so heinously, so bloodily? Let profane eyes behold thee as a pattern, as an excuse for sinning: I shall never look upon thee, but through tears, as a woful spectacle of human infirmity! Bp. Hall. The design of God in recording the sins and miscarriages with which the best of men are sometimes overtaken, is, to admonish us all of the frailty of our nature, and the deceitfulness of our hearts; and to represent to the best of men how much it concerns them to be constantly on their guard, and never to permit themselves in the omission of any religious duties, lest Satan, who always lies in wait to surprise them, should get an advantage over them by his temptations. Reading. We must not look upon the sin which David at this time committed, as one of those which good men fall into through weakness and infirmity, and which are not inconsistent with a state of piety: it was a sin of the most heinous nature; and the more so, as it was committed by a person well acquainted with his duty, greatly en-

Before
CHRIST
about 1035.

9 But Uriah slept at the door of the king's house with all the servants of his lord, and went not down to his house.

10 And when they had told David, saying, Uriah went not down unto his house, David said unto Uriah, Camest thou not from thy journey? why then didst thou not go down unto thine house?

11 And Uriah said unto David, The ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in tents; and my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open fields; shall I then go into mine house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? as thou livest, and as thy soul liveth, I will not do this thing.

12 And David said to Uriah, Tarry here to day also, and to morrow I will let thee depart. So Uriah abode in Jerusalem that day, and the morrow.

13 And when David had called him, he did eat and drink before him; and lightened, and enriched with Divine graces. We must remember therefore, that, if he had not recovered by a sincere and publick repentance, proportioned to the greatness of his sins, he would finally have perished. So that we ought not to make an evil use of this example; but, on the contrary, should watch over ourselves with greater care: especially because sins of this nature are much more enormous in Christians, than they were in David; and it is consequently more hard for them to repent and to obtain pardon. Ostervald. It were an act of charity to cast a mantle over the nakedness of God's chosen servants, where the facts will with any tolerable construction bear an excuse. Yet, since all things that are written are written for our learning, and it pleased the wisdom of God, for that very end, to leave so many of their failings on record, as glasses to represent to us our common frailties, and as monuments and marks to point out to us those rocks on which others have been shipwrecked; it becomes us duly to notice them, and to make the best use of them we can for our spiritual advantage. Bp. Sanderson.

5. — sent and told David,] She was afraid of infamy, and perhaps of the severity of her husband, who might cause her to be stoned: and therefore prayed David to consult her honour and safety. Bp. Patrick.

8. — Go down to thy house, and wash thy feet.] In those countries, where it was not the custom to wear shoes, but sandals, and sometimes to go barefoot, to wash the feet was the greatest refreshment after a journey. The same was usually done before they sat down to meat.

9. — went not down to his house.] It seems to have been a sinful contrivance of David, that, by Uriah's holding intercourse with his wife, the child, which was conceived, might be thought to be his. But Uriah either suspected how the matter was, or else things were so ordered by the providence of God, that the crime of David should not be concealed, as he intended. Bp. Patrick. David's intention hitherto appears to have been, neither to murder Uriah nor to marry his wife, but only to screen her honour, and his own crime. Stackhouse.

11. — The ark, — abide in tents;] It appears hence, that they still continued the custom, of which we read 1 Sam. iv. 4, of carrying the ark into the field, as a token of the Divine presence and favour towards them; also for the purpose of their consulting the Divine Majesty in any difficult cases. Bp. Patrick. There is no appearance, from any thing in the history, that Uriah had as yet any suspicion of what had passed between David and his wife. Dr. Chandler.

Before
CHRIST
about 1035.

he made him drunk : and at even he went out to lie on his bed with the servants of his lord, but went not down to his house.

14 ¶ And it came to pass in the morning, that David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Uriah.

† Heb. strong.
† Heb. from after Aim.

15 And he wrote in the letter, saying, Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the † hottest battle, and retire ye † from him, that he may be smitten, and die.

16 And it came to pass, when Joab observed the city, that he assigned Uriah unto a place where he knew that valiant men were.

17 And the men of the city went out, and fought with Joab : and there fell some of the people of the servants of David ; and Uriah the Hittite died also.

18 ¶ Then Joab sent and told David all the things concerning the war ;

19 And charged the messenger, saying, When thou hast made an end of telling the matters of the war unto the king, 20 And if so be that the king's wrath arise, and he say unto thee, Wherefore approached ye so nigh unto the city when ye did fight ? knew ye not that they would shoot from the wall ?

° Judges 9.
53.

21 Who smote ° Abimelech the son of Jerubbesheth ? did not a woman cast a piece of a milstone upon him from the wall, that he died in Thebez ? why went ye nigh the wall ? then say thou, Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

13. — he made him drunk :] Such are the low and scandalous shifts, to which the consciousness of guilt reduces men ! David hoped that Uriah, when inflamed with liquor, would return to his house and cohabit with his wife, which he had refused to do when sober. Dr. Chandler.

— but went not down to his house.] How great must have been David's disappointment on receiving this intelligence ! He had injured a brave man ; and all that he could do was, to hide the injury, and not aggravate by exposing it. He had done all in his power to effect this concealment, but to no purpose. Dr. Delaney.

15. — Set ye Uriah &c.] Thus does one sin beget another, depriving men of the use of their understanding : now, that David had given himself up to sensuality, his eyes were blinded, his very nature changed, and become base and degenerate. He, who had formerly spared Saul when he might have destroyed him, without the knowledge of any one, now seeks the death of a faithful friend in a most unworthy manner. Bp. Patrick.

It has appeared a difficulty to some, that persons raised up, aided, inspired, directed or assisted by God, should have been guilty of such crimes as David, such idolatries as Solomon, such weaknesses as Samson, such apostasies and cruelties as the Jewish nation in general. To this it may be answered, that it is perfectly credible that they should be raised up for particular purposes ; aided in effecting a particular object ; inspired with a certain degree of knowledge ; assisted at particular periods, and in a special manner ; and yet that, beyond this, their natural character, their external temptations, their acquired habits, may have produced all the irregularities and crimes which gave so much offence. To ask why God did not prevent this, is to ask, why he did not exercise a greater degree of supernatural control than the peculiar purposes

22 ¶ So the messenger went, and came and shewed David all that Joab had sent him for. Before
CHRIST
about 1023.

23 And the messenger said unto David, Surely the men prevailed against us, and came out unto us into the field, and we were upon them even unto the entering of the gate.

24 And the shooters shot from off the wall upon thy servants ; and some of the king's servants be dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

25 Then David said unto the messenger, Thus shalt thou say unto Joab, Let not this thing † displease thee, for the sword devoureth † one as well as another : make thy battle more strong against the city, and overthrow it : and encourage thou him. † Heb.
be evil in thine eyes.
† Heb.
so and such.

26 ¶ And when the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she mourned for her husband.

27 And when the mourning was past, David sent and fetched her to his house, and she became his wife, and bare him a son. But the thing that David had done † displeased the LORD. † Heb.
was evil in the eyes of.

CHAP. XII.

1 Nathan's parable of the ewe lamb causeth David to be his own judge. 7 David, reprov'd by Nathan, confesseth his sin, and is pardoned. 15 David mourneth and prayeth for the child, while it lived. 24 Solomon is born, and named Jedidiah. 26 David taketh Bath, and tortureth the people thereof.

of Providence required ? a question as absurd as it is presumptuous. Dr. Graves.

David, now reduced to the utmost distress by the failure of his arts to cover his guilt, thought there was only one way left to prevent the discovery he dreaded ; and that was, to murder the unhappy husband. The measure was resolved upon, and treacherously executed. Dr. Chandler.

17. — Uriah the Hittite died also.] Thus fell this brave man ; a sacrifice to his own heroic virtue, and to his prince's guilt. Dr. Delaney.

21. — son of Jerubbesheth ?] Jerubbesheth, another name for Jerubbaal or Gideon. There are other Hebrew names which end indifferently in Besheth or Bosheth, and Baal ; as Ish-bosheth, called Esh-baal at 1 Chron. viii. 33 ; and Mephibosheth, called Meribbaal at 1 Chron. viii. 34. Bp. Patrick. The reason assigned for the Hebrews altering the termination Baal in names, is, that they did not care to pronounce this word, being the name of idols which they held in abomination. Calmel.

27. — when the mourning was past,] No time for the mourning of widows is prescribed by the law. Bath-sheba probably mourned according to the custom of the country, which is commonly supposed to be, by keeping a fast for seven days successively, eating nothing each day till the sun was set. See 1 Sam. xxxi. 13. Dr. Delaney.

— displeased the Lord.] God resolved to shew His abhorrence of the crime, to execute on David a vengeance proportionable to the heinousness and guilt of it, and thereby to rouse his conscience, and bring him to those acknowledgments of his sin which might prepare him for that forgiveness, of which he was now greatly unworthy, however much he needed it. Dr. Chandler.

Before
CHRIST
about 1034.

AND the LORD sent Nathan unto David. And he came unto him, and said unto him, There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor.

2 The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds:

3 But the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up: and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own meat, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter.

† Heb.
morsel.

4 And there came a traveller unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him; but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him.

‡ Or, is worthy to die.
* Exod. 22.
1.

5 And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As the LORD liveth, the man that hath done this thing ‡ shall surely die:

6 And he shall restore the lamb * four-fold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity.

Before
CHRIST
about 1034.

7 ¶ And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man. Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I ^b anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul;

^b 1 Sam. 16.
13.

8 And I gave thee thy master's house, and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah; and if that had been too little, I would moreover have given unto thee such and such things.

9 Wherefore hast thou despised the commandment of the LORD, to do evil in his sight? thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon.

10 Now therefore the sword shall never depart from thine house; because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy wife.

11 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will

Chap. XII. ver. 1. — There were two men &c.] This parable, in which Nathan conveyed his message from God, is dressed up with all the circumstances of art, tenderness, and delicacy, to move compassion, and at the same time to force from him that dreadful sentence of his own condemnation, ver. 5, even before he perceived it. Dr. Chandler.

5. And David's anger was greatly kindled] How partial does self-love make us to our own faults! David had forgiven himself the double guilt of adultery and murder; but with the utmost indignation passes a sentence of death on the rich man, "because he had no pity." Wogan.

6. — restore — fourfold,] This was agreeable to the Levitical law, Exod. xxii. 1. Bp. Patrick.

7. And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man.] How surprising a blow must this have been! In the midst of his wrath, when, forgetful of his own iniquity, he had not only adjudged a person much less culpable to pay the legal penalty of a fourfold restitution, but, from excessive detestation of his crime, had even, contrary to law, passed sentence of death upon him:—then to be told, "Thou art the man!"—Let us often think of this; and as often remember, that, with equal truth, though God forbid that it should be with equal measure, the same thing holds concerning every one of us. We all know our duty, or easily may: we are all abundantly ready at seeing and censuring what others do amiss; and yet we all continue, more or less, to do amiss ourselves, without regarding it. But, in however strong delusion men may remain at present, ere long remorse may seize them, an adversary expose them, a friend rebuke them; one way or other, the case of David, who doubtless thought he was exceedingly safe, may become theirs; and some voice proclaim aloud to them, what they are afraid of whispering to themselves, "Thou art the man!" Abp. Secker.

How must David have been confounded when the Prophet answered him in these words! He had never looked into his own heart while the Prophet was speaking to him. He saw not that the guest coming to the house of the rich man was his own base passion, that his poor neighbour was Uriah, and the ewe-lamb his wife. His thoughts were entirely occupied with what he thought the case of another sinner; and he remained blind to his own crime, which was much more heinous than that, against which he had pointed a most righteous sentence. This story of David is one of the strongest instances of self-deceit, and should make us seriously consider our aptness to delude ourselves, and the danger which attends such conduct. Gilpin.

8. — and thy master's wives] Polygamy, which had been introduced into the world before the deluge, was tolerated by God under the Jewish dispensation, although it was contrary to the first institution of marriage. It was allowed to the Jews in the same manner as divorces, on account of the hardness of their hearts. Concubine wives were for the most part slaves, and were less solemnly married; but the lawful wives had no other advantage over them than the honour of having their children preferred to the inheritance. Fleury.

9. Wherefore hast thou despised &c.] This remonstrance of Nathan with David was worthy the dignity of a Prophet's character and station, and such as became the majesty of him to whom it was given. It was grave, strong, affecting, and insinuating. But how did the unhappy offender receive the remonstrance? He immediately fell under conviction, acknowledged his offence, and owned himself worthy of death. The psalms which he now composed shew his deep sense of guilt, and will be an eternal memorial of the sincerity of his repentance. Dr. Chandler.

10. Now therefore the sword shall never depart from thine house;] Meaning, that, as long as he lived, there should be slaughters in his family: which was fulfilled in the violent deaths of his children, Amnon, Absalom, and Adonijah. See chapters xiii, xviii, and 1 Kings ii. Bp. Patrick.

As all vice is disobedience, and disobedience against God, whose laws are transgressed by it, vice is not left to its natural effects, though these are sufficiently disastrous, but calls down various kinds of punishment from God. David fell in an evil hour into the sins of adultery and murder: of his guilt he was for awhile insensible, till he was alarmed by a message from Nathan the Prophet; and from that time forward he saw no more happiness and peace in this world: his life was disturbed with tumults and rebellions: always do we find him either flying from danger, or weeping with sorrow. Let no man then consider the example of David, as an encouragement to sin; the miserable consequences of sin were never more displayed than in the history of that man. He was a sinner for a comparatively short period; and he was a sorrowing, afflicted, and tortured penitent for the rest of his life. "The sword did never depart from his house." Jones of Nayland.

11. — I will raise up evil — I will take thy wives &c.] It should

Before
CHRIST
about 1034.
Deut. 28.
20.
chap 16.
22.

raise up evil against thee out of thine own house, and I will take thy wives before thine eyes, and give them unto thy neighbour, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun.

be well remembered, that these expressions do not denote any positive actions of God, as if He prompted wicked men to do the things with which He threatens David. Such a construction as this is injurious to the Divine attributes, and makes God the author of evil. The true meaning is, that God, at that time, saw the perverse disposition of one of David's sons, and the crafty disposition of one of his counsellors, which, if left unrestrained, would not fail to cause David much uneasiness. Therefore, because David had violated the Divine law, and committed adultery and murder, God would not interpose, but suffered the tempers of these two wicked persons to follow their own course: whereupon the one, being ambitious of a crown, endeavours to depose his father; and the other, willing to make the breach irreparable, advised the most detested thing he could think of. Thus, from these Scripture phrases, we are not to infer that God either does or can do evil; but only, that He permits evil to be done, which His omnipotence might have prevented; or, in other terms, that He suffers men naturally wicked to follow the bent of their tempers, without any interposition of His providence to restrain them. Stackhouse.

As Nathan foretold to him, so a world of mischief and misery fell unto him from this presumptuous act: his daughter defiled by her brother; that brother slain by another brother; a strong conspiracy raised against him by his own son; his concubines openly defiled by the same son; himself afflicted by the untimely death of that son, who was his darling; reviled and cursed to his face by a base unworthy companion; besides many other affronts, troubles, and vexations. So truly David felt, by sad experience, what woe is brought on by presumptuous sin. Bp. Sanderson.

— in the sight of this sun.] Meaning, he shall do it openly, so as to be visible to all. Bp. Pococke. Absalom had a tent spread on the house top, and there went in unto David's wives, chap. xvi. 21, 22; also David fled from his son, and left his concubines behind him, chap. xv. 14—16. Bp. Patrick.

13. — I have sinned against the Lord.] Here the example of David begins to be as useful for our imitation, as it had before been for our warning. Struck to the very heart with the sense of so many and heinous iniquities, crowding in at once upon his mind; and abhorring himself for being able, first to commit, and then to overlook them, he cries out, "I have sinned against the Lord." Few words indeed; but greatly expressive, and the more so, for being few. Astonishment, confusion, terrour, might well stop the utterance of more for the present, and for no small time. Afterwards, his sorrow obtained the relief of free vent: and his penitent psalms, especially the 51st, composed on this very occasion, express most pathetically the depth of his humiliation, and the earnestness of his entreaties for pardon, even after he had been assured of it; for still the consciousness that he was unworthy to receive it, would prompt him continually to pray for it. Let all of us then, who like David have sinned, in whatever instance it be, greater or less, repent like David too; and, instead of perversely defending ourselves by the bad part of his example, resolve immediately to reform ourselves according to the good. Abp. Secker.

It well becomes us to reflect seriously on David in his present fallen condition. Behold the greatest monarch of the earth thus humbled for his sins before God; confessing his shame with contrition and confusion of face, calling out for mercy and imploring pardon in the presence of his meanest subjects; as appears from the psalms he composed on this occasion, and especially from the 51st, which, it is supposed, he caused to be publicly sung in the tabernacle. There is something in this image of penitence more fitted to strike the soul with a dread and abhorrence of guilt than it is possible to express: something more edifying, more

12 For thou didst it secretly: but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun. Before
CHRIST
about 1034.

13 And David said unto Nathan, I have sinned against the LORD. And Nathan adapted to human infirmities, and more powerful to reform them, than the most perfect example of unsinning obedience:—and from the 69th psalm we see what reproach and insults he brought on himself, even by his repentance and humiliation before God and the world. What must we think of the fortitude and magnanimity of that man, who could endure what is there described for a series of years? Or rather, how shall we adore that unfailing mercy and all-sufficient goodness, which could support him thus, under the quickest sense of shame and infamy, and deepest compunctions of conscience; which could enable him to bear up steadily against guilt, infamy, and the evil world united, from a principle of true religion, and, in the end, even rejoice in his sad estate, inasmuch as he plainly perceived it must finally tend to promote the true interest of virtue and glory of God, that is, must finally tend to promote that interest, which was the great governing principle, and main purpose of his life? Dr. Delaney.

It is hardly possible for language to express greater agony of mind than that shewn by David in his penitential psalms, Ps. xxv, xxxviii, li, lxix, written on this occasion. No one surely that reads them can wish to undergo the misery there described. It is impossible for any one of a sound mind to make so wretched a bargain for himself, as voluntarily to plunge into such crimes, that he may afterwards taste the bitter fruits of such repentance; or, what is still worse, that he may die without repenting, and rush into endless torments. Bp. Porteus.

— And Nathan said unto David.] It was, probably, not immediately after David's confession of his guilt, but after he had bewailed his sins so bitterly that his repentance appeared to be hearty, that Nathan pronounced an absolution upon him; and assured him of the pardon of his guilt, and the remission of part of the punishment, so that he should not die, either eternally, or in the present world by an untimely death. Bp. Patrick. It may very well be asked, how it could happen, that God so readily forgave David on his acknowledging his transgression, and yet did not forgive Saul, though he made the same confession, "I have sinned?" But the answer is obvious, that, be the form of expression what it will, unless it proceeds from real sincerity of heart, the great Searcher of hearts will not regard it. The true reason therefore, why Saul could not obtain a revocation of his sentence of rejection was, that his repentance was not sincere, that it did not proceed from an humble and contrite spirit: at the same time that he acknowledged his sin, he desired Samuel to honour him before the people, 1 Sam. xv. 30, and persisted in his disobedience ever after: whereas David, on the contrary, humbled himself, wept, and lamented for his sin, and, in his psalm (li.) composed on this occasion, has left us an eternal monument of his sincere repentance. Stackhouse. The fall of David is one of the most instructive and alarming recorded in that most faithful and impartial of all histories, the Holy Bible. The transgression of one idle and ungarded moment pierced him through with many sorrows, and embittered the remainder of his life, giving occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme on account of this crying offence of the man after God's own heart. When he only cut off the skirt of Saul's robe, his heart smote him for the indignity thus offered to his master; but when he treacherously murdered a faithful and gallant soldier, who was fighting his battles, after having defiled his bed, his heart smote him not: we read at least of no compunction or remorse of conscience, till Nathan was sent to reprove him. Then indeed his sorrow was extreme, and the psalms which he composed on this occasion express, in the most pathetic strains, the anguish of a wounded spirit, and the bitterness of his repentance. Still, the rising again of David holds forth no encouragement to sinners who may wish to shelter themselves under his example, or flatter themselves with the hope of obtaining similar forgiveness; for, though his life was spared, yet God inflicted those tem-

^{Before CHRIST about 1034.} said unto David, ⁴ The LORD also hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die.

⁴ Eccl^{us} 47. 11. Howbeit, because by this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the LORD to blaspheme, the child also that is born unto thee shall surely die.

15 ¶ And Nathan departed unto his house. And the LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife bare unto David, and it was very sick.

16 David therefore besought God for the child; and David ^{† Heb. fasted a fast.} fasted, and went in, and lay all night upon the earth.

17 And the elders of his house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the earth: but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them.

18 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that the child died. And the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead: for they said, Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spake unto him, and he would not hearken unto our voice: how will he then ^{† Heb. do hurt.} vex himself, if we tell him that the child is dead?

19 But when David saw that his servants whispered, David perceived that the child was dead: therefore David said unto his servants, Is the child dead? And they ^{Before CHRIST about 1034.} said, He is dead.

20 Then David arose from the earth, and washed, and anointed himself, and changed his apparel, and came into the house of the LORD, and worshipped: then he came to his own house; and when he required, they set bread before him, and he did eat.

21 Then said his servants unto him, What thing is this that thou hast done? thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive; but when the child was dead, thou didst rise and eat bread.

22 And he said, While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept: for I said, Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, that the child may live?

23 But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me.

24 ¶ And David comforted Bath-sheba ^{1053.} his wife, and went in unto her, and lay with her: and ^{6.} she bare a son, and ^{† 1 Chron. 22. 9.} he called his name Solomon: and the LORD loved him.

poral judgments, which the Prophet denounced, that his soul might be saved in the day of the Lord, and that others, admonished by his example, might be more afraid to offend. The remainder of his days was as disastrous, as the beginning had been prosperous. Rape, incest, murder, and rebellion, raged among his children: he was deserted by his friends, reviled by his enemies, banished from his capital, plunged into the deepest affliction by the ingratitude and death of his favourite and rebellious son Absalom; and, to fill up the measure of his calamities, had a dreadful plague brought upon his subjects by his last offence; so that he died, exhausted at seventy years of age, still older in constitution than in years. Dr. Hales.

After all, we know very well, that, notwithstanding the miscarriages here placed before us, David was one of the greatest of God's servants, an excellent king, and a most Divine Prophet, endued with a wonderful measure of the Spirit of God, and one of the greatest pillars of His church, in whose words the whole church militant on earth daily offers up her prayers and praises. Let us not then dishonour his memory by any light or indecent remarks on his miscarriages, but let us consider him as one who highly deserves the character of a holy man. Let us take warning by his miscarriages, not to provoke God by any similar sins; and, whenever we may have fallen into transgression, let us imitate him in a serious repentance, that so, making our timely peace with God in this life, we may happily be restored to His favour, and numbered with His saints in glory everlasting. Reading.

— The Lord also hath put away thy sin; We learn from the case of David, that God can punish, and that He can forgive, at the same time. Punishment from Him, when it falls upon good men, is not the punishment of wrath and vengeance, but that of love and correction: it is therefore a sign that He forgives, and it ought to be so understood. When Nathan said to David, "The sword shall never depart from thy house;" he said at the same time, "The Lord hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die." God therefore forgives while He punishes, and punishes because He forgives. It may possibly be a privilege of the godly to suffer under Him; and every wise Christian will pray, as many have been known to do, that they may have all their punishment in this world. Jones of Nayland.

14. — the child also that is born unto thee shall surely die.] In the very same breath that Nathan tells David, "The Lord hath put away thy sin;" he tells him also of a trying affliction, and a very trying one it proved, that he should immediately undergo, on account of that sin. Nor could the most fervent intercessions of the royal penitent reverse the decree. Thus does Providence ordain the course of events to this day, partly to complete the humiliation of the sinner, partly that others may "hear and fear." Long after peace of mind has been restored to the sinner, which yet will never be so restored to great offenders as not to leave matter of melancholy reflection; long after penitents are at ease with respect to their future state; afflicting consequences, with respect to the present, will flow from their evil deeds. These are indeed considerations, under which no sinner should despond; but surely others should take warning from them, and learn of how unspeakable value it is, to keep innocence from the first. Ahp. Secker.

20. — David arose from the earth,] Sir J. Chardin informs us, that it is usual in the East to leave a near relative of a person deceased to weep and mourn, till, on the third or fourth day at farthest, the other relations and friends go to see him, cause him to eat, lead him to a bath, and cause him to put on new vestments, he having before thrown himself on the ground. The surprise of David's servants, who had seen his bitter anguish while the child was sick, was excited at his doing that himself, which it was customary for the friends of mourners to do for them. Harmer.

22. — While the child was yet alive, &c.] This answer of David's is the most truly heroic, philosophick, and religious, of any recorded in history. It is, I venture to affirm, the noblest lesson on all that is reasonable and religious in grief that ever was penned. Dr. Delaney.

24. — called his name Solomon;] A name which signifies peaceable; forasmuch as God would give peace to Israel in those days. Dr. Wells.

— and the Lord loved him.] As this son was conceived in

Before
CHRIST
1033.

|| That is,
Beloved of the LORD.

25 And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet; and he called his name || Jedidiah, because of the LORD.

26 ¶ And Joab fought against Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and took the royal city.

27 And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, I have fought against Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters.

28 Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it: lest I take the city, and † it be called after my name.

† Heb.
my name be called upon it.

29 And David gathered all the people together, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took it.

1 Chron.
20. 2.

30 ^s And he took their king's crown from off his head, the weight whereof was a talent of gold with the precious stones: and it was set on David's head. And he brought forth the spoil of the city † in great abundance.

† Heb.
very great.

31 And he brought forth the people that were therein, and put them under saws, and under harrows of iron, and under axes of iron, and made them pass through the brickkiln: and thus did he unto all the cities of the children of Ammon. So David and all the people returned unto Jerusalem.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Amnon loving Tamar, by Jonadab's counsel feigning himself sick, ravisheth her. 15 He hateth her, and innocence, in the happy season of God's reconciliation with his parents, and of their establishment in true religion by sincere repentance and humiliation before Him, it pleased God to accept him in a singular manner. And, to manifest His favour to him, for the consolation of David, He conveyed His benediction to the son by the same hand which had before conveyed His chastisements to the father: He sent Nathan to David to bestow on his son, in His name, the most blessed of all earthly, the most blessed but one of all heavenly appellations, Jedidiah, or "the beloved of the Lord." Dr. Delaney.

27. — have taken the city of waters.] That part of the city which lay upon the water; the other part, which was the heart of the city, being yet unsubdued. Bp. Patrick. Some are of opinion, that this royal city of Rabbah was called the city of waters, either because it stood on a river, or was encompassed with water for its defence. But Junius renders the words, "he cut off the waters which supplied the town;" which translation Josephus seems to approve, by telling us, that Joab seized on all the aqueducts which led to the city. Stackhouse. Rabbah was the principal city of the Ammonites, situated on the river Jabbok. The name signifies "great" or "populous," and is applied to other cities: hence this is styled, for distinction's sake, at Deut. iii. 11, "Rabbah of the children of Ammon." Dr. Wells.

30. — the weight whereof was &c.] Rather, the price or value, as the Hebrew word often signifies: for the weight of a talent could not be borne on a man's head. Bp. Patrick.

31. — brought forth the people &c.] These dreadful punishments were intended to terrify other countries from violating the laws of nations, by abusing publick ambassadours. Some have deemed these punishments too severe, and have therefore supposed that shamefully turneth her away. 19 Absalom entertaineth her, and concealeth his purpose. 23 At a sheep-shearing, among all the king's sons, he killeth Amnon. 30 David grieving at the news is comforted by Jonadab. 37 Absalom flieth to Talmai at Geshur.

Before
CHRIST
about 1032.

AND it came to pass after this, that Absalom the son of David had a fair sister, whose name was Tamar; and Amnon the son of David loved her.

2 And Amnon was so vexed, that he fell sick for his sister Tamar; for she was a virgin; and † Amnon thought it hard for him to do any thing to her.

† Heb.
it was marvellous, or, hidden in the eyes of Amnon.

3 But Amnon had a friend, whose name was Jonadab, the son of Shimeah David's brother: and Jonadab was a very subtil man.

4 And he said unto him, Why art thou, being the king's son, † lean † from day to day? wilt thou not tell me? And Amnon said unto him, I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister.

† Heb. thin.
† Heb. morning by morning.

5 And Jonadab said unto him, Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thyself sick: and when thy father cometh to see thee, say unto him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come, and give me meat, and dress the meat in my sight, that I may see it, and eat it at her hand.

6 ¶ So Amnon lay down, and made himself sick: and when the king was come to see him, Amnon said unto the king, I pray thee, let Tamar my sister

David acted thus in his state of impenitence, when the mild and gentle Spirit of God had departed from him, and he was become cruel and furious as well as lustful. Bp. Patrick. If any apology for David's conduct be deemed necessary, it should be recollected, that these Ammonites were monsters of barbarity, as appears from the conditions they offered to the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead, 1 Sam. xi. 2: and the punishments here mentioned were inflicted by the Ammonites themselves, on those Jews whom they took prisoners. David, therefore, when he conquered their country, and reduced their capital city, used them with the same cruelty; not every one of them indiscriminately, but such only as appeared in arms against him, and had either advised, or approved the advice of putting such a disgrace on his messengers. Stackhouse. But the words admit of being translated, "He put them to the saw, to iron mines, and to iron axes, and transported them to the brickkilns;" meaning, that he reduced them to slavery, and put them to hard drudgery. This interpretation, if it be admitted, vindicates David from the inhumanity, which, as many conceive, attaches to the sense of the common translation. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. XIII. ver. 1. And it came to pass] Now began a sad scene to be opened of the calamities, which, Nathan had foretold, ch. xii. 10, should befall the house of David. Tamar was David's daughter by the same mother with Absalom, and therefore especially called his sister. Bp. Patrick.

5. And Jonadab said unto him, &c.] The advice of Jonadab was execrably wicked, thus to indulge a most criminal passion in his friend, and suggest the means by which he might accomplish it, at the expense of his own honour and his sister's innocence. Dr. Chandler.

Before CHRIST about 1032. come, and make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat at her hand.

7 Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and dress him meat.

|| Or, paste. 8 So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house; and he was laid down. And she took || flour, and kneaded it, and made cakes in his sight, and did bake the cakes.

9 And she took a pan, and poured them out before him; but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, Have out all men from me. And they went out every man from him.

10 And Amnon said unto Tamar, Bring the meat into the chamber, that I may eat of thine hand. And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother.

11 And when she had brought them unto him to eat, he took hold of her, and said unto her, Come lie with me, my sister.

† Heb. humble me. Lev. 18. 9. 12 And she answered him, Nay, my brother, do not † force me; for ^a † no such thing ought to be done in Israel: do not thou this folly.

† Heb. it ought not so to be done. 13 And I, whither shall I cause my shame to go? and as for thee, thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel. Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the king; for he will not withhold me from thee.

14 Howbeit he would not hearken unto her voice: but, being stronger than she, forced her, and lay with her.

† Heb. with great hatred greatly. 15 ¶ Then Amnon hated her † exceedingly; so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love wherewith he had loved her. And Amnon said unto her, Arise, be gone.

12. — for no such thing ought to be done] She entreats him not to defile the Church of God with such forbidden practices, whatever may be done in other nations; to consider also the foulness of the sin, which would highly provoke the Divine majesty; the disgrace which the act would bring upon her, who would be weighed down with shame; and the loss of reputation which would ensue to him, who would be looked upon as a man devoid of all sense of religion, honour, and humanity. Bp. Patrick.

13. — thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel.] Every one in Israel that hears of this foul act shall condemn thee of great wickedness and folly. Bp. Hall.

— for he will not withhold me from thee.] She seems to have said this merely as coming first into her mind, which she thought might deliver her from the present danger: (Bp. Patrick:) for she could not but know that her marriage with her half brother was forbidden by law. Dr. Chandler.

15. — hated her exceedingly.] The villany was no sooner committed, than shame and vexation, the natural attendants of exorbitant vices, changed his burning love into the contrary extreme of an implacable hatred. Pyle. It is no uncommon thing for men of violent and irregular passions to pass from one extreme to another. The shame which accompanies a bad action,

16 And she said unto him, There is no cause: this evil in sending me away is greater than the other that thou didst unto me. But he would not hearken unto her.

Before CHRIST about 1032.

17 Then he called his servant that ministered unto him, and said, Put now this woman out from me, and bolt the door after her.

18 And she had a garment of divers colours upon her: for with such robes were the king's daughters that were virgins apparelled. Then his servant brought her out, and bolted the door after her.

19 ¶ And Tamar put ashes on her head, and rent her garment of divers colours that was on her, and laid her hand on her head, and went on crying.

20 And Absalom her brother said unto her, Hath Amnon thy brother been with thee? but hold now thy peace, my sister: he is thy brother; † regard not this thing. So Tamar remained † desolate in her brother Absalom's house.

† Heb. set not thine heart. † Heb. and desolate.

21 ¶ But when king David heard of all these things, he was very wroth.

22 And Absalom spake unto his brother Amnon neither good nor bad: for Absalom hated Amnon, because he had forced his sister Tamar.

23 ¶ And it came to pass after two full years, that Absalom had sheepshearers in Baal-hazor, which is beside Ephraim: and Absalom invited all the king's sons.

1030.

24 And Absalom came to the king, and said, Behold now, thy servant hath sheepshearers; let the king, I beseech thee, and his servants go with thy servant.

25 And the king said to Absalom, Nay, the remorse, repentance, and many bad consequences which immediately pursue it, make a recoil in every man's temper. Amnon now hated his sister when he should have hated himself: and, as his outrageous treatment of her made it impossible for his guilt to be concealed, so God seems to have abandoned him to the tumult of his intemperate mind, on purpose to make His punishment of David's adultery more marked, and the Prophet's prediction of raising up evil to him out of his own house, chap. xii. 11, more conspicuous. Stackhouse.

16. — this evil — is greater] Not a greater sin, but a greater mischief to her, as it published her shame to all. Bp. Patrick.

19. — laid her hand on her head,] Probably, covered her face with her hands, as ashamed to be seen, after the dishonour done to her by her brother. Dr. Chandler.

20. — but hold now thy peace,] He seems to desire her to put up with the injury in silence, that it might not bring too much disgrace on the family; but, in truth, that he might the better dissemble the revenge he intended. Bp. Patrick.

23. — had sheepshearers] The time of sheepshearing was, in those countries, a time of rejoicing, and a feast was held at it. We read of it at Gen. xxxviii. 12; and it was at such a time that David sent to Nabal for assistance, 1 Sam. xxv. 8. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1030.

my son, let us not all now go, lest we be chargeable unto thee. And he pressed him: howbeit he would not go, but blessed him.

26 Then said Absalom, If not, I pray thee, let my brother Amnon go with us. And the king said unto him, Why should he go with thee?

27 But Absalom pressed him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

28 ¶ Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, Mark ye now when Amnon's heart is merry with wine, and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon; then kill him, fear not: ¶ have not I commanded you? be courageous, and be † valiant.

29 And the servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and every man † gat him up upon his mule, and fled.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, while they were in the way, that tidings came to David, saying, Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left.

31 Then the king arose, and tare his garments, and lay on the earth; and all his servants stood by with their clothes rent.

32 And Jonadab, the son of Shimeah David's brother, answered and said, Let not my lord suppose that they have slain all the young men the king's sons; for Amnon only is dead: for by the † appointment of Absalom this hath been ¶ determined from the day that he forced his sister Tamar.

33 Now therefore let not my lord the king take the thing to his heart, to think that all the king's sons are dead: for Amnon only is dead.

34 But Absalom fled. And the young man that kept the watch lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came much people by the way of the hill side behind him.

35 And Jonadab said unto the king, Behold, the king's sons come: † as thy servant said, so it is.

36 And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of speaking, that, behold, the king's sons came, and lifted up their voice and wept: and the king also and all his servants wept † very sore.

37 ¶ But Absalom fled, and went to Talmai, the son of ¶ Ammihud, king of Geshur. And David mourned for his son every day.

38 So Absalom fled, and went to Geshur, and was there three years.

39 And the soul of king David ¶ longed to go forth unto Absalom: for he was comforted concerning Amnon, seeing he was dead.

Before
CHRIST
1030.

† Heb.
according to the word of thy servant.

† Heb. with a great weeping greatly.
1030.
¶ Or, Ammihur.

¶ Or, was consumed.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Joab, suborning a widow of Tekoah, by a parable to incline the king's heart to fetch home Absalom, bringeth him to Jerusalem. 25 Absalom's beauty, hair, and children. 28 After two years, Absalom by Joab is brought into the king's presence.

NOW Joab the son of Zeruiah perceived that the king's heart was toward Absalom.

1027.

2 And Joab sent to Tekoah, and fetched thence a wise woman, and said unto her, I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on now mourning apparel, and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a wo-

39. — he was comforted concerning Amnon,] As Amnon could not be recovered to life, his grief for him gradually subsided, and his affection for his banished son began to revive; and he wished to discover some method by which a reconciliation might be brought about. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. XIV. ver. 2. — sent to Tekoah,] A place to the south of Beth-lehem, about nine miles distant from it. Dr. Wells.

— a wise woman,] That is, a prudent sensible woman, who was able to manage such a matter properly. Dr. Wells. Herein does Joab's cunning appear not a little, that he made choice of a woman, rather than a man, as being likely sooner to gain pity in her miseries; a widow, which was a condition of life more proper for raising compassion; a grave woman, (as Josephus calls her,) which made her better fitted for addressing the king; and a woman, dwelling in some distant part, and not known in Jerusalem; for the case, which she was to represent, might not admit of being too readily investigated. Stack-house.

— anoint not thyself with oil,] Ointments, mixed with perfumes, were in constant use among the ancients for the purpose of cleanliness, and to give a grateful odour to the body. In

29. — upon his mule,] Mules began to be used about the time of David, who ordered Solomon to be carried on his own mule, 1 Kings i. 33. A present of mules was made to Solomon, 1 Kings x. 25; and these animals were used for burdons and for carriages, 1 Chron. xii. 40; Is. lxvi. 20. Bochart.

30. — hath slain all the king's sons,] The messenger coming away in alarm when Amnon was killed, thought that all the king's sons were killed also. Bp. Patrick.

37. But Absalom fled,] As he had committed a wilful murder, he could have no city of refuge in his own country; and therefore he fled out of the kingdom to his mother's father. Thus did God, by leaving Amnon a prey to his own passions, "raise up evil to David out of his own house:" a daughter ravished by her own brother; that brother murdered by another brother; and that other in exile on this very account, and destined soon to perish, by a fate which would have been more deplorable, if it had been less deserved. Dr. Delancy.

— Talmai, — king of Geshur,] Talmai was Absalom's grandfather on the mother's side, chap. iii. 3. Geshur seems to have been the capital of a small kingdom, and to have lain within the borders of the land of Israel: it was probably in the half tribe of Manasseh, which was on the east of Jordan. Dr. Wells.

¶ Or, will you not,
since I have commanded you?
† Heb. sons of ea-
mour.
† Heb.
rode.

† Heb.
mouth.
¶ Or, settled.

Painted by J. N. C. Cole

Engraved by Geo. Cooke

THE DISOBEDIENT PROPHET.

1 Kings C. 13 v. 28

London: Published by J. N. C. Cole, 10, St. Martin's Lane, W. C.

Before CHRIST 1027. man that had a long time mourned for the dead :

3 And come to the king, and speak on this manner unto him. So Joab put the words in her mouth.

4 ¶ And when the woman of Tekoah spake to the king, she fell on her face to the ground, and did obeisance, and said, † Help, O king.

† Heb. Save.

5 And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, I am indeed a widow woman, and mine husband is dead.

6 And thy handmaid had two sons, and they two strove together in the field, and there was † none to part them, but the one smote the other, and slew him.

† Heb. no deliverer between them.

7 And, behold, the whole family is risen against thine handmaid, and they said, Deliver him that smote his brother, that we may kill him, for the life of his brother whom he slew; and we will destroy the heir also: and so they shall quench my coal which is left, and shall not leave to my husband neither name nor remainder † upon the earth.

† Heb. upon the face of the earth.

8 And the king said unto the woman, Go to thine house, and I will give charge concerning thee.

9 And the woman of Tekoah said unto the king, My lord, O king, the iniquity be on me, and on my father's house: and the king and his throne be guiltless.

10 And the king said, Whosoever saith ought unto thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more.

11 Then said she, I pray thee, let the king remember the LORD thy God, † that thou wouldest not suffer the revengers of blood to destroy any more, lest they destroy my son. And he said, As the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth.

† Heb. that the revenger of blood do not multiply to destroy.

Before CHRIST 1027.

12 Then the woman said, Let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak one word unto my lord the king. And he said, Say on.

13 And the woman said, Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing against the people of God? for the king doth speak this thing as one which is faulty, in that the king doth not fetch home again his banished.

14 For we must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; ‖ neither doth God respect any person: yet doth he devise means, that his banished be not expelled from him.

‖ Or, because God hath not taken away his life, he hath also devised means, &c.

15 Now therefore that I am come to speak of this thing unto my lord the king, it is because the people have made me afraid: and thy handmaid said, I will now speak unto the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his handmaid.

16 For the king will hear, to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of the man that would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of God.

17 Then thine handmaid said, The word of my lord the king shall now be † comfortable: for as an angel of God, so is my lord the king † to discern good and bad: therefore the LORD thy God will be with thee.

† Heb. for rest.

† Heb. to hear.

18 Then the king answered and said unto the woman, Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I shall ask thee. And the woman said, Let my lord the king now speak.

19 And the king said, Is not the hand of times of distress, they neglected their persons, and abstained from anointing themselves. Dr. Chandler.

5. — I am indeed a widow woman, &c.] The art and contrivance of this widow's speech is very remarkable. There is a great deal of policy in her not making the resemblance of the case she feigns, to that of Absalom, too close and perceptible, lest the king should discover the drift of her petition, before she had obtained a grant of pardon for her son, and before she made the application of what she represented, to the king's own situation. Bp. Patrick, Stuckhouse.

9. — the iniquity be on me, &c.] She prays that, if she represented her case wrong, the guilt might rest on herself and her family, and the king remain innocent. Bp. Patrick.

11. — remember the Lord thy God,] She begs him to "remember," or "mention," the name of God; that is, to confirm what he said by an oath. Bp. Patrick.

13. — Wherefore then hast thou thought &c.] Here she discovers her real intention; and, from the concessions which she had drawn in the king to make, in favour of her son, she argues the propriety and reasonableness of his making the same in favour of his own son, from the regard he had to the desires and inclinations of the people. Dr. Chandler.

14. For we must needs die,] She pleads for further pity for him from the consideration of our common mortality.

— neither doth God respect any person:] If this be a right translation, the meaning is, that David, though a great king, was also mortal: but the Hebrew words will be better translated, God does not take away the soul, (or life;) according to which she argues, from the sparing mercy of God, that He does not immediately inflict death on those who have deserved it, but (as follows) He deviseth means, by providing cities of refuge, to which the slayer may flee, and be in safety. Bp. Patrick.

15. — because the people &c.] Rather, "though the people have made me afraid;" that is, they had discouraged her from the bold attempt of so approaching the king. Bp. Patrick.

17. — as an angel of God,] The knowledge of God's will, possessed by the blessed inhabitants of heaven, is clear and distinct: on which account, the highest character given of human wisdom is, to be "as an angel of God, to discern good and bad." Abp. Secker.

Before
CHRIST
10-7.

Joab with thee in all this? And the woman answered and said, As thy soul liveth, my lord the king, none can turn to the right hand or to the left from ought that my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he bade me, and he put all these words in the mouth of thine handmaid:

20 To fetch about this form of speech hath thy servant Joab done this thing: and my lord is wise, according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth.

21 ¶ And the king said unto Joab, Behold now, I have done this thing: go therefore, bring the young man Absalom again.

† Heb.
Blessed.

22 And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed himself, and † thanked the king: and Joab said, To day thy servant knoweth that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king, in that the king hath fulfilled the request of ¶ his servant.

1 Or, thy.

23 So Joab arose and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem.

24 And the king said, Let him turn to his own house, and let him not see my face. So Absalom returned to his own house, and saw not the king's face.

† Heb.
And as Absalom there was not a beautiful man in all Israel to praise greatly.

25 ¶ † But in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty: from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.

26 And when he polled his head, (for it was at every year's end that he polled it: because the hair was heavy on him, therefore he polled it:) he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels after the king's weight.

27 And unto Absalom there were born three sons, and one daughter, whose name was Tamar: she was a woman of a fair countenance.

28 ¶ So Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, and saw not the king's face.

19. — none can turn &c.] No evasion whatever can conceal the truth from my lord the king. Dr. Chaudler.

26. — at every year's end] The Hebrew should rather be rendered, "at stated times;" for it is a mistake to suppose that Absalom polled his head regularly every year: the natural sense is, that he polled it at certain seasons, when it was "heavy on him," in order to deliver himself from the weight. Houbigant.

— at two hundred shekels] In those days long hair was reckoned the greatest ornament: it was the custom to anoint it with fragrant oils of myrrh, cinnamon, and the like, and to powder it with dust of gold; so that it is not incredible that it should weigh two hundred shekels, as is here stated. Bp. Patrick. Or the meaning may be, that the value of his hair was two hun-

29 Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to have sent him to the king; but he would not come to him: and when he sent again the second time, he would not come.

Before
CHRIST
1027.

30 Therefore he said unto his servants, See, Joab's field is † near mine, and he hath barley there; go and set it on fire. And Absalom's servants set the field on fire.

† Heb. near my place.

31 Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom unto his house, and said unto him, Wherefore have thy servants set my field on fire?

32 And Absalom answered Joab, Behold, I sent unto thee, saying, Come hither, that I may send thee to the king, to say, Wherefore am I come from Geshur? it had been good for me to have been there still: now therefore let me see the king's face; and if there be any iniquity in me, let him kill me.

33 So Joab came to the king, and told him: and when he had called for Absalom, he came to the king, and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king: and the king kissed Absalom.

1025.

CHAP. XV.

1 Absalom, by fair speeches and courtesies, stealeth the hearts of Israel. 7 Under pretence of a vow he obtaineth leave to go to Hebron. 10 He maketh there a great conspiracy. 13 David upon the news fleeth from Jerusalem. 19 Ittai would not leave him. 24 Zadok and Abiathar are sent back with the ark. 30 David and his company go up mount Olivet weeping. 31 He curseth Ahithophel's counsel. 32 Hushai is sent back with instructions.

AND it came to pass after this, that Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him.

1024.

2 And Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate: and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy † came to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, Of what city art thou? And he said, Thy servant is of one of the tribes of Israel.

† Heb.
to come.

dred shekels: it should be observed, that it is not his whole head of hair; but the pollings of it, or the quantity taken from it, which is thus estimated. Script. illust.

33. — and the king kissed Absalom.] We should here consider the kindness of David, and his tenderness towards his son Absalom. Though the event proved that he was deceived in conceiving him to be returned to his duty, yet what he did was praiseworthy; and we ought, after his example, readily to pardon those that have offended us, especially when they appear to feel concern for their faults. Ostervald.

Chap. XV. ver. 2. — beside the way of the gate:] The gate of the palace, probably, where the king used to sit to administer justice. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1024.

|| Or, none will hear thee from the king downward.

3 And Absalom said unto him, See, thy matters are good and right; but || there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee.

4 Absalom said moreover, Oh that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice!

5 And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, and took him, and kissed him.

6 And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment: so Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

1023.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after forty years, that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the LORD, in Hebron.

8 For thy servant vowed a vow while I abode at Geshur in Syria, saying, If the LORD shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then I will serve the LORD.

9 And the king said unto him, Go in peace. So he arose, and went to Hebron.

10 ¶ But Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom reigneth in Hebron.

11 And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called; and they went in their simplicity, and they knew not any thing.

12 And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, David's counsellor, from his city, even from Giloh, while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy was strong; for the people increased continually with Absalom. Before CHRIST

1023.

13 ¶ And there came a messenger to David, saying, The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.

14 And David said unto all his servants that were with him at Jerusalem, Arise, and let us flee; for we shall not else escape from Absalom: make speed to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly, and † bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword. † Heb.
thrust.

15 And the king's servants said unto the king, Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall † appoint. † Heb.
choose.

16 And the king went forth, and all his household † after him. And the king left ten women, which were concubines, to keep the house. † Heb.
at his feet.

17 And the king went forth, and all the people after him, and tarried in a place that was far off.

18 And all his servants passed on beside him; and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites, six hundred men which came after him from Gath, passed on before the king.

19 ¶ Then said the king to Ittai the Gittite, Wherefore goest thou also with us? return to thy place, and abide with the king: for thou art a stranger, and also an exile.

20 Whereas thou camest but yesterday, should I this day † make thee go up and down with us? seeing I go whither I may, return thou, and take back thy brethren: † Heb.
make thee wander in going? mercy and truth be with thee.

21 And Ittai answered the king, and

6. — so Absalom stole the hearts] The name of David's son carries the Israelites against the father of Absalom; and now they are unwittingly made loyal rebels. Their hearts are free from conspiracy; and they mean nothing but fidelity, in the attendance of a traitor. How many thousands are thus ignorantly misled into a train of error. Their simplicity is as worthy of pity, as their misguidance is of indignation. Bp. Hall.

7. — after forty years,] It has been a difficulty with commentators to know where to date the beginning of these forty years. Some compute them from the time when the Israelites first demanded a king of Samuel; others, from the time when David was first anointed king. Others again conjecture, that an error has crept into the Hebrew text, and that instead of forty should be read four years; that is, four years after Absalom was reestablished in Jerusalem, and had used all his alluring arts to gain the affections of the nation. Stackhouse, Bp. Patrick.

10. — As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet,] It would appear from this, that Absalom had planted trumpeters at proper distances to take the sound from one to another, and disperse it over all the kingdom, that so all the friends to his cause might instantly resort to his assistance. Stackhouse.

13. — The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.] If it should be deemed surprising that Absalom should so easily draw the Israelites into rebellion against David; it should not be forgotten, that the providence of God permitted the conspiracy to go on without discovery, and rise to that height of driving David from his throne, in order to bring on the punishments denounced against him by Nathan, for his conduct respecting Bathsheba and Uriah. Dr. Chandler.

14. — Arise, and let us flee;] A more moving spectacle could not be exhibited than this of a king, venerable for his years and victories, sacred in the characters both of his piety and of prophecy, renowned for prowess and revered for wisdom, thus reduced to the condition of a fugitive, to a sudden and extreme necessity of flying for his life, from the presence and by the rebellion of his own son, his darling and delight; and a whole country loudly lamenting his fate. Dr. Delancy.

18. — all the Gittites, &c.] The Gittites were either proselytes born in Gath of the Philistines, who came with Ittai to David; or Israelites who fled to David in his exile at Gath. For the Cherethites and Pelethites, see note at ch. viii. 18.

19. — return to thy place, &c.] Return to Jerusalem and abide with Absalom, who is king by usurpation. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1031

said, As the LORD liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, surely in what place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also will thy servant be.

22 And David said to Ittai, Go and pass over. And Ittai the Gittite passed over, and all his men, and all the little ones that were with him.

¶ Called,
John 18. 1,
Cedron

23 And all the country wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over: the king also himself passed over the brook ¶ Kidron, and all the people passed over, toward the way of the wilderness.

24 ¶ And lo Zadok also, and all the Levites were with him, bearing the ark of the covenant of God: and they set down the ark of God; and Abiathar went up, until all the people had done passing out of the city.

25 And the king said unto Zadok, Carry back the ark of God into the city: if I shall find favour in the eyes of the LORD, he will bring me again, and shew me both it, and his habitation:

26 But if he thus say, I have no delight in thee; behold, here am I, let him do to me as seemeth good unto him.

1 Sam. 9.
9.

27 The king said also unto Zadok the priest, Art not thou a seer? return into the city in peace, and your two sons with you, Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar.

28 See, I will tarry in the plain of the wilderness, until there come word from you to certify me.

23. — the way of the wilderness.] The wilderness that lay between Jerusalem and Jericho. Bp. Patrick.

25. — Carry back the ark of God.] David may have ordered the ark to be carried back, for several reasons: because he did not think it decent to have so sacred a thing exposed to hazard and inconvenience; because this might have argued an undue distrust of the goodness and providence of God; and principally, perhaps, because the priests and Levites, of whose fidelity he was satisfied, could do him more service by remaining in Jerusalem, than by attending in his camp. Stackhouse.

26. — let him do to me as seemeth good.] This language shews with what profound humility David received the chastisement of the Lord, and with what resignation he submitted to the Divine will. Thus ought all, whom God afflicts, and especially great sinners, to humble themselves under His hand, and bow to His supreme will. Osterwald.

28. — to certify me.] To certify him of Absalom's designs, in order that he might direct his course accordingly. Bp. Patrick.

29. Zadok therefore and Abiathar.] Abiathar was the high priest, and Zadok only the second priest; but Zadok seems to have been the greatest favourite with David, and to have acted as the principal, being always spoken of first. Bp. Patrick.

30. — by the ascent of mount Olivet.] Mount Olivet, or the mount of Olives, was a short distance from Jerusalem towards the east, in the way to the plain of the deserts and the fords of Jordan. Dr. Chandler.

— his head covered, — barefoot:] Covering the head was used

Before
CHRIST
1023

29 Zadok therefore and Abiathar carried the ark of God again, to Jerusalem: and they tarried there.

30 ¶ And David went up by the ascent of mount Olivet, ^{† Heb. going up and weeping} and wept as he went up, and had his head covered, and he went barefoot: and all the people that was with him covered every man his head, and they went up, weeping as they went up.

31 ¶ And one told David, saying, Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom. And David said, O LORD, I pray thee, turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.

32 ¶ And it came to pass, that when David was come to the top of the mount, where he worshipped God, behold, Hushai the Archite came to meet him with his coat rent, and earth upon his head:

33 Unto whom David said, If thou passest on with me, then thou shalt be a burden unto me:

34 But if thou return to the city, and say unto Absalom, I will be thy servant, O king; as I have been thy father's servant hitherto, so will I now also be thy servant: then mayest thou for me defeat the counsel of Ahithophel.

35 And hast thou not there with thee Zadok and Abiathar the priests? therefore it shall be, that what thing soever thou shalt hear out of the king's house, thou shalt tell it to Zadok and Abiathar the priests.

36 Behold, they have there with them by persons in great distress, or when they were loaded with disgrace and infamy, Esther vi. 12; 2 Sam. xix. 4; Ezek. xii. 6. To walk "barefoot," also, was an indication of great distress. In ancient times, the shoes of great and wealthy persons were made of very rich materials, and ornamented with jewels, gold, and silver. When any great calamity befell them, either publick or private, they not only stripped themselves of these ornaments, but of their very shoes, and walked barefoot. Dr. Chandler.

31. — turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.] It is worthy of observation, that, when David prayed to the Lord, it was not against Ahithophel, but against his counsel. Dr. Hales.

33. — thou shalt be a burden unto me:] As he was no soldier, he could not be useful in the field, and would contribute to distress David for provisions. Bp. Patrick.

34. — say unto Absalom, I will be thy servant, &c.] This conduct of David may appear perfidious, in advising Hushai to offer his service to Absalom, for the purpose of betraying him. We should recollect, however, that Absalom, as a traitor, a murderer, and a rebel, had forfeited all the rights of society; and that David could be no more guilty of perfidy in forming such a design to supplant him, than any man would be, who should deceive a madman, so as to prevent his murdering his friends. Stackhouse.

Absalom was an unnatural rebel, and Ahithophel a traitor; and on the quashing of their rebellious plans depended the religion and prosperity of the kingdom. Accordingly, David only desired that of Hushai, which every good subject, that wished well to his king and country, was in duty bound to do. Dr. Chandler.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

their two sons, Ahimaaz Zadok's son, and Jonathan Abiathar's son; and by them ye shall send unto me every thing that ye can hear.

37 So Hushai David's friend came into the city, and Absalom came into Jerusalem.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Ziba, by presents and false suggestions, obtaineth his master's inheritance. 5 At Bahurim Shimei curseth David. 9 David with patience abstaineth, and restraineth others, from revenge. 15 Hushai insinuateth himself into Absalom's counsel. 20 Ahithophel's counsel.

AND when David was a little past the top of the hill, behold, Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth met him, with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them two hundred loaves of bread, and an hundred bunches of raisins, and an hundred of summer fruits, and a bottle of wine.

2 And the king said unto Ziba, What meanest thou by these? And Ziba said, The asses be for the king's household to ride on; and the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat; and the wine, that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink.

3 And the king said, And where is thy master's son? And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he abideth at Jerusalem: for he said, To day shall the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father.

4 Then said the king to Ziba, Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth. And Ziba said, † I humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king.

† Heb.
I do obeisance.

Chap. XVI. ver. 1. — the top of the hill,] Mount Olivet, chap. xv. 30.

— a bottle of wine.] A leathern bottle or vessel, made of a large hide, holding probably a considerable quantity. See note on 1 Sam. xxv. 18.

3. — for he said, To day shall the house &c.] This seems to be a fiction of Ziba's, but well contrived; for, the family of David being now broken, Mephibosheth might think that the crown of his grandfather Saul might descend to him. On this occasion, however, David seems to have been too credulous, and rashly to have condemned Mephibosheth, before he was heard in his defence, not imagining that Ziba would come to him with a notorious falsehood. Bp. Patrick.

5. — he came forth, and cursed &c.] With a heavy heart and a covered head, and a weeping eye, and bare feet, David had gone away from Jerusalem. Never had he approached it with more joy than now he left it with sorrow. How could he do otherwise, when the insurrection of his own son drove him out from his house, from his throne, from the ark of God? And now, when the depth of this grief deserved nothing but compassion, the foul mouth of Shimei entertains David with curses. In all the time of David's prosperity, we heard no news of Shimei; his silence and colourable obedience made him pass for a true subject: yet, all this while, his heart was unsound and traitorous. Peace and good success hide many a false heart: adversity will not deceive

Vol. I.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

5 ¶ And when king David came to Bahurim, behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was Shimei, the son of Gera: || he came forth, and cursed still as he came.

|| Or,
he still came forth and cursed.

6 And he cast stones at David, and at all the servants of king David: and all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left.

7 And thus said Shimei when he cursed, Come out, come out, thou † bloody man, and thou man of Belial:

† Heb. man of blood.

8 The LORD hath returned upon thee all the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; and the LORD hath delivered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son: and, † behold, thou art taken in thy mischief, because thou art a bloody man.

† Heb. behold thee
in thy evil.

9 ¶ Then said Abishai the son of Zeruiah unto the king, Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head.

* 1 Sam.
24. 14.
chap. 3. 8.

10 And the king said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? so let him curse, because the LORD hath said unto him, Curse David. Who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?

11 And David said to Abishai, and to all his servants, Behold, my son, which came forth of my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite do it? let him alone, and let him curse; for the LORD hath bidden him.

12 It may be that the LORD will look on mine || † affliction, and that the LORD will requite me good for his cursing this day.

|| Or, tears.
† Heb. eye.

us, but will make a true report, as of our own power, so of the disposition of others. Bp. Hall.

10. — the Lord hath said unto him,] He means, that the Lord had given him an opportunity of venting his rage and malice, as a punishment on David. In humbly submitting to this contemptuous abuse, which he considered as dispensed by God, David's virtue was admirable: for it is hard indeed to stifle all motions to revenge, when the provocation is great, and the means of gratifying it at hand. Bp. Patrick.

In this expression, and that which follows, ver. 11, "The Lord hath bidden him," it is not meant that God put any wickedness into Shimei's heart, but that He left him to his own wickedness; took away that prudence which should have restrained him from such hazardous conduct, and brought David into so distressed a situation, that he was exposed to such scorn and insolence. In short, David considered Shimei as an instrument in the hand of Providence, and endured his abuses patiently out of a consciousness of his own sinfulness, and a reverence for that Deity who had brought him thus low. Stackhouse.

12. It may be that the Lord will look &c.] This answer of David, while it shews his high reverence for God, and his consciousness that all Shimei's reproaches were undeserved, marks the generosity of his temper, and his humble hope that God would reward him for his patient submission to the punishment now allotted to him. Dr. Chandler.

4 G

Before
CHRIST
1023.

† Heb. dusted him with dust.

13 And as David and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, and cursed as he went, and threw stones at him, and † cast dust.

14 And the king, and all the people that were with him, came weary, and refreshed themselves there.

15 ¶ And Absalom, and all the people the men of Israel, came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him.

16 And it came to pass, when Hushai the Archite, David's friend, was come unto Absalom, that Hushai said unto Absalom, † God save the king, God save the king.

† Heb.
Let me
live.

17 And Absalom said to Hushai, Is this thy kindness to thy friend? why wentest thou not with thy friend?

18 And Hushai said unto Absalom, Nay; but whom the Lord, and this people, and all the men of Israel, choose, his will I be, and with him will I abide.

19 And again, whom should I serve? should I not serve in the presence of his son? as I have served in thy father's presence, so will I be in thy presence.

20 ¶ Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, Give counsel among you what we shall do.

How admirable was the meekness on this occasion of that holy king and Prophet David! When he was reviled by Shimei in the presence of all his host, he took it patiently, and reviled not again; but, as confessing God to be the author of his innocency and good name, resigned himself to His good pleasure. Let him alone, he says, for God hath commanded him to curse David; and perhaps God intendeth thereby to render me some good turn for these cursings this day. Church Homilies.

13. — and cast dust.] Sir J. Chardin has made an observation which may illustrate this: he says, that in almost all the East, those who accuse a criminal, or demand justice against him, throw dust upon him; as much as to say, he deserves to be put under ground: and it is a common imprecation of the Turks and Persians, Be covered with earth. So Shimei may have designed to declare, by what he did, that David was unworthy to live. Harmer.

Whether Shimei had been a personal sufferer in the fall of Saul's family, or what else had exasperated him against David, does not appear; but it seems as if he had conceived some most flagrant offence against him, when neither the presence of a king, nor the terror of his guards, could restrain him from such behaviour. It is a proof too how much the king had fallen into contempt, when a private person could vent his malice in so gross a manner with impunity. Stackhouse.

21. — Go in unto thy father's concubines.] It appears from this, that Ahithophel was a profane politician, who did not regard by how wicked means he accomplished his ends. His intention in giving this advice appears from what follows to have been, to make the father and son irreconcilable enemies, and to convince all persons that they could never come to an accommodation. Bp. Patrick. The sin committed by Absalom with his father's wives is a fresh instance of the impiety and wickedness of this wretched creature, and at the same time a just judgment of God upon David for his adultery, and the accomplishment of what the Prophet Nathan had threatened him with, that God would take his 21 And Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Go in unto thy father's concubines, which he hath left to keep the house; and all Israel shall hear that thou art abhorred of thy father: then shall the hands of all that are with thee be strong. Before

CHRIST
1023.

22 So they spread Absalom a tent upon the top of the house: and Absalom went in unto his father's concubines in the sight of all Israel.

23 And the counsel of Ahithophel, which he counselled in those days, was as if a man had enquired at the † oracle of God: so was all the counsel of Ahithophel both with David and with Absalom. † Heb.
word.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Ahithophel's counsel is overthrown by Hushai's, according to God's appointment. 15 Secret intelligence is sent unto David. 23 Ahithophel hangeeth himself. 25 Amasa is made captain. 27 David at Mahanaim is furnished with provision.

MOREOVER Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Let me now choose out twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue after David this night:

2 And I will come upon him while he is weary and weak handed, and will make him afraid: and all the people that are with him shall flee; and I will smite the king only:

wives and give them to one of his own house: and as Absalom committed this detestable action by the counsel of Ahithophel, whose purpose was to support the cause in which he was engaged, and carry things to that extremity, that a peace between David and Absalom might be utterly impossible, we learn how much evil may arise from wicked counsels; and that which happened afterwards both to Absalom and Ahithophel proves that, sooner or later, such counsels are fatal to those that give them, and to those that follow them. Ostervald.

23. And the counsel of Ahithophel, — was as if a man had enquired at the oracle of God:] The counsel of Ahithophel was esteemed so sure and safe, that it was commonly followed, without any doubt of the success. Bp. Patrick. It is often found too true by experience, that persons of superiour penetration and wisdom are of bad intentions: they see further than other men, and are under a temptation to turn their minds to the overreaching of others, and effecting of mischief: their ability in accomplishing wickedness is a snare and a temptation to them; they find they can do it, and therefore are ready and willing to do it. Such was the case with Ahithophel. If any man was at a loss, here was one who could tell him how to act for the best: he was like an oracle: his judgment was never under a mistake; but he made a great mistake in one respect—he left God out of the question. Providence made no part of his plan. He had no regard to the ways of God, or the laws of God: for he advised Absalom to commit such horrible wickedness against his father's house, as could never be forgiven, that the people might be sure there could never be a reconciliation between them, and thereby might be confirmed in their rebellion. All this he did without scruple, as a wise politician; and his advice, though very wicked in itself, was good advice for promoting the ends he had in view. So practically and experimentally true is it, that “the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light,” Luke xvi. 8. Jones of Nayland.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

3 And I will bring back all the people unto thee: the man whom thou seekest is as if all returned: so all the people shall be in peace.

† Heb. was right in the eyes of,
&c.

4 And the saying † pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel.

† Heb.
what is in his mouth.

5 Then said Absalom, Call now Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear likewise † what he saith.

† Heb.
word.

6 And when Hushai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake unto him, saying, Ahithophel hath spoken after this manner: shall we do after his † saying? if not; speak thou.

† Heb.
counselled.

7 And Hushai said unto Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath † given is not good at this time.

† Heb. bitter of
soul.

8 For, said Hushai, thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty men, and they be † chafed in their minds, as a bear robbed of her whelps in the field: and thy father is a man of war, and will not lodge with the people.

† Heb. fallen.

9 Behold, he is hid now in some pit, or in some other place: and it will come to pass, when some of them be † overthrown at the first, that whosoever heareth it will say, There is a slaughter among the people that follow Absalom.

10 And he also that is valiant, whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall utterly melt: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and they which be with him are valiant men.

† Heb. that thy face, or, presence go,
&c.

11 Therefore I counsel that all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, as the sand that is by the sea for multitude; and † that thou go to battle in thine own person.

12 So shall we come upon him in some place where he shall be found, and we will

Before
CHRIST
1023.

light upon him as the dew falleth on the ground: and of him and of all the men that are with him there shall not be left so much as one.

13 Moreover, if he be gotten into a city, then shall all Israel bring ropes to that city, and we will draw it into the river, until there be not one small stone found there.

† Heb. commanded.

14 And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel. For the LORD had † appointed to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that the LORD might bring evil upon Absalom.

15 ¶ Then said Hushai unto Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and thus have I counselled.

16 Now therefore send quickly, and tell David, saying, Lodge not this night in the plains of the wilderness, but speedily pass over; lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that are with him.

17 Now Jonathan and Ahimaaz stayed by En-rogel; for they might not be seen to come into the city: and a wench went and told them; and they went and told king David.

18 Nevertheless a lad saw them, and told Absalom: but they went both of them away quickly, and came to a man's house in Bahurim, which had a well in his court; whither they went down.

19 And the woman took and spread a covering over the well's mouth, and spread ground corn thereon; and the thing was not known.

20 And when Absalom's servants came

Chap. XVII. ver. 4. — the saying pleased Absalom] The abominable behaviour of Absalom at this period shews to what a height of wickedness every man may proceed, who has provoked God to leave him to himself. When men are engaged in rebellion, there is no wickedness at which they will stop. Bp. Wilson. Absalom here approved of the detestable counsel of Ahithophel, and consented to the murder of his father. This horrid circumstance shews that this unnatural son was now filling up the measure of his iniquity, and was prepared for every extreme of wickedness. And such is unhappily too often the case of those who have once embarked in an evil course, and stifled the voice of conscience. Ostervald.

8. — as a bear robbed of her whelps] The female bear is intensely fond of her young, and is dreadfully furious when deprived of them: in fact, she ventures her life to avenge her loss. Script. illust.

12. — as the dew falleth &c.] This is very beautiful and expressive. The dew in Palestine, as well as in several other warm climates, falls fast and sudden, and is therefore a proper emblem of an active expeditious soldiery. Also the dew falls upon every spot of ground, not a blade of grass escaping: a numerous army may be compared to it in this respect, being able to carry the strictest search into every part. Dr. Delaney.

13. — shall all Israel bring ropes] An hyperbolical way of speaking, which implies, that the army would be sufficiently numerous to pull down with ropes the walls and houses of a fortified city, into the ditch which surrounds it. Some, however, by the Hebrew word which we translate ropes, understand troops or bands of men, who would batter down walls and houses with machines. Bp. Patrick.

14. — For the Lord had appointed] God had so blinded their eyes, and infatuated their judgments, that they could not discern what was best, but took that course which was to ruin Absalom. Such is the wonderful overruling providence of God, acting, in a variety of instances, unknown to us. Bp. Patrick. God made use of a wicked son to punish the father's offences, and then cut off the very instrument of His vengeance, who, by the means he took to distress and destroy his father, had rendered himself the abhorrence of God and man. Dr. Chandler.

16. — speedily pass over;] Over the river Jordan; he feared that Absalom might change his resolution, and incline again to the counsel of Ahithophel. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

to the woman to the house, they said, Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathan? And the woman said unto them, They be gone over the brook of water. And when they had sought and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21 And it came to pass, after they were departed, that they came up out of the well, and went and told king David, and said unto David, Arise, and pass quickly over the water: for thus hath Ahithophel counselled against you.

22 Then David arose, and all the people that were with him, and they passed over Jordan: by the morning light there lacked not one of them that was not gone over Jordan.

† Heb. done.

† Heb. gave charge concerning his house.

23 ¶ And when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not † followed, he saddled his ass, and arose, and gat him home to his house, to his city, and † put his household in order, and hanged himself, and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father.

24 Then David came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed over Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him.

25 ¶ And Absalom made Amasa captain of the host instead of Joab: which Amasa was a man's son, whose name was Ithra an Israelite, that went in to Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister to Zeruiah Joab's mother. Before CHRIST

1023.

26 So Israel and Absalom pitched in the land of Gilead.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, when David was come to Mahanaim, that Shobi the son of Nahash of Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and Machir the son of Ammiel of Lo-debar, and Barzillai the Gileadite of Rogelim,

28 Brought beds, and || basons, and earthen vessels, and wheat, and barley, and flour, and parched corn, and beans, and lentiles, and parched pulse, || Or, cups.

29 And honey, and butter, and sheep, and cheese of kine, for David, and for the people that were with him, to eat: for they said, The people is hungry, and weary, and thirsty, in the wilderness.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 David viewing the armies in their march giveth them charge of Absalom. 6 The Israelites are sore smitten in the wood of Ephraim. 9 Absalom, hanging in an oak, is slain by Joab, and cast into a pit. 18 Absalom's place. 19 Ahimaaz and Cushie bring tidings to David. 33 David mourneth for Absalom.

AND David numbered the people that were with him, and set captains of

23. And when Ahithophel saw &c.] The pride, the vanity, and the ambition of Ahithophel, were all disappointed. He knew he had given the best advice for the destruction of the king and his party; but he found that the worse advice was preferred, and foresaw that it would be the ruin of Absalom, and of his cause. He had entered into the conspiracy with a persuasion, that his advice would be taken, that he should continue to be the great "oracle" he had hitherto been; but his purpose was frustrated: that hurt his pride; and when the worse counsel was preferred to the better, that opened a dreadful prospect; for in case of a miscarriage, which he now considered as unavoidable, all his golden hopes were blasted. His ambition had promised itself wealth and honour; instead of which, the disgrace, infamy, and punishment, due to his treason, presented themselves to his mind. And perhaps he now began to see, for the first time, that, as he had been against God, God was against him, and, according to the prayer of David, was "turning his counsel into foolishness." Under this calamity, what had he to support himself? Nothing but that policy of a wicked man, which never supported any man long. It may work for a time, and seem to prosper; but when it falls, it falls to rise no more. In the trouble of a righteous man there is hope; but in the trouble of the wicked there is none. He had no courage to make any farther trial; but, giving the whole matter up for lost, to avoid an ignominious death, which he knew was what he merited, he went home to put an end to his life, as many others have since done under the like circumstances. Jones of Nayland.

— hanged himself, and died,] The wretched end of Ahithophel, who was esteemed as the oracle of God for the wisdom of his counsels, was the just punishment of his treason. Dr. Hales. The providence of the wisest men being too short to overreach the providence of God, God often permits such Ahithophels, for the punishment of their presumption, as well as of their malice, to perish by their own devices. Dean Prideaux.

It was a severe misfortune to Ahithophel, that he kept bad company; that he associated with persons of that description and character, which from time to time have helped to bring ruin upon many a man. A leader of sedition, let him be never so wise, has bad designs: to the execution of bad designs bad people are necessary; and therefore a person of this sort soon finds himself in the midst of them: they encourage him, and he makes his use of them, and so they work together to fulfil some wise ends of Providence, which it is hard for us to understand, till it pleases God to bring the authors of evil to destruction. No man that has the fear of God will unite himself with such a party; his conscience will keep him from it: but, if that were not sufficient, the expectation of wrath and vengeance would deter him from the undertaking. He that joins the wicked will come to the end of the wicked. Let us beware then how we join any bad party. Let no Absalom beguile us with fair and flattering speeches. He is in the way to ruin himself; and we may soon be ruined along with him. Absalom and Ahithophel both perished in a strange manner: the judgment of God hanged up the one in a tree by the hair of his head, and the other died by his own hand. Jones of Nayland.

25. — Ithra an Israelite,] Called an Ishmeelite at 1 Chron. ii. 17. Probably, in this place, the word has been altered by the error of transcribers, for some copies have "Ishmeelite." Had he been an Israelite, there would have been no occasion to mention his nation. Dr. Wall.

28. — parched corn,] Parched corn is a kind of food still retained in the East. Hasselquist mentions, that, in the road between Acre and Seide, he saw a herdsman eating his dinner, consisting of half-ripe ears of wheat, which he roasted and ate with a good appetite. In Egypt, similar food is much eaten by the poor, consisting of the ears of maize, or Turkish wheat, and a kind of millet. With the Moors of West Barbary, the flour of parched barley is the principal diet, both at home and when they travel. Harmer.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

thousands and captains of hundreds over them.

2 And David sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of Joab, and a third part under the hand of Abishai the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of Ittai the Gittite. And the king said unto the people, I will surely go forth with you myself also.

3 But the people answered, Thou shalt not go forth: for if we flee away, they will not † care for us; neither if half of us die, will they care for us: but now thou art † worth ten thousand of us: therefore now it is better that thou † succour us out of the city.

† Heb. set their heart on us.

† Heb.
as ten thousand of us.

† Heb. be to suc-
cour.

4 And the king said unto them, What seemeth you best I will do. And the king stood by the gate side, and all the people came out by hundreds and by thousands.

5 And the king commanded Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, Deal gently for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom. And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom.

6 ¶ So the people went out into the field against Israel: and the battle was in the wood of Ephraim;

7 Where the people of Israel were slain before the servants of David, and there was there a great slaughter that day of twenty thousand men.

8 For the battle was there scattered over the face of all the country: and the wood † devoured more people that day than the sword devoured.

† Heb.
multiplied
to devour.

9 ¶ And Absalom met the servants of

Before
CHRIST
1023.

David. And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth; and the mule that was under him went away.

10 And a certain man saw it, and told Joab, and said, Behold, I saw Absalom hanged in an oak.

11 And Joab said unto the man that told him, And, behold, thou sawest him, and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle.

12 And the man said unto Joab, Though I should † receive a thousand shekels of silver in mine hand, yet would I not put forth mine hand against the king's son: for in our hearing the king charged thee and Abishai and Ittai, saying, † Beware that none touch the young man Absalom.

† Heb.
weigh upon mine hand

† Heb.
Beware
whosoever ye be of,
&c.

13 Otherwise I should have wrought falsehood against mine own life: for there is no matter hid from the king, and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me.

14 Then said Joab, I may not tarry thus † with thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the † midst of the oak.

† Heb.
before thee.

† Heb.
heart.

15 And ten young men that bare Joab's armour compassed about and smote Absalom, and slew him.

16 And Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing after Israel: for Joab held back the people.

17 And they took Absalom, and cast him

Chap. XVIII. ver. 5. — Deal gently — with the young man,] This kind charge respecting his rebel son shews with what reluctance David drew his sword against him and a part of his own subjects. He desires his captains to deal gently with the young man, as if all his faults were more those of his youth than of his nature: but, at the same time that his people could not but discern in these words the excess of his weakness for that profligate son, they could not but observe in them also a calm presage and assurance of their success against their enemies. Dr. Delancy.

6. — against Israel:] Against the army of Absalom, which, being composed of men who lived westward of Jordan, and in the land of Israel properly so called, is here noted by the name of Israel. Dr. Wells.

— in the wood of Ephraim;] Not a wood belonging to Ephraim, for this tribe had no possessions beyond Jordan; but so named by the Gileadites in memory of the great slaughter which Jephthah here made of the Ephraimites, Judg. xii. Bp. Patrick. Or perhaps from lying over against the tribe of Ephraim. Dr. Wells.

8. — and the wood devoured &c.] That is, more were slain in their flight through this wood, and in endeavouring to hide themselves in it, than in the fight of the open field adjoining. Dr. Wells. Josephus says, the field of battle was a plain, with a wood contiguous to it: and therefore, when Absalom's army was put to the rout, and went to the wood for refuge, their pursuers made a greater slaughter of them there, than they would otherwise have done, because they could not escape in the wood, as rapidly as they would have done in the open field. Bp. Patrick.

9. — his head caught hold of the oak,] Let no man think to prosper by rebellion: the very thickets, and stakes, and pits of the woods shall conspire for the punishment of traitors. Among other instances, see how a fatal oak has singled out the ringleader of this hateful insurrection; and will at last serve for his hangman and gallows, by one of those spreading arms snatching him away to speedy execution. Bp. Hall.

11. — a girdle.] A military belt, which was much esteemed, 1 Sam. xviii. 4.

13. — I should have wrought falsehood against mine own life:] He means, that he would have brought his own life into danger, and therefore would not have been true to himself. Bp. Patrick.

14. Then said Joab, &c.] Joab was probably influenced to kill Absalom by the desire of revenging the wrongs he had received from him, and by the fear that David, in his fondness and affection for him, might restore him to his favour, and give him further opportunities of causing publick disturbances. Still, though Absalom well deserved death, Joab was not to be justified in inflicting it, contrary to the king's positive order to spare him. Dr. Chandler.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

into a great pit in the wood, and laid a very great heap of stones upon him: and all Israel fled every one to his tent.

* Gen. 14.
17.

18 ¶ Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and reared up for himself a pillar, which is in ^a the king's dale: for he said, I have no son to keep my name in remembrance: and he called the pillar after his own name: and it is called unto this day, Absalom's place.

† Heb. judged him from the hand, &c.

19 ¶ Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, Let me now run, and bear the king tidings, how that the LORD hath [†] avenged him of his enemies.

† Heb. be a man of wisdom.

20 And Joab said unto him, Thou shalt not [†] bear tidings this day, but thou shalt bear tidings another day: but this day thou shalt bear no tidings, because the king's son is dead.

21 Then said Joab to Cush, Go tell the king what thou hast seen. And Cush bowed himself unto Joab, and ran.

† Heb. be what may.

22 Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok yet again to Joab, But [†] howsoever, let me, I pray thee, also run after Cush. And Joab said, Wherefore wilt thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings ^{||} ready?

|| Or,
inconvenient?

23 But howsoever, said he, let me run. And he said unto him, Run. Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and overran Cush.

24 And David sat between the two gates: and the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone.

25 And the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, If he be alone, there is tidings in his mouth. And he came apace, and drew near.

17. — laid a very great heap of stones upon him:] Stoning to death was the punishment prescribed by the law for rebellion against parents, Dent. xxi. 20, 21. Thus perhaps they who could not inflict this punishment on him, while living, for his rebellious conduct, now branded him dead, as he deserved. Dr. Delaney.

18. — reared up for himself a pillar,] Though this pillar has been lost for many ages, Absalom has, by his enormous and unparalleled crimes, erected a standing monument to his own wickedness, which will ever be preserved in the faithful records of history. Dr. Chandler. But, according to Sandys, this pillar is still standing; and the Turks, when they pass it, throw a stone at it, so that it is half covered, in abhorrence of his unnatural rebellion. Bp. Wilson.

— he said, I have no son] We read before, at chap. xiv. 27, that he had three sons and one daughter; but these were all now dead. Bp. Patrick.

24. — between the two gates:] "The gate of the city" was a very large place, having an inward and an outward door; be-

Before
CHRIST
1023.

26 And the watchman saw another man running: and the watchman called unto the porter, and said, Behold another man running alone. And the king said, He also bringeth tidings.

† Heb.
I see the running.

27 And the watchman said, [†] Me thinketh the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok. And the king said, He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings.

28 And Ahimaaz called, and said unto the king, ^{||} All is well. And he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, Blessed be the LORD thy God, which hath [†] delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king.

|| Or, Peace
be to thee.

† Heb.
Peace.

† Heb.
shut up.

29 And the king said, [†] Is the young man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab sent the king's servant, and me thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I knew not what it was.

† Heb.
Is there
peace?

30 And the king said unto him, Turn aside, and stand here. And he turned aside, and stood still.

31 And, behold, Cush came; and Cush said, [†] Tidings, my lord the king: for the LORD hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee.

† Heb.
Tidings is brought.

32 And the king said unto Cush, Is the young man Absalom safe? And Cush answered, The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is.

33 ¶ And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

tween which it appears David sat to hear the news. Bp. Patrick.

33. — would God I had died for thee, &c.] Absalom's rebellion ended with his life; but his father's sorrow ended not here: the news of his death went so near to David's heart, that it almost strangled him with grief, and overwhelmed him with tears; and he professed, he would have gladly sacrificed his kingdom and his life, for the saving of his son Absalom. Yet how unworthy was this son of such a father! Absalom had no recommendation, but that of personal beauty; and the ornaments of his body were horribly sullied by the corruptions of his mind, which made him as great a monster as any we read of in history: for he was guilty of the worst enormities, in assassinating his brother and rebelling against his father; committing both offences too under many great aggravations. Reading.

— O Absalom, my son, my son!] These are words which go to every parent's heart that has experienced the same misfortune, and speak to it with a force and eloquence that has never yet been equalled. Bp. Porteus.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Joab causeth the king to cease his mourning. 9 The Israelites are earnest to bring the king back. 11 David sendeth to the priests to incite them of Judah. 18 Shimei is pardoned. 24 Mephibosheth excused. 32 Barzillai dismissed, Chimham his son is taken into the king's family. 41 The Israelites expostulate with Judah for bringing home the king without them.

AND it was told Joab, Behold, the king weepeth and mourneth for Absalom.

† Heb.
salvation,
or, deliverance.

2 And the † victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people: for the people heard say that day how the king was grieved for his son.

3 And the people gat them by stealth that day into the city, as people being ashamed steal away when they flee in battle.

4 But the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!

5 And Joab came into the house to the king, and said, Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants, which this day have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines;

† Heb.
By loving,
&c.

† Heb. that princes
or servants are not to thee.

6 † In that thou lovest thine enemies, and hatest thy friends. For thou hast declared this day, † that thou regardest neither princes nor servants: for this day I perceive, that if Absalom had lived, and all we had died this day, then it had pleased thee well.

Chap. XIX. ver. 1. — Behold, the king weepeth &c.] The grief of David was as immoderate as it was unseasonable, and shewed the intemperate passionate affection he bore to the unnatural and impious youth. It damped the common joy of his friends and soldiers for the glorious victory, to hear the excessive grief he expressed for his son, insomuch that they almost repented of their success, and stole into the city where David was, as if they had been dishonourably defeated. Dr. Chandler. The king's command to spare Absalom was indeed an extraordinary instance of mercy; yet is to be accounted for from his fatherly fondness, and the benignity of his nature. But there is something astonishing in this excess of grief for such a reprobate, and utterly unaccountable, perhaps, from any other principle, except the sad and shocking reflection of his having died with all his sins upon his head. Dr. Delaney. So strong is the affection of parents: the sins, the ingratitude of children, cannot root it from their hearts; and they who fear God are then most inconsolable, when their children are engaged in a course of sin, and they see them die in a state of condemnation. Ostervald.

5. — Thou hast shamed this day &c.] Joab, instead of sympathizing with his sovereign in the bitterness of his grief, and tenderly representing to him the ill consequences that might arise, upbraided him in this insolent manner. His remonstrance was no less imperious and haughty, than injurious to the king. It was plainly justifying to his face the murder of his son, telling him that he was above his reach, and fearless of his displeasure. Dr. Chandler.

8. Then the king arose,] Instead of resenting the insolent be-

7 Now therefore arise, go forth, and speak † comfortably unto thy servants: for I swear by the LORD, if thou go not forth, there will not tarry one with thee this night: and that will be worse unto thee than all the evil that befell thee from thy youth until now.

Before
CHRIST
1023.

† Heb. to the heart of thy servants.

8 Then the king arose, and sat in the gate. And they told unto all the people, saying, Behold, the king doth sit in the gate. And all the people came before the king: for Israel had fled every man to his tent.

9 ¶ And all the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he is fled out of the land for Absalom.

10 And Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why † speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?

† Heb. are ye silent?

11 ¶ And king David sent to Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, saying, Speak unto the elders of Judah, saying, Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his house? seeing the speech of all Israel is come to the king, even to his house.

12 Ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king?

13 And say ye to Amasa, Art thou not of my bone, and of my flesh? God do so haviour of Joab as it deserved, David accepts it as part of his punishment from God; at least, as a seasonable check to that pride, which might otherwise have arisen in his heart, on gaining this decisive victory. Wogan.

9. — were at strife] Strove who should be most forward to bring back the king, blaming one another's slackness in it. Bp. Patrick.

10. — why speak ye not — of bringing the king back?] David, now victorious over a rebel army, had it in his power to take ample revenge on all those whose treachery and bad faith well deserved to be chastised; and if he had possessed any malicious or sanguinary feelings, he could now want no pretext for indulging them. But he was governed by very different principles: he knew his son's rebellion to be the effect of his own guilt, and his recent success to be the fruit of his penitence and humiliation before God; he therefore was moved to no other conduct than prayer and repentance, gratitude and thanksgiving, and a patient humble expectation of God's disposal of the event. Nor did he fail of his reward: for it seemed good to the great Governour of the world to turn the hearts of David's subjects, as it were, in an instant, in his favour; insomuch that they now returned to their duty with as much eager zeal, as they had but a few days before rushed into rebellion against him. Dr. Delaney.

13. And say ye to Amasa,] Who, though he was David's uncle, (and therefore "of his bone and of his flesh,") was general of Absalom's forces, and who therefore might be both ashamed and afraid to look David in the face, till encouraged by some kind message. Dr. Wells.

Before
CHRIST
1023 to me, and more also, if thou be not captain of the host before me continually in the room of Joab.

14 And he bowed the heart of all the men of Judah, even as the heart of one man; so that they sent this word unto the king, Return thou, and all thy servants.

15 So the king returned, and came to Jordan. And Judah came to Gilgal, to go to meet the king, to conduct the king over Jordan.

^a 1 Kings
2. 8.

16 ¶ And ^a Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite, which was of Bahurim, hasted and came down with the men of Judah to meet king David.

^b Chap. 16.
1.

17 And there were a thousand men of Benjamin with him, and ^b Ziba the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and his twenty servants with him; and they went over Jordan before the king.

† Heb.
the good in his eyes.

18 And there went over a ferry boat to carry over the king's household, and to do † what he thought good. And Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was come over Jordan;

^c Chap. 16.
5.

19 And said unto the king, Let not my lord impute iniquity unto me, neither do thou remember ^c that which thy servant did perversely the day that my lord the king went out of Jerusalem, that the king should take it to his heart.

20 For thy servant doth know that I have sinned: therefore, behold, I am come the first this day of all the house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king.

21 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah answered and said, Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD's anointed?

22 And David said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah, that ye should

14. And he bowed the heart] That is, "Amasa" bowed the heart, &c. Dr. Chandler.

22. — What have I to do with you,] David, though warm in his temper, could not be vindictive: accordingly he rejected the advice of Abishai, as that of an enemy rather than a friend, and as tending to a degree of severity, which, now that he was restored, was wholly unnecessary. Dr. Chandler. David knew as well as Abishai, that Shimei's submission proceeded from mere worldly policy, to prevent the punishment he deserved. But he, who had received forgiveness from God, judged piously that a like forgiveness to his enemy would not only be a seasonable act of mercy, but the most proper imitation of the Divine goodness, as well as a testimony to himself and to the world, of his own sincere repentance. Wogan.

This clemency of David is a lesson to every one to forgive, as much as possible, even the most heinous injuries, and not to give ear to those who would instil feelings of revenge. Ostervald. David knew himself to be a king, not of one party, but of his whole people, and therefore wisely resolved that his fatherly affection should extend to them all. He knew himself to be a this day be adversaries unto me? shall there any man be put to death this day in Israel? for do not I know that I am this day king over Israel?

Before
CHRIST
1023.

23 Therefore the king said unto Shimei, Thou shalt not die. And the king sware unto him.

24 ¶ And Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king, and had neither dressed his feet, nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed until the day he came again in peace.

25 And it came to pass, when he was come to Jerusalem to meet the king, that the king said unto him, Wherefore wentest not thou with me, Mephibosheth?

26 And he answered, My lord, O king, my servant deceived me: for thy servant said, I will saddle me an ass, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king; because thy servant is lame.

27 And ^d he hath slandered thy servant unto my lord the king; but my lord the king is as an angel of God: do therefore what is good in thine eyes. ^d Chap. 16.
5.

28 For all of my father's house were but † dead men before my lord the king: yet didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thine own table. What right therefore have I yet to cry any more unto the king?

† Heb. men of death.

29 And the king said unto him, Why speakest thou any more of thy matters? I have said, Thou and Ziba divide the land.

30 And Mephibosheth said unto the king, Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is come again in peace unto his own house.

31 ¶ And Barzillai the Gileadite came down from Rogelim, and went over Jordan sovereign, and he felt that mercy and forgiveness are the noblest privileges of sovereignty. Dr. Delaney.

24. — had neither dressed his feet,] He had wholly neglected his person, as was customary in times of public sorrow: had neither dressed (or washed) his feet, as the Jews were accustomed to do very frequently; nor trimmed his beard, the custom of the Jews being, not to shave off their beards, but to cut them partially; nor washed his clothes. Bp. Patrick.

26. — my servant deceived me:] Mephibosheth means, that he had ordered an ass to be made ready for him, to carry him to David; instead of which, Ziba saddled it for himself, and went with the false story, mentioned ch. xvi. 3.

29. — I have said, Thou and Ziba &c.] This is probably the same order that David gave before, (ch. ix,) that Ziba should still take care of Mephibosheth's estate, as he was formerly desired. Dr. Lightfoot.

30. — Yea, let him take all,] Nothing could be more generously spoken, nor signifying greater affection; than that he himself was content to be a beggar, now that the king was restored to his kingdom. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1023. with the king, to conduct him over Jordan.

32 Now Barzillai was a very aged man, even fourscore years old: and he had provided the king of sustenance while he lay at Mahanaim; for he was a very great man.

33 And the king said unto Barzillai, Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me in Jerusalem.

34 And Barzillai said unto the king, † How long have I to live, that I should go up with the king unto Jerusalem?

35 I am this day fourscore years old: and can I discern between good and evil? can thy servant taste what I eat or what I drink? can I hear any more the voice of singing men and singing women? wherefore then should thy servant be yet a burden unto my lord the king?

36 Thy servant will go a little way over Jordan with the king: and why should the king recompense it me with such a reward?

37 Let thy servant, I pray thee, turn back again, that I may die in mine own city, and be buried by the grave of my father and of my mother. But behold thy servant Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him what shall seem good unto thee.

38 And the king answered, Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do to him that which shall seem good unto thee: and whatsoever thou shalt † require of me, that will I do for thee.

39 And all the people went over Jordan. And when the king was come over, the king kissed Barzillai, and blessed him; and he returned unto his own place.

35. I am this day fourscore years old: &c.] The loyalty and affection which Barzillai shews to David are truly admirable. He adhered to him in his lowest estate, and provided him and his army with sustenance; yet now refuses any other recompense of his great and faithful services, but the pleasure and satisfaction of having done his duty. He only begs leave to retire, that he may die at home. He is also an excellent example to men in years, to retire, some time before they die, from the cares and vain pleasures of the world, that they may the better prepare for another, and may have nothing else to do, when death comes, than to depart in peace. Wogan.

The resolution of the venerable Barzillai was doubtless recorded as a pattern, that the aged should withdraw themselves from the delights and pretensions that are become unsuitable to their years, and leave them willingly to the succeeding generation. Abp. Secker.

40. — half the people of Israel.] That is, half the elders sent by the other tribes of Israel; David, it seems, to gratify his own tribe, continued his march, and did not wait for the arrival of the elders from the other tribes. Bp. Patrick.

41. — stolen thee away.] Taken thee clandestinely, as it were, from the rest of their brethren. Dr. Chandler.

42. — is near of kin] Is of our tribe, and therefore we have 40 Then the king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went on with him: and all the people of Judah conducted the king, and also half the people of Israel.

41 ¶ And, behold, all the men of Israel came to the king, and said unto the king, Why have our brethren the men of Judah stolen thee away, and have brought the king, and his household, and all David's men with him, over Jordan?

42 And all the men of Judah answered the men of Israel, Because the king is near of kin to us: wherefore then be ye angry for this matter? have we eaten at all of the king's cost? or hath he given us any gift?

43 And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, and said, We have ten parts in the king, and we have also more right in David than ye: why then did ye † despise us, that our advice should not be first had in bringing back our king? And the words of the men of Judah were fiercer than the words of the men of Israel.

CHAP. XX.

1 By occasion of the quarrel, Sheba maketh a party in Israel. 3 David's ten concubines are shut up in perpetual prison. 4 Amasa, made captain over Judah, is slain by Joab. 14 Joab pursueth Sheba unto Abel. 16 A wise woman saveth the city by Sheba's head. 23 David's officers.

AND there happened to be there a man ^{about 1022.} of Belial, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjamite: and he blew a trumpet, and said, We have no part in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: every man to his tents, O Israel.

2 So every man of Israel went up from a peculiar interest in him. "Wherefore then be ye angry for this matter," especially as we have put the king to no expense for our attendance, and received nothing from him, in return for our zeal to serve him? Dr. Chandler.

43. — were fiercer] More vehement; or, more weighty in argument. As David did not think fit to interpose, the men of Israel thought that he favoured Judah; and hence arose a new rebellion. Bp. Patrick. From this contest, which arose between the men of Israel and the men of Judah, on the subject of the king's restoration, we see the unhappy effects of pride and jealousy, when they mix with the duties of publick or private life: whereas the affair of peace and charity should ever be transacted with the spirit of peace and a charitable temper. Wogan.

Chap. XX. ver. 1. — We have no part in David,] As much as to say, Let the men of Judah have him for themselves; he cares not for us, and we care not for him. Bp. Patrick.

2. So every man of Israel — followed Sheba] This rebellion of Sheba was a new chastisement of God upon David: and here we are most seriously to consider, to how many calamities this prince was exposed, and how the judgments of God pursued him, after he had defiled himself by adultery, and the murder of

Before
CHRIST
about 1022.

after David, and followed Sheba the son of Bichri: but the men of Judah clave unto their king, from Jordan even to Jerusalem.

* Chap. 16.
22.
† Heb.
a house of word
† Heb. bound.
† Heb. in widowhood of life.
† Heb.
Call.

3 ¶ And David came to his house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten women his ^a concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in [†] ward, and fed them, but went not in unto them. So they were [†] shut up unto the day of their death, [†] living in widowhood.

4 ¶ Then said the king to Amasa, [†] Assemble me the men of Judah within three days, and be thou here present.

5 So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah: but he tarried longer than the set time which he had appointed him.

6 And David said to Abishai, Now shall Sheba the son of Bichri do us more harm than did Absalom: take thou thy lord's servants, and pursue after him, lest he get him fenced cities, and [†] escape us.

† Heb. deliver himself from our eyes.
* Chap. 8.
18.

7 And there went out after him Joab's men, and the ^b Cherethites, and the Pelathites, and all the mighty men: and they went out of Jerusalem, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

8 When they were at the great stone which is in Gibeon, Amasa went before them. And Joab's garment that he had put on was girded unto him, and upon it a girdle with a sword fastened upon his loins in the sheath thereof; and as he went forth it fell out.

Uriah. By the various afflictions with which the history records that he was visited, we are taught how greatly God abhors those crimes of which he was guilty, and with what severity He punishes those who commit them. We must remember nevertheless, that God sent these evils upon David, for the purpose of humbling him, and making him sensible of his sin: that with the same design He chastises all sinners; and when they improve by His corrections, He will pardon them as He pardoned David. Ostervald.

3. — and the king took &c.] David's reason for clearing the place of the concubines which had been defiled by Absalom, and shutting them up in close and perpetual retirement, seems to have been, that they might no more be seen abroad, to revive the memory of his son's wickedness and impurity. Pyle.

9. — took Amasa by the beard] This is still the custom among the Eastern people, who take one another by the chin or beard, when they would give a hearty salute. Bp. Patrick. The kissing the beard itself too is customary. D'Arvieux, describing the assembling together of several petty Arab princes, mentions, among other civilities and caresses, the kissings of the beard and of the hand, which every one gave and received according to his rank and dignity. Harmer.

10. — so he smote him therewith] This, as Josephus observes, was a most impious and execrable action, thus to murder a relation who had never injured him, out of envy for his being created general, and having an equal share in the king's favour with himself. Dr. Chandler.

Had the heart of Amasa been privy to any cause of grudge, he would have suspected the kiss of Joab: but his innocent eyes

Before
CHRIST
about 1022.

9 And Joab said to Amasa, Art thou in health, my brother? And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him.

10 But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand: so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and [†] struck him not again; and he died. So Joab and Abishai his brother pursued after Sheba the son of Bichri. ^{† Heb. doubled not his stroke.}

11 And one of Joab's men stood by him, and said, He that favoureth Joab, and he that is for David, let him go after Joab.

12 And Amasa wallowed in blood in the midst of the highway. And when the man saw that all the people stood still, he removed Amasa out of the highway into the field, and cast a cloth upon him, when he saw that every one that came by him stood still.

13 When he was removed out of the highway, all the people went on after Joab, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

14 ¶ And he went through all the tribes of Israel unto Abel, and to Beth-maachah, and all the Berites: and they were gathered together, and went also after him.

15 And they came and besieged him in Abel of Beth-maachah, and they cast up a bank against the city, and ^{||} it stood in the trench: and all the people that were with Joab [†] battered the wall, to throw it down. ^{|| Or. it stood against the outmost wall. † Heb. marred to throw down.}

16 ¶ Then cried a wise woman out of looked to the lips, not to the hand, of his secret enemy. These lips were smooth, while the hand was bloody. This hand knew well this way unto death, having now let out, with the same kind of wound, the souls of two great men, Abner and Amasa, both of whom were smitten by Joab, under the mask of friendship. There is no enmity so dangerous, as that which comes masked with love. Open hostility calls us to our guard; but there is no fence against a trusted treachery. We need not be warned to avoid an enemy, but who would run away from a friend? Bp. Hall.

12. — all the people stood still,] As many as saw it, would move no further, till the body was removed out of the way. Bp. Patrick.

14. — unto Abel, and to Beth-maachah,] Rather, unto Abel Beth-maachah, or Abel of Beth-maachah; for they were one and the same place, as appears from the next verse. Bp. Patrick.

— Berites:] The inhabitants of Beeroth, a city in the tribe of Benjamin. Bp. Patrick.

— and they were gathered together,] Most interpreters refer these words to the Berites and others who followed Sheba: but I apprehend they are a description of Joab's men warmly pursuing that rebel. Dr. Chandler.

15. — and it stood in the trench:] That is, Joab's army had advanced so far in their works, as to have filled up the trench, and stand at the very foot of the wall. Bp. Patrick.

16. Then cried a wise woman out of the city,] It seems not improbable that this woman was governess in the city; for there want not instances, as in the case of Deborah, Judges iv. 4, and queen Athaliah, 2 Kings xi. 3, of women who have been employed

Before CHRIST about 1022. the city, Hear, hear; say, I pray you, unto Joab, Come near hither, that I may speak with thee.

17 And when he was come near unto her, the woman said, Art thou Joab? And he answered, I am he. Then she said unto him, Hear the words of thine handmaid. And he answered, I do hear.

¶ Or, They plainly spake in the beginning, saying, Surely they will ask of Abel, and so make an end. 18 Then she spake, saying, || They were wont to speak in old time, saying, They shall surely ask counsel at Abel: and so they ended the matter.

19 I am one of them that are peaceable and faithful in Israel: thou seekest to destroy a city and a mother in Israel: why wilt thou swallow up the inheritance of the Lord?

20 And Joab answered and said, Far be it, far be it from me, that I should swallow up or destroy.

21 The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim, Sheba the son of Bichri † by name, hath lifted up his hand against the king, even against David: deliver him only, and I will depart from the city. And the woman said unto Joab, Behold, his head shall be thrown to thee over the wall.

22 Then the woman went unto all the people in her wisdom. And they cut off the head of Sheba the son of Bichri, and cast it out to Joab. And he blew a trumpet, and they † retired from the city, every man to his tent. And Joab returned to Jerusalem unto the king.

23 ¶ Now ^c Joab was over all the host of Israel: and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and over the Pelethites:

24 And Adoram was over the tribute: and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder:

25 And Sheva was scribe: and Zadok and Abiathar were the priests:

26 And Ira also the Jairite was || a chief ruler about David.

CHAP. XXI.

¹ The three years' famine for the Gibeonites ceaseth, by hanging seven of Saul's sons. 10 Rizpah's kindness unto the dead. 12 David burieth the bones of Saul and Jonathan in his father's sepulchre. 15 Four battles against the Philistines, wherein four valiants of David slay four giants.

THEN there was a famine in the days of David three years, year after year; and David † enquired of the LORD. And the LORD answered, It is for Saul, and for his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites.

2 And the king called the Gibeonites, and said unto them; (now the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, but ² of in the administration of civil affairs. If she was invested with civil authority, she was the properest person to desire a parley with the general, knowing that the people were desirous of peace, and restrained only by Sheba's authority. Stackhouse.

18. — They were wont to speak in old time, &c.] The meaning is by no means clear: the best sense seems to be, The inhabitants of the city spake in the beginning of the siege, saying, Surely they (Joab and his army) will ask us whether we will make peace before proceeding to hostilities; and so will quickly end the matter on our coming to an agreement with them. Dr. Wells.

23. Now Joab was over all the host &c.] It has been made matter of reproach against David, that he suffered Joab to continue in the command, after the atrocious murder of Amasa, as if he acquiesced in that murder. But that David greatly resented that murder, is evident from his last advice to Solomon, in which he nobly recommends, and gives it in charge to him, to do justice on the assassin Joab. The fact seems to have been, that Joab was at this time too powerful a subject to be brought to any account; and he seems to have usurped the command of the forces, in defiance of his master's inclinations, and without his order or appointment. Dr. Chandler.

Chap. XXI. ver. 1. — and David enquired of the Lord.] Who can but wonder, both at David's slackness in consulting with God, and God's speed in answering so slow a demand! He that so well knew the way to God's oracle, suffered Israel to be three years pinched with famine, before he asked why they suffered. Even the best hearts may be overtaken with dulness in holy things; but marvellous is the mercy of God, which takes not advantage of our weaknesses. Bp. Hall.

— because he slew the Gibeonites.] This he did, at the time when he destroyed the whole city of Nob, where the Gibeonites lived, and served as hewers of wood and drawers of water to the priests, whom Saul then cut off, 1 Sam. xxii. 18, 19; they being a part of the Amorite race, as stated in the next verse, whom Joshua and the whole nation (Josh. ix. 19, &c.) had solemnly promised to protect. Bp. Patrick, Pyle. Why this transgression was punished so long after, is hidden among the mysteries of Providence. Perhaps the punishment was sent at this juncture, to visit the nation for their recent rebellions against God and the king, in which the house of Saul took an active part. Dr. Hales.

We know not how many, or who, were confederate with Saul in murdering the Gibeonites, or guilty in not hindering it; how many made the crime their own, by approving it afterwards; what share of guilt might be derived upon the whole nation for suffering so much innocent blood to be shed, or for not expressing their detestation of it by some publick act. We know not, further, what other sins the people may have committed, so as to deserve the famine; or how far such an act of discipline at that time might be necessary, to prevent the like murders in time to come. In fact, we know not the depths of the Divine counsels, nor the smallest part of the reasons which an allwise God might have: it behoves us therefore in all such cases to be modest and reserved in our censures, remembering that God is in heaven, and that we dwell in dust; that He knows all things, and we nothing in comparison. But if it could be supposed that the people of that generation were ever so innocent, yet God had an absolute right over the lives of all, and could demand them when He pleased: and, if the thing was just, considered merely as an act of dominion, it could not but be consistent both with justice and benevolence, by being made at the same time an act of discipline, for the punishment of sin, and the promotion of godliness. Dr. Waterland.

Before
CHRIST
1021.

the remnant of the Amorites; and the children of Israel had sworn unto them: and Saul sought to slay them in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah.)

3 Wherefore David said unto the Gibeonites, What shall I do for you? and wherewith shall I make the atonement, that ye may bless the inheritance of the Lord?

Or,
It is not silver nor gold that we have to do with Saul or his house, neither pertains it to us to kill,
&c.
Or,
cut us off.

4 And the Gibeonites said unto him, || We will have no silver nor gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel. And he said, What ye shall say, that will I do for you.

5 And they answered the king, The man that consumed us, and that || devised against us that we should be destroyed from remaining in any of the coasts of Israel,

Or, chosen of
the LORD.

6 Let seven men of his sons be delivered unto us, and we will hang them up unto the LORD in Gibeah of Saul, || whom the LORD did choose. And the king said, I will give them.

1 Sam.
18. 3. & 20.
6, 42.

7 But the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan the son of Saul, because of ^b the LORD's oath that was between them, between David and Jonathan the son of Saul.

Or,
Michal's
sister.
† Heb. bare to A-driel.

8 But the king took the two sons of Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bare unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth; and the five sons of || Michal the daughter of Saul, whom she † brought up for Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite:

4. — neither for us shalt thou kill any man] Except those mentioned in the next verse.

6. — in Gibeah of Saul,] To make the punishment more remarkable and shameful; this being the city where Saul lived, both before and after he was king, 1 Sam. x. 26; xi. 4. Bp. Patrick.

— the king said, I will give them.] This seems to be contrary to the Divine law at Deut. xxiv. 16, which forbids that the son should die for the father's fault: but that law relates to proceedings in human courts, not to Divine judgments; for God visits the sins of fathers upon the children, in many temporal calamities, Exod. xx. 5. Bp. Patrick.

7. — because of the Lord's oath:] It would appear from this expression, that reasons of state, and the security of his throne, would have moved David to put Mephibosheth to death, but that he spared him from respect to his oath, which he sware to Jonathan a long time before. This strongly shews what respect he bore to an oath, as adding confirmation to his word. Abp. Tillotson.

9. — and they hanged them &c.] It was perhaps ordained by God that they should suffer by this publick kind of death, to the end that His displeasure against truce-breakers and tyrants might be more remarkable, and that all might see and fear, and do no more wickedly. We should observe in this event a special retribution of Divine justice, in retaliating on Saul's posterity the measure he dealt to others. Wogan.

— in the hill before the Lord:] Probably on a hill near to Gibeah, and before an altar which was built upon it; or, by the expression, "they hanged them before the Lord," it may be meant, that they put them to death, as victims of expiation, to appease the Divine wrath. Calmet.

— and they fell all seven together, &c.] The evident intention 9 And he delivered them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the LORD: and they fell all seven together, and were put to death in the days of harvest, in the first days, in the beginning of barley harvest.

Before
CHRIST
1019.

10 ¶ And ^c Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it for her upon the rock, from the beginning of harvest until water dropped upon them out of heaven, and suffered neither the birds of the air to rest on them by day, nor the beasts of the field by night.

^c Chap. 7.
7.

11 And it was told David what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done:

12 ¶ And David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son from the men of Jabesh-gilead, which had stolen them from the street of Beth-shan, where the ^d Philistines had hanged them, when the Philistines had slain Saul in Gilboa:

^d 1 Sam.
31. 10.

13 And he brought up from thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son; and they gathered the bones of them that were hanged.

14 And the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son buried they in the country of Benjamin in Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father: and they performed all that the king commanded. And after that God was intreated for the land.

of God, in ordering the death of this part of Saul's family, was, to give a publick attestation of His abhorrence of Saul's perfidy and cruelty, to strike a terrour into the princes his successors, and caution them against committing the like offences. The death of these seven persons, therefore, supposing them all innocent, was, in this view, no punishment inflicted personally on them by God, but an appointment of God in virtue of His sovereign right over the lives of all men; to teach princes moderation and equity, and to prevent the commission of those enormous crimes, which are inconsistent with the welfare of all civil government. Accordingly, God dealt with these persons, exactly as if, in the course of His providential dispensations, He had cut them off by a natural death. That children do very frequently suffer and die for the sins of their parents, in which they have had no share, is evident from history and the constant experience of all ages and nations. Dr. Chandler.

10. — took sackcloth, and spread it — until water dropped] It is probable she made a tent of sackcloth, and spread it on the ground to lie upon; and this she continued to do till it appeared God was appeased, by sending plentiful showers of rain upon the earth. Rizpah is a remarkable instance of maternal affection: her love to her children continued undiminished even after death. Their bodies, which were now no more than the miserable remains of a shameful death, are yet guarded with the same tender and watchful care which she bestowed on them when alive. Wogan.

12. And David went and took the bones] David was pleased with this praiseworthy conduct of Rizpah, and was induced by it to do honour to the bodies of her sons, and to the whole house of Saul; thereby demonstrating that he had no personal enmity to his family. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1018.

15 ¶ Moreover the Philistines had yet war again with Israel; and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines: and David waxed faint.

¶ Or, Rapha.
† Heb.
the staff, or,
the head.

16 And Ishbi-benob, which was of the sons of ¶ the giant, the weight of whose † spear weighed three hundred shekels of brass in weight, he being girded with a new sword, thought to have slain David.

17 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah succoured him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David swore unto him, saying, Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou quench not the † light of Israel.

† Heb.
candle, or,
lamp.
c 1 Chron.
20. 4.

18 ^c And it came to pass after this, that there was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob: then Sibbechai the Hushathite slew Saph, which was of the sons of ¶ the giant.

¶ Or,
Rapha.

19 And there was again a battle in Gob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim, a Beth-lehemite, slew ^e the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

† See 1 Chr.
20. 5.

20 And there was yet a battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, four and twenty in number; and he also was born to ¶ the giant.

¶ Or,
Rapha.
¶ Or, reproached.
e 1 Sam.
16. 9.

21 And when he ¶ defied Israel, Jonathan the son of ^e Shimeah the brother of David slew him.

22 These four were born to the giant in Gath, and fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

CHAP. XXII.

A psalm of thanksgiving for God's powerful deliverance, and manifold blessings.

AND David spake unto the LORD the words of this song in the day that the LORD had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul:

^a Psal. 18.
2, &c.

2 And he said, ^a The LORD is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer;

3 The God of my rock; in him will I trust: he is my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my high tower, and my refuge, my saviour; thou savest me from violence.

Before
CHRIST
1018.

4 I will call on the LORD, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies.

5 When the ¶ waves of death compassed me, the floods of † ungodly men made me afraid;

¶ Or, wings.
† Heb.
Belial.

6 The ¶ sorrows of hell compassed me about; the snares of death prevented me;

¶ Or, cords.

7 In my distress I called upon the LORD, and cried to my God: and he did hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry did enter into his ears.

8 Then the earth shook and trembled; the foundations of heaven moved and shook, because he was wroth.

9 There went up a smoke † out of his nostrils, and fire out of his mouth devoured: coals were kindled by it.

† Heb.
by.

10 He bowed the heavens also, and came down; and darkness was under his feet.

11 And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly: and he was seen upon the wings of the wind.

12 And he made darkness pavilions round about him, † dark waters, and thick clouds of the skies.

† Heb. binding of waters.

13 Through the brightness before him were coals of fire kindled.

14 The LORD thundered from heaven, and the most High uttered his voice.

15 And he sent out arrows, and scattered them; lightning, and discomfited them.

16 And the channels of the sea appeared, the foundations of the world were discovered, at the rebuking of the LORD, at the blast of the breath of his nostrils.

17 He sent from above, he took me; he drew me out of ¶ many waters;

¶ Or,
great.

18 He delivered me from my strong enemy, and from them that hated me: for they were too strong for me.

19 They prevented me in the day of my calamity: but the LORD was my stay.

15. — David waxed faint.] Being now in his declining years, and much worn out by various troubles and afflictions. Bp. Patrick.

17. — that thou quench not the light of Israel.] This expression is very beautiful and significant; for good kings are in Scripture justly called the "light" of the people, 1 Kings xi. 36; Ps. cxxxii. 17; because the beauty and glory, the conduct and direction, the comfort, safety, and welfare of a people depend upon them, and are derived from them. Pool.

18. — at Gob.] It is said at 1 Chron. xx. 4, that these battles were fought at Gezer; whence it is inferred, either that Gob and Gezer were the same place, or that they were so near to each other, that the battles might be indiscriminately named from either. Dr. Wells.

Chap. XXII. ver. 1. — in the day that the Lord had delivered &c.] It is probable that David composed the following hymn in his younger days, under the troubles and difficulties to which he was exposed by the persecution of Saul; and that, having composed it, he was wont to sing or speak it by way of a thanksgiving to God. Dr. Wells. As this hymn forms the eighteenth psalm, the notes which occur upon it will be given in the book of Psalms.

Before
CHRIST
1019.

20 He brought me forth also into a large place : he delivered me, because he delighted in me.

21 The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness : according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.

22 For I have kept the ways of the LORD, and have not wickedly departed from my God.

23 For all his judgments were before me : and as for his statutes, I did not depart from them.

† Heb.
to him.

24 I was also upright † before him, and have kept myself from mine iniquity.

† Heb.
before his eyes.

25 Therefore the LORD hath recompensed me according to my righteousness ; according to my cleanness † in his eye sight.

26 With the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful, and with the upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright.

27 With the pure thou wilt shew thyself pure ; and with the froward thou wilt ‖ shew thyself unsavoury.

‖ Or, wrestle.
Psal. 18.
26.

28 And the afflicted people thou wilt save : but thine eyes are upon the haughty, that thou mayest bring them down.

‖ Or, candle.

29 For thou art my ‖ lamp, O LORD : and the LORD will lighten my darkness.

‖ Or, broken a troop.

30 For by thee I have ‖ run through a troop : by my God have I leaped over a wall.

‖ Or, refined.

31 As for God, his way is perfect ; the word of the LORD is ‖ tried : he is a buckler to all them that trust in him.

32 For who is God, save the LORD ? and who is a rock, save our God ?

† Heb. reddeth, or loseth.

33 God is my strength and power : and he † maketh my way perfect.

† Heb.
exalleth.

34 He † maketh my feet like hinds' feet : and setteth me upon my high places.

† Heb.
for the war.

35 He teacheth my hands † to war ; so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms.

† Heb. multiplied
me.

36 Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation : and thy gentleness hath † made me great.

† Heb.
ankles.

37 Thou hast enlarged my steps under me ; so that my † feet did not slip.

38 I have pursued mine enemies, and destroyed them ; and turned not again until I had consumed them.

Before
CHRIST
1018.

39 And I have consumed them, and wounded them, that they could not arise : yea, they are fallen under my feet.

40 For thou hast girded me with strength to battle : them that rose up against me hast thou † subdued under me.

† Heb. caused to bow.

41 Thou hast also given me the necks of mine enemies, that I might destroy them that hate me.

42 They looked, but there was none to save ; even unto the LORD, but he answered them not.

43 Then did I beat them as small as the dust of the earth, I did stamp them as the mire of the street, and did spread them abroad.

44 Thou also hast delivered me from the strivings of my people, thou hast kept me to be head of the heathen : a people which I knew not shall serve me.

45 † Strangers shall ‖ † submit themselves unto me : as soon as they hear, they shall be obedient unto me.

† Heb.
Sons of the stranger.

46 Strangers shall fade away, and they shall be afraid out of their close places.

‖ Or, yield feigned obedience.

47 The LORD liveth ; and blessed be my rock ; and exalted be the God of the rock of my salvation.

† Heb. lic.

48 It is God that † avengeth me, and that bringeth down the people under me, † Heb. giveth a-vengeance for me.

49 And that bringeth me forth from mine enemies : thou also hast lifted me up on high above them that rose up against me : thou hast delivered me from the violent man.

50 Therefore I will give thanks unto thee, O LORD, among ^b the heathen, and I will sing praises unto thy name.

^b Rom. 15.
9.

51 He is the tower of salvation for his king : and sheweth mercy to his anointed, unto David, and ^c to his seed for evermore.

^c Chap. 7.
13.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 David, in his last words, professeth his faith in God's promises to be beyond sense or experience. 6 The different state of the wicked. 8 A catalogue of David's mighty men.

NOW these be the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, and the Chap. XXIII. ver. 1. — these be the last words] Some of the last words which he spake on the approach of death ; or the last words which he spake by the inspiration of God. Dr. Wells, Poole.

How glorious a conclusion of so noble an office is this ; to recollect God's signal mercies and blessings bestowed upon him, his exaltation to royalty from a low estate, and his gifts of prophecy, poetry, and harmony ; His special command to him as a king, and His eternal covenant with him and his seed ; the continuance of his temporal kingdom, but with no increase of grandeur, in his posterity ; their sure salvation and protection while they continued in the covenant made with their father ; the final reprobation and destruction of the wicked ; and, above all, that blessed and permanent assurance to the faithful, that "the Spirit of the Lord spake by him, and His word was in his tongue ;" thus sealing the truth and certainty of his divine in-

Before
CHRIST
1018.

man who was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel, said,

2 The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

|| Or,
Be thou
ruler, &c.

3 The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, || He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God.

4 And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain.

5 Although my house be not so with God; yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, and sure: for this is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make it not to grow.

6 ¶ But the sons of Belial shall be all of them as thorns thrust away, because they cannot be taken with hands:

† Heb.
filled.

7 But the man that shall touch them must be † fenced with iron and the staff of a spear; and they shall be utterly burned with fire in the same place.

|| Or,
Josheb-bas-sheb the Tachmonite, head of the three.
|| See 1 Chr.
11. 11.
† Heb. slain.
a 1 Chron.
11. 12.

8 ¶ These be the names of the mighty men whom David had: || The Tachmonite that sat in the seat, chief among the captains; the same was Adino the Eznite: || he lift up his spear against eight hundred, † whom he slew at one time.

9 And after him was ^a Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three mighty men with David, when they defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battle, and the men of Israel were gone away: Before

CHRIST
1018.

10 He arose, and smote the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto the sword: and the Lord wrought a great victory that day; and the people returned after him only to spoil.

11 And after him was ^b Shammah the son of Agee the Hararite. And the Philistines were gathered together || into a troop, where was a piece of ground full of lentiles: and the people fled from the Philistines. b 1 Chron.
11. 27.
|| Or,
for foraging.

12 But he stood in the midst of the ground, and defended it, and slew the Philistines: and the Lord wrought a great victory.

13 And || three of the thirty chief went down, and came to David in the harvest time unto the cave of Adullam: and the troop of the Philistines pitched in the valley of Rephaim. || Or,
the three captains over the thirty.

14 And David was then in an hold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Beth-lehem.

15 And David longed, and said, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Beth-lehem, which is by the gate!

16 And the three mighty men brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David: nevertheless he would not drink thereof, but poured it out unto the Lord.

piration, and, in consequence of that, the sacred authority of his writings to endless generations. Dr. Delaney.

— the sweet psalmist of Israel,] This title seems most eminently to belong to David, as he was the person who had brought to perfection the musick of the Jewish service, having not only composed the psalms, but the musick also, and having prescribed to the performers their several parts, &c. Dr. Gray.

2. The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, &c.] That is, it was by the Divine inspiration that I composed my various psalms, and now speak this. Dr. Wells.

3. — He that ruleth &c.] Or, as in the margin, Be thou ruler over &c. which the Chaldee expounds of the Messiah in this manner; The faithful God spake, I will constitute to Me a king, He is the Messiah, who shall arise and reign in the fear of the Lord: but this relates first to David, the type of Christ, who was taught to rule justly, and in the fear of God. Bp. Patrick. Or, retaining the present translation, the words are an illustrious assertion of that kingdom and government, which Christ the righteous even then administered over men. Bp. Beveridge.

5. Although my house be not so &c.] My house or kingdom is not so with God; that is, is by God's appointment destined to excel the forementioned comparisons taken from natural things: for they are none of them stable and constant; whereas He, namely, God, hath made with me an everlasting covenant, (a covenant of an everlasting as well as blessed and glorious kingdom,) ordered in all things aright and sure: which is to be chiefly understood, and is fully true, of the kingdom of Christ. For this kingdom of Christ that is to descend from me, is that wherein is founded all my salvation, and all my desire. Dr. Wells. Otherwise the sense may be, Although I have not in every point been answerable to that which God hath required of me, and foretold concerning me, yet in His great mercy He hath made an everlasting covenant with me. Bp. Hull.

8. These be the names] Here follows a catalogue of those valiant men, who helped to raise David to his dignity, and to preserve him in it, being continually with him in his wars.

— The Tachmonite] Called Jashobeam at 1 Chron. xi. 11: he sat in the seat, probably in the council of war.

13. And three of the thirty chief] Rather, (as in the margin,) three captains over the thirty. Bp. Patrick.

— the cave of Adullam:] A place where he had hid himself under the persecution of Saul, 1 Sam. xxii. 1, and where he now fortified himself against the Philistines.

15. — the well of Beth-lehem,] There is still shewn in the neighbourhood of Beth-lehem a well, called the "well of David," and supposed to be that here mentioned. Maunderell.

16. — nevertheless he would not drink thereof,] David, though longing with an earnest appetite, would not taste a drop of the water brought to him; but, in condemnation of the inordinancy of his appetite, which had exposed such worthy persons to the hazard of their lives, "poured it out unto the Lord." What a mass of sin and misery would he have escaped, if he could have so denied himself in the matter of Uriah! Bp. Sanderson.

Before
CHRIST
1018.

17 And he said, Be it far from me, O LORD, that I should do this: is not this the blood of the men that went in jeopardy of their lives? therefore he would not drink it. These things did these three mighty men.

† Chron.
11. 20.

18 And † Abishai, the brother of Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was chief among three. And he lifted up his spear against three hundred, † and slew them, and had the name among three.

† Heb.
slain.

19 Was he not most honourable of three? therefore he was their captain: howbeit he attained not unto the first three.

† Heb. great of act.
† Heb.
kins of God.

20 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man, of Kabzeel, † who had done many acts, he slew two † lionlike men of Moab: he went down also and slew a lion in the midst of a pit in time of snow:

† Heb.
a man of countenance, or,
right:
called,
1 Chron.
11. 23,
a man of great stature.

21 And he slew an Egyptian, † a goodly man: and the Egyptian had a spear in his hand; but he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear.

22 These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and had the name among three mighty men.

|| Or, honourable among the city.

23 He was || more honourable than the thirty, but he attained not to the first three. And David set him over his || † guard.

† Or, coun. il.
† Heb. at his command.
4 Chap. 2.
18.

24 † Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirty; Elhanan the son of Dodo of Beth-lehem,

* 1 Chron.
11. 27.

25 Shammah the Harodite, Elikah the Harodite,

26 Helez the † Paltite, Ira the son of Ikesh the Tekoite,

27 Abiezer the Anethothite, Mebunnai the Hushathite,

28 Zalmon the Ahohite, Maharai the Netophathite,

29 Heleb the son of Baanah, a Neto-phathite, Ittai the son of Ribai out of Gibeon of the children of Benjamin,

Before
CHRIST
1018.

30 Benaiah the Pirathonite, Hiddai of the || brooks of Gaash,

|| Or,
valleys.

31 Abi-albon the Arbathite, Azmaveth the Barhumite,

32 Eliahba the Shaalbonite, of the sons of Jashen, Jonathan,

33 Shammah the Hararite, Ahiam the son of Sharar the Hararite,

34 Eliphelet the son of Ahasbai, the son of the Maachathite, Eliam the son of Ahithophel the Gilonite, 35 Hezrai the Carmelite, Paarai the Arbite,

36 Igal the son of Nathan of Zobah, Bani the Gadite,

37 Zelek the Ammonite, Nahari the Beerothite, armourbearer to Joab the son of Zeruiah, 38 Ira an Ithrite, Gareb an Ithrite,

39 Uriah the Hittite: thirty and seven in all.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 David, tempted by Satan, forceth Joab to number the people. 5 The captains, in nine months and twenty days, bring the muster of thirteen hundred thousand fighting men. 10 David, having three plagues propounded by Gad, repenteth, and chooseth the three days' pestilence. 15 After the death of threescore and ten thousand, David by repentance preventeth the destruction of Jerusalem. 18 David, by Gad's direction, purchaseth Araunah's threshing floor; where having sacrificed, the plague stayeth.

AND again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and || he moved David against them to say, Go, number Israel and Judah.

1017.
|| Satan.
See 1 Chro.
21. 1.

2 For the king said to Joab the captain of the host, which was with him, || Go now through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, and number ye the people, that I may know the number of the people.

|| Or,
Compass.

17. — is not this the blood &c.] He considers the water brought at such hazard, as blood, which by command of God was to be poured on the ground.

39. — thirty and seven in all.] Only thirty-six are named; therefore Joab, who was the head of them all, should be included, to complete the number. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. XXIV. ver. 1. — was kindled against Israel.] Probably for the general luxury, pride, and unthoughtfulness, which in a time of peace and plenty overspread the kingdom. Pyle.

— and he moved David against them.] Rather, as the Hebrew will admit, "David was moved against them;" namely, by Satan, as is expressly said at 1 Chron. xxi. 1. Bp. Patrick. If our translators had rendered it "David was moved," they would better have expressed the true meaning. Bp. Kidder.

By comparing this passage with 1 Chron. xxi. 1, it evidently appears, that God's moving David, or Satan's provoking him, or his own distrustful heart tempting him, to number the people, are all phrases having one and the same meaning. Dr. S. Clarke.

Nothing is more common with the sacred writers than to represent God as doing that which, in the course of His providence, and for the purposes either of mercy or judgment, He permits to be done by the instrumentality of second causes, animate or inanimate, corporeal or spiritual. Thus the meaning of these different expressions, when put together, is, according to a fair explanation, that God, for good and sufficient reasons known to Himself, permitted Satan to tempt, and David to yield to the temptation, in the present instance. Bp. Horne.

2. — that I may know the number &c.] David's prosperity had at this time too much elated him; and, being advised by some rash and imprudent courtiers to take the number of his people, that he might the better know his strength, his vanity got the

Before
CHRIST
1017.

3 And Joab said unto the king, Now the LORD thy God add unto the people, how many soever they be, an hundredfold, and that the eyes of my lord the king may see it: but why doth my lord the king delight in this thing?

4 Notwithstanding the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the captains of the host. And Joab and the captains of the host went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of Israel.

5 ¶ And they passed over Jordan, and pitched in Aroer, on the right side of the city that lieth in the midst of the river of Gad, and toward Jazer:

6 Then they came to Gilead, and to the land of Talitim-hodshi; and they came to Dan-jaan, and about to Zidon,

¶ Or, valley.

¶ Or, nether land newly inhabited.

better of his duty, on which God was pleased to check the rising presumption of his heart, by letting him see how vain his dependence on his forces was, and to punish him and them for their violation of a law, which He had ordered to be observed under the severest penalty. For it had been expressly commanded, Exod. xxx. 12, "When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel, then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul," &c. David, either not thinking of this command, or deeming himself, as king of Israel, exempt from it, ordered the people to be numbered, without exacting the ransom from each of them. This was one of the highest stretches of authority; an assumption of a prerogative which God reserved to Himself, and a violation of a standing law of the kingdom, which was specially ordained as a memorial of God being their supreme Governour and King. It appears that this action of David was looked upon as a very reprehensible step even by Joab, who remonstrated against it, being apprehensive of the bad consequences which would ensue. Dr. Chandler. The numbering of the people was one of the last and most reprehensible acts of David, about two years before his death. From the expressions used at 2 Sam. xxiv. 1, and 1 Chron. xxi. 1, we may collect, that God permitted Satan to tempt David to the commission of a crime, which would draw down punishment on himself and his people, as He afterwards permitted the same evil and lying spirit to seduce the Prophets of Ahab, 1 Kings xxii. 22, and the disciple of Christ, Luke xxii. 3. The ruling passion by which the tempter assailed David was the pride of life, which, though checked and mortified by the wholesome restraints of adversity, broke out again in the sunshine of prosperity. David's offence seems chiefly to have consisted in his persisting to require a muster of all his subjects able to bear arms without the Divine command, without necessity, in a time of profound peace, to indulge an idle vanity and presumption, as if he put his trust more in the number of his subjects than in the Divine protection; and the offence of his people may have been similar, always elated, as they were, in prosperity, and provoking the anger of the Lord by their forgetfulness of Him. Dr. Hales. Moses numbered the people by God's authority, to shew that they were all His subjects: David seems to have numbered them to shew that they were his own people, and to display his own sovereignty; which provoked God. Bp. Wilson.

3. And Joab said &c.] Though pride is so imperceptible often to ourselves, it is commonly obvious to others. Even Joab saw it in David: a wicked man discerned it in a saint. Wogan.

5. And they passed over Jordan, &c.] The course, which the officers took, was this. Setting out from Jerusalem, they passed over Jordan, and pitched in Aroer, on the river Arnon, or "the river of Gad;" this place is called "in the midst of the river," probably because it was, in whole or in part, situated on a spot of 7 And came to the strong hold of Tyre, and to all the cities of the Hivites, and of the Canaanites: and they went out to the south of Judah, even to Beer-sheba.

8 So when they had gone through all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days.

9 And Joab gave up the sum of the number of the people unto the king: and there were in Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword; and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

10 ¶ And David's heart smote him after that he had numbered the people. And David said unto the LORD, I have sinned greatly in that I have done: and now, I beseech thee, O LORD, take away the ini-

Before
CHRIST
1017.

ground surrounded by the river: they thence went northward to Jazer, to Tahtim-hodshi, or the netherland newly inhabited, a marshy tract on the river Jordan; and to Dan-jaan, the same as Dan, lying at the head of Jordan: from Dan-jaan they went to the cities or countries of Tyre and Zidon, on the northwest of Canaan; thence, turning southward, they came to Beer-sheba, the most southerly city of Canaan, and thence back to Jerusalem. Dr. Wells.

9. — in Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men &c.] On comparing this account with 1 Chron. xxi. 5, we find an important difference; for there the men of Israel are said to be 300,000 more than they are here, and the men of Judah 30,000 less. As to the former difference, we may account for it by supposing, that, in the sum given in this book of Samuel, the standing legions (which amounted in all to 288,000 men) are not included, though they are in Chronicles: and, as to the latter difference, we may add 24,000 legionary soldiers to the tribe of Judah, and the difficulty is removed; unless in this latter case it be deemed sufficient to say, that the computation is made in very round numbers, without strict attention to accuracy. Bp. Patrick.

10. — David's heart smote him] He was now sensible that he had numbered the people out of fleshly vanity and pride, and as one who relied on his own strength and the number of his forces for the support of his kingdom, rather than on God, who can save by few as well as by many. Dr. Wells. Here needed no Nathan to bring David to a sight and knowledge of his sin. The heart of the penitent supplied the place of the Prophet. No other tongue could smite so deep as his own thoughts. Bp. Hall.

— I have sinned greatly in that I have done:] This last offence of David is still more astonishing and alarming than the first. This was an offence committed immediately against God. It is almost inconceivable, and altogether frightful, to consider, how "the light of Israel," an inspired Prophet the most highly gifted, favoured with such abundance of revelations concerning the Messiah, and His future dispensation of grace to mankind, could be so exalted above measure by the inborn pride and naughtiness of his heart, (1 Sam. xvii. 28,) as to forget, not merely for a moment, but for nine months and twenty days, (the time employed in making the return,) the Lord his strength and his redeemer, unmoved by the representations and remonstrances of his most faithful friends, who forewarned him of the Divine displeasure. Most strongly indeed does his fall on this occasion urge the necessity of vigilance and prayer, to correct the deceitfulness of the human heart, and to counteract the subtlety of the devil working against us; while his rising again furnishes an abundant source of consolation to all returning penitents, never to despair of the riches of Divine mercy, from a sense of their own unworthiness and manifold demerits. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1017.

quity of thy servant; for I have done very foolishly.

11 For when David was up in the morning, the word of the Lord came unto the prophet Gad, David's seer, saying, 12 Go and say unto David, Thus saith the Lord, I offer thee three things; choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee.

13 So Gad came to David, and told him, and said unto him, Shall seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land? or wilt thou flee three months before thine enemies, while they pursue thee? or that there be three days' pestilence in thy land? now advise, and see what answer I shall return to him that sent me.

14 And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait: let us fall now into the hand of the LORD; for his mercies are || great: and let me not fall into the hand of man. Before

CHRIST
1017.

15 ¶ So the LORD sent a pestilence upon Israel from the morning even to the time appointed: and there died of the people from Dan even to Beer-sheba seventy thousand men. Or, many.

16 And when the angel stretched out his hand upon Jerusalem to destroy it, ^a the LORD repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed the people, It is enough: stay now thine hand. And the angel of the LORD was by the threshing-place of Araunah the Jebusite. 1 Sam. 15.
11.

17 And David spake unto the LORD when he saw the angel that smote the people, and said, Lo, I have sinned, and I have done wickedly: but these sheep, what

13. — Shall seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land?] There is a difference between the account given here, and that in the book of Chronicles, where the famine is said to be for three years, not for seven, 1 Chron. xxi. 12. Some have imagined that seven is in this place an error which has crept into the text. But the difference may be explained in another manner; by supposing that the author of Chronicles speaks of those years of famine, which were to come for David's sin only, while the author of the book of Samuel speaks also of those years which were sent for Saul's sin, 2 Sam. xxi. David's sin in numbering the people took place within one year after the famine sent for Saul's sin; the intermediate year was perhaps the sabbatical year, in which the people neither sowed nor reaped, or a year of such excessive drought that the crops came to nothing. Upon either of these accounts, it might properly enough be said that there would be seven years of famine, three being added to four which had preceded. Stackhouse. According to this explanation, the Prophet's words may be the same as "Wilt thou have three additional years of famine?" which removes all apparent contradiction. Bp. Horne.

There is not another instance recorded in Scripture of any man's being left to the choice of his own punishment. "The man after God's own heart" is the only one to whom this singular favour is shewn: and the Divine condescension towards him was not lost or abused. David, in the choice which he made, directed himself probably to that which he thought would, under the hand of a just God, fall with less severity on His people, and with heavier on himself, as the principal and sole offender. How humble, how generous and benevolent a choice was this; and, therefore, how pious and wise! It disarmed the destroying angel, brought the Lord Himself "to repent" and to stay His hand. When we meekly submit ourselves to the Divine correction, not only mercy, but justice itself, will say, "It is enough." Wogan.

14. — let us fall now into the hand of the Lord;] Of the three punishments offered, David chose the plague, probably from recollecting that this was the very punishment threatened by God, for the violation of this statute, concerning the numbering the people, Exod. xxx. 12. Dr. Chandler.

It is easy to understand, on what account the pestilence is called more properly "the hand of God:" for war and many other calamities proceed from causes visible to all men; whereas none sees or knows whence the pestilence proceeds; no perceptible alteration is made in any of the elements which surround us; and it therefore is referred more peculiarly to the immediate interference of the Deity. Bp. Patrick.

15. — to the time appointed;] Not to the end of the three days; for, ver. 16, "the Lord repented Him of the evil:" it means, probably, the appointed time of evening prayer, that is, about the ninth hour of the day; according to which sense the plague lasted nine hours. Bp. Patrick.

— there died — seventy thousand men.] If it should be thought strange that God should destroy 70,000 men of Israel for David's fault, it should be recollected, that God has an absolute right over the lives of all His creatures; and that, if ever He does any thing seemingly hard, He knows how to make them amply amends. But "the anger of the Lord was (also) kindled against Israel," ver. 1; the people themselves had sins many and great, which deserved punishment, and for which they would probably have been before punished, had it not been for God's favour towards David, who would have suffered in common with them: now, therefore, when both king and people had deserved a correction or judgment, God was pleased to let loose His anger against both. Dr. Waterland.

16. — the Lord repented him] God did not change His mind, but only revoked that which He had decreed on a certain condition: which was, that three days' pestilence should come upon the country, unless David and his people repented. Bp. Patrick.

— the angel — was by the threshingplace] That is, the pestilence had spread in Jerusalem to this point. It is agreed by the learned, that this threshing-floor was situated upon mount Moriah, whereon Abraham was commanded to sacrifice Isaac, and whereon Solomon afterwards built the temple. Dr. Wells.

— of Araunah the Jebusite.] As Araunah is called a Jebusite, it thus appears that all the Jebusites were not at this time expelled from Jerusalem. Dr. Wall.

17. — but these sheep,] A noble example of the tenderness which kings should have for their subjects. Bp. Wilson. How sensibly was David affected with his people's sufferings under that pestilence, which his imprudence and their neglect had brought upon them! How tenderly and affectionately does he plead with God in their behalf! What a noble instance of public spirit, and generous concern for the safety of his people, does this moving and pathetic expostulation manifest! Here is the real language and spirit of a genuine shepherd of his people, willing to devote himself and his family to God, for the preservation of his subjects. Dr. Chandler. Although David, like a true patriot king and most affectionate father, intercedes for his people, and desires to receive in his own person and family the stroke that was ready to descend on them, yet it should seem that the people were by no means without fault; for (as was noted at ver. 1) "the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel;" and, as a consequence of this, David was excited to number the people. The offences of the people called for punishment; and, on the numbering the people, an opportunity was taken to inflict it. Bp. Horne.

^{Before}
CHRIST
1017. have they done? let thine hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house.

18 ¶ And Gad came that day to David, and said unto him, Go up, rear an altar unto the LORD in the threshingfloor of Araunah the Jebusite.

19 And David, according to the saying of Gad, went up as the LORD commanded.

20 And Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming on toward him: and Araunah went out, and bowed himself before the king on his face upon the ground.

21 And Araunah said, Wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? And David said, To buy the threshingfloor of thee, to build an altar unto the LORD, that the plague may be stayed from the people.

22 And Araunah said unto David, Let my lord the king take and offer up what ^{Before}

CHRIST
1017. seemeth good unto him: behold, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and threshing instruments and other instruments of the oxen for wood.

23 All these things did Araunah, as a king, give unto the king. And Araunah said unto the king, The LORD thy God accept thee.

24 And the king said unto Araunah, Nay; but I will surely buy it of thee at a price: neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the LORD my God of that which doth cost me nothing. So David bought the threshingfloor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver.

25 And David built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. So the LORD was intreated for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel.

23. — did Araunah, as a king, give] As a king; that is, in a bountiful and royal manner. Bp. Hall.

24. — bought — for fifty shekels of silver.] Here again this book differs from that of Chronicles, 1 Chron. xxi. 25, where it is said, that David bought the threshingfloor, &c. for six hundred shekels of gold, instead of fifty shekels of silver. It is generally supposed that, in the whole, David made two purchases; first, he bought the threshingfloor and oxen, for which he paid fifty shekels of silver; and afterwards, he bought all the ground about it, (out of which the courts of the temple were made,) which cost him six hundred shekels of gold. Bp. Patrick.

The conduct of David on this occasion should be a warning to all men, to keep their hearts with all diligence, so that they be not overcome with pride, and the love of worldly things. For, if these sinful affections could break into the heart of such a holy man as David, what victories will they be apt to gain over others, who are not so vigilant! Too often, alas, do they alienate men from the love of God, and provoke Him to punish them with the want of even necessary things; for the case of David is the case of too many amongst mankind. When they are exalted to honours, they forget themselves, and grow proud and insolent. When riches increase, their sensual lusts and corrupt manners commonly increase in the same proportion. When they dwell securely in full peace and health, they put away far from them the evil day, living as if they should never die, and should never appear before God to give an account of all their works. Reading.

David's crime in numbering the people appears to have consisted in a want of confidence in God. Had he acted in the true spirit of a king of Israel, he would have been less solicitous about the number of his forces, and would have trusted God with the work which He had undertaken, and which He had constantly, and in David's case in a very particular manner, discharged faithfully. Read the promise in the law: "When thou goest out to battle against thine enemies, and seest horses, and chariots, and a people more than thou, be not afraid of them: for the Lord thy God is with thee." And consider, what but distrust in God could tempt David to number his forces? Happy had it been for him and the people, had he then reflected, that "God hath no pleasure in the strength of an horse, neither delighteth He in any man's legs." He ought to have remembered, what his own experience had taught him, that God wanted not the assistance of horse and foot to execute the designs of His providence. Bp. Sherlock.

The following Chapters from the second book of Samuel are appointed for Proper Lessons on Sundays and Holydays.

CHAP. XII.	-	-	-	-	6th Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— XIX.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.
— XXI.	-	-	-	-	7th Sunday after Trinity,	-	-	-	-	Morning.
— XXIV.	-	-	-	-	Ditto,	-	-	-	-	Evening.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE

K I N G S,

COMMONLY CALLED,

THE THIRD BOOK OF THE KINGS.

INTRODUCTION.

THE two books of Kings formed only one in the Hebrew canon. They cannot be positively ascribed to any particular author: some have ascribed them to Jeremiah, some to Isaiah; and some, again, with more probability, suppose them to have been compiled by Ezra, from the records which were regularly kept, both in Jerusalem and Samaria, of all publick transactions. These records appear to have been made by the contemporary Prophets, and frequently derived their names from the kings whose history they contain. They are mentioned in many parts of Scripture: thus, in the first book of Kings, we read of the Book of the Acts of Solomon, which is supposed to have been written by Nathan, Ahijah, and Iddo. We elsewhere read, that Shemaiah the prophet, and Iddo the seer, wrote the acts of Rehoboam; that Jehu wrote the acts of Jehoshaphat, and Isaiah those of Uzziah and Hezekiah. We may therefore conclude, that from these publick records, and other authentick documents, were composed the two books of Kings; and the uniformity of their style favours the opinion of their being put into their present shape by the same person. Bp. Tomline.

The first book of Kings comprises a period of 126 years, from the death of David, in the year of the world 2989, to that of Jehoshaphat. After the description of the decay and death of David, we are presented with a most striking history of the reign of Solomon; of his wisdom and magnificence; of the building of the temple; of his extended commerce to Ophir; and of the visit of the queen of Sheba. To this succeeds an account of the miserable dotage and apostasy of Solomon; and of his death, preceded by a prospect of that threatened rending of the kingdom which should take place under his son. Afterwards are related the accession of Rehoboam; his rash and impolitick conduct, and the consequent separation of the ten tribes, which happened about the year of the world 3029. This is followed by a concise sketch of the history of the two kingdoms, in which particular periods are characterized by very animated relations; as that of the disobedient Prophet; of the widow of Zarephath; of Elijah and the prophets of Baal; of Benhadad's pride and defeat; of Ahab's injustice and punishment. In the course of these events we contemplate the exact accomplishment of God's promises and threats, the wisdom of His dispensations, and the mingled justice and mercy of His government. The book is stamped with the intrinsick marks of inspiration: of the prophecies which it contains, some were speedily completed; but that which foretold that "Josiah should be born unto the house of David, and slay the priests of the high places," was not fulfilled till above 350 years after it was delivered. Both the books of Kings are cited as authentick and canonical by our Saviour and His Apostles. Dr. Gray.

It is sufficient to establish the authority and just esteem of these books, to consider that we owe them to the especial providence of God, as designed by Him for our great benefit and instruction; and that, by all circumstances compared together, we find them to have been collected by persons of unsuspected ability, care, and honesty, and handed down to us with as much purity and uncorruptedness in the copies, as the nature of such things could possibly bear. Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

CHAP. I.

1 Ahishag cherisheth David in his extreme age. 5 Adonijah, David's darling, usurpeth the kingdom. 11 By the counsel of Nathan, 15 Bath-sheba moveth the king, 22 and Nathan secondeth her. 28 David reneweth his oath to Bath-sheba. 32 Solomon, by David's appointment, being anointed king by Zadok and Nathan, the people triumph. 41 Jonathan bringing these news, Adonijah's guests fly. 50 Adonijah, flying to the horns of the altar, upon his good behaviour is dismissed by Solomon.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

NOW king David was old and † stricken † Heb. in years; and they covered him with ^{entered into} clothes, but he gat no heat.

Chap. 1. ver. 1. — David was old and stricken in years; He was now seventy years old, as we collect from 2 Sam. v. 4, 5. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

† Heb.
Let them
seek.

† Heb.
a damsel,
a virgin.

† Heb. be a cherisher unto him.

2 Wherefore his servants said unto him, † Let there be sought for my lord the king † a young virgin: and let her stand before the king, and let her † cherish him, and let her lie in thy bosom, that my lord the king may get heat.

3 So they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the coasts of Israel, and found Abishag a Shunammite, and brought her to the king.

4 And the damsel was very fair, and cherished the king, and ministered to him: but the king knew her not.

† Heb. reign.

5 ¶ Then Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, I will † be king: and he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.

† Heb. from his
days.

6 And his father had not displeased him † at any time in saying, Why hast thou done so? and he also was a very goodly man; and his mother bare him after Absalom.

† Heb.
his words were with Joab.

7 And † he conferred with Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with Abiathar the priest: and they † following Adonijah helped him.

† Heb. helped after Adonijah.

8 But Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and Nathan the prophet, and Shimei, and Rei, and the mighty men which belonged to David, were not with Adonijah.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

9 And Adonijah slew sheep and oxen and fat cattle by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by ‖ En-rogel, and called all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Judah the king's servants:

¶ Or, the well Rogel.

10 But Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and Solomon his brother, he called not.

11 ¶ Wherefore Nathan spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of † Haggith doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not?

2 2 Sam. 3.
4.

12 Now therefore come, let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son Solomon.

13 Go and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

2. — let her cherish him, &c.] Interpreters are much divided in opinion whether Abishag was the wife of David or not: some maintaining that she was truly his lawful wife; and others, that she was nothing more than a servant, or at most a concubine wife. Calmét.

5. Then Adonijah — exalted himself.] This attempt of Adonijah was another trial for David. Providence suffered this to happen, whilst David was yet alive, that Adonijah's party might be ruined and dispersed, and Solomon established in the kingdom; that so the promises made in favour of Solomon might be accomplished, and that the pride, and ambition, and conspiracy of Adonijah, might only hasten the exaltation of Solomon, and strengthen him in the kingdom. This is one of those examples which prove that God brings down the high looks of the proud, and generally confounds them in their own haughtiness; that nothing can hinder the execution of the designs of Providence; that whatever men do to prevent them, only serves to hasten them; and that criminal attempts turn to the confusion of the authors. Ostervald.

6. — his father had not displeased him &c.] It appears from this expression that Adonijah was a great favourite with his father, as Absalom had been before, whom he resembled in ambition and in beauty. Dr. Hales. Extraordinary indulgence to his children seems to have been one of David's great faults: he appears to have been so fond of them that he overlooked their errors, and never chided them for what they did amiss: now in his old age this weakness was more apparent, as he naturally grew more remiss, careless, and sluggish. Bp. Patrick. Adonijah, as well as Absalom, had been the darling of his father. Their father had not displeased them from their childhood; therefore they both displeased him in his age. The excessive indulgence of parents at last pays them home in crosses. Bp. Hall. David had nobody to blame but himself for this misconduct of his son. It was his own excessive indulgence which led to this extravagance. Strange weakness in parents and cruelty to their children, to suffer them to become incorrigible in error, or inveterate in vice, rather than restrain them, while correction is kindness! Dr. Delancy.

9. — which is by En-rogel.] En-rogel lay not far from Jerusalem, to the east or northeast of it. Dr. Wells. Josephus says, that En-rogel means "the fountain in the king's garden." Dr. Hales.

11. Wherefore Nathan spake &c.] The word "wherefore" is not in the Hebrew; where the words are, "And Nathan spake." The insertion of the word "wherefore" in our translation has sometimes given birth to a very unfounded insinuation against Nathan, as if a feeling of resentment for the neglect shewn to him by Adonijah, as mentioned in the preceding verse, was the cause of his discovering the plot to David; whereas there can be no doubt that Zadok and Nathan were actuated by loyalty and affection to the king, and by the desire of having the succession to the crown settled by his appointment and authority. Dr. Chandler.

Nathan was the man by whom God had sent to David that message of assurance, that his son Solomon should reign and prosper: yet now, when Adonijah's plot was on foot, he did not sit still and depend upon the issue of God's decree, but bestirred himself in the business, and consulted with Bath-sheba how at once to save their lives, and defeat Adonijah and advance Solomon. If we would not have God wanting to us, we must not be wanting to ourselves. Bp. Hall.

12. — and the life of thy son Solomon.] For, if Adonijah had succeeded in his treason, Solomon, as being the rival of his throne, would have fallen an immediate sacrifice. Dr. Chandler.

13. — Didst not thou — swear unto thine handmaid, &c.] We read no where else of this oath; but, no doubt, David had solemnly sworn to her, that her son should be made his successor. It appears from 2 Sam. vii. 12, that God had designed him for that honour; for He there promises to David, by Nathan, to set upon his throne a son that should proceed from him, which plainly signifies, that none of his sons already born should succeed him. But more plainly, at 1 Chron. xxii. 8, 9, David declares, that God had told him his son Solomon should reign after him and build Him a house. All this, we may well suppose, was known to Adonijah, which makes his crime the greater, in setting himself against the decree of Heaven, as he himself indeed confesses in the next chapter, ver. 15. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

† Heb.
fill up.

14 Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I also will come in after thee, and † confirm thy words.

15 ¶ And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was very old; and Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

16 And Bath-sheba bowed, and did obeisance unto the king. And the king said, † What wouldest thou?

† Heb.
What to thee?

17 And she said unto him, My lord, thou swarest by the Lord thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne.

18 And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, thou knowest it not:

19 And he hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant hath he not called.

20 And thou, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou shouldest tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.

21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted † offenders.

† Heb. sinners.

22 ¶ And, lo, while she yet talked with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in.

23 And they told the king, saying, Behold Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, he bowed himself before the king with his face to the ground.

24 And Nathan said, My lord, O king, hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne?

25 For he is gone down this day, and hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and, behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, † God save king Adonijah.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

26 But me, even me thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called.

† Heb.
Let king Adonijah live.

27 Is this thing done by my lord the king, and thou hast not shewed it unto thy servant, who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?

28 ¶ Then king David answered and said, Call me Bath-sheba. And she came † into the king's presence, and stood before the king.

† Heb.
before the king.

29 And the king sware, and said, As the Lord liveth, that hath redeemed my soul out of all distress,

30 Even as I sware unto thee by the Lord God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day.

31 Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the earth, and did reverence to the king, and said, Let my lord king David live for ever.

32 ¶ And king David said, Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride upon † mine own mule, and bring him down to Gihon:

† Heb. which belongeth to me.

34 And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel: and blow ye with the trumpet, and say, God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and sit upon my throne; for he shall be king in my stead: and I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, Amen: the 21. — shall be counted offenders.] Shall be deemed guilty of death, for aiming at the kingdom. Bp. Patrick.

26. But me, even me thy servant, — hath he not called.] Nathan's meaning is, that Adonijah had not acquainted him, Zadok, &c. with his purpose, taken them into his counsels, nor asked their consent, in order that they might not have an opportunity of frustrating his measures. Dr. Chandler.

27. Is this thing done by my lord the king, &c.] Is this feast of Adonijah, his proclaiming himself king, and his assumption of the royal authority, done by the king's consent and order? Dr. Chandler.

33. — cause Solomon my son to ride upon mine own mule.] Mai-monides tells us, that it was a capital crime to ride upon the king's ass or mule, to sit upon his throne, or to handle his sceptre, without his order: on the contrary, to ride on the king's beast, by his permission, was deemed the highest honour among the Persians, as appears from the story of Mordecai, Esther vi. 8, &c. Dr. Chandler.

— bring him down to Gihon:] It is not agreed whether this word denotes a hill, or a fountain: some think it was the name of a fountain, and also of an adjoining hill. Its situation is generally assigned near mount Zion, and on the west side of it. Dr. Wells.

36. — answered the king, and said, Amen:] Benaiah gave his consent, in the name of all the rest, and promised a ready execution of the decree, with his prayers and wishes for all increase of

Before
CHRIST
1015.

LORD God of my lord the king say so too.

37 As the LORD hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.

38 So Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took an horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; and all the people said, God save king Solomon.

|| Or,
flutes.

40 And all the people came up after him, and the people piped with || pipes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

41 ¶ And Adonijah and all the guests that were with him heard it as they had made an end of eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, Wherefore is this noise of the city being in an uproar?

42 And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came: and Adonijah said unto him, Come in; for thou art a valiant man, and bringest good tidings.

43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king.

44 And the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule:

Before
CHRIST
1015.

45 And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon: and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again. This is the noise that ye have heard.

46 And also Solomon sitteth on the throne of the kingdom.

47 And moreover the king's servants came to bless our lord king David, saying, God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. And the king bowed himself upon the bed.

48 And also thus said the king, Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which hath given one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it.

49 And all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid, and rose up, and went every man his way.

50 ¶ And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, and arose, and went, and caught hold on the horns of the altar.

51 And it was told Solomon, saying, Behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon: for, lo, he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar, saying, Let king Solomon swear unto me to day that he will not slay his servant with the sword.

52 And Solomon said, If he will shew himself a worthy man, there shall not an hair of him fall to the earth: but if wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die.

53 So king Solomon sent; and they brought him down from the altar. And he came and bowed himself to king Solo-providential blessings on the new king, and his successors for ever. Pyle.

39. — took an horn of oil out of the tabernacle.] Took a vessel of oil; the vessel being made of the horn of an ox, as was usually done. The unction of Solomon was rendered more solemn, and his person more sacred, by the circumstance of the oil employed being the holy oil, or that "taken out of the tabernacle;" though the Jews are generally of opinion, that it was by no means necessary to anoint their kings with this holy oil made by Moses. Bp. Patrick.

42. — for thou art a valiant man.] Rather, "for thou art a virtuous man;" thus the word we here translate valiant is rendered at Prov. xii. 4. The Chaldee renders it, "Thou art a man that fearest to sin." Bp. Patrick.

46. — also Solomon sitteth on the throne] That is, as partner with David; for it does not appear that David resigned his crown during his life. Bp. Wilson.

47. — the king bowed himself upon the bed.] It may appear singular that David at this first anointing of Solomon should be in his chamber, and on his bed, and exceedingly decrepit; and yet, at his second anointing, should be in the midst of his princes and counsellors, and standing on his feet, 1 Chron. xxviii.

2. But we should consider that David's present infirmity was probably not sickness, but the coldness and numbness of old age. He was heart-whole, and head-whole, but old and afflicted with palsy. Therefore, though his most usual and com-mo-dious posture was in his chamber on his couch, yet, upon such an occasion as the crowning of Solomon again before all Israel, he was able to come forth, and stand upon his feet, and give his advice respecting future proceedings. Dr. Light-foot.

50. — caught hold on the horns of the altar.] Conscious of the crime he had committed, he fled to the altar for safety and protection, as that was a privileged place, not by the appointment of the law, but by the custom of all nations. It is a question to what altar he fled; whether to that at the tabernacle in Gibeon, or to that newly built in the threshing-floor of Araunah: the latter is most probable, as it was nearest. Bp. Patrick. It should be observed, that the Jewish law gave no asylum of the altar to those who had become guilty of a voluntary crime. Wilful murderers might be torn from the altar in order to be put to death, Exod. xxi. 14. According to the custom of almost all nations, altars and temples have been considered as asylums. Calmet.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

mon: and Solomon said unto him, Go to thine house.

CHAP. II.

1 David, having given a charge to Solomon, 3 of religiousness, 5 of Joab, 7 of Barzillai, 8 of Shimei, 10 dieth. 12 Solomon succeedeth. 13 Adonijah, moving Bath-sheba to sue unto Solomon for Abishag, is put to death. 26 Abiathur, having his life given him, is deprived of the priesthood. 28 Joab fleeing to the horns of the altar is there slain. 33 Benaiah is put in Joab's room, and Zadok in Abiathur's. 36 Shimei, confined to Jerusalem, by occasion of going thence to Gath, is put to death.

NOW the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying,

2 I go the way of all the earth: be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man;

3 And keep the charge of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest ^a || prosper in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself:

^a Deut. 29.

² Josh. 1. 7.

³ Or,

⁴ wisely.

Chap. II. ver. 1. — and he charged Solomon his son,] Many good counsels had David given to his heir; now he sums them up at the end. Dying words are wont to be the weightiest; the soul, when it is entering into glory, breathes nothing but divine. Bp. Hall.

The exhortations to the fear of God which David gave to his son Solomon before he died, are a mark of his piety, and of his affection for his son. In imitation of this example, parents ought above all things to recommend to their children the fear of the Lord, while they are with them, and before they leave this world; which is the true way to secure the blessing of God to their families. Ostervald.

3. And keep the charge of the Lord thy God,] The best legacy that David leaves to his heir, is the care of piety. Himself had found the sweetness of a good conscience, and now he commends it to his successor. Here was the father of a king charging the king his son to keep the statutes of the King of kings: as one who knew that greatness could neither exempt from obedience nor privilege sin; as one who knew that the least deviation from the greatest and highest career is more perceived, and therefore most dangerous. Thus he charges his son not to look for any prosperity, save only from well doing. That happiness is built upon sand, which is raised upon any foundation besides virtue. If Solomon, when old, had well remembered the counsels of David, he would not have so foully miscarried. Bp. Hall.

5. — thou knowest also what Joab the son of Zeruiah &c.] David has been censured for betraying a vindictive spirit in his dying advice to Solomon respecting Joab and Shimei; but his conduct appears to be perfectly justifiable. In regard to Joab, he does not advise Solomon absolutely and unconditionally to put him to death, but tells him to "do according to his wisdom;" he says to him, "Though you have now pardoned Joab through policy, as I was compelled to do myself by the exigency of the times, and the predominant influence of the sons of Zeruiah; yet should he offend again, act according to your discretion, and then punish him, as a hoary-headed murderer, and a confirmed traitor, with death." Dr. Hales.

The advice now given by David cannot be deemed inconsistent with true piety, or unworthy of a just and religious prince on his deathbed. It is true that forgiveness of enemies is a duty; but no man is obliged, by any law that we know of, so to forgive an 4 That the LORD may continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, If thy children take heed to their way, to walk before me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, ^b there shall not fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

Before
CHRIST
1015.

^b 2 Sam. 7. 12.

[†] Heb. he cut off from thee from the throne.

5 Moreover thou knowest also what Joab the son of Zeruiah did to me, and what he did to the two captains of the hosts of Israel, unto ^c Abner the son of Ner, and unto ^d Amasa the son of Jether, whom he slew, and [†] shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war upon his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet.

^c 2 Sam. 3. 27.

^d 2 Sam. 20. 10.

[†] Heb. put.

6 Do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of ^e Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that eat at thy table: for so they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

^e 2 Sam. 19. 31.

enemy, continuing such, as not to take the proper methods to guard against the effects of his enmity, and to bring him to justice, if no other method will prove effectual. Much less is a prince obliged so to forgive an implacable enemy to his crown and government, and one who is likely to disturb the settlement of the crown in his successor, as not to advise his successor to be on his guard against him, and to punish him, when guilty, according to his demerits. Such precaution as this he owes to his people; and he may die, as a private person, in charity with all mankind, and forgive every private injury against himself; and yet, as a prince, he may advise what is necessary for the publick good, and even the execution of particular persons, in case they should, by abusing the lenity of government and the respite they once obtained, become guilty of new and capital offences. Dr. Chandler. How would David have been acquitted of the charge of injustice, if he had suffered such publick and crying offences to pass wholly unpunished? He discharges his conscience by the advice which he gives to Solomon. Not having been able in his lifetime to complete all that justice required of him, he charged his son to execute what remained. He spoke as a king and as a judge, whose duty it was to punish crime, not as a private individual following the dictates of revenge. Joab had been so powerful a man with the army, that David during his lifetime durst not call him to account; but, when Solomon began to reign, the continuance of profound peace had impaired his power, by rendering his services useless. Solomon therefore had no reason to dread his influence, and was enabled to bring him to that punishment which justice demanded. Calmet.

— did to me,] Joab had always conducted himself with great insolence to David, especially under his heaviest affliction; 2 Sam. xix. 7, and lately had set up Adonijah to reign, while he was yet alive. Bp. Patrick. Also he had stabbed Absalom, contrary to David's immediate orders. Dr. Chandler.

— put the blood of war upon his girdle] The plain meaning is, that he stained his clothes and armour with the blood of Abner and Amasa, his own countrymen and fellow-soldiers. Pyle.

7. — shew kindness unto the sons of Barzillai] David's gratitude to Barzillai is very remarkable, which extended itself to his sons as well as to himself. Bp. Patrick.

Before CHRIST 1015. 8 And, behold, thou hast with thee [†] Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, which cursed me with a [†] grievous curse in the day when I went to Mahanaim: but he came down to meet me at Jordan, and I sware to him by the LORD, saying, [‡] I will not put thee to death with the sword.

[‡] Heb. strong.

[‡] 2 Sam. 19. 23.

9 Now therefore hold him not guiltless: for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but his hoar head bring thou down to the grave with blood.

10 So ^h David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David.

Before CHRIST 1015. ^h Acts 2. 29. & 13. 36.

9. Now therefore hold him not guiltless:] It has been asserted, that the advice here given to Solomon respecting Shimei was a breach of the oath which he formerly took respecting him. This however was by no means the case. When Abishai asked for permission to put Shimei to death, 2 Sam. xix. 23, "the king said unto Shimei, Thou shalt not die; and the king sware unto him:" meaning, that he should not die on that day, as appears from the context: and when David here says, ver. 8, "I sware to him by the Lord, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword," he means, by the sword of Abishai, who wanted immediately to kill him. The oath therefore, in strictness, was nothing more than a respite from death that day, and did not preclude his future punishment, if he should deserve it by a fresh offence, as he probably did in Adonijah's rebellion; for it was not till after the execution of Adonijah and Joab, that Solomon sent for Shimei, and ordered him to reside in Jerusalem, and not to quit the city, under pain of death on the day that he should pass over the brook Kidron, ver. 37. A condition which Shimei thankfully accepted: "The saying is good: as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do," ver. 38. And this measure was evidently dictated by David's advice; on the meaning of which, therefore, it forms the best comment: "And, behold, thou hast with thee Shimei &c.—now therefore hold him not guiltless;" but guard him as a disaffected and dangerous Benjamite, and keep him with thee still, or confine him to Jerusalem, lest he kindle rebellion among the tribes, by stirring up their minds, like Sheba: "for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him," as well as to Joab, in order to prevent his cabals; and if he offend again, "bring down his hoar head to the grave with blood," for your own security, and the peace of your kingdom; for his crimes deserve death.

Shimei afterwards transgressed the convention, and went to Gath, a suspicious quarter, ver. 40; upon which Solomon, after taxing him with the breach of his oath, put him to death. "So the kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon," ver. 46, after the death or banishment of those foes, who were most dangerous, from their rank, wisdom, and consequence. Dr. Hales.

10. So David slept with his fathers,] David appears to have survived the coronation of Solomon half a year; for though he reigned seven years and six months over Judah, and thirty-three years over all Israel, yet his reign is reckoned only forty years, 2 Sam. v. 4, 5; 1 Chron. xxix. 27. This interval he seems to have employed in the publick acts and regulations contained in the five last chapters of the first book of Chronicles. Dr. Hales.

—was buried in the city of David.] Was buried in that part of the city of Jerusalem which he himself had taken from the Jebusites, and called after his own name. The sepulchre of David was always held in great veneration by the Jews. It remained in St. Peter's time, for so he tells the people, Acts ii. 29. St. Jerome relates, that he himself used frequently to go and pray at it. It is however somewhat unaccountable that the place of this prince's sepulchre, which both the Chaldeans and the Romans, when they took Jerusalem, thought proper to spare, should now be so entirely lost, that modern travellers cannot find the least remains of it. Stackhouse, Calmet.

David, as Josephus says, was a most excellent person, and possessed every virtue that became a king, and one who had the welfare of so many nations committed to him. He was eminently distinguished for his valour; in all his wars on behalf of his subjects, he himself rushed into dangers; and, by undergoing all the difficulties of warfare, encouraged his soldiers to noble actions, rather than commanded them as a sovereign. He had an excellent faculty of considering and discerning how to provide for future events, and of managing those that were actually present. He was sober, mild, kind to those in distress, just, and humane. As king of Israel he administered justice and judgment to all his people, was a prince of courage, and great military prudence and conduct. Though his crimes were heinous and highly aggravated, in the affairs of Uriah and Bath-sheba, he patiently endured reproof, humbly submitted to the punishment appointed him, atoned for his sins, as far as he could, by a sincere repentance, and obtained mercy and forgiveness from God, though not without some severe marks of His displeasure, for the grievous offences of which he had been guilty: he professed the greatest regard for every appearance of virtue and holiness, and gave the most indisputable and shining proofs of an undissembled reverence for, and sincere piety to, God; ever obeying the direction of His Prophets, worshipping Him alone throughout the whole of his life, and making the wisest settlement to perpetuate the worship of the same God, throughout all succeeding generations. Such was "the man after God's own heart;" whom God Himself called to be king over Israel; who faithfully answered the purposes for which God raised him; in whose family He established the throne; with whom He made an everlasting covenant, and who was the great progenitor of the Messiah Himself, who now reigns over all, and "must reign, till He hath put all enemies under His feet." Dr. Chandler.

David had, as his inimitable writings abundantly testify, a most ardent spirit of devotion, and a boundless zeal for the honour of God, and the interests of His religion; and the general tenour of his conduct, when left to its own natural course, very clearly evinces, that he was upon the whole a conscientious observer, and a strenuous asserter of the Divine laws; a most disinterested and active patriot; the tenderest of parents, and the most affectionate of friends. At the same time, however, that we do justice to the virtues of king David, we must acknowledge and lament his faults, which were undoubtedly great; and in one flagrant instance, more especially, justly subject him to the severest reproof. But while we censure him on this account, as he deserves, it will be our wisdom to look well also to ourselves. To the infidel it is matter of unspeakable triumph, that "the man after God's own heart" should have been betrayed into such dreadful crimes; but to the Christian it must be a subject of most serious concern and alarm, to observe so striking a proof of the frailty and weakness of human nature, even when strengthened by mature years, and confirmed by early habits of virtue and religion. But above all things let us beware of perverting the example of David to our own ruin, and of considering his deviations from duty, not, as they truly are, a warning to us against danger, but as an encouragement to us to tread in the same unhallowed paths of vice. Let us not flatter ourselves, that because he, so devout, so religious, so distinguished by the favour of Heaven, was once most fatally seduced into sin, we may therefore commit the same, or similar crimes, with impunity. On the contrary, if these crimes appear so odious and detestable, even in a Jewish monarch, who had to plead in his excuse (though all excuse was vain) the temptations of a court, the manners of the times, the peculiarity of his own circumstances, and the liberties too often taken by men in his situation; they must assume a much more frightful aspect in a private Christian, who has none of those mitigating pleas to offer, who lives in much more enlightened and civilized times, has much stricter rules of moral conduct presented to him in the Gospel, is called to a much higher degree of purity and holiness, has far more powerful aid from 1015.

Before
CHRIST

2 Sam.
5. 4.
1 Chron.
29. 26, 27.
2 Chron.
29. 2.

1011.

11 And the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 ¶ Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.

13 ¶ And Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon. And she said, Comest thou peaceably? And he said, Peaceably.

14 He said moreover, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And she said, Say on.

15 And he said, Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that I should reign: howbeit the kingdom is turned about, and is become my brother's: for it was his from the Lord.

† Heb.
turn not as way my face.

16 And now I ask one petition of thee, † deny me not. And she said unto him, Say on.

17 And he said, Speak, I pray thee, unto Solomon the king, (for he will not say thee nay,) that he give me Abishag the Shunammite to wife.

18 And Bath-sheba said, Well; I will speak for thee unto the king.

19 ¶ Bath-sheba therefore went unto king Solomon, to speak unto him for Adonijah. And the king rose up to meet her, and bowed himself unto her, and sat down on his throne, and caused a seat to be set for the king's mother; and she sat on his right hand. Before CHRIST

1014.

20 Then she said, I desire one small petition of thee; I pray thee, say me not nay. And the king said unto her, Ask on, my mother: for I will not say thee nay.

21 And she said, Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah thy brother to wife.

22 And king Solomon answered and said unto his mother, And why dost thou ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? ask for him the kingdom also; for he is mine elder brother; even for him, and for Abiathar the priest, and for Joab the son of Zeruiah.

23 Then king Solomon sware by the Lord, saying, God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not spoken this word against his own life.

24 Now therefore, as the Lord liveth, which hath established me, and set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath made me an house, as he promised, Adonijah shall be put to death this day. 2 Sam. 7.
12, 13.

25 And king Solomon sent by the hand of Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and he fell upon him that he died. 1014.

26 ¶ And unto Abiathar the priest said the king, Get thee to Anathoth, unto thine own fields; for thou art † worthy of death: but I will not at this time put thee to death, because thou barest the ark of the Lord † Heb.
a man of death.

Heaven to support him in his duty, more terrible punishments to work upon his fears, and more glorious rewards to animate his hopes. Bp. Porteus.

12. Then sat Solomon &c.] The age of Solomon at his accession to the crown is not noticed in Scripture; but, that he was then twenty years of age, neither more nor less, may be collected from several incidental circumstances. Dr. Hales.

13. — Comest thou peaceably? She had some reason to distrust him, because she had been the means of his losing the kingdom. Bp. Patrick.

15. — the kingdom was mine.] He means, that the kingdom was his by right of primogeniture; and he pretends that the kingdom was also his by the inclination of the generality of the people towards him, as successor to David. Bp. Patrick.

18. — I will speak for thee unto the king.] It would seem that both Adonijah and Bath-sheba thought that, because David's marriage with Abishag was not consummated, therefore she was not to be looked upon as his wife; for they could not be ignorant that it was unlawful for any one to marry his father's wife. It appears also that Bath-sheba did not perceive the drift of Adonijah's request. Dr. Wells. See the note on ver. 22.

19. — for the king's mother;] The title of "king's mother" seems to have been a title of dignity in itself, like the title of queen dowager. Fragments to Calnet.

— she sat on his right hand.] The highest mark of dignity which the Eastern monarchs conferred on the person, whom they esteemed and favoured most, was placing him, on occasions of solemnity, at their right hand; the second in honour was next to the royal person, on the other side; and the rest of the court succeeded in the same order. Thus king Solomon caused a seat to be set for his mother, "and she sat on his right hand." And when the sons of Zebedee had by mistake imagined the kingdom of our Saviour to be like one of this world, their petition was, "that they might sit, the one on His right hand, and the other on the left in His kingdom," Matt. xx. 21. Abp. Secker.

22. — ask for him the kingdom also;] Solomon gently reprehends her ignorance; but his answer means, Do you call this a small petition? You might as well ask the kingdom for him. For the laws and constitution of the government made it illegal for any one, besides the king and his successors, to take to himself any of the royal widows, concubines, servants, or any thing else appropriated to the prince. Solomon therefore considered this as a new scheme on which Adonijah had been put by Joab, in order to carry on again his designs against himself and his government. Pyle.

26. — to Anathoth,] This was one of the cities of the priests, (Josh. xxi. 18.) distant, as Eusebius and St. Jerome say, only three miles from Jerusalem to the north. Dr. Wells.

— I will not at this time put thee to death,] Solomon seems only to reprove him for the present, that he might keep him on his good behaviour: and he is induced thus to spare him, because he had been faithful to David in the rebellion of Absalom, when he brought out the ark from Jerusalem to accompany him, (2 Sam. xv. 24.) and because he underwent all the hardships that David endured, during the whole time of his exile under Saul, (1 Sam. xxii. 20.) Bp. Patrick. Or perhaps this was a younger Abiathar than he who fled to David under Saul's persecution, and then the affliction here alluded to refers to the rebellion of Absalom. Dr. Wall.

He was "worthy of death" for being concerned in the rebellion

Before CHRIST 1014. Gop before David my father, and because thou hast been afflicted in all wherein my father was afflicted.

^a 1 Sam. 2. 31, 35. 27 So Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being priest unto the LORD; that he might fulfil the word of the LORD, which he spake concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh.

28 ¶ Then tidings came to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD, and caught hold on the horns of the altar.

29 And it was told king Solomon that Joab was fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD; and, behold, he is by the altar. Then Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, Go, fall upon him.

30 And Benaiah came to the tabernacle of the LORD, and said unto him, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay; but I will die here. And Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.

31 And the king said unto him, Do as he hath said, and fall upon him, and bury him; that thou mayest take away the innocent blood, which Joab shed, from me, and from the house of my father.

32 And the LORD shall return his blood upon his own head, who fell upon two men more righteous and better than he, and slew them with the sword, my father David not knowing thereof, to wit, ^a Abner the son of Ner, captain of the host of Israel, and

^a 2 Sam. 20. 10. Amasa the son of Jether, captain of the host of Judah.

33 Their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab, and upon the head of his seed for ever: but upon David, and upon his seed, and upon his house, and upon his throne, shall there be peace for ever from the LORD.

with Adonijah, (chap. i.) and it was an instance of merciful kindness in Solomon to change his punishment into banishment; and this shews the respect he had for the priest of God. Bp. Wilson.

28. — caught hold on the horns of the altar. It is declared at Exod. xxi. 14, that, if a man committed a presumptuous murder, he should be taken even from the altar and put to death. It is therefore a question how Joab could think to find shelter there, being a wilful murderer. The Jews conjecture, that he hoped thereby to save his estate, which would have been otherwise forfeited; others, that he hoped to obtain burial by this means. Bp. Patrick. Perhaps he hoped to obtain a pardon, as Abiathar had done, by consecrating himself to God and His service, which he did by this solemn ceremony. Dr. Lightfoot.

Joab now takes sanctuary in the tabernacle of God, and places all his hopes of defence in the horns of the altar. If he had formerly sought for counsel from the tabernacle, he would not now have needed to fly to it for refuge. If his devotions had not been wanting to that altar, he would not have needed it for a shelter.

34 So Benaiah the son of Jehoiada went up, and fell upon him, and slew him: and he was buried in his own house in the wilderness.

35 ¶ And the king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in his room over the host: and Zadok the priest did the king put in the room of Abiathar.

36 ¶ And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, Build thee an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and go not forth thence any whither.

37 For it shall be, that on the day thou goest out, and passest over the brook Kidron, thou shalt know for certain that thou shalt surely die: thy blood shall be upon thine own head.

38 And Shimei said unto the king, The saying is good: as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days.

39 And it came to pass at the end of three years, that two of the servants of Shimei ran away unto Achish son of Maachah king of Gath. And they told Shimei, saying, Behold, thy servants be in Gath.

40 And Shimei arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to seek his servants: and Shimei went, and brought his servants from Gath.

41 And it was told Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again.

42 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, Did I not make thee to swear by the LORD, and protested unto thee, saying, Know for a certain, on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, that thou shalt surely die? and thou saidst unto me, The word that I have heard is good.

It is the fashion of our foolish presumption to look for protection where we have not cared to yield obedience. Bp. Hall.

31. — Do as he hath said, Kill him at the very altar where he resolves to die; after which he would not deny him burial suitable to his quality. Bp. Patrick.

34. So Benaiah — slew him: The honest simplicity of those times knew not of any infamy in the execution of justice. Benaiah, who was the great marshal under Solomon, thinks not his hands defiled by that fatal stroke. In this one act Solomon has approved himself both a good magistrate and a good son, fulfilling at once the will of a father, and the charge of God; concluding, upon this just execution, that “upon David, and upon his seed, there shall be peace for ever from the Lord,” and inferring, that without this there could have been no peace. Bp. Hall.

— in his own house in the wilderness. He was probably buried in some ground belonging to his own house: they called by the name of “the wilderness” those parts of the country which were thinly inhabited. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1011.

43 Why then hast thou not kept the oath of the LORD, and the commandment that I have charged thee with?

44 The king said moreover to Shimei, Thou knowest all the wickedness which thine heart is privy to, that thou didst to David my father: therefore the LORD shall return thy wickedness upon thine own head;

45 And king Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the LORD for ever.

46 So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; which went out, and fell upon him, that he died. And the ^p kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

² 2 Chron.
1. 1.

CHAP. III.

1 Solomon married Pharaoh's daughter. 2 High places being in use, Solomon sacrificeth at Gibeon. 3 Solomon at Gibeon, in the choice which God gave him, preferring wisdom, obtaineth wisdom, riches, and honour. 16 Solomon's judgment between the two harlots maketh him renowned.

1014.
^a Chap. 7. 8.

AND ^a Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt, and took Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David, until he had made an end of building his own house, and the house of

43. Why then hast thou not kept the oath] If this act of Shimei's was small, yet the circumstances were deadly: the commands of sovereign authority make the slightest duties weighty. If his journey was harmless, yet his disobedience was far otherwise. It is not for subjects to poise the prince's charge in the scale of their weak constructions. But besides the command, here was a mutual adjuration. Shimei swore that he would not go: Solomon swore his death if he went. If Shimei was false in offending, Solomon will be just in punishing. Now therefore the tongue that cursed the Lord's anointed receives its requital. Vengeance against rebels may sleep, but it cannot die; a sure, if late, judgment attends those who dare lift up the hand or tongue against the sacred persons of God's viceregents. How much less will the God of heaven suffer, unrevenged, the insolencies and blasphemies against His own sacred majesty! Bp. Hall.

Chap. III. ver. 1. — made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt,] Solomon, having secured his kingdom at home by cutting off the heads of the opposing faction, now bethought himself to strengthen his interest abroad by foreign alliances. It may seem somewhat strange, that, from the time of Moses till this of Solomon, no mention is made, in all the history of the Jews, of the kings of Egypt, for which we must account, by concluding that their actions were unconnected with the history of the chosen people. All these kings bore the name of Pharaoh, which was rather a title of dignity, than a proper name, for they had each a proper name besides. Stackhouse. See note on Gen. xii. 15.

— until he had made an end &c.] He first built "the house of the Lord," and then the house for his wife to dwell in; see 1 Kings ix. 24; 2 Chron. viii. 11. Bp. Patrick.

2. Only the people sacrificed &c.] The only blemish in Solomon's government for a long time was, that he indulged the people in their ancient, though now forbidden, custom of sacrificing upon such hills or high places as were near at hand, to which they were the rather inclined, from the unsettled condition the LORD, and the wall of Jerusalem round about. Before

CHRIST
1011.

2 Only the people sacrificed in high places, because there was no house built unto the name of the LORD, until those days.

3 And Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the statutes of David his father: only he sacrificed and burnt incense in high places.

4 And the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there; for that was the great high place: a thousand burnt offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

5 ¶ In Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee.

6 And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David my father great || mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. || Or, bounty.

7 And now, O LORD my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in.

of the tabernacle, and the continued want of a fixed temple. In this Solomon was the more blamable, because David had, during his reign, restrained the people from such practices. Pyle.

4. — went to Gibeon; — for that was the great high place;] Gibeon was the proper place of worship, and is called "the great high place," because there the original tabernacle and altar, that were made in the wilderness, were kept. Solomon shewed a proper sense of religion in deeming it his first duty there to address himself to God in prayer and sacrifice, in acknowledgment of His kindness in placing him on his father's throne. It has been considered a difficulty how such a number of beasts could be consumed upon the altar here spoken of, which is the brazen altar, within the period of such a festival. This has been solved by supposing that all the sacrifices were devoted at Gibeon, but that a considerable part of them were completed afterwards at Jerusalem. It has also been suggested, that, although a thousand burnt offerings are mentioned, yet it is only necessary to understand by the term, some great and unusual number, as it is a customary mode of expression in Scripture to denote any extraordinary number of things by some determinate sum, which often greatly exceeds the real number. Stackhouse, Pyle.

6. — Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David — great mercy,] Solomon here affords an admirable example to those who make petitions to God, that they should in the first place thank Him for the great benefits they have received. Bp. Patrick.

7. — I am but a little child: &c.] Some persons have concluded from these words that Solomon was not more than twelve years of age when he mounted the throne; but this is wrongly inferred. Solomon calls himself a child, only in respect to his skill in the management of publick affairs, as is signified in the last words, "I know not how to go out &c." that is, how to govern so great a people, for want of experience. Thus Benjamin is called a child, Gen. xlv. 20; although he was then above thirty years old. Bp. Patrick. See also Jer. i. 6, and the note there.

— to go out or come in.] This is a Hebraism frequent in

Before
CHRIST
1014.

8 And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou hast chosen, a great people, that cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude.

2 Chron.
1. 10.
† Heb.
hearing.

9 Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

10 And the speech pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing.

† Heb.
many days.

11 And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern judgment;

† Heb.
to hear.

12 Behold, I have done according to thy words: lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee.

6 Matth. 6.
53.
Wisd. 7. 11.
|| Or, hath not been.

13 And I have also given thee that which thou hast not asked, both riches, and honour: so that there shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.

4 Chap. 15.
5.

14 And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as thy father David did walk, then I will lengthen thy days.

15 And Solomon awoke; and, behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt offerings, and offered peace offerings, and made a feast to all his servants.

Before
CHRIST
1014.

16 ¶ Then came there two women, that were harlots, unto the king, and stood before him.

17 And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

18 And it came to pass the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

19 And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.

20 And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

21 And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear.

22 And the other woman said, Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son. And this said, No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

23 Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the sacred writings, and seems here to refer to the condition of a young child, yet unable to walk firmly, and ignorant of every thing; such as Solomon professes himself to be, as ruler of so great a people. Houbigant.

9. — an understanding heart to judge thy people,] Hereupon some Jewish annotators have observed, that, though Solomon in his great modesty might request of God no more than the gift of government, yet God out of His abundant grace gave him a general knowledge of all other things. Still, though his knowledge was thus infused by immediate inspiration from God, yet we cannot suppose that he neglected the ordinary means of knowledge, study and observation. We are told indeed at Eccles. i. 13, that "he gave his heart to seek and search out all things under heaven," so that he endeavoured by application and experience to perfect what he had so advantageously received at the hands of God. Bp. Patrick, Calmet. If Solomon had not been wise before, he would not have known the worth of wisdom. He was a great king, and saw that he had power enough; but withal he found that royalty without wisdom was but eminent dishonour. Because Solomon made so prudent a choice, God will give him both that which he asked, and that which he asked not; riches and honour will be given him in addition. God so loves a good choice, that He recompenses it with overgiving. Had Solomon made wealth his boon, he would have failed both of honour and wisdom. Now he asks the best, and all speeds well. They are in a fair way of happiness who can pray aright. Bp. Hall.

The story of Solomon's choice not only instructs us in that point of history, but furnishes out a very fine moral to us, namely, that he, who applies his heart to wisdom, does at the same time take the most proper method of gaining long life, riches, and reputation, which are very often not only the rewards, but the effects of wisdom. Addison. After the example of Solomon, we should all learn to labour after, and beg of God, in the first place, true wisdom, which consists in fearing Him, and the gifts and graces of the Spirit necessary to that end. Ostervald.

15. — and, behold, it was a dream.] He found the impressions he had felt in his sleep to be so clear and strong, as to convince him it was a Divine vision, and not a mere ordinary dream; accordingly he renewed his thankfulness to God, in feasting and sacrifices, on his return to Jerusalem. Pyle.

It was no discomfort to Solomon that he awaked and found it a dream: for he knew this dream was divine and oracular; and he already found, on his first waking, the real performance of what was promised to him sleeping; such inward illumination did he sensibly find in his soul. No wonder that, on returning from the tabernacle to the ark, he testified his joy and thankfulness by burnt offerings and publick feastings. Bp. Hall.

16. — that were harlots,] See the notes respecting Rahab, Josh. ii. 1. They probably kept houses of publick entertainment; the Jews suppose they were not Israelites, but strangers. Bp. Patrick.

23. Then said the king, The one saith, &c.] What is there now to lead the judge, since there is nothing, either in the act, or circumstances, or evidence, which can sway the sentence? Solomon well saw that, when all outward proofs failed, there was an inward affection, which, if it could be brought out, would certainly

Before
CHRIST
1014.

the dead : and the other saith, Nay ; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

24 And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

25 And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other.

† Heb.
were hol.

26 Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for her bowels † yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

27 Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it : she is the mother thereof.

† Heb.
in the multitude of him.

28 And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged ; and they feared the king : for they saw that the wisdom of God was † in him, to do judgment.

CHAP. IV.

1 Solomon's princes. 7 His twelve officers for provision. 20, 24 The peace and largeness of his kingdom. 22 His daily provision. 26 His stables. 29 His wisdom.

SO king Solomon was king over all Israel.

betray the real mother. He knew that sorrow could be more easily dissembled than natural love. Both sorrowed for their own ; both could not love one, as their own. To draw forth, therefore, this true proof of motherhood, Solomon calls for a sword. Doubtless, some of the wiser hearers smiled upon each other, and thought in themselves, what will the young king smite at hazard, without conviction ? The actions of wise kings are riddles to vulgar constructions. Neither is it for the shallow capacities of the multitude to fathom the deep projects of sovereign authority. That sword, which had served for execution, will now serve for trial. " Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other." O divine oracle of justice, commanding that which it would not have done, that it might find out that which could not be discovered ! Bp. Hall.

26. Then spake the woman &c. On Solomon's ordering the child to be divided in two, the real mother begs that the child may be saved, even though it be given to her adversary ; but the pretended mother is clearly for dividing it : this gave Solomon a full conviction that she who expressed tenderness and compassion for the child, was its true mother, and accordingly he ordered it to be given to her. Stackhouse. This sword has already pierced the breast of the true mother, and divided her heart with fear and grief at so killing a sentence. There needs no other rack to discover nature ; and now, while she thinks on the cruelty of such a sentence, she sues to that suspected mercy of her just judge, " O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it ;" as thinking, " If he live, he will but change his mother ; if he die, his mother loses a son : while he lives, it shall be my comfort that I have a son, though I may not call him so : if he were to die, he would perish to both of us : it is better he should live to a wrong mother than to neither." On the contrary, her envious competitor, as holding herself well satisfied that her neighbour should be

2 And these were the princes which he had ; Azariah the son of Zadok the ‖ priest,

Before
CHRIST
1014.

3 Elihoreph and Ahiah, the sons of Shisha, ‖ scribes ; Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud, the ‖ recorder.

‖ Or, the chief officer.
‖ Or, secretaries.
‖ Or, remembrancer.

4 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the host : and Zadok and Abiathar were the priests :

5 And Azariah the son of Nathan was over the officers : and Zabud the son of Nathan was principal officer, and the king's friend :

6 And Abishar was over the household : and ^a Adoniram the son of Abda was over the ‖ tribute.

^a Chap. 5.
14.
‖ Or, levy.

7 ¶ And Solomon had twelve officers over all Israel, which provided victuals for the king and his household : each man his month in a year made provision.

8 And these are their names : ‖ The son of Hur, in mount Ephraim :

‖ Or,
Ben-hur.

9 ‖ The son of Dekar, in Makaz, and in Shaalbim, and Beth-shemesh, and Eloneb-beth-hanan :

‖ Or,
Ben-dekar.

10 ‖ The son of Hesed, in Aruboth ; to him pertained Sochoh, and all the land of Hephher :

‖ Or,
Ben-hesed.

11 ‖ The son of Abinadab, in all the region of Dor ; which had Taphath the daughter of Solomon to wife :

‖ Or, Ben-abinadab.

12 Baana the son of Ahilud ; to him per- as childless as herself, can say, " Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it." Well might Solomon and every hearer conclude, that either she was no mother, or a monster, that could be content with the murder of her child ; and that, if she could have been the true mother, and yet have desired the blood of her infant, she would have deserved as much to have been stripped of her child for her unnatural disposition, as the other would have deserved to possess him for her honest compassion. Not more justly, therefore, than wisely, doth Solomon trace the true mother by the footsteps of love and pity, and adjudge the child to those bowels that had yearned at his danger. Bp. Hall.

Chap. IV. ver. 2. — Azariah the son of Zadok the priest,] He was the son of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, and therefore was grandson of Zadok, 1 Chron. vi. 8, 9, but such are frequently called sons in Scripture. It is not here distinctly said what office Azariah held ; but it seems probable that he, Elihoreph, and Ahiah were all three scribes or secretaries. Bp. Patrick.

4. — Zadok and Abiathar were the priests :] It is matter of doubt with commentators whether this is the same Abiathar whom Solomon ejected from the office of high priest, chap. ii. 35. If it is the same, he was probably suffered to retain the name and title of high priest, while Zadok enjoyed the office, and perhaps occasionally to minister ; or perhaps he is here mentioned, because, in the beginning of Solomon's reign, he did discharge the office of high priest. Bp. Patrick. Or it is meant that Zadok was the high priest, and Abiathar his deputy. Pyle.

11. — which had Taphath the daughter of Solomon] Solomon had no daughters marriageable when these officers were appointed : we must understand therefore, that this person in aftertimes had Solomon's daughter to wife, probably in reward of good behaviour in his office. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1014.

tained Taanach and Megiddo, and all Bethshean, which is by Zartanah beneath Jezreel, from Bethshean to Abel-meholah, even unto the place that is beyond Jokneam :

¶ Or,
Ben-gcher.

13 ¶ The son of Geber, in Ramoth-gilead ; to him pertained the towns of Jair the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead ; to him also pertained the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, threescore great cities with walls and brasen bars :

¶ Or,
to Mahanaim.

14 Ahinadab the son of Iddo had ¶ Mahanaim :

15 Ahimaaz was in Naphtali ; he also took Basmath the daughter of Solomon to wife :

16 Baanah the son of Hushai was in Asher and in Aloth :

17 Jehoshaphat the son of Paruah, in Issachar :

18 Shimei the son of Elah, in Benjamin :

19 Geber the son of Uri was in the country of Gilead, in the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og king of Bashan ; and he was the only officer which was in the land.

20 ¶ Judah and Israel were many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, eating and drinking, and making merry.

¶ Eccl¹³
47. 15.

21 And ^b Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the river unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt : they brought presents, and served Solomon all the days of his life. Before

CHRIST
1014.

22 ¶ And Solomon's † provision for one day was thirty † measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, † Heb.
brend.
† Heb.
corn.

23 Ten fat oxen, and twenty oxen out of the pastures, and an hundred sheep, beside harts, and roebucks, and fallow deer, and fatted fowl.

24 For he had dominion over all the *re-*gion on this side the river, from Tiphseh even to Azzah, over all the kings on this side the river : and he had peace on all sides round about him.

25 And Judah and Israel dwelt † safely, every man under his vine and under his fig tree, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, all the days of Solomon. † Heb. confidently.

26 ¶ And ^c Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen. c 2 Chron.
9. 25.

27 And those officers provided victual for king Solomon, and for all that came unto king Solomon's table, every man in his month : they lacked nothing.

28 Barley also and straw for the horses and ¶ dromedaries brought they unto the place where the officers were, every man according to his charge. ¶ Or, mules, or,
swift beasts.

19. — he was the only officer — in the land.] The only officer in that part of the land, though it was much greater than the other parts. Dr. Wells.

20. — eating and drinking, &c.] Living in perfect plenty and security, and being highly satisfied with their situation. Bp. Patrick.

21. — from the river unto the land of the Philistines.] The boundaries of Solomon's kingdom were, the Euphrates to the east, (that river being here, as in other places of Scripture, called the river by way of eminence, without any addition ;) the country of the Philistines, which bordered on the Mediterranean sea, to the west ; and Egypt, to the south : so that he had tributary to him the kingdoms of Syria, Damascus, Moab, and Ammon, which lay between the Euphrates and the Mediterranean sea. Stackhouse. See the note on Numb. xxxiv. 2.

22. — threescore measures of meal.] By meal is meant a coarser sort of flour for inferior servants : the measure here spoken of contained about ten ephahs, each ephah being about equal to a bushel of our measure. It is computed that here was bread enough provided for 3000 persons. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

24. — from Tiphseh even to Azzah.] It is very probably thought that Tiphseh is the same with Thapsacus, a considerable city lying on the Euphrates, and frequently mentioned by heathen writers : Azza is the same as Gaza, the Philistine city often mentioned, lying in the southwest corner of the land of Israel. Dr. Wells.

25. — under his vine and under his fig tree.] These expressions are used, to shew the great plenty of corn, and wine, and oil, as well as of cattle and other things. Vines and fig trees are particularly mentioned, because they were planted in Judea more than any other trees, for the sweetness of their fruit and the benefit of their shade. Bp. Patrick.

26. — forty thousand stalls of horses] In 2 Chron. ix. 25, the number is stated at four thousand : which is supposed to relate to the stalls or stables only, while the number here relates to the horses contained in them. However, it is thought by some that the Hebrew word here used will admit of being translated four, as well as forty. In excuse for Solomon's having so great a number of war horses, (contrary to the law in Deut. xvii. 16,) it is alleged, that he kept them, not out of pride or vanity, but merely as a necessary guard to his kingdom against the incursions of the Philistines. Perhaps, however, though this account is given in the beginning of his reign, it refers to what took place towards the latter parts of it ; so that it may have been as great a fault in him to multiply horses, as to multiply wives and concubines ; both being done at the same time of his life, and prohibited in the same law, Deut. xvii. 16, 17. Pyle.

One reason of the law, given at Deut. xvii. 16, not to multiply horses was, as is there expressed, of a religious nature, because the multiplying of horses could not be effected without sending into Egypt, with which the Lord had forbidden any communication, as being of all foreign commerce the most dangerous to true religion. When Solomon had violated this law, and multiplied horses to the excess here described, it was soon attended with those fatal consequences which the law had foretold. Bp. Warburton. See the note on chap. x. 28.

28. — straw for the horses] Probably not straw, with which to litter them ; for in these countries it is not now used for that purpose ; but to be chopt and eaten together with the barley. They litter at present with dung dried in the sun. Harmer.

— and dromedaries] There are doubts about the meaning of the Hebrew word translated "dromedaries." Some take them for mules, as our margin gives the translation. Bochart thinks it certain that this word imports a kind of horse. Bp. Patrick. The Hebrew word seems to mean in general "working cattle," cattle which earn their living by their labour. Parkhurst.

Before
CHRIST
1014.

⁴ Eccl. ¹⁷.
11. 15, 16.

29 ¶ And ^d God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the sea shore.

30 And Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and all the wisdom of Egypt.

31 For he was wiser than all men; than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol: and his fame was in all nations round about.

32 And he spake three thousand proverbs: and his songs were a thousand and five.

33 And he spake of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall: he spake also of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes.

34 And there came of all people to hear the wisdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, which had heard of his wisdom.

CHAP. V.

1 Hiram, sending to congratulate Solomon, is certified of 29. — largeness of heart, even as the sand &c.] Meaning, that the instances of his wisdom were as numerous as the sand on the seashore. Stackhouse. Otherwise, as one cannot count the number of the sands, so neither could one comprehend the depth and extent of his wisdom. Culmet. Yet all these riches and this wisdom became a snare and ruin to Solomon, as soon as he forgot God: so dangerous are riches and other favours when abused; and all men ought to receive them with fear. Bp. Wilson.

30. — all the children of the east country,] There were three nations east of Canaan, which were very famous for their wisdom and erudition; the Chaldeans beyond the Euphrates, the Persians beyond the Tigris, and the Arabians on the nearer side of the Euphrates, a little towards the south. Which of these nations was most celebrated for learning in Solomon's time is much doubted by commentators: the book of Job, however, sufficiently shews that the Arabians were famous for their learning in ancient times. Bp. Patrick. The original station allotted to man by his Creator was in the mild and fertile regions of the East. There the human race began its career of improvement; and from the remains of sciences, which were anciently cultivated, as well as of arts, which were anciently exercised in India, we may conclude it to be one of the first countries in which men made any considerable progress in that career. The wisdom of the East was early celebrated, and its productions were early in request among distant nations, Gen. xxxvii. 25. Dr. Robertson.

— and all the wisdom of Egypt.] It appears from Acts vii. 22, that Egypt was celebrated for wisdom in the time of Moses. This country has been called "the mother of the arts." There have been great disputes respecting the claims of the Egyptians and Chaldeans to the earliest advances in learning. Bp. Patrick, Stackhouse.

31. — he was wiser — than Ethan] He was wiser than all his contemporaries; than Ethan, author of the 89th Psalm, than Heman, author of the 88th, and their brothers, Chalcol and Darda, sons of Mahol, or "the choir." Dr. Hales.

32. — he spake three thousand proverbs:] Of these all that are remaining are preserved in the books of Proverbs and of Ecclesiastes. Stackhouse. He spake 3000 wise sentences, out of which are collected those which in the book of his proverbs are reservhis purpose to build the temple, and desired to furnish him with timber thereto. 7 Hiram, blessing God for Solomon, and requesting food for his family, furnisheth him with trees. 15 The number of Solomon's workmen and labourers. Before CHRIST 1014.

AND Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants unto Solomon; for he had heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father: for Hiram was ever a lover of David.

2 And ^a Solomon sent to Hiram, saying, ^a 2 Chron. 2. 3.

3 Thou knowest how that David my father could not build an house unto the name of the LORD his God for the wars which were about him on every side, until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet.

4 But now the LORD my God hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent.

5 And, behold, I [†] purpose to build an [†] Heb. say. house unto the name of the LORD my God, ^b as the LORD spake unto David my father, ^b 2 Sam. 7. 13. 1 Chron. 22. 10. saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name.

ed to the use of posterity, as the sacred monuments of his divine wisdom. Bp. Hall.

— his songs were a thousand and five.] In ancient times wise men were wont to convey their instructions in songs, to the end that they might be more easily remembered. None of these compositions of Solomon were thought to be divinely inspired, but the Song of Songs, which has therefore been joined to the sacred books. Bp. Patrick.

33. — from the cedar tree — unto the hyssop] That is, all sorts of plants, from the greatest to the smallest. Instead of the hyssop, some think the herb mint to be understood; which suits better to be opposed to the cedar, as the hyssop is a plant with a stalk, and sometimes of great strength. Bp. Patrick. It seems clear that the hyssop cannot be meant, for this plant does not spring out of the wall, as is here described. Script. illust.

We see here that God raised Solomon to a very great pitch of glory, granting him riches and power, which distinguished him from the greatest princes, and withal such wisdom, and prudence, and knowledge, which made him very superiour to the wisest men that were then in the world. Thus God fulfilled the promises He made to David, to give him a son whose kingdom should be very glorious: and thus He rewarded the piety of Solomon, and the zeal he then shewed for His service. However, it must be remembered, that this great wisdom, and the riches and the graces Solomon had received, were profitable to him only whilst he used them as he ought; but as soon as he abused them, they became a snare and ruin to him. This shews how dangerous the possession of riches is, and how much we ought to fear abusing God's gifts and graces. Ostervald.

Chap. V. ver. 1. — Hiram king of Tyre] This Hiram was probably the son of the other Hiram, who sent to David timber and artificers to build his palace, 2 Sam. v. 11: for, according to Josephus, the temple was built in the fourth year of Solomon's reign, and the time when David took Jerusalem, and built his palace, was thirty-three years before the beginning of Solomon's reign. Stackhouse.

3. — could not build an house — for the wars] This was one reason, but not the chief; for God commanded him to desist when he had it in design, 2 Sam. vii. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1014.

6 Now therefore command thou that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants: and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants according to all that thou shalt appoint: for thou knowest that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians.

7 ¶ And it came to pass, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly, and said, Blessed be the LORD this day, which hath given unto David a wise son over this great people.

† Heb.
heard.

8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have † considered the things which thou sentest to me for: and I will do all thy desire concerning timber of cedar, and concerning timber of fir.

† Heb.
send.

9 My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea: and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place that thou shalt appoint me, and will cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt accomplish my desire, in giving food for my household.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar trees and fir trees according to all his desire.

11 And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand † measures of wheat for food to his household, and twenty measures of pure oil: thus gave Solomon to Hiram year by year.

Before
CHRIST
1014.

† Heb.
cors.

12 And the LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as he promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and they two made a league together.

Chap. 3.
12.

13 ¶ And king Solomon raised a † levy out of all Israel; and the levy was thirty thousand men.

† Heb. tribute of men.

14 And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand a month by courses: a month they were in Lebanon, and two months at home: and Adoniram was over the levy.

Chap. 4. 6.

15 And Solomon had threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains;

16 Beside the chief of Solomon's officers which were over the work, three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people that wrought in the work.

17 And the king commanded, and they brought great stones, costly stones, and hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house.

18 And Solomon's builders and Hiram's builders did hew them, and the † stone-squarers: so they prepared timber and stones to build the house.

Or,
Giblites: as Ezek. 27. 9.

6. — that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon;] The whole, or a great part, of Lebanon, was within the dominions of Solomon; so that he does not ask the trees of Hiram, but only the assistance of his servants in hewing and preparing them for use, which they better understood than his own servants. In the time of Moses there had been excellent workmen among the Hebrews; but, as Scripture acquaints us, these derived their skill immediately from God, and it does not appear that they had any successors. After the Hebrews were settled in Canaan, they seem to have applied themselves not at all to the arts, but entirely to agriculture and pasturage; so that, in Solomon's time, there were no professed artists who could undertake the work of the temple. The people of Tyre and Sidon were always famous for their skill. Homer calls them "excellent artists in several kinds of work." Bp. Patrick. The quantity of the cedar wood of Lebanon in Solomon's temple was so great, that the temple itself is called Lebanon at Zech. xi. 1; "Open thy doors, O Lebanon." Calmet. This noble tree, the cedar of Lebanon, has a general character of growth so peculiar to itself, that no other tree can be mistaken for it. The leaves much resemble those of a larch, but are somewhat longer and closer set, and perpetually green. Its sturdy arms grow in time so weighty, that they often bend the very stem and main shaft. Many wonderful properties are ascribed to the wood of this celebrated tree, such as resisting putrefaction, destroying noxious insects, remaining sound a thousand or two years, yielding an oil famous for preserving books and writings, &c. The wood is extremely hard, which caused the ancients to believe it incapable of decay.

Very few cedars now remain on mount Lebanon. Rauwolf, in 1575, saw there only twenty-four sound trees, and two old decayed ones. Maundrell, in 1696, could reckon only sixteen large ones, but many small. He measured one of the largest, which he found to be twelve yards six inches in girth, yet sound. The few cedars still remaining on Lebanon are preserved with a religious strictness. On the day of the Transfiguration, the Patriarch of that country repairs in procession to these trees, and celebrates a festival called the feast of cedars. Miller's Dictionary.

9. — I will convey them by sea in floats] They conveyed the pieces of timber from the high parts of the mountains to the river Adonis, or to the plain of Biblos; thence they conveyed them to the seaport, where they were placed on rafts to be carried by sea to the port of Joppa, which was the nearest port to Jerusalem. Calmet. By "floats" is probably meant, that the pieces of timber were bound together, and so drawn through the rivers and the sea. Bp. Patrick.

11. — twenty thousand measures of wheat &c.] It is stated at 2 Chron. ii. 10, that Solomon was to give "20,000 measures of beaten wheat, and 20,000 measures of barley, and 20,000 baths of wine, and 20,000 baths of oil." It is possible that some of the numbers may have been mistaken by transcribers: the quantity seems very great to be exported at one time; and we may, at all events, understand by the expression, "Solomon gave year by year," that he stipulated to send the whole sum, but sent it by portions, "year by year," during each of the seven years when the temple was building. Pyle. Or perhaps at 2 Chron. ii. is mentioned the provision made by Solomon for the workmen, which is distinct from the remuneration paid to Hiram for the grant of their services. Script. illust.

15. — fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains;] That is, hewers of stone; for Hiram's servants hewed the timber. These were not Israelites, but strangers from other nations, as may be collected from ch. ix. 21, 22. It may seem strange to some, that so vast a number of men should be employed about the building of a place, comparatively speaking, so small as the temple. It should be remembered, however, that there were many other works which Solomon designed and finished, (ch. ix. 15,) for which we read of no other preparations than those now made. In the next verse, there are said to be 3300 overseers, but at 2 Chron. ii. 18, the number is stated at 3600. The additional 300 were probably superiour officers, who were to oversee the rest. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1012.

CHAP. VI.

1 The building of Solomon's temple. 5 The chambers thereof. 11 God's promise unto it. 15 The cieling and adorning of it. 23 The cherubims. 31 The doors. 36 The court. 37 The time of building it.

* 2 Chron.
3. 1.
1012.

AND ^a it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over Israel, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that he [†] began to build the house of the LORD.

† Heb.
bunt.

2 And the house which king Solomon built for the LORD, the length thereof was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits.

3 And the porch before the temple of the house, twenty cubits was the length thereof, according to the breadth of the house; and ten cubits was the breadth thereof before the house.

Or, windows broad within, and narrow without:

or, skewed and closed.
Or,
upward, or,
joining to.
† Heb.
flours.
† Heb.
ribs.

4 And for the house he made || windows of narrow lights.

5 ¶ And || against the wall of the house he built [†] chambers round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple and of the oracle: and he made [†] chambers round about:

6 The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad, and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made [†] narrowed rests round about, that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

† Heb.
narrowing, or, rebate-
ments.

7 And the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither; so that there was neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in building. Before

CHRIST
1012.

8 The door for the middle chamber was in the right [†] side of the house: and they went up with winding stairs into the middle chamber, and out of the middle into the third. † Heb.
shoulder.

9 So he built the house, and finished it; and covered the house || with beams and boards of cedar. 1005.
Or,
the vault-beams and the cieling with cedar.

10 And then he built chambers against all the house, five cubits high: and they rested on the house with timber of cedar.

11 ¶ And the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying,

12 Concerning this house which thou art in building, if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments to walk in them; then will I perform my word with thee, which I spake unto David thy father:

b 2 Sam. 7.
13.
1 Chron. 22.
10.

13 And I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel.

14 So Solomon built the house, and finished it.

15 And he built the walls of the house within with boards of cedar, || both the floor of the house, and the walls of the cieling: and he covered them on the inside with wood, and covered the floor of the house with planks of fir. Or,
from the floor of the house unto the walls,
&c.
and so ver.
16.

16 And he built twenty cubits on the sides of the house, both the floor and the walls with boards of cedar: he even built them for it within, even for the oracle, even for the most holy place.

17 And the house, that is, the temple before it, was forty cubits long.

Chap. VI. ver. 1. — in the fourth year of Solomon's reign] It has been asked, why Solomon did not begin the work immediately, at the commencement of his reign, according to the command of his father David? It is probable that he began his preparations immediately; and that the four first years were spent in procuring the timber and stones, and in the necessary previous labours which were mentioned in the last chapter.

2. — the house which king Solomon built] The house, or temple itself, properly so called, was but a small pile of building; its length and breadth being only twice as great as those of the tabernacle built by Moses; the former being sixty cubits long and twenty broad, whereas the latter was thirty cubits long and ten broad. Pyle.

5. — he made chambers round about:] In the Hebrew, he made "ribs," by which some understand galleries, encompassing the above-mentioned chambers, so as to afford a convenient passage to them. The chambers were made for the convenience of the priests, where they might refresh themselves, change their dress, eat of the sacrifices, &c. Bp. Patrick.

7. — so that there was neither hammer nor ax &c.] The sense is plain, that the stones were laid without any noise, there being nothing to be done but to join them together. Bp. Patrick. All the materials, whether of wood or stone, were so adapted and prepared beforehand, that they were put together with great quickness, little trouble, and very little or no noise of workmanship. Pyle.

12. Concerning this house &c.] While Solomon was laying the foundation, and raising the building very firm and strong, which would last for many generations, God conveys this intimation to him, that he should not presume upon its duration, unless he and the people of Israel continued in obedience; and therefore that he had better not proceed in his work, nor incur further charges respecting it, unless he firmly intended to lead a religious life, and observe all the Divine laws. Bp. Patrick.

15. — the walls of the house] He here speaks, ver. 15, 16, of the most holy place, which, of all parts of the temple, was properly called "the house," because here the Divine glory dwelt, and here answers were given from the oracle of God. It is called "the house within," ver. 19, probably on account of its being farthest from the entrance into the whole building.

17. — the house, that is, the temple before it,] He here speaks of the holy place, or that part of the house, which was before the most holy place; the former being forty cubits in length, and the latter twenty. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

|| Or,
guards.
† Heb. openings of flowers.

† Heb. shut up.

|| Or, oily.
† Heb.
trees of oil.

* Exod. 25.
20.
|| Or, the cherubims stretched forth their wings.

18 And the cedar of the house within was carved with || knops and † open flowers: all was cedar; there was no stone seen.

19 And the oracle he prepared in the house within, to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

20 And the oracle in the forepart was twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and twenty cubits in the height thereof: and he overlaid it with † pure gold; and so covered the altar which was of cedar.

21 So Solomon overlaid the house within with pure gold: and he made a partition by the chains of gold before the oracle; and he overlaid it with gold.

22 And the whole house he overlaid with gold, until he had finished all the house: also the whole altar that was by the oracle he overlaid with gold.

23 ¶ And within the oracle he made two cherubims of || † olive tree, each ten cubits high.

24 And five cubits was the one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the other wing of the cherub: from the uttermost part of the one wing unto the uttermost part of the other were ten cubits.

25 And the other cherub was ten cubits: both the cherubims were of one measure and one size.

26 The height of the one cherub was ten cubits, and so was it of the other cherub.

27 And he set the cherubims within the inner house: and ° || they stretched forth the wings of the cherubims, so that the wing of the one touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house.

19. And the oracle he prepared &c.] The inmost or holiest room (agreeably to that in the tabernacle) was the place where the ark (or oracle) was to stand, whence the whole room is called the oracle, ver. 20. This room was plated every where with beaten gold, ver. 20, as was also the altar (of incense) that stood before the ark. The holy place, and the most holy, ver. 21, 22, were parted by a large costly vail or curtain, hung upon golden chains; the partition itself, as far as the curtain, was overlaid with gold, as was also the whole of the sanctuary or holy place. Pyle.

23. — two cherubims of olive tree.] These were different from the cherubims constructed by Moses, which were of solid gold, rising out of each end of the mercy seat, and looking towards each other, Exod. xxv. 18, 19. But these were of a much larger size, and made of olive wood. Thus, in the most holy place of Solomon's temple, there were four cherubims; two lesser made by Moses of massy gold, and two larger made by Solomon, overlaid with gold. Those constructed by Moses formed part of the mercy seat, and were inseparable from it; these of Solomon seem to have spread their wings over it, being added only for the greater ornament and glory of God's house. It is generally agreed, that, by the cherubims which were so plentifully deli-

28 And he overlaid the cherubims with gold. Before CHRIST 1005.

29 And he carved all the walls of the house round about with carved figures of cherubims and palm trees and † open flowers, within and without. † Heb. openings of flowers.

30 And the floor of the house he overlaid with gold, within and without.

31 ¶ And for the entering of the oracle he made doors of olive tree: the lintel and side posts were || a fifth part of the wall. || Or, fivesquare.

32 The || two doors also were of olive tree; and he carved upon them carvings of cherubims and palm trees and † open flowers, and overlaid them with gold, and spread gold upon the cherubims, and upon the palm trees. || Or, leaves of the doors. † Heb. openings of flowers.

33 So also made he for the door of the temple posts of olive tree, || a fourth part of the wall. || Or, foursquare.

34 And the two doors were of fir tree: the two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding.

35 And he carved thereon cherubims and palm trees and open flowers: and covered them with gold fitted upon the carved work.

36 ¶ And he built the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar beams.

37 ¶ In the fourth year was the foundation of the house of the LORD laid, in the month Zif:

38 And in the eleventh year, in the month Bul, which is the eighth month, was the house finished || throughout all the parts thereof, and according to all the fashion of it. So was he seven years in building it. || Or, with all the appurtenances thereof, and with all the ordinances thereof. 1005.

neated in every part of this holy place, the hosts of angels were represented, there attending on the Divine Majesty, as ministers to execute His pleasure. Bp. Patrick.

36. — he built the inner court.] Meaning the court of the priests, or that in which they were to perform their services; and which, as here described, was parted from the court of the people by a low wall faced with wood, so that the people might see what the priests did, and the priests could address the people for any purpose which they might wish. Pyle.

38. — So was he seven years in building it.] He was seven years and a half in building it, but the half year is omitted to express the time in round numbers. Bp. Patrick. This building of the temple was a work of extraordinary despatch, if we consider its magnitude, variety, and minuteness. The summit of the rocky limestone mount of Moriah was first to be levelled, and hollows and inequalities to be filled up, in order to form a sufficient area or platform for the temple itself, its courts, porticoes, and surrounding offices, which altogether composed a prodigious pile of building, the most splendid and magnificent, perhaps, that the world ever saw; worthy of the Divine Architect who planned, and of the wise and opulent prince who executed it. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

CHAP. VII.

1 The building of Solomon's house. 2 Of the house of Lebanon. 6 Of the porch of pillars. 7 Of the porch of judgment. 8 Of the house for Pharaoh's daughter. 13 Hiram's work of the two pillars. 23 Of the molten sea. 27 Of the ten buses. 38 Of the ten lavers, 40 and all the vessels.

1005. till 992.
Chap. 9.
10.

BUT Solomon was building his own house thirteen years, and he finished all his house.

2 ¶ He built also the house of the forest of Lebanon; the length thereof was an hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits, upon four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams upon the pillars.

† Heb.
ribs.

3 And it was covered with cedar above upon the † beams, that lay on forty five pillars, fifteen in a row.

† Heb. sight against sight.

4 And there were windows in three rows, and † light was against light in three ranks.

Though the temple itself was a small edifice, yet the many courts and offices about it made the whole a vast pile; and the exquisiteness of the art, and the small number of the artists that could be employed, rendered a long time necessary for the construction. It must be owned, however, that, considering all things, singular despatch was used; for, if the building of Diana's temple at Ephesus employed all Asia for 200 years; and if no less than 360,000 men were employed for twenty years in erecting one pyramid, (as Pliny affirms,) no reasonable man can wonder that the temple was seven years and a half in building. Stackhouse.

The following is a further account of Solomon's temple, given by Calmet, from whom the plan of the structure which accompanies this work is taken.

The place pitched upon for the erection of this magnificent structure was on one side of mount Sion, called Moriah. Its entrance or front stood towards the east, and the most holy and most retired part was towards the west. In the books of Kings and Chronicles we have chiefly a description of the temple properly so called, that is, the holy place, the most holy, and the apartments belonging to them, also the vessels, implements, and ornaments of the temple; without much description of the courts and open areas, which however made a principal part of the grandeur of this august edifice. But Ezekiel has supplied the defect by the exact plan which he has delineated of these parts. It must be owned that the temple, as described by Ezekiel, was never restored after the Babylonish captivity, according to the model and mensurations which that Prophet has given of it. But as the measures which he sets down for the holy and most holy places are nearly the same as those of the temple of Solomon, and as this Prophet, who was himself a priest, had seen the first temple, it is to be supposed that the description which he gives us of the temple of Jerusalem, is that of the temple of Solomon.

The ground-plot on which the temple was built was a square of 600 cubits, Ezek. xlv. 2. This space was encompassed with a wall of the height of six cubits, and of the same breadth. Beyond this wall was the court of the Gentiles, being fifty cubits wide. After this was seen a great wall, which encompassed the whole court of the children of Israel. This court of the children of Israel was 500 cubits in square, and was encompassed all round with magnificent galleries, supported by two or three rows of pillars. It had four gates or entrances, to the east, west, north, and south, respectively. They were all of the same form and size, and each had an ascent of seven steps. The court was paved with marble of divers colours, and had no covering; but the people, in case of need, could retire under the galleries that 5 And all the ‖ doors and posts were square, with the windows: and light was against light in three ranks.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

6 ¶ And he made a porch of pillars; the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof thirty cubits: and the porch was ‖ before them: and the other pillars and the thick beam were ‖ before them.

‖ Or, spaces and pillars were square in prospect.

‖ Or, according to them.

‖ Or, according to them.

7 ¶ Then he made a porch for the throne where he might judge, even the porch of judgment: and it was covered with cedar † from one side of the floor to the other.

† Heb. from floor to floor.

8 ¶ And his house where he dwelt had another court within the porch, which was of the like work. Solomon made also an house for Pharaoh's daughter, ^b whom he had taken to wife, like unto this porch.

^b Chap. 3. 1.

9 All these were of costly stones, according to the measures of hewed stones, were round about it. The court of the priests was placed in the middle of the court of the people, and was a perfect square, having each side 100 cubits. It was encompassed without by a great wall, having various covered galleries and apartments round about. These apartments were for the lodging of the priests, and for laying up such things as were necessary for the use of the temple. There were but three ways of entrance, to the east, north, and south, and there was an ascent to it of eight steps. Before, and over-against the gate of the court of the priests, in the court of Israel, was erected a throne for the king, being a magnificent alcove, where the king seated himself when he came into the temple. Within the court of the priests, and over-against the same eastern gate, was the altar of burnt offerings, of twelve cubits square, according to Ezek. xliii. 12, 13, of ten cubits high, and twenty broad, according to 2 Chron. iv. 1; the ascent to it was by stairs on the eastern side. Beyond this, and to the west of the altar of burnt offerings, was the temple properly so called, that is, the most holy place, the holy place, and the porch or entrance. The porch was twenty cubits wide, and six cubits deep. The holy place was forty cubits wide, and twenty deep. There stood the golden candlestick, the table of shewbread, and the golden altar upon which the incense was offered. The most holy place was a square of twenty cubits. There was nothing in it but the ark of the covenant, including the tables of the law; the high priest entered into it only once a year; and none else was permitted to enter. Solomon embellished the inside of this most holy place with palm trees in relief, and cherubims of wood covered with plates of gold, and in general the whole of it was adorned, and, as it were, overlaid with plates of gold. Round the holy and most holy places were three stories of chambers, to the number of thirty-three. Ezekiel makes them only four cubits wide; but, according to 1 Kings vi. 5, 6, five cubits were allowed to the first story, six to the second, and seven to the third.

Chap. VII. ver. 1. — was building his own house thirteen years, It appears that he did not begin to build his own house till he had finished the house of God; for it is stated at chap. ix. 10, that he was twenty years in building the two. The house here mentioned was in Jerusalem. It appears from the next verse, that he also built another house for himself, called "the house of the forest of Lebanon." We are not to suppose from this name that it was built in the forest of Lebanon, which was in the very extremity of Solomon's kingdom; it was probably built in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem, and derived its name, perhaps, from being built on a cool and shady mountain, and surrounded with lofty trees. Bp. Patrick.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

sawed with saws, within and without, even from the foundation unto the coping, and so on the outside toward the great court.

10 And the foundation was of costly stones, even great stones, stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits.

11 And above were costly stones, after the measures of hewed stones, and cedars.

12 And the great court round about was with three rows of hewed stones, and a row of cedar beams, both for the inner court of the house of the Lord, and for the porch of the house.

13 ¶ And king Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre.

† Heb.
the son of a widow woman.

14 He was † a widow's son of the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass: and he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and cunning to work all works in brass. And he came to king Solomon, and wrought all his work.

† Heb. fashioned.

15 For he † cast two pillars of brass, of eighteen cubits high apiece: and a line of twelve cubits did compass either of them about.

16 And he made two chapiters of molten brass, to set upon the tops of the pillars: the height of the one chapter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapter was five cubits:

17 And nets of checker work, and wreaths of chain work, for the chapiters which were upon the top of the pillars; seven for the one chapter, and seven for the other chapter.

18 And he made the pillars, and two rows round about upon the one network, to cover the chapiters that were upon the top, with pomegranates: and so did he for the other chapter.

19 And the chapiters that were upon the top of the pillars were of lily work in the porch, four cubits.

10. — stones of ten cubits, &c.] The size of these stones has been justly deemed matter of surprise, their measure being from seventeen to eighteen feet. All surprise, however, at these will cease, on the mention of what is related by Volney, concerning the ruins of Balbec, that there are stones amongst them of fifty-eight feet in length and twelve feet in thickness. What means the ancients had of moving such enormous masses, is wholly unknown. Fragments to Calmet.

15. — he cast two pillars &c.] The first piece of workmanship, in which the new artist was engaged, was the construction of two brass pillars of large dimensions at the entrance of the temple porch, with a fine wrought chapter or head border on the top of each, the whole being covered all over with artificial wreathings, flowerings, and networks. To these pillars Solomon gave the

Before
CHRIST
1005.

20 And the chapiters upon the two pillars had pomegranates also above, over against the belly which was by the network: and the pomegranates were two hundred in rows round about upon the other chapter.

21 ° And he set up the pillars in the porch of the temple: and he set up the right pillar, and called the name thereof ¶ Jachin: and he set up the left pillar, and called the name thereof ¶ Boaz.

° 2 Chron.
3. 17.
¶ That is,
He shall establish.
¶ That is,
In it is strength.

22 And upon the top of the pillars was lily work: so was the work of the pillars finished.

23 ¶ And he made a molten sea, ten cubits † from the one brim to the other: it † was round all about, and his height was five cubits: and a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about.

† Heb.
from his brim to his brim.

24 And under the brim of it round about there were knops compassing it, ten in a cubit, ° compassing the sea round about: the knops were cast in two rows, when it was cast.

° 2 Chron.
4. 3.

25 It stood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east: and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

26 And it was an hand breadth thick, and the brim thereof was wrought like the brim of a cup, with flowers of lilies: it contained two thousand baths.

27 ¶ And he made ten bases of brass; four cubits was the length of one base, and four cubits the breadth thereof, and three cubits the height of it.

28 And the work of the bases was on this manner: they had borders, and the borders were between the ledges:

29 And on the borders that were between the ledges were lions, oxen, and cherubims: and upon the ledges there was a base above: and beneath the lions and names of Jachin and Boaz, which signify "direction" and "strength;" perhaps he designed them to bear allusion to the two memorable pillars of fire and of the cloud which conducted the Israelites from Egypt. Pyle.

26. — it contained two thousand baths.] A bath (the same as the ephah) is thought to have contained eight gallons, so that this sea contained about five hundred barrels. At 2 Chron. iv. 5, it is stated that "it received and held three thousand baths;" it is probably meant, that it would contain this quantity, although the former quantity was that which was usually put into it. The use of this "brass sea" was for the priests to wash their hands and feet at their first entrance into the temple, 2 Chron. iv. 6. Bp. Patrick, Pyle.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

oxen were certain additions made of thin work.

30 And every base had four brasen wheels, and plates of brass: and the four corners thereof had undersetters: under the laver were undersetters molten, at the side of every addition.

31 And the mouth of it within the chapter and above was a cubit: but the mouth thereof was round after the work of the base, a cubit and an half: and also upon the mouth of it were gravings with their borders, foursquare, not round.

† Heb.
in the base.

32 And under the borders were four wheels; and the axletrees of the wheels were † joined to the base: and the height of a wheel was a cubit and half a cubit.

33 And the work of the wheels was like the work of a chariot wheel: their axletrees, and their naves, and their felloes, and their spokes, were all molten.

34 And there were four undersetters to the four corners of one base: and the undersetters were of the very base itself.

35 And in the top of the base was there a round compass of half a cubit high: and on the top of the base the ledges thereof and the borders thereof were of the same.

† Heb.
nakedness.

36 For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on the borders thereof, he graved cherubims, lions, and palm trees, according to the † proportion of every one, and additions round about.

37 After this manner he made the ten bases: all of them had one casting, one measure, and one size.

38 ¶ Then made he ten lavers of brass: one laver contained forty baths: and every laver was four cubits: and upon every one of the ten bases one laver.

† Heb.
shoulder.

39 And he put five bases on the right † side of the house, and five on the left side of the house: and he set the sea on the right side of the house eastward over against the south.

40 ¶ And Hiram made the lavers, and the shovels, and the basons. So Hiram made an end of doing all the work that he made king Solomon for the house of the LORD: Before CHRIST

1005.

41 The two pillars, and the two bowls of the chapters that were on the top of the two pillars; and the two networks, to cover the two bowls of the chapters which were upon the top of the pillars;

42 And four hundred pomegranates for the two networks, even two rows of pomegranates for one network, to cover the two bowls of the chapters that were † upon the pillars; † Heb.
upon the face of the pillars.

43 And the ten bases, and ten lavers on the bases;

44 And one sea, and twelve oxen under the sea;

45 And the pots, and the shovels, and the basons: and all these vessels, which Hiram made to king Solomon for the house of the LORD, were of † bright brass.

† Heb. made bright,
or, scoured.

46 In the plain of Jordan did the king cast them, † in the clay ground between Succoth and Zarthan.

† Heb.
in the thickness of the ground.

47 And Solomon left all the vessels unweighed, † because they were exceeding many: neither was the weight of the brass † found out.

† Heb. for the exceeding multitude.

48 And Solomon made all the vessels that pertained unto the house of the LORD: the altar of gold, and the table of gold, wherenpon the shewbread was,

† Heb.
sarched.

49 And the candlesticks of pure gold, five on the right side, and five on the left, before the oracle, with the flowers, and the lamps, and the tongs of gold,

50 And the bowls, and the snuffers, and the basons, and the spoons, and the † censers of pure gold; and the hinges of gold, both for the doors of the inner house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the house, to wit, of the temple.

† Heb.
ash pans.

51 So was ended all the work that king Solomon made for the house of the LORD. And Solomon brought in the † things which David his father had dedicated; even the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, did he put among the treasures of the house of the LORD.

† Heb.
holy things of David.
2 Chron.
5. 1.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The feast of the dedication of the temple. 12, 54

46. — did the king cast them,] He had them cast in moulds of clay, in a part of the country where the soil was fit for the purpose. Pyle.

48. — the altar of gold,] That is, the altar of incense which stood in the holy place before the oracle.

— and the table of gold,] He made ten tables according to 2 Chron. iv. 8, on one of which, it is probable, being more costly and splendid than the rest, the shewbread was placed. Bp. Patrick.

51. — And Solomon brought in &c.] It is probably meant, that all the remaining silver and gold which David had prepared, and which was not spent in this work, Solomon did not employ to his own uses, but religiously preserved in the treasury of the temple. Bp. Patrick.

Chap. VIII. This chapter is to be compared with 2 Chron. v. vi, and vii.

Before
CHRIST
1005.

Solomon's blessing. 22 Solomon's prayer. 62 His sacrifice of peace offerings.

2 Chron.
5. 2.

† Heb.
princes.

1004. THEN ^a Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the † chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto king Solomon in Jerusalem, that they might bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD out of the city of David, which is Zion.

2 And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at the feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month.

3 And all the elders of Israel came, and the priests took up the ark.

4 And they brought up the ark of the LORD, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, even those did the priests and the Levites bring up.

5 And king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel, that were assembled unto him, were with him before the ark, sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

6 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD unto his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubims.

7 For the cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark and the staves thereof above.

8 And they drew out the staves, that the

3. — the priests took up the ark.] The ark had been carried by the priests three times before this; when they went over Jordan, when they encompassed the walls of Jericho, and when David sent it back at the time that he fled from Absalom, 2 Sam. xv. 29, 30. It was the office of the Levites to carry the ark upon their shoulders, except on special occasions; but now they could not, because it was not lawful for them to enter into the holy place, into which it was to be carried, and then into the most holy. It is said indeed at 2 Chron. v. 4, that "the Levites took it up;" but the meaning is, that they took it up and carried it to the temple, and then the priests took it up, ver. 7, and carried it into the most holy place. Bp. Patrick.

4. — the tabernacle of the congregation.] It has been made a question what tabernacle is here meant, whether that made by Moses, which was now at Gibeon, (2 Chron. i. 3,) or that made by David, which was at Jerusalem, 2 Sam. vi. 17. But, as the tabernacle made by David was only a plain tent set up for temporary convenience, it seems to admit of little doubt that the Mosaic tabernacle is that here intended: this, for the prevention of all schism, and to make the temple the centre of devotion, was now taken down, and laid by in the treasury or storehouse; there it remained until the taking of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans, when Jeremiah, as Josephus informs us, was admonished by God to take it, the ark and the altar of incense, and hide them in some secret places, for fear of profanation; and it is doubted whether they were ever removed from thence. Calmet, Stackhouse. They brought the ark from mount Sion, the tabernacle from Gibeon. Dr. Wall.

† ends of the staves were seen out in the || holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are unto this day.

9 There was nothing in the ark ^b save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, || when the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place, that the cloud ^c filled the house of the LORD, 11 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of the LORD.

12 ¶ Then spake Solomon, The LORD ^d said that he would dwell in the thick darkness.

13 I have surely built thee an house to dwell in, a settled place for thee to abide in for ever.

14 And the king turned his face about, and blessed all the congregation of Israel: (and all the congregation of Israel stood;)

15 And he said, Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which spake with his mouth unto David my father, and hath with his hand fulfilled it, saying, 16 Since the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel to build an house, that my name might be therein; but I chose ^e David to be over my people Israel.

Before
CHRIST
1004.

† Heb.
heads.
|| Or, ark:
as 2 Chron.
5. 9.
b Deut. 10.
5.
|| Or,
where.

^c Exod. 40.
34.

^d 2 Chron.
6. 1.

^e 2 Sam. 7.
8.

5. — that could not be told — for multitude.] Meaning, that the number was very great.

9. — nothing — save the two tables of stone.] The passage in Hebrews ix. 4, appears to be inconsistent with this, where it is affirmed, that in this ark "was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded," as well as "the tables of the covenant." To explain this, some learned persons understand, in the passage in the Hebrews, that the golden pot, &c. were not placed in the ark, but by it, or near it; which the word in the original language warrants. Others understand, that, before the ark had any fixed and settled abode, all these things were placed in it; but that, at the time when it was carried to the temple, the two tables only were left in it, every thing else being carried to the treasury of the temple. Bp. Patrick, Calmet.

10. — the cloud filled the house] The cloud of glory which formerly resided in the tabernacle, descended now into the temple, filling the whole house, first with inexpressible darkness, out of which afterwards brake forth a light unbearable by the priests, who were therefore forced to withdraw, and could not continue the service till it abated. Pyle. The Lord's acceptance of Solomon's temple, and of the dedication which he was now about to make of it, was shewn, 1st, by "the glory of the Lord" filling the house or inner temple, as here related: and, 2d, by the fire of the Lord coming down from heaven, as soon as Solomon had ended his prayer of dedication, and consuming the burnt offering and the sacrifices, 2 Chron. vii. 1. Dr. Hales.

Before
CHRIST
1004.

